Online edition updated December 2013.

The Directory of Early Michigan Photographers, compiled over several decades, identifies virtually every known commercial and significant amateur photographer that worked in the state of Michigan from the first known appearances in the 1840s into the early twentieth century. The author, David V. Tinder, is recognized as the top authority on early Michigan photography. Tinder's work sets a new standard for inclusiveness, scope, and detail for directories of this type. While a dearth of information has kept some entries brief, the lives of many have been traced "from the cradle to the grave," as Dave likes to say. With over 8,000 records, the Directory stands as an unsurpassed resource for historians, collectors, curators, archivists, genealogists, and anyone interested in the early history of photography in the United States.

David V. Tinder was born in Lima, Ohio, in 1926 and moved to Flint, Michigan, as a child. He served in the United States Navy as an electronic technician's mate until he was honorably discharged in July of 1946. Dave Tinder attended Flint Junior College for one year before transferring to the University of Michigan, which awarded him a Bachelor of Science degree in Physics in 1949.

Tinder spent the majority of his career as a project engineer and product development manager for automotive manufacturers and suppliers in the Detroit area. Tinder developed many successful designs and has been issued sixteen United States patents plus a number in foreign countries. Dave Tinder retired from United Technologies Automotive Products Division in 1990.

Tinder's interest and expertise in Michigan photographers was born from his collecting habits. In the late 1950s he was accumulating antique leaded glass lamps, art glass, ceramics, Art Nouveau pewter, and Japanese bronzes. Inspired by William C. Darrah's 1964 book Stereo Views: A History of Stereographs in America and Their Collection, he amassed a large collection of international photographic stereo views. By the early 1970s he began trading his international collection for Michigan stereos and began seriously collecting other early photographic formats related to Michigan. Eventually this would include examples of virtually every popular photographic format used by both professional and amateur photographers in the first century of photography.

With his collection now focused on Michigan images, Tinder became interested in documenting the lives and work of 19th century Michigan photographers and began creating his directory. The combination of collecting Michigan photographs and researching Michigan photographers focused Tinder's interest and advanced his detailed knowledge of the subject. Over time, Tinder expanded the scope of his collection to include real-photo postcards and other formats from the 20th century, and the research period for the Directory was elongated to include photographers who were active before 1920. Tinder's Directory of Early Michigan Photography now covers more than 8,000 men and women who played significant roles in the first eighty years of the business and the Tinder collection contains approximately 100,000 vintage photographs.

The significance of both of these achievements came to the attention of the William L. Clements Library at the University of Michigan, and a close relationship has grown between Tinder and the library. Clements Library Associates Board Member David B. Walters purchased the Tinder photo collection in 2006 and has been incrementally donating it to the Clements Library in honor of Harold L. Walters, University of Michigan class of 1947, Engineering, and Marilyn S. Walters, University of Michigan class of 1950, LS&A. Dave Tinder agreed to make the text of his directory available online through the library website.

The Directory of Early Michigan Photographers and the David V. Tinder Collection of Michigan Photography at the Clements Library is a unique combination of intertwined resources that will lead towards a more vivid understanding of our history, how people, places, and events were recorded in our visual cultural, and a clearer concept of our identity as Americans in Michigan.

Dave Tinder continues to actively collect Michigan images and is enthusiastically revising and expanding the Directory of Early Michigan Photography for the next edition.

Users guide

The Directory of Early Michigan Photographers is a resource for photograph collectors, archivists, historians, genealogists, and those with a general interest in photographic history. The organization of the directory is designed to identify and track the careers of individual photographers, to assist with researching specific photographs, and to provide a basis for the analysis of trends within the history of photography.

The directory lists professional and significant amateur photographers active in the state of Michigan from the first to appear in 1842 to those active before 1920. The cutoff date was established to include the significant impact of real photo postcard photography in the first decades of the twentieth century. Some exceptions have been made to this cutoff date. For example, there were likely many African Americans involved in early photography as anonymous assistants, but very few were doing business under their own names prior to 1900. For this reason, some African American photographers who began business after 1920 have been included.

Many of the best-known photographers who worked in Michigan at some point in their careers did so after 1920 and are therefore not included in this directory. Excluded are notable artists such as Charles Sheeler, Harry Callahan, Robert Frank, Bill Rauhauser, and many others.

Organization

This publication is organized in three main parts: Users Guide, Community Directory, and Alphabetical Directory. The Users Guide provides information on the directory structure, search tips, notes on research methodology, and a glossary. The Community Directory lists the chronological appearance of individual photographers in each Michigan town from the advent of photography to the 1920s. The Alphabetical Directory lists over 8000 individual photographers with information on their careers, genealogy, and life history. This section is the core of the directory and contains by far the most extensive information. Activity by Michigan photographers out-of-state, and in other professions may also be included. The complete directory totals over 2800 pages.

Community Directory structure and contents

The names of Michigan towns and cities appear alphabetically, with the names of photographers active in each community listed in chronological order of appearance. Also listed is the county, year of railroad arrival, and post office establishment for each locale.

Alphabetical Directory structure and contents

Most entries begin with a chronological listing of what is known of the career of the individual. Following the name of the entry and the locale, the word “photographer” or “daguerrean” or “artist,” etc. appears in either lower case or all capitalized form. Please note that those entries in all capitalize form (PHOTOGRAPHER) represent professional activity under that name; those in lower case (photographer) represent the work of an amateur or an employee.

A hyphen between two dates (1863-1866) indicates continuity, while a comma between two dates (1863,1866) carries no implication about the intervening years. An attempt to present a reasonable biographical and vocational sketch of each individual has been made, based on all the information available at the time of publication. Sources are indicated in the column to the right in the alphabetical directory listings. Numbers refer to the footnotes that immediately follow the entry. Letters refer to the source codes listed in Appendix I of frequently used sources.

Research tips

The Community Directory can help with the attribution of photographs when the place and date are known or can be deduced. Patterns of migration and growth can also be followed through this information.

This directory is in Adobe Portable Document Format and can be opened using Adobe Acrobat Reader. (At the time of publishing, Adobe Acrobat Reader can be downloaded at no charge via internet from: <http://www.adobe.com> and is often previously installed on many personal computers and tablets.)

The Directory's large size may discourage scrolling page by page. Opening the "Bookmarks" feature within the Acrobat Reader will allow for the quick jumping through the directory. The "Find" feature will allow for keyword searches.

Names can be located three ways: by slowly scrolling down the pages until the name you are searching for appears; by clicking on a bookmark and scrolling from that point; or by using the "Find" feature of Adobe Acrobat Reader. This feature can also be used to find any word or combination of words in the directory. For example, to compile a list of tintype photographers in Michigan, use the "Find" feature to search for "tintype." Make note of the name and repeat the find for the next subsequent appearance. By this method, a list can be compiled of tintype photographers.

Terms used to describe women, African Americans, Native Americans, etc. are not necessarily consistent within the directory. For example, to locate African American subjects, try searching for "black" as well as "African American." To locate women, look for "Miss, Mrs.," as well as "woman," and "female."

When known, information on photographic processes, business practices, and parallel careers are noted. From this directory the migration of photographers can be tracked from town to town and in some cases, across state lines. Also included are physical descriptions and significant life events, when known. This information can assist in the identification of photographs taken by known photographers of unknown locations, track the advent and obsolescence of various processes, study the effects of military service on career paths, and many other fields of research. Detailed biographies of some individual Michigan photographers exist in other publications, but for many, the biographical information contained in this publication is the most complete information known.

Community Directory

What follows is an alphabetical list of each town in which a photographer was situated, the county in which the town was located, a little information about the timing of the development of the town, and a chronological list of the photographers that worked in the town. The first date is the earliest year that the photographer is known to have worked in the town, and the second date is the last year that the photographer is known to have worked there. There is no assurance that the photographer worked in the town continuously between the two dates. See the individual entries for more specific information about the photographer's career. Single dates preceded by "circa" were estimated by the compiler from whatever information was available. The photographers in each town are listed in chronological order of the first date and then in alphabetical order of the last name of the photographer.

Alphabetical Directory

What follows is an alphabetical list of Michigan photographers by personal or business name. Biographical information, business addresses, comments about business practices and specializations are included when known. Following the name of the entry and the locale, the word “photographer” or “daguerrean” or “artist,” etc. appears in either lower case or all capitalized form. Please note that those entries in all capitalize form (PHOTOGRAPHER) represent professional activity under that name; those in lower case (photographer) represent the work of an amateur or an employee.

A hyphen between two dates (1863-1866) indicates continuity, while a comma between two dates (1863,1866) carries no implication about the intervening years. Sources are indicated in the column to the right in the alphabetical directory listings. Numbers refer to the footnotes that immediately follow the entry, letters refer to the source codes listed in Appendix I.

Lewis was born on April 28, 1839, at Cleveland, Ohio, the son of Perley and Thankful Abbey. He grew up with three K 1 older sisters and one younger sister. His Burdick Street gallery was one door south of Turner's bakery in 1877. In 1 K
 October of 1877, he was awarded Second Premium and $2.00 for the collection of photographs he entered in the St. K 3
 Joseph County Fair from Three Rivers. He married Miss Nellie Loring, but was widowed by 1880, when he was 3 5 sharing his home with his 15-year-old son born at White Pigeon. He produced stereoscopic views of Kalamazoo. His 1 6 cabinet mounts from the 1880s promised "Fine work at moderate prices. Instantaneous process. Negatives kept for t future orders." One Lewis C. Abbey had a gallery at 6016 Cottage Grove in Chicago, Illinois, in 1894 and 1895. Lewis t c died on August 28, 1904. His son, Peter L. Abbey, became a successful manufacturing pharmacist and joined the K 5
 Kalamazoo Light Guards before 1890. He took part in the Spanish-American War as a Major, and later was elected 5
 Colonel of his regiment. 5

Louis was born in Michigan in August of 1862, the eldest child of Marvin and Mary J. (Kelsey) Abernathy. His brother Nelson was born about 1868 and died prior to 1880. His brother Charles was born in March of 1870 and did survive. His father was a carpenter and joiner. Elma was born in Michigan in May of 1867, and she married Louis about 1885. Their children all were born in Michigan: Flossie (later Florence) in April of 1886, Nelson in May of 1888, Clarence in June of 1890, Charles in April of 1893, Lyle in August of 1896, Arthur in April of 1899, Glen in 1903, and Ethel in 1908. Louis purchased the Utica photography business of O. V. Stanton in the spring of 1899. Most of the Detroit listings were for Louis E. Abernathy. He and Elma still had Ethel at home on their farm in 1930, with their son Nelson and his wife farming on one side of them, and their son Charles and his family farming on the other.

Alfred was born on the Isle of Wight about 1832. Emma was born in Canada in July of 1840, and she married Alfred about 1857. Their daughters were born in Canada: Emma about 1858 and Hattie in January of 1862. Alfred may have commuted from Canada to his Detroit galleries for several years, for he did not bring his wife and daughters to the United States until 1866. Then their sons George and Lincoln were born in Michigan between 1862 and 1867, and their son William came along in July of 1880. "A. W. Abraham, Cheap Photograph Car, 28 Michigan Ave. Best Card Photographs: $1.25 per dozen, 75¢ per ½ dozen, 3 for 50¢." was printed on some of his 1868 mounts. Alfred's talents as an amateur painter were noteworthy. His painting "A Ship at Sea" was exhibited in the window of M. S. Smith & Company in February of 1875, and other paintings were exhibited at Angell's art gallery in the fall of 1877 and at the Michigan State Fair in October of 1878. He paid special attention to photographing out-door landscapes in 1880. He entered a marine scene in oil and a landscape in pastel at the 1883 Michigan State Fair. Alfred employed Francis A. Spencer as a photographer in 1881, and probably Lincoln Abraham in the same capacity in 1886. One of his card photographs from 187 Grand River Avenue was of a drawing of the interior of a church. Illustrated Detroit was published in 1889, with all of its pictures reproduced from photographic views by Alfred, who the publisher credited with taking most of the principal views published in that era for manufacturers and others. Alfred was 64 years of age when he died in Detroit on April 3, 1896. His widow, Emma, lived in Detroit until 1911.

Lincoln was the younger son of Alfred W. and Emma Abraham, and was born in Michigan July of 1865. He boarded with his parents until his marriage about 1888. His wife's parents emigrated from England, and Emma was born in Michigan in March of 1868. She gave birth to Vera in October of 1889, Ruth in June of 1891, and Edna in June of 1893. Lincoln was 37 years old when he died in Detroit on August 7, 1902.

Lester married Marguerite about 1896, and seems to have been able to be in several different places at the same time. He was enumerated at his parents' home in Decatur on June 7, 1900, then with Marguerite in Bucyrus on June 8, and was establishing the Tecumseh gallery at about the same time. He called his Tecumseh gallery over Wright's drug store "The Sunbeam Studio," and claimed to make fine photos at reasonable prices. He apparently was succeeded there by J. L. Coller.

Noble was born in New York State in the summer of 1831, and probably was the son of Joseph and Diana Abrams. If so, he had two sisters and a brother born in New York between 1832 and 1842, and then twin brothers born in June of 1850. Her father was French, her mother was English, and Mary was born in New York about 1836. She was married to Noble by 1870, and their daughters Nellie and Clara were born in Michigan between 1860 and 1863. "Abrams" was penciled on the backs of 1862 cartes de visite of Adrian residents. Noble was awarded the First Premium of $5.00 for the best collection of photographs exhibited at the fourteenth annual Michigan State Fair at Detroit in September of 1862. He was awarded the First Premium for his photographs at three successive Lenawee County Fairs, in 1862 through 1864. In April of 1864 he relinquished his "1st Premium Photograph Rooms" in the Lothrop Block at the first door east of Remington & Bennett's drug store to photographer Joseph W. Morris, and moved to larger quarters over L. P. Clark's dry goods store on Maumee Street. He received a premium of $1.00 for a photograph in India ink during the Michigan State Fair held at Adrian in September of 1865, and the Second Premium of $3.00 for the collection of plain photos he exhibited at the Michigan State Fair at Adrian in October of 1866. In 1865 he advertised locally: "All Work Guaranteed to be Satisfactory. All styles of Plain or Colored Photographs and Ambrotypes." Noble moved to Constantine in July of 1867. Here he offered "Photographs of all kinds and sizes. Photographs in oil or water color. Photographs in India ink. Photographs copied from Ambrotypes or Daguerreotypes of any size, plain or colored. Photographic views of dwellings, etc. Photographs of animals taken to order. All work warranted as Good as can be found in the State. All sizes of Frames, Cases, etc. for sale. Also agent for the SINGER SEWING MACHINE. Now on hand, a number of the Family Machines, also the improved Manufacturing Machines, for Tailors or for Shoe Work. Oil, Needles, Silk, Twist, and the best Cotton Thread in the world. MACHINE STITCHING. I wish all to call at my new Photograph Rooms and examine my Photographic Work. N. ABRAMS, July 11th, 1867." He ran the same advertisement into 1869, when he carried a good collection of gilt, rosewood and gilt, black walnut and rustic frames. Late in 1869 he was making card photographs for $2.00 per dozen. He sold the Constantine gallery to A. J. Webster in May of 1870. He and his family were enumerated twice in the 1870 census. In June they were staying in an Allegan hotel, and Noble was identified as a photographer. In August they were back in Constantine, and he was identified as a photographer. In 1880 Mary was a widow and a spine cripple, and with the help of her daughters was boarding a family of three boys aged 11, 13 and 18 in her Adrian home. About 1905 a post card photograph was captioned: "CONSTANTINE IRON BRIDGE. The longest single-span iron arch truss bridge in the west. Erected by Simon De Graff of Syracuse, N.Y., August 12, 1869. N. ABRAMS, Photographer, Constantine."

- William was born on January 22, 1849, in Metamora Township of Lapeer County, Michigan, to Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Ackerson. His father came from New Jersey. His mother's maiden name was Daniels and she was a native of Michigan. During his youth the family lived various places in Oakland, Wayne and Kent Counties. They moved from Paris in Kent County to Hart in Oceana County in 1867. His father moved in most of their goods and a year's provisions in during the winter, and then brought the rest of the family and some goods in with the team. William arrived in Hart on March 22, having spent four days on the road driving two cows. Before engaging in photography, William spent his summers farming and his winters teaching school. He and Miss Mattie Davis of Whitehall in Muskegon County were married on December 1, 1883. Despite a clear loss of $450.00 in the great Hart fire of January 13, 1889, he did what no previous photographer had done at Hart; he made a living at his business. William used commercial mounts for his cabinet photographs with a simple and legible rubber stamp on the back, and one of these was of seventeen Oceana County Supervisors. Many of the woodcuts in Oceana Pioneers and Business Men of Today were made from his photographs. William was a widower by 1910, when he was sharing his home with thirteen-year-old Lawrence born in Arkansas and nine-year-old Elma born in Oklahoma. He died in Los Angeles on October 13, 1941.

Albert's parents emigrated from Scotland, he was born in Canada in September of 1873, and he came to Montcalm County in 1893. He was successor to Lloyd A. Westbrook as Carson City's photographer, and used some Westbrook cabinet mounts with an overstamp conveying this. In 1898, Albert's studio was in the State Bank Block at the corner of Division and Main Streets. He advertised: "Platina Work a Specialty. Pastel and Crayon Work. Choice Frames Always on Hand...." Martha was born in Canada in July of 1873, married Albert late in 1898 and gave birth to Russell in November of 1899. Albert's sale of the Carson City gallery to Will C. Fife was reported late in 1900. Their daughter Mildred was born in the spring of 1905, and both children lived with Albert and Martha through 1930.

Daniel was born near Hamilton, Ontario, on February 26, 1832, third of the ten children of Ervin and Charlotte (Murray) Adams. He moved with his family to Michigan in 1834, then back to Canada, to Illinois, and again to Michigan. He and Rachel Hamilton were married in 1852 at Pontiac, Michigan, and by 1853 had moved to Lapeer where their daughter Flora was born. Their three sons were also born at Lapeer, Dexter Edwin in 1855, Arthur in 1858, and Elmer Eugene in 1861. When Rachel died in 1862, Dan hired 17-year-old Sarah Ann Ferguson to care for his home and children. Dan and Sarah were married at Davison in September of 1863. Dan received a bounty of $300 for enlisting as a regimental gunsmith. He enlisted at Lapeer in Company G of the Fourth Michigan Volunteer Infantry on September 5, 1864. On October 22 the reorganized Fourth Infantry left Adrian for Nashville, Tennessee. The regiment fought at Decatur and New Market, Alabama, before being sent to Huntsville, Alabama. In March of 1865 the Fourth went by rail to Knoxville and then marched through East Tennessee, but returned to Nashville on April 27, 1865. While the regiment was traveling by rail on May 14, the cars became detached and jumped the track. Dan dislocated his right ankle, broke his right knee and injured his right hip when he was thrown off the car onto the ground. These injuries led to his discharge at Nashville on June 7, 1865. When he got home he was treated to his first sight of his daughter Emma. Dan had engravings, albums and frames for sale at his Mammoth Skylight Gallery in Lapeer. Sarah bore him eight more children: Albertina in 1867, Charlotte in 1870, Ervin in 1873, Martha in 1875, Lee in 1878, Bess in 1880, Benjamin F. in 1883 and Rachel A. in 1888. During the 1870s, Dan was active in Mt. Morris civic affairs and began studying for the law. The 1890s were good and prosperous years for Dan and his family. He died in April of 1906.

David was born in Michigan in August of 1833. In 1850 he was helping his twenty-year-old brother Cyrus farm the property of their widowed mother, Ursula Adams. In 1860 he was helping to farm the land of his father-in-law, who was providing a home for David and his family. He enlisted at Plymouth as a private in Company C of the 24th Michigan Infantry on August 6, 1862, and was later promoted to corporal. During the battle at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, on July 1, 1863, he was captured and was held prisoner until he was paroled on August 30, 1863. He was too sick to return to active duty and was finally furloughed during March and April of 1865, and then he was honorably discharged and mustered out of the army with his company at Detroit on June 30, 1865. The photographer was listed as David E. Adams. Five children of David and his first wife, Harriet (Stevens) Adams, (Cyrus, William, Harriet, John and Mary) were born between 1859 and 1874. Harriet died in July of 1876 after giving birth to a third daughter, Ada. David was working as a carpenter when he and 38-year-old Mrs. Bridget McDonald were married at Wayne on February 20, 1877. Bridget was born in Ireland and never learned to read or write. She later had difficulty validating her 1861 divorce from the hard drinking and adulterous dock worker she had first married. David's pension application in 1890 cited rheumatism, chronic pleurisy and several other debilitating afflictions. He died at Wayne on April 14, 1912, and Bridget lived there until her death on April 19, 1915.

Dexter was born September 12, 1841, at Birmingham, Michigan. He was seventh of the ten children of Ervin and Charlotte (Murray) Adams, and a younger brother of the Daniel E. Adams mentioned above. He was five feet eight inches tall with a light complexion, light hair and blue eyes when he enlisted at Pontiac as a private in Company F of the 30th Michigan Volunteer Infantry on December 7, 1864. He was appointed a musician on January 5. During that winter in Detroit he contracted rheumatism and a disease in his head that resulted in total deafness in his right ear, partial deafness in his left ear, and other problems. He was transferred to Company E, and at Detroit on June 30, 1865, he was honorably discharged from the army. He had an Otisville address when he applied for an Invalid Pension in September of 1889. Dexter was married for the first and only time at Flint on September 6, 1906, never had any children, and by 1910 was a widower. He died at Flint on October 15, 1920.

George was born in Ontario to Scotch parents on January 4, 1877, one of the six children of George and Margarett Adams. He and his fifteen-year-old brother Joel immigrated with their parents in 1895, and within ten years George was a naturalized citizen of the United States. Margaret was born in Michigan to parents from Quebec in 1877, and she married George about 1904. Their children: Eva, George and Margaret Dell (later Adele), were born in Michigan between 1905 and 1910. "GEO. ADAMS, PHOTOGRAPHER, DETROIT FREE PRESS." was stamped on the back of 4 1/2 by 7 photographs, including views of a steamer launching in March of 1910. George was a charter member of the Commercial Photographers Association of Detroit, which was organized on February 11, 1921. By 1930 George was a widower, and he and his children were living with his sister-in-law, Mary H. Grix.

Adams, Ira A.

Bellaire PHOTOGRAPHER ..... ca 1895 t
A number of 5 by 7 inch glass negatives have survived depicting railroad and logging operations near Bellaire. t “Adams” was marked on some of them, and all have been attributed by Stuart Miller of Rapid City to one of two t brothers, Ira A. and Samuel Adams. Ira was born in October of 1862 on a farm near Niagara Falls, New York. The 1 family moved in 1871 to Ionia County, Michigan, where Ira attended Portland High School and in September of 1883 1 married Miss Clara A. Kirby of Portland. He clerked in a Portland store until 1884, when he found a similar job at 1 Bellaire in Antrim County. By 1885 he had opened his own general store at Bellaire, and by 1887 was operating saw 1 m and planing mills there. In 1891 Roswell Squire was a partner in the general store and Ira was out of the lumber m business. By 1893 Ira was sole proprietor of the general store, partners with Elmer C. Swift in a hardware store, and m had twice been elected Township Treasurer. He was elected Treasurer of Antrim County in 1894, and with m 1 manufacturer Henry Richardi formed the Bellaire Publishing Company to purchase the official organ of the 1 m Republican Party in Antrim County, the Bellaire Independent, of which Ira was editor and publisher for the next 1 m twenty years. Ira built a large store to house his business, which was described as hardware from 1894 until 1899 and 1 m as drygoods and shoes from 1900 through 1913. He was elected County Clerk and Register of Deeds in 1896, and was m 1 re-elected Register of Deeds when this office was separated from that of Antrim County Clerk. By 1903 he had 1 m purchased the Bellaire House which he managed for more than twelve years. He became proprietor of the Antrim m

Nathan was born in Canada in December of 1851, the son of John and Cynthia Adamson. Mary Elizabeth Tracey, the daughter of Thomas and Margaret Tracey of Tilsonburg, was nineteen when she married Nathan there on March 3, 1878. They came to this country in the same year. By June of 1880 Nathan was a widower with a one-year-old son. He was getting help in raising John from his 75-year-old grandmother, Eunice Hays. Elizabeth was born in Canada to an English mother on October 15, 1854, first of the two children of Joseph L. and Eleanor Hatherly. She married Nathan late in 1880, and their children were born in Michigan: Willie in February of 1886, Mary in March of 1888, and Jennie in August of 1891. Nathan was charged with criminal assault upon Mrs. Matilda Sifleet of Clifford, and a Deputy Sheriff came from Lapeer to Caro to arrest him on this charge on June 4, 1897. Printed below the photograph on some cabinet mounts is: "N. Adamson, Traveling Photographer, Home Address, Kingston; and Mrs. Ella Parker, Manager Kingston Gallery, Kingston, Mich." It was noted in 1898 that Nathan was doing better business than had any predecessor in Fairgrove, and that the quality of his work probably was the cause. Elizabeth died on March 13, 1905. Nathan's third marriage was to a lady named Roxana late in 1909. Roxana was born in New York State about 1853, and she also had been married twice previously. She still was with Nathan in 1920 when his son John from his first marriage was sharing their home. 3 3 3 3 5 3 5 5 t 6 5 3 3

| Harry was born in Germany in 1887 or 1888, and was brought to America a couple of years later. In 1910, he and a twin brother John and a younger brother Willie were living with their widowed mother, Mrs. Mary Affelt. "IOSCO TURPENTINE PLANT, AU SABLE, MICH. H. Affelt - Photos." was lettered on the negative of a post card photograph. "AFFELT" was lettered on the negatives of postal photos of this same plant burning on November 3, 1913, and of the Loud Site Dam under construction on the Au Sable River. Dam construction was begun in 1911 and completed in the fall of 1913. Harry and his older brother Andres, Andrew or Drace, exhibited motion pictures at various towns on the Lake Huron shore in the early 1900s. Harry was the sole support of his mother in 1917. He soon married a girl named Edith Lambert who was born in Michigan in 1901, and their twins were born in December of 1918. Their daughter Marie survived, but her brother died on January 2, 1919. Drace married a woman his own age named Annie in 1909, and was the proprietor of an Au Sable moving picture house in 1910 and of a Saint Louis movie theater in 1920 and 1930. Charles was born in January of 1852, and he emigrated from Sweden in the early 1870s. Early in the spring and summer of 1876, Charles was advertising his new gallery in Ganson's building in the Union Block. "CHAS. G. AGRELL, Practical PHOTOGRAPHER and Dealer in FRAMES. All kinds of Pictures can be had at the lowest rates and finished in the most approved styles. Satin finish a specialty...." was printed on some card mounts of this period. George W. Lonsbury was his partner in Allegan. Lonsbury & Agrell produced stereoscopic views of Allegan, and Charles made others after he opened a gallery in his own name over Dryden's hardware store. His business was at the corner of Locust and Trowbridge Streets about 1880. He was a practical photographer who retained negatives and framed pictures, made common photos at $1.50 per dozen, made Cabinets and Promenades at $4.00 per dozen, and warranted his work to be first class. One of his Allegan newspaper advertisements read: "Fly time is at hand! And the mosquitos are here! Tormented by flies, chewed up by mosquitos, you cannot expect ever to have a satisfactory picture. Therefore, don't delay. Green Apples, cucumbers, and other colicky stuff afford still stronger reasons why you should not delay. Then comes mad dogs, measles, and small pox. It's marvelous that anyone gets through this world alive. Don't postpone getting pictures of your family. Come and see me immediately...." Competition was plentiful on Mackinac Island, but Charles was the only photographer at St. Ignace. By 1895 he had a ground floor studio in his own building on State Street near the post office. His large front windows and showcases were filled with photographs, the walls of his waiting parlor were frescoed with more specimens of his art, and he carried a stock of views of St. Ignace and vicinity on specially printed 8 1/2. by 5 1/4 inch mounts. All of the half-tones in the book St. Ignace and Mackinac County were made from Agrell photographs. In August of 1898 it was reported that Charles was working on Mackinac Island, and that his St. Ignace gallery was in charge of Miss Becker, a skilled artist from Detroit. In November of 1898 Charles was preparing to move back to St. Ignace for the winter. Carrie Bolla was born in Sweden in February of 1870 and emigrated in 1892. She married Charles about 1895, and their daughters were born in Michigan: Alma Evelyn in October of 1896 and Edna De Vera in 1905 or early in 1906.

Ray was born in Michigan on March 18, 1886, fourth of the five children of Jarvis E. and Margaret L. Albro. Laura was born in Michigan in 1886, and she married Ray about 1910. Their children were born in Michigan: Georgia in 1913, Jarvis in 1914, Barbara in 1921 or early in 1922, and Beatrice in August of 1915. According to one source, Ray had a studio at 104 South Saginaw Street in Flint from 1910 until 1916. He was a medium sized man in 1918, with blue eyes and light brown hair. The blind stamp of "ALBRO'S PHOTO SHOP, FLINT, MICH." is found on many studio portraits on post card stock, some vignетted, some of groups, and some employing rather crude props suggesting such scenes as the observation platform of a railroad car or a wishing well. Ray and Laura had all of their children at home in 1930 including sixteen-year-old Laura, who was married to a fellow named Johnson.

Sherman was born in Mount Morris Township of Genesee County, Michigan, on November 22, 1890, last of the five children of Jarvis E. and Margaret L. Albro, and brother of Raymond C. Albro. The Kalamazoo photographer was identified as Edward S. Albro. Her father was English and Doris was born in Quebec in 1897. She was brought to the United States as a young child, and she married Sherman when she was eighteen. Their children were born in Michigan: Betty in October of 1917, Dorothy and Duane between 1920 and 1923, and John in July of 1926.

Asa was born at Batavia, New York, on December 8, 1831, to Richard Levi and Bathsheba (Wilson) Aldrich. In 1842 the family moved to a farm in Raisin Township of Lenawee County, Michigan. Asa stayed on the farm until he was 22, while attending the district schools, the college at Leoni in Jackson County and Adrian College. After spending one year at carpentry in New York he returned to Adrian in 1857 to take up photography. He married Miss Mary J. Smart about 1861 and their son Herbert was born in December of 1875. The Michigan Gazetteer for 1863 carried an engraving of the Brackett House in Adrian which was made from a photograph by A. W. Aldrich. According to his 1865 advertisements and his photograph mounts, Asa specialized in cartes de visite and vignettes, preserved negatives for one year, had a large stock of oval, gilt and rosewood frames, and enlarged pictures in color if desired. He worked for the railroad as a carpenter for a while in 1867. He was a widower by 1920, when he characterized himself as a carpenter. Asa celebrated his 94th birthday in his Adrian home.

Arthur was born in Michigan in September of 1857, the only son of Massey and Sarah E. Alexander. He grew up on the family farm, and had a younger sister Jenny that died as a child. Her parents emigrated from Wales and Louisa was born in Michigan in December of 1864. She and Arthur were married about 1882, and their sons Gwynne, Lylemeda, and Massey were born in Michigan between July of 1883 and April of 1898. “ALEXANDER, ANN ARBOR, MICH.” was embossed with a blind stamp at the lower right corner of post card photographs, such as views of a rural church and cemetery, an elevated railroad bridge across a stream, and a lady kneeling in her yard surrounded by young geese. Louisa and the boys seem to have left early in the century, for Arthur married a 30-year-old damsel named Stella about 1907. Stella was listed as a photographer in Arthur’s gallery in 1910, when they were living with his widowed mother. Sarah was living with them in Florida ten years later.

George was born in Michigan to parents from New York State in May of 1862. In 1870 and 1880 he and his mother, Mrs. Lucy Alexander, were living with her parents, Daniel and Louisa Gillett. Frances was born in Michigan to parents from New York in April of 1868, the daughter of Charles E. and Ella M. Rockwell. George and Frances married about 1891, and their son Rollin was born in Michigan in January of 1893. George E. S. Williams was a professional Bay City photographer from 1892 until 1901, including the years he was associated with George S. Alexander. Mrs. Amelia Verner was the widow of James C. Verner, the veteran photographer in Harman & Verner from 1878 until his death in 1912, and she became George's partner in Verner & Alexander. John H. Butterfield maintained his position as a bank teller while participating financially in the business of Alexander & Butterfield. Printed on a 2 ½ by 4 ½ inch blotter from the early 1920s was: "Alexander & Butterfield, High Class Portraits ... Photographers Association of America ... Photographs Live Forever ... Enlargements, Portraits in Oil ... Pictures, Frames and Framing ... Beautify with Pictures..." Alexander & Butterfield produced photographs on post card stock of young ladies in glamorous poses.

Charles was born at Jackson in 1838, the son of the prominent Jackson merchant Norman Allen, and the younger brother of the photographer Norman E. Allen. He enlisted at Jackson as a private in Company K of the 26th Michigan Infantry on October 25, 1862, and was mustered into the army on December 12, 1862. In June of 1864 during the Battle of Cold Harbor, Virginia, Charles and his comrades were under fire and were forced to lie close to the ground which was covered with red ants. One of these insects got into Charles' left ear and caused it to become infected. He sickened and was sent to the rear, and was afflicted with a permanent loss of hearing in this ear. During the late summer and autumn of 1864 he was hospitalized with chronic diarrhea at City Point, Virginia. He was promoted to corporal in September of 1864, and was honorably discharged on June 4, 1865. In February of 1870 his 21-year-old wife, Martha (Felshaw) Allen, gave birth to Norman. Their son Charles was born two years later. From late in 1883 until early in 1885, Charles attempted to qualify for a veteran's disability pension based upon his deafness and his continuing chronic diarrhea, but apparently was unsuccessful.

Charles was born in Jackson County to William Henry and Lucretia Ann (Squiers) Allen on August 7, 1870. He studied art in Detroit prior to 1890, and married Miss Carrie May Saxton at Tioga, New York, on May 3, 1893. He was five feet seven and one half inches tall with a light complexion, blue eyes and black hair when he enlisted as a private in Company H of the 31st Michigan Volunteer Infantry at Island Lake on April 26, 1898, at the outbreak of the Spanish American War. George W. Van Epps managed the studio until Charles returned from the army following his honorable discharge at Camp Poland near Knoxville, Tennessee, on November 9, 1898. Charles employed his wife Carrie in 1897; William H. Allen (probably his father, but possibly a brother) as a photographer from 1897 until 1899; and Minnie Foster in 1900 and 1901. Carrie and Charles were divorced on April 20, 1905, and Carrie died about five years later. Charles married thirty-year-old Miss Florence Mina Pierce at Jackson on April 15, 1906. A post card photograph from about 1912 showed an inclined side light and a sign: "C. H. Allen Carbon Photo ..." on the third story of the building at the southeast corner of Main and Mechanic Streets. Charles was secretary-treasurer of the Professional Photographers' Association of Michigan in 1914 and 1915, and was enumerated as a photographer in the 1920 census. He was ruptured in 1925, and failing eyesight forced him to give up painting and photography. He was raising fruit and vegetables on a few acres, weighed 170 pounds and his hair had turned grey when he applied for a veteran's pension on April 6, 1927. A physical examination found him to be ¼ incapacitated, and he began receiving $25.00 per month. By early in 1931 he was no longer working and a large tumor had developed between the thumb and forefinger of his left hand. Another examination found him to be ¾ disabled, and his pension was increased to $50.00 per month. Because of the financial depression, his pension was lowered to $15.00 in October of 1933, then increased to $37.50 in February of 1935 and later restored to $50.00 per month. By September of 1937, Charles had white hair but was still erect and about the same size as when he enlisted nearly 40 years earlier. He applied for another pension increase, was examined and found to be completely disabled, and began receiving $60.00 per month. Charles died at home from a coronary occlusion on May 20, 1946. Burial was in Jackson's Woodland Cemetery three days later. Florence received a widow's pension of $40.00 a month until she married Burton C. Hinckley on October 3, 1949. Her pension was restored a month after Hinckley died on July 4, 1957. She entered a nursing home on November 6, 1969, and died there on April 9, 1970. Her interment also was in Woodland Cemetery.

Dewitt was born at Manlius in Onondaga County, New York, in May or August of 1875, second of the three sons of Nathan F. and Frances Adelle (Fitch) Allen. In 1880 the family still was living at Manlius. Dewitt was one of six student boarders with a 69-year-old Ann Arbor widow in 1900. Haskett and Allen worked from their separate home addresses, meaning 720 South 12th Street for Dewitt. They advertised as “The Campus Photographers and Official Photographers of the MICHIGANENSIAN. Have a full line of U. of M. and Ann Arbor Views. Make a specialty of Students’ Rooms and Flashlight Work, at reasonable prices. Views on sale at Calkins’, Schleede’s, Lovell’s, Edwards Bros. and Schaller’s Bookstore.” An 11 by 13¾ inch commercial mount had “DEWITT ALLEN, CAMPUS PHOTOGRAPHER, ANN ARBOR, MICH.” stamped on its back, and “1903 LAW CLASS, PHOTO BY ALLEN, No 1” was lettered on the negative from which was made the 7½ by 9½ photograph on the front of the mount. Dewitt purchased the Potsdam photograph gallery of N. L. Stone on May 8 and took possession on May 14, 1907. The local newspaper described him as “A Michigan University man and was a successful photographer in Ann Arbor and in Manlius, New York, before coming here. He will retain the services of the competent corps who have been with Mr. Stone.” Dewitt was sharing his home with his widowed mother in 1910. By 1920 he had acquired a 41-year-old wife named Grace and a daughter named Jean who was born in New York State in August of 1916. Dewitt died at Manlius in September of 1923, and in 1930 Grace was providing a home in Potsdam for her daughter.

Emory was born in Maine in September of 1856, third of the four sons of Gilbert and Miriam Allen. In June of 1870 he was “at home” on the farm of Waldron and Charlotte Morse, possibly his maternal grandparents. He was boarding in 1880 with Elmer and Carrie Tainter, and probably was working for Elmer who was the proprietor of a photographic gallery in Cassopolis. Jennie was born in Nova Scotia in May of 1857 and came to the United States in 1881. She married Emory about 1885. Their children were born in Massachusetts: Eugene in September of 1886 and Grace in August of 1887. Both became school teachers and remained with their parents through 1920. Emory and Jennie still were providing a home for Grace in 1930.

Norman was the son of Norman Allen, who became a prominent Jackson merchant, and the older brother of photographer and dentist Charles H. Allen. He was born in Vermont in 1829. Adaline was born in Michigan in 1848 or 1849, and their daughter Kate was born here about 1878. Norman's partnership with James V. Cookingham over Merriman's store lasted only a few weeks in January and February of 1856. By April Norman had taken over the gallery previously occupied by Mrs. Jenison west of the American Hotel. In July of 1856 he was a "Young American in the Field" operating the "People's Fine Art and Ambrotype Hall" and making ambrotypes, daguerreotypes and crystalotypes which were taken on light material and could be sent through the mail without extra postage. Some of the illustrations on an 1858 map of Jackson County were reproduced from his views of local buildings. In 1861 he first called his Jackson business the Star Gallery, a name he continued to use in Dexter and Leslie for thirty years or more. He produced stereoscopic views of both Jackson and Dexter. "THE STAR Still Ascending! New Attractions! NEW PICTURES! New Styles of Pictures at ALLEN'S! The demand for Allen's Photographs still continues to increase, and the "STAR" seems to have an attractive influence on custom from near and far! The Artist intends to aim nothing short of "EXCELSIOR" in his productions, and he is bound that the "Star" shall not be eclipsed by any Gallery in the State for quality of work. He allows no defective pictures to pass from his rooms, But Will Take Pains With All. AMBROTYPES & PHOTOGRAPHS Of Every Style and Size! Can now be had. Also an assortment of Rose Wood Frames! Will be had at the Lowest Market Prices!..." On the same page with his ad were some "HINTS ABOUT PICTURES. If you intend sitting for a picture go to an artist whom you believe knows more about pictures than you do. Sit as he desires you to, and do not get him and yourself out of humor by disputing on prices if you wish a good expression. Do not go after four o'clock in the Winter, nor after five in the Summer, unless you want an inky picture. The morning light is the best, and no babies should be attempted after two o'clock. The following is about the range in which the different colors take: Blue, pink, purple and crimson, take white. Dark blue, drab, and wine colors are the medium tints. Black, brown, green, yellow, magenta and red, take black in a photograph." His Dexter gallery was destroyed by fire in 1869, but was rebuilt in a few weeks and he was back in business over the same store early in May. Pictures were taken in the latest and most improved styles from card to life size and framed to order at his Phoenix Star Gallery which reopened in Morehouse's Brick Block. In addition to frames of the best quality, he had mouldings, chromos, albums and sheet music for sale. In 1873 he introduced Dexter to the Cameo Photograph, which stood out in bold relief, and later advertised Berlin Pictures, Satin Photographs and Boss Photographs. The rooms which he vacated over Dr. Jenny's office were later occupied by Charles E. Clark. "N. E. ALLEN, Artist, Star Gallery, Leslie, Mich. Photographs from Card to Life Size. Copying a Specialty." was printed on card photograph mounts, and many of his cabinet photographs were Aristotypes. "Allen's, Photographic Museum. Leslie, Mich." was printed on some cabinet mounts. Norman died on September 8, 1913, in Rives Township of Jackson County at the age of 84.

Orville was born in Detroit in 1836 to Orville Stoddard and Sarah (Heath) Allen. He enlisted as a sergeant in Company A of the First Michigan Infantry on September 16, 1861, and was mustered on the same day. He was promoted to Sergeant Major on March 1, and was commissioned Second Lieutenant of Company H on July 17, 1862. Orville was wounded in action at Bull Run, Virginia, on August 30, and was honorably discharged on a Surgeon's Certificate of Disability due to the severity of these wounds on October 13, 1862. Raymond & Allen employed W. F. Baker as a photo operator in 1864. When Orville joined his brother in the photo supply business, William had been in the business on his own for three years. Their long and successful partnership is described more fully in the entry for William H. Allen. Orville's wife and sons were born in Michigan, Nellie in 1848 or 1849 and the two boys between 1875 and 1878. The Allen Brothers arranged with the Great Western Railway for a special round trip rate of $16.00 to the second annual convention of the Photographers Association of America at New York City in August of 1881, and Orville was one of those who attended. He retired comfortably in 1902, and died in Detroit in 1922.

Ralph was born in Michigan on September 23, 1872. Ida E. Tucker was born here in 1869 or earlier, and married Ralph about 1898. Ralph was living in 1900 with his in-laws, John O. and Martha Tucker. Ida gave birth to Monica and Ruth at Harbor Beach between 1901 and 1906. By 1910, Martha Tucker was a widow and was living with Ralph and Ida. "Scene at Harbor Beach, Mich. Photo by R. C. Allen, Harbor Beach." and "Scene at Harbor Beach Resort, Photo by R. C. Allen, Harbor Beach." were typed or printed in gilt on the faces of post card photographs postmarked in August and October of 1910. "Constructing Pier at Harbor Beach, Mich." and other captions were applied to the faces of postal photos using the same gilt type, but without identifying the photographer. Ralph was tall and slender with blue eyes and black hair in 1918. He used the same ad with few changes for fifteen years: "Proprietor The Corner Jewelry Store, Graduate Optometrist, Kodak Finishing and Supplies. Also Dealer in Books, Stationery, China and Cut Glassware, Souvenir Goods a Specialty."

William was the son of Orville Stoddard and Sarah (Heath) Allen, and was born at Detroit in either 1843 or 1848. He joined the National Photographic Association between July of 1869 and June of 1870. In October of 1869 he acquired the photographic stock business of his former employer, while Moses Sutton continued as a photographer on Jefferson Avenue. William also manufactured passe partouts and mats, and in 1871 brought into the business his brother, Orville C. Allen. On May 8, 1872, Detroit newspapers announced that W. H. Allen had opened a public gymnasium over his store. The name of the firm was changed to Allen Brothers in March of 1880. At that time, they occupied three floors of a building forty feet square, had twenty employees paid a total of $120 a week, and carried stock valued at $10,000 to $12,000. Their trade extended through Michigan, Ohio and Indiana, and amounted to over $50,000 per year. They manufactured picture frames and mouldings as well as dealing in all kinds of photographic materials. William was the treasurer of the Detroit Photographic Association in 1887, when their business was much the same and they were sole United States agents for Suter Swiss Aplanatic Lenses, but the emphasis was beginning to shift: "The amateur photographic craze has created a large demand for apparatus and materials, which is steadily increasing and already forms a large part of their business." The Allen Brothers advertisements in outstate papers, such as the Adrian Daily Times and the Pontiac Gazette, indicate the extent of this shift by the spring of 1895: "... Headquarters for PHOTO SUPPLIES of all kinds, - Cameras - Kodaks, Kodets, Kamarets, Pocos, Premiers, Premos, Hawk Eyes, Henry Clays, Advilles, Nighthawks, &c. A Camera is now a Necessity for Everyone's Vacation." They sold cameras ranging in price from $2.50 to $30.00. William's wife, Fanny, was born in New York in 1852 or 1853. They had two sons and a daughter born between 1873 and 1879. He was socially prominent as Billy Allen. He was a member of the Detroit Boat Club for sixty years and was known as the best stroke of his generation. He sang in the choir and was superintendent of the Sunday School at St. John's Episcopal Church for many years, and took a prominent part in the Board of Trade concerts during the early 1870s which provided funding for the Industrial School. He and Fred Delano and Mat Meyers were known as the singing trio. Both William and Orville C. Allen retired in apparent comfort in 1902. After Orville died in 1922, William and his wife moved to Baltimore to be near their daughter, who was married to a doctor at Johns Hopkins. William died at Baltimore in January of 1928.

Carl was born in Germany in October of 1853, emigrated in 1880, and did not become a naturalized citizen of the United States until the early 1900s. Caroline was born in Michigan of German parentage in November of 1858. They married about 1885, and had a son and a daughter born in Michigan between 1886 and 1889. The classified directory listing in 1890 was for Charles Allen. The gallery at 773 Michigan Avenue occupied two floors at the corner of 18th Street, while 753 Michigan Avenue was a ground floor gallery between 17th and 18th Streets from which he did some outdoor photography in cabinet format. He made large portraits to order in India ink, pastel and crayon. "These cabinets warranted not to fade." was printed on some of his mounts. Carl applied for a patent on a Fire Escape on February 23, 1893, and was granted Patent Number 513,972 on February 6, 1894. His invention embodied a hollow cylinder reached through doors from each of the upper floors of the adjoining building and a central pole suspended from the top and extending beyond the lower end of the cylinder to the ground. Carl's widow was living in Detroit in 1934.

George was born in Indiana in December of 1835, fourth of the ten children of James M. H. and Julia A. Allison. His father was a well-to-do merchant. George married Nancy McDaniel on September 25, 1859; and they later had at least one son. George was living by himself in 1870, and his second marriage was to Mary Stahl on May 21, 1871. Mary's parents emigrated from Germany, and she was born in Ohio in 1847. They soon had a son named Robbie. The new store of William Wilkins in Worthington was completed early in 1869. The second story was fitted up as a sky-light photographic gallery and was rented for one year to George, who had already established his reputation as a fine artist. He produced photographs, ambrotypes, gems and porcelain pictures as well as life size portraits touched up with India ink, oil and water color, and copied daguerreotypes. During the summer of 1869 he photographed the Eel River railroad bridge. In the fall of 1873 he exhibited at the Worthington Fair a medley picture of 500 photographs which was highly praised. George returned to Worthington late in the summer of 1888 resembling "Wild Bill" after spending twelve months in the wild west. He died at Worthington of chronic nephritis on June 8, 1924, and was buried in Hayes Cemetery. 2

Samuel was born on September 2, 1878, at Moscow, Russia, and came to Detroit about 1906. By 1918 he was of medium height and stout with grey eyes and brown hair, and was a naturalized citizen of the United States. The Detroit address numbering system was completely revised in 1920, while the Metropolitan Art Studio remained in the same location. In 1930 both his 43-year-old wife, Eva, and their 23-year-old daughter, Ruth, were working in their photographic shop as sales ladies. They also had a nine-year-old daughter at this time. Samuel died in Detroit on September 11, 1937, and was buried in the Lafayette Street Cemetery. An obituary stated that he had been a commercial photographer for 27 years. The Metropolitan Art Studio was continued by Samuel's widow until her death in 1940, and then for three more decades by their son, Kalman J. Altschuler.

Charles was the son of Tompkins Charles and Susan Augusta (Morrell) Alvord, and was born at Chicago, Illinois, on June 23, 1859. He boarded with vessel captain Charles T. Alvord in Detroit through 1881, and married Miss Margaret May Hayes there on October 26, 1883. They later had two sons. Ernest Charles Alvord was born on October 29, 1886, and Gordon Russell Alvord was born in April of 1888 and died at the age of eleven. Charles worked six years for photo supply firms before associating with Burton J. Holcombe in a photograph gallery which opened early in 1884. They were advertising nationally a few months later for a good printer, toner and retoucher. Charles succeeded photographer Ferdinand Friend at 244 Woodward Avenue, where he employed Byron Osborn as a photographer in 1887 and Anthony P. Godfrey as a photo printer in 1887 and 1888. Charles and Margaret Alvord were proprietors in 1887 and 1888 of the Detroit Bicycle Company, dealing in bicycles, tricycles, safeties and wheelmen's accessories. Charles seems to have been the sole proprietor of Alvord & Company, and offered general viewing, copying and enlarging in 1890. From 1891 the listings and advertisements of Alvord & Company emphasized that they were EXCLUSIVELY commercial photographers. "From ALVORD & CO., Exclusive Commercial Photographers, 55 Rowland St., Detroit, Mich. Ground Floor Gallery." was stamped on the back of the mount of a 7 ½ by 9 ¼ photograph of a large home at the corner of Selden and Trumbull Streets, on many 8 by 10 marine photographs, and on the back of a cabinet photograph of a cash register. Similar information was printed in the horizontal cabinet format for a photograph of the Vet Musical Academy, and on the 4 ½ by 7 ½ mount of a Belle Isle scene which was one of "A Complete Line of City Views...." Charles was associated from 1892 until 1896 with Frederick H. Bolton in another Alvord & Company identified as office outfitters, manufacturing stationers and makers of stationers' specialties and coin wrappers. Other associations were with Frank L. Channell as manufacturers' agents in 1895, and with Howard F. Sprague selling marine pictures in 1896. The address of the photographic Alvord & Company was at times listed as 53-55 Rowland Street, and they published a "Souvenir of Detroit" about 1893. They employed William T. Dyer as a photographer in 1890, Charles' former printer Anthony P. Godfrey as a photographer from 1890 to 1892, Thomas W. Hill as an agent in 1891, William H. Manning as a photo printer in 1891 and 1892, Frank M. Bixby as a photographer in 1891 and as a photo operator in 1893, George W. Campbell as a photo operator and John W. Manning as a bookkeeper in 1893, Frank Lind as a photo printer in 1893 and 1894, Ella V. McCormick as bookkeeper from 1893 to 1895, William G. Toepfer as a photo printer in 1894, John C. Fox as a photo printer in 1895, Charles J. H. Muhme as a photo operator in 1896 and 1897, and Lillie M. Birdseye as a clerk in 1897 and as a bookkeeper in 1898. During the later 1890s Alvord & Company offered "... A Full Line of City Views, General Viewing, Interiors, Business and Landscape Photography, Outdoor Groups, Copying and Enlarging, Lantern Slides, Developing, Re-loading and Printing for Amateurs.... Kodaks to Rent. Finished and Re-Loaded." By 1904 Charles had sold Alvord & Company to Charles C. Brewere, who operated the commercial photography business under that name through 1906. Margaret and Charles divorced, and she was living in 1908 at Toledo, Ohio. Charles' second marriage was to Bessie Lynn Mackey, who was born in 1869 at Wayne, Michigan. His third wife became Mrs. Frances H. Alvord in May of 1909. By 1930 Frances was a widow, and was continuing to manufacture photo supplies.

Floyd E. Quick founded this company, and was its manager and owner at least through 1945. 573 Trumbull Avenue was at the corner of Grand River Avenue. The company advertised in 1913: "Catalogue Illustrating, General Commercial Photographs, Enlarging, Flashlights, Machinery, Automobiles, Furniture, and Lantern Slides (interior and exterior views)." Nine by eleven inch commercial mounts were stamped: "AMERICAN COMMERCIAL PHOTO CO., 48-54 State Street, Detroit, Mich." and carried 8 by 10 photographs such as one of a high school football team posed on a snow covered field. The company produced post card bird's-eye views of Detroit's streets jammed with crowds of pedestrians during patriotic demonstrations in 1917 and 1918, some of which were copyrighted and some were sold by the L. Black Company of Detroit. A 3 ¼ by 13 ½ inch photograph of Ford Hospital copyrighted in 1919 by the American Commercial Photo Company is in the Library of Congress. The change from 54 to 234 State Street in 1920 was due to revisions in the Detroit address numbering system rather than to relocation. In 1923 the Chalmers Building was at 25 Parsons Street. The company produced a series of photos, some with post card backs, of the construction of the Ambassador Bridge in 1928.

United States Army soldier ..... 1862-1863 2 3
Lawton PHOTOGRAPHER ..... 1863-1864 4

John was born about 1841 at Mentz, New York. In 1860 he and three younger brothers were living on the farm of their widowed mother, Mrs. Hannah Ammerman. John was 5 feet 8 inches tall with a fair complexion, hazel eyes and black hair when he enlisted at St. Johns in Company A of the 23rd Michigan Volunteer Infantry on August 7, 1862. The regiment was mustered into service at Saginaw on September 11, and left for Kentucky on September 18, 1862, assigned to the Army commanded by General Rosencrans. They spent the winter at Bowling Green, Carthage, Glasgow and Thompkinsville, Kentucky. John experienced his first epileptic seizure in March of 1863, and an imperfect recovery from typhoid pneumonia left him with pulmonary disease. He had been associated with the hospital at Bowling Green for four months as an attendant or patient prior to his discharge there on April 26, 1863. He filed an application for an Invalid Pension at Louisville, Kentucky, in May of 1863. He was referred to a doctor at St. Johns for examination on September 3, 1863, and again on January 14, 1865, but did not report so his application was considered to be abandoned.

David was born on September 16, 1840, at Potsdam, New York. He was 5 feet 7 ½ inches tall with a florid complexion, blue eyes and auburn hair, and had been working on his father's farm prior to his enlistment at Otsego as a corporal in Company B of the 19th Michigan Infantry on August 9, 1862. He was captured in the spring of 1863 and was imprisoned at Richmond, Virginia. In his own words: "... I was first taken sick on my way to Libby Prison. Succeeded in keeping around until paroled. I got home a few weeks later when I was prostrated for some weeks. Got up in time to return to duty after exchange in time, but soon broke down again on a march from Guys Gap to Murfreesboro, Tennessee...." He was sent to the Post Hospital at Murfreesboro disabled with rheumatism of his back and hips. David was hospitalized for almost a year and then sent home on a furlough. When the furlough expired he reported at Detroit and was placed in St. Marys Hospital. There he was found so crippled with rheumatism that he was able to move about only by the aid of crutches, and was unfit even for the Veteran Reserve Corps. Due to the disability he was honorably discharged at Detroit on August 9, 1864. He soon discovered that the pain in his groin that had been diagnosed as sympathetic to his rheumatic pain was a hernia which, along with the rheumatism, troubled him for the rest of his life. He and 14-year-old Miss Mary Louisa Averill were married at Cooper in 1866, and had three daughters and two sons born between May 5, 1867, and January 22, 1882. David produced stereoscopic views of Paw Paw. In addition to the towns mentioned above, he and his family lived around 1880 in South Milwaukee and Oconomowoc, Wisconsin, and before 1907 in Eau Claire, Shellsburg and Peshtigo, Wisconsin. At Randolph in August of 1915, David and Mary were looking forward to the golden anniversary of their marriage during the following year.

On July 6, 1891, Anderson photographed the train of box cars pulled by engine number 216 which was moving the Morton Manufacturing Company from Romeo to Muskegon. Specially printed 9¾ by 11½ inch mounts were made up for the resulting 7½ by 9½ prints. Charles B. Wade had also been a Romeo photographer for a couple of years prior to his partnership with Anderson. This advertisement appeared in a Capac newspaper early in 1891: "Wade & Anderson, photographers of Romeo, Michigan, have arranged to visit this place every Thursday to do work." Capac's local photographer, Charles A. Fox, retaliated by threatening to work Romeo for business, and by slashing his price for a dozen cabinets from $2.00 to $1.50 on Thursdays only.

In 1875 a photographer named Samuel Anderson had a gallery at 151 Canal Street in New Orleans, Louisiana. This Samuel Anderson seems to have been born in Michigan in August of 1861. His parents, Joseph and Elizabeth Anderson, emigrated from Ireland and raised four sons and one daughter in Michigan. Sam succeeded Edwin Gillis in Three Rivers. Anderson & Kepler moved into the Udell Gallery over Griffith's hardware store and opposite the Three Rivers House. Some Anderson & Kepler cabinet mounts were from Three Rivers, many more were from Three Rivers and Schoolcraft, and a few were from Three Rivers, Schoolcraft and Centreville, or from Three Rivers, Schoolcraft and Marcellus. Their cabinet photographs included some outdoor scenes. Hattie was born in Illinois in January of 1868, and she married Sam about 1890. She gave birth to Forester in October of 1894, and to a son named Heith in April of 1916 when she was 48 years old.

Reuben was born in Vermont in March of 1826. His wife's parents emigrated from Ireland and Scotland, and Margaret or Maggie was born in Michigan in September of 1844. Their daughter Delle was born here in 1867 or 1868. On some cartes de visite, both with and without revenue stamps, was printed: "EUGENE CLARKE, Successor to R. L. Angrew, Hillsdale, Mich." Local advertising in November of 1865 noted that Eugene Clarke succeeded R. L. Andrew, and in June of 1867 stated that Andrew & Carson succeeded Eugene Clarke with R. L. Andrew as proprietor and Wm. A. Carson as photographer. They proposed to take likenesses in ambrotypes, photographs, porcelain, watch dial, pocket handkerchief, or any picture known to the art. At the Hillsdale County Fair in October of 1868 Andrew & Carson were awarded premiums for the best collection of sun pictures, the second best India ink photograph, and the second best painted photograph. Their gallery was over Skinner's Drug Store in 1869. The NPA monogram printed on some Andrew & Carson card photograph mounts indicated that one or both of them belonged to the National Photographers Association. "Chicago. - Ruins. Andrew & Carson, Hillsdale, Mich." was printed on the mounts of stereo views along with captions ranging from "No. 8. - Pacific Hotel, ..." to "No. 102. - New England Church." Reuben attended the annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Milwaukee in August of 1883, and employed Abraham DeWindt as a photographer in 1886. Sharpsteen & Andrew employed Harry Fraine and Samuel Wardlaw as photographers. Margaret, Mrs. Reuben L. Andrew, was president of the Grand Rapids Kindergarten Association in 1904 and 1905. Reuben was almost 79 years old when he passed away at Grand Rapids on February 23, 1905.

Birch Run PHOTOGRAPHER .....

"ANDREWS PHOTO" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs of street scenes and depots. Captions were lettered on some of the negatives, such as: "13 MAIN ST. WEST, BIRCH RUN, MICH." or "130 M.P. CHURCH, BIRCH RUN, MICH." Some cards were postmarked from 1910 to 1912, and they included postal photos of nearby Montrose. The photographer probably was Frank Andrews who was born in Michigan in 1885. He and his widowed mother Margaret were living on the Birch Run Township farm of his older brother Ray in 1910. Frank had his own farm next to Ray in 1920, and their mother had moved along with him to make room for Ray's growing family. Frank still was single in 1930, when he was living in the village of Birch Run and working in a milk condensery.

Daniel was born in Rhode Island in 1833 or 1834, and was single in 1880. He was connected with the photography business at Chicago and in Wisconsin for more than seven years before coming to Michigan. His first East Saginaw gallery opened for business in April of 1871 across from the Courier offices. It was made up of a large double parlor, a dressing room, and the operating, printing, bath and negative rooms. He was identified as Daniel Angell, Junior, by some early East Saginaw sources. In 1873 he called himself "ANGELL, The PHOTOGRAPHER of the Valley. Directly opposite the Everett House." 1876 advertisements in their own language brought his Photographisches Kunstler-Atelier to the attention of the German-speaking population of the Saginaws. Daniel employed William L. Smith as a photographer in 1883, styled himself the leading photographer, and followed others in cutting the price of cabinet photographs to $2.50 per dozen as part of a price war. In addition to cabinet photos, in 1887 Daniel offered commercial work, life size work, and portraits in oil, water color and crayon. His studio was 25 by 125 feet overall, with an elegantly fitted reception room, an operating room with excellent lights, and printing and retouching rooms in the rear. He owned a process which gave the effect of a steel engraving to a photographic portrait, relieving the shadows without affecting the highlights. About this time Daniel offered "PHOTOGRAPHING in all its branches. Large Photographs and Cabinets a Specialty. First quality work only. Workmanship guaranteed. ALL STYLES OF FRAMES ON HAND." He had five employees in 1887, including as assistant Miss Flora Copeland. Flora had been with him since 1882, and went along when he moved to Detroit about 1890. There she became a partner in Angell, Diehl & Company along with Ambrose J. Diehl and Daniel. They hired Edward J. Winiker as a photo printer. Angell & Diehl were succeeded at 246 Woodward Avenue by the Earle Photo Company. "Angell, Ionia" was printed on cabinet mounts in a different type face, but was still reminiscent of Daniel's earlier "Angell, East Saginaw" imprints.

George was born on November 27, 1836, at Rochester, New York, where he served an apprenticeship in his father's machine shop. He became a partner in the same shop when he returned from Detroit. The shop failed in a general depression, and George worked as a reporter before he was hired by photographic supply dealer Henry D. Marks. His partner in 1864 was Erastus C. Howard. From 131 Jefferson Avenue he advertised as a "Wholesale Dealer in Photographic Stock and Ambrotype Goods, Manufacturer of WALNUT, GILT, AND ROSEWOOD FRAMES, ... Chromos, Mouldings, Stereoscopes and Pictures, Cords, Tassels, Screw Eyes, Imperial, Victoria and Carte de Visite Frames, All Styles of Lenses, Best and Pure Chemicals, Card Stock, ... and THE AMERICAN OPTICAL CO.'S APPARATUS Constantly on Hand...." Early in June of 1872 George moved from 131 to 127 & 129 Jefferson Avenue. One month later photographer Charles H. Van Deusen was charged with stealing from the Angell store, but was acquitted. By 1875, the store was offering picture frames, mouldings, artists' materials, mirrors and looking glass plates in addition to photographic goods. In July of 1875 George was reported to have taken stereo views of Detroit. These were probably the "Detroit in 1875" series taken by James A. Jenney and imprinted for Angell and many other Detroit merchants. During the 1870s and 1880s "Geo. R. Angell, ..." was printed on stereographs of American and foreign scenery produced for him by eastern houses as well as the local views by Jenney. A neat label with: "ANGELL'S JUVENILE GROUPS. GEO. R. ANGELL, 158 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich." was adhered to the backs of a high quality series of stereo views with titles such as "50. Waiting for Playmates." and "59. The Tea Party." These stereographs may have been produced by F. G. Weller of Littleton, New Hampshire. When he retired as secretary of the Photographic Merchants' Board of Trade early in 1885, he was presented with an engraved gold watch and chain at the annual meeting in New York City. By 1886 George was also dealing in architects' materials. He became affluent and civic minded, was president of the YMCA for six years and a member of the Board of Education for six years, including two as president. He was an organizer and vice president of the City Savings Bank, and became president of the bank and of the Michigan Bankers Association in 1899. George died suddenly from a heart attack on the morning of April 18, 1900. The George R. Angell Company, Limited, was perpetuated through 1906 by his widow, Mrs. Sarah M. Angell, and until 1912 by his son, George H. Angell.

His father came from Illinois and Howard was born in Pennsylvania on November 7, 1875. His mother, Mrs. Emma Sarah (Pate) Arbogast, had a Scotch father and was born in Pennsylvania in August of 1850. She remained married but lived with relatives rather than with her husband in all records consulted from 1880 on. Howard's sister Alice was born in March of 1874. Howard became an average sized man with blue eyes and dark brown hair. Her father emigrated from the German state of Baden, Adah was born in Pennsylvania in 1884, and she married Howard some time prior to 1918. The listing in Detroit was for M. Howard Arbogaste, but the surname was spelled as shown here in all other records.

Douglas was born at Bowmanville, Ontario, to James Walter and Sarah Elizabeth (Bond) Archbold on June 26, 1891. He was short with a medium build, brown eyes and dark brown hair, and was single when he was inducted into the army on September 18, 1917. After basic training at Camp Custer he was assigned to Company D of the 310th Engineers. He was promoted from Engineer to Master Engineer shortly before he embarked for France on July 21, 1918, and that fall took part in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne campaigns. He returned to the United States on June 29 and was honorably discharged at Camp Custer on July 3, 1919. Both before and after the war he characterized himself as a musician as well as a photographer. Before West Main Street was renamed West Michigan Avenue, the Archbold Studio produced post card photographs, including a studio portrait of a monkey named Jimmie. James W. Archbold was a principal of the Archbold Studio by 1929. 4 5 5 3 3 4 4 4 3 4 5 5 t t 2 2

James was born in Massachusetts of Scotch parentage in March of 1874. Laura was born in New York in March of 1877, and she married James about 1895. Their son David was born in Wisconsin in June of 1899, and their daughter Margaret was born in Wisconsin in 1901. "ARCHIE PHOTO" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs of Menominee and vicinity, including views of the harbor, business streets, Henes Park and a dam on the Menominee River. Many of the negatives carried numbers such as 83, 90 or 93. Similar photographs with higher numbers like 112 or 252 lettered on their negatives along with an "A" in a circle probably were produced by James. His daughter Margaret was working in a studio as a photographer in 1920. James offered "Portraits, Commercial Photography, Amateur Finishing and Enlarging" in 1924, and "Portraits, Commercial Photography, Photo Finishing and Enlarging, Kodak Films and Film Developing" in 1930. About 1925, the Archie Studio produced 11.25 by 7.5 inch prints of the wooden parts for the Ford Model T Touring Car, Roadster and Tudor automobiles. Mrs. Beatrice J. Archie was proprietor of The Portrait Art Shoppe at Iron Mountain in 1924, and had a photograph studio at 313 ½ South Stephenson Avenue in Iron Mountain in 1925. K. Beatrice Johnson was proprietor of The Portrait Art Shoppe in 1926, and Beatrice Johnson was an Iron Mountain photographer in 1930. According to the 1930 census, James, Laura and David were boarding with William and Margaret Thoden and James was managing a fox farm while Margaret was working in the photography studio. "ARCHIE STUDIO PHOTO" was lettered on the negatives of postal photos of the cave-in of a section of Highway U.S. 2 into the Chapin Mine pit on May 3, 1940.

George was born in Canada to an Irish father and a Canadian mother in August of 1846. He immigrated to the United States in 1868 or 1869, and he became a naturalized citizen in 1876. He married Emma about 1875, and their three daughters and one son were born in Michigan between August of 1877 and July of 1894. The complete destruction of the Armstrong gallery in Scottville by a terrific wind and rain storm was reported in the autumn of 1900. 2

His parents came from New York and Henry was born in Michigan on September 3, 1879, last of the four children of Abraham and Elsie M. Armstrong. His sister Evie was born in New York about 1862. His brother Aaron and sister Violetta were born in Michigan between 1866 and 1870. Henry became a tall and slender man with blue eyes and black hair, and was living in 1900 with his mother and his ten-year-old adopted sister Flossie. Edna's parents emigrated from Ireland and she was born in Michigan in 1886 or 1887. She married Henry about 1905, and she gave birth to Milton Dale Armstrong in 1907 or early in 1908. "PHOTO BY H. ARMSTRONG, COPEMISH, MICH." was printed on the reverse of post card photographs of a saw mill with a painter half way up the smoke stack and of the main street of Pomona, Michigan. "By Armstrong" was lettered on the negative of a postal photo of Main Street in Harlan, Michigan. Pomona was about three miles east and Harlan was six miles east of Copemish on the Ann Arbor Railroad. On the back of a postal photo of four young people with a team and eight bushels of peaches, Henry wrote to Miss Alice Robinson in Mesick, Michigan: "Try washing off your squeegee plates with hot water and soap & when ready to put pictures on put a little gasoline on and rub off briskly with a dry lintless cloth. I think you have too much polish on and it will be well to cut it off. I only wash mine off with cold water and they never stick. Let me know if this scheme works all right & try just one plate at first. H. Armstrong." This card was postmarked August 23, 1912. "Armstrong Studio, Copemish, Mich." was lettered on the back of the 8 by 10 inch mount of a photo of the confirmation class at Kaleva taken on June 24, 1917. Something happened to Edna, and Henry married 21-year-old Irene Perry about 1914. His son Dale was at home with them in 1920. 1

One William A. Armstrong served in Company G of the 24th Michigan Infantry, and was wounded by a minnie ball above his right elbow during the Battle of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, on July 1, 1863. His right arm was amputated near the shoulder the next day. The photographer was born in Pennsylvania in 1832 or 1833, and may have worked in 1864 at 46 North Salina in Syracuse, New York. He advertised in 1866: "... MR. ARMSTRONG, Having just received new and superior apparatus, is now prepared to make the finest LARGE PICTURES ever made in the Saginaw Valley. Mr A's prices are moderate. He guarantees good work, and will always be on hand to serve his friends with a well selected stock of FRAMES, Gilt, Black Walnut, Rustic Union, Oval, Metal, Passepartouts and Carte de Visites. Albums, Stereoscopic Views, &c. TO THE LADIES. Mrs. Armstrong will always be in attendance to assist Ladies in arranging their toilet, thereby doing away with one great annoyance in Photography." Ella (later Ester) C. Clark was born about 1832 in Michigan, and she grew up to marry William. Their daughter Isabell was born about 1855 in New York, and their sons were born in Michigan: William about 1867 and Harrison in December of 1869. At one time his gallery was over the postoffice in Saginaw City. He was judged to have exhibited the second best photograph at the Saginaw County Agricultural Fair in 1867. William was on the first published list of members of the National Photographic Association in 1869. From their Ground Floor Picture Establishment, Armstrong & Rudd sold "... Chromos in oil or water colors, Stereoscopic Views, Celebrities, Cheap Pictures of all kinds, Oval and Square Frames, Mouldings,... Pictures made just as well in Cloudy as Clear Weather..." Their large entries at the Saginaw Horticultural Fair and the Saginaw County Agricultural Fair in 1869 were awarded the majority of the premiums. They exhibited a number of cartes de visite at the NPA convention at Cleveland in 1870, and were publishing the Saginaw Art Journal in 1871, when they exhibited again at the NPA convention in Philadelphia. After Harrison N. Rudd left the partnership, William was awarded a number of first prizes at the Saginaw County Fair in the fall of 1871, including one for the best work in India ink, and he continued to produce stereo views. Miss Nellie Smith worked for William as a photo printer in 1873, when he advertised: "PHOTOGRAPHS! PHOTOGRAPHS! New, Novel, and Attractive, at W. A. ARMSTRONG'S, opposite the post office.... Show Room on the Ground Floor." By November of 1873, the Clayton Brothers had succeeded him in Saginaw City. William may have been the proprietor of Armstrong's Hotel Gallery at 224 State Street in Chicago in 1874 and 1875. Mrs. Ester Armstrong was described as a widow and with her sons was living in Saginaw in 1880, while the Milwaukee photographer had a 29-year-old wife named Sarah and a daughter born in January of 1880 called Babe. At the 1883 convention of the Photographers' Association of America in Milwaukee, William had a fine exhibit of photos of that city and its suburbs. He was treasurer of the PA of A in 1884, and at the Cincinnati convention in that year exhibited an admirable series of landscapes, very happily titled. He was chairman of the PA of A Executive Committee in 1885. He applied for a patent on a sort of panoramic camera on August 1, 1892, was granted Patent Number 494,517 on March 28, 1893, and assigned it to the Armstrong Camera Company of Milwaukee. William exhibited photographs at the Detroit convention of the PA of A in August of 1895.

John was born in Michigan on May 20, 1879, seventh of the nine children of Henry S. and Eunice C. (Sprague) Arnold. He became a tall man with brown eyes and dark brown hair. "PHOTO BY ARNOLD, OLIVET, MICH." was lettered on the negative of an 8 by 38 inch panorama of a 26-man brass band lined up in a park. "First Regimental Band, U.R.K.P., Eaton Rapids, Mich." was lettered on their bass drum. "ARNOLD, OLIVET, MICH." was blind stamped at the lower left corner of post card photographs of R.F.D. carrier Roy D. Krebs with his horse drawn wagon piled high with Christmas packages in front of the Olivet post office. Roy apparently used these cards to extend greetings of the season to his rural route patrons. Florence B. Chase was born in North Dakota in February of 1890, last of the three daughters of Samuel B. and Pricilla Chase. She married John about 1914, and they never had children. She and John seem to have been equal partners in the photography business, though in 1930 John was described as a photographer and Florence was described as an artist. 3 2 3 t t t t 1 1

This company produced albums in which every page or leaf was supported by a metal hinge and was detachable and interchangeable. The openings in the leaves were sized for cabinet photographs. Leaves 11 by 8 inches had two openings, and leaves 16 by 12 inches had four openings. Eli S. Glover was manager of the company in 1883. Erastus H. Hussey was president of the firm from 1884 until 1891, was manager as well about 1890, and was secretary and treasurer during the last couple of years. Zeno C. Spencer, who had been principal of the public schools in Battle Creek, was vice president of the Art Album Company from 1884 until 1887 and came back as president for the final two years. Charles R. Huffman, recently a grocer, became the secretary, treasurer and general manager for a couple of years in 1884. "ART ALBUM CO., Manufacturers of GLOVER'S METAL-BACK ALBUMS. Patented in the United States, Canada, Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, Austria, Italy, and Spain. Battle Creek, Michigan." was printed on an envelope postmarked in November of 1884. "F. D. Dibble." was written below this printing. Frank D. Dibble was secretary and treasurer of the company from 1886 through 1891. Frank H. Latta maintained his farm implement business while serving as vice president in 1892 and 1893. The Art Album Company was succeeded by the Metal Back Album Company. m

James was born at Montreal on May 27, 1855, to Alexander and Catherine (Alan) Arthur. Both parents were born in Scotland, and his father spent alternate years there as part of his fur business. James was educated in Montreal, visited Europe with his father, and a previous interest in photography seems to have led to his stint with the Notmans after the death of his father. He married Miss Clara Blanche Peters at St. John, New Brunswick, in September of 1882. Their children, Kenneth, Natalie and Muriel, were born and raised in Detroit. Arthur & Philbric succeeded Daniel H. Hamilton in the Woodward Avenue studio, which had reception rooms on the second floor and the operating, dark, printing and finishing rooms on the third floor. Miss Helen M. Philbric was James' partner from 1883 until 1895, and Miss Lavina C. Philbric may have been a principal while managing the Grand Rapids operations of Arthur & Philbric in 1890 and 1891. The Grand Rapids branch opened in 1889 with Walter R. Laine as manager and with Lavina as photographer. The next year their positions were reversed and Hattie Rogers was employed as a clerk. Laine was listed as their artist in 1891, and Miss Clara A. Shear was their clerk in 1892. Wilkie G. Coss was manager in 1892 and 1893, and was identified as the successor to Arthur & Philbric at Grand Rapids in 1894. The Toledo gallery was sold to George B. Sperry in June of 1893, and he retained the Toledo negatives. About this time Arthur & Philbric were executing seven different photographic processes in Detroit and employed nineteen assistants, crayon and water color artists, operators, printers and clerks. One of their cabinet imprints included: "INSTANTANEOUS PORTRAITS. This Photograph was made at the Studio of ARTHUR & PHILBRIC, by the wonderful instantaneous process which has recently caused a revolution in Photography. The success of this process is especially apparent in children's pictures, their natural positions and expressions being instantaneously reproduced, resulting in most satisfying and beautiful portraits.... We do not hesitate to say, and can prove our assertion by our work, that we have no competitors in this branch of portraiture." They advertised in 1889 as "... Artists in every branch of portrait work. We make a Specialty of Children's Portraits." In the autumn of 1890, Arthur & Philbric invited "... attention to our display of Fine Photography and Portraits in India Ink, Crayon and Water Colors on exhibition at the Detroit International Fair and Exposition, also at our studio." Their Detroit gallery was damaged by fire in the spring of 1893. At the St. Louis convention of the Photographers' Association of America in July of 1894, Arthur & Philbric were awarded one of twelve gold medals for the best work on Cramer plates, a diploma for portrait work and a bronze medal for Paris Panels to 16 inches. James was president of the group of Detroit photographers formed to provide for the entertainment of PA of A members who attended the Detroit convention in 1895. During the Detroit convention, Arthur & Philbric were awarded a fourth place diploma in Class A for six pictures 16 inches or larger, a gold medal for three combination prints and a gold medal for a composition group. For information about a number of Detroit employees of Arthur & Philbric, please see the entry for Helen M. Philbric. James was awarded the Founder's Loving Cup for three genre pictures he exhibited early in 1896 at the First annual meeting of the Michigan Photographers Association. The second annual meeting of the MPA was held at Detroit in February of 1897, and there Arthur & Philbric received the first prize in Class A for their six pictures, portraits exclusively of 13 inches or over, and James was awarded the Grand Prize for the greatest photographic novelty, a large picture entitled "The Intercepted Message," showing Cupid seated on a cross bar of a telegraph pole with one of the wires held to his ear. The telegraph wires and the base of the pole extended over the mat and the frame. James received a bronze medal for his exhibit of six photographs in Class A during the 1898 PA of A convention at Celeron on Chautauqua Lake, New York. The PA of A convened at the same place in July of 1899, and there James was awarded second place in the Miniature Class, third place in the Grand Portrait Class and second place in the Grand Genre Class. James was sole proprietor in 1896, when he moved the Arthur & Philbric studio one block north to the ground floor of the new Ferguson Building near the corner of John R Street. By April of 1897 he was calling this establishment, described by a newspaper as without doubt the finest in the state, the Arthur Studio. He retained Miss Minnie L. Dart as bookkeeper and Minnie Hook as photo finisher through 1899, and employed William Falkner as an assistant operator in 1897, Miss Ida Fraizin as a reception clerk in 1898 and Joseph F. Knight returned as a photo finisher in 1898. The Arthur Studio specialized in sepia platinum photographs. James had been ill for a couple of weeks but seemed to be recovering when he was stricken at home by a fatal heart attack on the evening of January 12, 1912. He had lived for 56 years, and was eulogized as one of the six greatest photographers in the United States. The Arthur Studios were perpetuated until 1923 managed by his son, Kenneth A. Arthur, and then for another year or two with George D. Downing as manager. Mrs. Clara Arthur became a charter member of the Equal Suffrage Club in Detroit in 1887, and was president of the club for nine years. She was elected president of the State Equal Suffrage Association of Michigan in 1906, and led a state wide equal suffrage campaign in 1912. Equal suffrage was approved by Michigan voters in 1918. In 1901 Clara established the first public playground in Detroit at the yard of the Russell Street School. She established two more playgrounds in the next two years, after which the school board continued the program.

Kenneth was the only son of the prominent Detroit photographer James Arthur, and was born at Detroit on September 26, 1886. He was precipitated into the photography business by the sudden death of his father in January of 1912. He was identified as manager of the Arthur Studios through 1922, and as the proprietor after that. Both the Fisher Arcade and the Goldberg Brothers Building studios were open in 1916 and 1917. He was associated with Donald D. James in the James-Arthur Company, which occupied Suite 7-10 in the Goldberg Brothers Building. In 1917 Kenneth was six feet three inches tall with a medium build, blue eyes and blond hair, and though single he hoped to be exempted for business reasons. He was drafted into the navy on July 30, 1918, and after basic training was assigned to the Naval Auxiliary Reserve at Chicago. He was discharged on December 6, 1918. He married Miss Jane Fitzpatrick of Chicago. She was born in Illinois about 1895, last of the seven or more children of Arthur and Isabella Fitzpatrick. Most Detroit addresses were revised during 1920, when 6 became 10 West Warren Avenue and the address of the Fisher Arcade changed from 251 to 1529 Woodward Avenue. George D. Downing was manager of the Arthur Studio in 1924 and 1925. Kenneth had a special department for babies and children on the sixth floor at 1534 Woodward Avenue until he consolidated the studios on the fifth floor in 1930. At this time his wife was classified as an assistant photographer in the studios. The Arthur Studio was classified with commercial photographers in 1934 and 1935. Kenneth was sixty years old when he died at Chicago early in April of 1947, and was survived by his two sisters and his wife, Mrs. Jane Fitzpatrick Arthur. Burial was in Detroit's Woodlawn Cemetery.

| The Artura Photo Paper Company of Columbus, Ohio, developed a non-curling, non-blistering, abrasion resistant developing-out paper which earned a very significant share of the market. Net sales grew from $25,000 in 1904 to $480,000 in 1909. On the back of some post card photographs from this period is printed a box with the words: "PLACE ONE CENT STAMP HERE" and a distinctive design incorporating: "ARTURA Trade Mark." The company was purchased by Eastman Kodak early in 1909. Edward J. Arthur managed this office in the Stevens Building. |      |   |

| He was listed as Carl Atherton in Big Rapids and as Albert C or A. C. Atherton in Racine. He was born in Canada in July of 1853, crossed the border in 1873, and became a naturalized citizen of the United States. By 1900 he was a widower and was sharing his home with his 20-year-old son, Frank R. Atherton. This 1890 advertisement probably was placed by Carl: "I intend removing my gallery to California in the fall. My present location, stock of negatives and good will of business will be offered to some one very reasonable. Location good, and a splendid chance to make money. Address Lock Box 842, Big Rapids, Mich." The same backdrop appears in some of Carl's cabinet photographs from Big Rapids and in cabinet photos with only "From Atherton's" printed on the mounts. He was married for the third time about 1901 to a 36-year-old lady named Hulda who was born in Illinois to parents from Virginia. |           | m 222 4444 tt 22 |

Clarence was born in New Brunswick in April of 1855, and was identified as Harry in the census reports for 1880, 1910 and 1920. In 1880 he had an 18-year-old Canadian wife named Georgie, and they were living next door to the family of Calvin and Electa Atherton who undoubtedly were his parents. Fredrick P. Atherton was a member of this family and the brother of Clarence. Minnie was born in Indiana to parents from Ohio in April of 1869. She married Clarence about 1891, their daughter Madalein was born in Indiana in September of 1895, and their daughter Gelith was born in Michigan in September of 1899. On June 8, 1901, Clarence filed an application for a patent on a Picture and Picture-Mat Form Holder and Cutter, and he was granted Patent Number 684,035 on October 8, 1901, with twenty claims. The device he described had a base on which the form, similar to a stencil, was clamped over the photograph or mat to be cut; a standard inclined from one side of the base to provide a pivot over the center of the form; and a bar suspended from the pivot with a cutting wheel at its lower end which could follow the elliptical form as the bar was rotated. The Marion listings in the gazetteers were for C. H. Atherton.

Fred was born in New Brunswick in August of 1862, next to last of the five or more children of Calvin and Electa Atherton. His brother Clarence Harry Atherton was seven years older. Helen was born in New York State in November of 1867, and she married Fred in 1882 or 1883. They never had children and were sharing their home in 1900 with his 76-year-old widowed mother. Fred presented views of a saw mill, a logging camp and a school to the local newspaper in May of 1884, when he was said to be meeting with good success in his new business of landscape photography. Later in the same month his intention of going to Sturgis to run a photograph gallery was announced. Atherton & Wolfe were advertising locally early in 1886. In the spring of 1891 the local newspaper noted that Fred's prices were reasonable on life size portraits and pictures copied and enlarged to any desired size, with photographs available as low as $1.50 per dozen. His gallery was called the leading photographic establishment in Osceola County, and Fred had ten years of successful and practical experience at this time. Later in the year Fred advertised: "Life Size Portraits for Christmas Souvenirs! THE NEW ARISTO is the only perfect enameled finish absolutely fadeless cabinet portraits. To Introduce The ARISTO PROCESS and secure a big holiday trade and enlarge our business, we will give a life size Crayon Portrait, elegantly framed with every dozen cabinets at $5.00 per dozen...." A fire in the Parkhurst Building on the Morning of Thursday, July 11, 1907, destroyed Norman's jewelry store and Fred Atherton's photograph studio. The loss of $6000 was partially covered by insurance. Fred was training Elmer E. Cole as an apprentice photographer in 1920.

James was born in Michigan in November of 1851, eldest of the four children of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Atkins. His father seems to have been a widower by 1860, when he was raising the children with the help of an older widowed relative, probably a sister-in-law. A nice orange mount imprinted "J. I. ATKINS, Dealer in Indian Work, Petoskey, Michigan." carried a stereo view of an Indian papoose which was the work of photographer George W. Barker of Niagara Falls, New York. Lizzie (later Eliza) was born in Michigan in April of 1854, and she married James about 1874. Their son Clare was born in April of 1875, Grace was born in November of 1878, Floyd was born in June of 1880, and Ruth came along in December of 1892. Grace married Flint photographer Percy L. ## Atkyn, J., Doctor

- Beaver Island DAGUERREOTYPIST ..... 1855-1856 1
- Atkyn first visited Beaver Island in 1850, and repeated the visit frequently before opening a daguerreotype gallery there in 1855. He advertised locally in December of 1855: "SAINT JAMES DAGUERREAN GALLERY, Water Street, One Door South of the 'Northern Islander' Office. Likenesses taken in any weather, and warranted to give satisfaction. Ladies and gentlemen will please call and examine specimens. J. A., Saint James, Dec. 6, 1855." He advertised again in the spring of 1856: "Correct and Life-Like DAGUERREOTYPES. - J. Atkyn, Daguerrean Artist, St. James Hall, Beaver Island, Mich. Having fitted and furnished his Daguerrean Room in a style for comfort and convenience, not surpassed by any in Manitue and adjacent counties, will be happy to receive visitors. His mode of taking pictures completely obviates the necessity of sitting from one to three minutes. It can be done as well in from ten to thirty seconds, and in all cases less than one minute. N. B. Instructions given in the art, with all the late improvements, given. Ladies and gentlemen would do well to give him a call. His pictures are taken on a silver plate, over which is a coating of gold. They will not corrode at sea, or change in any climate; are beautiful in tenor, bold and clear in effect. Call and examine specimens, at St. James Hall. Gallery open from 9 A. M. to 4 P. M. Likenesses taken in clear or cloudy weather. Beaver Island, April 28th, '56." He was described as a debt ridden malcontent who threatened to blackmail certain citizens if his bills were not paid, and this report probably referred to him: "WEDNESDAY, MAY 7, 1856. - The house of the Prindle brothers was entered last night, and some $200 worth of Daguerreotype apparatus, stock, &c., spirited away. The object seems to be, not exactly to steal outright, but to commit a fraud on our neighbor, Mr. J. M. Wait, who is half owner of the property, and perhaps to defraud the Prindles of their rent, for which the property is liable. We are sorry to believe this outrage was committed by a man who has had some pretensions to respectability." Atkyn was one of the group that planned the overthrow and murder of Mormon King James Jesse Strang in 1856. This action led to the forced evacuation of the remaining Mormon families from Beaver Island.

- "This company was formed in Detroit, Michigan, in 1916 and financially backed by Henry Ford. With its large laboratory and extensive equipment, it was soon releasing The Ford Educational Weekly. In the summer of 1919 a committee of educators, headed by William H. Dudley of the University of Wisconsin, was invited to edit fifty-one Ford films for instructional use. In 1920 The Ford Educational Library was announced as ready for distribution. It is interesting to note that 'each film had a complete synopsis or syllabus containing: the title and subtitles, the instructional aim, data suitable to aid the teacher, definite questions for presenting the lesson, problems, questions, and a list of references.' The advertising, however, was unsuccessful, and even created some antagonism toward the Ford Motor Company and the educators who had served on the selection committee."

She was born Hannah N. Graves in New York State in April of 1828. She married Ossian Auld about 1846, their daughter Emma was born in Michigan a year or so later, and their daughter Alsenia was born in Ohio in July of 1849. In 1860 Hannah was living in an Eaton Rapids hotel with her younger daughter. She and Ossian apparently divorced, for by 1864 she had become Mrs. Hannah N. Stirling. In 1870 she was providing a home for both of her daughters in Niles, while Ossian Auld and his English wife were living in Santa Cruz, California. By 1880 she was a widow, and was living with the family of her sister Sarah and her husband, James P. Howlett. Her name was sometimes spelled "Sterling" in the directories, and both "H. N. Sterling" and "Mrs. H. N. Sterling" were printed on card photograph mounts from Niles. However, her name was spelled "Stirling" in most of the directories, "H. N. Stirling" was printed on some card mounts from Niles, and "Mrs. H. N. Stirling" was printed on cartes de visite from Three Rivers as well as three versions of Niles card mounts. Hannah and her widowed sister Sarah were living in 1900 with the family of Sarah's daughter Cora and her husband, Robert G. Brown. Apparently Hannah was able to pay her own way.

| His father emigrated from England, his mother came from New York, and Charles was born in Michigan in February of 1867. He was the son of Phillip and Ursula Austin, and had two brothers born here between 1858 and 1861 and a sister born in 1874 or early in 1875. Fanny, his first wife, was born in Michigan in May of 1870, married Charles about 1891 and gave birth to Gladys in March of 1895. Emma, his second wife, was born in Michigan in 1869 to Canadian parents, was delivered of a daughter in 1891 or 1892 during her first marriage, and married Charles about 1906. "C. W. AUSTIN, Photographer, Excelsior Car. CALEDONIA, Mich." was stamped on the back of card photographs. Charles advertised nationally early in 1888: "WANTED - Situation by an experienced A No. 1 retoucher and general workman. Also, artist in crayon and colors. Samples of work sent. C. W. Austin, Ludington, Mich." After 1902, there was usually a portrait studio address listed for Charles, and in 1908 he also sold air brushes and supplies. He kept the same address in the Sun Building through 1919, but after 1915 was listed as an artist rather than as a photographer. He was enumerated as a portrait artist in 1920, and as a copying and enlarging artist in 1930 when he was divorced and lodging with a Highland Park family. |           | 1 1 1 1 1 1 t 2 d d 1 1 |

His father emigrated from England and George was born in Michigan in July of 1862, third of the eight children of Thomas and Sophia Jennet Austin. He grew up on the family farm. His wife's parents came from Connecticut or Massachusetts, Mary was born in Michigan in December of 1855, and she married George about 1886. Marilyn or Mamie, their daughter, was born here in October of 1887. Watervliet stereo views by George included one of his small gallery, which was on Main Street in 1898, a little girl with her sled in the snow, and a wreath surrounding the portrait of a woman. He advertised nationally in the autumn of 1900: "WANTED - Situation by a good all-around man, as general assistant in some good gallery. Am sober and industrious; ten years experience. Will be at liberty after September 15. Good references. Address G. W. Austin, Watervliet, Mich." He was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905, and was classified as a commercial photographer in most local directories issued between 1906 and 1919. He lettered "Photo by Austin" on the negative of a post card photograph of "Hail Stones, Actual Size, from Hail Storm May 15th, 1909, Kalamazoo, Mich." Following a long illness, George died on April 1, 1923. His daughter had been active in the business for several years, and the Austin Studio continued in Kalamazoo under Marnie's management for another decade. 1 t 2 3 K t 4 5 m

His father came from New York and Charles was born February 23, 1863, in Van Buren Township of Wayne County, Michigan, to George and Mary Elizabeth (Cooper) Avery. He had an older sister Marietta, an older brother Edward, and a younger brother Albert. On July 21, 1886, he married Ellen Rosanna Walstead, who was born at Tecumseh on July 8, 1862, the daughter of George and Mary Ann (Mangus) Walstead. Charles and Ellen had four children: Leon was born at Hillsdale in June of 1888; Charles Thomas, Junior, was born at Wayne in March of 1890; Clifford Parm was born at Saginaw in May of 1892; and Ethel was born at Wayne in May of 1900. "C. T. AVERY, THE LEADING PHOTOGRAPHER, Cabinet & Group Work A Specialty...." was stamped on the back of some Albion cabinet mounts. Charles gave up photography because of problems with his eyes. He lived on and worked a small farm on the Romulus-Van Buren town line for several years before he moved into Wayne. He was superintendent of the Sunday School at the Tyler Street Christian Union Church for many years, and was active in the Maccabees and the Odd Fellows. Charles was a mail carrier for a while and then went to work in Dearborn at the Fordson Tractor Plant of the Ford Motor Company. He was feeling as well as usual when he left home for work on Friday, February 17, 1928, but later dropped dead at his job from a heart attack. He was survived by his wife, three sons and a daughter. Burial was in Wayne's Tyler Street Cemetery next to his parents.

His father came from Vermont, and Edward was born in New York State in April of 1840, youngest of the six or more children of Samuel Avery. His four sisters and one brother were born in New York between 1827 and 1836. Mary was born in December of 1850, and she married Edward about 1865. Their son Charles was born in Indiana in 1866 or early in 1867, and their other children were born in Michigan: John and Bertha between 1873 and 1879, Mary in May of 1882 and Dora in May of 1889. Edward sold photographic and picture supplies at Crystal Valley. Mrs. Mary E. Avery was a widow living in Hillsdale in 1910 and providing a home for her three daughters, all of whom were employed.

| Elmer was born on October 29, 1860, at North Kingsville, Ohio, to Ira and Roxy (Blood) Avery. Miss Martha M. Wells, born in England on January 21, 1865, married Elmer at Milford on October 30, 1883. Their four children were all born at Carson City: Lula Amelia on August 4, 1884; Ira Everette on February 11, 1886; Maud Leola on September 27, 1888; and Harold Wells on September 10, 1895. Lula became Mrs. Charles Gamble of Milford, Ira was a photographer for many years at Masontown, Pennsylvania, and Maud became Mrs. Lloyd Ferris of Newport, Washington. During the 1890s Elmer did the elaborate pin striping on carriages and wagons built at Milford by A. S. Wakeley & Son. He also painted some pictures for his own satisfaction. Elmer's photography included the usual studio portraits and many post card photographs of scenes in and near Milford, Highland and White Lake. His postal views were characterized by small legends neatly lettered on the negatives such as: "GOV. WARNER AT MILFORD, MICH. No 39" or "LIBERTY St., MILFORD, MICH. No 41." Harold, his younger son, often accompanied Elmer on photographic jaunts and was included in some postal scenes to add interest. Elmer was on the official board of the Methodist Church, and post cards were purchased from him to be sold as money makers for the church. Elmer failed to come home to dinner from his studio one Monday, and Harold was sent to find out why. He found his father on the floor, paralyzed from a stroke but able to speak. Elmer had not been in robust health for several years, never recovered from the stroke, and died at home on Thursday, November 19, 1914. Many of his glass negatives have survived in local collections. | 2 33 233 23 23 mttt 333 4222 33 |   |

Joshua was born in Sullivan County, New York, on January 18, 1852. He was five years old when he came to Michigan with his family, which included at least two older brothers, a younger sister and a younger brother. His father seems to have died, and his older brothers were living with two different farm families in 1860, while the three youngest children were living in Constantine with their mother, Mrs. Sarah Avery. By 1870 Sarah had her five children back together. Joshua married 22-year-old Clara M. Blair in 1878. Their son was born in 1880, but did not live to maturity. One of Joshua's cabinet photographs was an exterior view of Gibson's Marble & Granite Works. He was converted and received into the Methodist Church in 1895. He had just finished building a new photographic studio when he died of heart failure at his home in Constantine on January 3, 1898.

Norton was born in Lowell to Sherman B. and Inez (Barber) Avery on March 22, 1894. He grew up in Lowell, and opened his studio there in the building one door east of A. J. Hawk & Son's shoe store about August 1, 1914, with this: "... SPECIAL. To the first 25 persons ordering one dozen or more photos, we will include free one of our OIL-COLOR PORTRAITS which regularly retail at two dollars. With our Modern Equipment the time of day makes no difference. You are cordially invited to call and examine the latest styles in refined portraiture...." Norton was tall and slender with grey eyes and brown hair. He and Miss Ruby Mae Willette were married at Grand Rapids on August 1, 1917. He was inducted into the army on March 29, 1918, and got his basic training at Camp Custer. He was assigned to the Fourth Air Service Motor Mechanics Regiment of the Signal Corps, and worked as a photographer. He was promoted from private to sergeant first class on July 1 and then to Master Signal Electrician on November 27, 1918. He left the United States for England on July 15, 1918, and left France for the United States on June 7, 1919. He was honorably discharged at Mitchell Field on Long Island, New York on June 21, 1919. After the war he and Ruby moved to Lansing, where their sons were born in 1921 and 1924. Harvey Avery was a Lowell photographer in 1924. Three bromoils and one chloride print of Norton's were selected for the First Annual Michigan Exhibition of Pictorial Photography at the Detroit Institute of Arts in May of 1932. In the 1930s the Norton Studio was moved to their residence on West Willow Street outside Lansing. In the early 1940s they moved back to Lowell and began emphasizing nature photography over portraiture. Ruby died in 1979 and Norton died in 1984. A large collection of Norton's photographs was donated to the State Archives of Michigan by his son, Hoyt Avery.

Demetrius was born at Szaktus, Greece, on October 25, 1891, and was still a Greek citizen with a wife and a five month old child when he registered for the draft as Demitris Avores in June of 1917. He was short and slender with brown eyes and hair, and was working for himself as a photographer at this time. The change from 61 to 221 Monroe Avenue in 1920 was due to revisions in the numbering system rather than to relocation. In sporadic attempts to anglicize his name, he tried J. Demetrius in 1921, James D. D. from 1924 through 1926, just plain James from 1927 through 1929, and James D. Avouris in 1941. At other times he reverted to Demetrius. He employed Nick Avouris as a photographer in 1924. Demetrius D. Fios had a studio at 339 Gratiot Avenue in 1930. Please see also the entries for Denis and James Fios and for the Fios Studios. Dimitrios Avouris was 78 years old when he died in Detroit on June 20, 1969.

His mother came from New York and Louie was born in Michigan in May of 1871, eldest of the three or more children of James H. and Lydia D. Axford. Mabel F. Murray was born here in September of 1879, and she married Louie in the fall of 1899. The couple was living in 1900 on the farm of her parents, Edward and Sarah E. Murray, with five of her siblings. "PHOTO By L. E. Axford, At Del Monico Resort, So. Haven, Mich." was stamped on the back of 7 by 9 inch commercial mounts, including one with a photo of five young men and four young women beside a stone building. Mabel gave birth in Michigan to Raymond late in 1900 and to Louise two years later. Her other children were born in California: Lynn in 1906, Theodore about 1908, and Mildred in August of 1909. By 1920 Louie had married Mrs. Alice E. Dench and they were providing a home for her daughter Alice and his son Lynn. In 1930 Alice was identified as a widow.

George joined the National Photographic Association in its second year, between July of 1869 and June of 1870. Early in 1871 his How to Paint Photographs, first published in 1870, and his Chart of Photographic Drapery were being advertised nationally and were selling well. Portraits of Nancy Martin and of Walter Harper, the founder of Harper Hospital, were exhibited in a Detroit store in July of 1871. They had been enlarged from small cards by Gottshalk Grelling and retouched in ink by George. The business address in Detroit used by George was that of Grelling's photograph gallery. He exhibited an exquisitely colored portrait of a lady at the 1871 NPA convention in Philadelphia. By October of 1871, George had recently finished portraits of several prominent Detroiters, including one of Judge Emmons in water colors. He purchased Knight's Gallery, one of the largest and handsomest studios in Buffalo, in the summer of 1872. He was living in Buffalo in May of 1873 when he applied for a patent upon an improvement in photographic headrests, and in February of 1874 when Patent Number 146,977 was issued to him.

Arthur was born in New York in October of 1864, the eldest child of Perry Sylvester Babcock and Marion Babcock. His two sisters and three brothers were born in Michigan between 1868 and 1881. He was associated with his father in the corn planter business in 1900. Ethel was born in Michigan in June of 1882, the daughter of Warren A. and Emily J. Hampton, and she had a younger brother. She married Arthur about 1904, gave birth to a son named Arthur in 1907 and to twins named Warren and Marian in 1910. "A. E. Babcock, Photographer, Manitou Beach, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of photographs including one of many boats at the north shore of Devil's Lake mailed in August of 1908, views of rural homes, large and small groups of people at the lake, and a series of an ice house being built and filled with ice during February of 1909. The Babcocks were living in 1910 with Ethel's parents, who were proprietors of a resort on Devil's Lake. Ethel was a widow by 1930, when she and her children were living in Adrian with her mother, and she was working as a seamstress in the alterations department of a dry goods store.

George was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in April of 1865, the son of George and Catherine Babcock. His sister Carrie was six years older. In 1880 he was living on the farm of his grandparents, Curtis and Permelia Babcock. He took up photography about 1881, and succeeded H. Maurice Kittle in Pontiac a year later. He may well have sold the gallery back to Kittle, who by 1884 was back in Pontiac. About 1887 George married a young woman who soon became his photographic assistant. He still was married in 1900, but was living alone in Pontiac and had two male roomers. "Life Size Work a Specialty" was included by George on some of his Holly cabinet mounts. Bissell & Babcock succeeded Edward Bissell in Milford. At a national convention of the Photographers' Association of America, probably in June of 1896, George was awarded a diploma for an exhibit of high grade work. The portraits in the cited issue of Headlight Flashes were reproduced from George's photographs. His ads in December of 1896 were: "Last Chance before Christmas for PHOTOGRAPHS...." For three months in 1897 he proclaimed: "GEO. C. BABCOCK, Leading Photographer, Makes the Best Photos in the City. Gallery ... Opposite Hotel Hodges." In the same period he added "All Photographs finished in 'Aristo Platino' Finish" to a similar advertisement. Martha was born in New York State in 1878, and she became George's second wife about 1912.

John was born to Canadian parents at Chatham, Ontario, on October 7, 1878. He immigrated about 1897, and was a naturalized citizen of the United States by 1910. Nellie was born in Iowa to a Canadian mother in 1884 or early in 1885. She married John about 1902, and their daughter Ruth was born in California two years later. Postal portraits were made as souvenirs from the Electric Park Studio. Electric Park was at the southeast corner of Jefferson Avenue and East Grand Boulevard, near the bridge to Belle Isle. Something happened to Nellie, and about 1916 John married a lady named Ruth. Her father came from Virginia, and Ruth was born in Tennessee in 1894. She seems to have been a full photographic partner in the Kingsport studio. John's daughter Ruth from his first marriage was living with him and his second wife in 1930.

Detroit (Louis Fabian Bachrach Incorporated) PHOTOGRAPHER at Room 214 of the Book Building ..... 1920-1925 m

Louis was born at Baltimore, Maryland, on July 16, 1881. His father, David Bachrach, opened photographic galleries in 1868 at Baltimore and at Washington, D. C. Louis graduated from Baltimore Polytechnic Institute in 1897, studied at the Maryland Institute of Design in 1898 and 1899, and attended the Art Students' League at New York City in 1900. He began his photographic career by working with his father in Washington and Baltimore and for several photographers in New York. He extended the Bachrach national chain in 1904 by opening a portrait studio at Worcester, Massachusetts. He was president of Bachrach, Inc., from 1915 until he was succeeded in 1955 by his son, Bradford. In 1949 he was named an honorary master of photography by the Professional Photographers Association of America. Two years later he received the association's highest award for his contributions to professional photography. He contributed many articles on photographic portraiture and lighting to leading magazines, as well as scholarly articles on rare plants, since he was a noted experimental horticulturalist. He died in semi-retirement at Boston, Massachusetts, on July 24, 1963. Many of his papers dated between 1950 and 1963 are held by the Special Collections Research Center in the Syracuse University Library at Syracuse, New York.

His parents emigrated from the Prussian region of Germany and John was born in Wisconsin on June 7, 1874, sixth of the nine children of Charles and Hannah Baetz. Ethel was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan in 1884, and she became Mrs. Ethel May Baetz about 1905. Mildred, their only child, was born in Michigan in 1907 or very early in 1908. "NEWBERRY STATE HOSPITAL" and "COPYRIGHTED 1914, J. A. BAETZ." were printed below the image on the heavy brown 3½ by 10½ inch mount of a 2¼ by 9¼ panoramic photograph of the hospital buildings and grounds. John probably was the photographer. In the fall of 1867, Bailey & Scotford announced the opening of their rooms in the Griswold Block where they had succeeded Padget & Colburn. They ran a lengthy newspaper advertisement through January of 1868 which mentioned photographs from carte de visite to 22 by 28 inches, low priced ambrotypes with frames and cases to suit, photographs painted in oil, water colors, pastile and India ink, and J. Harvey Scotford's long experience. Adelbert was 26 years old when he married 20-year-old Miss Elizabeth C. Kemp of Bay City on August 26, 1868. He and Scotford both attended the National Photographic Association convention during the summer of 1870 at Cleveland, Ohio. A few months later they sent some of their cabinet photographs to The Philadelphia Photographer to show what progress they had made since being inspired by the exhibits at Cleveland. The McEwen Block was on the east side of Water Street between Fourth and Fifth Streets. Early in the summer of 1874 a newspaper advertisement claimed "Pictures made at Bailey's Gallery cheaper than any gallery in Bay City. 8 x 10 pictures, $1.25; with frames, $2.00. Four gems, $1.00. Four 'Best Pictures', 75 cents."

Edwin was born in Michigan in September of 1862, third of the five children of Robert and Marietta Bailey. His father was a Jackson photographer for fifteen years before he established Bailey & Son, so Edwin undoubtedly had photographic experience before 1884. "E. D. Bailey [SUCCESSOR TO] BAILEY & SON, Photographers AND COPYING ARTISTS, 101 Cor. Main & Mechanic Sts., JACKSON, MICH. PARMA, MICH." was printed on some card photograph mounts.

Isola T. Carnall was born in Michigan in April of 1865, and she married Edwin about 1883. All of their children were born in Michigan: Bessie in July of 1885, Albert in September of 1886, Veda in March of 1889, Robert in November of 1892, Ada in March of 1896, and Leonard in November of 1898. Leonard died as a child. Edwin was enumerated as a cabinet maker in 1900, as a building contractor in 1910, as a repair man in a railroad coach yard in 1920, and as a railroad coach carpenter in 1930.

Beebe & Bailey succeeded James Bayne in the ground floor studio on Fountain Street opposite the Peninsular Club House, and over-printed Bayne's cabinet mounts for a while. They employed Mrs. Ross K. Olmstead as a retoucher in 1890. After 1891, they emphasized painting to the exclusion of photography. Thomas J. Prince was George's partner in the Michigan Photo Company. That George had opened a gallery at Greenwich, Ohio, was reported late in 1898.

John was born in New York City on July 23, 1833, the oldest son of Captain Joseph H. Bailey of the United States Army medical corps and Mary A. (Reed) Bailey. From 1834 to 1850 the family lived near Fort Smith, Arkansas, where John attended the public schools and St. Andrews Catholic College. They spent a couple of years in New York state before Captain Bailey was assigned to Fort Mackinac on Mackinac Island in 1852. When John graduated from the medical department of the University of Michigan in March of 1854, he was immediately appointed Acting Assistant Surgeon at Fort Mackinac and Physician to the Chippewa and Ottawa Indians at the Michilimackinac Agency. He was stationed in 1856 at Fort Hamilton, New York, and during the Indian War in 1857 at Fort Snelling, Minnesota. He later established a private practice on Mackinac Island. In 1858 he married Miss Sarah Gray, daughter of the Levi Gray who opened a general store on Mackinac Island in 1845, and they had four children before Sarah's death on August 26, 1876. John entered the Civil War as Assistant Surgeon of the Eighth Missouri Volunteer Infantry, and was soon promoted to Major and Surgeon. He served as Surgeon-in Chief of the Second Division of the Fifteenth Army Corps, Chief Medical Officer on the staffs of seven generals, and Surgeon in charge of six different hospitals. He returned to Mackinac Island after the war, served as Post Surgeon at Fort Mackinac no less than twenty times, and for many years was the only doctor on the island. John took over his father-in-law's store on Main Street about 1880 and transformed it into a drug store and gift shop. His second marriage was to 41-year-old Miss Mary Ette Marshall of La Fargeville, New York, on May 18, 1881. He originated five bills dealing with improvements to Mackinac Island, all of which were passed by Congress, and became one of the commissioners of Mackinac Island State Park. John died of apoplexy on January 18, 1910, and Mary moved to Denver, Colorado, where she died on December 16, 1917. John dealt in stereo views of Mackinac Island published for him by at least four different sources: Jenney & Miller of Flint, Land Brothers of Detroit, Black & Company of Detroit and J. A. Jenney of Detroit. On the labels he was identified as a "Dealer in Mackinac Island Views, Drugs and Medicines, Gill Nets, Twine and General Merchandise." or as a "Proprietor of Mackinac Island Views; Dealer in Gill Nets, Gilling Twines and General Merchandise." John published a guidebook in 1895 entitled: Mackinac, formerly Michilimackinac, which went through six revisions by 1909.

Robert was born in England in 1828, immigrated to New York, and later moved to Jackson. Bailey & John Cook produced ambrotypes as well as photographs, and employed Stanley C. Brooks as a photographer in 1868 and 1869. Marietta was born in New York in 1832 or 1833 and married Robert about 1854. Their five children, Alice, Arthur, Edwin, Ella and Willard, were born in Michigan between 1855 and 1868. Robert advertised in 1871: "One of the most complete Galleries in the State. Pictures of every description taken in the highest style of the art. Old pictures copied to any size, and beautifully colored in ink, oil, and water colors. First Gallery West of the Hurd House." The editor added: "Robert Bailey ... is one of the best photographers in the city, and an artist that would make friends and customers anywhere. His rooms are kept neat and handsome, and well stocked with the et ceteras of the photographic business, such as frames, &c. Marcus Kerr, an artist of superior talent, has rooms with Mr. Bailey, and colors pictures in oil or water colors with admirable taste and effect. His ink work is wonderful..." Robert employed Joseph Bint as a photographer in 1871. Photographic reproductions of two woodcuts of the Chicago Fire of 1871, copied from pages of a book, and reproductions of a number of allegorical and genre drawings are found on Robert's card mounts from the "First Gallery West of the Hurd House." He lost his first wife, and by 1880 was married to a 47-year-old lady named Emily. His three youngest children still were at home at this time. Robert probably was employing his step-son, Allen B. Moon, as a photographer in 1880.

Their daughters Emily and Edith were born in Michigan between 1864 and 1868, and their son Raymond was born here in January of 1870. The most common label used by Bailey & Whitesides stated: "Stereoscopic and Portrait Gallery, Manufacturers of Lake Superior Views and Picture Frames, dealers in Fancy Moulding, Cord, Tassels, Stereoscopes, &c., &c. Stereoscopic Groups and Residences taken to order. All orders promptly attended to." Another stereograph imprint read: "The Picturesque of Lake Superior, photographed and published by Bailey & Whitesides, Marquette, L.S., Michigan. Pictured Rocks a Specialty, Indian Scenery, Views of the Mines, Marquette, &c., &c." The L.S. stood for Lake Superior, a name commonly applied to the entire Upper Peninsula of Michigan at the time.

Charles was born at Holyoke, Massachusetts, on September 25, 1855, to John R. and Marie (Green) Baker. He attended the public schools and clerked in a general store at Holyoke before coming to Detroit. He and Sarah Jane Budd of Detroit were married in November of 1882, and later had one son. He advertised nationally in the spring of 1884: "SITUATION WANTED - As Printer and Toner. An engagement by a first-class printer and toner. Can assist in operating when required. Nine years experience. References. I wish to engage with a first-class gallery only. Address Charles R. Baker, 303 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich." He affiliated with Ralph Johnson later in 1884. "Baker's Portraits. Instantaneous process used exclusively...." was printed on cabinet mounts from 59 Monroe Avenue. By 1886 Charles had moved down the street to supplant A. J. Diehl & Company, so "35, 37 & 39 Monroe Avenue,..." was usually printed on later cabinet mounts, along with such phrases as: "Sittings made any day, rain or shine.... Studio open every day.... The Lightning Process Exclusively.... Small Pictures Copied to Life Size in Crayon or Water Color.... Negatives Kept. Copies or Enlargements can be had at any time.... Portraits in Oil, Pastel, Crayon or Water Color & Ink." In 1887 he advertised: "First-class Photographs made from Cabinet Size to Full Life Size Head. Finest Accessories. Ground Glass Skylight." Charles' studio occupied two floors in 1893, each 20 by 80 feet, where five assistants were employed and a specialty was made of commercial work for manufacturers. At the Detroit convention of the Photographers' Association of America in August of 1895 he was awarded the second prize bronze medal in Class K: Commercial Work. Both sides of this medal were reproduced on some cabinet mounts from The Baker Studio and The Baker Art Studio, and he was identified as "C. Russell Baker, Artistic Photographer..." on other cabinet mounts. The second annual meeting of the Michigan Photographers Association was held at Detroit in February of 1897, and there Charles was awarded the second prize in Class I, Commercial Work, for his exhibit of six pictures, seven inches and over. That he was building a new studio was reported early in 1898, and he began using Charles Russell Baker in his advertising in 1899. After 1906 he was usually listed under his full name and as the Baker Art Studio at the same address with such statements as: "We Photograph Everything that is Manufactured... Furniture, Machinery, Automobiles, &c." A 1913 ad was for "THE BAKER ART STUDIO. Established 1884. Chas. R. Baker, Proprietor. COMMERCIAL AND PORTRAIT PHOTOGRAPHERS. Society Groups, Athletic Groups, Interior and Exterior Views of Factories and Residences. Special Cameras for Every Requirement. Enlargements, any size. Specialties: AUTOMOBILES, FURNITURE, MACHINERY. New Fireproof Building. Ground Floor Operating Room..." Some of his employees were: Henry Haug, photographer in 1885; Helen L. Street, bookkeeper in 1885; Miss Nellie L. Street, clerk in 1886 and 1887; Edward Stoll, photographer in 1888; Miss Belle McMillan, retoucher in 1888; William J. Hogan, retoucher in 1889; Herman Steiner, photo printer in 1890 and 1891; Miss Ella L. Mott, clerk from 1890 to 1892; William P. Melville, photo printer in 1892; Clarence M. Charles belonged to the Wolverine Automobile Club in 1914, and considered automobiling to be his principal recreation, though he was a member of the Detroit Yacht Club and various golf clubs. He became a charter member of the Commercial Photographers Association of Detroit on February 11, 1921, not too long before he retired and began traveling extensively in the United States. His wife died in September of 1930. Charles was ill for only 24 hours prior to his death from a heart attack on March 30, 1932. Burial was in Roseland Park Cemetery mausoleum. He was said to have learned photography in the Angell Studio on Woodward Avenue.

The Bakers were born in New York State, Edwin in November of 1829 and Maria in March of 1833. They married about 1852, their elder daughter was born in Michigan in 1856, and they came to Washtenaw County in 1859, where their younger daughter was born in March of 1870. Edwin's earliest card mounts from Ypsilanti identify him as a photographer and ambrotypist, and place his New York Gallery near the depot. The designation "New York Gallery" is common to all of his Ypsilanti mounts, including those of the various partnerships. Some E. P. & H. W. Baker cartes de visite carry revenue stamps, as do some by E. P. Baker and some by Baker & Benham. "... Porcelain and Ink Pictures made in the best styles." was printed on some of Edwin's cartes de visite about 1867. Baker & Root were succeeded early in the spring of 1867 by Thomas H. Johnson. E. P. Baker & Company offered "... Photographs from miniature to life size, worked in India Ink, oil and water colors. Old pictures copied in any style, and finished up in a neat and artistic style." Baker & Company's offer was similar: "... Life size India ink and water colored pictures - the best west of New York - for less than half the general prices. Old pictures copied to any size desired, and finished in a neat and artistic style. CARD PHOTOGRAPHS $1.50 Per Dozen. - Seeing is believing. Give us a call." Very similar imprints from the New York Gallery in Ypsilanti do not mention Baker, but are signed by "R. S. EWING, Agent." Edwin hired Jerome J. Stephenson in 1870, made him a partner in 1873, and sold out to him in 1876 or 1877. Edwin boarded with photographer Joseph T. Wixson in 1880. Baker & Stephenson produced stereoscopic views of Ypsilanti. Charles W. Earle was Edwin's predecessor at the Detroit address, listed as 53 & 55 Rowland Street by one 1888 source, where Edwin offered "... Photographing of the Most Superior Kind Executed in an Artistic Manner. VIEWS OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS TAKEN TO ORDER." He was succeeded in Detroit by Alvord & Company. The Bakers were living in Plymouth with a grandson and his wife in 1900. Edwin was enjoying the same arrangement in 1910, but Maria was gone and he was a widower.

Erasmus was born in Pennsylvania in 1873 or 1874. He was single in 1910, and was living with his widowed mother, Mrs. Florence E. Baker, on her Midland Township farm. Her parents came from New York, and Florence was born in Pennsylvania in 1852 or 1853. A very ornate blind stamp with a script "Baker" and a block "MIDLAND, MICH." on either side of a circular monogram "EWB" was used on 1907 postal views of bridges and of a street filled with hay wagons. Baker advertised in 1908: "Professional Photographer. All Work Positively Guaranteed. Dealer in Amateur Photo Supplies, Art Supplies, Art Pictures, All Kinds of Frames, Moldings, and Pictures."

By September of 1906 Hazel was an Associate Member of the Jolly Jokers' Club, identified as JJ#565. The Jolly Jokers was one of the largest and most active post card exchange organizations at the time. Associate Members wanted to receive cards only if they had initiated the exchange, while Active Members welcomed cards from any other member. A cyanotype card of a young lady playing her guitar outdoors was "... taken of myself - by myself ... Hazel Baker, La Belle Fruit Farm, Plainwell, Mich. JJ#565." Her family's fruit farm in northern Otsego Township evidently was served by a rural route out of Plainfield. Hazel was living with her parents in 1900 and in 1910. Henry was born on February 10, 1833, at Richmond in Ontario County, New York, to Samuel and Maria (Marshall) Baker. The family moved in the spring of 1842 to a farm west of Plymouth in Wayne County, Michigan. Henry learned the photographer's trade, and during the Civil War worked at this business with his cousin Edwin in Ypsilanti. Some E. P. & H. W. Baker cartes de visite carried revenue stamps. Henry married twice, first Miss Flora Bromfield and then in 1871 or early in 1872 Miss Angeline C. Myers. Both ladies were born in Michigan, Flora about 1846 and Angeline in April of 1845. Neither marriage produced children. The Plymouth Iron Windmill Company began manufacturing "Daisy" air rifles in 1888, and produced no windmills after 1890. The air rifle products became world famous, and the Daisy Manufacturing Company became the largest employer in Plymouth. Henry was a widower by 1910, when his much younger sister Anna was keeping house for him. 2 3

Herbert was born in Michigan to Canadian parents on January 22, 1881, last of the six children of David C. and Margaret Baker. His four brothers and one sister were born in Canada between 1861 and 1877. May was born in Canada in 1877 or early in 1878, and she married Herbert about 1901. He became a stout man with blue eyes and brown hair. Herbert advertised in 1906: "CHRISTMAS PHOTOGRAPHS. Come Today, Don't Put It Off. We will give you a large Artistic Calendar with your photograph upon it Free with every dozen Cabinet Photographs, commencing December 1. Don't Wait For Sunshine, just get ready and come, and we will do the rest. It will do you good to see the new styles and the low prices. There will be no disappointment. All orders finished promptly. Yours for quick service, style, quality, and low prices. BAKER'S STUDIO, Allegan, Michigan." Herbert had a partner, Clarence G. Messinger, in the drug business for a while about 1912, but the rest of the time he was in business on his own. May apparently took over the photograph studio when Herbert opened his drug store, and she obtained a divorce from Herbert about 1915. Neva was born in Illinois in 1890, second of the six children of James and Bell Vipond. She married Herbert about 1919. Their daughter Beth was born in 1920 or early in 1921, and their son David was born in December of 1928. 1 3

J. Howard Baker was born to J. Howard and Anna Baker on May 19, 1866, at Bergen Heights, New Jersey. His father was a well-educated English lawyer, and the family had immigrated to the United States only three months before the younger J. Howard was born. The father's practice was mainly in Toronto, Ontario, until he drowned there in 1872. By the time J. Howard was of age, the family fortunes were exhausted and his mother and young sisters needed his financial support. He learned photography at Crown Point and Warsaw, Indiana, before opening his gallery in Battle Creek. He advertised in 1889: "HOWARD BAKER, Artistic Photographer. All work executed in the best style of the art and warranted to please. Step in and examine work." Some of his cabinet mounts from 66 West Main Street carried outdoor views. In directory listings and on his photograph mounts prior to 1892 he was identified as Howard Baker. He was then called John H. Baker for a couple of years, but after 1894 he was quite consistently designated as J. Howard Baker. He was married to 23-year-old Miss Mary Luella Anderson of Battle Creek on May 1, 1889, the third John Howard Baker was born in September of 1899, and by 1901 the Bakers owned both their home and the studio. J. Howard was an active Mason, Knight Templar, Odd Fellow, Maccabee and Episcopalian.

Olin was born at Monterey, New York, on September 24, 1888, the only child of James W. and Mary E. Baker. Margaret was born in Michigan in 1887 or 1888 and Bruce, their son, was born in Michigan about 1915. Edward S. Gage & Baker sold photo supplies at 33 Fountain Street Northwest in 1912, and the Baker Photo Supply Company was at that same address from 1913 through 1917. Olin was tall with a medium build and dark brown eyes and hair in 1917. He had no identified associate in either the Baker-Coster Photo Company which dealt in photographic supplies in 1920, or in the Baker Photo Company which offered "Anything Photographic" in 1923. Olin's wife, Mrs. Margaret E. Baker, was enumerated as a photographer and a principal of the photographic business in 1930. The shops on Pearl Street and Wealthy Street were open simultaneously in 1932. Melvin H. Rahn was proprietor in 1938 of the Baker Photo Company at 154 Louis Street Northwest in Grand Rapids. Olin's residence was in Brooklyn in 1942. He visited Brazil and traveled from Rio de Janeiro to New York on the S. S. Argentina in September of 1953. Olin died at Swan Lake in November of 1974.

Orcan was born in Canada on February 6, 1875, and came to the United States in 1885. Her parents were natives of Michigan, but Bertha was born in Canada in 1879 and was brought across the border in 1882. She married Orcan about 1900. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Elda in 1902 and Margaret in December of 1909. "ORCAN BAKER, Photographer, Central Lake, Mich." was stamped on the back of stereo views of Central Lake and vicinity. "Bucking the Current, Muskegon River" and "O. R. BAKER, Photogr." were lettered on the negative of a postal photograph of a boy holding the painter of a boat while a woman prepared to row it upstream. The message on this card was dated January 6, 1908. "Baker" or "BAKER" was lettered on the negatives of post card photos of other Newaygo scenes that were postmarked in 1908 and early in 1909. Orcan had become a naturalized citizen of the United States by 1918, when he was a slender man of average height with brown eyes and hair.

His wife's father emigrated from Ireland, Hattie was born in Michigan in June of 1859, she married Rowland about 1880, and their daughter Lena was born in May of 1890. During his first years in Marine City, Rowland advertised: "First class work only." His studio was at the southeast corner of Water and Washington Streets in 1892. "Photographs and Tintypes. Copying and Enlarging in Ink Work. Framing to order." was printed on some cabinet mounts which located his gallery on Broadway. "Cabinets $125 cents Pr Doz." was printed on others. The sale of Rowland's gallery to W. J. Smith of Sanilac Center was reported early in 1899. In 1910 the Bakers were sharing their home with their daughter and her husband and a newly born granddaughter. By 1920 Lena and her husband were gone, but Rowland and Hattie still were caring for the granddaughter.

His wife's parents came from New York, and Caroline or Carrie was born in Michigan in March of 1856. She and William were married about 1872, and in April of 1880 she gave birth to their son, William Loyd Baker. The name of the postoffice was changed from May to Mayville on July 30, 1890. "Mayville & Frankenmuth, Mich." or "Mayville, Gagetown, Kingston." or "Mayville & Richville, Mich." was printed on some of William's cabinet mounts. "W. R. BAKER, Photographer. Viewing and Crayon Work a Specialty, Mayville, Mich." was stamped on the back of stereoscopic views of cyclone damage near Thomas, Michigan, with penned captions. It was reported in May of 1895 that William had come from Mayville to Kingston to make preparations for moving his photograph car, which had been in Kingston for some time, to East Dayton. "Freeland & Baker, 1895...." was printed on cabinet mounts with no town designated. "Freeland &" was crossed out on some of these mounts. William Loyd Baker worked as a photographer for his father in the Genesee Avenue studio. A script "Baker" along with "SAGINAW, W.S., MICH." in smaller block letters was blind stamped below the image on cabinet mounts and in the lower right corner of post card photographs of houses. William was bitten by a mad dog in the fall of 1907, and went to Ann Arbor for treatment. He advertised in 1916: "Outdoor Groups, Buildings, Machinery, Flashlight Photos. Copying and Enlarging a Specialty." By 1920 Caroline was a widow living with her son in Detroit.

George was born at Meridian, New York, on January 1, 1840, became a proficient musician by the time he was eight, and received advanced musical training for five years. In 1858 his family moved to Lowell, Michigan, where he and Miss Augusta Carpenter were married in 1860. In all census records, his wife was identified as a lady named Maria who was born in Canada in August of 1842. In May of 1861 George enlisted as a fifer in a military company raised in Lowell. At the expiration of his ninety-day enlistment, he joined the band of the Second Michigan Cavalry. After a winter at Benton Barracks, ill health compelled George to apply for a discharge. On August 15, 1863, he enlisted in the band of the Second Brigade of the Third Cavalry Corps. At James City, Virginia, on October 9, 1863, General Kilpatrick's Cavalry Division was surrounded by Confederate infantry, artillery and cavalry. General Custer obtained permission for an attempt to break the enemy lines, ordered his band to the front to play "Yankee Doodle," and then ordered a saber charge by the First and Fifth Michigan Cavalry which drove the enemy from the front. When Band Master Charles H. Axtell went home on recruiting service in December, George was temporarily assigned to his position. Axtell was prevented from returning to the Brigade, so George led the band throughout the spring campaign of 1864 from the Wilderness to City Point. Axtell finally returned and soon thereafter George was in a New York hospital being treated for rheumatic neuralgia. After a brief furlough, he was admitted to Harper Hospital in Detroit on November 15, 1864. He was discharged from the army in May and finally was able to get acquainted with his son, George A. Balcom, who had been born in November of 1863. With E. W. Haxley as a partner, George opened a jewelry shop at Lowell in November of 1865. George taught music most of his life, and was well known as a composer and arranger of band music. In 1876 he went to California for his health, returning to Lowell in 1878. By 1900 Maria was a widow living in Kalamazoo with her son, who had become a musician.

His father came from New York, his mother emigrated from Scotland, and John was born in New York State on December 2, 1877, second of the four sons of Charles W. and Margaret M. Baldrige. In 1900 he was living in a village just a few miles south of his family's farm. He was a medium sized single man with blue eyes and brown hair in 1918, and his closest relative was his mother. He produced post card photographs, including a promotional one featuring his own picture, and outdoor scenes on 12 by 14 inch mounts. Note that his youngest brother, Power, also was a photographer.

His father came from New York, his mother emigrated from Scotland, and Power was born in Genesee County, Michigan, on February 18, 1888, last of the four sons of Charles W. and Margaret M. Baldrige. He became a medium sized man with blue eyes and brown hair. "POWER BALDRIDGE, PHO., DAVISON, MICH." was stamped on the back of the 5 ¼ by 6 ¼ inch mount of a photograph of 19 people standing in a field with a baby in a pram in front and a young man driving a wagon drawn by two horses behind them. Dorothy E. Burbridge was born in Michigan in May of 1889, the only child of Charles C. and Elizabeth Burbridge. She married Power about 1908, and they never had children. She and Power were providing a home for her parents in 1920, and for her widowed father in 1930.

Carl was born in Canada in April of 1856, crossed the border in 1882, and became a naturalized citizen of the United States. His brother, Frederick H. Baldwin, was born in Canada in October of 1854, came to this country in 1889, and boarded with Carl and worked for him as a clerk in 1892. In 1900 Carl, identified as the photographer and a widower, was living with Frederick, identified as a single jeweler. Carl seems to have lost two wives, for in 1910 he was a widower with a six-year-old son. "Baldwin" was lettered on the negatives of postal photographs of arrangements of eggs, one in a cut glass dish and another in and around a china basket. Most of the eggs were plain white, but on one of them in each arrangement was lettered: "Easter Greetings, Berrien Springs, Mich."

Charles was born at Groveland in Oakland County, Michigan, to Samuel Cutler and Lucy Ann (Dickenson) Baldwin on March 6, 1845. Henrietta Liza Newcomb was born in Michigan to English parents in April of 1854. She married Charles in 1878, and their daughter Ella was born at Flint in May of 1882. Baldwin & Berry turned out stereo views of Flint scenes as well as portraits. At least six C. E. Baldwin imprints locate the gallery in the Gazley Block. Miss Julia Baldwin worked for Charles as a photographic artist in 1876. In 1881, the rooms were in the Gazley Block over M. S. Elmore & Company's jewelry store at the corner of First and Saginaw Streets. "C. E. Baldwin, Traveling PHOTOGRAPHER of Michigan." was printed on some card photograph mounts from the later 1870s. During the 1880s, Charles took his cameras more than 100 miles north to record the lumbering operations near Gladwin and Lake St. Helen in stereo, 5 by 8 and larger formats. The negatives he brought back included some nice views of very early Shay locomotives. Closer to home, he produced cabinet portraits of Durant & Dort buggies and views of Flint churches and businesses on cabinet and 5¼ by 8½ inch mounts. 323 was at the northeast corner of Kearsley and Saginaw Streets, and some of his patrons at this location were African American. Mrs. Frederick H. Ball was employed as a clerk in 1892, when Miss Sadie Becker worked for him as a retoucher. The gallery was described in 1893 as occupying the third floor of an 18 by 74 foot brick building, with the reception room, operating room, and finishing room ranging from front to back. Two ladies were employed in the back room as finishers and retouchers, and children's work was mentioned as a specialty. A 1907 ad read: "Commercial Photographer, Copying Monumental Designs a Specialty. General Commercial Photo Work Solicited." In 1911, the last line was changed to: "... Copying of Designs for the Trade Solicited. Exclusive Use of Original Designs Guaranteed to Owner." From 1913 through 1919 the ad read: "Commercial Photographer. Monumental Designs a Specialty. Call for our Latest Cemetery Designs." The studio address was listed as 321 South Saginaw Street in 1892, and as 323 ½ in 1921. Charles was a widower by 1910, when he was sharing his home with his high school teacher daughter, Ella, and his 19-year-old niece, Miss Lottie Lone. Lottie was working for him as an assistant photographer. Lottie's brother, Jesse Lone, also worked in his studio. Harriett Ella Reed was born in Michigan in 1853 or 1854. She was the widow of William H. Cooper when she and Charles were married. Charles was 76 years old when he died at Flint on February 3, 1923.

Frank was born in December of 1879 on the family farm in Chase Township to Horatio M. and Emma E. Baldwin. Horatio was born in Canada about 1846, immigrated to the United States in 1865 and became a farmer. Emma's parents came from New York, she was born in Michigan about 1847, she married Horatio about 1873, and two of her three children survived to maturity. Her daughter Myrtle was born in September of 1887. "Photo by F. G. Baldwin, Chase. 7/2/10, 4:05 PM" was written in ink on a photograph of a head-on collision between two freight locomotives. A list of casualties was written on the post card back of this photograph. Ida was born in Michigan in 1881 or early in 1882, and she married Frank about 1911.

The photographer was identified only by his last name, but John was the only Baldwin near Parma that was likely to have tried photography, and he seems to have lived with his parents on their farm until he married. Bernice was born in Michigan in May of 1872, and she married John about 1890. Their daughter Emma was born in April of 1893, and their son Ford was born in March of 1896. John was a widower by 1930, when he was living by himself.

Schuyler was born in 1823 at Troy, New York, into an aristocratic family. His cousin Schuyler Colfax became vice-president of the United States. Late in 1851 he purchased the gallery of Samuel K. Selkrig in Kalamazoo, remodeled it, and opened it on November 28. His announcement stressed the 200 square foot area of the northern sky and side light, his experience in Troy, the quality and permanence of his images, and his powerful new German instrument designed expressly for copying and enlarging. He offered to take infants in from two to five seconds, to work in cloudy weather, to take likenesses of the sick or dead at their residence, to give daguerreian instructions, and to provide cameras, stock and chemicals to traveling artists. By May of 1854 he had a wagon gallery on the road manned by H. A. Wallace, and J. E. Selkirk was in charge of the Kalamazoo studio during the summer of 1854 while Schuyler made his annual return visit to Troy. Ambrotypist E. A. Boughton was hired to replace Wallace, and Schuyler made his first ambrotypes in 1856. Baldwin & Boughton were awarded a first premium for the best lot of daguerreotypes at the Kalamazoo County Fair in 1856. Schuyler took his last daguerreotypes in April of 1857, and was awarded a first premium for the best exhibit of ambrotypes at the Kalamazoo County Fair in September of 1857. In December of 1859 he claimed to have won the first premium for eight successive years, was offering a dozen large photographs for $6.00, and had started taking landscape photographs. His first outdoor views were issued in the card format, while later he used a stereo camera almost exclusively. In 1866 the gallery was "... moved to first hall east of Wortley's Corner over Oakes' Drug Store and Pershall's Harness Shop" where Baldwin & Prior were offering miniatures on porcelain, stereoscopic views, and card photographs of Lincoln, Civil War generals and statesmen of the day. Baldwin & Montague produced cartes de visite, ambrotypes, miniatures on porcelain and stereoscopic views of Kalamazoo. Schuyler did not maintain a portrait gallery during the 1870s, and so was not listed in the gazetteers, but he was busy taking and selling stereo views. Besides views of Kalamazoo, he took stereo views of Niagara Falls in February of 1868, some views of Marshall and many of Battle Creek, and many views of Grand Rapids starting in 1874 or earlier. "Sold by all Booksellers in Kalamazoo" was printed on some of his stereo mounts, and "Post Office Address: Grand Rapids or Kalamazoo" was printed on others. He was single in 1880. "SCHUYLER C. BALDWIN, PHOTOGRAPHER, KALAMAZOO, MICH." was stamped on the back of a 5 ¼ by 8 ½ inch mount of a photograph of fourteen gentlemen examining a hedge on the farm of William Ware near Kalamazoo. This photo was bound into an album promoting the Michigan Hedge Company about 1887. One S. C. Baldwin took stereo views of Cripple Creek, Colorado, around the turn of the century. Schuyler died at Grand Rapids on November 11, 1900, and was buried there.

He was born Anton in Hungary on July 11, 1875, and his name was often spelled Balkany. In 1918 he was stout and of average height with grey eyes and brown hair, and had declared his intention of becoming a naturalized citizen of the United States. "Balkanyi; Photo Studio, 2232 W. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich." was stamped on the post card backs of studio portraits. The change in address during 1920 was caused by revisions in the numbering system, rather than by relocation. Anthony was divorced by 1930, and had not obtained American citizenship.

Abraham was born in April of 1818 in Massachusetts and Julia, his wife, was born in November of 1822 in New York. They married about 1839, and their sons were born in New York: William in January of 1841, and Julius six years later. The photographer often was listed as Abram P. Ball, and during the early 1880s as Adam P. Ball, but he used simply A. P. Ball on his photo mounts. He produced excellent stereo views of Eaton Rapids and vicinity. “Ball & Son” was printed on some cabinet mounts, while “A. P. Ball & Son” was printed on others. Ball & Son were listed as Eaton Rapids photographers in the gazetteer for 1891 along with Herbert Randall. Herbert overprinted three or more types of Ball cabinet mounts as successor, and had at least one new printing with: “H. RANDALL, successor to Ball, Eaton Rapids, Mich.”

All four of their parents came from New York, and Fred and his wife were born in Michigan, he in February of 1864 and Melissa one month earlier. Fred was third of the five children of Henry and Elizabeth Ball. His father was gone by 1880, and Fred was doing the work of a man. He and Melissa were married about 1885. Melissa worked as a clerk for Flint photographer Charles E. Baldwin in 1892. Fred’s Imlay City cabinet photographs included the Methodist Church, five men with a hoe, a shovel and a pitchfork, and a dressed up boy with his tricycle as well as ordinary portraits. The Balls were childless in 1900.

William was born January 25, 1841, at West Winfield, New York, the elder son of Abraham P. and Julia A. Ball. He enlisted as a corporal in Company E of the 152nd New York Infantry at Mohawk, New York, on September 22, 1862. He was hospitalized with jaundice in March and April of 1863, and with diarrhea in July of the same year. Later in July and August he was convalescent from a gun shot wound in his right shoulder. From February through April of 1864 he was back in Michigan on recruiting service. William was wounded again in the right shoulder at Petersburg, Virginia, during the third week of June in 1864. Following two months of treatment this wound still impaired the use of his right arm. He was furloughed for thirty days, and then transferred to the Third Company of the Second Battalion of the Veteran Reserve Corps. He was honorably discharged from the army at Washington, D. C., on July 6, 1865. Rosanna A. Byerns was born in New York in April of 1845, usually was called Rosa, and married William at Rome, New York, on September 12, 1864. Their sons were born in New York: Warren on August 31, 1868, and William on May 20, 1870. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Nellie on April 9, 1872, and Julia on October 27, 1877. William's Fowlerville gallery was opposite the post office according to some of his card mounts, and was listed at the corner of Grand River and Grand Avenue in 1878. He boarded with his brother Julius A. Ball at Albion in 1885. Some card mounts placed his gallery "... Over Watt & Cahoon's Store, SARANAC, MICH. Negatives Preserved. Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged. Views of Residences and Other Out of Door Work done on application." Rosa died at Washington on February 5, 1911, and in 1920 William was living there with the family of his daughter Nellie and her husband, William R. Baker.

Buffalo, New York, had a photographer at 66 Chicago Street in 1874 named George Bolsley. All four parents of the Balsleys emigrated from the Alsace-Lorraine region that was sometimes in France and sometimes in Germany. George was born in New York in June of 1853, the son of Henry and Mary Balsley. Josephine was born in Ontario in June of 1863, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Broglin. She claimed to be nineteen years old when they were married at Mildmay on November 24, 1879. They came to the United States in 1880, and their daughter Caroline was born in Detroit in December of 1884. George's name almost invariably was spelled "Bolsley" in directories of the 1880s as well as on some of his cabinet mounts. The Detroit galleries were on the ground floor at both 520 and 510 Michigan Avenue. George did some outdoor photography in the cabinet format during the 1890s, and mounted a 4 by 3 inch photograph of three men and a horse in front of the blacksmith shop at 1221 John R on a 6 by 4¾ card a few years later. Josephine was living in 1910, but by 1920 George was a widower providing a home for his daughter Carrie and two grandsons. He died in Detroit on April 26, 1939.

Silas J. Bancroft was born in Ohio in 1829 or 1830, Elizabeth Ann Bancroft (usually called Betsy or Betsey) was born in Michigan in January of 1836, and they married about 1851. Their sons Royal and Noble were born in Michigan between 1852 and 1855, and their daughter Elizabeth was born here in June of 1872. Silas as a Memphis dentist, and Ann as a photographer, were assessed at the same times. Silas was an Almont dentist in 1872. Betsey was providing a home for her daughter, her son-in-law, and her grandson in 1900. She was living alone in 1910.

George was the son of Hiram T. and Mary A. Bancroft, who both came from New York. He and his twin brother William were born in Michigan in June of 1857, and grew up on the family farm. Their sister Caroline was born three years earlier. Mary was born in Michigan to parents from New York in March of 1856, and she married George about 1881. Their children had the same names as their parents. George H. Bancroft was born in April of 1889, and Mary A. Bancroft was born in September of 1891. The senior George was not employed in 1910, but had income adequate to provide for himself and his family.

Robert was born in New York State on January 15, 1833, one of the sons of Daniel and Dimmas (Sweet) Bancroft. Julia was born there in December of 1837, and she married Robert in 1854 at Geneva, New York. They soon joined Robert's parents in Wisconsin. When he was drafted in 1863, Robert hired a substitute to take his place as a soldier, and then voluntarily went to the army camps as a photographer. At the end of the war he returned to Wisconsin for a short while, and then moved Julia and their 5-year-old daughter Anna to Traverse City, Michigan. He had purchased 122 acres at the mouth of Otter Creek, 25 miles west of Traverse City, for $600.00 in 1864. He retained this land while buying and selling other properties and operating a tintype and photograph gallery in Traverse City. In September of 1867 he advised prospective patrons to call soon, as he intended to close his daguerreian gallery early in October and leave the city. Apparently his plans changed, for again in February of 1869 he stated that he would remain in town only six weeks longer, and that those who wanted ambrotypes, photographs or anything in that line should call soon at his photograph gallery near Cutler's Hotel. Robert built a log cabin near Otter Creek 200 yards from Lake Michigan, and later built a barn and planted black locust trees and an apple orchard on one of the first homesteads in what was organized in 1873 as Lake Township of Benzie County. Years later, when the white pine in the area was being logged and a sawmill was being erected at the mouth of Otter Creek, he built a large dock out into Lake Michigan to implement lumber shipments. Since there were already Michigan postoffices named Otter Creek and Bancroft, in June of 1883 the settlement was finally named Aral. Robert built a new house of sawn lumber and siding and a general store. He sold lots along the south side of Aral's main street on which houses and stores were built, but retained the entire north side of the street except for the one-acre school ground which he deeded to the community in 1886. Robert was postmaster of Aral from 1888 until 1893, succeeded by Julia who was postmaster through 1897. Robert died at Aral in 1903. Julia died there in 1910. Their son Albert or Bertie inherited the property and lived there until 1922, when he was 45 and his was the last family to leave the area. The Sleeping Bear National Lakeshore now includes the site of Aral.

His parents came from New York and James was born in Michigan in May of 1837, second of the eight children of William and Jane Banks. Harriett E. Lawrence was born in Michigan in August of 1836, and she married James about 1862. Their children were born in Michigan: Addison in June of 1863, Myrtie in 1865 or early in 1866, Minnie in January of 1873, and Ethel in June of 1876. The two younger girls remained single and lived at home through 1920. Minnie was a school teacher and Ethel clerked for an optical company. Harriett's sister Emily was born in May of 1839, remained single, and became part of the Banks household before 1880. Harriett died, and Emily married James about 1908. 1

| Jex was born on October 24, 1824, on Wood Street in the Cheapside district of London, and was later sent to school in the village of Midhurst, halfway to the southern coast of England. His father, a man of considerable means, emigrated to the United States and purchased a farm a few miles north of Ann Arbor, Michigan, where he was joined by his wife and children early in 1834. One close friend of Jex at the Ann Arbor academy was Randolph Rogers, who was later a prominent sculptor. The first work which Jex found was selling the Ann Arbor Argus newspaper. In 1840 his father started a brewery and distillery in connection with a flour mill at Ann Arbor. Jex returned to England in 1841 and was sent to school at Ailsworth in Suffolk. There he met his future wife, Miss Martha Emma Brown, and saw some early daguerreotypes. He shared the wide spread excitement about the new invention, and studied the daguerreotype process closely. With his academic studies completed, he returned to Ann Arbor and learned the trade of brewing and distilling. His father died in 1844. Jex left his mother and his two sisters at Ann Arbor in 1845 and went to settle some family affairs in England. During his nine months there, Jex took instructions from the portrait photographer Mr. Egerton in the iodide of silver process by the method of Henry Fox Talbot, learned daguerreotyping at the Royal Polytechnic school, and attended the technical lectures of Professor Pepper. Back in the United States, Jex supervised the construction in New York of the first distillery in this country for making English gin. Emma Brown crossed the Atlantic to New York City, where she was met by Jex, and they were married there on June 12, 1846. They soon traveled to Ann Arbor, where Jex closed the family business, and then started a distillery at Clarkston. He did not really like this vocation, and moved on to open a dry goods store at Marshall. He accepted a daguerreotyping outfit in lieu of a fifty-dollar debt, and by 1849 was in the profession which would occupy him for the rest of his life. As he had been advised earlier by Professor Pepper, Jex began learning all that he could of the ramifications and applications of his new vocation, collecting all of the pamphlets, handbooks and periodical literature available dealing with photography. Through reading and practice he became proficient and well known. In 1851 Jex was deputized by the Sheriff of Wayne County to bring eight trustworthy men from Marshall and help to protect the prisoners and witnesses and assure the integrity of the Wayne County Jail in Detroit during the trial of the conspirators against the Michigan Central Railroad. After they were sentenced, he accompanied twelve of the prisoners to the State Prison at Jackson. He sent to London for a pair of projectors and presented the first magic lantern show ever seen in Michigan, projecting dissolving views and comic scenes from transparencies he himself had painted. He leased the old Detroit city hall for a week and had it filled every night with admiring crowds at 25 cents a head, and with children at half price. Early in 1853 he took charge of the renowned Whitney gallery at St. Paul, Minnesota. Much of his work there consisted of photographing Dakota Indians in their feathers and war paint, taking and finishing as many as 32 daguerreotypes in a day. An Indian would be paid the equivalent of ten cents for posing for a number of sittings, and the cased images were easily sold to tourists for two dollars each. Photographic journals printed articles by Jex in November of 1853, in February and November of 1854, and in June of 1858. Throughout the mid 1850s much of his free time was spent experimenting with collodion negatives on glass plates. During one attempt to improve the density, he inadvertently discovered what came to be called the ambrotype. He continued to practice all of the dry plate processes as they appeared in the journals. From 1860 until the advent of the commercial gelatine bromide dry plate in the early 1880s, he prepared and used collodion dry plate negatives for all of his outside work. Jex moved to Detroit and later began | 33 13 13 1111 311 33 13 1333 11113333 44 14 11 44 31 31 3333 66 3333 |     |

advertising his new rooms on Jefferson Avenue in August of 1860, offering to take every kind of ambrotype, 5 also imported, manufactured and sold photographic stock and material, of which he published a catalogue and price 5 individuals and groups, and he took views of public and private buildings on short notice. He sold photographs of 5 foreign and local celebrities and took card photographs by the hundred very cheap. Individual ambrotype portraits of 5 39 Sunday School teachers were taken early in 1861 by Jex and framed surrounding a larger ambrotype of their 5 retiring superintendent. He sold stereo views of Fort Wayne and the soldiers garrisoned there for fifty cents each, and 5 photographed picnics, pleasure excursions, military and other companies on short notice and at cheap rates. His 5 stereoscopic camera recorded several events associated with the departure of the First Regiment of Michigan 5 7 Volunteer Infantry for Washington in May of 1861 and their return in August at the expiration of their three month t 7 enlistment, as well as less newsworthy but historically significant scenes. Many of the glass negatives from which these 7 fifty cent stereographs were produced have been preserved in the Burton Historical Collection. Jex employed James F. 7 d McNulty as a photograph operator in 1862 and 1863, when he advertised as a “Photographic Printer & Publisher ... d

All kinds of Photographing, from the Smallest Portrait to THE LARGEST SIZE LANDSCAPE VIEW. Music, d
Engravings, and Other Works of Art Copied. LANDSCAPE VIEWS, PUBLIC BUILDINGS, CHURCHES, d
Monuments, Machinery, &c., Taken in any part of the State at short notice. Stereoscopic instantaneous pictures of d
Processions, Reviews, Pic-Nic Parties, Boating, &c. Particulat attention paid to the production of the ‘CARTE DE d VISITE’ and Vignette style, and all pictures from this Gallery being made on the best Paper, with pure Chemicals and d extreme care, are warranted not to turn yellow, spot or fade. J. J. BARDWELL, Photographic Artist.” Articles by Jex d 6 were printed in Photographic periodicals in January of 1860, in November of 1864, and in February and March of 6 1865. He published views of Detroit streets, churches and residences as cartes de visite, and used this format for the t 5 portraits which soldiers and civilians exchanged during the Civil War. His card and stereoscopic views of Elmwood 5 Cemetery and the public and commercial architecture of Detroit were augmented by views of special events: an ice 5 skating carnival in March of 1864, the public mourning for Lincoln in April of 1865 and the ruins left by a fire in May 5 of 1866. A patent had been granted to James A. Cutting in 1854 covering the use of bromides in photography and in 5 8
1866 agents had been attempting to negotiate licenses under this patent with eastern photographers, with some success. 8
When such agents came to Detroit, Jex advised that the patent was invalid, and a group of photographers formed the 3
Detroit Photographic Society to contest their claims. The patent was due to expire in July of 1868, and a legal battle 3 was shaping up in Philadelphia between those who proposed to extend the patent and others who questioned its 3 validity. Those opposed to the extension asked Jex to come to Philadelphia. He closed his gallery, since at the time he 3 employed no assistant, the Detroit Photographic Society paid his traveling expenses, and Jex took all of the pertinent 3 pamphlets, journals and other printed records he had accumulated during the early 1850s while heeding the advice of 3 Professor Pepper, along with a list of other books with content bearing upon the use of bromides. The evidence 3 8 became overwhelming that Cutting had not originated the use of bromides, and that his patent should not have been 8 granted. The patent examiner who had originally validated the patent acknowledged the error, and the extension was 8 refused. The leaders of the opposition to the extension credited Jex with furnishing most of the testimony and 8 information upon which their success was based. Some time later Jex was asked to testify at Chicago against the 8 3
“silver saving” patent, and was instrumental in the success of the opposition to this monopoly. The Philadelphia 3 4
Photographer published seven articles by Jex between July of 1868 and November of 1870. He was named vice 4 8 president for Michigan of the National Photographic Association during the convention at Philadelphia in December of 8 1868, and took an active part in some of the technical discussions during the NPA convention at Cleveland in the 8 summer of 1870. He photographed the old and new city halls of Detroit in August of 1871, was hired to photograph 5 8 property of the Michigan Central Railroad which had been damaged by the great Chicago fire in October of 1871, and 8 sent some of the resulting views to a photographic journal. Jex made stereo views of the dedication of the Soldiers’ 8 t and Sailors’ Monument in April of 1872, and of the ruins of the Advertiser & Tribune building one year later. More of t his articles were published in photographic magazines in December of 1873 and in April and May of 1874. He 6 advertised as a Stereoscopic, Landscape and Business Photographer in 1877. Detroit’s leading drygoods merchant, d Christopher R. Mabley, and bookkeeper Charles F. Littlefield were associated with Jex in the Bardwell Photo- d Engraving Company in 1878. They employed Seth Arca Whipple as a designer and Blanchard D. Whipple as an d engraver, and used an entirely photographic process to produce printing plates as replacements for woodcuts in d 5 printing advertisements and illustrations. Jex filed a patent application on April 4, 1879, and Patent Number 223,873 5 p was granted to him covering a Process of Autographic Printing on January 27, 1880. Belle Isle was a new city park p 5 when he was taking picturesque views there in the summer of 1879. He produced stereo views of the John J. Bagley 5 t funeral procession on Woodward Avenue in August of 1881. The Detroit Photographic Association was established in t d November of 1882 by a group of professional photographers who chose Jex as their president in 1883 and 1887. By d
July of 1893, no meetings had been held for several years, and the association was practically out of existence. Jex was 9 4 successful as a photographic artist, but not as a businessman. By 1887 he was indigent and his eyesight was failing. 4 0
Members of the Photographers’ Association of America provided what he considered to be substantial aid, including 0 an individual gift of fifty dollars from the president, Gustave Cramer. He was identified as a photo mechanical printer 0 m by one 1889 source. Articles by Jex were published in photographic annuals for 1888, 1889 and 1890, and by m 6 periodicals in December of 1887, August of 1889 and September of 1893. His retirement was announced in February 6 3 of 1893, but he continued to do a little photographic work as he felt able and presented magic lantern entertainments whenever opportunity offered. The gazetteer for 1893 identified his business as magic lanterns. He maintained his interest in lantern slide projection for forty years following his presentations from hand painted slides in the 1850s. His enthusiasm was shared by a group of competent amateur photographers who established the Detroit Lantern Club early in 1891 and continued into 1896. They met once a week at the Detroit Museum of Art. One special event in 1892 was the projection of thirty year old views of Detroit, undoubtedly taken by Jex, who was the "patron saint" of the club. During the Detroit convention of the Photographers' Association of America in August of 1895, Jex presented a stereopticon show of an exceptional set of colored slides. For this entertainment he was presented with a check for $110.00 and unanimously elected an honorary member of the association. More of his articles were printed in photographic periodicals in May and August of 1896, March of 1897 and July of 1898. Jex and Emma observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary in June of 1896. About that time an attempt was mounted by the Photographers' Association of America to raise funds to buy a home for the Bardwells, but response from the membership was poor. Three years later only enough money had been raised to pay their back rent, buy a cemetery plot for Emma, who died on May 27th, 1899, and dole out ten dollars a month to Jex while it lasted. He sent a dozen stereo views of Grosse Isle made from recently exposed negatives to a magazine in 1899, and made a lantern slide presentation to the Ohio-Michigan Photographers' Association in the summer of 1900. He was quite ill with the grip early in 1901, but recovered, and lived alone until his heart failed on December 14, 1902. Jex was recognized as the father of Scottish Rite Masonry in Detroit, had received financial support from the lodge for several years, and his funeral at the Masonic Temple and interment in Woodmere Cemetery next to Emma were conducted by the Masons. Two of his grandchildren had been identified as Jex Bardwell, Junior, and his sister in 1896, but the only survivors listed in the obituaries were Jex's daughter, Mrs. Julia Martin of Detroit, and his sister, Mrs. Chapelle of Holland, Michigan..

Ernest was born in Michigan in June of 1868, and in 1880 was living with his carpenter father, Joseph S. Barker. The proprietor of the gallery was listed as E. S. Barber, but “Barker” was printed on the photo mounts. Ernest probably occupied the Hamilton Street gallery between the tenancies of D. W. Smith and C. A. Beckmann. His cabinet photographs included full length studio portraits of members of the Saginaw Base Ball Club in uniform and views of store fronts. Nellie was born in New York State in March of 1874, and she married Ernest about 1897. Their son Bertram was born in New York about 1901. By 1920 Nellie was married to Orange T. Terry, and Bertram T. Barker was identified as his stepson.

George was born in 1844 at London, Ontario, the son of a British soldier sent to defend pioneer Canada. He was reputed to have made the first paper photographs of Niagara Falls, and soon was making the stereo views of the falls for which he became well known. He and Georgia Venilia Shipman were married on June 20, 1871, and had five children born between 1872 and 1889. George entered stereo views at photographic conventions beginning in 1871, added large format images in 1885, and dominated the scenic competitions through 1889. Barker’s Novelty Bazaar at Niagara Falls sold souvenirs as well as his stereographs, and pioneered seasonal Christmas merchandise. Beyond his hundreds of views of the falls, his stereo views included series depicting the Johnstown flood of 1889, the Sullivan-Kilrain fight, the St. Louis tornado, the Oil Creek disaster and Florida scenes taken during the winters of 1886, 1888 and 1891. George won marksmanship awards as a Corporal in the New York State Militia and was an avid hunter. He produced a series of deer and bear hunting views in which he sometimes was prominent. Some views were labeled “Deer Hunting in Michigan” and included “Our Camp on Britton Lake” and “Dragging In’ the deer” and Getting Supper ready” and “Sunday Morning in Camp.” Britton Lake is near the northern limits of Muskegon County thirteen miles from Lake Michigan and just south of Big Blue Lake. George was fifty years old when he died on November 27, 1894, and most of his estate of approximately $100,000 went to his eldest daughter. Underwood & Underwood purchased his stereographic negatives and published views from them for many years.

George was born at Deerfield, Massachusetts, on March 1, 1815, and his first wife, Wealthy (Tyler) Barker, was born on June 21, 1816. They married on September 7, 1835, and three of their five children died as infants. Their surviving children were born in New York: Lorenzo about 1839 and Eugenia in February of 1850. George moved his mercantile business from elsewhere in New York State to Italy Hollow in Yates County, where his first wife died in 1852. He moved again in 1853 to Battle Creek, Michigan, where he engaged in the daguerreotype business. In 1860 he had a 25-year-old wife named Mahalia. He advertised in May of 1865: "BARKER'S PREMIUM Ambrotype and Photograph GALLERY! Whereas, I am now prepared to execute all the various styles of Pictures, from Whole Sized Photograph down to the Beautiful Gem, ... I make no charge for stamps, no extra charge for making two Pictures on one Plate, and will make Cheaper and Better Pictures for the next six months, than are turned out at any other room in this village or county. Prices now reduced to the old standard before the war. Especial pains taken with children. Everybody is invited to call and examine specimens for themselves...." Such advertisements continued through December 8, 1865, and were replaced on December 15 by the ads of W. H. Houghtaling, who had purchased the business of G. W. Barker. Ads for Pruden & Barker first appeared on November 30, 1866. George was living in 1870 with his wife, 37-year-old Mary L. Barker, and her son, twelve-year-old John B. Sloat. He was living alone in Charlevoix in 1880, while Mary was still in St. Johns providing a home for her son and his wife. By 1884 George's son Lorenzo was editor and proprietor of the Reed City Clarion, and his daughter Eugenia was the wife of a Boyne City merchant. George promised "All Work Artistic, and Satisfaction Guaranteed." at Pewamo in 1890. Late in 1891, he was advertising in Reed City, 75 miles northwest of Pewamo: "PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY FOR SALE. An entire photographic outfit for sale cheap, consisting of cameras, burnishers, back-grounds, toning dishes, operating chairs, etc...."

Charles Barkume was born in Michigan in February of 1842, and he became a Detroit dealer in coal and wood. Mary was born in Canada in February of 1845, immigrated to the United States and married Charles about 1864. Henry was the eldest of their ten children, and was born in Michigan in July of 1866. He remained single and still was living with his parents in 1910, and with his widowed mother in 1920. His sister Stella was born in September of 1870 and became a dry goods manager and researcher for a department store. His parents came from New York, and Henry was born in Michigan in March of 1847, the only child of Charles T. and Margaret L. Barnard. Her parents came from Vermont and New York, Olive was born in Michigan in August of 1847, and she married Henry about 1870. Their daughter Lena and their son Lucius were born between 1870 and 1873, and their daughter Myra was born in 1881 or 1882. Henry's mother was post mistress of Wayne in 1880. "BAPTIST CHURCH, WAYNE, MICH. BARNARD PHOTO" and "D. U. R. STATION, WAYNE, MICH. BARNARD PHOTO" were lettered on the negatives from which some post card photographs were produced. Olive was a widow living at Detroit in 1930 with her elder daughter and her husband.

Delos was born in New York State in 1827 or early in 1828. His wife, Harriet, was born there two years later. He was an active stereographer from 1857 until 1875. He produced many stereo views including an "American Historical Series" of more than fifty views of Revolutionary War landmarks in the vicinity of Boston, a series of Niagara Falls and of Saratoga, New York, and a series of Washington, D.C. One stereo view with his distinctive "BARNUM, PHOTOGRAPHER" blind stamp has "Mackinaw Bay, Mich" written on its back, and shows the harbor at Mackinac Island. According to a man that has been collecting Barnum stereo views for many years, it is the only known view that Barnum took west of New York State.

Delos W. Barnum came from Vermont, Mrs. Lorraine Putnam (Ware) Barnum came from Massachusetts, and their son Frank was born in Iowa in August of 1860. Joseph A. Merritt emigrated from England and married Ann Boyes of Monterey, New York, on January 1, 1861. Following his discharge from the Union army in 1866 Joseph and his wife moved to Adrian, and their daughter Harriet Bell Merritt was born there on March 30, 1869. She married Frank in 1897, and gave birth to Katherine Josephine about 1905. William T. Barnum was Frank's associate in what was first called the Web Engraving Company, but was changed to the Barnum Engraving Company between 1893 and 1894. The engraving company and Will's photographic studio were both in the Underwood Block at 3 East Maumee Street on the northeast corner of Main Street. Frank was the mayor of Adrian in 1907, and died on October 26, 1923. His widow maintained the photo studio and the engraving company from 1924 through 1932 and lived in Adrian through 1941.

George was born in Ohio in March of 1864, the third child and first son of Buel F. and Emma E. Barnum. By the early 1870s his mother was married to the photographer Lemuel W. Thornton, and George soon had a young half-brother. Lemuel evidently trained George in photography, and then made him a partner in 1882. Photos on 2¼ by 1½ inch mounts with "BARNUM" printed below the image probably were taken by George in Ionia. George employed Louis K. Merrell, an experienced photographer, in the Ionia gallery. Malinda was born in Ohio in June of 1864, and she married George about 1890. Their children were born in Ohio: Malinda in March of 1893 and George in March of 1897. Something happened to their marriage, and by 1902 George was married to a lady named Elizabeth who was born in Missouri in 1876. Their children also were born in Ohio, Robert in 1905, Jerome in 1910, and Virginia in 1913.

| William was the third and youngest son of Delos W. and Lorraine Putnam (Ware) Barnum, and was born in Iowa in September of 1863. His brother Frank, the subject of an entry above, was born four years earlier. William's wife's father emigrated from England, her mother came from Vermont, and Elizabeth was born in Michigan in June of 1864. She married Will about 1888, and gave birth to Gordon in March of 1890. The location of Will's gallery was often listed as the Underwood Block on the northeast corner of Maumee and Main Streets, which included 1, 3 and 5 East Maumee Street. Throughout the 1890s, Will's advertising emphasized "BARNUM'S BABIES ..." and "Barnum's Specialty is BABIES PHOTOGRAPHS ..." with variations on this theme. From 1890 through 1895, Will was vice president of the amateur society called the Adrian Camera Club. He and Frank S. Barnum were proprietors of the Web Engraving Company in 1892 and 1893, and of the Barnum Engraving Company from 1894 until 1900. Both engraving companies were in the same Underwood Block as his gallery. "PHOTOGRAPHED BY W. T. BARNUM, JUN 17, 1898. Copies of this photo can be had at any time by writing to the Artist. PHOTOGRAPHS, from W. T. Barnum, Adrian, Mich," was stamped on the back of the 7 by 10 inch mount of a 6 by 8 photograph of 22 well dressed men standing and sitting on the steps of a brick and stone building. On the back of a similarly sized photograph of the tent encampment of the 31st Michigan Infantry Regiment at Camp Poland near Knoxville, Tennessee, was stamped: "Any one desiring a copy can obtain one or more by writing to the artist's permanent address and giving the number of the picture which you will find in the face of the photograph. W. T. Barnum, Photographer, Adrian, Mich." The number "196" was lettered on the front of the mount below the photographic image. Apparently Will accompanied or followed the soldiers to Tennessee when they were on their way to Cuba during the Spanish-American War. Frank S. Barnum succeeded his partnership with Will during the year 1900. Their widowed father was living with Will's family at this time. William and his son Gordon both were working in Chicago studios in 1910, and both were commercial photographers there in 1920 when William may have been the proprietor of a business. |           | 1   |

Herman was born in Australia to parents from the Prussian region of Germany in 1856 or early in 1857, a son of Adolph and Hannah Baron. His sister Fanny and brother Louis were born in Australia between 1859 and 1862, and he probably had older siblings. He was living in San Francisco with his parents and boarding in Cooperstown with his employer, the photographer Washington G. Smith. Herman came from New York in September of 1887 to take charge of the operating room of photographers Cadwallader & Swisher at Marietta, Ohio. Two months later he purchased the studio in partnership with a Mr. King, who had worked there for many years. Herman succeeded James G. Hill at 49 Monroe, and included the words "Hill Studio" on some of his early cabinet mounts which identified the location as 47 & 49 Monroe Avenue, as did some directories. He employed Charles J. Merz as a photo artist in 1893 and as a photo printer in 1894, Millie A. Ahlberg as a retoucher in 1896, and Harry E. Orchard as a photo printer in 1896. The Michigan Photographers' Association promoted a bill in 1897 making Sunday closing compulsory. Herman was spokesman for 27 Detroit photographers who organized to oppose this bill on the grounds that Sunday was the only day when a working man was free to be photographed. He was single in 1930, when he was lodging at the Strand Hotel. He had reached the age of 85 by the time he died in Detroit on February 25, 1942.

Adelbert was born in Michigan to parents from New York in 1852 or 1853, a son of Axtel T. and Lucretia N. Barr. His sister Mary and brother George were born here between 1846 and 1849, and his mother was gone by 1860. He was single and boarding with Henry and Clara A. Barr in 1880. Peter C. Reynders also was a principal of A. A. Barr & Company. They produced stereoscopic views of Grand Rapids, and claimed to be the only gallery in the city located on the second floor. Adelbert employed Edmund A. Edgerton as a photographer in 1886. In 1888 he employed Miss Delia O'Brien as a clerk and Charles J. Rogers as a photographer. He served as treasurer and librarian of the Grand Rapids Photographic Club in 1887. One A. A. Barr born in Michigan at about the right time was farming out in Los Angeles County in 1900. Mrs. E. M. Barr from Pennsylvania was his wife, and they had married about 1889.

His parents came from Virginia and Ohio and George was born in Michigan in 1861, last of the six children of Thomas W. and Orpha Ann Barr. His father enlisted at Sturgis in Company E of the Nineteenth Michigan Infantry on August 7, 1862, and was mustered into the regiment on September 5. He was killed in action at Resaca, Georgia, on May 15, 1864. By 1870 George's mother was married to Ira A. B. Gillespie, and he and three of his siblings were living with her on Ira's farm. George was single and boarding with the family of photographer Loren D. Austin in 1880, and probably was working in Loren's gallery. He moved his gallery two doors up the street in June of 1886, from opposite the Methodist Episcopal Church to across from the grocery of R. C. Parker. Jessie was born in New York State in 1865, and she married George about 1903 when she was 37 years old. Their daughter Virginia was born in Massachusetts in 1905.

Barr, Robert

Robert was born on September 16, 1850, the eldest of the eight children of Jane and Robert Barr, who was a carpenter at Glasgow, Scotland. In 1854 the family moved to Wallacetown, Ontario, and later to Windsor. Robert taught for a while in rural schools near Windsor before entering the Toronto Normal School, where he earned a teaching certificate. He then taught at Wallacetown and Walkerville and became principal of the Windsor Central School. By this time, he was an intermittent contributor of comic pieces to the Bothwell Advance and to the Toronto satirical magazine Grip. The Detroit Free Press accepted one of his humorous stories, and in 1876 hired him as a reporter. He later was promoted to columnist (using the pen name Luke Sharp) and then to exchange editor. With his wife Eva, Robert moved to England in 1881 to establish the London Edition of the Detroit Free Press. He was co-publisher, editor and a regular columnist of this highly successful weekly publication. It began as a large eight page six column paper catering to a broad public with American humor, interviews and travel articles when most English papers were aimed at an elite audience and had comparatively low circulation. The four to six weeks required for shipment of the stereotype matrices to London from Detroit, where much of the content of the London Edition had been published earlier, precluded any attempt to cover breaking news. The paper achieved a circulation of over 30,000 in its first year, changed to a sixteen page four column format in 1884, and was selling over 150,00 copies per week by 1890. From 1884 through 1890, Robert was listed in Detroit City Directories as an editor of the Detroit Free Press with his residence across the river in Walkerville, Ontario, and his article in The American Annual of Photography for 1888 was credited to Robert Barr (Luke Sharp), Detroit, Mich. All other sources indicate that, though he traveled the world extensively, Robert's home was in England from 1881 on. The 1888 article mentioned above, "About Bromide Paper," was a serious piece which disclosed that he used a 4 by 5 inch Scoville camera on his travels and did his own developing and printing. His 1890 article in The American Annual of Photography, "How to Make Things," was a humorous account of how his alpenstock tripod, portable developing box and other photographic inventions turned out to be expensive and useless. In 1892, Jerome K. Jerome and Robert founded the glossy, lavishly illustrated monthly magazine, The Idler, which enjoyed immediate success. Robert co-edited The Idler until 1895 and again from 1902 to 1911. The final London Edition of the Detroit Free Press was distributed on April 1, 1899. The first collection of Robert's stories was published in 1883 and his first two novels, one a mystery, were published in 1894. He was awarded an honorary Master of Arts degree by the University of Michigan in 1900. He wrote 29 novels, 11 of them mysteries or detective fiction and others science fiction, many short stories and several plays. His main contribution to detective fiction was The Triumphs of Eugene Valmont in 1906, which introduced a comic French sleuth who in some ways anticipated Agatha Christie's Hercule Poirot. Robert died at his home in Woldlingham, Surrey, on October 21, 1912, survived by a son, a daughter and a grandchild.

William was the second child of William and Annie (Lumsdon) Barron, who had emigrated in 1848 from Aberdeen, Scotland. He was born in November of 1849 at St. Marys, Ontario. Margaret Edwards was born in Canada in November of 1851, married William about 1875, and their children were born in Michigan: Alice and Stella in March of 1878 and Fred in May of 1880. William's brother John was a Sarnia photographer from 1866 until 1898, when he gave his whole attention to the music business that he began in 1882. The gallery at 21 Huron Avenue was over the store of H. Mears and later over the Chandler store. Some card photographs were from "Barron's Old Established PHOTO STUDIO Over People's Cash Store, No. 21 Huron Ave., Port Huron, Mich. Parties sending money by mail for additional copies need not send this picture, just the name. Address registered when the negative was taken." From 1883 until 1885, William maintained a second gallery over the First National Bank in Port Huron. He produced rather crude stereoscopic views of Port Huron homes and churches, and better ones of Huronia Beach and of the Black River. The studio at 418 Huron Avenue was opposite City Hall. William's son, Fred C. Barron, was identified as a photographer in 1900. William was also dealing in notions in from 1906 through 1908. His daughter Alice was his assistant photographer in 1910. Mrs. Margaret A. Barron, William's widow, was living in Port Huron in 1913 and in Zion City, Illinois, in 1920.

Julius Barrows was born in Connecticut in 1829, and he became an architect and builder. Eliza Hammond was born in England in March of 1830, immigrated to America, married Julius about 1852, and gave birth at Sturgis in September of 1853 to Ada, in August of 1854 to Frank, and in February of 1856 to Charles. Nellie was born in Indiana in January of 1864, married Charles about 1888, and gave birth to Leon in Indiana in February of 1890 and to Vera in Michigan in January of 1892. Charles and his family were living with his widowed mother in 1900. Many of Charles' cabinet mounts were from "... Nottawa Street, Sturgis, Mich." Later Sturgis imprints mention his ground floor studio. Howe, Indiana, is five miles due south of Sturgis. Nellie was a widow providing a home in Sturgis for her daughter in 1920.

Frank's father, Julius M. Barrows, was born in Connecticut, grew up in Cleveland, Ohio, and moved with his parents to Grand Rapids in 1849. His mother, Mrs. Eliza (Hammond) Barrows, emigrated from England and married Julius on September 2, 1849. They moved to Sturgis in 1851, where Julius became a respected architect and builder of homes, churches and hotels. Frank was born at Sturgis on August 5, 1854. Abbie Hanson was born in Massachusetts in February of 1854, married Frank on March 22, 1877, gave birth to Lulu (later called Louise) in Michigan in December of 1878, and gave birth to Raymond in Indiana in November of 1880. Frank called himself an Artist Photographer on some card mounts from the south side of Chicago Street, and included "1879" in some imprints from the north side. "F. R. Burrows ....." was printed on some of his Sturgis mounts. He was awarded a premium of $3.00 for his exhibit of photographs at the St. Joseph County Fair in the fall of 1878. His associate in 1880 was Francis Harry Clayton. Raymond was identified as a photographer in 1910, and probably was working in his father's Medford studio. Louise married a university professor, Alfred H. Schroff, and was providing a home in Eugene for her parents in 1920 and for her widowed mother in 1930.

John was born in Connecticut in 1834 or 1835, Sarah was born in Michigan three years later, and their children were born here: Asa in March of 1860, Diana Mary about 1864, and Burt in August of 1869. Tintypes as well as cartes de visite were produced in the Hastings Art Gallery. John was awarded the premium for the Best Collection of Photographs and Ambrotypes exhibited at the 1870 St. Joseph County Fair in Centreville. From negatives by Warren Wykes, he produced many pairs of prints which were tipped into the June issue of the 1871 Photographic Times to illustrate the use of Bigelow's Revolving Background. He incorporated the NPA monogram into some of his Mendon imprints, and he produced stereo views from Mendon, some of them published by Barrows & Son. He and his son, Asa, maintained an exhibit of their photographs in the Mendon post office, and made card photographs in Mendon for $1.50 per dozen. They were sometimes listed as just "Barrows & Son" in both Mendon and Grand Rapids. "Barrows' Photographic Landscapes" included stereoscopic views of the damage resulting from a break of the reservoir of the Grand Rapids water works in 1880, and more than 20 stereographs of the log jam and flood in Grand Rapids on July 26, 1883. John's wife, Mrs. Sarah Diana Barrows, worked in the gallery in 1880 and lived in Grand Rapids as his widow from 1888 through 1900.

Herman was born on July 15, 1893, at Carmi, Illinois, the only son of Fred Marx Barth and Sally J. Barth. His sister Alwina was born in February of 1897. Herman graduated from high school at Carmi. He enlisted in the Signal Corps when America entered World War I, and served in the American Expeditionary Force. Following the armistice he was assigned to compiling and titling all photographic war records at the Pathé plant near Paris for transfer to the Army War College archives at Washington, D. C., where he was discharged. He studied art at Paris, France, and in Detroit. Miriam was born in Michigan in 1897 or 1898, and their son Wallace and daughter Dolores were born here between 1925 and July of 1929. Herman spent eight years with the largest studio in Detroit before opening his first photographic studio in Ferndale. He moved into his own new, modern building in February of 1942, and occupied it until his retirement in 1964. Herman's portraits and commercial photographs brought him many honors. He served as president of the Commercial Photographers Association of Detroit and belonged to the Photographers' Association of America, the Professional Photographers of America, the Michigan Photographers Association, the Photographic Society of Michigan, the Detroit Portrait Photographers Association, the Ferndale Camera Club and the Early Engine Club. He broke a hip six weeks before his death on March 1, 1991, from complications following surgery. He had lived 97 years and was survived by his wife Betty, a son, a daughter, ten grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. Burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery at Detroit.

Joseph was born at Castle Sowerby in Cumberland County, England, on August 25, 1856, a son of Joseph and Mary Barwise. He immigrated in 1887. Her father came from New Jersey, her mother emigrated from Ireland, and Susan was born in Ohio on October 11, 1853. When she married Joseph about 1888, she brought along her four-year-old daughter Mary and her one-year-old son George from a previous marriage to a man named Myers. She and Joseph had four children born in Michigan: Josephine on December 27, 1888, William on July 15, 1890, Benjamin on March 29, 1892, and Phyllis Ruth on June 29, 1894. Joseph’s step-daughter, Mary C. Myers, was a photographer in 1900, probably in the Ground Floor Photograph Gallery advertised by Warner & Barwise. Joseph seems to have used a postcard portrait of himself in writing to a patron at Ypsilanti in May of 1905: “Dear Madam, - Your letter at hand. Will finish half-a-dozen for one dollar fifty cents. Yours Truly, J. Barwise.” Susan was a widow living in 1910 at Chicago, where she was providing a home for her son William and her daughter Ruth.

Clarence was born at Lansing on September 18, 1894, a son of Albert J. and Martha A. Baske, both natives of Germany. He had an older brother, a younger sister and two younger brothers, all born in Michigan. "Photo by BASKE" was scribed into or lettered upon the negatives of 5 by 7 photographs; one of children around a maypole and another of 21 men standing in front of the Michigan Power Company building which was erected in 1908. "C. Baske, 900 Seymour St., Lansing, Mich." was stamped on the back of the 8 by 10 inch mounts of these prints. "BASKE" was lettered on the negatives of postal photographs. Clarence was a tall single man of medium weight in 1917, with light blue eyes and light hair. He was still in bad shape from a severe fracture of his leg suffered the preceding year. Loraine was born in Ohio to Canadian parents in 1893. She married Clarence in 1917 and gave birth to Loraine a year later. Their daughters Joyce and Marili were born between 1920 and 1925, and their son Alan was born in May of 1927.

His parents came from New York and Ellsworth was born in Illinois in September of 1860, a son of John S. and Elsie P. Bass. Mr. and Mrs. James Connant came from New York and Vermont, and their daughter Jennie was born in Michigan in July of 1860. Jennie married Ellsworth about 1882, and their son Ivan was born in Michigan in May of 1884. Ellsworth's gallery was over the hardware store of M. E. Powers in 1897, and in September of 1898 was reported to have been sold to the Frost Brothers. To record the flood in Hudson on March 7, 1908, Ellsworth made post card photographs of the water works building, and others looking both north and south over the flooded district from the L S & M S Railroad viaduct. Descriptive legends were added to the negatives along with "... E. M. Bass the artist."

George was born at Wellsboro, Pennsylvania, on March 19, 1857, the son of John J. and Rebecca Bassett. His sister Coral was born three years later. He trained to be a painter at the Chicago Academy of Design before devoting himself to photography, and later spent six months as a photographic apprentice in Constantine. He worked as a photographer for J. W. Gehrig in Chicago as well as Simon L. Stein, George H. Hastings and P. H. Rose. Nellie was born in New York State in 1860 or early in 1861. She married George about 1877, and their daughter Bessie was born in 1878 or early in 1879. This marriage did not last. Emma was born in New Hampshire in March of 1856, and when she married George about 1888 she brought along her five-year-old daughter Mildred. George received the largest salary paid to an operator in the dry plate era while he was working for Dana. As a traveling demonstrator of Cramer dry plates he was a noted figure at photographic conventions. George managed the Indianapolis studio with sixteen employees, while Marceau lived in San Francisco. He was described as divorced in 1910, as single in 1920, and as a widower in 1930. He spent much of his later life lodging in large hotels.

Christopher was born at Matias Creek, Kentucky, on October 11, 1833, and was a school teacher before he entered the army. As an adult he was 5 feet 8 or 9 inches tall with a light complexion, blue eyes and dark hair, and weighed about 150 pounds. He enlisted in Company H of the 18th Michigan Volunteer Infantry at Dundee on August 8, 1862, and was mustered into service as a sergeant at Hillsdale on August 26. The regiment left for Cincinnati on September 18, 1862, and then marched through Kentucky saving cities and villages from being plundered by the Confederates. They engaged the enemy at Danville, Kentucky, on February 24, 1863. The 18th was ordered to Nashville, Tennessee, where the regiment served provost duty from November of 1863 until June of 1864. Christopher was discharged on November 2, 1863, so that he could accept a commission as First Lieutenant of Company E of the 14th United States Colored Troops. On January 25, 1864, he was promoted to Captain and transferred to Company K of the 17th United States Colored Troops, and on May 19, 1864, he became Captain of Company C of the 17th United States Colored Troops. On December 15, 1864, he was wounded in action on the right buttock and severely bruised on the lower back by an artillery shell on the first day of the Battle of Nashville. He was confined in the Nashville Officer's Hospital until January 7, 1865, when he was granted a month's leave of absence. He returned to duty on February 9, 1865. Several months later he tendered his resignation for personal reasons and ill health, and was honorably discharged at Nashville on June 22, 1865. "Bateman's Gallery, Adrian, Mich. FRANK P., FORD, Artist." was printed on some cartes de visite. Walter, the son of Christopher and his wife, Elizabeth Harriet Bateman, was born on June 16, 1869, and the couple had a second son almost seven years later. Christopher was Superintendent of Lenawee County Schools in 1870. He qualified for a partial disability pension in 1873, and succeeded in obtaining pension increases periodically. Elizabeth achieved distinction as an artist, but after seven months of paralysis, she died at the age of 55 in Toledo on August 7, 1892, and burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery. The following year Christopher married Lucy McNeil Bullard at Traverse City, and they made their home in Toledo for the next thirteen years. Lucy was 74 when she died at Toledo of arteriosclerosis and chronic nephritis on January 26, 1907, and burial was in Forest Cemetery. Mrs. Emma V. (Allen) Brown was 56 years old and had been widowed for eleven years, and Christopher was a 74 year old retiree when they married at Detroit on June 25, 1908. He died at San Antonio, Texas, of heart failure following acute indigestion on December 30, 1910, and his remains were returned for burial in Toledo's Woodlawn Cemetery. Emma drew a widow's pension into her early nineties, and died at Oil City, Pennsylvania, on January 18, 1944.

George was youngest of the nine children of Henry H. and Wealthy (Long) Bauder, and was born on July 4, 1844, at Henderson in Herkimer County, New York. He enlisted at Elmira as a private in Company G of the 35th New York Volunteer Infantry on May 7 and was enrolled on June 11, 1861. At the end of the year he was stricken with typhoid fever at Falls Church, Virginia. During the second battle of Bull Run on August 28, 1862, George was attempting to jump his horse over a stone wall in order to avoid capture. The horse fell, throwing him into the pommel of the saddle and crushing his left testicle, which was removed by a Confederate surgeon while George was a captive. He seems to have been exchanged, for he was serving as a clerk in a Washington hospital from October through December of 1862. Having enlisted for two years, George was honorably discharged on May 7 and was mustered out with his company at Elmira on June 5, 1863. He enlisted at Albany in Company H of the 13th New York Cavalry on July 23, 1863. From September 13 until February of 1864, and again in September and October of 1864, he was on detached service at Brigade Headquarters in Fairfax Court House or Falls Church, Virginia. On August 17, 1865, he was discharged at Washington, D. C. Miss Mariah Ford, born in England in 1848, and George were married on December 24, 1868, at her father's home near Belleville, Ontario, and later had at least one son. George probably came to Menominee about 1870, and Mariah followed him a few years later. "From G. W. BAUDER'S Photographic Parlors, Menominee, Mich. - Rooms open from 8 A.M. till 4 P.M. Cloudy weather makes no difference. - The Negative of this Picture is preserved. Duplicates 25 Cts. each." was printed on the backs of some card photographs. Some stereoscopic views were from "G. W. Bauder, PHOTOGRAPHER, Menominee, Mich., and Marinette, Wisconsin." George advertised his Marinette Art Gallery weekly in The Florence Mining News between January and June of 1881. He apparently was in the grocery business at some time, and also was proprietor of the North Star News for a while. George was elected Alderman from Marinette's Fifth Ward, but was defeated for re-election. A brother and his mother had mental problems, George was excitable and at times irrational, and could become inebriated from drinking two beers. On April 25, 1892, he was committed to the Northern Hospital for the Insane at Winnebago, Wisconsin, with Mariah as his guardian. George was paralyzed for ten days prior to his death on October 26, 1897. Burial was in Forest Hill Cemetery at Marinette. Mrs. Maria F. Bauder was listed as a Marinette photographer from 1885 until 1900, and was called a good photographer, but due to failing health she was obliged to rent out her gallery in 1898.

His father emigrated from Switzerland, his mother emigrated from Scotland, and Arthur was born in Michigan in May of 1876, last of the five children of Jacob and Isabella Baumgardner. Her father emigrated from Canada, her mother came from Ohio, Emma was born in Michigan in October of 1877, and she married Arthur about 1897. The Baumgardners were Lake Odessa neighbors of Rollin H. Stocoum in 1900. Arthur's purchase of the Lake Odessa gallery from Rollin was reported in the summer of 1901. Emma gave birth to Kenneth and Keith between 1901 and 1904, and in 1910 was raising them at Lake Odessa while carrying on a dress making business. She and Arthur still were married, but he was running a jewelry store in Chicago. Emma and Keith disappeared. Mrs. Christine Larsen and her nineteen-year-old single sister Jennie D. Johnson roomed next to Arthur in 1910. Christine was born in Wisconsin to Danish parents in 1884. By 1920 she and Arthur were married and raising his son Kenneth and her son James. She was a widow by 1930.

There is conflicting information about Frank's origins, but probably he was born in Canada of Scotch parentage on March 2, 1879, and became a United States citizen when his father was naturalized while Frank still was a minor. He was boarding in 1900 with the family of Mrs. Ellen Ellis, an English widow. Within a year he had married Martha Ellis, Ellen's daughter. Martha was born in Michigan about 1881, and she gave birth here to Virginia in the spring of 1906 and to Jane a decade later in November of 1917. Frank succeeded his former employer, John S. Foster, at 103 Michigan Avenue in 1908. He offered bromide and solar prints as well as photographic enlargements in 1911 and 1912. In 1918 he was a tall man with gray eyes and gray hair. Frank was the sole proprietor of the copying and enlarging companies except for the years 1929 and 1930, when John M. Koss was his partner.

George was born in Ohio on February 7, 1876, the son of Stephen G. and Sadie (later Sarah) E. Bayes. His father enlisted from Shirland, Illinois, as a private in Company G of the Sixth Wisconsin Infantry on May 31, 1861. He was discharged for disability on January 23, 1862. George became a tall slim man with blue eyes and brown hair, and he attended Ferris Institute at Big Rapids in 1894. He still was living with his parents in 1900, when they had a 26-year-old boarder called Edith Hilton described as a student of photography. For several months beginning in the autumn of 1900 the St. Louis and Canadian Photographer carried its own ad featuring a number of letters from satisfied subscribers. A complimentary letter from George was one of those quoted. Late in 1900 this magazine reproduced one of George's photographs entitled "The Bashful Girl," and commented that his lighting and shading were very good. Four years later they reproduced another portrait by George along with a critique by G. Hanmer Croughton: "I must congratulate Mr. Bayes ... on the old man's head now before me. It is in every respect of fine quality, the flesh tone is in admirable keeping with the silky white hair and beard, the face is full of sturdy character, which has not been spoiled by the retoucher's pencil. It is not microscopically sharp, nor is there anything fuzzy about it. The technical part of the work is excellent and the pictorial quality above the average." Mr. Croughton's criticism was not usually this positive. George was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905. Her parents may have been born in the United States, but Flossie (later Fawcetta and still later Mary J. F.) was born in Canada in 1879. She married George about 1903, and gave birth to Grace in 1905. Mrs. Sarah Bayes, the widowed mother of George, was sharing their Manton home in 1910 and 1920. "BAYES" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs along with "Swedish Lutheran Church, Gilbert, Mich." and "J. Larson's Store, Gilbert, Mich." and "Shippy School, 1910." Gilbert is three miles south and Shippy School was six miles northeast of Manton. "BAYES '15" was lettered on another postal negative taken at Manton on August 12, 1915. The backs of some photographs of card size on stock of post card weight were stamped: "Non-fading Print Finished by BAYES, The Photographer, Manton, Mich. Orders by Mail Promptly Executed." He was still copying and printing and using cards printed for the BAYES STUDIO in 1947.

They married about 1886, and had a daughter and a son born in Michigan between 1888 and 1891. While president of the Huron Photographic Society, Richard convened a meeting in Toronto on January 24, 1884, which resulted in the founding of the Photographic Association of Canada and his election as president of this new organization. Foster & Bayley made a high quality retouching fluid and sold it to other photographers. They exhibited seven bromide enlargements at the 1886 convention of the P A of C in Toronto, where Richard was re-elected to the Executive Committee. He contributed a letter on the permanence of bromide paper to The St. Louis Photographer late in 1886, and a paper entitled "Light and Shade" to the P A of C in the autumn of 1892. He advertised Strictly First-Class Work in 1893. "Hotel Loveridge, Fish Lake Bayley" was written beneath the photograph on a card mailed in December of 1905. Richard's wife, Mrs. Hester A. Bayley, also was enumerated as a photographer in 1920, and then succeeded him in Marcellus. |           |     |

His eight-year-old sister Mary also was part of this household. In maturity John was tall and slender with gray eyes and brown hair. He was known as Pete Baylis, and succeeded Frank B. LeClear as the Jackson manager of the LeClear Photo Company. According to LeClear family sources, Grace LeClear was owner of the LeClear Photo Company in Jackson following the 1914 death of her father, James M. LeClear. She and Pete Baylis never married, but scandalized the city by openly living together. They later moved to Albion. John was lodging in a Jackson hotel in 1918, and again in 1930. |           |     |

| Alexander was born at Montague, Ontario, on February 21, 1843, to Reverend John and Barbry Bain who had emigrated from Scotland. Amelia Walt (possibly Waltz) was born in New York State about 1850, and she married Alexander there about 1875. Their daughter Jennie was born in September of 1879, and their daughter Eleanor was born on August 28, 1886. Financial setbacks caused Alexander to leave the boat building business and join his younger brother in Grand Rapids. The James Bayne Company advertised as commercial photographers, printers and engravers, and survived for more than 25 years after Alexander left the firm. By 1900 he was a widower that boarded or roomed with a sequence of Grand Rapids families. From Grand Rapids Alexander returned to Clayton, New York, to operate a fuel boathouse for a while before moving to California. In 1920 he was living with his daughter Eleanor at Bakersfield. James was born in eastern Ontario on April 4, 1845, to Reverend John and Barbry Bain, both emigrants from Scotland. Sarah was born in New York State in 1846 or 1847, and she married James in the 1870s. They had no children until Bessie was born in June of 1889, then Alexander in November of 1891 and Earnest in April of 1896. By 1900 James was a widower raising these children on his own. The Bain Brothers published stereo views of the St. Lawrence River from Clayton. James was attracted to Grand Rapids by the possibilities of photographing furniture for sales catalogues, and about this time his wife was insisting upon changing their name to Bayne. Merrill, Bayne & Company published stereo views of Grand Rapids and of scenes along the G R & I Railroad and in the resort areas of Petoskey and Bay View. As well as the usual portraits, James produced stereo views of Grand Rapids, including some of the log jam and flooding in July of 1883. The James Bayne Company concentrated exclusively upon commercial photography, engraving and printing, and produced many souvenir brochures of Canadian and American cities and resort areas as well as the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo in 1901. One of these brochures published about 1902 was a souvenir of Mount Clemens, Michigan. A branch studio for manufacturing commercial photographs at 308-310 South New Jersey Street in Indianapolis, Indiana, was established in 1897. It was sold to Walter T. Woodworth, who had been a photographer with the company, and William H. Bass in 1899. The James Bayne Company advertised extensively, and by 1901 claimed the ability to reproduce any subject in natural colors. James was originally president and manager of the company, but after 1898 was listed only as the president. Back in 1880, he employed Adelbert A. Barr as a photographer and Miss Aggie Ackerman as a clerk. Miss Belle Mills was his retoucher in 1883. Edward C. Bennett worked for James as a photographer from 1883 until 1906, when he was made a vice president of the company. Edward held this position until his untimely death in 1910. Other employees were Charles D. Bennett, photo printer in 1886; Miss Laura West, retoucher from 1886 to 1888; and Spencer C. Chard, photo printer in 1888. James married Laura West in 1889, she gave birth to J. Alexander Bayne on November 19, 1890, and she died on June 11, 1891. James advertised nationally in 1890: "WANTED - First-class operator and retoucher; desirable and permanent situation for right man; none but first-class need apply..." More employees were: Miss Nellie C. Stebbins, retoucher for Bayne & Coss in 1891; Henry Geddes, laborer in 1891; Claude C. Denton, photo printer in 1891 and 1892; Max P. Thiele, photographer from 1894 to 1896; Bert H. Gardiner and Ralph DeMass, photographers in 1896; Walter J. Wait, engraver in 1898; Joseph Geelhoed, laborer in 1898, photographer from 1900 to 1913 and foreman from 1914 to 1916; L. Randall Hawkins, employee in 1899; and Leo S. Edison, photographer in 1900. Miss Florence E. West acted as clerk or bookkeeper for James from 1889 through 1900. Employees of the James Bayne Company included Clara E. West as retoucher, photographer or clerk from 1901 to 1922; Nellie Warren as binder, clerk or photographer from 1902 to 1913; Ferdinand E. Hornung as photographer from 1904 to 1913; Ulysses S. Valentine as draughtsman or artist from 1906 to 1908; Carl H. Gridley as photographer in 1908; Roy A. Phillips as photographer from 1909 to 1917; William G. C. Hubert as photographer in 1917; Charles L. Olson as photographer from 1917 to 1920 and Clarence W. Jones as clerk or photographer from 1919 until 1921. Alexander Bayne worked as a photographer in 1895 and 1896, and was vice president of the company from its formation in 1897 until 1906. Charles W. Brayman was the original secretary and treasurer of the company. Frederick C. West began as a photo printer in 1891, was a photographer from 1896 to 1898, replaced Brayman as secretary and treasurer in 1900, became vice president in 1917, and headed the company after the death of James Bayne. Simultaneously with his photography, James sometimes had other business interests. He was owner of the Valley City Soap Company in 1879, and proprietor of the Grand Rapids Roller Rink in 1885. From 1904 to 1906 he was vice president of an automobile sales agency. James died in Grand Rapids on November 28, 1924

Artemus was born in New York State in 1843 or 1844, eighth of the ten children of Artemus H. and Lorena Beach. Inez, his wife, was born in Pennsylvania six years later. Their daughter Sarah was born in Michigan about 1869. Artemus was enumerated as an artist in 1870, when he was boarding alone with a Grand Rapids family. In January of 1881 a fire started in the living quarters above the shop next door to the Bellevue photograph gallery. The fire progressed slowly enough that most of the photographic goods from the second floor and the groceries from the first floor could be removed and saved while men on the roof were throwing water provided by a bucket brigade on the adjacent burning building. Eventually the flames caught under the cornice and in the siding, and the gallery building also burned to the ground. "Beach & Walton, Photographers, Bay City." and "A. Beach, Photographer, Bay City, Mich." were printed on cabinet mounts using type from the same font. Artemus was enumerated as single in 1900, when he was boarding by himself with the family of a Bay City job printer.

Ferrin was born in Maine in 1854 or 1855. Evelyn Prall was born in Michigan to parents from New York in 1855 or 5 early in 1856, the daughter of David H. and Wealthy Prall. She and Ferrin married in the late 1870s and were living 5 with her parents in 1880. Van Buskirk & Beals advertised: "... We profess to do only first-class work and charge a fair 5 2 price. Examine our specimens, try us, prove or disprove our assertion that we turn out only the very best work. We 2 solicit only the patronage of respectable people, rich or poor, black or white, young or old, lean or fat. Gallery not 2 open for business on Sundays.... Successors to J. T. Randall..." Actually, Charles Van Buskirk had succeeded James 2 m T. Randall a year earlier. Several different colorfully lithographed trade cards in two series have survived which carry m t the words: "BEALS, PHOTOGRAPHER, Cor. Genesee & Cass Streets, East Saginaw." 325 Genesee Avenue was at t s the corner of Cass Street. Ferrin's new rooms on Jefferson Street opened on February 2, 1883, with an exhibition of s 3 photographic and India-ink pictures, and were described as one of the most complete outfits and the most elegant 3 photographic parlors in this section of the State. He became engaged in a price war, and dropped his cabinet photos to 3 6 $.25 per dozen. Ferrin sold his interest in the East Saginaw gallery and went west for his health, which was reported 6 4 to be much improved early in 1884. Mrs. Evelyn P. Beals was a dressmaker in East Saginaw in 1886 and 1887, and 4 s was identified as Ferrin's widow in 1887. s

His parents came from Massachusetts, and Ferris was born in New York State in 1852 or 1853. The Beals Brothers gallery was at the northwest corner of Genesee Avenue and Cass Street in 1878. Number 325 Genesee Avenue was at the same intersection. Ferris was living by himself in a boarding house in 1880. In May of 1881 Ferrin was reported to have sold his interest in the business to Ferris with the intent of leaving East Saginaw. Two weeks later his decision to stay was announced with gratification, leaving no doubt that Ferrin was considered to be the star of the partnership.

His parents emigrated from England, and Lewis was born in New York in 1844 or 1845. From the time he was nine years old until he enlisted in the army he lived in the home of Jacob Neff at Livonia, New York. He was enrolled at Aurora, New York, as a private in Company A of the 23rd New York Cavalry on December 23, 1862. During the Tarboro Raid late in July of 1863 as his horse was leaping a ditch, Lewis was injured by being thrown into the pommel of his saddle. He was treated for varicocele and piles for two months in a hospital at New Bern, North Carolina, and on his return to camp was permanently excused from mounted duty and relegated to assisting in the commissary department. On September 29, 1864, he was furloughed for 30 days, but he overstayed the furlough by 21 days, returning on November 20. He was mustered out of the army with his company on July 22, 1865, at Rollin, North Carolina. Orzelia D. Smith was born on September 2, 1853, to Dexter and Phylura (Gardner) Smith and was living at Plainwell, Michigan, prior to her marriage there to Lewis on April 14, 1875. Their daughter Mary was born October 5, 1876, their daughter Iola May was born May 9, 1881, and their son Merwin was born August 25, 1885. Lewis produced stereo views of Plainwell. His locating at Saugatuck was reported in the summer of 1885, about the time he applied for an Invalid Pension. Piles and the injury to his scrotum had troubled him since he left the army, and by late in 1890 he was wholly disabled. He and Orzelia did not live together during his last five years. Lewis was pensioned at $12.00 per month at the time of his death from spastic paraplegia at the Soldiers' Home in California. Orzelia lived in Chicago, California and Michigan, and died of cancer and senility at Duluth, Minnesota, on April 18, 1937.

His parents came from New York, and Grenville was born in Northfield Township of Summit County, Ohio, on November 4, 1841, a son of Livingston E. and Nancy M. Beardsley. His brother Livingston was two years older. Grenville was a 5 foot 9½ inch student with a light complexion, hazel eyes and brown hair when he enlisted as a private in Company J of the 19th Ohio Infantry at Ashtabula on April 27, 1861. He was honorably discharged at Ashtabula, Ohio, on either July 31 or August 30, 1861. Miss Mary Elizabeth Clark was born in Pennsylvania in February of 1849, and married Grenville at Coopersville on October 1, 1867. Their daughter Bessie was born on July 24, 1868, and their son Frank was born on November 9, 1870. Grenville was a railroad Freight agent at Ovid in 1870, and a railroad station agent at Owosso in 1880. Cassey & Beardsley employed DeForest F. Gibson as a photographer. "G. S. Beardsley, Photographer, Corunna, Mich. - Laingsburg, Mich." was printed on some cabinet mounts, and similar ones did not mention Laingsburg. "G. S. Beardsley, Photographer, Laingsburg, Mich," was printed on the front of some card mounts, while only "Beardsley" was printed on the backs of others. At Charlotte, Grenville moved into the ground floor gallery of Alonzo M. Cheney, who had relocated to Lansing. "G. S. Bradley's Ground Floor Gallery, Charlotte, Mich." was printed in three different ways on the backs of 2 3/8 by 1 ½ inch photograph mounts. In 1899 Grenville advertised: "Our Specialty - Fine PHOTOGRAPHS." His wife was enumerated as a retoucher in 1900. His purchase of the Fort Dodge gallery from G. L. Hostetter was reported in March of 1905, and his sale of the same gallery to H. G. Hemmen was reported two months later. Grenville was a widower by 1910. He applied for a veteran's pension in 1911, and was receiving $18.00 per month when he died on March 4, 1914.

| Charles was born in Michigan of German parentage on May 2, 1877, the eldest child of Louis and Carrie Beck. His brother Louis was born two years later. In maturity, Charles was medium sized with brown eyes and black hair. Alvina was born in Germany in about 1882, and she was brought to America in 1885. She married Charles about 1901, and she gave birth to Margarete, Elmer and Carlene in Michigan between 1902 and 1913. The family was living in Jackson at 216 South Dwight Street in 1918. " Beck's Photo Service , JACKSON, MICH." was printed below the opening in a 4¼ by 3¼ inch mount revealing a photograph of a boy with his very skinny tricycle. "C. BECK" was lettered on the negative of a post card photograph showing three men holding a pole from which were suspended five fish; "One Half Days Catch of Pike at Devils Lake, Mich. Weight 40 lbs." Devils Lake is twenty miles south of Jackson, and the card was postmarked in November of 1911. "PHOTO BY CHAS. L. BECK" was lettered on the negative of an 8 by 10 inch photo of 69 employees of the Hayes Wheel Company which was affixed to a 12 by 14 commercial mount. |           | 1 21 211 22 ttt 3tt |

John F. Beck was born in Germany in January of 1842, was brought to America when he was five years old and later became a carpenter. Her parents emigrated from Germany, Amelia was born in Michigan in May of 1846, she married John about 1867, and they proceeded to have five children. Gustav was their third child, was born in Michigan on July 20, 1874, and became a photographer. Marie was born in Michigan in 1891, and she married Gustav about 1912. Their son Robert was born in 1914, their daughter Lila was born in July of 1918, and their daughter Shirley was born in 1920 or early in 1921. Gustav advertised locally in September of 1904: “Progressive People Patronize Prominent PHOTOGRAPHERS Preferring Photographs Properly Produced. Quality is remembered long after price is forgotten....” He was dealing in frames as well as photography early in 1908. “BECK PHOTO” and “ALTENHEIM, MONROE, MICH.” were scribed into the negative of a postal photograph produced about 1910. Gustav served as president of the Ohio-Michigan Photographers Association in 1912. He was a stout man with brown eyes and black hair in 1918. He advertised in 1923 and 1927 as a “Portrait and Commercial Photographer. Picture Framing – KODAK Finishing – Framed Pictures....”

His parents emigrated from the Prussian region of Germany and Charles was born in New York State in July of 1864, first of the three children of Charles and Caroline Beckman. His siblings were born in New York State: Amelia about 1868, and Hugo in January of 1871. His father died, and his mother married George Thrasher about 1873. She gave birth to Walter Trasher about 1875, to Caroline (later Carrie) Thrasher in April of 1877, and to Josephine J. Thrasher in January of 1883. Charles was known as Charles A. Thrasher throughout the 1880s, but he reverted to his Beckman surname by 1890. The name was spelled "Beckman" on his earliest cabinet mounts and in some other sources, but was spelled as shown here on all other mounts and in most directories. Her parents emigrated from Germany and Amalie Scheib was born in Michigan in February of 1867, second of the three children of William F. and Theresa (Lange) Scheib. She married Charles about 1889 and their children were born in Saginaw: Clarence in June of 1890, Alma in February of 1892, and Julius in February of 1895. The designations "east side" and "west side" were used for a few years after their consolidation to indicate the former East Saginaw and Saginaw City. Forty "Snap shots of Saginaw and Vicinity" by Charles were reproduced in 1896 on a page of an atlas of Saginaw County. The Beckmann Brothers were awarded third prize in the Interior Class at the 1899 convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Celeron on Chautauqua Lake, New York. Their half-sister Carrie worked for the Beckmann Brothers as a clerk in 1900. The Beckmann Brothers provided seven of the 32 photographs reproduced in the commemorative booklet "Souvenir of SAGINAW'S GREATEST FLOOD, March – April, 1904." When the annual convention of the Professional Photographers Society of Michigan met in Saginaw in March of 1912, Charles was co-host with Charles E. White of a banquet and smoker at the Elks' Temple on the evening of the 19th, and the convention met in the Beckmann studio on the 20th. Mrs. Amalie Beckmann, the widow of Charles, was living in Saginaw in 1927.

His parents emigrated from the Prussian region of Germany and Hugo was born in New York State in January of 1871, last of the three children of Charles and Caroline Beckman. His father died, his mother married George Thrasher about 1873, and Hugo soon had a half-brother and two half-sisters. Hugo was known as Hugo H. Thrasher in the 1880s, but he reverted to his Beckman surname by 1890. The name was spelled "Beckman" in some census reports, but was spelled as shown here on all Beckmann Brothers mounts and in most directories. In 1900 Hugo was living with his mother and her second husband, George Thrasher, along with their daughters Caroline and Josephine born between 1877 and 1883. The Michigan Photographers Association held its fourth annual convention at Grand Rapids on February 1, 1899, and the Beckmann Brothers were there awarded the first prize in Class E, Landscapes. They were awarded a third place diploma for the interior photographs which they exhibited at the 1899 convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Celeron on Chautauqua Lake, New York. Both Hugo and Charles were active members of the PA of A in 1905. Hugo was elected treasurer of the Professional Photographers Association of Saginaw in December of 1906. The Beckmann Brothers studio was in the Hamilton Square Building in 1909 and 1910 according to local directories. In 1920 Hugo was living with his widowed mother and her daughter Caroline.

His father came from New York and Julius was born in Saginaw on February 15, 1895, last of the three children of Charles A. and Amelia L. Beckmann. He became a medium sized man with blue eyes and blonde hair. He was inducted into the army on May 13, 1918, and he received his basic training at Camp Custer. He served in the 172nd Field Artillery Brigade and did not get overseas. He was demobilized and honorably discharged on December 31, 1918. He boarded with his parents from 1919 through 1924, and later with his mother before inheriting the family home. He still was single in 1930, when he was providing a home for his 87-year-old maternal grandmother, Mrs. Theresa Scheib.

Muskegon PHOTOGRAPHER in the Occidental Hotel ..... 1932-1952 2
Muskegon PHOTOGRAPHER in the Terminal Arcade ..... 1953-1967 2
- Enoch was born to Swedish parents in Muskegon on May 12, 1882, the eldest child of Peter and Johanna M. Beckquist. He worked as a newsboy, in a keg factory and at lumbering before hiring into the Amazon Knitting Company and working up to assistant bookkeeper. A 2 by 2 inch pinhole camera he won in 1897 by selling magazine subscriptions first interested him in photography. He soon acquired a better camera, and by the time he married 18-year-old Miss Lillian Belle Clark in 1902 he was taking photographs of lasting interest. Lillian was born in Michigan, as were their son Paul and daughter Virginia between 1904 and 1909. Beckquist & Reid succeeded the photo supply firm of James Hamilton, and Enoch added a photography studio to the business. Eight by ten inch commercial mounts blind stamped “B & R, 17 FIRST ST., MUSKEGON, MICH.” carried photographic prints produced by Beckquist & Reid, possibly from the negatives of others. “PHOTO TAKEN BY ENOCH BECKQUIST, MUSKEGON, MICH.” was stamped on the back of 6 ½ by 8 ½ plain gray mounts; one with a photograph of a handcuffed and bleary-eyed criminal between two large policemen. One of the officers had a truncheon in one hand and a shoulder of the criminal’s coat in the other. In a companion photo, the same policeman was standing in front of a turnstile marked “This Way Out.” Enoch was a short man with a medium build, blue eyes and brown hair in 1918. His wife did all of his color, and his son Paul worked in the studio until he moved to California. His daughter Virginia became a singer with the civic opera. The Beckquist Photo Supply House was listed under the PHOTOGRAPHER classification of local directories in 1926 and 1928. “Beckquist’s 10308” and “Beckquist 13299” and similar notes were included in the legends lettered on negatives of post card photos into the 1940s. The Muskegon Professional Photographers’ Association honored Enoch with a trophy in May of 1957 that recognized his 75th birthday and his 50th anniversary as a professional photographer. Group pictures were the specialty of the Beckquist Camera Shop and Studio in the 1960s. He became recognized as the oldest professional photographer still working in Michigan, kept the shop open from 9 until 5:30 and was proud to offer three-hour portrait service. He donated a collection of Muskegon views to the Muskegon County Museum in September of 1963, including prints from negatives he had exposed in 1902. His wife died in 1965, and in September of 1967 his daughter talked him into retiring and moving to her Florida home. He was a resident of the Elks National Home at Bedford, Virginia, at the time of his death on November 20, 1970. Enoch was survived by his son and daughter, two grand-children and two great grandchildren. Interment was in Oakwood Cemetery at Muskegon.

Charles was born in Michigan in September of 1875, second of the three sons of Henry and Josephine M. Beckwith. Early and late in his life he was called "Earl" but during his middle years he was called "Charles." In maturity he was tall with blue eyes and gray hair. Lillian was born here in December of 1876, and she married Charles about 1896. Their son Frederick was born early in 1903, and their daughter Josephine was born in 1905. "C. E. BECKWITH, NORVELL, MICH." was printed on the post card backs of photographs of Norvell, of the Raisin River and of nearby Wolf Lake. "Beckwith" or "Photo by E. Beckwith" or "Copyright 1913 By C. E. Beckwith" was lettered on the negatives of similar postal photos, and captions were lettered on many of the negatives in a distinctive hand which could be recognized on other views which lacked positive identification of the photographer. Some of these captions included numbers such as 859, 902, 908, 2104 and 2267, and others included dates such as August 18, 1910, August 20, 1911, September 5, 1911, and May 20, 1912. One view of Exchange Street in Norvell was produced with and without a hot air balloon in the sky. "C. E. BECKWITH, Photo Views and Landscapes, Norvell, Mich." was stamped on the back of other photographs. One collection of hundreds of Beckwith post cards and unmounted photographs of the same size remained together. It was primarily focused upon farming operations: raising farm animals and planting, growing and harvesting grains, vegetables and fruits, but it included pictures of the children and adults of the family. Charles probably took pictures on the Norvell Township farms of Beckwith relatives, as well as on his own farm.

Edwin was born in Ohio early in 1857, eldest of the three sons of the physician E. C. Beckwith and his wife Frances. Kate was born in Ohio in March of 1859, and she married Edwin about 1880. Their daughter Alice was born in Pennsylvania in February of 1882, and their other children were born in Michigan: Bertha in May of 1886, Raymond in October of 1887, and Mary in April of 1890. Edwin filed an application for a patent on a Photographic Light-Screen on May 26, 1900, with claims about a graded light filter or screen for photographic cameras, and was issued Patent Number 714,356 on November 25, 1902. He filed another patent application on Graded Photographic Film on May 13, 1903, with claims covering an actinic surface graded in sensitiveness from one portion to another and an orthochromatic version of such a surface, and was granted Patent Number 749,893 on January 19, 1904. Kate was a widow by 1930, when she was living with the family of her eldest daughter in Urbana, Illinois.

Harry was born in Missouri in August of 1879, and his sister was born in Michigan in July of 1892. Their mother, Bessie, married for the second time a year or two later, and the children took the surname of their stepfather, foundry superintendent Arthur K. Beckwith. Early in November of 1911, Harry relocated his studio from the Oak Street home of his parents to the rear of Dr. D. E. Squires' office on the second floor at 234 South Front Street. Harry's job in the hospital was scrubbing (probably the floors) like half of the inmates that worked. The others worked in the kitchen or dining rooms, swept, or ran errands, but three quarters of the inmates were too incapacitated to have assignments.

He was sometimes identified as Alvah or Andrew J. Beebe, and was born in September of 1841 at Parma in Monroe County, New York, the son of Joseph and Marietta Beebe. He was 5 feet 9 ½ inches tall with a ruddy complexion, dark hair and blue eyes when enrolled as a private in Company E of the First Michigan Cavalry at Hudson on August 15, 1861. He was hospitalized with typhoid fever at the Navy Yard in Washington, D.C., from November 12 to December 7, 1861. Still weak from the fever, he first experienced the rheumatism which troubled him for the rest of his life on a march from Frederick City, Maryland, to Harpers Ferry, Virginia, in February of 1862. He re-enlisted as a veteran volunteer on December 20, 1863, and deserted at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, on July 6, 1865. The charge of desertion was removed from his military record twenty years later. At Hickory Corners on October 26, 1875, he married the 26-year-old eldest daughter of Robert and Susan (Harkness) Marshall, Miss Susan Marshall. Susan gave birth to Marcia in February of 1879, Florence in September of 1880, and Belva in January of 1884. Alva's first application for an Invalid Pension in January of 1890 was witnessed by his recent partner, Emanuel J. Feighner. By April of 1905 Alva was so disabled that he was unable to leave his home. His pension was increased to $30.00 per month in 1906, and he died of a cerebral failure on March 13, 1908. Susan died in 1923. Both burials were in Nashville's Lakeview Cemetery.

His father came from Michigan and Earl was born in Ohio on August 25, 1881, first of the six children of Alby J. (later Cauniff) and Dora Beebe. His sister Ella was born in Ohio in November of 1883, but his four other siblings were born in Michigan between 1886 and 1896. Earl became a medium sized man with blue eyes and black hair. "PHOTO BY EARL BEEBE, HASLETT PARK, MICH." was printed or stamped on the back of eight by six inch gray mounts for five and a half by four inch photographs. One of these photos was of a middle-aged nurse seated with an open book in her lap contemplating some of her medical paraphernalia on a small table beside her and at her feet. The name of the post office at Haslett Park in Meridian Township was shortened to Haslett in 1895, but local people seem to have continued to call the village Haslett Park for several additional years. Earl was living at Lansing in 1910, 1918 and 1920 with the family of his sister Ella and her husband, Harry Leavenworth. Olive was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in 1875 or early in 1876, and she married Earl late in 1920 or in 1921. She still was keeping house for him in 1945.

Edward was born in Kalkaska to David Porter and Ellen Mary (Ross) Beebe on August 13, 1871. His father was sheriff of Kalkaska County at one time. Miss Lottie Probasco was born in New York State in December of 1870, and she married Edward in 1893. Their son Glenn was born in Michigan in May of 1894, and their daughter Myra was born here in December of 1895. Edward was superintendent of the South Boardman Schools before he took up photography as a profession. He was a prolific maker of post card photographs depicting the lumbering industry and the towns it spawned in the northwestern portion of Michigan's lower peninsula. He photographed in and around Alba, Alden, Antrim, Bellaire, Central Lake, Clam Lake, Cold Creek, Comfort, Eastport, Elk Rapids, Ellsworth, Helena, Kewadin, Mancelona, South Milton, Torch Lake and the Torch River in Antrim County; Honor and Thompsonville in Benzie County; Beaver Island, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Charlevoix, East Jordan, High Island, St. James and Walloon Lake in Charlevoix County; Hardgrove in Crawford County; Alanson, Conway, Ely, Larks, Oden and Pellston in Emmet County; Elk Lake, Fife Lake, Mable and Williamsburg in Grand Traverse County; Deibert, Diamond City, Kalkaska, Rapid City, Rugg, Sharon, Sigma, South Boardman, Spencer and Westwood in Kalkaska County; Crescent, Lake Leelanau, Leland, North Manitou Island, Peshawbestown, Provemont and Suttons Bay in Leelanau County; Jennings, Lake City, Merritt, Moorestown, Morey, Naples and Stittsville in Missaukee County; Waters in Otsego County, and Michelson in Roscommon County. He went south to photograph at Clarksville in Ionia County and at Covert in Van Buren County, and crossed the straits to photograph on Drummond Island in Chippewa County and at Dollarville and Newberry in Luce County. "Beebe" and later "B.B." were lettered on the negatives used to produce thousands of post cards, many of them postmarked between 1906 and 1921. Beebe & Fowler produced similar postal photos of scenes in or near Alba, Bellaire, Elk Rapids, Ellsworth and Mancelona in Antrim County, and in Grant, 120 miles south of Elk Rapids in Newaygo County, mostly postmarked in 1914 or 1915. They lettered "B.+F." on the Bellaire negatives. "Beebe-Blair" was lettered on the negatives of postal views of Alba and of Waters in Otsego County, one showing a 1908 champion baseball team and others postmarked in 1909. "Beebe-I.D.S." was lettered on the negatives of a series of cards portraying the progress of a big fire in Lake City on April 22, 1911. "Beebe-Sanders" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs of Lake City and Merritt in Missaukee County, some postmarked in 1912. Edward may have printed and distributed cards made from negatives exposed by others. He died at Detroit on February 28, 1945. For much more information about Edward, see the book by Jack Hobey.

Harry was born at Hartford, Connecticut, on September 6, 1866. He and Miss Della Brown were married in 1894 at Pasadena, California. They came to Kalamazoo in the fall of 1896, where Harry succeeded Thomas E. Wood in the studio that Wood had established nine years earlier. Della gave birth to Zella in December of 1897, and to Helen in July of 1899. On September 8, 1900, Harry died suddenly of appendicitis leaving his wife with two daughters under three years of age. His widow advertised nationally late in 1900: "FOR SALE - Leading studio in city of 30,000; worth $3000; on account of the death of the proprietor, would sell at a great bargain to settle estate. For particulars address Mrs. Della N. Beebe, Kalamazoo, Mich."

W. Stewart, as he was listed consistently after 1881, was born in Michigan in June of 1856 to James A. and Clarissa Beebe. His father was a grocery merchant, and both of his parents were born in New York State. His older brother Clarence may not have lived to maturity, but his younger brother Charles survived. Emogene (often called Emma) was born in Michigan to parents from New York in May of 1856. She and Stewart were married when they were 24 years old, and they never had children. Stewart's "Central Art Gallery" or "Popular Central Art Gallery" was mentioned on many card photograph mounts and on some early cabinet mounts, and at one time it was opposite the National Hotel. No further information about Horsman has been found, but Stewart's other partners were C. S. Kingsley, Stanley Jaffe, and Louis K. Merell. Some cabinet mounts were over-printed with "W. S. Beebe" so as to obliterate the "Jaffe & Jordan" originally printed on the mounts. Efforts to control a winter fire in a two-story building are shown on an 1890s cabinet mount from his ground floor gallery. He and his wife probably observed their golden anniversary at Owosso in 1930.

Robert, like his parents, was a native of Illinois and was born on December 5, 1884. Something happened to his mother and his father, Albert Beecher, married an older lady named Lucy about 1892. Her father came from New York and Beatrice Ella Gould was born in Michigan in 1890 to Elbert and Lillian Gould. She married Robert about 1913 and gave birth to Beth in May of 1917. Robert's height and weight were medium in 1918, and he had brown eyes and dark hair. Beatrice died prior to 1930, when Robert was rooming in Detroit with an older couple and Beth was living in California with her maternal grandparents. By 1931 Robert was married to a lady named Pearl.

Earl was born at Traverse City on August 19, 1892, last of the four children of Tremont and Emma (Fuller) Beeman, who were natives of Ohio. His forty acre farm was in the northwest corner of Section 24 in Joyfield Township, four miles south and one mile east of Benzonia. He entered the army at Columbus Barracks, Ohio, on May 23, 1917, and after basic training was assigned to Company L of the 19th Infantry. He served at Fort Sam Houston and Camp Travis in Texas, and was promoted to private first class on April 17, 1918, and to corporal on September 9, 1918. He was demobilized and honorably discharged at Camp Custer on January 28, 1919, when he returned to Benzonia and became a sailor. About 1921 Earl married Anna, who was born in North Dakota in 1893 or early in 1894 to Norwegian parents.

S. Beer exhibited a frame of very fine stereographs at the 1867 International Exposition in Paris, France. He specialized in stereo views of the interior of factories, warerooms, music halls and other buildings, and achieved great depth of field and definition without using artificial light. His equipment and methods were described in some detail by a photographic journal. "S. Beer. Grand Rapids view" was written in script about 1870 on the yellow backs of good stereo views of the business section with a prominent horse car, and looking across the Grand River toward warehouses with many logs in the river and the long covered bridge at one side. From 564 and then 481 Broadway he produced a series of views of Lake Champlain and Lake George, New York. On the label for this series he was a "PUBLISHER OF STEREOSCOPIC VIEWS & CARTES DE VISITE.... Orders for photographing Buildings, Interiors, Parlors, Engines, Monuments, Stores, Fine Sculpture, and for copying in any size, executed promptly, and in an improved and most tasteful style. George was born in Sebewa Township to a mother from Ohio on June 9, 1888. He was living in 1900 and 1910 on the farm of his maternal grandparents, Andrew (later Oren L.) and Julia Franks. George became a medium sized man with grey eyes and light brown hair. "PHO., GEORGE BEERS, PORTLAND, MICH." was lettered on a negative from which post card photographs were printed. The photo showed three women and two girls gathered on the porch of their house. They were not wearing coats, though there were patches of snow on the ground. Perhaps it was a fair day early in spring. The card was addressed to Mrs. Charles Will of Williamsburg, Michigan, but was not mailed. Edna was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan in 1893. William was born in Canada to an Irish mother in May of 1862, and he immigrated to the United States in 1885. Her parents emigrated from England, Elizabeth was born in Canada in November of 1867, and she also came to this country in 1885. She married William about 1886, and their children were born in Michigan: Laura in March of 1889, Carl in August of 1891, and later William in 1902 and Theodore in 1904. William probably entered the photographic business about 1882, based on claims of “16 years hard study” and “16 years pleasing the public” in 1898 advertisements. He alluded to himself as “U. S. Official Photographer since 1887” in ads from 1891 until 1899. This is typical of his advertising during the 1890s: “... The finest assortment of Lake Superior and Soo views, as well as of all the Large Boats passing the Locks. A Specialty made of Large Work, Having the only large instrument in the city for viewing. The Finest Portrait Work done in the City. Photographic Work of Every Description. Satisfaction Guaranteed.... Correspondence Solicited.” William used the stereo format for some of his views, and advertised in 1893: “... After a long, tedious and expensive experiment we have got the Lithium Enamel photo to perfection and for the first time offer it exclusively to our patrons ... at the same old prices.... Please call and compare finish.... If you have pictures to frame, it will pay you to take them to Bell.... Ladies who order one dozen photos may have their hair dressed, free of charge, previous to sitting, by Miss E. Plants, the popular hair dresser.” He suggested in 1895 that “... Views of any boat taken since 1886 can be obtained at normal prices ...” In 1898 he was a “... Photographer and Dealer in Photographic Supplies, Picture Framing, View and Art Specialties. BELL Challenges any Photographer in the State to equal him on Children’s pictures.” All of William’s old glass negatives were sent to the State Prison at Jackson where the emulsion was removed for the silver content, and the glass was used in picture frames made as a prison industry. In 1902 he was “The Soo’s Oldest Photographer. 19 years’ hard study has made us equal to any in pleasing the public with fine Photographic work....” Six years later he declared: “Photography No Experiment with BELL. Every Photo a perfect likeness.” He blind stamped “BELL, Soo, Mich.” into a corner of a post card photograph of a temperance parade about 1910. In addition to being a photographer, by 1911 William was a “Dealer in Photographic Supplies, Eastman Kodaks, Amateur Supplies and Instructions, Views and Art Specialties.” In 1918 his bill head listed “PHOTOGRAPHER’S STOCK, PICTURE FRAMES, MOULDINGS, PHOTOS, VIEWS, ART SPECIALTIES, HAND CAMERAS, AMATEURS’ SUPPLIES, ETC. U. S. Official Photographer....” By 1930 William was retired and widowed, and was sharing a home with his youngest son who was a buyer for a department store.

Charles was the son of Theron D. and Mary Benham, and the older brother of photographer Walter D. Benham. He was born in Michigan in September of 1871. Daisy Dean Robinson was born in Illinois in February of 1872, the daughter of William and Fanny (Mummey) Robinson. She married Charles about 1893, apparently divorced him after 1900, and then married him again at Essex, Ontario, on February 22, 1906. Charles was enumerated as single in 1910. His second wife and children also were born here, Mary in 1880, and their daughter Shirley about 1914, their daughter Mary about 1915, and their son Charles in July of 1918. Charles T. Benham, Senior, was one of the first news photographers in the Detroit area. He was the only newspaper photographer among the newsmen that were invited on a two-day inspection trip of the Detroit & Mackinac Railway in October of 1901. W. D. & C. T. Benham produced 8 by 10 photographs of the first Chalmers automobile fabricated, the chassis of the Chalmers New Detroit and the crankshaft of the four-cylinder Chalmers-Detroit. Sometime in the 1920s, "C. T. BENHAM" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs of groups of 60 to 70 children with a "Nativity School" pennant posed with a priest outside a frame school building. Charles had been in retirement for several years before his death in Detroit on May 11, 1948. Survivors included his wife, Mrs. Mary F. Benham, his brothers George W. and Walter D. Benham, one unmarried and two married daughters, and Charles T. Benham Junior. Burial was in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery.

Walter was born in Michigan on February 14, 1883, to Theron D. and Mary Benham. He was the younger brother of photographer Charles T. Benham. His father must have been doing well in lumbering, for in 1900 he was employing and housing a coachman and two female servants. Walter became a medium sized man with brown eyes and black hair. Myrtle was born here in 1884 or early in 1885, and she married Walter about 1901. Their daughter Edna was born about 1906, their son Walter was born in January of 1910, and their daughters Mary and Josephine were born in 1915 and 1916. Walter made 8 by 10 inch photographs of the 1906 Ford Model K Roadster and of the assembly line methods used to manufacture the Chalmers automobile. He advertised in 1907: "Automobile and Machinery Work My Specialty. Interior and Exterior Views...." From the Wetherbee Building, and from 240 Woodward Avenue, Walter produced 8 by 10 inch prints of steamers under construction, being launched and on the river. From 1910 into 1915, the W. D. Benham Company had portrait and commercial studios on the sixth floor of the Grainger Hannan Building at 240 Woodward Avenue. Some studio portraits in the post card format were blind embossed: "W. D. BENHAM CO., 240 WOODWARD AVE., DETROIT." The company continued to offer portrait and commercial photography from 96 Broadway. By 1930 Walter was a widower providing a home for his 20-year-old son and his 14 and 13-year-old daughters. He had a wife named Marian in 1941. He died in Detroit on March 3, 1964, survived by two married daughters, Walter D. Benham, Junior, and eight grandchildren.

- East Tawas photograph gallery manager for Alexander J. Lawson ..... 1883-1884 1
Bloomington, Illinois, resident ..... 1884 1
With galleries at Alpena, Au Sable and Oscoda demanding his attention, Mr. Lawson fully recommended Mr. Benjamin as an artist of much experience who could be trusted with work as safely as could the proprietor himself. In May of 1883 the East Tawas gallery was expected to close after 30 to 60 days, but it actually remained open until January 3, 1884. Mr. Benjamin left shortly after that for Bloomington, where he intended to spend the winter. One J. A. Benjamin produced cartes de visite from Warrenton, Virginia, and in 1876 photographed as Benjamin & Company from 130 Main Street in Lynchburg, Virginia. A photographer named J. A. Benjamin was active at Livingston and Billings, Montana, from 1885 to 1900. 3

Don was born in Michigan in June of 1875, the son of Berton and Libbie Bennett. Her parents came from New York, Rose was born here in September of 1879, and she married Don about 1897. Something happened to Rose, and Don married again. His second wife's father emigrated from England, and Claire was born in Canada in 1881 or early in 1882. She married Don about 1905. S. Lloyd Potts was associated with Don in Bennett & Company. Don's postal photographs of Albion were postmarked from 1907 until 1917 and included bird's-eye views, street scenes, moon light on Duck Lake, the flood in March of 1908 and other disasters, and the annual tug-of-war between Albion College sophomores and freshmen with the losers getting pulled into the river. He covered this event annually from 1908 until 1915. He also made a variety of post card photos of Springport. In 1913 the Bennett Studio offered "... High grade photography in all its branches, specialty of home portraiture by our new artificial light." This referred to a New Automatic Portable Flash Light that Don had invented and was manufacturing. Three children were born to Don and Claire: Harlo in January of 1909, Flora in 1912, and Mary in September of 1916. Orra was born in Ohio or Michigan to parents from New York in February of 1847. By 1870 he had acquired a 21-year-old wife named Elizabeth who subsequently vanished from the records, leaving a daughter named Lulu. Cora was born in Maine in November of 1861 to Samuel F. and Frances E. Dunton, who also were natives of Maine. She married Orra about 1878 and took over the care of Lulu. Two of her three children were born in Ohio, Nellie in February of 1883 and Charles in June of 1884. Florence was born in California in November of 1893. By 1930 Cora was a widow. 1

His father came from Ohio and William was born in Michigan in April of 1866, second of the three children of John R. and Lucina Bennett. Her mother came from New York and Neoma was born here in June of 1870. She married William about 1886, and she gave birth to Rosa in January of 1890. "W. H. Bennett, Photographer, Sunfield, Mich." was blind stamped into the 10 by 12 inch mounts of at least three photographs of a train wreck at Sunfield on April 27, 1901. William advertised about 1905 in this manner: "Least You Forget. I will remind you that it is time for Xmas Pictures, and we are anxious to have you come and get a sitting. He who waits too long is likely to be disappointed. Get 'Em in Time. We have bargains in new card mounts; will give our customers the benefit of low prices until after Xmas then the price will advance on account of the advance in stock. The Picture Taker needs more than a camera; he must have ability in posing and finishing. When You Sit for a Portrait and the proof comes out all right and the pictures are delivered each alike, handsomely finished, nicely mounted on up to-date cards, Then You Are Well Pleased. Now, this is just the kind of work we are doing each day. Let us help you in selecting a style suitable for you. Sitting any day...." Early in 1908 William also was dealing in school supplies.

| Most records are for William True Bennett, but the University of Michigan records are for William Thompson Bennett. William was born at Union City on October 1, 1836, eldest of the four children of Isaiah W. and Emily Bennett. He spent much of his adult life in Australia, where by 1857 he was traveling the state of Queensland as a photographer in towns such as Brisbane, Ipswich, Warwick and Gayndah. On June 20, 1857, a Brisbane newspaper carried his advertisement: "Having practiced the art for several years, while traveling through the principal capitals of the western hemisphere, he feels confident. of producing pictures which for DURABILITY and BEAUTY OF FINISH cannot be excelled anywhere, and of giving entire satisfaction to all who honor him with their patronage." Mary Anne Teresa Greenwood of Moreton Bay married William at Ipswich on December 29, 1858. Within a year or two the couple moved to the United States. William graduated from the Department of Law at the University of Michigan in 1863, and on June 11 was commissioned Captain in the First United States Colored Infantry. He helped to recruit and organize the First Michigan Colored Volunteers, which became the 102 nd United States Colored Infantry. William was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel on April 14, 1864. He and his brother Orson distinguished themselves during the battle of Honey Hill, South Carolina, on November 30, 1864. Orson was awarded a Medal of Honor, and on January 21, 1865, William was promoted to Colonel of the 33 rd United States Colored Infantry. In May of 1865 he was brevetted Brigadier General for meritorious services at the battle of Honey Hill. He was mustered out of the army on March 10, 1866. By July of 1875 William was back in Brisbane, Australia. Without much success in other fields, he was back into photography by 1879 at Brisbane, in 1881 at Melbourne, in 1891 at Perth, and in 1895 at Coolgardie where his business was destroyed by fire. This may have precipitated his move to the United States. William was first admitted to the Soldiers' Home in Los Angeles in September of 1897, when he was 5 feet 11½ inches tall with hazel eyes, gray hair and a dark complexion. He was discharged from the Home a couple of times, but after June of 1904 spent most of his time there. Following his death on March 10, 1910, his wife returned to Australia. | 4 34 11 44444 33 44444444 5555 4 |   |

| Charley was born in Michigan in March of 1872, third of the five children of William and Johannah Benning. His parents had been brought from Germany to America when they were small children. The purchase by Charles of a half interest in the St. Joseph studio of Forbes C. Welsh was reported early in 1902. A photographic journal carried this ad a few months later: "WANTED - First-class retoucher; lady or gentleman; send sample and photo of self; state salary wanted. Address Welsh & Benning, St. Joseph, Mich." Hattie was born in New York State in 1872 or early in 1873, and she married Charles about 1901. Those working on the irrigation project were housed outside the city limits of Santa Fe. By 1920 Hattie was a widow rooming with a family in Los Angeles, California. | 11 2222 111 |     |

John was born in New York State in 1820 and, according to an 1883 interview, worked in photography for about two years before going into business for himself in 1855. His 1857 advertisements mention "... that he still continues to take DAGUERREOTYPES, AMBROTYPES, PHOTOGRAPHS, ETC. at his well established Gallery.... Having a magnificent Sky Light, he is able to take Pictures equally as well in cloudy weather as in sunshine, and copy Paintings and Daguerreotypes with all the beauty of the originals.... Pictures enclosed in Lockets, and gilt and velvet cases, as low as are charged by inexperienced operators...." On January 13, 1859, John married Miss Catherine Allen, the first white girl born in Pontiac and the daughter of Orrison Allen. The award for the best lot of ambrotypes at the 1859 Oakland County Fair reportedly went to J. H. Burton, probably a misspelling of Benson. John advertised in 1860: "AMBROTYPES, The Most Clear, Distinct and lifelike taken at the old stand over Tuthill's Boot & Shoe Store, Pontiac, in all kinds of weather. Also, Photographs, which are beautiful and lasting pictures on paper, taken all sizes. Photograph views of gentlemen's dwellings, taken on short notice. Call and examine specimens." He was awarded premiums for the best photographs at the Oakland County Fairs in 1864 and 1865, and at the 1865 Fair his three photographic views of Pontiac were said to have deserved the special attention which they attracted. Prof. J. Edwin Churchill practiced his art of photograph painting and conducted art classes in Benson's gallery in 1866 and 1867. In April of 1867, "J. H. Benson ... fitted up ... the second story of the building recently erected by Mr. Goodwin Jacobs, for a Photograph Gallery.... In addition to the various styles of pictures usually taken, he is prepared to take pictures on porcelain.... Ladies from a distance who patronize this room and wish to make their toilet before sitting, will be pleased to learn that there is in this gallery a room fitted specially for their use." Advertisements for his new gallery over Norton & Harshaw's hardware store ran into July, and then the same wording was used by Benson & Hough until October of 1867. John earned First Premiums for his exhibits of photographs at the Oakland County Fairs in 1868, 1870 and 1871. Some of his card photographs were "From the MAMMOTH GALLERY ..." and in 1874 he was said to be "With his mammoth camera ... making some large photographs from retouched Negatives ..." and using "... A Burnisher by which the finest possible finish is put upon Photographs, and at no extra charge...." In 1877 he offered "SOMETHING NEW. A stereoscopic Portrait, and twelve card photographs - best finish - for Two Dollars...." Most of John's stereo views seem to have been outdoor Pontiac scenes. It was reported in 1878 that "Benson's group picture of the ten Grow brothers is very fine - the individual faces look like proofs from steel plates." During December of 1880 he was still claiming that "The MAMMOTH CAMERA, the only one in the city, is the BOSS.... 14 x 17 Photographs - $5.00.... 11 x 14.... 10 x 12.... 8 x 10.... Panel.... Cabinets.... Promenades.... Best Card Photographs (per dozen) - $1.25." Lena Lucy Benson, the daughter of John and Catherine, married Phillip H. Starke on January 22, 1882. Throughout 1882 John was advertising "PHOTOGRAPHS! Instantaneously taken at BENSON'S. The Finest scenery in town for CHILDREN, so bring them along. Best Cards $1.50 per dozen." He received the Second Premium for his collection of photos at the 1882 Oakland County Fair. Late in 1885 it was noted that he had "... greatly improved the looks of his gallery by the exercise of a paint brush - Also painted his showcase below stairs and filled it with new pictures...." John brought in his son-in-law as a partner early in 1886, and "... secured the service of Miss Christie McKay, of Kalamazoo, as retoucher ..." Benson & Starke announced late in 1886 that "... We are introducing the Beautiful and Artistic BROMIDE PICTURE, Enlarged to any size from our negatives.... we will make $15 life-size pictures for only $8...." John's 1887 ads stressed that his photographer, Miss C. McKay, was making cabinets and large work, and giving special attention to babies and children. He donated a life size photo of Rev. C. T. Allen to the Methodist Episcopal Sunday School in 1889, and specialized in cabinets, baby pictures and family groups into the 1890s, also offering life size portraits for $5.00. He was the subject of a rather flattering article in 1894. John died on January 21, 1901, and was buried in Pontiac's Oak Hill Cemetery. In 1912 the Oakland County Pioneer Society was in possession of an ambrotype of Mrs. Catherine Benson taken by her husband and loaned to the society by her daughter, Mrs. Lena Starke.

Solomon was born to English parents at Sylvan in Washtenaw County, Michigan, on July 24, 1845. He enlisted at Detroit as a private in Company A of the 24th Michigan Infantry on August 2, and was mustered into the army on August 13, 1862. At this time he was 5 feet 11½ inches tall with a dark complexion, hazel eyes and brown hair. In July of 1863 at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, Solomon received two gunshot wounds that penetrated his chest from the top of each shoulder, one of which disabled his left lung. After several months of hospitalization, he was pronounced totally disabled and honorably discharged at Detroit on October 27, 1863. Lillie was born in Indiana to a mother from Maryland in 1852 or early in 1853, and she married Solomon about 1870 at Indianapolis, Indiana. Their son Forest was born in Indiana about 1872, and their son Alfred was born in Missouri about 1876. United States Patent Number 308,946 covering a Photograph Camera Plate Holder was issued to Solomon on December 9, 1884. Patent Number 339,731 describing an Attachment for Cameras adapted to serve the dual purpose of diaphragm and shutter was issued to him on April 13, 1886. He often did business in Toledo as S. S. Benster & Company. Something happened to Lillie. Anna was born in Ohio to German parents in October of 1868, and she married Solomon about 1898. Their daughter Dawney Dorothy Benster was born October 8, 1902. By March of 1915 Anna and Solomon had separated, and though Solomon remembered all three of his children he seemed unaware that he had been married more than once and identified his wife as Mrs. India (King) Benster. By January of 1920 Saul (more probably Sol) was a widower. Dawney was living with her father in January, and she furnished information for his death certificate after his death on November 15, 1920. Solomon died of chronic endocarditis and burial was in Forest Cemetery at Toledo.

His parents emigrated from Ireland, and Isaac was born in Massachusetts in July of 1835. He was enumerated as B. Isaac Bent in 1900, when he was lodging with a 69-year-old widow. Late in 1902 one page of a photographic journal was devoted to a picture of three girls credited to "H. RANDALL, Ann Arbor, Mich. I. BENT, Operator." A similar credit line was used early in 1903 for a panel of three different pictures of one child. The only Isaac B. Bent found in pertinent census records was born late in 1840 or early in 1841 at Wareham, Massachusetts, the younger son of Isaac and Sophia Bent. He was single and working at Wareham as a tinsmith in 1870 and 1880.

His parents came from New York and Oscar was born in Michigan in May of 1856, a son of Oscar F. and Amy Bentley. During the Civil War his father spent three years in the Minnesota Volunteer Cavalry. Young Oscar was sharing his home in 1880 with his 17-year-old brother, Frank, who was born in Minnesota. His father built a sawmill in Gibson Township of Bay County in 1886 and founded the village of Bentley. Frank became the first postmaster of Bentley in 1887, and later succeeded his father in the sawmill business. Oscar waited until 1894 to marry Jennie (later Jane) who was born in Michigan in January of 1872. Their children were born in Michigan: Russel in July of 1897, Nina in April of 1899, Stanley in 1902, Ralph early in 1906, and Effie early in 1908.

Charles was born in Ohio in July of 1840, sixth of the eight children of William P. and Sapprona Benton. He grew up on the family farm, and in 1860 was boarding with the farmer that employed him. In 1870 he was lodging in the hotel where he worked. Central Lake cabinet photographs by Charlie appear to have been made about 1895. Sarah was born in Ohio to parents from Pennsylvania and Maine in February of 1845. She had been married and had become the mother of three children before she married Charles late in 1899 or early in 1900. By this time her children were out on their own. The available records do not establish whether Charles had been married previously or not.

His parents emigrated from the Bohemian section of Austria and Charles was born in East Saginaw on December 24, 1881, last of the four sons of Thomas and Catherine Beranek. His father died in September of 1896, and Charles became a medium sized man with blue eyes and black hair. The other Beranek Brother in 1902 was Joseph, who is profiled below. "Beranek STUDIO, SAGINAW, E.S. MICH." was blind stamped into the paper sleeves holding tintypes. One source indicates that in 1910 Charles was living with his widowed mother and laboring in a lumber yard. In 1918 he still was single and sharing a home in Saginaw with his mother.

His parents, George and Elizabeth Berger, emigrated from Switzerland, and John was born in Michigan in September of 1859. His three sisters and four brothers were born between 1863 and 1879. His father was a wire worker and became the proprietor of a beer garden. Bertha Hackule was born in Michigan to German parents in April of 1867, and she married John in 1889. Their son William G. Berger was born in October of 1890, and their daughter Amelia Marie Berger was born in 1901. They were living in 1900 and 1910 with Bertha's widowed mother, Mrs. Amelia Hackule. Bertha was treasurer of her family's brewery in 1900, and of the family ice manufacturing company in 1910. John was bookkeeper for the businesses in the same years. Blackman Township is immediately north of the city of Jackson, which is undoubtedly where John went to work in the 1900s. By 1920 he and Bertha were retired.

His father emigrated from Ireland and Willie was born in New York State in March of 1850. He was living with produce dealer Gideon Nichols and his wife Maria in 1870. Velma A. Smith was born in Michigan in July of 1856, and she married William about 1875. Their seven children were born in Michigan, including Mabel in 1878 or 1879, Elva in June of 1884, William in May of 1886, Gertrude in June of 1891, Dorothy in February of 1896, and Howard in September of 1898. William was a widower by 1910, when he was providing a home for his daughter Gertrude. By 1920 he had married a lady named Mary seven years his junior, and along with Gertrude, they were living with his daughter Elva and her husband, Shirley N. Fisk. For the 1920 census, William was enumerated at Detroit on January third, and again three days later at Alachua, Florida, where he was working as a sign painter.

She and Samuel were married on October 8, 1878, and their children were born in Michigan: Matilda in February of 1881, Maude in August of 1887, George in March of 1890, Eva in April of 1894, Marguerite in August of 1896, and Melbourne in February of 1899. His biographer referred to him as Captain Bernier, and cited numerous deeds of valor during his career with the life-saving service. His direction of, and participation in, the rescue of Captain Rose and his wife and nine members of the crew from the grounded schooner John Page on December 2, 1894, received particular attention. Victoria died at their home in Sault Ste. Marie on November 9, 1907. |           | 1 21 21 222 111 |

John was 30 years old when he enlisted at South Haven as a sergeant in Company D of the First Michigan Sharpshooters on December 29, 1862. Six companies of Sharpshooters mustered at Dearborn in July of 1863 and were ordered to Indianapolis to defend against Morgan's raiders. They saved North Vernon, Indiana, from being looted by Morgan, who moved into Ohio and was captured by others. They returned to Dearborn, where four additional companies were mustered, and on August 16 were sent to guard prisoners at Camp Douglas. On March 17, 1864, they left Chicago for Annapolis, Maryland. The regiment sustained its first losses on May 6 and 7 in the desperate struggle of the Wilderness. At Spottsylvania on May 9, 10 and 12, they lost 34 killed, 117 wounded and 4 missing. They crossed the James River on the night of June 15, and were positioned the next day at the extreme left of the corps before Petersburg. The Sharpshooters were assaulted almost immediately and in repulsing two charges captured 88 men and the colors of the 39th North Carolina Infantry. They were nearly surrounded, and fought their way out at the cost of 32 killed, 46 wounded and 84 missing. John sustained a gunshot wound in action at this time. The ball passed entirely through the body of Andrew Hart, killing him and inflicting a serious injury to the left side of John's chest. He was hospitalized for several days and then returned to duty. The Sharpshooters led their brigade in a charge which carried the enemy's works on July 30, 1864, taking 50 prisoners and losing 3 killed and 13 wounded. They fought at Weldon Railroad and at Ream's Station in August, lost several killed and wounded at Poplar Spring Church on September 30, and took part in the battles at Pegram Farm on October 2 and at the Boydton Plank Road on October 8. John was promoted to Sergeant Major on November 5, and then was promoted to First Lieutenant of Company C on November 20, 1864. The regiment was among the defenders of Fort Steadman on March 25, 1865, and John was promoted to Captain on March 28. He was captured during this period, and this may have occurred when the Sharpshooters made a daring charge on April 12 which succeeded in taking and holding for an hour under a terrific fire of musketry and artillery a portion of the Confederate works at Petersburg. Advancing again about 4 a.m. the next morning, they found the works unoccupied and pushed on to become the first Union regiment to enter the city of Petersburg. John's health was very poor prior to his capture, but it was much worse when he returned to the regiment. After the surrender of General Lee the Sharpshooters proceeded to Alexandria and participated in the grand review at Washington on May 23. They were mustered out at Delaney House, D.C., on July 28, arrived in Jackson on July 31, and were paid and disbanded on August 7, 1865. At Coloma, Michigan, on August 20, 1866, John married 19-year-old Rosa Holland of Watervliet. Their daughter Emily was born at South Haven on August 7, 1869. John never recovered from his wound and the exposure and malnutrition while imprisoned. He was diagnosed as having diabetes in 1866, and died at Watervliet in February of 1870. By June of 1874 Rosie had died and Henry R. Holland had been appointed guardian unto Emily Berridge.

Edwin was born on June 27, 1859, in Cayuga County, New York, to William and Catherine (Spears) Berryman. The family moved in 1862 to Leslie, Michigan, where Edwin attended the common schools. He relocated to Midland in April of 1879. Della Glympse was born at Plymouth, Michigan, and grew up to marry Edwin on September 21, 1881. He put aside the traveling photographer's outfit in October of 1882 in favor of the fixed gallery in Midland. His work included all varieties of photography, copying, enlarging and portrait-painting, crayon, water colors, etc. In the fall of 1885 it was "Large Pictures a specialty at Berryman's Gallery! Photographs finished with the Air Brush in India Ink or Water Colors. See the New Egyptian Crystal Photo. BABIES Taken without the use of chloroform. Instantaneous Process Never Fails!" His ads in 1888 read: "Berryman ... Does all kinds of copying and enlarging. Fine Stock Mouldings. Any style of picture framed on short notice, and at Bottom Prices." Adelbert L. Geer was granted a patent on a Vignette Holder in March of 1889, and assigned one-half of the rights to Edwin. In 1890 Edwin was "Midland's Old and Well Known PHOTOGRAPHER. The only Gallery in the City equipped with First-Class Instruments in Every Respect. OLD PICTURES COPIED To Life Size. Frames, Mouldings, and Artist's Materials." He advertised: "... Those fine Photos made by the NEW PROCESS at Berryman's. A poor picture is dear At Any Price...." From July 20 through August 10 of 1892, Edwin taught photography at the annual Bay View Assembly summer school in Emmet County. He was awarded a gold badge for his display of photographs at the St. Louis convention of the Photographers' Association of America in the summer of 1894. The PA of A met in 1895 at Detroit, where Edwin was awarded a first prize silver medal for landscape photography and a second prize bronze medal for marine views. He exhibited portrait photographs at the convention of the Photographers' Association of Wisconsin in 1898, and cabinet photographs at the annual PA of A convention at Celeron on Chautauqua Lake in New York State during the summer of 1899 which were judged to be above average. Edwin was elected vice president of the Photographers' Association of Wisconsin in 1903, and was re-elected to this post in 1904. He served as president of the PA of W in 1906. Edwin and his wife, who by 1910 was known as Adella, never had children. He was working in a gallery in 1910, and was a widower by 1930. He died at San Diego on March 30, 1945.

Fred was born in Michigan in October of 1868 to William and Catherine (Spears) Berryman. Both parents and two older brothers were born in New York. By 1894 Fred had a wife named Cecille who was born in Michigan in April of 1875. "F. BERRYMAN, PHOTOGRAPHER, Copying & Enlarging. MIDLAND, MICH." was stamped on the back of heavy 6 ½ by 8 ½ mounts with beveled and gilded edges, and on the backs of larger but lighter mounts. Some of the heavy mounts carried sepia toned photographs of a seven man brass band, and others were stamped: "DISASTER OF May 12, 1892...." and showed the Larkin saw mill after an explosion. Fred advertised "Excellent Work. Prices Moderate." at Ann Arbor in 1895, and as an Artistic Photographer in 1896. Photographer O. A. Kelley and portrait artist W. A. Pew shared the 6 East Huron Street address in 1897 with Fred, who was listed as proprietor of The Berryman Studio in 1898. Cecille was identified as a musical artist in 1900, when she and Fred were living together. By 1910 Fred was single again, and was enumerated as a salesman. Mildred was born in South Dakota to English parents in 1883, and she married Fred about 1914. Their daughters were born in California: Lucile in November of 1915 and Mildred in October of 1917. Fred was working as a frame maker in 1920 and as a salesman in 1930.

His parents came from Pennsylvania, and Harvey was born in Iowa in May of 1866, fourth of the five sons of Joseph and Elizabeth C. Best. He had two younger sisters, and his older brother William was an Iowa photographer in the 1880s and 1890s. Ida was born in Canada in July of 1873, the daughter of John A. and Emma Risk. She immigrated in 1896 and married Harvey in 1899 or early in 1900. She remained in Detroit with her parents while Harvey was working in Grand Ledge. From 1903 through 1906 he usually was listed as Harry E. Best. Ida was never a mother, and she too was enumerated as a Unity healer in 1930.

Samuel and Anne Biddlecomb and one daughter, two sons and two step daughters emigrated from England on the Sir Robert Peel and landed at New York City on September 7, 1866. William, their youngest son, was born in Michigan during the following month. Eliza was born in Michigan in January of 1872, she married William in 1892 or very early in 1893, and their daughter Gladys was born here in October of 1893. The First National Bank was at the northwest corner of Huron Avenue and River Street. William had a ground floor studio about 1900. The forward to a local publication included: "... To Mr. W. G. Biddlecomb, photographer, should be given the bulk of the credit for the success of this work, and his untiring efforts will certainly be appreciated in the homes where it is delivered. This is an excellent place to say that any person desiring to secure duplicates of photos appearing in 'Port Huron in 1900' can do so by calling at his gallery in the Commercial Bank building...." William's cabinet photographs included scenes along the St. Clair River and post mortem pictures of children as well as the usual portraits. He advertised in 1899, 1902 and 1904 as "The Photographer. The Best Work Always. Take The Elevator...." His daughter Gladys was married about 1916 to the Canadian Burton E. Poste, who was a Detroit photographer from 1919 until 1928.

His parents, George and Hannah Bigelow, came from New York, and Massachusetts and Edwin was born on December 9, 1838, at Springfield, Michigan. He was a couple of years older than his brother Lyman who is the subject of an entry below. His opportunities were limited by the death of his father in 1854, and he was steward on the steamer Forester during the 1857 season. He was 23 when he enlisted at Davisburg as a private in Company B. of the Fifth Michigan Cavalry on August 20, 1862. He was mustered as a sergeant and was promoted to first sergeant on December 16, 1862, and was taken prisoner at Buckland Mills, Virginia, on October 19, 1863. Edwin was confined at Richmond, Virginia, until February 10, 1864, when he was sent to Andersonville, Georgia. He managed to escape and reported within the Union lines on June 15, 1864. He was discharged on August 9 to accept promotion, and was appointed a captain in the First United States Colored Heavy Artillery on August 10, 1864. During the summer of 1865 he and Mary A. Stevens were married at Fenton, Michigan. He was acting Inspector General, First Brigade, Department of Tennessee, from November 19, 1865, until his honorable discharge at Chattanooga on March 31, 1866. The Bigelows moved in the spring of 1867 from Chattanooga to Minneapolis, where they were raising three daughters. Mary died at Minneapolis on May 28, 1877. Bigelow Brothers and Bigelow & Taylor both reproduced the medals awarded to Lyman G. Bigelow in 1872 and 1876 on the backs of their card photograph mounts. Elmore W. Taylor was Edwin's associate in 1879, when they possessed 8000 negatives and did only first class work in everything from 2 ¼ by 1 ½ inch Minettes to life size portraits. "Bigelow's Art Gallery, Next to Hurd House, Jackson, Mich. All Negatives preserved. More like this can be had at any time for $2. per doz." was printed on the back of some card photograph mounts. Edwin succeeded Frank C. Bracy in Jackson, and employed Lyman G. Bigelow as a photographer and Miss Clara Norton as a retoucher in 1880. He employed Albert J. Davison as a photographer and Miss Lulu Clarke as an artist and retoucher in 1883. At Jackson on September 3, 1883, Edwin married Ida (Foerster) Hunt. Her parents emigrated from Germany, Ida was born on November 27, 1854, at New Orleans, Louisiana, and lost her first husband there to yellow fever on October 21, 1878. Their daughter Edwina May Bigelow was born on October 31, 1884, and their son George H. Bigelow was born on February 1, 1891. After selling his gallery, Edwin became yardmaster at the Michigan State Prison, and introduced strawberry culture on the prison farm. Later he was bookkeeper for a grocery firm. With the proceeds of an endowment policy that matured in 1898 he built a drugstore that he operated until 1916. Edwin died at Jackson on September 22, 1916, and Ida died there about November 1, 1919.

Harvey was born in Michigan on July 24, 1848, one of the four sons of Harvey and Laura M. (Hurlbut) Bigelow, both natives of Connecticut. He was often listed as Hervey. He and his twin brother Herman had an older brother Charles and a younger brother Otis. The elder Harvey Bigelow conducted an extensive furniture and undertaking business in Dowagiac from 1851 through 1889. Jennie's parents emigrated from England, she was born in Michigan in May of 1852, and she grew up to marry Harvey S. Bigelow. Their daughter Katie was born here in 1875 or early in 1876. Harvey attended the annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Milwaukee in August of 1883. He may have extended his father's undertaking and furniture business into the 1890s. He produced a card photograph from Front Street of a naked baby sitting in a washbowl and a full length cabinet photo from Beeson Street of a gentleman holding his cigar. Jennie and Harvey still were together in 1910, but by 1912 Harvey was free to marry a 32-year-old woman named Carrie. She was born at Freeburg, Pennsylvania, on April 9, 1880, seventh of the twelve children of Samuel and Catherine (Mainer) Moyer. She died in Orange County, California, on June 26, 1943, and Harvey died there just a few months later on November 17, 1943.

Lyman was born to George and Hannah Bigelow at Springfield, Michigan, on June 30, 1841, and moved with his family to Detroit in 1847. He polished daguerreotype plates for O. D. Moore, and kept the gallery clean. From 1856 to 1859 he studied with J. H. Dolph, the famous painter of animals. He then continued his study of art for two years at New York and Boston, and then painted portraits until he enlisted at Grand Rapids as a trumpeter in Company D of the Tenth Michigan Cavalry on September 19, 1863. At this time he was 5 feet 8 inches tall with blue eyes, brown hair and a light complexion. Within four months he was promoted to sergeant, and then served as an assistant topographical engineer. He was discharged at Knoxville, Tennessee, on July 28, 1864, to accept a commission as First Lieutenant of Company H in the First United States Colored Heavy Artillery. He served at Chattanooga, Tennessee, during the Chickamauga campaign, and then was on the staff of General Thomas at Nashville until the close of the war. He was discharged at Chattanooga on March 31, 1866. He applied for a patent on an improvement in Solar Printing Cameras on April 22, 1867, and Patent Number 70,509 was granted to him on November 5, 1867. His Patent Number 115,812 issued on June 13, 1871, covering a Radially Shaded Rotating Background, and Patent Number 119,111 was granted to him on September 19, 1871, covering Sized Cloth Photographers' Curtains. Lyman exhibited an exquisitely colored portrait of a lady and child at the 1871 National Photographic Association convention in Philadelphia, as well as the patented background and curtains which were being advertised and sold nationally. Back in Grand Rapids from the exhibition, he found that his factory and home had been destroyed by fire, but this caused only a brief delay in the delivery of his new products. Bigelow & Holcomb finished pictures in every style known to the art, and made a specialty of copying. The gold medal offered by the Scovill Manufacturing Company for the greatest improvements in photography during the year 1870-71 was presented to Lyman by President Bogardus of the NPA at the St. Louis convention in May of 1872. In his acceptance speech, Lyman mentioned: "... Less than one year since, I laid aside the palette and the pencil for the chemicals and the camera. At Philadelphia I first learned that the field of the photographer was as broad, in an art sense, as that of the painter, and on this conviction I acted in abandoning the one and adopting the other." During the convention he was named Vice President of the NPA for Michigan. One of the exhibits at St. Louis was Bigelow's Album of Lighting and Posing, which was selling for $6.00. It proposed that the glass of the gallery be covered with twelve numbered opaque blinds, six for the side light and six for the angled sky light, each of which could be independently opened or closed. The album contained 24 Victoria sized (4 1/2 by 3 inches) portraits, each made with a different and defined combination of open and closed blinds to achieve a desired pictorial result, including "shadow" portraits and Rembrandt effects. Lyman's art training and experience as a professional portrait painter and photographer were evident in the quality of the portraits. His Album was reviewed and excerpted in six 1872 issues of a photographic magazine. In 1873 he copyrighted cloud negatives which could be used as borders and backgrounds without masking or double printing, and which were sold along with full directions by Scovill. Three articles by Lyman on his cloud negatives and other subjects were published in 1873 and 1874 periodicals, and his photographs were used as frontispieces in three magazines in 1874 and 1876. He employed Theodore D. Johnson as a photographer in 1873, exhibited both photos and photographic requisites at the Chicago convention of the NPA in July of 1874, received the $100.00 gold medal from the Philadelphia Photographer for the finest cabinet work submitted in 1874, was awarded a first prize at the Michigan State Fair in 1875 for a crayon portrait, exhibited a fine collection of photographs and cards at the Oakland County Fair at Pontiac in October of 1875, employed George Heyn as a photograph printer in 1876, and was one of the 140 professionals that exhibited photographs in Class 430 at the 1876 Centennial International Exposition in Philadelphia. A 242 by 77 foot Photographic Exhibition Building housed these exhibits plus 54 others of carbon prints, photo-lithographs and photographic apparatus in classes 431, 432 and 433. During the exposition Lyman had charge of the portrait department for the Centennial Photographic Company. His Detroit card photograph mounts carried a gilded reproduction of the “$100 Gold Medal Presented to L. G. Bigelow by the N.P.A. for Greatest Improvements in Photography - 1871.” Later card and cabinet mounts carried a smaller reproduction of the medal (with the date changed to 1872) along with a gilded copy of the “Wilson First Prize Medal, National Competition - Awarded L. G. Bigelow - 1876” and bronzed copies of both sides of the medal awarded to him by the United States Centennial Commission at Philadelphia in 1876 for artistic posing and novel effects in lighting. Monochrome reproductions of the same medals were printed on card mounts of the Bigelow Brothers. Lyman produced stereoscopic views of Detroit. He founded the Detroit Photo Mechanical Printing Company in June of 1877, and visited England for the next two months to buy equipment for the venture. In response to his application filed December 10, 1878, Patent Number 217,981 dealing with Photo-Mechanical Printing issued July 29, 1879. Mrs. Sarah (Woodruff) Bigelow, who married Lyman at Albion in 1864, died about 1878. Miss Ada C. Dickenson came to Detroit from New York in the mid 1870s and became Lyman’s studio assistant for several years prior to their marriage on April 18, 1880. They later had three children: Lou Adelaide was born November 24, 1884, Ada was born November 18, 1886, and Herbert was born October 18, 1888. Bigelow & Weed made card photographs for $2.00 per dozen. Five of Lyman’s articles were included in Wilson’s Photographics, published in 1881, when Eli P. Harrington was associated with Lyman in the Michigan Artotype Company. This company probably used the same concepts and equipment that had been employed by the Detroit Photo Mechanical Printing Company, and Lyman was identified as president of the company in 1883. Ward B. Flower established a gallery at Pontiac in the same year, citing experience as a pupil of L. G. Bigelow as one of his major credentials. In 1888 Lyman was awarded a medal and was voted an honorary member of the Paris Academy of Arts and Sciences. In the spring of 1890 he sent a photographic journal several nearly life size portrait contact prints made with his “Diffuse Focus Diaphragm” which would soon be on the market. By July he had been hired by the Cramer Dry Plate Works as a representative, and his Patent Number 443,386 covering a Stop or Diaphragm for Photographic Cameras issued December 23, 1890. With H. G. Parcell as a partner, he opened a handsome studio in the fall of 1891 at St. Joseph, Missouri. Their partnership was dissolved early in 1892, and Parcell returned to Kirksville, Missouri. Articles by Lyman on various subjects were printed in a periodical in the fall of 1890 and in photographic annuals for 1890, 1891, 1892 and 1894. He exhibited a novel Umbrella Reflector at the St. Louis convention of the PA of A in August of 1894. A picture and description of “Bigelow’s Flashlight Apparatus” published early in 1895 was accompanied by a half tone engraving from a portrait negative made using the apparatus. His Patent Number 543,639 for a Photographic Flash-Light Machine issued July 30, 1895, and his article on a new system of flash-light photography was published early in 1898. Another patent on a Photographic Flash-Light Machine, Number 696,402, was granted to him on April 1, 1902. His Flash-Light Machine was advertised utilizing full pages at the beginning of the year and half pages at the end of 1902. When lands of the Flathead Indian Reservation in Montana were opened to settlement, applications were simplified for veterans of the Civil War. Lyman established a homestead four miles outside Ronan, and opened a studio in town with his daughter Lou as an assistant. The Bigelows made many prints for Roland Reed, who was photographing Blackfoot Indians and making life sized portraits of them to sell at the 1915 Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Diego, California. In 1913 Lou became Reed’s assistant, and during the exposition they were kept very busy at his studio in Coronado making prints. Before the exposition was over, Reed was anxious to get back into the field, and Lou was able to purchase the well-equipped Coronado studio with a small down payment. Lyman joined his daughter at Coronado in 1917, and helped her run the studio until he retired in 1921. His wife died at Coronado on February 6, 1939, and he died there of senility and chronic myocarditis on April 25, 1940. He was nursed day and night by his daughter Ada during his final illness, and burial was in Rosecrans National Cemetery. Lyman’s A Self Biography was handed down to his grandchildren and was available to one of my sources, but has yet to be published so far as I know.

Royal was born at Gill's Pier in Leelanau County, Michigan, on June 6, 1888, the eldest child of George Gilbert Bigelow and Eliza Bigelow. His brother Walter, his sister Opal and his sister Ruby were born between July of 1890 and September of 1896. Royal and Walter were working in their father's carpentry business in 1910. "Big" was lettered on some of the negatives of a series of postal photographs taken of the ruins of the Michigan Agricultural College Engineering Building after it burned on March 5, 1916. "This is the remains of the laboratory where I held lab classes" was written on one of these cards. Royal was short and stout with brown eyes and hair when he married Miss Helen Wyatt on June 6, 1917, at Evanston, Illinois. Helen was born in Illinois in 1892 and worked as a bookkeeper for a bank. Royal was inducted into the army on September 6, 1918, and served as an auto truck mechanic in the Army Training Center at Michigan Agricultural College until his honorable discharge on December 17, 1918. He and Helen had two children born in Illinois: Janet in May of 1925 and George in March of 1930.

Boyd born in Michigan to Canadian parents on March 29, 1886, second of the three children of Jerdan W. and Chloe Bingham. His brother Alonzo was ten years older, and his sister Charlotte was four years younger. Boyd prepared to open a studio in Cass City by purchasing the building formerly occupied by the local newspaper. He expected to do business in both Gagetown and Cass City. He formally opened the Cass City studio on July 17, 1909. Boyd was rooming with an older couple at Cass City in 1910. "B. H. BINGHAM, CASS CITY, MICH." was neatly blind stamped into post card photographs ranging from views of Main Street to a group of male students on the schoolhouse steps. "B. H. BINGHAM, STUDIO, CASS CITY, MICHIGAN" was printed on the post card backs of other photographs. Boyd attended the national convention for photographers in July of 1910, going to Milwaukee by way of Saginaw, Midland and Ludington and returning through Chicago. He was back in two weeks with an 8 by 48 inch panorama taken at the convention in which he was one of the many pictured delegates. Four Cass City shops were burglarized on the night of August 22, 1910, and the thief was captured the following day. Boyd snapped a photograph of the prisoner in an open automobile as the sheriff was about to transport him to Caro, the county seat. The picture was reproduced on the front page of the local newspaper a week later. Laura was born in Michigan in 1887, and she married Boyd about 1910. Their son Verner was born early in 1914, and their son Morley was born in April of 1918. Boyd announced that he had purchased a studio at Muskegon and that the Cass City studio would close on May 18, 1912. He and his family were living on Arthur Street in Muskegon in 1918, and in Muskegon Heights in 1920 and 1930. The listing in the gazetteer for 1919 was for Floyd H. Bingham in one place, and for Jay H. Bingham in another.

He enlisted at Monroeville in Company I of the Third Ohio Cavalry on October 15 and was mustered into the army as a bugler on October 28, 1861. From exposure while on picket duty near Mooresville and Decatur, Alabama, early in July of 1862 he contracted pneumonia and was hospitalized until August 6 at Huntsville, Alabama. He was then sent to Nashville, Tennessee, where he was discharged on a surgeon's certificate of disability on September 16, 1862. He applied for an Invalid Pension in April of 1863, stating that his disabling disease prevented him from doing any work except for a little photography. He and 28 year old Miss Orpha O. Fowler were married at Thompson, Ohio, on September 7, 1864. Henry was awarded First Premiums for the photographs he exhibited at the Kalamazoo County Fairs in 1865 and 1866. He invites attention to the new Imperial or Cabinet Card, now becoming so popular in Europe. All are invited to call and examine his pictures and satisfy themselves. A fine assortment of Frames always on hand, at very low prices...." He sent a couple of cabinet portraits to a photographic journal in the summer of 1867 which the editor admired for their nice clean manipulation and graceful posing, but thought could be improved by using a few more accessories to break up the background. At the 1867 Michigan State Fair in Detroit there were only two exhibits by professional photographers. All of the First Premiums went to the Cadwallader Brothers of Detroit, and Harry was awarded diplomas for the Second Best Collection of Ambrotypes and Photographs and for the Second Best Portrait Photograph. He sent a few cabinet portraits to The Philadelphia Photographer in 1867, and two more batches in 1868, and was said to be improving each time. In 1868 he also sent some "prairie views" from negatives made with Zentmeyer lenses. This term may have referred to stereo views he made of Prairie Ronde, near Kalamazoo. His 1869 ads read: "... The highest award of merit was given by the Michigan State Agricultural Society to H. L. Bingham, for the BEST PHOTOGRAPHS IN THE STATE. Any person or persons wishing Fine Art in any Style, either Water Colors, India Ink or Oil Finish, can be sure to have executed at this Establishment A FAITHFUL LIKENESS, Highly finished and as perfect a specimen of Art as can be had in this Country, that one need not be ashamed to submit to the severest Art Criticism. Mr. NOBLE, of Cincinnati, our Water Colorist, and Mr. SPRINGFIELD, of Rochester, our India Ink worker, stand each in their line at the head of the Art. Specimens of this class of work can be seen AT BINGHAM'S STUDIO.... Copies made from Old Pictures as perfect as life. Satisfaction in every case or no pay." During the 1869 Michigan State Fair at Jackson he received six First Premiums: for life-size, water-colored and India-ink work, and for collections of cards and of cabinets. At the Cleveland convention of the Photographers' Association of America in 1870 he exhibited some large portraits and was elected vice president for Michigan. Later in 1870 he sent some excellent medallion cartes , more cabinets, and then some fine examples of the new size Victoria cards to The Philadelphia Photographer . The editor noted in 1871 that Henry had benefited greatly from his week at the Cleveland Exhibition, and had been improving ever since. He employed Miss Emogene King as a photo printer in 1871, and ran a series of one-line ads: "Porcelains in water colors .... Daguerreotypes copied beautifully .... Portraits in oil colors by the best artists ..... Berlin Heads ..... B always succeeds in getting a fine photo.... Old photos copied as fine as from life.... Bring on your babies and get a fine likeness.... I guarantee satisfaction on every picture.... Retouched cards can not be beaten.... If you have failed to get a fine photo everywhere else, try B's ....Go to B's for fine Rembrants, B makes the finest Rembrandt pictures.... Everybody should get their photos at B's.... Victoria cards at B's." In March of 1872 it was reported that John L. Gihon and Henry had formed a copartnership, but that Gihon would maintain his opaque and cut-out business in Philadelphia. Later in the year Gihon superintended the Chicago gallery of C. D. establish a gallery in Montevideo, Uruguay. Harry exhibited a large group of photographs at the 1872 Michigan State Fair in Kalamazoo. In the spring of 1873 ill health was compelling him to offer his Kalamazoo gallery for sale at a bargain to a prompt purchaser so that he could seek a southern climate. By January of 1874 he had moved to San Antonio, and later in the year he sent cabinet photographs to The Philadelphia Photographer from Austin and from San Antonio. He produced stereo views of Kalamazoo and of San Antonio. Henry died at El Paso on March 16, 1888. Orpha received a widow's pension of $12.00 per month, which was increased to $20.00 in September of 1916, and then to $30.00 in May of 1920.  Clarence was born in Michigan to parents from New York in October of 1866, last of the four children of Charles and Elizabeth A. Birch. His sisters Roxana (later Sarah) and Jennie, and his brother Edward (later Charles) were born in Michigan between 1860 and 1865. Clarence married, and his son Karl was born in October of 1893. He soon was a widower, and in 1900 and 1910 he was sharing his home with his son and with his widowed mother, who was born in March of 1832. Clarence served as the local census enumerator in 1900. "Soldiers Monument, Leonidas, Mich. Unveiled 10-8-'10 Photo by Birch 156" was lettered on the negative of a post card photograph. "The F. Lawrence Barn Frame 65 by 412 ft. The 'Largest Barn in the State' Leonidas, Mich. View Photo by Birch - 200 -" was scribed into the negative of another postal photo. By 1920 Clarence was married to a lady named Alice who was ten years his senior, and Karl was living just a few doors away with his new wife.

 "Birely" was printed in bold black letters on the back of card photographs with "Iron Mountain, Mich." stamped below it. The village of Iron Mountain was laid out in 1879 when the nearby Chapin Mine was opened. His father came from Maryland, James Birely was born in Canada in March of 1837 or a couple of years earlier, and he married 20-year-old Kate about 1856. Their son, Harry R. Birely, was born in Canada in 1857 or early in 1858. James and Harry were proprietors of a jewelry store in 1880 at Oshkosh, Wisconsin, a little over one hundred miles due south of Iron Mountain. Harry may have viewed the booming town of Iron Mountain as a business opportunity too good to pass up. He and his father still were Oshkosh jewelers in 1900.

Both Almon and the renowned Ohio photographer Albert Bisbee boarded with John Bisbee in 1861. They were three of the twelve children of Gideon and Lydia (Gurney) Bisbee. Almon was youngest of the twelve, and was born in Chester Township of Geauga County, Ohio, on April 10, 1836. Christina Baeuerle was born in Germany on July 12, 1839, was brought to America in 1846, and married Almon at Delaware, Ohio, on July 20, 1858. Their first three daughters were born in Ohio: Mariah in May of 1859 at Columbus, Alice in April of 1862 at Delaware, and Ida in July of 1866 at East Cleveland. Florence was born in December of 1868 and Hattie was born in September of 1872, both at St. Louis, Michigan. Almon's partner at Saint Louis was Albert D. Rust. "BISBEE'S FERROTYPES. ST. LOUIS, MICH." was printed on the pasters that held tintypes into their carte de visite sized paper frames. Almon advertised about 1873: "All styles of Pictures taken in the best manner. Frames for sale." A bore was put down in St. Louis in 1886 which struck a flow of water at a depth of 158 feet. The water shot up ten feet or more when confined to a small pipe. Almon photographed a four-foot column of water ascending from the full eight-inch pipe. After a long sickness, Almon died at his St. Louis home on March 11, 1899. Burial was in Oak Grove Cemetery. Christina lived until December 29, 1916.

Jasper was born in New York State, probably in July of 1843. He was the youngest child of Alanson and Mary Bisbee, and had at least two sisters and two brothers. Sarah was born in Indiana, probably in April of 1847, but was quite inconsistent in her answers to the census enumerators. She married Jasper about 1870, and their three sons were born in Michigan between 1871 and 1879. Their daughter Beulah was born in October of 1888. By 1930 Jasper and Sarah were in their mid-eighties, and their youngest son Frank was living with them as a caretaker.

His parents came from Vermont, Watson was born near London, Ontario, on January 22, 1841, and he was brought to the United States in 1850. He was six feet one inch tall with a light complexion, grey eyes and brown hair when he enlisted at Lexington as a corporal in Company D of the Tenth Michigan Infantry on October 28, 1861. About December 15 he was in the regimental hospital at Flint with measles and resulting back pains in the region of his kidneys. He was home on a brief convalescent furlough before he was mustered into the army on February 6, 1862, and was sent to a general hospital from July 17 to November 23, 1862. He was able to perform light duty with his regiment in Mississippi until January of 1863, when he was admitted to the regimental hospital at Nashville, Tennessee. He was diagnosed with chronic nephritis or inflammation of the kidneys, and was honorably discharged for disability at Nashville on February 4, 1863. Hannah was born in Nova Scotia in December of 1844, and was brought across the border in 1852. She married Watson about 1862, and their four children were born in Michigan: Nellie about 1865, Frances in July of 1868, Watson about 1874, and Elva in September of 1879. Back in Lexington Watson tried driving a stage and clerking in a hotel, but found that he was too weak to work at anything. Weakness and pain in his lower back were a constant affliction, and in time indigestion and piles also became serious problems. In March of 1886 Watson obtained a position at the Au Sable Water Works that required only one hour's work in a twelve-hour day. His wife and little boy often performed the work under his supervision, and twice during the 15 months that he held the job, he hired a man to take his place for eight or ten days. In April of 1889 he was elected justice of the peace. In 1900 he was superintendent of the poor. On July 11, 1911, the entire village of Au Sable was destroyed by a fire that consumed Watson's house and everything that was in it. He stayed briefly at Flint and then moved to Detroit where he ended up boarding with the family of his son-in-law, Arthur W. Venners. In March of 1917 his pension was raised to $36 per month. He died at Detroit on July 2, 1922.

Henry was born in England in 1839 or 1840, and was a younger brother of Thomas P. Bishop. He enlisted as a corporal in Company K of the 22nd Michigan Infantry at Lexington on August 14, 1862. He was hospitalized at Cincinnati with erysipelas from March 24 to May 12, 1863. He received gun shot wounds in the left hand and left forearm during the Battle of Chickamauga, Georgia, on September 20, 1863. Due to the wounds and subsequent gangrene, much of his left arm was amputated. He was in a hospital at Nashville, Tennessee, until February of 1864, and was then transferred to St. Mary's Hospital in Detroit. He was furloughed for seven days in June of 1864 and for a month in February of 1865, and was discharged on a Surgeon's Certificate of Disability at Harper Hospital in Detroit on June 30, 1865. Henry returned to Lexington. Mary A. Drake was born in New York in 1852 or 1853, and married Henry at Pierce, Wisconsin, on November 18, 1877. They probably moved to South Haven soon after they were married. Henry was receiving a pension of $45.00 per month when he died at South Haven on February 11, 1897. Mary received a widow's pension of $8.00 per month until she remarried in January of 1901.

Thomas was born at Birmingham, England, on December 12, 1833, and he came to the United States in 1842. He was boarding in 1850 with a widow and her farmer sons, and living in 1860 with the family of his 28-year-old sister Jane and her 57-year-old husband Joel Wixon. He was five feet eight inches tall with a fair complexion, blue eyes and dark hair when he enlisted at Kalamazoo as a private in Company F of the Third Michigan Cavalry on September 7, 1861. He was mustered into the army on October 12 and was hospitalized from December 11 to December 18, 1861. In December of 1863 he was on detached service at Corinth, Mississippi. He re-enlisted as a corporal at La Grange, Tennessee, on January 19, 1864. During the ensuing thirty-day Veteran Furlough he and Miss Mary J. Townsend were married in Clyde Township, Michigan, on February 16, 1864. On April 14, 1865, Thomas was promoted to commissary sergeant, and on February 12, 1866, he was honorably discharged at San Antonio, Texas. Taxes were assessed on Thomas in July of 1866, on Bishop & Brother in September, and on Bishop Brothers in October and December of 1866. Early in 1868 Thomas advertised: "... Photographs, Ambrotypes, Gems, Porcelain Pictures, Paintings in Oil and Water Colors, Sepia and India Ink, executed upon short notice. Photographs from life size to the miniature picture. Pictures neatly made upon the dial of a watch. A good assortment of Oval and Square Frames constantly on hand and for sale cheap." His first wife died in 1868 or 1869, and on April 22, 1870, Thomas married 19-year-old Miss Julia A. M. Strong of Birmingham, Michigan. Their son Clarence was born in 1877 and lived only three years. William M. Bishop was born at Dayton on August 3, 1878, and Lillian E. Bishop was born at Elgin on July 21, 1881. Thomas took a 7 by 11 inch photograph of the Babo Block in Wenona at 11:10 A.M. on November 18, 1870. He produced card photographs of wooden furniture such as church pews and lecterns from Northville. Citing rheumatism, Thomas applied for a Veteran Invalid Pension in July of 1890. He was admitted to the National Military Home on October 19, 1898, and died there from arteriosclerosis and senility on September 20, 1915. Julia was providing a home for both of their children at Cincinnati in 1900, and for their son near Dayton in 1910. She was living with the family of their daughter at Dayton in 1920.

Taxes were assessed on William's brother Thomas in July of 1866, on Bishop & Brother in September, and on Bishop Brothers in October and December of 1866. One William Bishop was born in England in September of 1829, and was a Detroit clerk in 1850. He farmed in Attica Township of Lapeer County from 1860 through 1880, and lived on in Attica Township with the family of his daughter from 1900 through 1920. He just may have left the farm to join his brother at Bay City for a couple of years in the 1860s.

Charles seems to be the most likely son of Edward Bissell to have been his partner in 1874, but that he was a principal of E. Bissell & Son is not certain. He was born in Michigan on April 24, 1857. Her parents came from New York, Lucy E. Marshall was born here in December of 1869, and she married Charles on October 22, 1894. As a salesman he traveled forty states from Maine to Oregon, Cuba, and parts of Canada.

She was born Cynthia Miriam Spofford in May of 1810 at Jaffrey, New Hampshire, and was fourteen when her parents and their eight children moved to the hamlet of six log houses called Tecumseh, Michigan. Three years later she became Lenawee County's first bride by marrying Theodore Bissell, and the couple soon moved to Lockport, New York. They also lived at Toledo, Ohio, for a while before moving in 1835 to southern Texas, then a province of Mexico, where she endured almost unbelievable hardships and adventures, including killing a wolf with no weapon but an ax. She returned in 1844 as a widow with two children, and became Tecumseh's first businesswoman. Her gallery was usually in her Logan Street home through 1863. Late in 1855 she "... purchased another new and improved apparatus, with a Camera which has not its superior in the State of Michigan, she hopes with her six years experience in the business to please all that will favor her with a call." Her message early in 1858 was: "Mrs. C. M. Bissell proposes, owing to the hardness of the times, to reduce the price of Ambrotype pictures to fifty cents each, until the first of February. Those wishing a good likeness cheap, will do well to call. Recollect only 50 cents." Her ad in the summer of 1859 was: "HOME AGAIN. MRS. C. M. BISSELL, Daguerreotype, Melainotype & Ambrotype ARTIST. Rooms open from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. at her residence on Logan Street, ... Likenesses taken in cloudy as well as clear weather." Cynthia was a naturally strong minded person, strengthened by her years in Texas, and became an outspoken leader of the local Sanitary Corps that made clothing and bandages during the Civil War. Her son Henry enlisted in the Fourth Michigan Infantry in June of 1861, and had been serving for over two years when the local newspaper published a letter from Cynthia disparaging the empty promises to take care of the families of those who enlisted made by speakers exhorting enlistment. It was characteristic of her temperament that when the chattering of an invasion of English sparrows irritated her, she had all of the beautiful maple trees about her house cut down. The Michigan State Fair was held at Adrian in September of 1865, and Cynthia was awarded a premium of $2.00 for a photograph and cards which she exhibited there. Though more prestigious awards were made to other photographers at the fair that year, "Mrs. C. M. Bissell, Photographer, Tecumseh, Mich. The FIRST PRIZE was awarded to Mrs. B. for Photographs exhibited at State and County Fairs last fall. Those wanting pictures please call and examine specimens. An endless variety of Photograph frames for sale cheap." was printed on labels on the back of ambrotypes and on cartes de visite with revenue stamps. She was out of the business by 1868 when she married William W. Tilton, a Tecumseh farmer and a recent widower. They left the farm to his children and resided in town, where Cynthia devoted her energies to causes such as the temperance movement. Local prohibition carried by a two-to-one majority in a township election in the spring of 1887. Predeceased by a married daughter, Cynthia died on January 4, 1899, at the age of 89. She was survived by two daughters and a son, four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. William Tilton died six months later.

Edward was born of English extraction in Dutchess County, New York, on July 17, 1817. On June 29, 1841, he married Lucy Caroline Provencal, who was born in Detroit on October 26, 1820. Lucy's French father had married the widow Solo after her first husband, her father and her brother had all been massacred on the River Raisin. Edward and Lucy had ten children, including their sons Charles, Edward and Nathaniel who are subjects of adjacent entries. When he first came to Holly in 1866, Edward's photograph gallery was over the boot and shoe store he operated with his brother David in a frame building on the west side of Broad Street, half a block north of Sherman Street. He soon moved the gallery to Saginaw Street, where he was located over the Second National Bank, over the Merchants National Bank, and over D. H. Stone & Company's store. His eldest son, Edward J. Bissell, was doing the photo printing when they were first in Holly, and soon became a partner. Charles P. Bissell was probably the son participating in the business in 1874. Nathaniel J. Bissell, the youngest son, was definitely Edward's partner during their last four years in Holly. The use of the NPA monogram on several of his Holly mounts, and on some of those for E. Bissell & Son, attests to Edward's membership in the National Photographic Association. An editor commented in 1886 that "Bissell, the long established Photographer, still keeps to the front with the newest wrinkles of the Art." His wife died in August of 1895, and Edward followed her on May 27, 1897.

Edward was born in Detroit on March 22, 1850, the son of Edward and Lucy Bissell. At times he was listed as a collection agent and a circuit court commissioner as well as a lawyer in Milford. Carrie was born in Michigan to a mother from New Jersey in 1856 or early in 1857, and she married Edward in the late 1870s. Their son Clarence was born in February of 1882. By 1891 Edward was a partner in a number of business ventures including a North Dakota ranch of 3200 acres. By 1900 he was a widower raising an eighteen-year-old son. In Bay City he owned and operated one of the largest pipe and supply companies in the state. Edward died on March 29, 1926.

“Mrs. Watkins, Feb. 1870” was written on the back of a carte de visite on which was printed “H. BISSELL, Photographer, Manchester, Mich. - Photographs of Adults made in cloudy as well as clear weather. Children should have the best of light. Likenesses of deceased friends can be enlarged from Daguerreotypes, Ambrotypes and small Photographs. An endless variety of Photograph Frames for sale cheap.” This Manchester photographer may well have been Henry Bissell, the son of Tecumseh photographer Mrs. Cynthia M. Bissell. Henry was born in Bastrop County, Texas, on May 31, 1840, and was brought to Michigan in 1844. He enlisted at Adrian in Company G of the Fourth Michigan Infantry on June 20, 1861, and was mustered into the army on the same day. According to his service record, Henry was mustered out at the expiration of his three-year term of service at Detroit on June 30, 1864. According to a biographer 45 years later, he participated in 42 battles (every one in which his regiment was involved except the last engagement at Appomattox), was wounded several times, and marched through Washington with his regiment in the Grand Review on May 23, 1865. After the war he engaged in several occupations, finally becoming a photographer for a number of years, most of them in the vicinity of Toledo, Ohio. Then he became a successful truck farmer in Lenawee County for several years. About 1899 he retired to his comfortable home in Tecumseh. “Perhaps mindful of the dangers of strife and warfare, as represented in his army experiences, Mr. Bissell has never assumed matrimonial responsibilities.”

Nathaniel was born in Northville on November 6, 1862, and so was no more than 16 years old when he became the partner of his father, Edward Bissell. Ida was born in Michigan in October of 1862, and she married Nathan about 1884. Their daughter Lauretta was born in February of 1886, their daughter Rilla was born in October of 1889, and their son Richard was born in September of 1893. Frank was born in Michigan to parents from New York in February of 1850, third of the nine children of Taylor and Clarissa Bixby. His two older brothers were born in New York State, and the rest of the children were born in Michigan. Frank was boarding and working out on another Avon Township farm in 1870, but was back working with his father in 1880. Mary or Mamie was born here in February of 1871, and she married Frank in 1895. Their children were born in Michigan, Hazel in January of 1897 and Arthur in February of 1898. Hunter & Bixby purchased and refitted the Pontiac gallery formerly occupied by H. M. Kittle, where they were "... prepared to make the finest pictures at the lowest figures. Come and get prices, and see our work. CABINET PICTURES $1.25 PER DOZ. We also run a viewing wagon in connection with our gallery, and make pictures anywhere in city or country...." The ads, which ran only on January 27 and February 3, 1888, noted that this was a branch of Hunter's Detroit gallery. Similar advertisements which began February 10 were signed by the Hunter Art Gallery, and this notice appeared on March 16, 1888: "A CARD TO THE PUBLIC - We desire to give notice that one Frank Bixby, is in no way connected with Hunters Art Gallery, or Detroit Viewing Company, since Saturday, Feb. 26th; all persons are warned not to trust him, or transact any business with him on our account, as we will not be responsible for any of his transactions after above date. Bert HUNTER,..." Mamie Bixby was a widow by 1930, and still was living on her own in Detroit.

This building was entirely destroyed by fire on Sunday, September 9, 1906, along with four other business blocks. The fire broke out in the livery barn of the Hotel Deckerville, and had a good start before it was discovered. The flames jumped to the hotel, and then moved both directions along the street. Black lost everything, and had no insurance. This probably was a garbled reference to George A. Black. |      | 1111m |

His parents emigrated from Canada, and George was born in Michigan in December of 1865. One of his Boyne City cabinet photographs was of the interior of a barber shop, and another was of a group of hunters in the woods. From Boyne City he also produced 6 ½ by 8 ½ prints on 8 by 10 inch mounts of an I.L.A. excursion on the Queen_of_the_Lakes, as well as many “picture load” photos of sleds with huge stacks of logs, most made for lumber king W. S. White. George’s second marriage was to 22-year-old Clara E. Demott about 1900, and they settled in Sanilac County in 1903. They had no children in 1910, when they were living with George’s widowed mother, Mrs. Marion A. Thompson. “G. A. Black” in script over “Deckerville, Mich.” in smaller block capitals was blind stamped into 8 by 10 inch mounts, including one with a photograph of 34 young men and women posed in front of a public building. There was a photographer named G. A. Black at Gravelbourg, Saskatchewan, from 1919 until 1921, and possibly as early as 1915.

Hamilton was born in Michigan in December of 1860. Sarah was born in England in January of 1860, and she married Hamilton in 1886 or early in 1887. They never had children, and by 1910 Hamilton was a widower. His second wife, Helen, was born in Pennsylvania in 1851 and married him prior to 1920. Hamilton was again a widower and was sharing his home with his fifty-year-old sister Clara in 1930. He died at Bay City in 1944, and at that time was said to have been born in Warwick Township of Lambton County, Ontario. His parents were identified as Andrew Black, a native of Scotland, and Sarah (Lucas) Black, who was born in Canada.

His father emigrated from Scotland, his mother came from Maine, and John was born in New York State on March 21, 1838. He probably was the son of John Black, who in 1850 was a widower raising three boys and two girls born between 1835 and 1846 on his own. The younger John enlisted at Lowell as a private in Company B of the Eighth Michigan Infantry on August 26, 1861. He was mustered into the army on September 23 and by June of 1862 had been assigned as a Brigade wagoner or teamster. This duty involved some lifting of heavy stores, and on March 12, 1863, at Newport News, Virginia, John sustained a double hernia or rupture and was sent back to his company. There he spent two or three months helping the cook before returning to more rigorous duties. In November of 1863 he contracted chronic diarrhea at Loudon in East Tennessee. John re-enlisted at Blain's Cross Roads, Tennessee, on December 29 but a few days later, on January 5, 1864, he was in the General Hospital at Knoxville, Tennessee. As he recovered his health, he was sent home on a convalescent and Veteran's Furlough, and later rejoined his regiment at Annapolis, Maryland. In April or June of 1864 at Annapolis he was afflicted with rheumatism and spent most of the following year in hospitals at Annapolis and Fredericksburg as well as in four different hospitals around Washington, D. C. John was promoted to corporal on July 1, 1865, and was honorably discharged from the army at Washington, D. C., on July 30, 1865. By 1870 he had a wife named Mary, who was born in Scotland about 1842. He first applied for an Invalid Pension on September 18, 1871, and began receiving a pension on January 24, 1873. By 1880 John was married to a lady named Olive, who was born in New York in 1841 or 1842. "JOHN C. BLACK, Landscape Photographer" was stamped on the back of some post card photographs with 1909 Hastings postmarks. John was a widower living by himself by 1910, and he died at Hastings late in the fall of 1912.

Louis was primarily a major manufacturer of spectacles, but his photographic activities are note worthy. In the autumn of 1858 he received a supply of minute photographs, about the size of a pin head. He carried photographic stock for a few years, and then left that field to the specialists. He commissioned an eastern artist to take a series of 47 stereoscopic views of Detroit scenes in 1869. These views were published for many years on various L. Black & Company mounts, and were periodically augmented with contemporary views. Louis Black died in 1872, but the company which he founded continued to sell stereoscopes and stereographs well into the 1900s. Some highlights of L. Black & Company's later photographic ventures are included in the entry for Albert Landsberg. Mrs. Augusta Black, widow of Louis, returned soon after his death to Berlin, Prussia or Germany, and remained an absentee principal of the company into the 1890s. The active management was handled by Albert Landsberg, who had been a partner since 1866. William Black was a principal of the firm from 1887 until his death in 1891 or 1892. L. Black & Company became the L. Black Company in 1899, with Albert Landsberg as president until his death in 1901. Maurice Black was president from 1901 until his death in 1918. His widow, Mrs. Elizabeth V. Black, managed the L. Black Company until about 1939, when she was succeeded by Sarah T. Black.

William Andrew Black was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan on October 15, 1881, first of the five children of Wesley and Alice Black. He was boarding with the family of Frank Van Leuven in 1910, when he seems to have been working for Frank. "Van." was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs along with such captions as "Lower Bridge & Wood Hill Newaygo, Mich." and "South side Main St Newaygo, Mich." Some of the cards were mailed between May of 1909 and May of 1911. William listed Mrs. Hazel Black of Newaygo as his nearest relative in 1918. One William Black was a patient or inmate in the Pontiac State Hospital with no assigned duties in 1920, and with duties as a hall helper in 1930. Harriet Parker was born in Canada about 1859, the daughter of James and Margaret Parker. She married James E. Blackmore at Simcoe, Ontario, on February 11, 1879. James was Harriet's partner in a portrait studio at 86 Monroe Street in 1886, as well as in The Blackmore Art Company in 1887. The company's early cabinet mounts identify them as Photographers and Portrait Painters that make a specialty of life size portraits. On later mounts they are called Artists and Dealers in Photo Stock and Artist's Materials. Their daughter Precilla was born in New Jersey in 1893, and she still was sharing their home in 1920. James was born at London, Ontario, on September 24, 1861, the son of William and Julia Elizabeth Blackmore. He married Harriet Parker at Simcoe, Ontario, on February 11, 1879. They moved to the United States in 1880 and later became naturalized citizens. James and Harriet were business partners in 1886 and 1887. Joseph J. Blackmore of St. Thomas, Ontario, was president of the Blackmore Manufacturing Company, while James was secretary and treasurer. They employed William S. Watkins as a photographer and Etta Bronson as a finisher in 1889, made photographic appliances in 1888 and 1889, and manufactured photographic goods and picture frames in 1890. James seems to have filed his first patent applications on April 25, 1888, covering a Stand for Photographic Cameras for which Patent No. 390,199 was granted October 2, 1888, and a tripod mounted Photographic Camera for which Patent No. 392,003 issued on October 30, 1888. Patent No. 435,342 was granted to him on August 26, 1890, for a Camera that could be used for instantaneous work without being removed from its carrying case. His Patent No. 520,030 issued May 22, 1894, describing a Motor Opticon or projector; No. 525,439 issued September 4, 1894, covering a Camera Shutter for more than 100 lenses arranged to take successive exposures of a moving object on one stationary plate; No. 528,140 issued October 30, 1894, describing a Camera for taking a connected series of pictures using moving strip film; No. 590,204 was granted September 21, 1897, for a Roll Holding Flash Light Camera; and No. 682,131 issued September 3, 1901, covering a Pistol for Firing Flash-Light Cartridges.

Edwin was born at Kincardine on the eastern shore of Lake Huron in Ontario on December 25, 1886. Eva was born in Michigan to Canadian parents about 1887, and she married Edwin when she was 24 years old. They don't seem to have had any children. By 1917 Edwin was a naturalized citizen of the United States, and was a tall married man with black hair and deficient brown eyes. From his Portrait & Commercial Studio at 116 ½ Hamilton, Edwin offered "Everything in Photography." Henry F. Bornhoff worked as a photographer for Edwin from 1923 through 1933.

Lemuel was born in Illinois to English parents in April of 1872, the son of George and Emma Blakemore. His brother William was ten years older and his sisters Eda, Della and Ruth were from one to five years younger. Bernadetta (sometimes called Nettie) was born in Minnesota in January of 1879, and she married Lemuel about 1894. Their children were born in Minnesota: George in January of 1895, and then Hart and Edith between 1903 and 1906. The imprint of Boetcher & Blakemore and the blind stamp of Calumet photographer William Nara were both applied to some cabinet mounts. L. Blakemore, H. Larson and H. Boetcher were succeeded as proprietors of the Rembrandt Studio in Winnipeg by Herman Larson and Lemuel Blakemore. The Kingston studio was operated as a branch of Lemuel's Toronto business. Marie was born in Iowa to Bohemian parents about 1898, and she seems to have married Lemuel about 1919.

He was identified as Robert H. Bliven in 1871, and as R. Harry Bliven in 1872. He was born in Ohio in 1844 or early in 1845, the younger son of J. B. and Carlin Bliven. His brother Charles was eight years older and a telegraph operator. Robert was enrolled on April 20, 1861, to serve three months as a private in Company A of the Fourteenth Ohio Infantry. At the end of his term of service he was mustered out on August 13, 1861. He then was enrolled on in Company C of the Third Ohio Cavalry on September 16, and was mustered into the army on October 8, 1861. From April through October of 1862 Robert seems to have been on detached service with the First Battalion as a telegraph operator. Apparently Robert was promoted to Quarter Master Sergeant of the First Battalion shortly before his honorable discharge from the service at Columbus, Ohio, on November 12, 1862. Alice G. Day was born in Ohio in 1852 or early in 1853, the daughter of David M. and Harriet W. Day. She married Robert about 1875, and their son Charles was born in Ohio in 1877 or early in 1878. It was reported in May of 1878 that "R. H. Bliven of Toledo, Ohio, has rented the photograph gallery on Main Street lately occupied by Capt. Hughson, and solicits a share of patronage from our people. He will aim to please." Robert cited gun shot wounds to his right shoulder and left leg in his 1891 Declaration for Invalid Pension, though no medical records were included in the information about him furnished by the War Department to the Bureau of Pensions in 1893. His Application Number 1006220 finally resulted in Certificate Number 888608 entitling Robert to a pension of $8.00 per month, but he never was paid before he was dropped from the pension rolls in January of 1896 because of his death.

His father emigrated from Germany and Alfred was born in Detroit on January 4, 1869, second of the four sons of Frederic C. and Elizabeth R. (Bugler) Blome. His mother was a widow by 1880, raising four boys between six and thirteen years old. As an Allen Brothers employee Alfred was listed as a traveling agent in 1891 and as a shipping clerk in 1898. With the outbreak of the Spanish-American War, a merchant steamer was converted into the auxiliary cruiser U.S.S. Yosemite and was manned by members of the Michigan Naval Brigade, a unit of the United States Naval Militia. Alfred served as a seaman on the Yosemite in the Caribbean Sea. While blockading the port of San Juan, Puerto Rico, the Yosemite intercepted and destroyed a Spanish blockade runner. In 1900 the experience that Alfred and his younger brother Frederick had gained with Allen Brothers gave them the confidence to engage in a similar business on their own. Alfred often was identified as the secretary and treasurer of the Blome Brothers firm. Margaret Halstead was born in Canada about 1877, the daughter of John H. and Anna (Breaurer) Halstead, and she came to the United States in 1900. She and Alfred went to Essex, Ontario, to get married on July 27, 1903. Their son Alfred was born in 1910 or early in 1911. In 1915 Alfred was 54 years old, 5 feet 8½ inches tall, with brown eyes, a dark complexion and grey hair, and he apparently got an urge to visit the sites of his time in the Navy. He applied for a passport in May with plans to visit Cuba, Jamaica, Panama and Costa Rica for pleasure. He seems to have carried out his plans, and he arrived back in New York harbor from Puerto Limon, Costa Rica, on June 21, 1915. Alfred died at his Detroit home on May 15, 1937, survived by his wife, his son, and his brother Frederick. His burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery with other members of the U.S.S. Yosemite crew as pallbearers.

His father emigrated from Germany and Frederick was born in Detroit on January 23, 1874, last of the four sons of Frederic C. and Elizabeth R. (Bugler) Blome. His mother was a widow by 1880, raising four boys between six and thirteen years old. In 1900 the experience that Frederick and his older brother Alfred had gained with Allen Brothers gave them the confidence to engage in a similar business on their own. Leila was born in Michigan in 1890, and she married Frederick about 1915. Their daughter Mary was born in May of 1917, and their daughter Harriet was born in September of 1918. Their residence was in Detroit in 1916 and 1917, and then in Highland Park from 1918 through 1927. Frederick often was identified as vice president of the Blome Brothers firm, and he had other business interests. He was a principal of Pearson, Butterfield & Blome in 1916, and was treasurer of the Leggett Farm Land Company in 1918. He retired in 1930. Frederick died at his home in Rochester on March 12, 1952, survived by his wife, Leila May Blome, and their three sons and three daughters.

Harry was born on November 14, 1879, at Drinsk in the Polish region of Russia, where his family spoke Yiddish. He matured into a short slender man with brown eyes and hair, he immigrated in 1900, and he became a naturalized citizen of the United States in 1912. In Detroit, Harry claimed to have excellent equipment for taking photographs of groups and of children. Sarah was born in the Polish region of Russia about 1885, she immigrated in 1902, and she married Harry in 1906 or early in 1907. Their sons were born in Ohio, Earnest late in 1907 and Robert in August of 1909.

David was born at Galt, Ontario, on February 26, 1884, was brought across the border by his Canadian parents in 1885, and became a United States citizen in 1894 when his father was naturalized while David was still a minor. He was single in 1900, and was living with his widowed mother, Mrs. Emma Blyth. D. Radford Blythe and H. Lynn Pierce were identified as principals of the Miami Studio. David was sole proprietor of the Vogue Studio, was five feet seven inches tall and slender with gray eyes and hair, and by 1918 was married to Margery N. Blyth. All other references were to Mrs. Harriet N. Blyth, who was born in Michigan about 1888. David and Harriet visited Singapore in 1838, and returned by way of Italy, sailing in May from Naples to New York City on the S. S. Saturnia. A few months later they traveled from Windsor through Detroit on their way to New York City with the intent of residing there permanently. At this time David stated that he had lived in Detroit from 1885 until 1932.

His mother emigrated from England, and Alfred was born in New York State in May of 1870. Rosa was born in Switzerland in December of 1868, immigrated to America, and married Alfred about 1893. They had no children, and by 1910 Rosa was a principal of their Howell gallery and the proprietor of the Alma gallery. Alfred purchased the Lake City gallery from William Harmer in 1897, apparently after buying the Cadillac gallery from him a few months earlier. He must have had some help, for he usually kept the Cadillac gallery open every day, the Lake City gallery open Mondays and Tuesdays, and the Manton gallery open on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. A stock of mouldings and ready-made frames was kept at each of the three galleries. The Lake City gallery was open every day during the 16th annual Missaukee County Fair, September 22 through 24, 1897. Alfred had an interest in a gallery at Alma at the time he bought the Shepherd gallery of Lathrop J. Briggs in October of 1907. In 1911 The Alma studio was a branch of the Howell business. Either Alfred became a bigamist or he and Rosa divorced, for by 1920 he had a 29-year-old Irish wife named Julia and son named Burton who was born in Florida in March of 1919. The Howell studio may have been in his name, but Rosa seems to have been the photographer there for the last few years.

Rosa was born into a German-speaking family in Switzerland in December of 1868. She was eldest of the six children of John and Kate Miller, who immigrated to America about 1873, spent a couple of years in New York State, and reached Michigan by 1876 to farm in Klacking Township of Ogemaw County. She married Alfred E. Boardman about 1893. She lost one child prior to 1900 and never had another. As noted above, Alfred needed assistance to keep multiple galleries open between 1897 and 1901, and Rosa probably furnished the help he required. In 1910 she and Alfred were both enumerated as principals of the Howell studio, and a week later she was enumerated as the proprietor of the Alma studio. Rose probably was divorced from Alfred before 1920, when she was identified as the proprietor of the Howell studio. She had called herself Rose earlier at Alma in 1910.

His parents came from Ohio and New York, and Claude was born in Comstock Township of Kalamazoo County, Michigan, in April of 1880 to Jacob and Catherine Bocker. He had an older sister and a much older half-sister. Claude matured into a medium sized man with brown eyes and black hair. His wife's father came from New York, her mother emigrated from Canada, and Aurel was born in Michigan about 1875. They married in 1905, their three elder sons were born in Michigan between 1910 and 1917, and their youngest son was born in Washington State in August of 1919. They advertised in the fall of 1852: "A NOTORIOUS COUNTERFEITER.... Startle not, gentle reader, we do not counterfeit Bank Notes, neither do we coin much money, but it is the persons, Men and Women, and Children, which we picture so exact, that they stand forth in BOLD RELIEF - seem to say to those looking at them: Speak and I will answer.

Think not these portraits by the sunlight made; / Shades, though they are, will like a shadow fade!
No! When the lip of flesh in dust shall lie; / When Death's gray film o'erspread the beaming eye, These life-like pictures, mocking at decay, / Will still be fresh and vivid as today.

CITIZENS AND STRANGERS respectfully invited to call and examine their work. Likenesses taken equally well in cloudy weather. Instructions given in the art. Apparatus and stock always on hand. His parents came from Pennsylvania and New York, and Grant was born in Ohio in September of 1866, the son of John R. and Emily L. Boice. He was living in 1880 with his widowed mother, three older siblings born in Missouri and Ohio, and two younger siblings born in Tennessee. Her parents came from Ohio and New York, Nettie was born in Indiana in July of 1869, and she married Grant about 1888. Their daughter Berdene was born in Michigan in February of 1891 and their other children were born in Indiana: Ralph (later John R.) in October of 1897, Elton (later Kenneth) in 1902, Catherine or Kathryn in November of 1908, and Caroline in December of 1909. Though many of Grant's cabinet photographs were from Bronson, some were from Bronson and Burr Oak or from Burr Oak only. "Ella L. Brown, ARTIST, Burr Oak." was printed in gold ink below the image on mounts for cabinet photographs. "G. S. BOICE, SUCCESSOR TO" was later printed in blue ink on some of these mounts. By 1930 Nettie was a widow, and was sharing her Elkhart home with her son Kenneth, her daughter Kathryn and her husband, and a grandson.

Bond, N. Ward

Grand Marais PHOTOGRAPHER ..... 1890-1895 1 2
Ward and his two sisters were among the first white settlers of Grand Marais, and his photography preceded the lumber boom of the middle 1890s. He was not identified on the stiff card mounts used for his photographs, which probably included a series of street scenes taken soon after the village was platted in 1883. Another of his photos was of his brother-in-law, the local mail carrier, with his horse drawn wagon. Ward was considered to be the town photographer during the later 1880s and the early 1890s. He advertised in 1895: "N. W. BOND, PHOTOGRAPHIC STUDIO, of Grand Marais, Mich. Extra orders can be filled at any time as the negatives are preserved." 1 2

George's parents came from Canada and he was born in Michigan on February 20, 1884. He was adopted by David and Angeline Dubay, who were old enough to be his grandparents, and was sharing their home in 1900. He matured into a medium sized man with grey eyes and brown hair. Veronica was born in Michigan in 1885, she married George about 1902, and their three sons and two daughters were born in Michigan between 1903 and 1915. "GEO. BONEVILLE, OMER, MICH." was stamped on the backs of plain gray 7 by 9 inch mounts carrying 5 by 7 prints, including one of 21 men with shovels standing by a new ditch and one of "Grandma Grabow and Myrtle Ross, Grandma's house, East Tawas." As manager of the Stepestone View Company, George used 9¼ by 11¼ commercial mounts from Newaygo for views of the dam and depot at Morley, and the 7 by 9 format to depict the Bath School after a disastrous explosion on May 18, 1927. Moving his business and family from Newaygo to Weidman was reported in April of 1925, as was a similar move from Weidman to Trufant in August of 1925. George and his daughters were visiting Weidman from Flint in July of 1926. "GEO. BONEVILLE, VIEW ARTIST, 322 Wood St., Flint, Mich." was stamped on the backs of plain grey 7 by 9 inch mounts carrying 5 by 7 inch photographs of racially integrated elementary classes posed outside their schools. "STEPSTONE VIEWING CO., George Boneville, Mgr." OR "STEPSTONE VIEW CO., George Boneville, Mgr., NEWAYGO, MICHIGAN" was stamped on some mounts.

Leo was born in Germany on March 1, 1877, was brought to America in 1880, and became a United States citizen when his father was naturalized while Leo was still a minor. His siblings were born in Michigan: Sophia in June of 1881 and Bernice in October of 1882. Through 1902 he was listed as Leo A. Bonisz. His sister Sophia became his clerk in 1906, and in 1910 she was enumerated as a photographer and as a principal of the gallery. Leo advertised in 1915: "... Wedding photos a specialty. Private dressing rooms in connection. Sittings made at night. Appointments by phone appreciated." In 1918 Leo was of medium height and slender with blue eyes and black hair. The address change in 1920 was not due to relocation, but rather to sweeping revisions in the Detroit numbering system. 5631 Michigan Avenue appears on more post card photographs than does 1579, and the cards are both studio portraits and candid outdoor scenes. Leo used this format to record an excursion to All Saints Roman Catholic Church in Flint, and a parade honoring the First Representative of Free Poland to Detroit in the early 1920s. In 1938 his Warren Avenue studio was "New Modern Air-Conditioned, 'Photography in All its Branches.' Night Sittings and Weddings by Appointment. Hours 9 to 6 Every Day and Sunday. Wednesday and Saturday 9 to 9. Free Private Parking in Rear..." Mrs. Ida Mae Bonish was Leo's wife. She was born in Michigan in 1879 or 1880, married Leo about 1907, and assisted in his commercial photography until his retirement about 1956 and her death in Detroit on April 25, 1958. Leo died at Miami, Florida, on June 14, 1960, and his body was returned to Detroit for burial in Holy Cross Cemetery. His studio burned after being abandoned for many years, and about fifty 8 by 10 glass negatives were recovered after the fire. Though most of them displayed water damage for some distance in from the edges, prints made from them by a Detroit photographer showed funereal and religious events, an orchestra, saber dancers, chunky and coquettish female dancers and musicians singly and in groups, and draped young women with an occasional bared breast in what were supposed to be alluring poses. What with the cracked edges, the youth of some of the performers, and the naive and rather stilted tableaux, some of the effects were quite bizarre.

Henry was born in New Jersey in September of 1829, Mary was born in New York four years later, and they had a daughter born in Michigan in 1866 or 1867. Henry's Ionia gallery was in the New England Block in 1864. Printed on the back of some of his cartes de visite was: "H. W. BOOZER. ARTIST in Water Colors and India Ink. MAKER of every style of Sun Pictures, from life size down. Paper and Porcelain Photographs, Gems, Photographic Business Cards and Photographic Visiting Cards for ladies, both by the hundred with name, residence and business – the latest novelty. All kinds of copies and enlarging. Particular attention paid to all solar work. DEALER in oval and rustic Frames, Cords, Tassels and every kind of Photographic Albums. Exclusive agency for the Photographic Family Register, in Ionia County. This is an article wanted in every family. THE BEST WORK of this section made in this gallery, and as good average quality as is made in the state, at the lowest living prices. ROOMS up stairs, in the New England Block, Ionia, Mich." His cartes de visite included a view of the smoldering ruins after the Ionia fire of 1865 and a bird's-eye view of Ionia, as well as the usual portraits. In 1866 he offered an assortment of photographs superbly finished in water colors and India ink which he had obtained from New York. He later had copies available in different sizes and prices of a series of photos of caribou hunting in Canada. After several unsatisfactory attempts to secure views of the Union School House in Ionia, the enterprising Mr. Boozer built an elevated platform from which he obtained splendid negatives undisturbed by the thick growth of small oaks which obscured the view from the ground. The tops of these oaks were visible in the foreground of a 9½ by 7½ print from one of the negatives. From his emporium of Art in September of 1866 could be obtained cartes de visite, vignettes, ambrotypes, enlargements from small pictures plain or finished in water colors, oil or India ink, photographs from life in the same finishes, colored or plain porcelain pictures, pictures on watch dials, gems, albums and oval frames in great variety, all sizes of rectangular frames made to order, the new cabinet size album photograph, gents photographic business cards, ladies photographic visiting cards, and family photographic registers. Some comments from Henry appeared in The Philadelphia Photographer in 1867. In January of 1868 he photographed Gideon's Band from a local farce, and before leaving Ionia he took a picture of Professor Hutchins and the lady teachers of the Union School. Henry produced stereo views of both Ionia and Grand Rapids. By a unique arrangement of admitting light to his new rooms in Grand Rapids, he succeeded in obtaining pictures with perfectly natural shades, without the inky and bleached spots noticeable in most photographs of the time. The backs of some Grand Rapids cartes de visite were covered with fine print: "This picture was made at the Excelsior Photographic Art Place, Phoenix Hall,... opposite the county offices, and next to the Post-office. Duplicates can be had at any time. - The aim of this establishment is to produce first class work, that is really such, at reasonable rates. Our design is to connect art with photographic manipulation, so that each picture, when finished, shall be a gem of artistic excellence; and, therefore, appeal to those who have a love of the beautiful in art rather than to those who care only to sustain commercial photography. Please remember that the object of this establishment is to assist you to realize your idea of beauty and excellence in a portrait; and that counsel, patience, and pains-taking effort and care, shall not be wanting to attain that end, assisted by every convenience and modern improvement. If you have failed in time past in obtaining a likeness, here is a place where you can accomplish it. The photographic character of the atelier can be adapted and changed to every kind and class of the 'human face divine;' and it is a fact known to all skillful photographers, that every new countenance requires a different treatment and rendering. These conditions have been attained by great effort and care, and form a photographic arrangement of a rare and peculiar character. No kind of picture wanting in durability made here; everything is warranted permanent. - While we cannot satisfy those who expect the best quality of Photographic work for the same price as that of the poorest quality, yet, if the character of the same is considered, here is the cheapest work to be found. Cartes de visite of that quality which will cost you elsewhere from six to twelve dollars per dozen, will be furnished at a less price, and other work in like proportion. Good pictures cannot be made without great cost to the operator, and we therefore do not advertise work 'cheaper,' which in photography always means poorer, than everybody else. Prices are fixed. No deductions made, or pictures thrown in, - A great peculiarity of the Excelsior Photographic Art Place is, that we take all kinds of pictures in all kinds of weather. Please remember that if you have a restive child or babe, a large group, a nervous person, or any job that requires a short sitting, and the day is dark, or even stormy, that here is the only place where you can be sure of a good result without waiting for a brighter day. This establishment is independent of weather. Groups of any size made. An unusually fine arrangement for large classes and schools. One of our chief specialties is the large work finished in India Ink, water colors, and oil. Such is the character of the artistic talent employed in finishing this class of work, being the best painters to be found in the eastern homes of art, that the results are unrivalled. Even if you have an old picture of a deceased friend, it can be enlarged by copying to life size, if you wish, and painted finely at a cost of a few dollars to hundreds of dollars, according to the amount of work. This combines real art with photography's most perfect efforts, and produces a result which is unsurpassed in excellence. No better legacy can be left with the family in the event of death, as the value of such souvenirs of art cannot be estimated in money. No costly furniture can so combine the useful and ornamental. This is fully evinced in their appreciation by the cultured and refined in the comfortable and luxurious homes of the older settled sections of the United States, and in the Old World. Please remember that this class of work is guaranteed as second to none of its kind, to say the least that can be said in its favor. To get a good picture, describe plainly just what you want before commencing, and don't be otherwise than in a good, pleasant, jovial mood, from the time you come in till you leave. Your likeness will be just what you make it when our plate receives the impression. Don't hurry the operator; he always works as fast as the process itself will admit of, so as to be ready for the next sitter. It is absolutely necessary that the person to be suited shall be present when the impression is taken; we cannot in any case guarantee satisfaction to an absent person or persons. Dress in plain goods, generally, and avoid stripes, bars, and figures. Avoid white in large masses; and if you wish pictures in white, dress in blue, pink, lilac, or light drab. Buff is the only color that takes dark. Purple takes lighter than it is. Yellow, wine, red, tan, snuff, brown, green, black, and very dark drab, slate, and stone, take well. Linens are harsh, pale, and worthless. Cotton will do. Delaines are better. Woolens are best. Silks and satins are rich, but have great contrasts in light and shade. Blue, pink, and drab velvets are good. Dark velvets are worthless, except for trimmings, and take an inky black. If you wish to be dressed in goods of a lighter grade of color, we have every facility for rendering them as well as though they were darker. We can give you indoor or outdoor representation in almost every possible variety; and you will oblige the operator by giving some thought to the kind and style of picture wanted before entering the establishment. Visitors will please observe that all business is transacted through a regular system, and that we can on no occasion depart from our regular programme to gratify the ideas or wants of anyone. Working faithfully as we do for the best interests of the general public, we choose our own course, and walk steadily in it, doing justice to all. Under these conditions we are grateful for your patronage, and are always glad to receive visitors, whether wanting work or not, always designing to have such a display on exhibition as will repay such for their visit. - We keep to sell all kinds of oval and square frames, and furnish to order any thing that can be called for. Also, cords and tassels, albums, and every kind of article connected with Photographic representation. - Don't forget the place: Excelsior Photographic Art Place, Phoenix Hall, ... H. W. Boozer, proprietor. Instituted 1868." The Philadelphia Photographer reported in March of 1869 that he had "... opened a fine new gallery, and has sent us some very pretty cabinet portraits made under his new light. We should judge it to be an excellent one, and in good hands." He sent one of his advertising sheets to this journal early in 1871. The title "LUMBERING IN MICHIGAN. 1873." was printed on 10 by 12 inch mounts, along with "H. W. Boozer, Photographer, Grand Rapids, Residence 171 Lyon St., P. O. Box 1379." One of the prints so mounted shows a group of loggers in front of a barn-like building. A sticker on the back of the mount states: "FRAMES FOR THESE VIEWS can be obtained at less price for the same good quality, of H. W. BOOZER, at his business headquarters, than they can elsewhere, for the reason that he deals in this size in a very large quantity, and can, therefore, buy and sell cheaper." In 1874 he was offering "Boozer's Life Size Photographs, all kinds of copying and enlarging." He employed Charles E. Avery as a photographer in 1875. Henry's second wife, Clara, was born in the Netherlands in December of 1840, emigrated with her family in 1846, and married Henry about 1897.

Borden, Andrew

Litchfield PHOTOGRAPHER ..... 1890-1893

These presumably were misspelled references to Augustus Borden, the apparent successor to Andrew as Litchfield's photographer, since no other pertinent records of Andrew were found and the printing on cabinet mounts was confined to: "Borden's Studio, Litchfield, Mich." Photographs in this format included a young man in racing costume with his bicycle as well as outdoor scenes.

His parents came from New York, and Augustus was born in Ohio in December of 1839, second of the seven children of Joseph and Mary Borden. He grew up on the family farm, and had his own farm by the time he married Edna in the late 1860s. Their daughter Carrie was born in March of 1870 and their son Charles was born on June 26, 1875. Something happened to Edna after 1880, and about 1892 Augustus married Mrs. Mary E. Collins, born in Michigan in March of 1853, to become the stepfather of Eugene F. and Raymond Collins. Eugene became a Mount Pleasant photographer from 1901 until 1948. Augustus and Mary were living retired at Mount Pleasant in 1910, but Augustus was a widower living with his son Charles in 1920. He passed away at the age of 86 at his home in Jonesville on September 16, 1925. His body was brought to Mount Pleasant, where a burial service was conducted by the Masons of the city.

Rich was managing Eskil's Iron Mountain gallery in August of 1888, and by September of 1888 had purchased a half interest in his Norway gallery. Bordewich & Eskil built a new gallery on Nelson Street in Norway which opened in the fall of 1889. In 1891 they advertised: "... Crayon Portraits and Oil Paintings a Specialty. Photography in all its branches. Mining and Logging Views always on hand. Photographs from Life, and Copies, reduced or enlarged and finished in the finest style. NELSON STREET, NORWAY, MICH." Views of Norway and of mines in the vicinity, as well as two portraits, were reproduced in The Menominee Iron Range from photographs by Bordewich. Bordewich & Eskil posed a woman with a stereo viewer and some views, and photographed a baby in its carriage. Rich posed a boy with his huge dog, and a teamster in his mittens and fur coat and cap holding his bull whip with its butt on the floor. Richard sold the Norway gallery to Henry Elmgaard in May of 1896 and returned to Christiana, Norway, where he died on May 8, 1898.

Sam was born in Austria on August 15, 1884, and by 1918 had not applied for United States citizenship. He was short with gray eyes and dark hair, and his nearest relative was his father, still living in the Galacia region of Austria. Sam and John Patyk were proprietors of the Wakefield Bowling Alleys in 1917. In January of 1919, he and someone named Conant were partners in the Wakefield Photo Gallery. In November of 1919 Sam moved into the Schilka Building and installed a new camera. In 1923 he advertised twelve photos for six dollars, plus a free large photograph. His ad in June of 1924 was: "Get your Printing and Developing Done at Home. Quick Service. Fair Prices. SAM BORIS, The Photographer." In April of 1926 Sam was advertising for thirty people to sit for him, so as to be included in a special album. The first three gazetteer listings were for Samuel Bous.

Henry was born in Germany on September 12, 1877, third of the four children of Christ and Annie Bornhoff, and almost two years junior to his brother John. He emigrated from Germany with his family in 1881, and he survived the San Francisco earthquake. By 1918 he had declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States, and was a short man with gray eyes and brown hair. May was born in Michigan in 1893, and probably was one of the three daughters of Alonzo K. and Elizabeth Polter. She married Henry prior to 1920, and their daughter Lila Jean was born in June of 1926. By 1930 Henry was a widower with a small daughter, and May's sister Ruby had joined the household to take care of her. When Richard Rummel was an unpaid apprentice at Blackwell's studio, frustrated by exclusively janitorial assignments, Henry offered to pass along his photographic knowledge to Richard at his home in the evenings. He refused payment, but had Richard promise that he would in turn dispense photographic knowledge freely if it was requested in the future. Richard purchased a studio at Frankenmuth early in 1933, and for two months Henry spent his weekends there teaching Richard how to use the photographic equipment. Henry died in Michigan during August of 1962.

John was born in Germany on November 9, 1875, second of the four children of Christ and Annie Bornhoff, and the older brother of Henry F. Bornhoff. Ransom was born in New York State in the summer of 1814. Mary was born there at about the same time, and she married Ransom about 1835. Their children were in New York: Fletcher and Lawrence between 1837 and 1840, and Mary about 1848. Both of their sons were photographers at Union, New York, Lawrence M. Bostwick from 1858 until 1860 and Fletcher M. Bostwick in 1870. An 1869 item in the Union News mentioned that Ransom Bostwick was doing "Spirit" photographs at St. Joseph, Michigan. By 1870 Ransom had a 51-year-old wife named Diantha who was born in New York and brought along a son born about 1860 when she became Mrs. Bostwick. Ransom and Diantha still were providing a home for her son in 1880. For the 1880 census, Ransom was enumerated at home in Saranac on Saturday, the fifth of June, and boarding with Peter and Mary Fellows on their Odessa Township farm three days later. He seems to have been working as a photographer in their vicinity.

Ida was born in Michigan in May of 1868, eldest of the five children of photographer William Boswell and his wife Fannie. In 1900 she and her two brothers, John W. and William T. Boswell, were living with their widowed mother, and Ida may have perpetuated her father's Traverse City photographic business for a year or two after his death. In 1910, she and her mother were living with John, who was a rural mail carrier. John continued providing a home for Ida and as a mail carrier through 1930. Neither John nor Ida ever married.

The parents of William and his wife all emigrated from England, he was born in New York State about 1837, and Fannie was born there in August of 1838. Their children were born in Michigan: Ida in May of 1868, Cora in 1880 or early in 1881, Martha in November of 1872, John in November of 1875, and William in June of 1879. The elder William produced stereoscopic views of Pontiac and of Flint. The NPA monogram of the National Photographic Association was printed on some card mounts above: "WM. BOSWELL, (Successor to J. M. LeCler & Co.), EXCELSIOR GALLERY, 131 Saginaw Street, Pontiac, ..." and "WM. BOSWELL, PHOTOGRAPHER, CLARE Branch Gallery, Boyne City, Mich." was printed on some cabinet mounts. The East Jordan gallery probably was operated by William's daughter, Martha Boswell, from about 1893 until 1898, when she took it over in her married name, Martha Boswell Palmiter. Fannie was identified as a widow in June of 1900, and was sharing her home with three of her children, Ida, John and William T.

This William was the son of the photographer William Boswell mentioned above, and was born at Flint on June 3, 1879. As a child, he was called Thomas W. Boswell. He advertised in 1907 as successor to the Palmiter Studio, of which his sister was the proprietor. "Boswell" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs of East Jordan scenes, and many of the cards were postmarked in 1907. They included views of Main Street with and without banks of snow, the military band, churches, bridges, and large boats. In 1918 William's height and weight were about average, he had blue eyes and brown hair, and was married to Grace Imogene (Gregory) Boswell. He died in 1919, survived by Grace and their son, Greg Boswell.

"P. K. BOTTING, BRIMLEY, MICH." was printed on the post card back of a photograph of a church interior nicely decorated, probably for Christmas. This card was mailed in February of 1908. Philip produced numerous other postal photos of Brimley, many of them with captions typed on the photographic print. Philip was born at Fernoy in Leeds County, Ontario, on March 12, 1871, the son of Alfred and Elizabeth (Jones) Botting. He crossed the border in 1885, and by 1900 was a naturalized citizen of the United States. He went back to Ontario to marry Elmina Sanders at Westport on March 13, 1895. Elmina (often called Minnie or Mina) was born in April of 1870 at Westport in Leeds County, Ontario, the daughter of Harry and Olive (Jones) Sanders. Elmer was born at Bath, New York, on February 14, 1830. He and his 18-year-old brother Levi were living and working in 1850 on the farm of 63-year-old Polly Boughton, who may have been their grandmother. Elmer was enumerated as a single daguerrean artist in 1860, when he was providing a home for Polly Boughton. Henrietta was born in New York State in 1845, and she married Elmer in the early 1860s for their daughter Blanch and son Sanford were born between 1864 and 1867. Their daughter was crippled with dropsy, and their son Charles was born in 1877 or 1878. Elmer was among the original members when the Kalamazoo Light Guards formed in 1859. The Michigan State Fair was held in Kalamazoo in 1863, and a First Premium was awarded to Elmer for the collection of ambrotypes he exhibited there. Some of his carte de visite imprints included: "... ALL NEGATIVES PRESERVED! – PICTURES COPIED, AND THE BEST AMBOTYPES IN THE WORLD, MADE AT BOUGHTON'S." J. W. Cook used some of Elmer's card mounts overprinted with his own name, and was probably his successor when Elmer went into the grocery business and began making "Turio," a rheumatism remedy. In the late 1870s, Elmer also shipped dried fruits and dealt in oysters and canned goods. He died at Kalamazoo on September 27, 1890.

William was born in England in 1840 or early in 1841. He was single in 1870, and was residing in a large boarding house. By 1880 he was married to a lady named Alice who was born in New York State to a Canadian mother in 1853 or early in 1854.

William was born in England in July of 1848, and immigrated to Canada with his parents in 1855. The family later moved to Port Huron. After working for a year in the mills at Alpena, William attended London Commercial College in Ontario and then spent two years in Middlesex Seminary at Komoka, Ontario. On his return to Michigan he settled in a log house on a homestead four miles from Alpena, from which he published The Alpena Frolic from 1873 until 1880. He was elected Alpena Township Clerk in 1874, contributed many feature articles on the early history of the region to Alpena's weekly newspaper, and published a Complete History of Alpena County in June of 1876. He was an ardent photographer. "WILLIAM BOULTON, Alpena, Mich." was printed boldly on the back of 5 ½ by 8 inch mounts, one carrying a photograph taken from the Second Street Bridge in Alpena of lumber schooners and other shipping on the Thunder Bay River, and others with pictures of a hunting camp at Rush Lake in Montmorency County, about 35 miles west of Alpena. In the spring of 1886 a photographic journal described two of William's photographs: "One is a very good view on a long street with snow on the ground, and the distance as well as the foreground are both excellent. The print is somewhat flat from under-printing. The other picture is a view in the forest with the ground covered with snow, and a group of men and horses are 'skidding pine logs.' This picture is excellent, sharp, clean and altogether lifelike." In 1893 William published a "Souvenir" of Alpena with many full page pictures, and in 1895 he published a revised and more complete edition of his history. By 1900 he was a naturalized citizen of the United States, and he seems to have remained single all of his life. He was 72 years old when he died at Alpena on March 22, 1921, at which time most of his 5 by 8 and 5 by 9 inch glass negatives had been preserved.

Charlie was born in Ohio to English parents in January of 1862, last of the six children of John and Sarah Bousfield. Nellie (sometimes Phyllis) was born in Michigan in May of 1865, and she married Charlie about 1889. Their daughter Elaine was born in Michigan in December of 1890, and their son Belknap was born here in August of 1896. Bousfield & Company, of which Charlie was an officer for three decades, was founded by his father prior to the indicated time span. Charlie filed a patent application on May 15, 1899, on a Device for Holding Negatives, and was granted Patent Number 640,739 on January 8, 1900. His device was a flexible wire form which clamped upon the edges of a glass negative plate, with an offset handle to facilitate handling in the developing bath. The shape of the form permitted the plate to be suspended or supported in several different attitudes. The writing is obscure, but Charlie seems to have been manufacturing phonograph cases in 1920, with his son as a principal of the company.

His parents came from New Hampshire and Massachusetts, and William was born in Kentucky in September of 1836. Celia was born in New York State in October of 1837, and married William about 1857. Their daughter Carrie was born in Minnesota in 1858 or early in 1859, their son Benjamin was born in Wisconsin about 1862, and their daughters Margaret and Mabel were born in Illinois between 1870 and 1876. William's advertising in the St. Peter Minnesota Statesman in June of 1859 stated that he had operated in various places for six years and considered himself an adept. His gallery was open from 8 A.M. to 5 P.M. during the two weeks he was in St. Peter. In the early 1880s there was a photographer named Boutwell at St. Charles, Illinois. William attended the annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Milwaukee in August of 1883. He produced stereo views of Hillsdale. He guaranteed artistic portraits and made a specialty of fine crayon work in 1894. Carrie, their eldest daughter, and her second husband were sharing the home of her widowed mother in 1910. 1

His father came from New York and his mother came from Ohio, and Ed was born in Michigan in July of 1872, youngest of the six children of Clark and Aurelia Bovee. He stayed on the family farm through 1900 and married Inez Brainard about 1906, shortly before opening the photography studio. They remained childless for many years, years in which Inez was very active in the photography business. In the message space of several different post card photographs was printed: "When you give or receive photos you want good ones. That is the kind we claim to make and we invite you to see and judge our work. Quincy studio open every day except Sunday. Jonesville studio open Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Those having one dozen photos taken before April 15, 1910, and mentioning this card will get an extra photo free, and another if work is paid for in advance. Yours for Photos, Enlargements, Frames and Amateur Supplies. THE BOVEES, Photographers." Just: "BOVEE'S STUDIO, QUINCY, MICH." was printed on the backs of postal photos of picnics, homes, streets, churches, bands, dry goods sales, an elevator under construction, a livery stable, threshing, groups at Marble Lake, and a high diver during a street fair. Ed used such cards to offer "For a limited time we will give three extra pictures with every dozen taken at our studio. We are also making thirty penny pictures for 25¢." and to write to his sister on July 30, 1911. He suggested that she come on Tuesday since Wednesday and Saturday were Jonesville days, and he was liable to be "thrashing" the last of the week. He seems to have raised oats and wheat to sell. Some cards were marked with a script blind stamp.

Frank was born at Northville, Michigan, on January 10, 1868, the first child of Eliad A. and Jennie L. (Cady) Bovee. His sister Helen was born about 1879. He and Miss Amanda Hasse were married at Freeport, Illinois, in March or April of 1892, had no children, and were divorced at Freeport in the spring of 1900. Frank enlisted as a private in Company E of the 31st Michigan Volunteer Infantry at Island Lake on May 8, 1898, was ill much of his time in the army, and was honorably discharged at Rodrigo, Cuba, on April 11, 1899. Mary S. Swain was born in New Hampshire about 1878, the daughter of A. J. and E. C. (Warren) Swain. She married Frank at Essex, Ontario, on December 7, 1901, and they had four children. Arthur was born at Akron, Ohio, on September 17, 1902. Edward was born at Ypsilanti on May 23, 1905. Helen was born in Lansing in 1908 or 1909. Frank was born at Lansing on February 20, 1913. The elder Frank set up the first commercial photographic studio in Lansing, sold cameras, popularized amateur photography, and organized a camera club. His place of business was at 215 ½ South Washington Avenue in 1906 and 1907, at 101 East Michigan Avenue from 1908 to 1915, at 219 South Washington Avenue from 1916 to 1919, at 214 ½ South Washington Avenue in 1920 and 1921, at 718 South Grand Avenue from 1922 to 1927, and at 125 East Main Street in 1930 and 1931. He advertised locally in the autumn of 1909: "F. N. BOVEE, Optician. Examination Free. KODAKS AND PHOTO SUPPLIES. Amateur Work Finished. Views of Lansing-- 50 years ago, as shown at the Bijou Theatre this week for sale. Basement of Ingersoll Block." and "12 DIFFERENT VIEWS of High School Corner Stone Laying for sale by F. N. Bovee, Optician, Cor. Wash. and Mich. Av's." and "Masons' Trip to Adrian, Photos for sale by Bovee, Optician, Ingersoll Block." and "Photographs of Pine Lake Clam Bake for sale by BOVEE, Optician, Corner Washington and Michigan Aves." He was classified as a dealer in photographic material and supplies in the gazetteer for 1911. "F. N. BOVEE, Optician and Dealer in Photo Supplies, Lansing, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of photographs copied from 1860s photos of Lansing stores and of original photographs of a store, a mill and the post office at Bath, a launch at Merle Beach, the weather station at Michigan Agricultural College and a church at Lansing. "F. N. BOVEE, INGERSOLL BLK., LANSING, MICH." was printed on the post card back of a photograph of three business buildings at Holt. All of these were commercial post cards with captions scribed or lettered on the negative, and several were postmarked during 1909, 1910 or 1911. "Bovee" was lettered on the negatives of postal photographs of Lansing public buildings with and without the printing on the back. Uncaptioned postal photos of various M.A.C. student activities, of private residences, of buggies, of motorcycles, of individuals and of groups of people had the same printing on their backs, as did a few with different names or initials lettered on the negatives. The range of style of these uncaptioned photographs, and the snap shot quality of some of them, indicates that Frank's printed backs were sometimes used when he made prints from the negatives of amateurs and others. People were posed on and behind a bench under a rose arbor for what were obviously studio portraits with the same printed post card backs. Frank published a 9 ½ by 12 ¼ booklet entitled Lansing, Michigan's Commercial Center, which reproduced 99 photos by F. N. Bovee, mostly copyrighted in 1912, including twelve views of Lansing in 1860 and four panoramas. It pictured the State Capitol and other public buildings, Michigan Agricultural College, schools, churches, bridges, parks, residences, depots, business blocks and many factories. Mary died on February 5, 1920, and Frank married 56-year-old Mrs. Albert E. McCabe, a widow and the former Miss Gertrude Beeman, at Grass Lake on April 2, 1927. He endured a lingering illness before his death at St. Mary's Hospital in Lansing on February 4, 1938. He had been an optometrist for 46 of his 70 years. Burial was at Deepdale Cemetery in Eaton County.

Her mother came from Ohio, and Inez M. Brainard was born in Michigan in September of 1872, the only child of Corlan V. and Sarah A. Brainard. "INEZ M. BRAINARD, Alganssee, Mich." was stamped on the back of 5 ½ by 6 ½ inch commercial mounts, including one carrying a photograph of a rural home. Inez married Edward C. Bovee in 1906 or early in 1907 and was his active colleague for the fifteen years Ed spent as a Quincy photographer. She was enumerated as her husband's assistant in 1910, and was given equal status as a photographer in 1920. Advertising usually used the plural, as in: "... THE BOVEES, Photographers." One source made it clear that the Jonesville studio was a branch of the Quincy business, and that on some days both studios were open. Inez gave birth in 1915 when she was 43 years old to a son named Corlan after his maternal grandfather, and she continued to participate in the photography business. The floral business of the Bovees was another joint enterprise, with Ed raising natural flowers and Inez concentrating on artificial flowers.

Arthur and his wife were born in Canada; he in 1858 and Mary Louise in March of 1860. They married and immigrated to the United States in 1881. Their daughter Nona and son Harry were born in Michigan in May of 1889 and April of 1894. The Tillsonburg listing was for Arthur Bowers. "A. BOWERS, SAGINAW VALLEY VIEW ARTIST" was printed on a label affixed to the back of a mounted photograph of a fire in Saginaw on May 20, 1893. "A. A. BOWERS, FLASH LIGHT PHOTOGRAPHER & VIEW ARTIST, 606 11TH STREET, BAY CITY, MICH." was stamped on the back of 8 by 10 inch photographs of a steamer launched in 1895. A similar stamp was used on the back of cabinet photos. "BOWERS" was lettered on a 7 ¼ by 9 ½ inch photographic print with an oval image of many horse drawn wagons in front of a farmers' market, on a 12 by 14 inch mount just below the 7 ¾ by 9 ½ photo of a construction crew in front of the railroad bridge they were building, and on a 7 ½ by 43 inch panorama of a factory under construction. "Bowers" was also lettered on the negatives of post card photographs, and on the negative of two 4 by 9 ½ inch images printed together of Bay City Fire Department pumper No. 8 before and after it was almost totally destroyed in a railroad crossing accident. By 1910, and probably long before then, Arthur was a naturalized citizen of the United States. Mary was a widow by 1930, when she was providing a home for her son Harry and for an 84-year-old couple that don't seem to have been relatives.

Orville was born on January 18, 1891, at Stanton, Michigan, fourth of the six children of Daniel and Julia (later Viola) Bowers. He became a tall man with blue eyes and brown hair. Lela was born in 1895 in Illinois, married Orville about 1913, and their sons Stewart and Ford were born in Michigan in 1915 and 1917. "Bowers" or "Bowers Photo" was lettered on the negatives of postal photos along with such captions as "West Main St. Looking North, Ashley, Mich." and "Disciple Church, Ashley, Mich." and "IOOF Hall, Ashley, Mich." Some of these cards were mailed in October and November of 1912. "BOWERS PHOTO, POMPEII, MICH." was lettered in very small capitals on the negative of a post card photograph of the pupils of Carr School in 1912. "BOWERS PHOTO" was similarly lettered on the negative of a postal photo of the M. E. Church in Pompeii. One of these cards was mailed in August of 1915. "BOWERS, ITHACA, MICH." was scribed in very small capitals into the negative of a postal photo of 32 pupils and their male teacher posed in front of their North Star school. In 1917 Orville was identified as a farmer and photographer owning 20 acres. By 1930 he was divorced and raising his two sons on his own.

Her father came from Connecticut and Esther Ann Buck was born in Michigan in April of 1852, seventh of the eight children of Seralpha Couch Buck and Mary Caroline (Knaggs) Buck. George A. Bowles was born in England to English parents on October 18, 1846, first of the six children of George and Sarah (Hadaway) Bowles. His sister Sarah was born in England in February of 1850, and his other siblings were born in the United States between 1852 and 1863. George married Esther in Kent County on January 1, 1869, and they were farming adjacent to his parents' farm in 1870. Their daughter Jessie was born in Sumner Township in 1873 or early in 1874, and their son Vernon was born there on June 19, 1880. George was enumerated as a minister of the gospel in 1880. Esther and George parted in the early 1890s, and George married Martha E. Toten at Petoskey on September 24, 1893. Thereafter Esther described herself as widowed or married, but never as divorced. She advertised in 1892 as a "Photographer and Artist in Crayon, Pastel and Oil. All Work Guaranteed." Esther wrote to a patron on the back of a cabinet mount: "Mrs. J. - I am very sorry you have been waiting so long for your Photos through a mistake of mine. Perhaps I did say if you did not write I would finish, But I was so sick and tired when you were here I did not remember what was said about them. But I thought you would not like the position very well so I waited. I trust it is all right at last. - Respectfully yours, E. A. Bowles." Esther's daughter Jessie married Harley Griffin, and their sons Merle and Jessie were born between 1892 and 1894. She died before Harley married again about 1896. It was noted in April of 1897 that Mrs. E. A. Bowles had circulated a petition protesting against Sunday work in photograph galleries. One week later it was announced that an addition was being built onto her gallery, which had been moved from the corner of Biddle Avenue and Chestnut Street to Captain Bolton's adjoining lot. She advertised in 1898: "Esther A. Bowles Executes Photographic Work artistically and in the latest designs and finish. Hand Finished Portraits in Crayon or Pastel. You will be pleased with the Photographs of yourself or friends if executed at 128 Biddle Avenue North." In October of 1898 it was reported that Mrs. Bowles had moved her photograph gallery across Biddle Avenue to a site adjoining the Presbyterian Church on the south. In June of 1902 a photographic journal reported that the gallery of Mrs. E. A. Bowles in Detroit had been destroyed by fire. About this time the local newspaper noted that Esther attended the large state and national gatherings of the photographic profession, and brought home to her many Wyandotte patrons all of the new things to be had in the art of her profession. She advertised early in October of 1902: "To the Widows and Working Girls - The annual discount to you will begin October 16th and continue until December 1, 1902. Anyone needing portraits for Xmas will need to send in orders early...." In 1905 Esther was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America. Late in 1908 she was giving a photo-enlargement free with each first-class order. George A. Bowles died in Allegan County on June 23, 1921. Esther died early in December of 1922 at the Arnold Home in Detroit, survived by her son, Vernon L. Bowles.

George was born in New York in 1827 and moved to Monroe with his mother Rachel, a sister and his brother William. He married Miss Laura Downing prior to 1850 and by 1860 they had five children: Lida (later Alula), George, Hebe, Edwin or Edward, and Leonard (later Frank). On December 1, 1861, George enlisted as Captain of Company K in the 15th Michigan Infantry. The regiment arrived at Pittsburg Landing, Tennessee, just in time to participate in the battle on April 6 and 7, 1862. Another Captain from Monroe and a Lieutenant were killed along with 31 men; an officer and 63 men were wounded and 7 men were missing after the battle. George resigned his commission on April 22, 1862. He and William Bowlsby were granted Patent Number 42,637 on May 10, 1864, covering improvements to a Photographic Printing Frame. He went on to invent, among other things, a machine used by the post office for perforating stamps and a gun which was adopted by the British army. After his wife died on April 5, 1869, George became more and more eccentric. His home grew stuffed with rubbish and treasures, and it burned in June of 1888. He moved to Ypsilanti in 1890, and died in November of 1892 at his son's home in St. Louis, Missouri.

William was born in New York State in 1828 or 1829 and came to Monroe with his mother, Mrs. Rachel Bowlsby, his sister Amelia, and his brother George Washington Bowlsby. By 1860 he was married to a lady named Cornelia who was born in New York about 1835. The addresses of both the Monroe and Port Huron galleries were printed on some cartes de visite. George Armstrong Custer, then a captain, posed for William about 1863, and in 1864 someone named Bowlsby photographed General Custer's headquarters near Winchester, Virginia. George and William Bowlsby were granted Patent Number 42,637 on May 10, 1864, covering improvements to a Photographic Printing Frame. Bowlsby & Company cartes de visite included a portrait of a fireman, and William's Monroe cartes de visite included soldiers, the building housing his own gallery and copies of paintings, probably from stock negatives. In 1867 he advertised his "MICHIGAN ART UNION, WM. B. BOWLSBY, Proprietor, Front St., foot of Washington St., half square north of the Post Office, Monroe, Michigan. Edward was born in June of 1868 in Michigan of Canadian parentage, and he married a lady named Henrietta about 1889. She was born in April of 1871, and was Canadian like her parents. Their children were born in Michigan; Marjorie J. in December of 1893 and Edward H. in May of 1899. They lost a third child. Edward advertised nationally in May of 1902: "SOMETHING NEW IN PHOTOGRAPHY By which you are able to obtain a true steel engraving effect. People nowadays want something new. They always expect the up-to-date and the live photographer to have it. It is simple in manipulation. No expense after the first outfit is bought. It increases the value of your pictures and you can command a higher price. Send 15 cents in postage and we will send you an elegantly mounted sample of the work, with full information and instructions. The first dozen pictures sold will pay for the outfit. The photo steel engraving can be printed on any sensitized paper. PRICES: One 5 x 7 Line Film....$1.00. One 8 x 10 Line Film....$3.00. For Sale by E. E. BOWMAN, PETOSKEY, MICH." The next issue of the journal reproduced a portrait by a Grand Rapids photographer which may have utilized the effect Edward advertised, for the comments upon it included: "... What makes this print peculiar is, that it is traversed by fine dark lines something like the fine lines of a half tone screen. I do not know how it is done, but it appears to me that the paper must have been printed first under a lined screen and then under the portrait negative or visa-versa. But however it may have been done, the result is very effective and pleasing." Edward's advertisement was carried again in the July issue. He was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905. He sold the Petoskey studio to Mrs. Grace Chandler Horn in November of 1907, and was said to be moving to Chicago. He and Henrietta still were together in 1930.

Thomas was born January 13, 1844, at Reigate in Surrey County, England, second of the seven children of Thomas and Susan (Doubell) Bowring. His parents immigrated with their children in 1851 to Lyons, New York. While attending school at Lyons, Thomas sustained an injury to his left hip which crippled him permanently. About 1854 he moved to Detroit with his parents, who stayed there when he moved on to Wisconsin. At the close of 1869 he purchased the branch gallery of which he had been in charge. Miss Alice J. Arndt was born in Wisconsin in May of 1854, and she married Thomas in 1874. They had five children: Alice (later Irene) in January of 1876, Thomas in January of 1878, Randal in January of 1880 who died as a child, William in April of 1884, and Elcey in November of 1890. Thomas was a mason and a democrat, holding such offices as treasurer of De Pere and supervisor from the First Ward. Some negatives of early scenes in De Pere were preserved by Thomas, and prints made from them by his son were reproduced by a regional newspaper in 1934. Thomas remained in the photography business until his death in 1897. His son, Thomas R. Bowring, worked in the gallery before succeeding his father. Alice and her four children still were living at De Pere in 1900.

His parents came from Maryland and New York and Allen was born in Michigan in June of 1849, second of the three children of Lewis P. and Dolly Boyer. He grew up on the family farm. Her mother came from Pennsylvania and Eliza was born in Ohio near the Michigan border in October of 1853. She married Allen about 1872, and gave birth to Lewis in Michigan and Gracie in Illinois between 1873 and 1876. Four others all were born in Michigan: Maude in November of 1876, Myrtle in March of 1879, Nellie in August of 1882, and Minnie in July of 1884. "Views made to order by A. P. BOYER, LANDSCAPE PHOTOGAHER, Adamsville, Mich." was printed on labels affixed to the back of stereo mounts, including one that seems to be dated 1875. "VIEWS _____ By A. P. Boyer, ADAMSVILLE, MICH." was printed on taller mounts that were used later. Allen produced more stereo views of Elkhart, Indiana, just across the state line, than of Adamsville and Niles. He had been diagnosed with heart disease by 1880, which may have encouraged him to get into a less strenuous business than farming. His Goshen factory produced ladders and similar products. Adamsville is in Ontwa Township, and Goshen is less than twenty miles southeast. Eliza was a widow still living at Goshen in 1920.

Philip was born in New York City to Irish parents on July 15, 1877, the son of Philip and Catherine Boylan. He had two older sisters and one younger sister. He lived in Buffalo, New York, and Chicago, Illinois, before moving to Pontiac, and became a man of 148 pounds on a 5 foot 7½ inch frame with grey eyes, red-brown hair and a ruddy complexion. He enlisted as a private in Company E of the 39th United States Volunteer Infantry on September 16, 1899, at Pontiac, Illinois, and was transferred to Company F of the regiment on October 8, 1899. From December 18, 1899, to January 13, 1900, he was assigned to Battery F of the Fifth United States Light Artillery. While serving in the Philippine Islands he held the ranks of private, musician and corporal. He was afflicted with chronic dysentery and diarrhea in January of 1900, and by April had contracted malaria. Phillip was hospitalized much of the time between January and May of 1900 at Batangas and Los Banos. He was discharged from the army at Manila on March 15, 1901, and remained in the Philippine Islands for a year or more working for the Quarter Master Department. Miss Lenora (often Lena) Horton was born in New York State to English parents in May of 1879, last of the seven children of Hardy and Leoria Horton. She married Philip at Niagara Falls, Ontario, on July 15, 1904, and five years later they had no children. After 1909 Philip traveled as a photographer, and just happened to be in Memphis in February of 1911. He enlisted at Fort Thomas, Kentucky, on November 22, 1917, and served in Company C of the Seventh Engineers with the American Expeditionary Forces from March 14, 1918, until July 5, 1919. He was honorably discharged from the army on October 4, 1919. He was classified as single in 1920.

His paternal grandparents were German, his maternal grandparents were English, his mother came from New York and Jesse was born in Michigan in December of 1867. He was the younger of the two sons of Granville and Mary L. Boynton. Her mother was a native of Michigan but her father was Canadian and Edith Frances was born in Canada in December of 1870. She was brought to Michigan in 1872, and she grew up to marry Jesse in 1895. Their son Styon was born in December of 1896, and was working the streets as a newsboy by the time he was thirteen years old. "J. N. BOYNTON, Port Huron, Mich." was stamped on the back of 5 by 5 inch commercial mounts carrying 3½ by 3½ photographs. One showed a boy standing between two identically dressed girls on a sloping cellar door. In 1920 Jesse and Frances were raising nine-year-old Irene, whom they had adopted.

His mother came from Canada and Frank was born at Watertown, New York, on February 12, 1851, eldest of the four children of Edwin C. and Eliza N. Bracy. He moved with his family around 1857 to Augusta, Michigan, and left there about 1867 with an itinerant photographer. He employed his brother Lemuel Bracy at Jackson in 1878. Ambrose J. Diehl also worked for Frank at Jackson, and along with Abraham Lapham was associated with him in Bracy, Diehl & Company, calling themselves Artistic Photographers and claiming to have "... in every respect the Finest and Most Complete Photographic Gallery in the West. Everything is new and of the most approved pattern. We pay special attention to PORTRAITURE in either Photography, Water Color or Crayon, and pledge ourselves to furnish you the Finest Work in the State," Some of their cabinet mounts were stamped: "These Photos $3.00 per Dozen." Their employees included Lemuel A. Bracy as photo printer from 1882 through 1884, Eugene Gardner as clerk in 1882, Miss Josephine L. Anthony as photo finisher in 1883, Miss Anna S. Coman as clerk in 1883 and 1884, and Ralph Johnson as photo printer in 1884. Olive Monchamp was born in Michigan in August of 1867, became Mrs. Frank Bracy in 1884, and gave birth to Arthur in March of 1887. Frank's retirement from Bracy, Diehl & Company was reported early in 1885, noting that the style of the firm remained unchanged. Bracy & Jefferson J. Gibson touted their ground floor gallery with no stairs to climb, and "... an elegant line of frames, all sizes constantly on hand and made to order." They employed Edward J. Winiker as a photo printer in 1888. Frank maintained his portrait studio on the second floor at 103 Michigan Avenue from 1896 through 1919. A photo enlarging service at this same address was operated by John S. Foster until 1906, and then carried on by Frank F. Baxter for many years. Frank C. Bracy died in Detroit on September 27, 1931, survived by his wife, Mrs. Olive Bracy, their son Arthur and at least two grand children. Interment was in Mount Olivet Cemetery. A two volume hand written treatise of 344 pages on coloring photographs has survived with only half of its title page reading: "Manual of Photogr ..." possibly by Alfred A. Paternoster. It apparently was written to an instructor's dictation by Frank while he was living at Augusta.

His family was living in Cobourg, Ontario, when David was born in 1851, and ten years later moved to Brighton, Ontario. Beginning in 1870, David worked mostly in photographic galleries at different points in Canada and the United States, and arrived in Cadillac on May 27, 1880. He was single and boarding at a hotel with thirty others in 1880, and the enumerator mentioned that he had a cut foot. David bought Herbert L. Bragg out of his interest in their partnership in November of 1883, and made specialties of large work, portraits, viewing and framing. He made photographic views of David Ward's camps on the headwaters of the Manistee River in Kalkaska County in February of 1884. He was identified as A. D. Bradbeer on the majority of his photograph mounts, but as Dave Bradbeer on card mounts from Cadillac and on cabinet mounts from both Cadillac and Charlevoix.

His parents came from New York and Bert was born in Michigan in February of 1871, last of the five children of George and Juliette Bradley. His two brothers and one sister were born in Michigan much earlier, between 1852 and 1860. Bert lived with his parents through 1900 and perhaps longer. Myrtie Morgan was born in Michigan in February of 1875, and she was working for the Bradleys as a live-in domestic servant in 1900. She and Bert married about 1909, and were sharing their home with Bert's widowed father in 1910.

Due to the rather common name, the early history has been only tentatively associated with the photographer. George was born in New York State, probably in December of 1840, second of the four children of Lewis B. and Mary C. Bradley. In Knowlesville, he seems to have been married to a sixteen-year-old Canadian named Mary. Another Mary was born in Wisconsin in 1853, and she married George in 1874 or early in 1875. Their children were born in Wisconsin, the girls Rena and Inez between 1875 and 1878 and the boy Winnie in January of 1880. One of the Bessemer addresses at which George was listed in 1888 probably was his residence. By 1910 George was an inmate in the Fond du Lac County Poor House, and Mary was living with her surviving daughter Inez and her husband in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Henry was born on February 26, 1844, at Florida in Berkshire County, Massachusetts. He was a five foot eight inch farmer with a dark complexion, gray eyes and dark hair when he enlisted at Niles as a private in Company E of the 24th Michigan Infantry on September 12, 1864. He joined the regiment on October 8, and by October 26 was hospitalized with intermit fever. This illness progressed to bronchitis early in January of 1865, and to pneumonia later in that month. From February 12 to March 5 he was convalescing from pneumonia before he was finally returned to duty. Henry was honorably discharged from the army at Detroit on June 30, 1865. He and Miss Esther E. Spaulding were married at Buchanan on November 15, 1868. They never had children. "H. E. BRADLEY, Photographer, Dayton & Galien, Mich." was printed on some card photograph mounts. "HUGHSON, Operator" was stamped on the backs of some of Henry's card mounts from Buchanan. Henry was in Chicago for the inaugural convention of the Photographers' Association of America in August of 1880. He and Esther lived in Kansas for three years in the late 1880s. Mrs. Esther E. Bradley died on May 14, 1893, and at Benton Harbor in June of either 1894 or 1895 Henry married the widow, Mrs. Helen M. (Morgan) Yendes. He began receiving a Veteran's Pension in April of 1897 since he was blind in the right eye due to a cataract and had chronic dyspepsia and heart disease. He advertised in 1898: "Keep in the PROCESSION and get those Fine, Artistic PHOTOGRAPHS Made by H. E. BRADLEY, 66 Front Street, Buchanan." Fire broke out on the night of February 13, 1900, in the millinery store next door to Henry's gallery. In fighting the fire the gallery was damaged by water to the extent of $100, which was fully covered by insurance. Henry may have lived briefly in the fall of 1906 at Brattleboro, Vermont. Mrs. Helen M. Bradley died on March 29, 1907. About 1910 the negatives of some post card photographs were lettered with such legends as: "Front St. Buchanan, Mich. - Bradley Photo." Henry died at Buchanan on April 5, 1917.

Robert was born in 1832 at Roxbury, Massachusetts. He was 29 years old and 5 feet 9 ½ inches tall with a light complexion, blue eyes and brown hair when he enlisted as a private in Battery A, the Loomis Battery, of the First Michigan Light Artillery on May 28, 1861. He was mustered into the army on the same day, and was soon promoted to sergeant. At the end of March in 1862 he was hospitalized at Murfreesboro, Tennessee, with typhoid fever, which left him with chronic diarrhea. Though he rejoined his company for a couple of months, by June he was back in a hospital at Bowling Green, Kentucky. In September of 1862 he was transferred to a hospital at Louisville, Kentucky, and from there in February of 1863 he was sent to a hospital at Quincy, Illinois. He was now afflicted with scrofulous ulcers on his neck as well as the chronic diarrhea, and was considered to be disabled for duty as a soldier. He was honorably discharged at Quincy on March 25, 1863. Robert received an Invalid Pension of $8.00 per month for the year he stayed in Michigan, but mistakenly thought himself disqualified when he left the state. He went to Salt Lake City, Utah, in hopes that the waters would heal his body. Disappointed, he returned late in 1864 to Omaha, Nebraska. Percival and Nebraska City are less than ten miles apart, but are on opposite sides of the Missouri River. There Robert purchased teams and did some teaming as well as raising a little stock and so made a living. He was enumerated as a railroad hand in 1870, as a farmer in 1880, and as a currier in 1900. He re-qualified for a pension of $4.00 per month in March of 1884, and this was raised to $8.00 per month in March of 1888. Robert never married, and his pension had increased to $14.00 per month by the time he died at Percival on February 1, 1902.

Albert was born on November 12, 1860, at Minden, Ontario, one hundred miles north east of Toronto. He had been managing Lawson's Oscoda gallery for a while before December 19, 1883, the day he married 20-year-old Miss Ruth Marie Bowker of Oscoda. Toward the end of March he was in East Tawas preparing to open the Lawson gallery there, and by mid June of 1884 he had purchased both the Oscoda and East Tawas galleries from Lawson. For ten days at the end of July he offered cabinets at $4.00 per dozen, panels at $4.50, and cards at $2.00, to introduce his superior work in photography, and advertised: "... You can get first-class photographic work done at home, promptly,... I have in my employ workmen whose skill cannot be surpassed ... as the work will prove ...". He kept the East Tawas gallery open until late in August, and then concentrated upon Oscoda. By December of 1884 Albert had resold the Oscoda and East Tawas galleries to Lawson. During his first years in Oscoda, he advertised: "Photographic Artist. Enlarging, Copying, &c. Satisfaction Guaranteed." He spent a week in June of 1886 at Harrisville, and did a good business. Early in 1887 Albert bought a lot on Adams Street in Oscoda and began building a house for himself. He advertised in East Tawas in July of 1887: "Don't be afraid to have your picture taken, no matter how homely, we will make you good looking.... Instantaneous process used exclusively, bring your babies whether crying or laughing to Bradshaw, who will be open for business about the 20th ... Did you ever see a photographing dog? One who is trained and always ready to be photographed with children in any position (except standing on his head). I have one and he is fine for children's pictures." He closed the East Tawas gallery promptly on September 1, 1887, and returned to his Oscoda home. He was back in East Tawas three weeks later to deliver pictures finished in Oscoda from negatives exposed at East Tawas, and again early in October to photograph a new engine built by a local iron works. Albert and Ruth became the parents of a baby girl on May 16, 1889. The following year Albert owned a portable building which he had erected at Tawas City, enabling him to do work comparable to that done in any fine gallery. The Tawas City gallery was open from June 1 until August 12, and during the last six days he made best Cabinet Photos at $2.50 and $3.00 per dozen, and finished them within five days after they were ordered. A little girl brought her big doll to the Oscoda gallery, where a mother and son also were photographed with their dog. "A. J. Bradshaw, - 1890 - Photographer." was printed beneath the image on some cabinet mounts that had "DUPLICATES of this Photograph can be had at any time or Enlarged to a Life Size Portrait. Address all Orders to A. J. BRADSHAW, Oscoda, Mich." printed on their backs. From Cheboygan, Albert produced a cabinet photograph of a young lady standing beside a placard for "Post & Mills, General Hardware." Various hardware items served the lady as jewelry, and others were fastened all over her costume. He advertised in 1892: "COMING! A. J. Bradshaw, the Well Known Photographer. I am pleased to inform you that I will be in Harrisville Sept. 27th and will remain but TWO Weeks. I shall do all manner of Photographic work from the Smallest Gem upwards to Life Size, and as to the quality of my work I will not commend it to you as it will speak for itself. Remember that we have had Over 15 Years' Experience! And taken instructions from some of the best artists of the day in Lightning, Posing, Etc., and feel justified in saying that we feel competent to suit the most fastidious. All our work is finished with the LATEST IVORY FINISH, whereby it renders them impossible to soil. Dirt, inks or oils can be readily removed with water. A Few Points to be Remembered! One, that our work is Finished Promptly and if not satisfactory need not be accepted; Instantaneous Process used, and that we do no tent work but have a fine, well equipped building made expressly for our use. And last, but not least, don't overlook that which we make a specialty of, being the ENLARGING OF OLD PICTURES. For this branch we carry the necessary instruments for making and finishing all sizes of Portraits Finished in Ink, Crayon, or Water Colors. Should you wish any work in this line come see the work and get our prices. Should you have any work that has been done by outside copying houses and does not suit, we should be pleased to make any necessary changes FREE. Respectfully soliciting a share of your patronage, I am yours respectfully, A. J. BRADSHAW, Artist. (Formerly the Oscoda Photographer) NO SUNDAY WORK." Early in 1893, Albert was spending one or two days a week at East Tawas taking orders for portraits. He was employing Henry Smith as an assistant in 1897 until he left in late December. He operated branch studios from Au Sable, and produced thousands of high quality post card photographs which are the subject of the balance of this paragraph. In Iosco County, he pictured the streets, industries, shipping, waterfront and public buildings of Au Sable, East Tawas and Oscoda, the construction of Cooke Dam, and scenes at Lake Solitude, Long Lake, Van Ettan Lake, Tawas Beach and Tawas Point. He photographed Glennie and Harrisville in Alcona County as well as Alpena in Alpena County and Rose City in Ogemaw County. When a forest fire swept through Presque Isle County in 1908, he got to Metz while the ruins of the village were still smoldering and added restrained red tinting to some of the resulting prints. He recorded the destruction at the Oscoda docks caused by a storm in April of 1909, and what was left of Au Sable after the fire in July of 1911. One series showing Oscoda after the fire was labeled "B & S" indicating a collaboration with Fred Stevens. Some of Albert's photographs are quite beautiful, such as a misty early morning view on the Au Sable River. An example of his work in other formats is a composite panorama of Harrisville made from three 6 by 8 inch prints. An accidental fire in their kitchen killed his wife on October 3, 1910, and a year later Albert, along with his daughter Velma and an adopted son James who were young adults, moved to Hickory, North Carolina. By 1920 Albert was married to Lera Blanch Hilton, who was born in North Carolina about 1890. Albert sold his Hickory studio to Robert S. Cilley in 1935, and continued to live there until his death on January 15, 1952.

Chicago, Illinois, PHOTOGRAPHER ..... 1877 1

Brady was making photographs of the beautiful residences and public buildings of Battle Creek toward the end of April in 1877, and planned to attempt a bird's-eye view of the city from the new South Park. A couple of weeks later in Penfield Township, northeast of Battle Creek, the lamp which he used in his covered wagon exploded, setting fire to the vehicle. He rescued his camera, but substantial damage was done to some of his other equipment.

Herbert was born in 1844 or early in 1845 at St. Albans, Maine, eldest of the four children of Nicholas F. and Mary Bragg. Mary was a widow by 1860, and continued to farm for many years with help from her children. Herbert's first wife and first son also were born in Maine, Myra in 1848 or 1849 and Oscar about 1866. The Wing Photograph Gallery in Grand Rapids was the first of several Michigan galleries established by the Boston photographer Simon Wing, and Herbert may have been its manager rather than its proprietor from 1874 through 1877. George S. Osborn was manager of the gallery before acquiring it from Wing in 1878. "S. Wing, 62 Canal St., Grand Rapids, Mich." was printed on the cabinet sized sleeves of some tintypes, and then "H. L. Bragg, 20 Canal St." was printed over it in red. Herbert sold his interest in their partnership to A. David Bradbeer in November of 1883, and Herbert's sale of his Cadillac gallery to A. Newell was reported in August of 1884. Herbert produced stereoscopic views of Cadillac. Printed on some cabinet mounts was: "Bragg, successor to Harmer Brothers...." who left Cadillac about 1895. Herbert's ground floor gallery on Harris Street was purchased by Neal & Welsh in 1895, but he soon displaced Frederick J. Neal as the associate of Uriah W. Welsh. Herbert's death in Cadillac at the age of 54 was reported in April of 1899, noting that he left a wife and son for whom he had provided liberally. His widow, Mrs. Mildred Bragg, took his place in Bragg & Welsh and is the subject of the following entry.

Charles was born in Michigan to James and Elizabeth Branch on February 16, 1884, and became a tall man with blue eyes and brown hair. He called himself a "Professional and Commercial Photographer" in 1912, and had the same business address as photographer William H. Barron. The Mary Branch with whom Charles was sharing his home in 1918 probably was his step-mother. He advertised photo finishing, photography, and picture framing in 1926.

His parents came from New York, and Erastus was born in Michigan in June of 1864, youngest of the four sons of Erastus and Emily Branch. By 1880 he and his brother Adelbert were identified as stepsons of Gilbert and Sophia Casnner. Her father came from New York and Flora was born in Michigan in December of 1866. She married Erastus about 1883, and their sons were born here: Clarence about 1886, Harrison in August of 1888, and Willard in June of 1894. "E. G. Branch Studio, White Cloud, Mich." was printed on the back of postal photos of Newaygo and vicinity. Erastus and Flora were sharing their home with a widowed daughter-in-law and her three and four-year-old daughters in 1920, and with an eight-year-old granddaughter in 1930.

From 28 Washington Street, Edwin produced a card photograph of an engraving of the impressive building at the Magnetic Mineral Springs in Fruitport, Michigan. He was born in New York State in October of 1835, the son of Sodonick and Nancy Brand. He had two younger brothers and may have had older siblings. By 1870 he had a wife named Rose born in Michigan about 1836 and assets of more than $100,000. Ella was born in New York in April of 1835, and she married Edwin about 1873. Their children were born in Illinois: Edwin in May of 1875, Helen in 1887 or early in 1888, and Belle in September of 1881. Helen seems to have died as a child.

His father was Irish, his mother came from New York and Frank was born in Michigan in 1870, third of the seven children of John and Marie Brandon. Elizabeth was born in Canada to German parents in 1867. She married Frank very soon after she immigrated in 1889 or 1890, and they never had children. The change from 863 to 3161 Monroe Avenue in 1920 was due to revisions in the Detroit numbering system rather than to relocation. Frank and Elizabeth may have kept the photograph studio open while he worked elsewhere, for he was enumerated as a machinist in a factory in 1920. He was not listed in the 1923 Detroit directory.

His parents emigrated from Canada, Edward was born in Wisconsin on May 29, 1880, and he became a medium sized man with brown eyes and black hair. Her parents also emigrated from Canada, Libbie was born in Wisconsin in 1887, and she married Edward on August 1, 1907. Their daughter Loretta and sons Russell and Howard were born in Michigan between 1908 and 1914. "PHOTO BY BRAULT, MANISTIQUE, MICH." was lettered discreetly on the negatives of many post card photographs, including factories, the band and bandstand in 1910, the football team in action, Ann Arbor car ferry #4 on her side in 1912 and Cedar Street in 1913. "BRAULT" was lettered on the negative of a postal photo of the indoor baseball team reputed to be "Champions of Michigan" in 1908. "E. O. BRAULT, PHOTOGRAPHER, MANISTIQUE, MICH." was printed on the backs of post card photos including a 1908 bird's-eye view, a 1909 street scene, and a view of the Seney general store about 1930. It was noted in 1918 that the little, ring and middle fingers of Edward's left hand had been amputated at the middle joint. "E. O. BRAULT, MANISTIQUE, MICH." was embossed on postal snow scenes dated 4-8-23 in the negatives. Russell was working with his father in 1930 and was enumerated as a laborer at picture taking. "BRAULT'S PHOTO STUDIO. PICTURES ENLARGED. MANISTIQUE" was painted on the side of the brick building which housed his studio, and still was visible in 1989.

Horatio was born in Green County, New York, on December 26, 1838, eldest of the three children of Jeremiah and Julia H. (Palmer) Braunt. He grew up on the family farm, and became 5 feet 6½ inches tall with a fair complexion, blue eyes and light brown hair. He enlisted in Company H of the First Colorado Volunteers at Central City on September 16, 1861. The First began as infantry, but soon became a cavalry regiment. Horatio contracted a kidney infection on a march from Denver to Fort Union in New Mexico in the spring of 1862, and was in the General Hospital at Denver from October until he was discharged for disability on January 27, 1863. He enlisted for 100 days in Company H of the 44th Iowa infantry on June 1, 1864, and served until September 15, 1864. Then on February 22, 1865, he enlisted at Sioux City in Company K of the Seventh Iowa Cavalry, from which he was discharged on February 24, 1866. Horatio was boarding with the family of Lewis Vining on their farm in 1870. He still was single and living by himself in 1880, when he was lodging with the same family as the photographers James D. Westervelt and Charles VanBuskirk. “H. Braunt, Photographer” was stamped over the imprint of J. W. Bailey on the back of some Dowagiac card photographs. “H. Braunt, Photographer, Dowagiac, Mich.” was printed on other card photograph mounts. Her parents came from Indiana and Ohio and Fatima Valaria Harden was born at Richland, Iowa, on April 25, 1851, to Jacob and Delia (Warner) Hardin. She married Horatio in Nebraska on June 25, 1881, and their son Arthur was born in Iowa on September 25, 1882. Arthur was their only child, and he died on June 20, 1901. By 1930 Horatio and Fatima had a practical nurse living with them. Horatio died at Richland on June 17, 1930, and Fatima lived until November 4, 1940.

John was born about 1821 in England, and Martha was born around three years later in New York State. Their son Charles was born in New York in 1843 or 1844, and died in the 1850s. Their other children were born in Michigan: Frederick in April of 1850, Mary in 1853 or early in 1854, and another Charles in April of 1860. John succeeded James P. Carson in 1856 in the gallery over Phelps' jewelry store on the west side of Saginaw Street between Pike and Lawrence Streets. He ran the same advertisement for nearly four years: "ART UNION Daguerreotype & Ambrotype GALLERY ... DAGUERREOTYPES of all sizes and prices, in the latest style of the art. Particular attention is invited to the AMBROTYPES, A new and beautiful style of picture, which is fast superseding the Daguerreotype, and put up at the same price ... admirably adapted for portraits of children, requiring only a few seconds. Both Mary and the second Charles seem to have died prior to 1870, but Frederick was a farmer living with his parents in 1870, and still was living with his widowed father in 1880.

The James Bayne Company specialized in commercial photography, engraving and printing. In 1898 and 1899 Charles was living at Indianapolis, Indiana, and apparently was managing the operations of the James Bayne Company in that location. The parents of one Charles W. Brayman came from Wisconsin and New York, and he was born in Michigan in August of 1871. He was single in 1900, and was attending college in Grand Rapids. Ten years later he was a doctor with a general practice at Cedar Springs.

Burt was born in Ontario County, New York, on December 18, 1836, the son of Ira and Esther A. (Louk) Brayton. The family moved to Howell Township in September of 1838, where Ira became one of the wealthiest men in Michigan's Livingston County. Besides 600 acres of farm land, he owned a brick yard and a grist and saw mill. As a farm boy, Burt attended the district schools. The dates given above are approximate, but as a young man Burt spent six years as a Howell photographer. He and Mary J. Park of Howell were married on September 30, 1860, and later had four daughters and three sons. Burt and Mary moved into a log house on a 250-acre farm in Howell Township just outside the city of Howell, where they lived until Burt built a new home for them there about 1884. In addition to general farming, he operated a brick yard in Osceola Township just east of Howell and raised many sheep. Burt still had his old studio camera about 1910, most of his children had box or folding cameras, and photography seems to have been a popular avocation of the entire family. Mary Brayton died during the summer of 1920, and in the fall Burt went to spend the winter with two of his daughters in St. Petersburg, Florida. He died there on April 15, 1921, after two days sickness with pneumonia. Burt's remains were returned to Howell for the funeral and interment. Burt's camera and associated equipment were auctioned in the early days of eBay, and were acquired by a person in Argentina. They came on the market again in 2001, and were sold to another person in South America.

Ivy was born in a log house on the Brayton farm in Howell Township on September 1, 1876. She was the seventh and last child, and the fourth daughter, of Burt and Mary J. (Park) Brayton. The spans above are approximate, but her first job was with the post office and lasted five years. She then worked in various offices at the Court House before going to work for Charles G. Jewett, who had begun a hardware, stove, range and steam fitting business in 1869. He built the first frame residence in Howell and the Jewett business block in 1872, and was listed as a hardware merchant from 1884 until 1905 and as a dealer in plumbing supplies from 1906 through 1923. He was organizer and director of the Electric Light Company of Howell, apparently installed the plumbing and heating facilities at the State Sanitorium for Tuberculosis near Howell, and was a nationally recognized glass ball shooting expert with the shotgun. Ivy ran Jewett's office until he retired and it was rumored that they were lovers for many years, though Charles had children not much younger than Ivy. Photography was a popular pastime with the Brayton family, particularly with Ivy and her sister Hermia, and Ivy became a very prolific photographer. Many of her photographs were printed on post card stock between 1909 and 1913, and some were reproduced as post cards printed in Germany for sale in Howell stores. During most of her adult life, Ivy wrote local news for the Livingston County Press and contributed news articles on Howell to the Lansing State Journal. On August 27, 1920, 43-year-old Ivy Brayton married 52-year-old George D. Barnard, who had a taxi business in Howell and had been married once before. She usually was called Iva in the census reports, and was enumerated as a bookkeeper in 1910 and 1920, and as a newspaper reporter in 1930. Ivy died in Howell about 1964, survived by a number of nieces and nephews, and was entombed at Lakeview Mausoleum.

| Fred was born in Denmark in April of 1842, emigrated in 1867, and became a naturalized citizen of the United States. Ann was born in Denmark in June of 1851, came to this country in 1868, and married Fred about 1874. Their children were born in Michigan, a son Berg in January of 1877 and twin girls Laura and Louise in June of 1879. Fred's gallery was at the corner of Washington and Lafayette Streets early in the 1880s. Fred attended the annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Milwaukee in August of 1883. Cabinet photographs marked "Bremer, Greenfield, Mich." were probably Greenville photos with a printing error. One of his cabinet photographs was of two apron-clad women, one holding a broom and dustpan, and the other between an iron and a wash tub with wash board and wringer. Fred advertised locally in 1888: "Only good work done in my gallery over Slawson's Drug Store. Best $3 cabinets in the city. A great reduction on life-size pictures. Remember the place, over Slawson's Drug Store." Slawson's Drug Store was on the corner of Lafayette and Cass Streets in Greenville, and in the 1950s the studio side-light or slant-light still could be seen at the back of the building. He was listed as C. Frederick Bremer from 1898 through 1903, and as Fred Bremer from 1906 on. Laura Bremer was a Greenville milliner from 1906 through 1931, and kept house for her father after her mother was gone. |           | 111t 22 tttt 3333 mm 11 |

Clarence was an engineer for the Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Company and did photographic work as a sideline. He disappeared on the morning of Wednesday, October 18, 1916. A search was instituted on Saturday and his body was found in a field, on a lot which he had purchased the previous winter. A bullet had been fired into his mouth and a revolver still was grasped in his hand. Nearby was a note to his wife: "Oct. 18, 1916. 9:30 a.m. Mabel, I am on my way. Goodbye. Clarence." Overwork was surmised to be the cause of his suicide. He was 26 or 27 years old, and left his wife with a year old daughter. His body was interred in Wyandotte's Ferndale Cemetery. 1 2

His parents came from New York, and Lathrop was born at Duplain, Michigan, on November 24, 1847, second of the six children of Rufus and Sarah A. M. (Pierce) Briggs. He enlisted as a drummer boy in Company K of the 27th Michigan Volunteer Infantry in 1862, and served until the close of the Civil War. He spent much of his life in and around Ovid. Abbey was born in Michigan to parents from Vermont in 1844 or early in 1845, and she married Lathrop while he was in the army or soon after he returned. Their sons Charles, Fred, George and Arthur were born between 1865 and 1873, and their daughter Rosela was born in October of 1879. Lathrop's second marriage was to 18-year-old Miss Amy Evans of Kalkaska on May 26, 1897. Their son Cole was born in 1901, and their daughter Laura was born in 1906. There are indications that Lathrop misrepresented his age to his young wife. Calkinsville was called Rosebush before 1890, and was officially renamed Rosebush on February 19, 1903. Lathrop sold his Shepherd gallery to Alfred E. Boardman of Alma in October of 1907, and then went out through the country taking views while maintaining his home at Shepherd. A stroke of paralysis or Bright's disease made Lathrop an invalid for his last three years, and he was taken worse a few days before his death on February 8, 1911. He was survived by his children, two sisters and a brother. Methodist Episcopal services were conducted prior to burial in Salt River Cemetery.

John was born to Stillman B. and Mary (Chapin) Brigham at Gun Plains, Michigan, on February 17, 1863. He attended the Plainwell schools and Indiana Normal College at Valparaiso before beginning the study of photography at Plainwell. About 1884 he married Miss Ida M. Potter of Mankato, Minnesota. Her parents came from New York, and Ida was born in Wisconsin in March of 1865. John received the First Premium for the best collection of photographs exhibited at the Union Fair in 1890. He gave out cabinet sized advertising cards with a stamp type of self portrait and the admonition to "Put This in Your Album and keep it, for you will save money by referring to it when in need of work of this kind...." The cards reproduced a supplier's 1890 letter suggesting an advance in the price of photographs, followed by: "... But instead of raising our prices ... I will make ... THREE GREAT OFFERS: FIRST ... 1 dozen cabinets, full form, of any adult for $2.00. SECOND, 1 dozen cabinet bust photographs, 1 panel, and 25 postage stamp pictures for $3.25.... THIRD, Greatest offer of all. 1 dozen cabinets, bust photographs, 1 panel and one life size crayon or ink picture for $6.00. Those having copy work may be assured I will give them the very best. Weather makes no difference with adults, but must have bright days for children and babies.... Frames kept constantly on hand. Satisfaction guaranteed on all work. J. M. Brigham, So. Main St., Plainwell." The second annual meeting of the Michigan Photographers Association was held at Detroit in February of 1897, and there John was awarded the second prize in Class E for his exhibit of six Paris Panels and six cabinet photos, and the third prize in Class F for his display of cabinet photographs. He attended six national photographic conventions while at Plainwell, exhibiting his work and winning four medals and two diplomas for posing, chemical effect and lighting combined. The last of these was the silver medal that he received at the 1898 convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Celeron on Chautauqua Lake, New York, for his exhibit of twelve cabinet photographs. His father took over the Plainwell gallery when John acquired the Point Place Studio in Battle Creek from Frank E. Perry in October of 1898. John's exhibit in the Grand Portrait Class at the P A of A convention at Boston in August of 1905 received honorable mention. In May of 1911 he sold the East Main Street studio to John H. Dubbs of Grand Rapids, and planned to live on the fruit farm which he had established locally. John and Ida were sharing their home for a number of years with Miss Charlotte (often Lottie) A. Cressy who was identified in 1900 as a cousin and photographer and in 1910 as a boarder and an assistant in the photo studio. By January of 1920 Ida was gone, John was married to Lottie, and she had accompanied him on a Florida vacation.

| Jennie was born at Auburn, New York, to Samuel and Grace (Craig) McLeod on January 15, 1844. She came with her parents in 1862 to homestead 160 acres in Isabella County. Her father was killed a few years later in a logging accident. She taught school for a while, and lived in Mount Pleasant and on the nearby Brodie homestead after marrying Alexander Brodie at St. Louis on May 12, 1866. Jennie gave birth to a son and three daughters. Early in 1876 the local newspaper noted that "Mrs. Brodie is daily exhibiting her taste in taking pictures. She is a good hand to take pictures of little folks, especially babies." She produced a tintype of Isabella County's first court house, which served from 1860 until 1876. Alexander was a very successful farmer and was prominent in county politics, serving as County Treasurer from 1877 to 1883. Jennie lived in Florida for several years after the death of Mr. Brodie in 1913, but spent a few months at the Ann Arbor home of her son prior to her death there on July 5, 1922. Stanley was born in New York State in May of 1840, fourth of the six children of Nelson A. and Maria Brooks. He enlisted at Fort Wayne in Detroit as a corporal in Company E of the 6th Michigan Volunteer Infantry on June 19, 1861. The regiment was organized at Kalamazoo and left for Washington and the Army of the Potomac on August 30, 1861. The winter was spent in camp at Baltimore, Maryland. In February of 1862 the regiment traveled by steamer to Fortress Monroe, by sea to Ship Island, Mississippi, and they arrived at New Orleans on May 2, 1862, shortly after the fall of Forts Jackson and St. Phillips and the capture of the city. They went out on many local excursions, some of which were quite hazardous. On August 5, 1862, the regiment assisted in repulsing a heavy attack upon Baton Rouge, Louisiana, where many were killed or wounded. Stanley was discharged on a Surgeon's Certificate of Disability at Camp Williams, Louisiana, on October 15, 1862. In the 1860s and in the 1890s he was usually identified as Stanley C. Brooks, but the listings as a Marshall photographer were mostly for C. Stanley Brooks. He had envelopes printed up with "From BROOKS' NEW PICTURE GALLERY, Empire Block, Main Street, JACKSON, MICH. (Rooms known as Geere's Picture Gallery.) - All kinds of Pictures taken promptly and at reasonable prices. Call and see." across the top. The imprint on some cartes de visite was "C. Stanly Brooks, ARTIST, Cape Vincent, N. Y." A discreet label on the back of a stereo view read: "From BROOKS' Gallery, Nicest place in the City. Over the Post Office, Marshall, Mich." Her mother came from Pennsylvania and Gertrude was born in New York State in December of 1849. She married Stanley in 1869 and Fanny, the first of their three daughters, was born in New York a year later. The others were born in Michigan, Frances in August of 1881 and Edith in October of 1882. Stanley lived until 1919.

The Ann Arbor listing was for Francis D. Brooks. Morris Kaufer became Frank's partner in 1888. Frank made a specialty of crayon work at 261 Gratiot Avenue, and called himself a crayon artist in 1893. He employed Silas E. Parady as a retoucher in 1893 and Robert D. Greenberg as a photo printer in 1894. He identified himself as an artist in 1899, gave his cabinet photographs Extra Finish at about the same time, and made a specialty of photograph enlarging in 1905. Frank died in Detroit on June 28, 1923, when he was said to be 58 years old.

Harold was born at Jackson, Michigan, on February 3, 1888, second of the four children of Charles S. and Minnie L. Brooks. He married a 19-year-old lady named Blanche about 1907, and she was working in his studio as a photographer in 1910. Harold was of medium height and weight in 1917, with blue eyes and black hair, and was supporting his father and mother-in-law as well as his wife. He employed Davis B. Hillmer as a photographer in 1920. The address change in that year to 3513 Woodward Avenue was due to overall revisions in the Detroit numbering system. Harold took many photographs of the special automobile bodies produced by the Erdman-Guider Company, with negative numbers from 532 to 6940. He sold the Woodward Avenue business to the Smith Brothers, John F. and Edward J., who continued it for at least thirty years. Harold's second wife, Edith, was born in Michigan in 1885, and she too was identified as a commercial photographer in 1930, when they were living in Keeler Township ten or more miles north of Dowagiac.

James was born in New York State in 1833 or early in 1834, and his mother's name was Betsy. Lucinda L. Wells was born in New York ten years later, married James about 1862, and gave birth to Elizabeth in Michigan in 1864. In 1880 Mrs. Jane R. Wells, Lucinda's mother, was sharing her home in Charlotte with her daughter and granddaughter, and Lucinda was working there as a compositor. Lucinda considered herself to be married in 1880 but to be a widow in 1910, when she was living with Elizabeth and her family up in Emmet County. The only significant record of a James C. Brooks in the fifty years between 1870 and 1920 was as a divorced house painter in Dixon, Illinois, born ten years too late. It must have seemed to Elizabeth that her father had returned from the dead when he turned up in California to stay with her and two of her children.

His parents emigrated from England and Frank was born in 1865 at Whitby, Ontario, the son of James and Mary Broom. Katherine (known as Katie) Davis was born at Toronto a year or two later to John and Katherine Davis who emigrated from England and Northern Ireland. She married Frank at Toronto on June 30, 1891. Katie gave birth at Toronto to Rita, Elsie, Wilbert, Eileen and Evelyn between 1895 and 1906. The family moved to the United States in 1908. Frank produced studio portraits on post card stock at several Saginaw addresses. "Broom's MULTIGRAPH, 520 GENESEE AVE. SAGINAW, MICH." was stamped below post card images for which Frank used mirrors to show five aspects of the sitter in a single photograph. "BROOM & GOLDSMITH" was printed on the back of some postal photographs of Saginaw houses. Frank employed Ethel M. Broom as a retoucher in 1909, and Percy Micklethwarte as a photographer in 1914. The change in the Michigan Avenue address during 1920 was due to revisions in the Detroit numbering system, and not to relocation.

Orrin was born in New York State in April of 1850, the first child of the photographer Nicholas V. Brothers and his wife Lucy. He came to Michigan with his parents as a child. His family settled in Greenville and later moved to Grand Rapids. By 1880 he had a 22-year-old Iowa-born wife named Dora, a six-year-old son Edward born in Kansas, and a four-year-old son Jesse born in Michigan. Orrin's second marriage took place about 1882, and his bride was named Florence. Her parents came from Massachusetts, and Florence was born in Michigan in September of 1854. She gave birth to their daughter Florence Hazel Brothers in May of 1884, and taught in the Grand Rapids public schools from 1886 until 1922. Adelbert Newell was a principal of Brothers & Company in 1882 and 1883. Mrs. Ada Dort worked for Orrin as a photo printer in 1883. A series of one line advertisements in 1888 offered: "Resittings Free ... Good Photographs ... Low Prices ... Babies Pictures a Specialty." Grand Forks, North Dakota, had a photographer named O. A. Brothers in 1891 and 1892. The Brothers family had the photographers Leonard J. and Nellie Dolphin as neighbors in 1900. Orrin was 79 when he died at their Grand Rapids home in January of 1928, survived by his widow, a son-in-law, and three grand children. Interment was in Fair Plains Cemetery.

August was born in Michigan of German parentage on August 30, 1873, the only son of Harry and Minnie Brown. His father served as a Sergeant with Battery H of the Rhode Island Heavy Artillery during the Civil War. His sisters Martha, Annie and Augusta were born between 1875 and 1879, and his sister Minnie was born in March of 1884. August became a tall slender man with gray eyes and brown hair. Her parents came from Maine, Emma was born in Wisconsin in 1864, and she married August about 1899. Late in 1906 August was prepared to do all kinds of fur work, and had some fur sets for sale cheap. By June of 1907 the studio at his residence just north of the Zion Lutheran Church (also called the German or the brick church) was ready for him to do all kinds of photo work at right prices and in an artistic manner. The studio was open Saturday and Sunday afternoons, and he gave special attention to all kinds of view work. He had a nice case of photos on exhibition at the postoffice, offered first-class photos at special reduced prices, and suggested that those wanting photos of their house or stock drop him a postal. Between 1915 and 1920 he was identified as Angus C. Brown. Notable among his many fine post card photographs were some of the quarrying operations at Alabaster and those taken there after the plaster mill fire in October of 1910, Au Sable in ruins after the fire in July of 1911, a three-masted ship at anchor in Tawas Bay, Cooke Dam under construction in 1910 and 1911 and Five Channels Dam being built in 1912, logs in the Rodman Mill Pond on Silver Creek, good reproductions of photos taken in Tawas City in the 1860s and 1870s, and snow scenes of Tawas City in 1908. Some of his 6 by 8 prints of construction at Five Channels Dam in 1912 and Loud Dam in 1913 were noteworthy. August was a Tawas resident for more than sixty years and died at Bay City in 1937.

She was born Caroline Eliza Adams at Martin in Allegan County, Michigan, on January 26, 1844, fourth of the six children of John H. and Hannah (called Fanny) W. Adams. Her father died and by 1860 her mother had married an older farmer. Caroline and Mark Brown were married at Otsego on January 24, 1866, and never had children. She undoubtedly participated in his photographic career to a much greater extent than indicated above. At Leslie late in 1876 they had two substantial cars built, each measuring 18 by 7 feet, with which they intended to travel from village to village as a photographic establishment. One of the cars was to serve as a reception room and the other was for operating, and both were mounted upon heavy balancing springs. "Mr. & Mrs. M. Brown, Photographers" was printed or stamped on at least two different types of 1880s cabinet mounts without place names. By 1914 Mark Brown had moved to Virginia, but it is not certain that Caroline went with him. He died at Roanoke in January of 1917. Caroline roomed with the young family of a female school teacher in 1920, and she was one of five lodgers with a 55-year-old widow in 1930.

His parents came from New York, and Chester was born in Michigan in January of 1868, fourth of the five children of Caleb E. and Mary J. Brown. Hilary Rhodes was born in New York in October of 1871, married Chester about 1889, and gave birth in Michigan to three sons and a daughter between 1891 and 1898. Chester was in the fuel business with his father, Caleb E. Brown. He filed an application for a patent on a Photographic Exposure Meter on October 5, 1899. It consisted of three graduated disks mounted to rotate with respect to each other, and was used like a circular slide rule to calculate exposure times. Patent Number 659,727 was granted to Chester on October 16, 1900. National advertising for the device identified him as Chester M. Brown.

Not long after that event they moved on to Anoka, Minnesota. Elwin and Nat were enumerated with the same words for the 1910 census: "photographer" for their trade or profession, and "photo gallery" for the place where they worked. They both were single at this time, and were living with their parents. Alice was born in Ohio in 1890, and she married Elwin about 1914. Her father came from Pennsylvania, her mother came from New York and Fedora was born in Iowa in February of 1857. Her only sibling, Floyd A. Brown, was born in Michigan three years earlier. She was called Phedora until 1900 or later, and she remained single all of her life. She and Floyd lived with their widowed mother, Mrs. Mary J. Brown, from 1870 through 1880. Floyd died prior to 1900, but she and her mother shared a home through 1910. Fedora became an internationally recognized pictorial photographer. In 1904 she purchased a one acre home site in the art colony of Beck-maze along Buck Creek southwest of the city. Artist George H. Ford designed the "Hut" for her, nestling the half timbered stucco cottage into its surroundings, with a chimney of local field stone, lichen covered boards from an old fence, and all of its "small glass" from used camera plates with the emulsion removed. In April of 1906, the Camera Club of Hartford, Connecticut, put on an EXHIBITION of PHOTOGRAPHS, the work of The Women Photographers of America. Of the 156 photographs exhibited, six were by Fedora: 31 - Finishing Touches, 32 - Portrait Study of Helen Philleo, 33 - Along the River, 34 - Ye Old Fashioned Girl, 35 - The Water Way, and 36 - The House Over the Hill. Her "Portrait of Miss Chase" was reproduced by a photographic periodical early in 1909. Nine of the women who exhibited photographs at the national convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Milwaukee in July of 1910 were from Michigan, and Fedora was one of them. Her two page article on "Wastefulness" was published in the same 1912 photographic annual that reproduced her print "Embers." She was secretary of the Grand Rapids Camera Club in 1912 and 1913, and was still a prominent member of the club sixteen years later. Her prints were always an important part of the yearly club exhibitions. Her work also appeared at the International Salon of Photography and at the Pittsburgh Salon. Fedora was a pioneer member of a national organization of pictorialists. She was occupied during the last three years of her life in illustrating a four volume subscription series of The Birds of California. The author, Dr. William Leon Dawson, supplied the negatives, and her gum prints and gum bromides made from them were mounted directly into the deluxe editions of the books. Driving alone to have dinner with a friend, she was fatally injured in a two car collision near her home on July 25, 1929.

His parents were Canadian and Fred was born in Florida or Canada in 1870, the son of St. Augustine photographer George King Brown. Cecelia was born in Michigan about 1877, she married Fred in 1902 or early in 1903, and she gave birth to Hall H. Brown about 1906. By 1920 Fred was a widower. One Frederick C. Brown operated a gallery in 1895 at 108 West Street in Pittsfield, Massachusetts, and had moved to New York by 1896. "F. C. Brown, Mt.
Clemens, Mich. and St. Augustine, Fla." and "Brown's Studio, St. George St., St. Augustine" were printed on cabinet sized photograph mounts. Postal photo portraits were embossed: "F. C. Brown, St. Augustine" and "BROWN'S STUDIO, Mt. Clemens, Mich." was stamped on the backs of studio portraits in the post card format.

His father came from Massachusetts, his mother came from New York and Fred was born in Michigan in June of 1856, the third child of physician David Brown and his wife Harriet. His father died prior to 1860, his mother married Artimus G.c Retan during the 1860s, and Fred lived with his mother and his step-father through 1880. Then he married and had two children born in Michigan, Myrna in January of 1885 and Alfred in September of 1889. By 1900 he was a widower. Most of the imprints Fred used at Hudson included: "Negatives Registered." He recorded the Centennial Celebration in May of 1880 of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday School at Hudson in stereo. He advised potential patrons: "Do not let traveling picture agents gull you any longer, but go to Brown's, Spring Lake, Michigan, for Fine Photo Work of all kinds. Headquarters for Copying and Enlarging. All work guaranteed." Fred was living with his daughter and her husband in 1910 and 1920, but by 1930 he had married a widow named Jennie who was born in Michigan about 1860 to parents from New York.

Henry was born in Sodus Township of Wayne County, New York, in July of 1851, eldest of the three children of Ambrose and Matilda Brown. Nancy was born in Michigan in July of 1853, and she married Henry about 1872. Their children were born in Michigan, Claude about 1873, Lola in August of 1878 and Bessie in February of 1881. The Galesburg gallery was two doors west of Schroder & Olin's store before 1878. "Duplicates can be had at any time for one shilling apiece." was printed on some of Henry's Galesburg card mounts as well as on those of Brown & Gillis. On some card photograph mounts the back mark of Mrs. H. N. Alfred in gold was overprinted with that of Brown & Gillis in black. Willis A. Brown was the other principal of Brown Brothers Gallery, and the brothers also dealt in picture frames, jewelry, silver ware, books and stationery. Some of his trade cards identified Henry as the successor to Brown Brothers dealing in photographs, jewelry and silverware. He produced stereo views of Galesburgh, and probably was succeeded there by W. V. Austin. In his first Kalamazoo gallery, Henry made a specialty of baby pictures, guaranteed all work satisfactory, and used nothing but the instantaneous process. He advertised in 1888: "Have your HOME photographed. Have your horse photographed. Have everything photographed by H. A. Brown. I am prepared to photograph anything on earth. I shall also continue for a short time to make First-Class Cabinet Photographs for 99 cents, $1.50 and $2.00 per dozen. Copies from good pictures of any size, reduced or enlarged to cabinet size where no change is required, only $1.50 per dozen." Henry's second Kalamazoo location was in Cullen C. Packard's old rooms at 120 East Main Street, which had more recently been occupied by William F. Kidney. Here "PACKARD Studio ... Brown ... Kalamazoo." was printed on some of his cabinet mounts, and "C. B. EVANS, PHOTOGRAPHER." was stamped on others. Henry's younger daughter, Bessie, was employed in his Chicago studio in 1900. By 1910 Nancy was a widow and still was sharing her Chicago home with her elder daughter.

His parents came from New York and Vermont, and Henry was born in Michigan in June of 1860, next to last of the eight children of Reuben and Betsy Brown. His second wife's father came from New York, Genevieve was born in Michigan in April of 1871, and she married Henry about 1896. Elizabeth, a daughter born to Henry's first wife in February of 1887, was sharing their home in 1900. "Gibson & Brown, PHOTOGRAPHERS, Northville, Mich." was stamped on some cabinet mounts originally printed for the Gibson studio on West Huron Street in Ann Arbor. Henry's partners in Northville were Jefferson J. Gibson in Gibson & Brown and Miss Ella M. Dunlap in Brown & Company. He was elected second vice president of the Michigan Photographers Association in February of 1897, and this comment was made a little after that: "Mr. Brown was but little known photographically until the last Michigan Convention, where he showed two pictures of this tramp, which were grand...." In the late 1890s, this was printed on a 3 by 5 inch card with rounded corners: "Photographs, Enlarged Portraits, Picture Framing. BROWN, Photographer, Northville, Mich. Read the other side and keep it." On the back of the card was: "I wish to make your acquaintance! What for? For our mutual benefit! In what way? Because I can make you the finest photographic work obtainable, at prices far below city rates for the same quality! The highest class enlarged portraits in all styles, at prices you can afford, and can save you 15 to 30 per cent on picture framing of all kinds. Our stock is simply mammoth. Everything made up in our own shop by skilled workmen and in the most stylish manner. Carefully examine our Fair Exhibit and you will take advantage of this liberal offer: Present this card at my gallery before Dec. 1st and it will be good for 25 cents to apply to one dozen cabinet photographs. Yours for business, BROWN, Photographer." Edith P. Clute was his Detroit associate in Brown & Company, who were portrait artists, had special facilities for commercial photography, and offered enlarging and copying. They made a specialty of school work, school groups and athletic pictures, and had the finest platinum prints ever made of Central High School on sale at their gallery. Early in 1905 Henry was elected vice president for Michigan of the Ohio-Michigan Photographers Association. At this time he was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America.

Herbert was born in Michigan about 1873, the son of Luman and Julia Brown. His first marriage did not work out and his second in 1902 was to a 17-year-old girl named Lillie who was born in Michigan. They soon had a pair of twins, Edward and Edgar, followed a year later by Alfred. More twins, Josephine and Allen, were born in Michigan about 1907. "FALLS NEAR TROUT CREEK, H. A. BROWN, PHOTOGRAPHER" was applied in small sans serif capitals to the negative of a post card photograph of Agate Falls on the Ontonagon River. Late in September of 1910, Ernest Pratt was preparing to relinquish his photographic business at Weidman to his successor, H. A. Brown. Herb took a number of pictures in the country around Weidman late in June of 1911, and had moved his family from Trout Lake to Weidman by the middle of July. His father was visiting him from Trout Lake early in August, and Herb had erected a tent at his residence to take pictures by the middle of August in 1911. In March of 1912 Herb was caught stealing clothing from a Weidman store. It was reported that "Brown is a man about 35 years old, and has a wife and six children including two pairs of twins. He has no business, but this is the first time he has been arrested for a crime." The children were sent to a children's home at Coldwater a couple of weeks later. Apparently Herb and Lillie left those children in care and started another family. They had Herbert in 1912, Goldie in 1914, Clifford in June of 1916, Earl in December of 1919, Kenneth about 1922 and the twins Alma and Alberta about 1924. Please see also the entry for H. A. Brown.

Marion was born in New York State in September of 1850, sixth of the seven children of Gardner and Dorothy Brown. He was known as Burwell as a child, and was enumerated as Merrian in 1900 and 1920. In 1880 he had a 22-year-old wife named Jesse who was born in Pennsylvania, a four-year-old daughter named Maud, and a one-year-old son named Steven. Both children were born in New York. Something happened and Marion was able to marry again about 1883. His bride, Nellie, was born in Michigan in December of 1851. Their daughter Georgiana was born in May of 1887, and their daughter Jennie was born in January of 1892. Their farm in Richland Township was about five miles southwest of Freeland. Marion had no income in April of 1910, and in 1920 he was living with the family of his daughter Jennie and her farmer husband, Fred Remick. By this time Marion seems to have acquired a third wife, 48-year-old Hellen born in Michigan.

His parents came from Vermont, and Mark was born in Nottawa Township of St. Joseph County, Michigan, on October 3, 1836. He was five feet five inches tall with a fair complexion, hazel eyes and dark brown hair when he enlisted at Bradley or Wayland in Allegan County, Michigan, in Company H of the 19th Wisconsin Infantry. He was mustered into the army as a private in Company H at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, on January 31, 1862. He re-enlisted in the 19th Infantry as a veteran volunteer on February 9, 1864. During a battle at Fair Oaks, Virginia, he was captured on October 27, 1864, and immediately confined at Richmond until November 4, 1864, when he was transferred to a prison at Salisbury, North Carolina. The exposure and the diet of ground corn kernels and cobs weakened Mark and he was admitted to the hospital at Salisbury with chronic diarrhea on February 16, 1865. He and a number of other prisoners were paroled at Aiken's Landing, Virginia, on February 24, 1865, and three days later Mark was in a hospital at Annapolis, Maryland. He was transferred to Patterson Park Hospital at Baltimore on March 13, and went home on furlough from March 16 until May 6, 1865. He was returned to duty on June 16, and was mustered out of the army from Hicks General Hospital at Baltimore on August 28, 1865. He never recovered enough strength to return to his trade of making bricks, and so took up photography. He and Miss Caroline Eliza Adams were married at Otsego two days before her 22nd birthday, and never had any children. This advertisement ran from May until September of 1869: "FOR SALE. A good Photograph Car in good repair. Can be bought with or without apparatus. For particulars address or enquire of MARK BROWN, Centreville." It was then replaced by this one for three weeks: "Mark Brown takes this method to inform the citizens of Centreville and vicinity that he is only going to remain in Town until the first of October, and anyone wanting anything in the picture line must remember that delays are dangerous." His Centreville cartes de visite include views of homes as well as portraits. Mark's sale of his residence in Centreville for $1000, and that the buyer of his photograph car was making it into a boot and shoe shop, was reported in February of 1870. Mark was still a Centreville photographer in August, but by October of 1870 he had moved to Burr Oak. One year later he received this publicity: "Mark Brown, the great photographer, is now prepared with greatly increased facilities, to take an exact portrait of any individual presenting himself at his place of business in Burr Oak. Mark has accomplished a great deal since leaving Centreville, having now the finest gallery and most complete set of instruments in Southern Michigan...." Howell card photographs by Mr. & Mrs. M. Brown give their location as over the post office, or in the Weimeister Block, or in Brown's Block on the north side of Grand River Street. The sale of Mark's gallery in Howell to Charles A. Paddack was reported in April of 1899. Mark was receiving a pension of $30.00 per month at the time of his death at Roanoke on January 3, 1917.

Millard was born on July 10, 1848, at Rochester, New York. By 1853 he and his parents, John Champlin and Julia (Gates) Brown, had moved to Raisin in Lenawee County, Michigan. Except for six months away at school and another six months in 1867 spent visiting California by way of the Isthmus of Panama, Millard lived and worked on the family farm and taught school in the winters. He and Miss Gertrude Ann Helm were married at Tecumseh on December 16, 1874. He advertised locally in November of 1876: "M. P. BROWN, 'THE PHOTOGRAPHER' has been very busy lately ... at his rooms over Wright's Drug Store, and he will Guarantee to Make Pictures to satisfy, and will do them at reasonable figures. GO AND SEE HIM." By 1880 he and Gertrude had a daughter and a son. He was a member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1881. "Visit BROWN'S ART GALLERY, Tecumseh, Mich. For Pictures and Frames, Life Size Crayon, India Ink and Oil Portraits. All Sittings made by the new Instantaneous Process." was printed on the backs of some stereo views and cabinet mounts. Some card imprints gave his address as Tecumseh and Clinton, and stated that he was in Clinton every Friday. He advertised in 1883: "Pictures taken in one second by the instantaneous process by M. P. Brown, practical photographer. Visit his new ground floor gallery and see the endless variety of Picture Frames and mats kept constantly on hand. General agent for C. H. Hopkins' life size Crayon, India Ink and Oil Portraits." His cabinet imprints included: "... Fine Oil Portraits of the Living & Dead at 1-2 the usual rates. Send for Circulars to M. P. Brown, Gen'l Agt." and a misspelled one for "Bown's Studio, Tecumseh, Mich." He was also dealing in pianos in 1888. He advertised in the Detroit News on October 17, 1889: "Photograph Gallery for sale, ground floor residence attached; location desirable; trade established; payments easy; will pay to investigate. M. P. Brown, Tecumseh, Mich." He advertised in October of 1890: "Please remember and tell your friends that at Brown's Art Gallery you can get Children's Pictures, Family Groups, Fine Cabinets, Crayons, Portraits, Etc., and also the fine Pianos, Organs and Sewing Machines at the Lowest Living Prices." Walter L. Heck called himself the successor to M. P. Brown in the ground floor Tecumseh gallery, but this status may have been brief, for Ernest L. Teeple purchased the gallery from Millard and took possession on February 1, 1892. Millard advertised in 1893: "PHOTOGRAPHS To Please You, any size, style or finish. Prices reasonable, and work finished promptly. BROWN'S PHOTO PARLORS, near the Opera House, Adrian, Mich." The following phrases initiated the Adrian directory section beginning with each letter in 1894 and 1897:

 death at Tecumseh on July 31, 1899. He was survived by three daughters and his widow, Gertrude, who continued the 1 5

Minnie L. Teall was born in Michigan in February of 1882 to Edward M. and Emma L. Teall who came from New 1
 York. She married Carl Edward Brown a few years before she succeeded him on East Main Street about 1916. She m t was sole proprietor of Brown’s Studio, and by 1920 was a widow living with her parents and employing her older m 1 sister Luta as an assistant photographer. Post card photographs were marked with a rectangular blind stamp: “BROWN 1 t STUDIO, JACKSON, MICH.” Subjects included studio portraits of adults and children, singly or in groups, and a t tangled heap of trucks and other railroad car parts while the wreckage was still smoldering. An alternate circular blind t stamp had a large B in the center surrounded by “BROWN’S STUDIO, JACKSON, MICH.” Some of these postal t photos may have been made by Carl Edward Brown. t m

His mother came from Vermont and Murray was born in New York State in August of 1866, eldest of the three sons 1 of Homer and Polly Brown. The family moved to Michigan in the late 1870s. Alexia was born in Canada in May of 1 1865, and she married Murray about 1888. They never had children. Murray advertised in 1889: “Photographic Artist; 1 m 2 Enlarging, Copying, &c.; Views of Buildings & Residences; Children and Family Groups a Specialty.” In July of 1892 m 2 the local newspaper reported that “Brown, the photographer, leaves Owosso later this week to take charge of a gallery 2 3 in Ottumwa, Iowa. Persons having pictures at his gallery are requested to call for them before he leaves.” From 1896 3 until 1910, Murray lived in the southeastern corner of North Dakota and was the photographer for the communities of 3 1
 Wahpeton, Fairmount, Abercrombie and Hankinson. At Twin Falls, Alexia received equal billing with Murray as a 1

Her paternal grandmother and her maternal grandfather were Canadian, her parents came from New York, and Nanna was born in Michigan in January of 1872, last of the five children of Levi R. and Sarah M. Brown. She was called Nancy as a child. Her sister Belle was fifteen years older. Belle was an artist and an art teacher and, like Nanna, never married. Nanna attended a school for kindergarten teachers to prepare for teaching. Their father died prior to 1900, and the sisters lived with their widowed mother through 1910. After she died they continued to live together for two more decades. After 1910 she was identified as Nanna Molyneux Brown. Her ad in the 1912 South Haven High School yearbook was: “Commencement Portraits AT THE STUDIO OF NANNA MOLYNEUX BROWN, 256 Center Street – Up Stairs. NOTE: - The pictures used for the cuts of the Senior Class in this Annual were made by Miss Brown.” Her ad in the 1913 South Haven High School yearbook was: “The Modern Portrait made amid the homelike surroundings of the up-to-date Studio, with the latest equipment, the new window lighting (which is the lighting used by the old Art Masters), the simple, natural posing and artistic style of finish, will be prized by you and your friends today and in all the days to come. COMMENCEMENT, Confirmation, Birthdays, and Wedding Anniversaries are milestones of life which should be kept fresh in memory by pictured records. Do not let them pass without making an appointment for a sitting at the STUDIO OF NANNA MOLYNEUX BROWN..... Hours: 9 to 12 a.m., 1 to 5 p.m.” Following her career as an artistic photographer her interest turned to flowers and birds. Throughout the long illness that preceded her death Nanna continued to minister to her bird friends. She died at her home on August 1, 1939, survived only by two nephews and a niece. After cremation at Chicago her ashes were returned to Lakeview Cemetery at South Haven.

Nat was the son of Matthew Alvarez and Phoebe Maria (Barnard) Brown, and was born in Otsego County, New York, on October 6, 1866. He and his family moved about 1880 to Aurora County, South Dakota, and then some time after 1885 they moved to Anoka, Minnesota. Nat led hunting and trapping parties into the wilderness and worked as a photographer in Minnesota. His Patent Number 696,310 for a bicycle issued on March 25, 1902. His Patent Number 750,586 and Patent Number 795,955 covered draft mechanisms for traction-sleds and were granted on June 24, 1904, and on August 1, 1905. "N. E. BROWN, PHOTO., GRAND HAVEN, MICH." was printed on the post card backs of studio portraits, including one of eleven men and a boy postmarked in July of 1909, and of views with legends printed on their negatives. These included "Decoration Day, Grand Haven, Mich. 1909. Brown Photo." of a band and troops in front of the armory, and a series labeled "Story & Clark Piano Co. Picnic, July 20th, 1911" showing a large excursion vessel and its passengers. "Copyrighted 1911 N. E. BROWN" was lettered on the negatives of 11 by 13 ½ photographs of shipping in Grand Haven harbor, and on the negative of a postal bird's-eye view of two Grand Trunk Line car ferries there. Nat's Patent Number 1,002,897 for an Aerial Photographic Apparatus issued on September 12, 1911. This apparatus consisted of a camera carried by a kite along with a mechanism to rotate the camera in steps, to wind the film, and to operate the shutter after each rotational step. "Kite Photo, N. E. Brown. Entrance to M.N.G. Camp, Grayling, Mich. ©" was lettered on the negative of a post card photograph. The Library of Congress holds two photographs copyrighted by N. N. Brown in 1907: "Brown's Aerial Views, No. 2, Grand Haven, Mich." 5 ¼ by 8 inches, and "Brown's Aerial Views, No. 3, Spring Lake, Mich." 4 by 5 ½ inches. His Patent Number 1,040,136 was for a gyroplane aircraft and was granted on October 1, 1912. His Patent Number 1,366,158 issued on January 18, 1921, and was for a Camera which consisted of a film pack, a front board carrying the lens and shutter, and a cardboard form with gummed edges which could be folded into a camera box interconnecting the front board with the film pack. Nat claimed to have invented the concept of signatures on camera film. His photographic patents are thought to have been sold to the Eastman Kodak Company. During the early 1920s Nat built a cottage up the Grand River from Grand Haven and lived there as a recluse. About 1930 he sold the cottage to obtain money he needed to marry for the first time. Though he received city property in exchange for the cottage, he did not get the $1400 in cash which he expected and, as a consequence, his new bride left him. After stewing about being defrauded for several months he lowered dynamite down the chimney of the cottage and blew it to bits. Nat was arrested, at first denied any part in the bombing, and later confessed. He was sentenced to prison for 10 to 25 years, but was expected to be released after two years if his ideas about revenge had changed. When he returned to Grand Haven, Nat lived with the family of his brother, and is remembered as a kind and gentle man. He had a stroke while hunting deer in November of 1937 near Wakefield, where he was hospitalized for seven months. He died at the Grand Haven home of his brother on December 27, 1938, and burial was in Lake Forest Cemetery.

George F. Brown was born in Scotland about 1828, his wife Margaret was born in Ireland in February of 1829, and they both immigrated to Canada where they married and had two sons born between 1855 and 1860. Then they moved to Michigan where they had four more sons born between 1861 and 1869. Thomas was next to last, and was born in June of 1866. He never married, and he was living with his widowed mother in 1900 and lodging along with his older brother Samuel in 1920.

Willard was born in Michigan on April 25, 1875, the son of Jasper and Julia Brown. Maud was born in Michigan in 1876, she married Willard about 1903, and she was proprietor of Union City's news store in 1910. Willard advertised in Union City: "A thing of beauty is a joy forever, and so are the Pictures made by Artificial Light at BROWN'S STUDIO. Our Enlargements in Crayon, Pastel and Water Colors, made from the life negative, cannot be beaten. We have a nice selection in Ready-Made Frames, and our line of Picture Moulding comprises over 200 patterns. Our Sheet Pictures and Post Cards merit your inspection...." This was in July of 1909. "W. L. BROWN, PHTGR., UNION CITY, MICH." was printed on the backs of many post card photographs of Union City, including street scenes, factories, homes, public buildings, monuments, bridges, and a community ox roast in September of 1909. Postal photos of the main streets and other features of Athens, Leonidas and Matteson were marked the same way. "W. L. Brown, Union City, Mich." was blind stamped into the 8 by 10 inch mount of a 5 by 7 photograph of Willard's photo gallery, which was in a single story wing of his home. A 5 by 7 photograph of Grand Trunk locomotive 1383 and the crew of a freight train, taken September 18, 1913, was embossed "W. L. BROWN STUDIO" before the print was attached to its 8 by 10 mount. Willard was a stout man with blue eyes and light brown hair in 1918.

His father was born in New York. His mother was born in Ohio, married a man named Habathorn and raised four children there before marrying for the second time. William was born in Michigan on December 24, 1879, the only child of Sylvester and Nancy Brown. He became a tall man with blue eyes and brown hair. Minnie was born in Michigan in 1883, and she married William about 1902. Their sons were born in Michigan, Earl Leonard in 1904 and Arthur George in 1911. They were living in 1910 next door to photographer Eugene Collins and his family. "PHOTO BY WM. C. BROWN" was printed on the post card backs of photographs. One of a group of pre-teen boys was captioned: "Central State Normal, Training School Football squad, 1913." Another of an older group in a variety of uniforms with some "N" letter sweaters had "C.S.N. 1913" lettered on its negative over the football one of the men was holding. Others showed students in their room, and seniors erecting a "C.S.N. 1914" electric sign which they had given to the Normal.

His parents came from New York and William was born in Michigan in January of 1859. Her father emigrated from Canada, her mother came from Ohio, Rosetta was born in Michigan in January of 1861, and she married William about 1883. Their daughter Grace was born in Iowa in June of 1898. William's sale of the Elsie gallery to Emory A. Fuller was reported in the spring of 1901. Brown's Photo Studio in Maple Rapids about 1908 may have operated by William. Bellevue post card photographs from about 1910 show a "PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY" sign over a stairway between buildings of two stories, one brick and one frame. A display case of photographs was at sidewalk level on the frame building, which housed a grocery store. Early in the morning of December 5, 1911, fire broke out in a Bellevue jewelry store. Soon all of the west side of Main Street was ablaze. With help from the Charlotte fire department part of the business district was saved, but the cost of the damage exceeded $75,000. A photographer named William Brown was working in 1920 at Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, and in 1921 at Humboldt, Saskatchewan. Grace accompanied her parents to California, where she was teaching in a public school.

Browne, William Frank

Northfield, Vermont, resident ..... 1862 1
United States Army soldier ..... 1862-1863 1
PHOTOGRAPHER with the Fifth Michigan Cavalry Regiment ..... 1863-1865 1
Northfield, Vermont, resident ..... 1865-1867 1

William enlisted as a private in Company C of the 15th Vermont Volunteer Infantry Regiment on October 22, 1862, at Berlin, Vermont. He was mustered out of active military service on August 5, 1863, and shortly thereafter attached himself to General Kilpatrick's Third Cavalry Division, and particularly to the Fifth Michigan Cavalry. Labels with "WM. FRANK BROWNE, AMBROTYPIST, 5th Michigan Cavalry, NEAR FAIRFAX COURT HOUSE, VA." were adhered to the backs of tintypes in hinged cases. "Wm. Frank Browne, Photographer, Kilpatrick's Division. Headquarters 5th Mich. Cav." was printed on the backs of his photograph mounts of this period. He made tintypes and cartes de visite for the officers and enlisted cavalymen to send home, and a series of stereo views which were published by Alexander Gardner. Under General Kilpatrick, General George Armstrong Custer commanded the Second Brigade which included the Fifth Michigan Cavalry. William took two half plate ambrotypes of Brigadier General Custer about September of 1863, three cartes de visite of Custer around January 25, 1864, and three tintypes of Custer with his wife and cook about April 12, 1865, immediately following Lee's surrender at Appomattox. William returned to Vermont after the war, and died of consumption at Northfield on September 12, 1867.

Christ was born in Pennsylvania in 1829 or 1830. Brubaker & Brother sent whole plate views of the silver mines to The Philadelphia Photographer in 1867. Under his own name and with William D. Whitesides, Brubaker was a very prolific publisher of stereo views in a series of over 500 "Gems of Lake Superior Scenery" with imprints that often gave credit for the photography to B. F. Childs. The same stereo series was published by Childs' Art Gallery in Marquette, and cartes de visite from the same negatives were published from Houghton by Brubaker and from Marquette by Childs. Some card mounts have "CHILDS, Photographer, Marquette, Mich." printed beneath the photograph, and "Brubaker & Whitesides, Photographers, Marquette, Mich." printed on the back. Others have "CHILDS - Brubaker's Gallery, Houghton." printed below the image, and "C. B. Brubaker, Photographer, Houghton, Mich." printed on the back. Brubaker paid $3250.00 in August of 1874 for a number of Childs' stereoscopic negatives. In his Houghton gallery, Brubaker gave special attention "... to Enlargements and Copying of all kinds, in Ink and Colors. Negative preserved for further orders." Christ was single in 1880. Frederick C. Haefer was identified as the new proprietor of Childs' Art Gallery in May of 1893, associated with "the governor", Mr. C. B. Brubaker, in the Marquette studio where they had worked together twenty years earlier. This team was turning out magnificent prints with astonishing detail and finish, even from old negatives including views of Lake Superior scenery which had been sold by the thousands in past years. In the spring of 1894 a photographic journal noted that "The 'boom of the stereoscope' is already adding some fine views to our collection. Some very effective ones came from Mr. C. B. Brubaker, Marquette, Mich. They are coast scenes on Lake Superior. One of the entrance to the iron mine is a very effective view, and another of an ice-blockade has a splendid sky. All are very choice." These sound like the Childs views which Brubaker was publishing in the early 1870s.

From August of 1864 through May of 1865, Henry was assessed taxes on a much larger income than any other Michigan photographer north of the Saginaws. William Whitesides at Houghton and Ard G. Emery at Marquette were the only ones doing business on a comparable scale. Two cent revenue stamps were affixed to mounts imprinted "H. B. BRUBAKER & Company, GALLERY OF ART, Houghton, Mich." but not to those imprinted "H. B. BRUBAKER & CO., Photographic Artists,..." or "H. Brubaker & Co..." They advertised as "Dealers in Stereoscopes, Lake Superior Views, Pictured Rocks, &c., &c. Picture Frames of all Descriptions, Mouldings, Glass, Cord and Tassels, &c. Picture Frames made to order." Brubaker & Brother sent whole plate views of Michigan silver mines to a photographic journal in 1867.

John was born in 1865 at Delphi, Indiana, third of the five children of Abe and Elizabeth Brubaker. He was a school teacher and a deputy county surveyor prior to taking up photography. He operated studios in Indiana and Illinois before coming to Grand Rapids. Verna was born in Ohio in 1870 or 1871, and she married John about 1896. Their eldest daughter and a son were born in Illinois between 1897 and 1900, and two more daughters were born in Michigan between 1902 and 1905. John exhibited photographs at the Detroit convention of the Photographers' Association of America in August of 1895. He advertised nationally in the spring of 1900: "WANTED - Situation by operator of the highest class; only first-class galleries need answer; references exchanged. Address J. H. Brubaker, care Seed Dry Plate Company, St. Louis, Mo." John succeeded Charles E. Heath at 145 Monroe Street, where he operated under his own name and with George J. Krebs for many years, specializing in "Fine Photography." He was an exhibitor at the 1905 convention of the Ohio-Michigan Photographers Association . From 1910 to 1912 he was president of the Professional Photographers Society of Michigan and in 1912 was a delegate from that Society to the national convention. John was active in organizing the Michigan and Indiana Photographers Association, of which he was elected vice president in 1913. He employed Miss Ida S. Edison as an assistant in 1908 and again in 1915, Frank M. Findlay as a photographer in 1912, Nellie Warren as a photographer in 1918 and 1919, Roy Phillips as a photographer in 1919, and his eldest daughter Marion V. Brubaker as an assistant from 1927 through 1932 and as a photographer in 1934. He was president of the Ohio-Michigan-Indiana Photographers' Society prior to 1927, and had been awarded many medals and certificates for his fine portrait work. John advertised "All Kinds of Portrait Work" in 1930, and "Quality Photographs at Popular Prices" in 1934. Marion was proprietor of Brubaker Photography in Room 408 of the Union Bank Building from 1936 until 1939, and of the Brubaker Studio at 95 Monroe Avenue in 1943. John was 80 years old when he died after a long illness in Grand Rapids on June 3, 1946. Interment was in Oak Hill Cemetery, and he was survived by his wife, three daughters and two grandchildren.

His mother came from Ohio, and Burdette was born in Michigan in July of 1869, the son of James F. and Julia Bruce. His brother Martin was five years older, and they grew up on the family farm. Burdette married and had three daughters born in Michigan: Zilla in April of 1892, Leah in January of 1894, and Gladys in October of 1895. In 1900 he was raising the girls with the help of a 15-year-old house keeper named Nellie. In 1910 the two younger daughters were living in Thompsonville with the same house keeper, and Burdette was identified as a widower. Bruce & Albright copyrighted a 4 by 5 ½ inch photograph of Beulah from the west in 1908. "Bruce" was lettered on the negative of a post card photograph along with "Park, Thompsonville, Mich." The Munising merchant was married to a 35-year-old woman named Nellie, but some of the data about them does not agree with other information about Burdette. He was a widower living by himself in 1930.

- Ernest was said to be born in Michigan on February 15, 1885, though later records indicate that he was born in Germany a year earlier. He was eldest of the eight children of Henry and Augusta Brukardt, who emigrated from Germany in the early 1880s, and he matured into a medium sized man with gray eyes and dark hair. His father was a railroad section boss and many of his brothers worked for the railroad in Foster City, Metropolitan and elsewhere. "Photo by E. Brukardt" or "Foto by E. Brukardt" or "by Brukardt" or "E.R.B." was lettered on the negatives of several post card photographs of Foster City as well as a few of Bagley, Felch and Metropolitan. Some of the cards were postmarked between 1908 and 1910, and some were mailed later. Gertrude was born in Michigan to Norwegian parents in 1892. She married Ernest about 1911 and gave birth to Charles and Harold between 1912 and 1916, Gertrude in December of 1917, and Robert in 1920 or early in 1921 before she died. Ellen was born in Michigan to Swedish parents in 1886 or early in 1887, and she married Ernest about 1923. | Pontiac resident .....  | 1896-1898 | 4   |

William was born at Nottingham, England, on February 13, 1837, seventh of the eight children of gun maker William and Sarah (Paulson) Brummitt. When he was eleven years old he became a page to Lady Harriet Benedick, daughter of the Duke of Portland. After three years with Lady Harriet he was in the service of the Duke of Newcastle for eighteen months, and then traveled Europe with the Rothchilds for nearly three years. He sailed for New York in the fall of 1855 and during his three years there conducted an art gallery. His business in Philadelphia also was called an art gallery. He and Miss Paulina De Heiter were married in Philadelphia, and Paulina died there in 1865. George Watson & Brummitt gave equal billing to painted portraits and photographs, and advertised: "... Being practical artists ourselves, and doing all our own work, we have the advantage over Galleries that have to employ Artists to do the work, who usually receive one-half the price of the picture...." William introduced himself in Pontiac by offering a prize for the correct solution of a rebus puzzle, and continued to use original and colorful advertising for many years. He and Miss Ella R. Woodard of Pontiac were married in 1872. In February of 1874 he received much publicity for offering to take free portraits of each of the 150 living pioneers of Oakland County. In May he proposed "... to take pictures of Residences, Factories, Stores, Machinery and Landscape views, either Stereoscopic or of any other size or style..." In June he asked: "Why will you give traveling agents $65 for life size crayons when BRUMMITT will make them for $25 ?..." In September of 1874 he took a 14 by 17 inch outdoor group photograph of the 150 pioneers. In February of 1875 he reacted to the cut-rate pricing of his Pontiac competitors with: "WAR DECLARED...Card Pictures, per dozen $0.75; Large ones, for framing, first $1.00 each duplicate $0.50..." The price war continued most of the year, but by December he was up to $1.00 per dozen while announcing the opening of a Branch Gallery at Holly. H. Maurice Kittle succeeded William in Stout's Block on Saginaw Street at Pontiac in 1878, when William concentrated upon the saloon business for a couple of years. Kittle moved to Tuthill's Block over the Bill Poster office in August of 1879 when Brummitt reoccupied the Stout's Block gallery and announced: "... that he has again commenced business AT HIS OLD STAND, which he has thouroughly refitted and supplied with all the accessories necessary to make the VERY BEST and LATEST STYLES of Pictures..." The backs of his card photographs in this period offered "A beautiful selection of Stereoscopic Views of Orchard Lake and surrounding scenery, for sale at the office of the Hotel, or at the Gallery in Pontiac." Views in this series were entitled: "Nooks and Corners in Oakland Co., Mich." During 1880 and 1881 William made several trips to Denver, Colorado, and was granted a building permit for three brick buildings there. One month before opening his new gallery on July 1, 1882, he proclaimed: "A suite of rooms ...most elegant ... in the state of Michigan.... The rooms and Skylights, in all their appointments, are being constructed under my own supervision.... I am purchasing NEW INSTRUMENTS, ACCESSORIES and APPARATUS for producing the VERY BEST ARTISTIC EFFECTS ... utilizing the Latest Discoveries and Inventions ... among them the INSTANTANEOUS DRY PLATE..." In March of 1883 he was bragging that his competitors were leaving Pontiac, first H. M. Kittle and then A. B. Taylor. He was taking pictures of babies in the tenth part of a second, and offering to photograph anything from an elephant to a flea. He engaged extra assistants at this time. William was awarded the First Premium for his exhibit of photographs at the Oakland County Fair in October of 1883, when he was advertising photographs on wood, metal, paper or silk. He ran the same ad from September of 1884 until July of 1885. It mentioned that he had bought some new accessories while attending the Photographers' Association of America convention at Cincinnati in August, and continued: "... I can make a picture life size and put a handsome frame around it for $15.... The babies all like me and I like the babies, so bring them along and just let me show you how quick I can make a picture." In October of 1885 he was offering $20 in gold to the first person who deciphered a scrambled advertisement of his, and in November he created a four page supplement to the Pontiac Gazette. He won a purse of $150 and much publicity by out-shooting two Pontiac businessmen at fifty clay pigeons in March of 1886. He was taking cabinet photographs for $1.50 per dozen at this time, and claimed to have taken 56 negatives on one busy day. Throughout December of 1886 he was advertising life size photographs for $8.00, and from March to May of 1887 dropped this price to $7.00. During July and into August of 1887 his ad read:

“Brummitt is making pictures of STORES, DWELLINGS. FARM HOUSES, ... Farmers can have pictures of their particular industries, such as PLOWING, HARVESTING, and Haymaking, Stock, or anything they have....” F. B. Anderson’s first advertisement as successor to Brummitt on December 7, 1888, stated: “... Mr. Brummitt will remain with Frank to meet his old friends and customers.” Anderson’s advertising still referred to his location as the Brummitt Gallery in October of 1890. William was a member of the Pontiac Common Council in 1890. His restored health was mentioned in an announcement on December 12, 1890, that he had repurchased the gallery he originated. His first advertisement asked those to whom Anderson owed pictures to call before the end of the year, and he ran a notice that he would make no more photographs on Anderson’s account on January 9, 1891. Little remarkable by or about William was printed in the Pontiac newspapers during the next few years. It was noted that he liked fishing and that he belonged to the Knights of Pythias and to the Cass Lake Aquatic Association. Robert Stewart announced on September 7, 1894, that he had purchased the Brummitt Gallery, and continued to mention Brummitt in his advertising for eight months. William died on February 23, 1898, and was survived by his wife, Mrs. Clara Brummitt. Interment was in Pontiac’s Oak Hill Cemetery.

His parents emigrated from Canada and Emile (often Emil) was born at Iron Mountain, Michigan, on October 25, 1892, the son of Edward and Louise Brunel. He had a sister Lucy born in Michigan in 1900 and a brother William born in Canada in 1903. He became a tall man with brown eyes and dark hair. He was a resident of New York City early in 1917, and by June was driving a truck for a Detroit firm. The change from 435 to 2631 Woodward Avenue during 1920 was due to alterations in most Detroit addresses, and not to relocation. Viola Duford was born in Michigan in 1893 or early in 1894, and she married Emile about 1920. She and Emile were living with the family of her brother George in 1930.
