Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Strategic Plan
Five-Year Strategic Objectives, Measures and FY20 Actions

I. Diversity Equity and Inclusion Strategic Plan: Overview

Selected text from President’s Diversity Charge:
At the University of Michigan, our dedication to academic excellence for the public good is inseparable from our commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. It is central to our mission as an educational institution to ensure that each member of our community has full opportunity to thrive in our environment, for we believe that diversity is key to individual flourishing, educational excellence and the advancement of knowledge.

Goals: Diversity, Equity and Inclusion:
Diversity: We commit to increasing diversity, which is expressed in myriad forms, including race and ethnicity, gender and gender identity, sexual orientation, socio-economic status, language, culture, national origin, religious commitments, age, (dis)ability status, and political perspective.

Equity: We commit to working actively to challenge and respond to bias, harassment, and discrimination. We are committed to a policy of equal opportunity for all persons and do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, marital status, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, disability, religion, height, weight, or veteran status.

Inclusion: We commit to pursuing deliberate efforts to ensure that our campus is a place where differences are welcomed, different perspectives are respectfully heard and where every individual feels a sense of belonging and inclusion. We know that by building a critical mass of diverse groups on campus and creating a vibrant climate of inclusiveness, we can more effectively leverage the resources of diversity to advance our collective capabilities.

Rationale: Mission, Vision, Values: Established at the University of Michigan in 1923, the Clements is a premier research library for studying the American experience from 1492 to 1900. Dedicated to serving the students and scholars of the University and elsewhere who interpret and write the history of the Americas, the Library collects, preserves and makes accessible primary sources—books, maps, manuscripts, prints, photographs, ephemera, and other paper materials—that illuminate early American history while serving as a hub for ongoing historical research and scholarly conversation.

In keeping with the university’s mission for diversity, equity and inclusion, the William L. Clements Library is committed to actively recognizing and supporting underrepresented voices throughout the Library’s community, operations, and historical resources. This commitment has significant bearing on our collection policy, access systems, staffing, outreach, public exhibits and programs, and collaborations with the university’s faculty and students.
Implementation Summary:

Years one through three of the Clements Library’s DE&I implementation saw measurable progress in making resources related to DE&I more visible; expanding resources through newly targeted acquisition funds; enhancing scholarship with targeted fellowship funds for research projects relating to DE&I themes in American History; and with follow-up training and engagement activities underway. Years one and two continued assessment through staff and patron surveys, but in year three we avoided survey fatigue by tabling surveys.

The library does continue to be challenged by the lack of diversity within the field of libraries and archives students and professionals, as well as an administrative capacity limited by a small permanent staff, but we are actively taking measures to counter these issues.

Assessment and unit engagement activities

Year One of the Clements Library’s DE&I implementation saw continuation of assessment activities featuring a town-hall session held jointly with the University Library, plus two constituency surveys conducted by the Advance Group, one of library staff, the other of library patrons. The results of both were generally very positive but did point to issues demanding action. Follow-up sessions with the entire library staff (facilitated discussions, unintentional bias and intercultural awareness training) occurred in Year Two. In Year Three the “internal communications” work group that was formed from Year One surveys, facilitated disability awareness and change it up training. The entire library staff has dedicated itself to participating in monthly conversations regarding accessibility. Topics are selected by staff volunteers to lead the conversation. We have discussed the Steve Robbins DEI inclusion insights short videos, accessibility, and teaching race at historically white colleges/universities.

Programs launched

Scholarship related to DE&I was actively supported through new targeted fellowship programs, exhibits, lectures and public events, acquisition of research materials, and improved visibility of DE&I related research collections. Targeted funds for fellowships and acquisitions were established during Year One. New workflows for digitization and cataloging of DE&I relevant collections material were initiated. Designing new systems for tracking the relationships between acquisitions, fellowship programs, and scholarship has begun with the objective of encouraging scholarship on DE&I themes.

Year Three Highlights:
An important highlight in Year 3 was the addition of an optional field within our registration process that allows a researcher to select preferred pronouns. Our Aeon request system requires researchers to fill out a form with personal information, such as name, address, institution, etc. We encountered a situation where a student’s given name did not reflect their gender identity and this student was mis-gendered. Within 24 hours, we had updated our registration process to include an optional preferred pronoun and trained staff to check this field to ensure this would not happen in the future. We were the first library on campus to add this feature. This is important for welcoming nonbinary members of our community. We have seen many readers both cisgender and transgender choose this option.

Among the most satisfying results from the first three years were the collaborative class sessions and workshops held at the Clements that introduce U-M students to historical research on DE&I themes. Of note this year was the Clements hosting a research workshop for VetCore prospective students, June 2019.

Much of the work of previous years DEI summer interns came to fruition this year with a soft launch of a new online platform for access to our manuscript collections. This portal features material rich in DEI content. Much of these materials were scanned and cataloged by Clements DEI interns. Over many decades, the manuscript materials have been the most frequently consulted genre at the Clements. However, until recently, we have not had an adequate online delivery platform available. With the introduction of a new system by U-M Digital Library Platform and Services, the Clements can now offer sophisticated digital access to archival collections in manuscript form. A related blog post written by Cheney Schopieray, Curator of Manuscripts is here:

https://theclementslibrary.blogspot.com/2019/04/reading-manuscript-which-reposes.html

Clements DEI interns also created digital access to over 400 historical musical scores, many of which feature DEI themes. These appear publically in the HathiTrust digital database.

The acquisition of additional DE&I related research materials continues to be a priority. Of particular note are:

- Marie R. A. "Alida" Taber Log Book and Diary, 1853-1861. Kept by wife of a whaling captain (George Taber) covering two whaling expeditions and one stay on shore. This is an incredible and rare whaling account written from a woman’s perspective.
- James W. Piatt Scrapbook, Tunkhannock, Pennsylvania, 1892-1896 relating to the murder of Jewish peddler Jakey Marks, compiled by attorney James W. Piatt who defended Harris Blank and Isaac Rosenweig.
• Ella Dillard Bates Diary, January - April 1862, Georgia. Reflects white Southern women and their relationship to slaves-- important for both the study of gender and race. Entries relate to daily domestic activities on the family plantation including references to servants / slaves, including her interpersonal conflicts with female slaves.

• Constituciones del Colegio De S. Ignacio De Loyola de Mexico (Madrid, 1767). This Spanish publication established in Mexico what has become the oldest female school in the western hemisphere.

• Carta, Gabino. Gvia de confessores, practica de administrar los sacramentos, en especial el de la penitencia (1660). Rare publication by an early Mexican woman printer.

Collection access and interpretation:

To provide better access and understanding of historic Native American materials, the Clements has been in consultation with tribal representatives and scholars. Direct meetings with U-M Profs. Michael Witgens and Robin Beck of Native Am Studies, NAGPRA rep. William Secunda, and Eric Hemenway of Little Traverse Bay Odowa Bands took place this past fiscal year. Remote conversations with other tribal authorities are underway.

Research fellows:

In 2019 the Library extended the highest number of fellowships to date and will bring 22 scholars to the University of Michigan to undertake original research in the Clements' rare and unique collections. Paralleling our holdings' strengths related to topics concerning diversity in the American past, approximately 68% of our 2019 fellows will be working on projects that advance the study of race, gender, and disability.

Speakers and public programs:

• Jan. 17, 2019 - Discover Series: Student Work with Underrepresented Perspectives

• May 9, 2019. Contemporary Issues roundtable on New Motherhood. In collaboration with the Eisenberg Institute for Historical Studies. A broad range of over 45 participants from campus and the general public joined a panel of historians and social workers to discuss this topic. https://theclementslibrary.blogspot.com/2019/05/contemporary-issues-discussion-debut.html
Challenges

The library begins year four during a leadership transition. Brian Dunnigan, our Associate Director retired at the end of FY19 and Kevin Graffagnino, our Director will retire December 2019, with his successor still unnamed at the time of this report. We are optimistic that the next administration will continue to enthusiastically support DEI engagement but it is unknown what new focus there may be.

The limited administrative capacity of the library staff may be further challenged during year four as four critical temporary positions will expire at the end of FY20. All four of these positions have been directly involved in DEI efforts including online cataloging and digitization of DEI materials, reference requests pertaining to underrepresented groups, and library outreach and communication.

In the past several years, the marketplace for significant historical materials related to African American history has been dominated by wealthy celebrity collectors and the Smithsonian Museum of African American History making it extremely difficult for the Clements to expand its research holdings in this area. We are also seeing this trend with important Native American historical materials and other DEI related topics. The library is continuing to cultivate donors to support these efforts.

II. Planning Process Used

Planning Lead(s)  Shneen Coldiron, Louis Miller
Planning Team  Shneen Coldiron, Louis Miller
Planning Process Summary

- Process used to collect data: Staff meetings and exercises, review of existing institutional reports, Google Analytics, subject analysis of HathiTrust and Digital Library Production Services databases. Ongoing data capture includes surveys, Library Catalog data using Datamart and Aleph software, charting of frequency of patron research topics, and continued monitoring of reports on class-use, fellowship programs and exhibit topics.
- Sources of data: Library collection catalog in Library Catalog, library website, HathiTrust, Digital Library Production Services Image Bank, Digital Library Production Services finding aids database, Clements library patron database in Aeon and Filemaker Pro, reports on exhibits, fellowship programs and class-use. Also, data on collection additions expected to be drawn from ArchiveSpace software, presently in testing, to be implemented fully in FY20 to include graphics materials.

- Process used to analyze data: Statistical analysis of Library of Congress subject usage in Library Catalog, HathiTrust, and DLPS Image Bank; tracking of top ten most frequently visited online collection finding-aids; classification and review of research topics of patrons and research fellows; exhibits and class use reports.

- Action idea generation activities: Staff retreats and moderated meetings, regular staff meetings, DEI Planning Group meetings, and informal discussions.

Summary of engagement activities: FY20 activities include continuation of staff training; closing for MLK Day 2020 to encourage staff participation at the keynote lecture or at the on-site watch party; site visit to the Underground Railroad tour and the Holocaust museum is also planned for FY20.

Clements Library and Diversity, Equity and Inclusion – an Overview:

The William L. Clements Library is one of several highly specialized units of the University of Michigan that provides unique services to scholars and students. Some background on our past relative to diversity, equity and inclusion is important to understanding the challenges and opportunities that the next five years will bring.

The Library’s mission is to collect, preserve, and make accessible primary source materials that illuminate early American history from 1492 to the turn of the twentieth century. When the Library first opened its doors in 1923, it was intended only for "advanced research on the part of scholars already well equipped," not for students or general researchers. In the recent decades, the directors, curators, and staff have worked diligently to reverse this early policy and instead foster a welcoming and inclusive environment for researchers, students, and staff. These efforts have produced not only an exceptional collection of Americana that reflects on all aspects of American history but also programs and classes to usher in researchers and students to consult our collections. There is more work still to be done.

As an archive of rare books, manuscripts, maps, and visual materials, the Clements Library’s strengths revolve around our collections. This proves true for how the Library is advancing diversity, equity and inclusion as well. World-class scholars have frequented the Library as a key research institution, and both graduate and undergraduate students have benefitted from its unique educational resources. Our collections contain a wealth of information relating to a wide array of topics, including those relating to race and ethnicity, class, gender and sexuality, religion, and disability. An analysis of our online finding aid usage for 2015 revealed that many of our most heavily used finding aids are directly related to diversity topics. Four of our top thirteen most popular finding aids concern African American history, and many of the others are mainstays for those researching African American and Native American history. These metrics are backed by evidence drawn from our fellowship programs, with a conservative calculation that 40% of our fellows from 1997 to 2015 have worked on projects relating to diversity. Furthermore, of some 500 books published between 1922 and 2010 that relied on sources from the Clements Library, at least 77 titles related to race, gender, and other diversity topics.

The remarkable strength of our collections relating to early America and its complicated, diverse history draws scholars who plumb our holdings to write the histories of under-represented people. The carefully curated collections at the Clements Library serve an important role in the ongoing exploration of the diverse American past. The Library's commitment to expanding our collections to reveal the multifaceted stories of our nation's history, in conjunction with our robust fellowship program, promises to support pioneering and innovative studies.

Beyond the work undertaken by the scholars who visit the Clements from around the globe, the Library's collections also benefit the University of Michigan's student body. The Library welcomes classes for individually planned sessions relating to coursework, where we display and explain relevant resources. These sessions are the first experience many students have with original historical source materials. They often react with excitement and amazement, and are encouraged to plunge deeply into their research.

An example of the innovative teaching on under-represented populations that can be done at the Clements is the 2014 Department of Afroamerican and African Studies class African American Women’s History, taught by Thurnau Professor Martha S. Jones (now of Johns Hopkins University). The undergraduate students of this class came to a deep understanding of a 19th-century African American woman’s role in society through close study of a set of photograph albums at the Clements. This project did original research, built a website, and gained the attention of the media in Michigan and New York State. The resulting radio interviews and video by UM News and Information Services has kept the project active to this day. (See www.arabellachapman.com.)

As expected, faculty in the History department make good use of class sessions. In addition, we have supported teaching in over fifteen different University of Michigan departments in the past several years. Although Curators' presentations depend on the class subject as determined by the faculty, every semester the Clements Library works hand-in-hand with professors on the front line of teaching about diversity. How we can more effectively reach out to educators and students on a wider range of topics merits further investigation.
The talented curatorial staff at the Library also interact with students and the public through exhibitions, with 22% (4 of 18 in 2008-2013) of Clements exhibits primarily focused on diversity issues. This number could be higher, given the resources within the collection. The popularity of our public exhibits relating to diversity underscores the need to undertake this work. Our two best-attended exhibits have been "Reframing the Color Line" in 2006-7 and "Proclaiming Emancipation" in 2012-13. For "Proclaiming Emancipation," the Clements Library held more than 40 sessions with students, faculty, and staff that reached over 650 members of the University community. Investing resources, planning and promoting events, and hosting class visits boosted the visibility of this important exhibit, offering an example of how we can more effectively feature diversity in our public programming in the future.

The lectures and events hosted by the Clements Library are another important component of our outreach efforts, and another area for improvement. About 22% of the 18 lectures sponsored by the Clements in the past five years have focused primarily on DEI themes. In FY19 we hosted 56 lectures and tours. 75% of these included DEI themes. Thinking carefully about how to bring in lecturers, reach wider audiences, and represent the full spectrum of experience in early America promises to be a fruitful process for the Clements Library's deeper engagement with and promotion of diversity.

As a special collections library, the academic scholarship and student learning that rely on the William L. Clements Library's collections are two main components of how the Library envisions supporting diversity, equity, and inclusion at the University of Michigan. In combination with reimagining how our fellowships, lectures, publications, and staff engagement can support diversity, developing our collections and the encouraging their use by scholars and students alike promises to make the Clements Library a welcoming place to explore questions of our nation's diverse past. The following draft, edited for year four of our five-year plan, lays out the pathways that can maintain and advance diversity, equity and inclusion initiatives at the William L. Clements Library.

III. Data and Analysis: Key Findings

Summary of Data

Data Domains:
Education and scholarship
  Education and scholarship at the Clements are determined largely by which U-M departments and faculty we engage with, the topics selected by research fellows, the shape and content of the library’s research collection, and other resources.

Recruitment, retention, development
We will evaluate and reconsider how we advertise our open staff positions and our selection process, in consultation with peer institutions.

Promoting an equitable and inclusive community
The library will need to continue its quest to overcome the inherited perception that it is an exclusive, restrictive institution. Particular attention will be paid to ensure that our staff, patrons, and visitors all have equal opportunity for success, a rewarding experience, are sincerely welcomed, and have full access to the resources of the library, retaining due regard for care and security of collections material. Equity and inclusivity will be foremost in a review of policies, promotional efforts, and staff training.

Service
The library will continue to promote DEI through exhibits, lectures, and public interactions by staff.

Constituencies addressed:
Patrons (all registered researchers including independent scholars, research fellows, students)
Library staff, volunteers and docents
Faculty and students (Primarily at the University of Michigan)
Visitors (general public)
Advisory boards, and the Clements Library Associates membership (Committee of Management, CLA Board)

Data sources:
Patron data in Aeon and Filemaker Pro databases (research topics)
Patron survey
We have data tracking who the users of the library are in terms of academic credentials but not in terms of DEI metrics. We will survey current and past patrons to gather this data and assess perceptions of climate and inclusiveness.
Fellowship research reports
Analysis of topics of research through Clements Library fellowship programs
Review of selection process
Clements Library Collections Policy
Library Catalog of Library collection
Analysis of the contents of the research collection related to DEI subjects and keywords
Google Analytics of Clements Library online finding aids
Review of research topics based on frequency and duration of hits

Key Findings, Themes and Recommendations:

Among the most significant lessons learned thus far in this process is that there is significant data that the Clements Library has not tracked. Although we have been recording who our patrons are in terms of academic identity and credentials, we have not logged anything on who they are in terms of diversity metrics, nor have we gauged their perceptions on climate. We do track their topics of research and resulting publications, and we have compiled feedback on the quality of their experiences in general.

We track which UM departments we collaborate with on teaching, special class projects, exhibits, and conferences. We also have data on the topics represented by those projects. This data has indicated that we do serve a very broad range of University departments outside of the most obvious in History and American Culture. Other major users of the library in teaching are the departments of DAAS, Asian Languages, Music and Theater, and English. Diversity themes are frequently emphasized by the instructors of all of these departments. Exhibits with DEI themes have drawn a very wide range of classes.

We also gather data about what topics the research collection represents, how the materials are used, and by whom, going back in time. In 2015 we implemented the Aeon System to better track the materials and generate reports, including use related to DEI topics. In FY20 we will use additional resources offered by Aeon for reporting. Expanding awareness of the Clements as a resource for the study of DEI topics is a top priority and we have proposed a new staff position that will focus on this need. The existing Clements collection offers unique research opportunities on a par with those at the very top public and private university libraries. There is an opportunity here for the University of Michigan to elevate its status by leveraging the Clements Library and historical research related to DEI themes.

For a research library like the Clements, the contents of the research collection itself largely shape what we are and whom we serve. The growing, expanding Clements collection provides a foundation of strength for our contribution to a campus wide climate of diversity, equity and inclusion. The library’s acquisitions are guided by a Collections Policy that has for years prioritized the acquisition and development of research collections related to underrepresented voices in American history, in particular women, Native Americans, and African Americans. Quantifying this policy for incorporation into this plan was found to be impractical due to the opportunistic nature of acquisitions of historical material and the difficulties posed by unlike comparisons of differing materials.

We continue to review our subject cataloging points of access to ensure items of interest are appropriately identified on an ongoing basis. In 2014 the library completed a two-year grant-funded cataloging project that targeted collection of manuscripts and graphics related to underrepresented voices.

We are concerned that because the number of patrons of libraries of this type tends to be small, the resulting data from our inquiries may not carry significant meaning. We have consulted with outside expertise from the Advance Research & Evaluation program on this issue.

We are also concerned that connecting to students who are not already familiar with the library may be a challenge. We will continue to consult with faculty with whom we have strong relationships, and we are in consultation with the DEIPG Student Engagement team and conducted a library town hall event to solicit feedback.

The Clements is aware that we serve a narrow group of specialized scholars, and that a misperception has persisted that we are exclusive and detached from the university community. We’ve made great progress in the past few years to overcome this but will continue to prioritize this issue. We would like to know how we are perceived, particularly by students and faculty, regarding DEI, and intend to find out.

We have one governing board, the Committee of Management, and our friends group board, the Clements Library Associates Board of Governors. The lack of diversity within the traditional spheres of Americana collectors and library patrons is reflected within these groups. Bringing a greater awareness of DEI issues to the composition of these boards will help greatly in shaping other outcomes related to DEI and is a high priority of the Library Director. Progress was made in FY18 by adding two members to the CLA board, selected for the fresh perspectives and new energy that they are expected to bring, along with a firm commitment to the goals of our DEI program.

- Finally, our staff, which has benefited from cultural sensitivity training, may also benefit from greater diversity in composition. We are challenged by being in a field not known for diversity among its professionals, but we are determined to broaden the diversity of our applicant pools. Starting immediately, we will fully explore all available resources to meet this ongoing challenge. We will direct our staff to the resources of the Office for Institutional Equity and the mediation services available for the resolution of conflicts related to DEI and promote awareness of these services. The Clements is expecting major leadership transitions in FY 20 with the retirements of Associate Director Brian Leigh Dunnigan followed by Director J. Kevin Graffagnino. The leadership experience and institutional history that will be lost will be very significant, however, the library expects these openings will be perceived as an opportunity to renew the Library's commitment to our DEI programs by seeking candidates with a demonstrated commitment to DEI. The leadership profile includes a qualification for a demonstrated commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion and a vision for showcasing and strengthening the library's diversity with respect to personnel, workplace environment, campus and community networking, programming, and priorities for acquisition, cataloguing, and exhibits. The Clements staff enjoys a very low turnover rate and would have valuable insights to offer during the searches to fill these positions. Two staff members have been an active part of the early 2019 director search process.

IV. Strategic Objectives, Measures of Success and Action Plans*

*All strategic objectives and related actions will be pursued in accordance with the law and University policy. These actions will be acted upon as budget and other resources allow.

IV. A. Recruitment, Retention and Development

Constituency: Staff

Five-Year Strategic Objective 1: Increase diversity representation on permanent and temporary staff

Measures of Success: Given the small size of our staff, any increase will have a significant impact on overall percentages

FY20 Actions:

- Broaden staff recruitment strategies to seek a greater diversity of applicants
- Circulate job postings towards target audiences more likely to result in a diverse pool of applicants
- Continue to consult with peer institutions on recruitment strategies

Primary DE&I Goal: Diversity
Other applicable domain: Promoting an equitable and inclusive community

Constituency: Governing Boards

Five-Year Strategic Objective 2: Broaden under-represented minority representation on our governing boards

Measures of Success: Given the small size of our boards, any increase will have a significant impact on overall percentages

Ongoing actions:

- Canvass Clements Library Associates, and University faculty for nominations of candidates with a commitment to DEI
- Survey CLA membership on both DEI metrics and climate

Primary DE&I Goal: Diversity
Other applicable domain: Promoting an equitable and inclusive community
IV. B. Education and Scholarship

Constituency: Faculty, Students

Five-Year Strategic Objective 1: (Faculty and students) Promote teaching with Clements Library materials related to DEI in class sessions within the University

Measures of Success: (for Objective 1) Track diversity metrics of materials used and UM departments involved in class sessions using Aeon system data.

Ongoing actions:

● Promote teaching opportunities through Clements Electronic Newsletter, faculty meetings, etc.
● Filling three undergraduate internships and one graduate-student internship in pre-1900 American diversity history, to be supervised by curators from Clements divisions (Books, Conservation, Graphics, Manuscripts, Maps) with the goal of amplifying under-represented voices in American history, making visible hidden or overlooked materials related to DE&I themes, and conserving fragile materials for future generations of scholars from FY17-FY19
● Recap FY19 DEI internship program results in fall 2019 e-newsletter to campus

Primary DE&I Goal: Inclusion

Other applicable domain: Promoting an equitable and inclusive community

Constituency: Patrons

Five-Year Strategic Objective 2: Promote onsite research by on- and off-campus scholars into topics related to diversity/under-represented groups in American History. (40% of our fellows from 1997 to 2015 and 68% of the FY19 fellows have worked on projects relating to diversity).

Measures of Success: (for Objective 2) Track and measure frequency of research topics related to DEI themes in patron database (Aeon); measure use of materials by tracking subject terms of those requested; track and review access points of newly processed collections to ensure broadest possible availability of diversity topics and support current high level of use

FY20 Actions:

● Implement the use of Aeon, Library Catalog, and other tools for tracking collection use

Ongoing actions:

● Record and review process for selecting research fellows based on research topics; track their research topics annually
● Fill post-doctoral research fellowship in 19th century American diversity history
● Fill three Price Fellowship positions to focus on American diversity history
● Create online teaching/resource guides pointing to diversity topics in current library collections
● Fill graduate research fellowship for students from targeted Historically Black Colleges and Universities offering Masters degrees in history and/or African American Studies.

Primary DE&I Goal: Inclusion

Other applicable domain: Service; Promoting an equitable and inclusive community

Constituency: Patrons, faculty and students

Five-Year Strategic Objective 3: Increase access and visibility of Library holdings on topics related to diversity/under-represented groups in American History

Measures of Success: (for Objective 3) Track and measure frequency of reading room, classroom, and reference requests for materials related to DEI themes in patron and reference

Revised July 10, 2019
Page 13
databases (Aeon and Footprints); prioritize representation of materials related to DEI themes in Clements Digital Image Bank

Ongoing Actions:
- Targeted cataloging and digitization of collections including photographs, prints, and sheet music, books, manuscripts, and maps

Primary DE&I Goal: Inclusion

Other applicable domain: Promoting an equitable and inclusive community

Five-Year Strategic Objective 4: Expand holdings in areas related to DEI including race, immigration, sexual orientation and identity, religion, and under-represented or overlooked voices in American history

Measures of Success: (for Objective 4) Track and measure topics represented in new acquisitions

FY120 Actions:
- Begin tracking acquisitions by DEI topic in accession data
- Annual reporting from Clements divisions on accession topics

Ongoing Actions:
- Explore establishment of a DEI targeted fund for acquisitions. FY19 brought us one fund “Pooley fund” which fits in this action. The “Pooley fund” will now be used to purchase collections related to historically under-represented populations.
- Targeted cultivation of potential donors including in-kind

Primary DE&I Goal: Diversity

Other applicable domain: Service; Promoting an equitable and inclusive community

Five-Year Strategic Objective 5: Digital access to research materials related to DEI topics

Measures of Success: (for Objective 5) Ensure 100% representation in HathiTrust database of Clements book holdings related to DEI topics

FY20 Actions:
- Search catalog for predetermined list of DEI keywords and authors
- Scan relevant materials not already present

Primary DE&I Goal: Inclusion

Other applicable domain: Service; Promoting an equitable and inclusive community

Five-Year Strategic Objective 6: Digital access to Library research materials related to DEI topics

Measures of Success: (for Objective 6) Increase representation in Clements Digital Image Bank non-book holdings related to DEI topics

Ongoing Actions:
- Online cataloging of holdings related to predetermined list on Manuscript Division DEI topics
- Online cataloging of holdings related to predetermined list on Graphics Division DEI topics
- Scanning for inclusion in Clements Image Bank

IV. C. Promoting an Equitable and Inclusive Community
Constituency: Faculty, Students, Visitors, Patrons. Library staff

Five-Year Strategic Objective 1: Ensure that the physical space, human relations, and overall cultural climate of the library are welcoming to a diverse range of people across all constituencies

Measures of Success: (for Objective 1) Comparison with staff climate survey planned for future year to be determined.

FY20 Actions:
- Internal work group meetings to address issues raised during all-staff discussions of climate survey results.
- Continue to promote staff and docent training on cultural sensitivity and awareness, unconscious bias, etc.
- Promote existing pathways. The Clements administration will make good faith efforts to resolve work place conflicts, in compliance with the U-M Standard Practice Guide (SPG 201.08), and within unit supervisory channels whenever possible. Should a workplace conflict arise, the staff member should report to their immediate supervisor for resolution. If the conflict is between a staff member and their direct supervisor, then either the staff member or supervisor should report to the Clements Library HR Director. If unresolved within unit, parties involved will be encouraged to make use of U-M resources including the Office of Institutional Equity, Human Resources, HR Mediation Services, and the Faculty and Staff Counseling and Consultation Office. The Clements administration will share this policy at staff meetings and post links to resources visibly in staff areas.
- Create communication matrix; DEI resource list for staff use
- Staff visits to museums and historic sites focusing on under-represented groups in the metro Detroit area, staff participation in MLK Day events.

Ongoing actions:
- Make visible to visitors and researchers, through ongoing exhibits and displays, materials focused on traditionally under-represented groups in American History and DEI themes
- Promote the resources of the Office for Institutional Equity and the mediation services available for the resolution of conflicts related to DEI to all constituencies, especially new and existing staff
- Integrate ongoing DEI training and actions with annual staff performance evaluations
- Addition of optional field within registration process that allows for a researcher to select preferred pronouns

Constituency: Faculty, Students, Visitors, Patrons. Library staff

Five-Year Strategic Objective 2: Educate our community on sexual harassment and misconduct prevention in an effort to promote a safe and supportive environment for all members to work, learn and thrive.

Measures of Success: (for Objective2) To be determined.
FY20 Actions: Clements Library staff continue to complete the “Cultivating a Culture of Respect: Sexual Harassment and Misconduct Awareness” on-line module. That staff have been informed about the Sexual Misconduct Reporting and Resources that are available at the University of Michigan.

Primary DE&I Goal: Inclusion

Other applicable domain: Recruitment, retention, development

IV. D. Service

Constituency: Students, Patrons and Visitors

Five-Year Strategic Objective 1: Increase diversity of attendance and topics at Clements sponsored lectures, events, and exhibits.

Measures of Success: (for Objective 1) Increase attendance (entry/exit survey) in terms of diversity metrics; track topics of presentations to insure approximately 25% featuring DEI themes. [From 2010-2015, 10 out of a total of 45 (22%) Clements sponsored public events featured DEI related themes.] [In FY19 we hosted 56 lectures and tours. 75% of these included DEI themes.]

Ongoing Actions:

- Continue and expand diversity lecture topics, with promotion through postcard mailings, Clements Electronic Newsletter (circulated to UM departmental email lists), Clements website, and social media.
- Expand presentations and lectures to include senior centers, working with CLA board members
- Instituted new “Contemporary Issues” lecture series designed to draw in constituencies outside of traditional support base.

Primary DE&I Goal: Inclusion

| Faculty, Students, Visitors, Patrons, Library staff | Objective 1 Ensure that the physical space, human relations, and overall cultural climate of the library are welcoming to a diverse range of people across all constituencies. | Comparison with staff climate survey planned for future year to be determined. | ● Internal work group meetings to address issues raised during all-staff discussions of climate survey results.
● Continue to promote staff and docent training on cultural sensitivity and awareness, unconscious bias, etc.
● Promote existing pathways. The Clements administration will make good faith efforts to resolve workplace conflicts, in compliance with the U-M Standard Practice Guide (SPG 201.08), and within unit supervisory channels whenever possible. Should a workplace conflict arise, the staff member should report to their immediate supervisor for resolution. If the conflict is between a staff member and their direct supervisor, then either the staff member or supervisor should | DEI Implementation team, work group leads, curators of exhibits | Training session costs TBD | report to the Clements Library HR Director. If unresolved within unit, parties involved will be encouraged to make use of U-M resources including the Office of Institutional Equity, Human Resources, HR Mediation Services, and the Faculty and Staff Counseling and Consultation Office. The Clements administration will share this policy at staff meetings and post links to resources visibly in staff areas.

- Create communication matrix; DEI resource list for staff use
- Staff visits to museums and historic sites focusing on under-represented groups in the metro Detroit area, staff participation in MLK Day events.

Ongoing actions:
- Make visible to visitors and researchers, through ongoing exhibits and displays, materials focused on traditionally under-represented groups in American History and DEI themes
- Promote the resources of the Office for Institutional Equity and the mediation services available for the resolution of conflicts related to DEI to all constituencies, especially new and existing staff
- Integrate ongoing DEI training and actions with annual staff performance evaluations
- Addition of an optional field within registration process that allows for a researcher to select preferred pronouns.

VII. Plans for Supporting, Tracking and Updating the Strategic Plan

The Clements Library’s five-year plan will be a living plan that will grow and develop as data from constituencies points to areas of concern presently unmeasured, and as opportunities for advancement become available.
Specific actions in this plan will be linked to individual performance management goals and be included in annual performance reviews.

The planning group leads will become monitors for these programs in place and will submit annual reports to the Library Director as to progress on all fronts above, plus any additional.

Support for this plan will be solicited from all constituencies including staff, patrons, research fellows, and our peers at other institutions.

The Implementation Lead for DEI for year four will be Business Administrator Shneen Coldiron, with support from previous lead Clayton Lewis, and Reading Room Supervisor Louis Miller.
