Arnold was born in Iowa to Danish parents on March 17, 1873. He and his twin brother Christian were second and third of the ten children of Paul and Matilda Jenson. Arnold became a medium sized man with gray eyes and brown hair. Ivanilla was born in Michigan to parents from New York in April of 1873, and she married Arnold in 1894 or 1895. Christian Jenson, Arnold's twin brother, also was enumerated as a Pueblo photographer in 1900, when he and his wife Mattie were living with Arnold and Ivanilla. Arnold was enumerated as a widower in 1910, and by 1918 he had lost his right hand.

August was born in Germany in August of 1861, immigrated to America in 1882, and became a naturalized citizen of the United States in 1902. Mary was born in Pennsylvania to German parents in April of 1860, and she married August in 1886. Their children were born in Detroit: Alma on October 6, 1886, and Edward on January 3, 1888. Cabinet photographs from 227 Jefferson Avenue included full length portraits of Bishop Foley, some distributed by the Harris Photo Supply Company. Those from Gratiot Avenue included priests, uniformed lodge members and a drum major as well as the usual first communions, wedding couples, family groups and individual portraits. August's partners were Joseph Kirsch in 1889 and John Becker in 1890, while he was the only principal of the company from 1891 through 1893. The company employed John A. Becker as a photo printer in 1890, and Frank Schindler as an apprentice in 1890 and as a photographer in 1891 and 1892. August was a widower by 1920, when he was living with the family of his daughter Alma and her husband, Richard Conlon. He still was living with them in 1930.

His father was born in Canada and was brought to the United States when he was four years old, his mother was born in Michigan to Canadian parents, and Louis was born here on October 27, 1881, to Edward D. and Mary (Thebo) Jerue. His only sibling, Emma, was born on November 16, 1883. His father founded the Jerue House about 1898, and its proprietors were E. D. Jerue & Son from 1900 until 1905. Louis was identified as the son, and in 1902 also as a dealer in Photo Buttons, a philatelist and a numismatist. By this time he was a short slender man with brown eyes and brown hair. William A. Badgley was proprietor of the Jerue House in 1906. Iva Mae Adams was born in Michigan to parents from New York in September of 1881, last of the three children of Peter H. and Eliza Adams. She married Louis about 1901, and their sons were born in Michigan: Edward in 1904, Louis on May 6, 1908, and Robert not until 1922 or early in 1923. Louis was selling art and novelties in 1910, and Iva was a saleslady in his shop. "MAIN ENTRANCE TO THE HOUSE OF DAVID, BENTON HARBOR, MICH. LOUIS A. JERUE." was lettered on the negative of a picture published by the Albertype Company of New York. Farming in Montana may have been a wartime maneuver for Louis, and he seems to have been alone out there for he named his father back in Benton Harbor as his closest relative. Soon he was back in business with a retail shop, and by 1930 Iva was again his saleslady. Louis died in October of 1950, and Iva lived until September 9, 1962.

Ambrose was born on March 1, 1878, at Derby, Connecticut, probably the son of Thomas Jewett. He was living in 1880 with his grandparents, Pliny A. and Juliet M. Jewett. He became a six foot man with brown eyes and dark brown hair, and during the Spanish-American War he served as a landsman with the First Division of the Naval Battalion. Her father emigrated from Scotland and Matilda was born in Connecticut to an English mother early in 1879, and she married Ambrose about 1903. Their son Ambrose was born in Connecticut in 1904 or early in 1905, and he died as a child. Before the first depression early in 1920, the Photographic Department of the Ford Motor Company employed 45 men, and was turning out 115,000 feet of film each week. Ambrose originated the idea of the Ford movie weekly, which included scenic as well as industrial motion pictures which were circulated in 5000 theaters with an audience of 9,000,000 persons. Ambrose called himself a motion picture producer for the Ford Motor Company. He traveled by rail in October of 1918 to cooperate with representatives of the Mexican Government at their plant in Mexico City. The memo requesting his passport was signed by Henry Ford, and he was expected to return within two months. Ambrose left Ford to affiliate with C. Harold Wills, who was starting an automobile manufacturing company at Marysville, Michigan. He joined the Metropolitan Motion Picture Company in the spring of 1925 as head of the Industrial Department with responsibility for all industrial movies. Something happened to Matilda, and by 1930 Ambrose was married to a lady named Janet who was born in Connecticut about 1885 and had been married previously. He later became industrial director of the Ford Motor Company facilities at Richmond, California. He died at Richmond on July 8, 1948, survived by his wife Janet, and by a daughter and a granddaughter. Burial was at Richmond.

Ernest was born on November 1, 1874, in Cornwall, England, last of the four children of Mrs. Eliza John. His commercial traveler father was not at home when the census was taken. Ernest immigrated in 1887. Elizabeth was born in Michigan in 1874 to a mother from Wisconsin, and she married Ernest about 1902. Their sons were born in Michigan: Stuart in 1903 and Charles in 1905. Ernest purchased the studio of Jacob Hanselman that was on the second floor of a building not far from Maple Street, and had a balcony overlooking the river. Hanselman soon bought back the business. Ernest still had not applied for United States citizenship in 1918. Elizabeth was teaching in a private school in 1930. Charles still was living at home, and was working as a commercial artist.

Carl was born at Christiana, Norway, on April 12, 1864, the son of John and Marie K. Youngs. He came to America with his family in 1872, and he began to study art with Aurelius Revenaugh in 1878. He changed his surname from Youngs to Johnson between 1880 and 1881, and he went to work for Revenaugh in 1884. After Revenaugh moved to Kentucky in 1887, Carl rented studios on Jackson's Main Street. He took over Frank LeClear's photograph gallery in December of 1889. Early cabinet imprints place Carl's gallery on "... Main Street East, head of Cooper,..." while several later ones locate it at 223 East Main Street. His employees included his sister, Nettie Johnson, as a photographer, photo printer or retoucher from 1890 to 1897; Frank Thorpe as a photographer, retoucher or portrait painter from 1891 to 1897; His sister Mrs. Nettie Brown as bookkeeper from 1896 to 1902; and his nephew Carl Edward Brown as assistant, photographer or photo printer from 1898 to 1910. Carl and his sister and his nephew were living in 1900 with his widowed mother, Mrs. Marie K. Johnson. Carl was providing a home in 1910 for his mother and his nephew. One Carl Johnson was a photographer at Rockford, Illinois, from 1912 until 1914. Carl O. Johnson left Jackson about 1912, and returned about 1919 to paint and to photograph, and to set up a landscaping and garden design business. Carl's mother still was living with him in 1920. Carl still was single when he died in 1924. 2 1

His father emigrated from Holland and Charley was born in Michigan to a mother from Pennsylvania in March of 1863, a son of John and Elizabeth A. Johnson. He and his younger brother George were single and living with their parents in 1900. That Charles had purchased George A. Johnson's interest in the Johnson Brothers gallery, and that he would conduct the business alone, was reported early in 1903. "The Best Tin Types in the City - at - JOHNSON'S GALLERY, near Graham & Morton's Dock, St. Joe., Mich." was printed on 3 by 5 inch folders which carried tintypes. Emil was born in Michigan to Swedish parents on April 28, 1886, and became a tall slender man with brown eyes and hair. Clara May Stevens was born in Michigan in 1891, married Emil about 1914, and was a Mancelona milliner from 1920 through 1931. Emil worked as an assistant mail carrier to supplement his photographic income. He made post card photographs of Mancelona's State Street at least ten years apart, the casting room and the new retort of the Antrim Iron Company, the high school and both its boy's and its girl's basketball teams, churches, a train wreck in 1916, fires in a saw mill and in a store in 1908 and a business block fire in 1918, a spring flood, Governor Warner speaking to a crowd in October of 1908, a street fair in June of 1909, the Antrim Iron Company furnace at Antrim, trout fishermen in the Cedar River, and the Stearns logging camp at Culver. "PHOTO BY E. JOHNSON, MANCELONA, MICH." was printed on the post card backs of some of his earliest photographs. Many of his negatives were marked "By Johnson" or "Photo by Johnson" or "JOHNSON," but some had only the initials "E.J." and a few had only a "J." One of his longer captions was: "290 BU'S POTATOES DRAWN TO TOWN BY FRANK LOCKREY, ALBA, MICH. SOLD FOR $188.82. PHOTO BY JOHNSON, MANCELONA, MICH." Emil's glass negatives covered the same range of subjects as his post cards as well as scenes on Les Cheneaux Islands. He seems to have been succeeded as Mancelona's photographer by Charles Lund.

John was born in August of 1868 at Kalmer, Sweden, came to America in 1887, and was naturalized in 1911. Her father emigrated from England and Lavonia was born in Canada in September of 1875, the daughter of George H. and Eliza Jorden. Lavonia crossed the border in 1891, and she married John about 1895. Their children were born in Michigan: Elmer in November of 1897, Raymond in November of 1898, Kenneth in 1900, Hazel in 1902, and Thelma in 1906. Lavonia became a naturalized United States citizen with John in 1911. Alfred J. Lawson was John's partner in the early 1890s. "J. R. JOHNSON, PHOTOGRAPHER, POST CARDS AND SOUVENIRS, CHEBOYGAN, MICH." was printed on many postal photographs postmarked between 1909 and 1912. John's Cheboygan post card photos of this period included a train of log sleds drawn by a steam caterpillar tractor, a large steam boat approaching a crowded dock on the Cheboygan River, Main Street being cleared by a horse drawn snow plow, many deer piled on freight trucks at the depot, a horse race on the Lake Huron ice, mail leaving for Walkers Point on a dog sled, and a studio shot of five little girls in their pinafores. He used two other imprints and at least three different negative marks on post cards. Among his later Cheboygan cards were photos of the $500,000 fire on March 8, 1922, and an aerial photograph postmarked in 1935. He produced post card photographs of many other towns and resorts, including Alba, Alpena, Antrim, Au Sable, Carp Lake, Cooke Dam, Cross Village, Gaylord, Ironwood, Mackinac Island, Mackinaw City, Millersburg, Mullet Lake, Munising, Pointe Aux Pins, Ramona Park, Republic, Sterling, Topinabee, Tower and Walkers Point. In 1916 John was classified under COMMERCIAL PHOTOGRAPHERS, PHOTO POSTCARDS, PHOTOGRAPHERS, PHOTOGRAPHS ENLARGED, PHOTOS DEVELOPED AND FINISHED FOR AMATEURS, PORTRAIT ARTISTS and POST CARDS. He sold "... Post Cards, Souvenirs and Curios, Indian made baskets. Publisher and manufacturer of LOCAL VIEWS and PHOTO POST CARDS.... Portrait and View Photographer, Up to date Portrait Enlarging in black and white, sepia, or in colors." He was the sole proprietor of Johnson's Studio, and used the same advertisement throughout the 1920s: "Portrait and Commercial Photographer, Amateur Finishing, Kodaks and Supplies, Framing and Enlarging...." John had the Cheboygan firemen all lined up and looking pretty for a group photo on Sunday, January 29, 1922, when the alarm sounded and the gang rushed for the apparatus to extinguish a blaze in a local home. He expected to try again the following Sunday.

Mr. Johnson was born in 1846 or early in 1847. He married, and his wife gave birth to three children between 1871 and January of 1876. They were living in the partially partitioned second floor of a frame building. This space served as the photograph gallery as well as their home. One week after his oldest child contracted scarlet fever Mr. Johnson was stricken with the disease, and he died six days later on April 4, 1876. His second child soon died from the fever, but the infant never showed any symptoms.

His father came from New Hampshire and Otto was born in Michigan to a German mother in February of 1867, first of the four children of George F. and Louisa (Eichelberg) Johnson. Olive was born in Michigan to Canadian parents in March of 1870, she married Otto about 1890, and they had no children. They had six roomers in 1900, and maintained the rooming house into 1910, when they had sixteen lodgers. Otto was a prolific producer of post card photographs, with most of those mailed being post marked between 1907 and 1912, and apparently had very effective retail outlets for his cards. He lettered "By O. W. Johnson" on the negative of a postal photo made at the Michigan State Fair in 1905. He marked his "OWJ" monogram along with a number on the negatives of many postal views of Belle Isle, many of Palmer Park, and others of Detroit churches, the Detroit Golf Club and the Cadillaqua celebration in 1912, plus views at Island Lake, Waterford and Windiate Park. The numbers ranged from 7 to 171, and a series from 5A to 32A was used on views of Palmer Park. His "OWJ" monogram without a number was lettered on the negatives of post card views of the Elks parade on July 14, 1910, and some or all of these cards had "BLACK'S DETROIT" stamped on their backs. "A real photograph post card by Otto W. Johnson" was press printed on the face of views of hotels, schools, Palmer Park, Romulus and Waterford. From 1913 to 1915 Otto was identified as a machinist in Detroit, and in 1920 he advertised as a locksmith, electrician, bell hanger and lawn mower sharpener. By 1920 he had a wife named Georgia, who was born in Kentucky in 1879. Her 18-year-old daughter Dorothy from an earlier marriage was living with them at that time, and was using the surname Johnson.

His father came from New Hampshire and Ralph was born in Michigan in June of 1862, the only son of George W. and Frances Johnson. His sister Edith was born two years later. Ralph was associated with Charles R. Baker on Monroe Avenue. He advertised nationally in March of 1885: "SITUATION WANTED - First-class printer; eight years experience. Best of references; can operate. R. A. Johnson, 193 Harper Ave., Detroit, Mich." The photographer at 232 Woodward Avenue about 1888 was identified only by the surname Johnson. Angie was born in California in September of 1859 to English parents, and she married Ralph about 1879. Their son Frank was born in California in August of 1880, their daughter Doris was born in Wisconsin in April of 1891, and their son Ralph was born in Michigan in November of 1893. Both Doris and the younger Ralph were enumerated as Aristotype photographers in 1910. Ralph was a widower by 1920, when he was providing a home for his mother and his sister as well as his son Ralph who also was a photographer for the Kodak Works. Ralph was living in 1930 with the family of his daughter and her husband, Ralph I. Mosher. Irondequoit is a suburb of Rochester, and Ralph probably was continuing to work for Kodak in 1930.

Though he used the name Stanley for a while in the teens and early 1920s, probably to differentiate himself from his father and his son, at all other times he was listed as Albert S. Johnson. His father emigrated from England and Stanley was born in Wisconsin to a mother from New York in January of 1863, the only son of Alfred S. and Elizabeth L. Johnson. His sister Phila was born there three years earlier. His father established a photograph gallery at Waupun in 1865, in which Stanley undoubtedly played as a child and worked as a young adult. Myrtle (often Myrtie) was born in Wisconsin to German parents in May of 1873, and she married Stanley about 1894. The senior Alfred S. Johnson had retired from the Waupun gallery by 1900. Myrtle was identified as a Waupun photographer in 1905, and as a photo retoucher in 1910. Alfred S. Johnson, her son, was born at Waupun in July of 1909. "STANLEY JOHNSON, PHOTOGRAPHER, WAUPUN, WIS." was printed on the post card backs of photographs. One was a composite with "BIRCH WOOD BEACH, HERBERT, MICH." printed at the center of ten small views, mostly of groups of young women or scenes along the beach or in the woods. This card was mailed in July of 1913. The youngest Alfred S. Johnson was working as a photographer in his father's Waupun studio in 1930.

Johnston, Frances Benjamin

Paris, France, student of art ..... 1883-1885 1
Washington, D.C., PHOTOGRAPHER in the rear of 1332 V st NW ..... 1890-1938 1
New Orleans, Louisiana, resident ..... 1939-1952 1

Frances was born at Grafton, West Virginia, on January 15, 1864, and moved with her well-to-do family to a spot along the Ohio River and then to Rochester, New York, before they settled in Washington. She studied drawing and painting in Paris and in Washington before turning to photography, and did architectural documentation for commercial photographers before apprenticing herself to Professor Smillie at the Smithsonian Institution. The studio which she opened in 1890 was picturesque and had an enormous northern skylight. Many of her early photographs were used to illustrate her own magazine articles. Due to her social position, diligence and technical mastery she had easy access to the White House during the administrations of Cleveland, Harrison, McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt and Taft, and became known as the unofficial "Photographer to the American Court." She documented the educational systems of Washington, West Point, Annapolis, Carlisle and Tuskegee. She also took over 150 pictures of the Hampton Institute, and a major exhibit of them enhanced the Negro section of the American Pavilion at the Paris Universal Exposition in 1900. During the Exposition she addressed the Third International Photographic Congress in excellent French and received a Grand Prix and some medals. Frances photographed coal fields, a shoe factory, Mammoth Cave, Niagara Falls, the homes of millionaires and much of Admiral Dewey's triumphal westward return voyage to the United States after the battle of Manila. During a tour of the Midwest, she arrived in Detroit early on Sunday morning, August 16, 1903. Here she exposed at least one 8 by 9½ inch negative of the Muir Fountain for horses and people. She left by steamer on August 18, photographed a light house at Lake St. Clair, and spent a few days photographing Native Americans, streets, the fort and vessels at the docks on Mackinac Island. I have seen copies of seven prints, including two cyanotypes. On her way to Duluth she took pictures of scenes on the St. Marys River and at Hancock or Houghton. After years of straight portraiture and photojournalism, she turned to pictorialism and became an associate member of the Photo-Secession in 1904. In the 1920s she was one of the first women to specialize in color processing. She spent much of the 1930s documenting Colonial and Federal architecture in the South. Frances donated most of her enormous archive of negatives, prints and correspondence (including the Michigan negatives and prints) to the Library of Congress in 1948. She took few photographs after her move to New Orleans, and was 88 when she died there in 1952. 1 2

His father emigrated from Northern Ireland and Harry was born in Michigan to a Canadian mother on October 11, 1872. Eleanor was born in England in May of 1873, and she came to America in 1886. She and Harry married about 1897, and their daughter Dorothy was born in Michigan in December of 1899. They were providing a home in 1900 for Harry's 21-year-old brother Albert, and in 1920 for his 40-year-old brother Alvah. "H. E. JOHNSTON, 1554 RUSSELL ST., DETROIT." was printed on the post card backs of studio portraits, and on 9 by 6 inch commercial mounts. Some of these mounts carried oval prints from negatives exposed by Goodson & Best no later than 1905. In 1915, Harry advertised as a "Commercial Photographer - Automobile, Machinery and Furniture." In 1916, the Johnston Studio was advertising similarly from 1554 Russell Street with Fred Holgate as proprietor. Harry was tall and slender with blue eyes and grayish hair in 1918, when both his home and his business were at 234 Chandler Avenue.

William was of Scotch and Irish descent and was born in Canada in December of 1842. He probably was last of the three sons of John and Isobell Johnston. If so, his brothers Robert and Thomas were born in Ireland between 1831 and 1835. The Battle Creek photographer was identified as William Johnson, as was the Flint photographer in 1900. William's hair, moustache and beard were white in the small photograph affixed to a business card which read: "WILLIAM JOHNSTON, Photographer and Artist. - You and your friends are cordially invited to call at our parlors and inspect our work in PORCELAIN, the peer of all portrait work; also our BROMIDES, taken any size up to six feet in length; both of above classes finished in India Ink, Sepia, or Water Color. General work in Cabinets, Gems, Buttons, Scarf Pins, etc. Fine line of Picture Frames. Parlors and Art Studio over Glynn Bro's Store, 500 Saginaw Street, Flint, Michigan." One William A. Johnston of the same age, birth place and paternity as the photographer was an inmate in 1910 of the Northern Michigan Asylum at Traverse City, and was enumerated as married. Another William Johnston was a photographer from 1881 to 1883 in Winnipeg, Manitoba, and from 1884 to 1893 in Selkirk, Manitoba, before becoming a jeweler there.

Martha J. Skinner was born to parents from Vermont in Windsor Township of Eaton County, Michigan, on April 11, 1850, eighth of the nine children of John D. and Clarissa Skinner. She grew up on the family farm. Robert Martin Joiner was born to a mother from New Hampshire at Royalton, Vermont, on November 7, 1850, first of the four children of Martin Tuller Joyner and Abbie Priscilla Wells. He and Martha were married at Lansing, Michigan, on December 23, 1875. Their children were born at Chase, Michigan: Martin on June 13, 1877, Abigail (later Abbie) on June 20, 1880, Robert on April 24, 1883, and Ellen in June of 1892. Martha's husband Robert was the proprietor of a saw mill and a notary public before he died at Chase on September 30, 1894. All four of her children were single and living with Martha in 1900. Martin married about 1902, and Martha was living with his family in 1910. She died at Alma, Michigan, on September 1, 1917.

Czar was born in Vermont about 1808. He came to Michigan in 1833, when he visited Lake Superior and was credited with making several of the initial discoveries of mining sites in the region. He was a blacksmith, and was said to be the first to work Lake Superior iron upon the spot where it was found. Nancy was born in New York State about 1810. She married Czar, and their daughter Frances was born in Michigan in 1840 or 1841. In August of 1844 Czar became a charter member of Jackson Lodge No. 4 of the I.O.O.F. Nancy and Czar were living in 1860 with the family of his brother, Day Jones, and Frances was not with them. Czar was 86 years old when he died in Detroit on April 4, 1895. His widow, Rosa, occupied their Detroit home for several years after his death.

Henry was born in Pennsylvania to parents from New York in May of 1859, the younger son of Henry and Louisa Jones. His brother Frank was born a year or two earlier. Henry went by his middle name for a while about 1870, and he may have mined coal in Pennsylvania around 1880. He married a lady from Indiana in the early 1880s, and their daughter Frances was born in Michigan in July of 1884. Henry was a widower by 1900, when he and Frances were living with his widowed mother. The 1897 directory carried a series of two line ads for Henry: "COMMERCIAL PHOTOGRAPHY; Enlarging, Reducing and Copying. Will make anything in the Photo Line. - VIEWS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION. Interiors made by my patent Flash Light. - KODAK WORK. Will Develop and Finish all your pictures." Printed on some of his photograph mounts was: "Anything in the PHOTOGRAPHIC LINE." Ida was born in Michigan to Swiss parents in 1865 or early in 1866. When she married Henry about 1909, she brought along her thirteen-year-old son Elmer.

John was born in Sweden in January of 1870 and immigrated in 1887. Anna was born in Sweden in September of 1869, and she came to America in 1889. They married in 1892, and both became naturalized citizens of the United States in 1901. Their children were born in Wisconsin, Jeanette in February of 1895, Sigurd in March of 1897, Genevieve in 1900, and John in 1904. In July of 1920 the local newspaper was offering a dozen fine photographs from Jones Studio worth ten dollars as a prize in a contest and published a flattering paragraph about the studio, noting that it was centrally located on the ground floor at a corner, took the highest class of photographs, sold kodaks and photo supplies, and did the best developing and finishing. Jeanette was a proprietor of the Jones Studio in 1921 and in 1928, when John was identified as a former city commissioner. He took pictures of the wreck when an automobile plunged into the Ashland mine cave early in 1927. The city was being sued about this incident, John came from Florida to testify in January of 1928, and he then returned to Miami. Jeanette and her father both were identified as studio photographers in 1930, and she continued the Ironwood studio until 1938 or longer. 3 4 5

His father emigrated from Canada and John was born in Michigan on June 19, 1876, last of the three children of Peter and Elizabeth Jones. Nora was born in Michigan in August of 1875, and she married John in 1896 to become Mrs. Nora Edith Jones. Their children were born in St. Clair County: Bertha in July of 1897, Arlene in March of 1898, Hazel in 1900, Leareta in 1906, Mildred in 1910, and Milford in 1913. John's gallery was on Main Street in 1898. "Jones, Photographer. Copying and Enlarging a Specialty, Yale, Mich." was stamped on the backs of 4¼ by 6 inch photograph mounts from the early 1900s. "Jones Photo, Yale" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs of concrete pipe, along with prices for sections from 8 to 35 inches in diameter from a company in Atkins, Michigan. William was born to parents from New York in October of 1844 at Wausau, Wisconsin, the only son of Freewill Baptist clergyman Almon Jones and his wife Mary. His sister Julia was born in Wisconsin in November of 1849. William learned the trade and art of photography as a youth, and for a while he traveled about with a horse-drawn photographic car before purchasing land a little north of Grand Rapids. Albertine G. White was born to parents from New York in October of 1845 in Oakland County, Michigan, second of the three children of Elam and Harriet A. White. She married William in 1864 or 1865. Their son Frank was born in Ohio on August 18, 1870, and their daughter Emma was born in Kansas in 1878 or early in 1879. After the death of his first wife in 1905, William was married a year later to a 45-year-old widow named Angia. William died in Grand Rapids in 1917. The William H. Jones that served in the 21st Michigan Infantry during the Civil War was not the photographer.

George was born at Negaunee to Canadian parents on March 3, 1873, fourth of the six children of Frederick and Anna Joque. The Joseph Jacques profiled in an earlier entry was his brother. The surname was spelled Jock in the 1880 census report. George became a short man with gray eyes and black hair, and he produced cabinet portraits from Garden in the mid 1890s. Rosanna (sometimes Rose, Rosa or Rosy) was born in Michigan to Canadian parents in 1876, second of the five known children of Frank and Nancy J. Burton. She married George on May 25, 1896, and their children were born in Michigan: Ernest on September 8, 1897, Frederick in 1901, Tessie (later Theresa) in 1906, Leonard in April of 1910, and Dorthea in 1916 or early in 1917. Rosanna died in 1922. George lived until November 18, 1941, and burial was in the old Catholic Cemetery at Garden.

Andrew was born in New York State in 1831. His first wife, Abigail (Sisson) Jordan, died near Oswego in northern Indiana on July 9, 1861. When he and 22-year-old Miss Mary S. Newton were married at Royalton, New York, on August 29, 1862, they both gave their residence as Newstand, New York. Andrew enlisted at Grand Rapids as a private in Company E of the Third Michigan Infantry on December 31, 1863, and was mustered into the army a week later. From exposure while on picket duty at Pony Mountain, Virginia, about March 15, 1864, he contracted the rheumatism which was still troubling him a month later and, in fact, for the rest of his life. On April 24 in camp near Brandy Station, Virginia, Andrew was cleaning a revolver for his orderly sergeant when it accidentally fired and wounded his left foot. Though similar “accidents” had been staged to get slackers out of the army, an officer later stated his belief that the wound was truly accidental and that Andrew was a good soldier. After three days in the division hospital, Andrew was sent to a hospital in Washington, where the second toe was amputated from his left foot. The Third Infantry returned to Michigan for veteran furlough and reorganization while Andrew was in the hospital, so he was transferred to Company E of the Fifth Michigan Infantry on June 10, 1864. He never joined this regiment, but in September was moved to Mower Hospital at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. His extended hospital treatment seems to have been more for his rheumatism than for his wound. He was honorably discharged from the Philadelphia hospital and the army on May 17, 1865. He and Mary had two daughters born in Michigan: Ida in 1863 or early in 1864, and Eldine in March of 1870. His name was spelled Jordan on his printed photograph mounts and in most other sources, but “A. J. JORDEN, PHOTOGRAPHER, South, Haven, Mich. MOULDINGS, FRAMES, &c. Children’s Pictures A Specialty.” was stamped on some of his card photograph mounts. He seems to have been succeeded as South Haven’s photographer by Mrs. Meorah A. Edwards. Andrew died on June 12, 1889, and burial was at South Haven.

Detroit president of the Detroit Amateur Photographic Society ..... 1889-1890 d
His father came from New Hampshire and James was born in Michigan to a mother from Massachusetts, the only 1 2 son of James F. Joy and his first wife, Martha Alger (Reed) Joy. His father was one of Detroit's first millionaires. 2 3
James was born in 1847 in a house on Jefferson Avenue near Hastings which was later occupied by Ulysses S. Grant. 3
He had an older sister and a younger sister, and later acquired three half-brothers. He graduated from Yale University 2 3 and worked for his father as a clerk from 1881 through 1883, as a secretary from 1884 until 1891, and as an associate d in 1892 and 1893. He was vice president from 1894 until 1896 and then president in 1897 and 1898 of the Detroit d Union Railroad Depot and Station Company. After the death of his father in 1896, James was trustee of the Joy Estate. d 3
Early in 1899, Jex Bardwell sent a noteworthy photograph of the interior of a church to a photographic journal. The 4 print was described as full of detail and softness, showing both the dark woodwork and the light hangings. The 4 negative had been exposed for one hour and fifteen minutes by James Joy on a dark and cloudy day, and was 4 developed by Mr. Bardwell. Though James substantially retired from business about 1900, he maintained an office in 4 d the Newberry Building and later in the Penobscot Building until his death. He was a devout Presbyterian, and was 62 d 3 years of age when stricken fatally by a stroke of apoplexy just steps from his Detroit home on March 7, 1910. He was 3

Sherman was born in Michigan to parents from Ohio in July of 1868, the elder son of Hubbard and Harmony Joy. His brother Erwin was born six years later. Sherman attended the local public schools and then Hiram College at Hiram, Ohio. He was apprenticed to an apiarist, worked in a furniture factory, and then studied photography for a year under Lorenzo K. Showman before becoming his partner. Etta Viola Holes was born in Michigan in October of 1870, and she married Sherman in April of 1893. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Alice in February of 1894, and Patty in 1895. Cabinet photographs are found "From Showman & Joy's Palace Cars ..." and "From the Ground Floor Studio of Showman & Joy." The Sunfield gallery was a branch of the Lake Odessa business. S. D. Joy & Company also touted their ground floor studio. John Nicol was his associate about 1895. Sherman announced on May 29, 1897, the grand opening of his Wayland photograph gallery, where he kept on hand a complete assortment of frames. On July 6, 1901, it was reported that Sherman had sold the Wayland studio to Mrs. Edith Gardner and was moving to Vicksburg, where his studio was connected with his residence. Press printed post cards, including one of Main Sreet in Vicksburg, were made from photographic negatives on which "Photo by Joy" had been lettered. On January 20, 1906, he was back in Wayland selling photographic supplies to the new firm of Stockdale & Chapman. Sherman's purchase of the Hastings studio from Henry J. Christmas was reported late in 1908. The Nashville listing was for S. C. Joy. An "S. D. JOY" blind stamp was used on post card photographs of a large crowd at the White Pigeon depot postmarked in 1915 and of the Doctor Denton sleeping garment mills at Centreville mailed in December of 1918. Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Joy both were photographers at the Three Rivers studio in 1920. Joy's Photo Studio was over Balch's Furniture Store in July of 1922, when Sherman advertised: "Your friends can buy anything you can give them except your photograph." W. A. Wingard was the proprietor in 1926 of the Joy Studio at 123 St. Joseph Street in Three Rivers. Sherman and Etta were sharing their home in 1930 with their six-year-old adopted daughter Mary.

Charles was born in Stockton Township, Wisconsin, on April 4, 1856, last of the two children of Horace and Hannah Judd. His sister Minerva was three years older, and he had two half-brothers with the surname Baker from his mother's previous marriage that were eleven and thirteen years older. Charles was single in 1880, and was living in a large hotel. He produced card photographs of the school house at Calumet from his Red Jacket gallery, stereo views of the ore docks and ships at Escanaba while he was there, and more stereo views from Jamestown. The gallery that he opened in August of 1882 on Fifth Avenue one block north of Lloyd's Bank seems to have been the first in Jamestown. Charles exposed two good negatives of a cyclone that passed 20 miles northeast of Jamestown in June of 1887, from which illustrations were published in an eastern magazine. Winifred was born at Albion, Michigan, to parents from New York on August 28, 1867, the daughter of Lyman B. and Caroline E. (Wallace) Miner. Her brother Harlan was born on December 29, 1869. She married Charles at Jamestown, North Dakota, on June 25, 1888, and they never had children. In the fall of 1896, he purchased a gallery in Fargo on Broadway near Weil & Gleason's shoe store, disposed of his many smaller galleries in outlying towns such as Carrington, LaMoure, New Rockford and Oakes, and sold his Jamestown gallery to George Newland. He left for the Puget Sound country after selling the Fargo gallery in 1901 to P. A. Johnson, who took possession in May. Charles and his wife soon were divorced, and by 1910 Winifred was living in Pasadena, California. Her father was Canadian and Anna Belle was born in Michigan in 1872. She married Charles in 1907 or early in 1908, and they never had children. They still were together in 1930, when Charles was emphasizing family photographs.

Jacob was born in 1832 at Sharon or Strafford, Vermont, and was the son of Daniel W. and Hannah Judd. He and 18-year-old Miss Mary E. Goodwin were married on November 22, 1853. He enlisted in the band of the 21st Massachusetts Infantry Regiment at Webster on July 25, 1861. He was mustered into the army as a third class musician on August 23, 1861. He contracted a kidney disease in Virginia during March of 1862, was treated by the regimental surgeon, and was at times so weak that his drum was carried on the baggage wagon. Congress abolished the regimental bands, and Jacob was discharged at Cedar Run, Virginia, on August 17, 1862. He and Mary raised three children born in Massachusetts: William in 1854 (see entry below), Charles about 1864, and Eva in January of 1873. Simon Wing, the Boston photographer, had branches in Detroit, Grand Rapids and Monroe before opening the gallery at 49 Western Avenue in Muskegon. The Kalkaska newspaper editorialized in August of 1882: "Few towns can boast of as fine a photographer as Mr. Judd. In making baby pictures he is particularly successful. It is indeed an unruly little one that cannot be coaxed by Mrs. Judd into the proper humor and position for taking a good picture." Jacob sold card photographs for $1.50 per dozen from Petoskey, including some of a girl named Florence in her coffin, specialized in enlarging and copying in India ink, crayon, oil and water colors, and guaranteed good work. He succeeded Fred W. Slaughter in Holly. He applied for a veteran's disability pension in 1890, when he was 57 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall with a dark complexion, dark hair and gray eyes. Early in 1898 he applied for an increase in his pension, and then he died from organic heart disease on October 8, 1898. Burial was in Rose Hill Cemetery at Chicago. Mary was living at Indianapolis in 1900 with the family of her daughter Eva, now Mrs. James G. Johnson. She obtained a widow's pension, but failed to claim it after April 4, 1901.

His father came from New York and Hiram was born in Michigan to a mother from Ohio in February of 1874, third of the five or more children of Henry and Andlucia Judson. He was called Harmon as a child and in many later records. Hiram was living alone at Gaines in 1900. The post office at Gaines Station was renamed Gaines on September 25, 1902, but cabinet photographs with "From the Art Studio of H. Judson, Gaines, Mich." and similar printing below the image appear to date from the late 1890s. Viola was born in Michigan in 1881 or 1882 to parents from New York, and she married Hi about 1901. "H. JUDSON, LINDEN, MICH." was printed on the post card backs of photographs of such scenes as the main street, the school and a church at Gaines, a bridge at Swartz Creek and farm homes. Under Hiram's portrait on the front of an advertising folder was printed: "H. JUDSON, Artistic Photographs, LINDEN, GAINES, SWARTZ CREEK." Inside the folder was printed: "The old crayon enlargement is a thing of the past, and in its place comes the New Method Portrait, a portrait that is life-like in every detail, a portrait that has an artistic finish (not a finish of chalk and charcoal as has the old crayon portrait) but a finish that will keep its color and retain all its fine detail, transparent shadows and clear highlights to the end. Now the question is up to you. Do you contemplate having an enlargement made this season? If so, go to the Photographer that made your picture and tell him that you want an Enlarged Photograph, and if he has the negative (which he undoubtedly has) he will make you one for about the same price you would pay for a crayon and then you will have something artistic and durable, something you can feel proud of. A sample of this new method portrait can be seen at my studios, Linden, Gaines and Swartz Creek. Another thing I wish to call to your attention is the Cabinet Photographs I am making. I use nothing but the very best material in the making of these pictures and endeavor to bring out the good features of the subjects and hide the poor ones (if any) by properly posing and lighting the subject. Every picture that leaves my studio must be first class in workmanship and finish before I allow it to leave. I also have a line of ready-made Picture Frames and make frames to order, any size or style. At Linden, Monday, Tuesday and Saturday. At Swartz Creek, Wednesday. At Gaines, Thursday. Artistically yours, H. JUDSON." George W. Tamlyn worked for Hi about 1906 and 1907 while learning the photography business, and boarded with Hi and Viola for a while in 1910. Hiram purchased the Fenton studio from Charles D. Phipps and took possession about the middle of June in 1908. Hiram and Viola never had children.

William was born in Detroit to English parents on July 23, 1859, first of the four children of William Thomas Jupp and Jane (Smith) Jupp. He attended the public schools here, and got a job as salesman for a wholesale boot and shoe firm. In 1883 he visited Dakota and purchased a farm of 160 acres which he still owned in 1898. Back in Detroit, he became a bookkeeper for John B. Price & Company, wholesale dealers in paper and printers' supplies. He was admitted to partnership in this firm at the beginning of 1890, and purchased the entire business when Price retired in 1894. Despite a serious fire, William continued to expand the business through the 1890s. Fanny Bradford Bartlett was born in Detroit on March 14, 1864, and she married William on September 17, 1890. She gave birth in Detroit to the twins Frances and William on March 23, 1892, and to Stanley on August 4, 1894. Fanny died in 1898. William was president of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen and belonged to the Detroit Boat Club. He died at Keyport, New Jersey, on September 11, 1919.

The Kalamazoo Shutter Company began advertising nationally in December of 1889, and apparently exhibited shutters in the fall of 1890 at the Photographers' Association of America convention in Washington, D. C. Under "Convention Notes" a photographic magazine characterized the "Low Kazoo" Shutter as a marked improvement with the advantage of being always set and ready to respond to pressure on the pneumatic bulb. Finished in nickel plate and mahogany, it could be adjusted to fit any size of lens tube, and had the moderate price of six dollars. Garrett W. Low and William Shakespeare, Junior, were proprietors of the Company in 1891. Three of the five patents which were granted to them between 1891 and 1893 covered photographic shutters. E. & H. T. Anthony & Company were sole agents for Low and Kazoo Shutters from 1890 into the 20th Century. Francis J. Woolley of Chicago, Illinois, and the estate of Garrett W. Low were the proprietors of this company in 1902. The Silento Studio Shutter was in 1907 called one of the latest improvements in the modern silent type of shutters, was very reasonably priced, and was available from photo stock dealers or direct from the Kalamazoo Shutter Company. The company advertised early in 1908: "Our celebrated Low Shutters are as popular as ever; quick, easy, durable, reliable; over fifty thousand sold. That our new Silento is a favorite and past the experimental stage is shown by hundreds of testimonials and increasing sales..." Managers of the company were William Shakespeare, Junior, in 1899, C. A. Root in 1906 and 1907, Frank L. Hibbard in 1908 and 1909, and Edwin M. Alspaugh from 1910 through 1913. The Low Studio Shutter #5 and Low View #10 and #8 Shutters advertised by the Kalamazoo Shutter Company from 1911 to 1913 were similar in appearance and price to those offered earlier by Anthony. 2 3 3 3 3 K K p p 4 m 2 2 2 2 1 m 4 4 4

Frank was born in Bohemia on November 11, 1890, second of the nine children of James M. and Mary (Kowril) Kalec. He and his sister Helen were brought by their parents to the United States in 1892. Frank was a medium sized single man with brown eyes and hair when he enlisted in the Michigan National Guard at Detroit on June 8, 1917. He was sent to Camp Grayling as a private in Company E of the 31st Michigan Infantry, was promoted to private first class on August 17, and was transferred to Company I of the 125th United States Infantry in the 32nd Division on September 29, 1917. He was promoted to corporal on November 12, 1917, and was shipped overseas on February 9, 1918. Promoted to sergeant in Company G on August 12, he was slightly wounded about August 29, 1918. Frank returned to America on February 28, and was honorably discharged on March 10, 1919. All records indicate that Frank remained single.

James was born to Bohemian parents at Braidwood, Illinois, on September 9, 1892, third of the nine children of James M. and Mary (Kowril) Kalec. He enlisted in the army at Detroit on May 19, 1917, and was sent to Columbus Barracks, Ohio. He was transferred to the Headquarters Company of the 23rd Engineers at Camp Meade, Maryland, and then to the Headquarters Detachment of the Fourth Battalion of the 23rd Engineers at Camp Laurel, Maryland. They shipped overseas as part of the American Expeditionary Force on March 30, 1918, and James was transferred to Company K of the 23rd Engineers on August 1, 1918. He took part in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive from October 28 until the war ended on November 11, 1918. He returned to the Headquarters Detachment on November 18, was promoted to private first class on May 17, and was back in the United States on June 9, 1919. He was honorably discharged at Camp Custer on June 17, 1919. The address of the Van Husan Block changed from 106 Broadway to 1530 Broadway during 1920. Kalec Brothers offered panoramas, views, banquets, factory products and "Anything Photographic" in 1921. James was a member of the Commercial Photographers' Association of Detroit in 1927. A long article on Michigan in a 1928 National Geographic Magazine included aerial views by Kalec & Forster of athletic fields on Belle Isle, the dirigible Los Angeles tied to a mooring mast in Dearborn, and the University of Michigan football stadium in Ann Arbor. James was president of Kalec Incorporated while his brother Joseph and his youngest brother George held other offices in the company. In 1940 he was a member of the 107th Observation Squadron in the Michigan National Guard. He entered the service as a First Lieutenant in September of 1940, was promoted to Captain in June of 1941 and was promoted to Major in July of 1942. By September of 1943 he had been serving in the Middle East for more than a year.

Joe was born to Bohemian parents on a farm near Braidwood, Illinois, on November 20, 1894, fourth of the nine children of James M. and Mary (Kowril) Kalec. He enlisted in the army at Detroit on May 17, 1917, and reported to Columbus Barracks, Ohio, on September 21, 1917. He was assigned to Company D of the 23rd Engineers, was promoted to corporal on January 1, and was shipped overseas on March 30, 1918. He was back to the rank of private on June 22, was transferred to Company H of the 29th Engineers from July 3 until October 15, when he returned to Company D of the 23rd Engineers, and served in the Meuse-Argonne campaign from September 26 to November 12, 1918. He spent some time with the 14th Photo Section of the Air Service in France before returning to this country on June 16, and was honorably discharged on July 26, 1919. After the war he and his brother James operated a small airplane parts manufacturing plant, and they both became skilled flyers. Kalec Brothers were among the first to make aerial photographs in Detroit. During the 1930s and early 1940s Joe served as secretary, and later vice president, of Kalec Incorporated simultaneously with his job at the Detroit Free Press. He developed photographic equipment and techniques, and was noted for his "machine-gun" sequences of football action. Managing the department did not keep him from frequently being "out on the firing line with the boys." Joe suffered a fatal heart attack at his desk in the Free Press office on May 13, 1950. He was survived by his wife, May, a stepson and four brothers, James, George, Frank and Edward. Burial was in Elmwood Cemetery.

His parents emigrated from the Mecklenburg region of Germany and William was born in Michigan in 1858 or early in 1859, the only child of John and Elizabeth Karberg. Some card photograph mounts printed for Karberg & Brisbois' Grand Central Gallery opposite the First National Bank were used with the name Brisbois crossed out. The Chicago furrier was said to have been born in New York State to German parents in January of 1859. His wife Anna was born in Germany in March of 1864, and she was brought to America three years later. They married in 1895, and their sons were born in New York: William in May of 1896, and Frederick in July of 1898.

George was born in Michigan to a mother from New York on May 23, 1882, the elder son of John H. and Mary E. Karkut. His brother Budd was born here in September of 1884. George became a tall man with light brown eyes and dark brown hair. The Karkuts were living next door to photographer Ali Chatelain in 1910, and George may have been working in Ali's studio. George had a wife named Mabelle in 1918. Bertha was born in Illinois to a mother from Michigan in 1899 or early in 1900, and she married George about 1924. George's thirteen-year-old daughter Madine from his earlier marriage was part of their household in 1930.

Adam was born at Korytowo in the Polish Region of Russia about 1867. Julia was a couple of years younger, and she married Adam when she was 27 years old. Adam left their home in Wloclawek and sailed from Hamburg, Germany, on the S. S. Deutschland, on April 15, 1909, identified as a photographer. After stops in Southampton, England, and Cherbourg, France, he arrived at New York on April 23, 1909. He seems to have returned to Poland in the early 1920s, and to have located in Warsaw. On May 8, 1928, he sailed from Danzig, Poland, on the S. S. Lituanian, and he arrived at New York on May 20, 1928. On this trip he traveled alone and was again identified as a photographer. Julia also immigrated in 1928, and she was living with Adam in Flint in 1930.

Joseph was born in New York State to German parents early in 1871. He married Anna about 1892, and their two sons were born in 1894 and 1899. Joseph often was identified without his middle initial, and his elder son was named Joseph G. Keck, so there was some potential for confusion. Keck's Studio advertised "... Artistic Portraiture, Photographic, Crayon and Water Color Enlargements. Group Work a Specialty...." Joseph was a widower by 1930, when he was boarding with a Dearborn family. He was 69 years old when he died in Detroit on July 26, 1940.

Ella was born in Illinois to parents from Vermont in July of 1856, second of the three children of Elbridge and Elizabeth Gale. Her brother George was two years older and her sister Hattie was thirteen years younger. Her father was a Baptist clergyman in 1860, a farmer in 1870, a college professor in 1875, and a minister of the gospel in 1880. William H. Kedzie was born in Michigan about 1852, first of the three sons of Robert C. and Harriet E. Kedzie. He married Ella about 1876. Their daughter Pearl (later Ella P.) was born in Kansas in September of 1877, and their son Roscoe was born in Ohio in 1878 or early in 1879. By June of 1880 Ella was a widow, and with her children was back living with her parents. Ella taught painting and drawing at Olivet College. Ella and her daughter were living in 1900 with her father-in-law, Robert Clark Kedzie, Professor of Chemistry at Michigan Agricultural College. Ella was living by herself in 1910, she was providing for a roomer in 1920, and she was back by herself in 1930.

Charles was born in Michigan to parents from Ohio in January of 1868, last of the three children of Simon and Susan Keefe. He was called Charley as a youth. Her father came from New York and Mary (later Mamie) was born in Michigan to an English mother in November of 1869. She married Charles about 1889, and their son Leonard was born in November of 1892. Charles used two different stamps on the backs of card photographs and at least seven different cabinet imprints from Camden, including one with the message: "Negatives preserved for FUTURE ORDERS. VIEWS of Schools and Residences AT REDUCED PRICES. ASK to see samples..." In April of 1892 a photographic periodical mentioned that "Keefe & Carson, Reading, Michigan, send examples of aristo printing, several tints of tone from beautiful brown to jet black. The work is excellent, lighting and finish." One of Charles' Reading cabinets was a composite photograph of a young woman, a young man and a small dog. Laura was born in Michigan to parents from Indiana in November of 1872. She married Charles James about 1893 and their children were born in Illinois: Frank in April of 1895, and Esther in November of 1896. Something happened to Mamie Keefe and to Charles James, and by 1920 Laura was married to Charles Keefe. Their household included Leonard Keefe, Frank James and Esther James.

Francis N. McAllister was born in Michigan in 1868 or early in 1869. By 1880 he had been adopted by James J. and Sarah E. (Hopkins) Keenan. James was Canadian, Sarah was from Indiana, and their children were born in Michigan: Parmelia about 1870, James about 1874, and Joseph about 1878. Our subject was identified as Frank N. Keenan in 1886, 1887 and 1889, and subsequently as Francis N. Keenan. James J. Keenan was in the furniture and/or upholstery business, and seems to have been the major employer of Francis as an upholsterer.

One James Keeney was born in Connecticut in 1835, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Keeney. He and his father were living in 1850 on the farm of his paternal grandparents, Noah and Mary Keeney. There were many other Keeney families farming in the same township and with the exception of one wife, they all were natives of Connecticut. James was twenty years old when he became the partner of Orsamus W. Horton. They have been credited with introducing the glass negative and the paper photographic print to Grand Rapids in 1856. James headed south in 1858, and was killed by an accidental gunshot wound somewhere in the southern states before the Civil War began. Twenty one photographs by James Keeney have survived in an album held by the Grand Rapids Public Library. They include portraits of persons prominent in Grand Rapids in the 1850s and a self portrait.

Benjamin was born on the family farm in Bengal Township of Clinton County, Michigan, on January 13, 1873, the elder son of Warren W. and Ida A. (Stewart) Kelch. His brother Glen was born five years later. Mary Josephine Hill and her twin Carlie Hill were born at Erie, Pennsylvania, on June 1, 1877, last of the four children of Wilbur James Hill and Josephine Buell (Sampson) Hill. Mary and Benjamin were married at St. Johns on April 22, 1896. Their children were born at Burr Oak, Columbia and St. Johns: Gladys in July of 1897, Lester in June of 1899, Wilbur about 1900, Florena about 1902, and Marion in 1905. Benjamin was divorced by 1910, and was lodging in an Alma hotel in 1918. Mary and the children were living in 1910 on the farm of her parents, and then moved to nearby Lake City, Pennsylvania. Benjamin moved to Little Rock, Arkansas, where he died and was buried in 1924. Benjamin was remembered strictly as a photographer.

Robert was born in Germany on July 29, 1860, and his family moved to Switzerland when he was six months old. He was 21 years old when he crossed the ocean. He worked on farms near Mt. Pleasant for a year, and then was hired by a druggist. After eight months in Bay City, Robert came to Detroit in September of 1883. Sarah Grace McConville was born in Canada to Irish parents in March of 1863, and she married Robert about 1885. Their sons were born in Michigan: George in September of 1886, and Edwin in July of 1890. Robert worked for a drug company on Griswold, and then established and managed a branch drug store. One year later he purchased the business. He began the manufacture of inks, mucilage, paste and sealing wax as a sideline in 1890. Eight years later, he left the drug business to concentrate upon manufacturing as the Robert Keller Ink Company. From 1902 until 1919 the company was classified under Photographic Material & Supplies as a source of photographers paste. Robert sold his interest in the company and retired early in 1931. After being ill for most of a year, he died at his home in Riverside, Ontario, on June 9, 1932, survived by his wife, Mrs. Sarah G. Keller, and his sons, George R. and Edwin C. Keller.

Armand was born in Hungary on December 31, 1874, immigrated in 1910, and in 1916 became a naturalized citizen of the United States. He was five feet four inches tall, weighed 129 pounds, had grey eyes and brown hair, and was occasionally listed as Aaron, Armana, Armond or Abraham. Louisa (later Louise) was born in Hungary in 1875, immigrated in 1910, and was naturalized in 1916. She gave birth to their children in Michigan: Hattie about 1910, William in September of 1913, and Waller in August of 1917. "KELLERMAN STUDIO, COR. ALFRED & HASTINGS STS., DETROIT." or "KELLERMAN STUDIO, 490 HASTINGS ST., DETROIT, MICH." was printed on the post card backs of studio portraits. The change in address from 490-B to 2730 Hastings Street during 1920 reflected a major revision in the numbering system rather than a move.

Jerome was born into a family that spoke Yiddish and Magyar at Trencin, Hungary, on December 14, 1878, and became a slender man with grey eyes and blonde hair. He arrived at New York City on the S. S. Slavonia on November 30, 1906, and was held for a couple of days before he was admitted to the United States. He and his mother, Mrs. Hannah S. Kellerman, were living in 1910 with the family of his brother Adolph, who also was taking odd jobs as a photographer. By 1918 Jerome had declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States. In 1920 he was back living with the family of his brother Adolph, who had established a photographic studio. Helen was born in Hungary in 1890 or early in 1891, and she immigrated to America in 1908. She married Jerome in 1920, and their son Bernard was born a year later. They were living in 1930 with the family of Jerome's cousin, Albert Kellerman. By this time both Jerome and Helen were naturalized citizens of the United States.

Charles was born at Brighton on March 12, 1840, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Kelley, and became a 5 foot 9 ½ 2 4 inch man with a dark complexion, black eyes and black hair. He was enrolled at Detroit as a private in Company I of 2 3 the Ninth Michigan Volunteer Infantry on August 15, 1861. He was promoted to corporal, and later to sergeant. He 2 3 served as the Provost Marshal's clerk from June to November of 1863, and re-enlisted at Chattanooga, Tennessee, on 3 December 7, 1863. He was mustered as a veteran on December 25, 1863, served as the Adjutant's clerk from February 3 to June of 1864, and served as the Provost Marshal's clerk from June through December of 1864. He was promoted to 3
Sergeant Major on January 1, 1865, and commissioned Second Lieutenant of Company I on February 15, 1865. 3
Charles was mustered out of the army at Nashville, Tennessee, on September 15, 1865. He and 25-year-old Miss 3 2
Marie Antoinette Allyn were married at Chelsea, Michigan, on October 17, 1865. Flora B. Kelley was born on August 2
17, 1867, and died in her teens. Carl. A. Kelley was born on March 8, 1874. Lucius N. Wade and Charles were 2 t partners in Wade's Art Gallery. Harry D. Webster worked for Charles in Lapeer for fifteen months prior to buying him t 4 out in 1879. Charles applied for an Invalid Pension on July 25, 1890. Since he was 70 years old on March 12, 1910, he 4 2 then applied for an increase in his pension from $12.00 to $15.00 per month. He fell and fractured his hip on June 17, 2 1920, and was still using crutches to get about the house four months later. In support of his application for an increase 2 in pension, his doctor doubted that Charles would recover from the injury. Their son Carl was divorced and had 2 1 become a painter and decorator, and with his 19-year-old daughter Flora was living in 1920 with Charles and Maria. 1
The help that he was providing to his father in bathing and dressing and other functions began forcing him to neglect 2 his business. Charles was receiving a pension of $72.00 per month when he died on February 22, 1925. 2

Obadiah was born to parents from Rhode Island in March of 1822 in Rutland County, Vermont, last of the seven children of David and Anna (Hill) Kelley. Her father came from Massachusetts and Mary Elizabeth Frost was born in Vermont on October 18, 1823, the daughter of Timothy Moors Frost and Sally (Bryant) Frost. She married Obadiah on May 5, 1842, and their sons were born in Vermont: Eugene about 1844, Edwin about 1846, and Louis (often Lewis) on December 29, 1848. Eugene enlisted as a private in Company F of the First United States Sharp Shooters on July 5, 1864, and died of disease at City Point, Virginia, on August 17, 1864. Mary died at Farwell on February 15, 1879. Amelia was born in December of 1856 at Leeds in England, second of the three children of William and Ann (Blackburn) Walker. She was brought in 1860 to America, where her father died in 1866 and two half-brothers were added to her family. By June of 1880 Amelia was married to Obadiah, and they never had children. Obadiah used a few cabinet mounts imprinted: "Kelly, ANN ARBOR, MICH." One of his cabinet photographs was of fourteen young men and women in front of a tent, and was inscribed: "Compliments of Camp Lullaby, Whitmore Lake, 1887, ..." He took a photograph in July of 1889 of the spirits on Cedar Bend Avenue above the Huron River at Island Park, and maintained that the negative was from a regular package and received no treatment before being put into the camera. The studio of artist William A. Pew also was at 6 East Huron Street in 1897. 1 3

His mother emigrated from England, and Frank was born at Flint on October 26, 1857, the eldest son of Isaac K. and Hannah (Hollingworth) Kelsey. He married 21-year-old Frances A. Mitts of Vienna, Michigan, at Clio on March 22, 1883, and they later had four children born between April of 1884 and February of 1894: Charles E., Myrtle, Mildred and Earl H. Kelsey. Frank arrived at Saginaw in 1890. His book store was in the Post Office Building at 110 McCoskry Street, and from 1902 to 1905 his news stand was at 216 Genesee Avenue. From 1906 until 1913 Frank J. Kelsey & Son (Charles) were news dealers at 202 Genesee Avenue. They kept the same address in 1914 and later years with their emphasis on "... books, stationery, post cards, photographic goods, printing and developing." Many press printed post cards of Saginaw scenes have "F. J. Kelsey & Son" printed on the back, and "PUB. BY F. J. KELSEY & SON" was lettered on the negatives of some post card photographs of Saginaw. "F. J. KELSEY & SON" was printed on the post card back of a photographic view with "SMITH JC." and "M. E. CARTER" lettered on the negative. The "F. J. KELSEY & SON" stamp was also applied to sheet music. About 1926 Frank moved the shop to 611 Lapeer Street. Mrs. Frances A. Kelsey died on November 19, 1930, and Frank died on June 17, 1940, survived by both sons and one daughter, eight grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

| Charles was born in Michigan on April 28, 1879, second of the six children of Lannus and Louise Kenfield. He became a medium sized man with hazel eyes and dark brown hair. He and Maude Peters were married in 1905, and their daughter Marguerite was born in Michigan on September 26, 1906. By 1910 Charles was a widower living alone, and Marguerite was being cared for by a young married couple. "PHOTO BY CHAS. KENFIELD, HASTINGS, MICH." was printed on the post card backs of photos, including pictures of a cat, a horse, a lady in her buggy and three ladies drinking beer in a garden, but also great interiors of a bakery and of a print shop composing room. Some of the cards were mailed in 1909 and up until August of 1910. Ethel Bernice Mead was born in Michigan on February 12, 1892, second of the nine children of James E. and Hettie M. (Roush) Mead. Her marriage to Orville Calkins in 1909 did not last, and she married Charles in 1911. Ethel took over the care of Marguerite, and she gave birth in Hastings to Frank on July 11, 1912, to Richard on February 13, 1914, and to Donald about 1920. Charles and Ethel went their separate ways, and by 1930 he was living by himself in Hastings Township. Ethel and Donald were living in Grand Rapids in 1930, and by 1933 she was married to Lee Laraway. Charles died in Barry County on October 7, 1955, and was buried at Riverside Cemetery in Hastings Township. | 1 22 31 31 ttt 233 13 111 33 |   |

He was listed almost as often as Louis S. Kennedy. His father emigrated from England and Lewis was born in Michigan in March of 1858, last of the four known children of Frederick A. and Caroline Kennedy. His mother was born in Pennsylvania to parents from Connecticut. By 1900 Lewis and his sisters Madeline and Lucy were living with their widowed mother. Madeline taught music and Lucy taught English and, like Lewis, they never married. The three of them were sharing a home in 1920 and in 1930.

William was born in Michigan to parents from Pennsylvania in October of 1861, the elder son of John and Susan Kepler. Mary Ida (or Ida Mary) was born in New York State in January of 1859, and she married William about 1881. Their five sons were born in Michigan: Forest (later John) in August of 1887, Kenneth in November of 1893, Harold in September of 1895, Eugene in March of 1899, and William in 1901. Samuel Anderson was William's photographic associate in both Three Rivers and Schoolcraft. Mrs. Ida M. Kepler was living at Marquette in 1930, alone except for her son William who was a commercial traveler in wholesale office supplies. She was enumerated as married, but her husband was not to be found.

His father came from Pennsylvania and Dudley was born in Ohio in July of 1871, the son of Henry B. and Rebecca E. Kepperling. His sister Edna was born in Ohio three years later. From 1887 through 1890 Dudley was living in the Detroit home of his parents. "D. A. Kepperling, 106 Miami Avenue, Randall Studio Building, Detroit" was printed about 1896 on the cabinet mount of a photograph of a winter scene on Woodward Avenue from a negative exposed almost twenty years earlier. C. C. Randall produced prints from the same negative. Her father emigrated from France and Minnie (later Marion) was born in Michigan to a German mother in November of 1871. She married Dudley in the spring of 1893. Their only child, Frank Hubert Kepperling, was born in Chicago on April 4, 1895, and sometimes was called Francis. Frank had six months experience with the Field Artillery of the Illinois National Guard when he was discharged to take a commission in the Marine Corps. By 1920 he was, like his father, working for a photo company as a commercial photographer.

Marcus was born in Michigan to parents from New York in 1845 or 1846, last of the eight children of Robert C. and Phelinda Kerr. He was enumerated as deaf and dumb in 1850, and was enumerated twice in 1860: in July at the Flint asylum, and in August with his family in Jackson County. Marcus was living at Jackson in 1870 with the family of his brother Robert. The Jackson directory for 1871 carried the following advertisement directly below the ad for the photographer Robert Bailey: "LADIES AND GENTLEMEN; - Should you wish respectfully to have your photograph colored, or otherwise, into a beautiful style of picture, unsurpassed for softness, beauty, and life-like tints, in water colors, and India Ink, thereby securing a quality of work that never fails to suit, you will undoubtedly do well to make use of this opportunity.

Orson was born in Pennsylvania to a mother from New York in February of 1844, second of the four children of John and Sarah M. (Green) Kerr. His sister Amanda was two years older, and his brothers Samuel and Mathew were six and twelve years younger. Orson had become a six foot one half inch farmer with a dark complexion, black eyes and light hair by the time he enlisted at Titusville, Pennsylvania, as a private in Company I of the 150th Pennsylvania Infantry on August 21, 1862. He received gun shot wounds in both legs during the Battle of Gettysburg on July 1, 1863. He was transferred to the 59th Company of the Second Battalion of the Veteran Reserve Corps on October 17, 1864, and returned to Titusville after he was discharged for disability at Easton, Pennsylvania, on January 4, 1865. He successfully applied for a veteran's pension in 1867. Her father emigrated from England and Hattie was born in Pennsylvania to a mother from Rhode Island in 1844 or early in 1845. She married Orson about 1868, and their daughters were born in Michigan: Gertrude in February of 1870, and Edith in November of 1872. The village of Minden was renamed Minden City in 1883. Hattie died in June of 1892, and in 1900 Orson was living in Carsonville with the family of his nephew John Kerr. Henrietta was born in Michigan to Canadian parents of Scotch lineage in 1863 or early in 1864, and she married Orson about 1903. She was conducting a dressmaking business from their Detroit home in 1910. Orson was admitted to the National Military Home near Dayton, Ohio, on September 27, 1912, and was receiving a pension of $50.00 per month when he died there on January 26, 1915.

Abijah was born in New York to parents from Vermont in April of 1829. Amelia (later Aurelia) was born in Michigan in 1828 or 1829, and she married Abijah about 1848. Their daughter Florence was born in Wisconsin in the summer of 1850, and their other children were born in Michigan: Alice about 1853, Olive about 1856, Samuel about 1861, George about 1864, and Willie about 1867. "A. E. Ketchum, ARTIST, Port Huron, Mich. - If desired new Prints can be had from this Negative at any time." was printed on some of Abijah's cartes de visite, and two cent revenue stamps were affixed to others. The editor of The American Journal of Photography replied to letters using a page headed "Minor Correspondence." This exchange appeared on such a page in the spring of 1864, and may have been initiated by Abijah: "A. E. K. of Mich. - 'I find much trouble with my bath; when it is not acid my plates are full of streaks, and when sufficient acid is put in to remedy that, the collodion comes off in spite of all the care I can bestow in handling the plate. I have been told to put a drop or two of brine in the collodion would remedy it, but it does not. What shall I do?' ...Why not get a collodion that will stick to the plate in spite of the acid? The gun-cotton was at fault." Something separated Abijah from his first family, and he married again about 1872. His second wife was Rhoda, who was born in Michigan to parents from Connecticut in July of 1842. Their children were born in Michigan: Frank in 1875 or 1876, Elbridge in August of 1877, and Charles in February of 1882. Elbridge and Charles still were living in South Haven with their parents in 1900.

John was born in Canada West (later Ontario) to parents from New York on November 24, 1845, last of the eight children of Thaddeus Hiram Ketchum and Phoebe Lavinia (Lawson) Ketchum. He stayed at home attending school and helping on the family farm until he was twenty, and then opened a restaurant. He came in 1868 to Newaygo County, Michigan, and purchased forty acres of wild land. He sold the land after making slight improvements, and then followed photography for four or five years. Helen L. McKenzie, daughter of Duncan and Sarah McKenzie, was born in Canada in April of 1852 and married John there in April of 1868. Their children were born in Michigan: Louis in the summer of 1869, Marshall (later Frank) in February of 1873, Lulu in October of 1874, Lena about 1878, Ray in July of 1882, and Hazel in September of 1885. John became a naturalized citizen of the United States. By 1910, only four of his six children were living.

Edwin was born in Iowa to parents from New York in April of 1860, the elder son of George and Bell Kibbe. His brother Alton was eight years younger. Vena was born in Indiana to a mother from Ohio in April of 1866, and she married Edwin about 1885. They never had children. Edwin advertised nationally in the summer of 1902: "$300.00 buys gallery fitted to 8 x 10, in city of 14,000. Practically but one other gallery in city. Good reasons for selling. For particulars address E. S. Kibbe, Menominee, Mich." He advertised again in the spring of 1903: "FOR SALE - Ground floor gallery in city of 14,000; cheap rent; one other gallery; 'a snap'; other business; must sell. Address Photographer, 419 Main St., Menominee, Mich." From Fond du Lac, where he may have been associated with Stanley Johnson, Edwin maintained a branch studio at Oakfield, Wisconsin. Vena was a widow by 1930, when she was living with the family of her sister Nora at Lynwood, California.

William was born in New York State in 1840. Mary was born there a year later, she married William about 1859, and she gave birth to Louisa in New York State in February of 1860. Something happened to Mary, and sixty-year-old Mrs. Caroline Kidney was keeping house for William and caring for Louisa in 1870. William advertised in 1885: "KIDNEY, THE LEADING PHOTOGRAPHER. 10 & 12 East Maumee St., Adrian, Mich. Our styles embrace all kinds of photographs, from the most elaborate enameled card, to the life size crayon. The great photographic centers of improvement all over the world are constantly watched, and all improvements, artistic or elevating to photography are immediately adopted. Many times requiring severe study and large outlay of money, as well as the most perfect apparatus and appliances that money can secure are obtained, while we strive to keep our prices as low as consistent with superior work. You will find work done for less, but we ask that quality be given the preference. It would be unreasonable to expect superior work for inferior prices. It has been our aim to have the appointments and surroundings of our rooms of such character as to engender pleasing thoughts, and to help the sitter feel at home, by which means the artist is greatly assisted in securing that easy natural characteristic expression which it is his pride to produce...." As William was opening his East Saginaw gallery, he was identified as "... recently a prominent Chicago photographer.... Mr. Kidney's display of fine pictures, photos, crayons, etc. testify to his marked ability as an artist." Early in 1889 he purchased "... a complete and handsome suite of parlor scenery, with curtains, mantels, and everything complete, which makes a very appropriate setting for cabinet and panel pictures. This is the latest fashion and is becoming very popular." William succeeded Cullen C. Packard in Kalamazoo, and seems to have been succeeded there by Henry A. Brown. "W. F. Kedney, Sturgis, Mich." was the actual printing on some cabinet mounts. One William F. Kidney was included in Who Was Who in American Art.

James was born in Pennsylvania on June 25, 1854, last of the three sons of Dr. Jacob S. and Martha Jane (McBride) Kier, both natives of Pennsylvania. The family moved to Detroit in 1865. James opened the 30 by 50 foot gallery on Michigan Avenue in 1879 with only a small amount of capital, but was showing every sign of success in 1880. His tintypes were said to be made in a great degree of perfection, while the ordinary paper and collodion processes received due attention, and he was able to guarantee satisfaction in every case to his patrons. He was single and living with his widowed mother in 1900. Her father came from New York and Inafred (later Ina) Martin was born in Michigan in 1863 or early in 1864. She married James about 1901, and they never had children. James was a widely known numismatist (coin collector) and became the oldest charter member of the Detroit Elks. He died at his Detroit home on May 16, 1941, survived by his wife.

Wilbur was born in Ontario to parents from New Hampshire on February 28, 1834, the son of Whiting and Mary (Wood) Kilborn. He left his father's farm at fifteen to work as a cabinet maker and a pattern maker, and he entered the daguerreian profession in 1854. "Photograph by KILBORN & MURRAY, Fentonville, Mich. - Negatives kept, Duplicates can be had." was printed on the backs of some cartes de visite. Wilbur closed the Fentonville gallery and headed for San Francisco, but stopped at Cedar Rapids on June 15, 1864, and settled there. His first partner in Cedar Rapids was C. M. Murray. Her father emigrated from England and Eugenia Sherwood was born in New York State in December of 1841. She married Wilbur in 1868, and their children were born in Cedar Rapids: William in May of 1871, and Nellie in May of 1885. Wilbur's nephew, William Frank Kilborn, assisted him in the studio for several years before buying a half interest in 1878. They moved the gallery into a twenty by one hundred foot brick building on First Avenue in 1882. Wilbur sold his interest to his nephew four years later. He also was an inventor, patenting an ore pulverizer and a machine for making picture frames. Eugenia was a widow by 1900, when she was keeping a rooming house in Denver, Colorado, and providing a home for her two children and for her daughter-in-law Jessie Kilborn.

Almon was born in Berkshire County, Massachusetts, on April 26, 1819, and moved with his family in 1832 to Cuyahoga County, Ohio. He bought his "time" from his father for $150 in 1837, and went out on his own. He married Miss Esther P. Draper of East Cleveland in October of 1841, and they later had three children. He bought a small farm in 1842, sold it two years later, and then purchased and improved a farm near Lorain, Ohio. He owned a farm in Portage County, Ohio, for a while before he opened the gallery in Mishawaka. Following 17 years in Huntington, he made brief stays in several Michigan towns and then settled in Wabash. He moved to California in 1882, but returned the next summer to Wabash, where he died after being thrown from a buggy.

Edward was born in Sweden some time between 1830 and 1834. His wife, Louisa, was born in Connecticut one or two years later. Louisa seems to have married previously, and when she married Edward she brought along Charles Storms who was born in New York about 1855. Edward succeeded James Tripp in the gallery at 22 Chicago Street, and produced tintypes in carte de visite sized paper sleeves as well as card and cabinet portraits and stereoscopic views. Edward arrived in Mount Morris in August of 1883 accompanied by his wife, a handsome young woman, and bought out a photograph gallery. A month later 55-year-old Roland Smith, a wealthy Englishman, came to Mount Morris claiming that Edward's alleged wife actually was his wife, Betsey Smith. He had intended to take her back if Edward was capable of giving her a good living, but decided that it would serve her right to leave her with Edward, who would have a hard time providing her with enough to eat and wear. The Galion photographer was identified as E. Kindmark.

According to the 1925 memory of Anna Brockway Gray: "... There was one traveling man named King, who came every summer. He took daguerreotypes. I know he was there as early as fifty-one, for there was a picture of me taken while I was still in my mother's arms, and one in fifty-three, in fifty-four, fifty six, and one of little D. D. which was taken in fifty-six.... We had many pictures of his taking, and most of the pioneers sat for him...."

Edward was born at Fremont, Ohio, on October 3, 1855, ninth of the eleven children of Samuel and Mary (Moore) King. He attended the public schools and then taught singing for a few years. He began his study of photography in 1887 at Grand Rapids. One of Edward's Mancelona cabinet photographs was of a proud man with his miniature steam engine. It was reported in August of 1892 that "Mr. E. H. King now occupies the gallery formerly operated by C. L. Merrill" in Grand Rapids, while the gazetteer for 1893 listed both Merrill and King at 51 Monroe Street. Edward married, but by 1900 he was divorced and living alone in Belding. He claimed that the man who purchased his Belding studio (probably Elmer E. Doty) made prints from Edward's negatives which took first prize at a convention. Edward was still living by himself in 1910, when he was enumerated as an artist photographer.

Her father came from Vermont and Ella was born in Ohio to a mother from New York in January of 1853, third of the six children of William and Sarah King. By 1880 Sarah was a widow managing the farm with the help of her youngest son. Erva was two years younger than her sister Ella, whom she accompanied to Detroit and then back to Middleton Township in 1920. Ella may have inherited the family farm, since she was farming in 1930 aided by her brother-in-law Edward C. Thornton.

His parents emigrated from Germany and George was born at Lancaster, Ohio, on January 30, 1842, second of the four children of Christina (Gechler) King. Something happened to his father, and his family was living in 1850 with his maternal grandparents, George and Mary Gechler. George was boarding at Lancaster in 1860 with the family of a carpenter. He was a five foot six inch shoemaker with a light complexion, brown eyes and brown hair when he enlisted as a private in the First Michigan Engineers and Mechanics at Grand Rapids on December 23, 1863. He spent April of 1864 in the Small Pox Hospital at Chattanooga, Tennessee. After constructing the Nashville & Northwestern Railroad, erecting blockhouses along the route and building warehouses at Chattanooga, the regiment accompanied Sherman's march to the sea and took part in the Grand Review at Washington on May 24, 1865. George was arrested on July 4, and seems to have spent a couple of months in detention, but was restored to his company in time to be mustered out on September 22, 1865, at Nashville, Tennessee. They were paid off and disbanded at Jackson, Michigan, on October 1, 1865. Mary Hacker was born in 1847 or 1848 in the German province of Hessia, and she married George in May of 1867. Their children were born in Newaygo: Caroline in 1868, George in April of 1870, Rosa in April of 1872, Mary (later Marie) in December of 1873, Charles in August of 1876, and Clara about 1878. All but the youngest daughter survived to maturity. George applied successfully for a veteran's pension about 1881. He was making and repairing harness, saddles, whips, boots and shoes in 1886. Mary died at Newaygo on December 11, 1895. George moved about 1901 to Medford, Oregon, and five years later to Sebastopol, California. His marriage with Mrs. Catherine N. Culver ended in divorce at Sebastopol in March of 1914. He was receiving a pension of fifty dollars per month and was living at Compton, California, when he died on January 8, 1921.

His father came from Maine and Arthur was born in Wisconsin on September 23, 1875, second of the seven children of John Jerome Kingsbury and Alice Lucinda (Page) Kingsbury. He became a stout man with gray eyes and brown hair. Myrtle Belle Cunningham was born in Wisconsin to parents from Pennsylvania on January 25, 1880, last of the nine children of William and Lydia Annas (Bennett) Cunningham. She married Arthur at Antigo on February 16, 1897, and their children were born in Wisconsin: Clare in June of 1898, Wayne in August of 1899, and Doris Mae in 1910. Wayne died in 1910. Arthur was enumerated in 1910 as a post card photographer and in 1920 as the proprietor of a photo store. “Made by A. J. Kingsbury, Antigo, Wis. This post card is a real photograph.” was printed on the backs of many Watersmeet, Michigan, postal photos made from negatives on which captions and numbers had been lettered. Captions like: “7 Mile Dam on the Ontonagon River...#5” and “Landing a Brook Trout #6” and “Just Arrived #10” showing a passenger train at the depot, and “The Kelly Hotel #18” and “The R.R. Bridge over the Ontonagon River #30” and “Scene on the Ontonagon River 34” and “School House 35” and “Indians at Home...#X39” and “An Indian Family and Their Winter Home 47X.” On some of the cards, “Kingsbury, Antigo” lettered on the negative was substituted for the Kingsbury printing on the back. One view of two handsomely dressed Native Americans in front of their wigwam was titled: “Scene near Watersmeet, Mich. 76X. Copyright 1908 by A. J. Kingsbury, Antigo, Wis.” Some of the cards were postmarked in 1909, 1910 and 1911, but others did not get mailed until 1933. Bruce was born at Richmond, Michigan, on April 27, 1889, second of the eleven children of Otto Clifford Kingsbury and Minnie E. (Stone) Kingsbury. "Photo from Kingsbury Art Studio, Rochester, Mich." was stamped on the post card back of some photographs, while "Kingsbury Photo" was lettered on or incised into the negatives of other postal views of Rochester, Romeo and Thomas, sometimes with a two-digit number as well as a description. "Kingsbury Photo" was also lettered on the negative of a post card portrait of a couple taken on their front steps and postmarked on October 20, 1910, in Richmond, twenty miles northeast of Rochester, so Bruce may have been operating in the area several years earlier than indicated above. "Kingsbury Art Studio, Rochester, Mich." was stamped or printed on the backs of 8 by 10 inch commercial mounts carrying 5 by 7 prints. Bruce was an average sized single man with brown eyes and hair when he was inducted into the army at Pontiac on May 14, 1918, and he arrived at Camp McArthur in Texas on May 19. He was assigned to Company A of the 55th Infantry in the Seventh Division, and was shipped overseas on August 3, 1918. He was transferred to Company C of the 104th Infantry in the 26th Division on August 22, took part in the St. Mihiel Offensive from September 12 to 15, saw action in the Troyeon Sector from September 16 until October 6, and was involved in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive from October 14 to November 11, 1918. He arrived back in this country at Camp Meade on April 5, and was honorably discharged at Camp Custer on April 16, 1919. Ellen May Woodworth was born in Michigan to Canadian parents in April of 1892, last of the three children of Alvin and May Woodworth. She and Bruce were married at Rochester on July 17, 1920. Their children were born in Michigan: Mary Ellen about 1921, Bruce about 1923, and Harold in December of 1927. Bruce was living at Grand Rapids at the time of his death in May of 1966.

Cynthia was born in Oneida County, New York, on March 30, 1827, one of the twelve children of Amos and Rachel (Canfield) Kinne, and a twin sister of Marintha Kinne. Cynthia, Marintha and their younger sister, Phoebe A. Kinne, came to Charlotte in the late 1850s. About a year later, Cynthia and Marintha opened a photography and millinery shop. They were awarded premiums at the Eaton County Fairs in 1859, 1860 and 1863 for their exhibits of photographs. Early in 1867 their business was on the west side of Main Street at the daguerreian car, and in June of 1867 they advertised a sale based upon plans to close the millinery shop. Cynthia's health was impaired by the climate, so she returned to the east. In the 1870s she was proprietor of a gallery at North East, Pennsylvania, as well as the one at Erie. She died in Pennsylvania in 1880, and her body was brought to Charlotte for burial.

Marintha was born in Oneida County, New York, on March 30, 1827, to Amos and Rachel (Canfield) Kinne, and was the twin sister of Cynthia Kinne. In the autumn of 1867, apparently after she and Cynthia had closed their business and Cynthia had returned to the east, Marintha was advertising for those indebted to her to settle their accounts. She sold fancy goods and jewelry as well as millinery in the 1870s, and did well enough in business to own the building housing her shop, another business structure on Cochrane Avenue she called the Old Maid's Block, two houses and some lots. She was rooming with a Charlotte widow in 1910.

J. Verne Kinsey was born at Caledonia, Michigan, on November 15, 1873, last of the six children of David and Nancy (Pletzer) Kinsey. Both of his parents were born in Canada, and his maternal grandparents emigrated from the Hesse Darmstadt region of Germany. "Photo by Kinsey, Caledonia, Mich." was lettered on a sepia toned 7 ½ by 9 ½ print of many people on the porch and roof and in the yard of a house, with some of the children in a rowboat in the yard. "J. VERNE KINSEY, GRAND MARAIS, MICH." was printed on the post card backs of scenic photographs, including a series of the burning of an icehouse on the shore. Two of his photos, entitled "Alta Ladner and Deer Park school" and "Raft of sole survivor of the Cyprus, washed ashore a half mile east of Deer Park, 1907," were reproduced in Tahquamenon Country. Much of the portrait work from his gallery behind the Grand Marais Hotel still exists locally. A press-printed post card mailed in June of 1906 shows the quintessential man atop a sled-load of huge logs pulled by two horses with the title: "A Load of White Pine, Grand Marais, Mich." and the credit line: "KINSEY PHOTO, GD. MARAIS." From 1906 through 1909, Verne advertised Lake Superior Views and as an importer and jobber of souvenir postals. These were high quality post cards printed in Germany from his photographs, and were copyrighted by him. They included a double width card of the Portage Lumber Company's Camp at Curtis, Michigan. Verne may have opened a photograph studio above the post office at Newberry in May of 1909. He was a bachelor who always wore a broad-brimmed Stetson hat, and a liberal thinker who named his gas launch the Appeal to Reason. He still was living at Grand Marais in 1917. He surveyed the Fifth Addition to Newberry in 1919, and he surveyed Foster Park at Round Lake in 1922. Verne was a candidate for Village Assessor in 1925 and for Judge of Probate in 1928. He died at Newberry on December 3, 1949, and was buried a couple of days later at Grand Rapids, Michigan.

William was born in July of 1844 at Darien, New York, last of the four sons of Elisha and Lydia Kinsman. After his mother died in the early 1850s, his father married Alvira who was born in Michigan about 1834. William soon had a half-brother and a half-sister born between 1854 and 1857. He was 5 feet 7 inches tall with a light complexion, blue eyes and light hair when he enlisted at Flint in Company G of the Eighth Michigan Infantry on August 15, 1861. He was mustered into the army on September 23, contracted typhoid fever followed by chronic dysentery and was discharged for disability at Beaufort, South Carolina, on January 17, 1862. At Grand Rapids on May 19, 1863, he enlisted in Battery L of the First Michigan Light Artillery, and was mustered on May 23. He was hospitalized in August of 1863 at Camp Nelson, Kentucky, in October of 1864 at Knoxville, Tennessee, and was admitted to Harper Hospital on April 18, 1865. He was released from Harper Hospital and discharged at Detroit on October 14, 1865. William enlisted again on June 7, 1867, in Company A of the 43rd United States Veteran Reserve Corps and was stationed at Fort Gratiot, Michigan. He was transferred to Company A of the First United States Infantry on April 18, 1869, and served at Fort Wayne in Detroit until his discharge on June 7, 1870. He and Cassie O. Chapman were married at Sparta on March 3, 1872, and by 1881 had two children and owned a tidy house and lot in Sparta Centre. The town was renamed Sparta on January 13, 1885. Cassie usually was called Kate, and was born in Susquehanna County, Pennsylvania, on November 2, 1853. She gave birth to Emory G. Kinsman on July 16, 1875; to Charles E. Kinsman on July 13, 1880; to Lowell B. Kinsman on March 6, 1884; and to Harry D. Kinsman on April 7, 1890. All lived to maturity except Lowell, who died on April 14, 1896. "W. E. KINSMAN, Photographer. Six Bon-Tons for $1.00. Old Pictures Finished in India Ink and Oil Colors. Copying a Specialty. SPARTA, MICH." was stamped on the backs of card photograph mounts and on the same sized paper folders of tintypes. "W. E. Kinsman, Photographer, On Wheels." was printed on other card mounts. William was 5 feet 7½ inches tall with a fair complexion, dark hair and gray eyes in October of 1882 when he applied for a partial disability pension based upon chronic diarrhea and deafness. He died at Sparta on August 8, 1900. Cassie lived by dressmaking and a widow's pension until she married 39-year-old Edwin A. Harris at Grand Rapids on December 9, 1902. She divorced Edwin at Grand Rapids for extreme cruelty and non-support on July 16, 1909, and applied for reinstatement of her widow's pension at Grand Rapids on March 12, 1929.

Kirby, Frank E.

Detroit president of the Detroit Lantern Club ..... 1892-1897 d 1
Frank was born at Cleveland, Ohio, on July 1, 1849, the second son of Stephen R. Kirby, ship captain and ship builder on the Great Lakes. Frank attended the public schools of Saginaw and for three years the Cooper Institute in New York, from which he graduated at eighteen. He was employed by a manufacturer of marine engines for a while before visiting Glasgow, Scotland, to study the ship building industry there. In 1870 he came to Detroit, where he and his brother built for E. B. Ward the first permanent plant on the Great Lakes for building iron and steel vessels. When this facility was acquired by the Detroit Dry Dock Company, Frank became its chief engineer and naval architect. In the following years he designed all of the steamers for the Detroit & Cleveland Navigation Company, the Cleveland & Buffalo Line, the White Star Line, the Detroit & Windsor Ferry Company and most of the railroad car ferries used on the lakes. In all, he designed and built more than 200 lake and river steamers, including some of the fastest ships afloat. The ice-breaking car ferries he produced for use in the Detroit River and the Straits of Mackinac so impressed the Russians that they persuaded him to visit Petrograd and design ice crushers to keep Archangel harbor open. He supervised the selection of ships for transport duty during the Spanish-American War and, after a transport burned, was appointed by President Theodore Roosevelt to a one-man commission to revise the national marine safety code. During World War I his approval was required for each of the Eagle Boats built at the Ford Motor Company Rouge Plant. The Kirby life boat, unsinkable and impossible to overload, was one of his achievements. After other engineers said that it could not be done, he lengthened the City of Buffalo by 42 feet, added several miles per hour to her speed, and increased her freight and passenger carrying capacity while improving her fuel consumption. His greatest pride was in the last two boats he built, the Greater Detroit and the Greater Buffalo, the most palatial steamers on the lakes. Frank married Mary F. Thorpe of Wyandotte in 1876, and they later had one son. They lived in Wyandotte for several years before he had a beautiful mansion built for them on Woodward Avenue in Detroit. About 1922 the Kirbys moved to Bronxville, New York, where Frank was a consultant to the Submarine Boat Corporation until his death on August 25, 1929, at the age of 80.

He became an average sized man with light blue eyes and light brown hair. Anna was born in Michigan about 1894, and she married Elmer when she was 17 years old. Their children were born in Detroit: the twins Evelyn and Doris in 1913, and Robert about 1928. The change from 582 to 4848 Dix Avenue during 1920 was due to revisions in the Detroit numbering system rather than to relocation of their home and studio. d

Henry was born in Australia on November 15, 1885, the son of James and Mary E. Kirkham. He became a short slender man with brown eyes and light brown hair. Benjamin and Mary Purnell visited Australia in November of 1904 and returned in February of 1905 with 85 members of the Wroe Church, a predecessor of the House of David. Henry and his parents followed them in 1909 to join the House of David colony. He was identified as Harry E. Kirkham in 1910. His agricultural job in 1918 may have been a war time or seasonal departure from his photography. He had a wife named Lena at this time, but was divorced by 1920. The outdoor photo studio produced post card photographs of the leaders of the colony and its bands, orchestras and baseball teams, the various buildings, the miniature railway and other attractions. These cards were for sale to visitors as souvenirs. Many of the visitors also were photographed in the rustic settings and took home post card photos of themselves.

Richard was born in Switzerland to English parents in December of 1861. He immigrated in 1881 and became a naturalized citizen of the United States. Her father emigrated from the Prussian region of Germany and Caroline V. Leisen was born in Wisconsin to a Swiss mother in February of 1864, fourth of the six children of Jacob and Verena Leisen. She was called Lena as an adult, and she married Richard about 1888. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Alma in August of 1889, Verona in March of 1891, and Kathleen in April of 1895. Some of Richard's cabinet imprints were "Copyrighted 1889" and one of his cabinet photographs was of three women and six children in front of their rudimentary home. He advertised Photo-Enlarging and Frames in 1892. Richard and Lena were living in 1920 with the family of their daughter Kathleen, now Mrs. William H. Woodruff. William was an insurance agent, and Kathleen was an actress in moving pictures. Richard died in 1922.

She and Earl had been married for less than a year when they were enumerated in May of 1910. Whether or not Earl was associated with the Illinois College of Photography in Effingham is not clear. The negatives of Earl's post card photographs of Elk Rapids, including a fine one of iron ore being unloaded at the dock, were marked with the initials "E.K." A postal photograph showing the sign "E. Joseph was born in the Prussian region of Germany in March of 1850. He immigrated to the United States in 1878 and became a naturalized citizen. Bertha was born in Germany in May of 1851, she married and had a son born there in September of 1879. She brought her son Joseph to America in 1881, and soon was married to Joseph Kirsh. Their children were born in Michigan: August in September of 1882, Mary in August of 1884, and Alfred in December of 1887. Joseph's partners were August Jeretz in 1889 and William Quatermass about 1892. His cabinet portraits include Bishop Foley and other priests, and many of them have a rather stilted ethnic quality, but one from 214 Woodward Avenue shows a young lady with a fan in a pose and a short skirt which would have been unthinkable for anyone except an entertainer. Joseph advertised from 214 Woodward as the successor to Simond's Old Reliable Photo & Tintype Gallery, and offered interior viewing and crayon work from 381 Gratiot Avenue. His widow, Mrs. Bertha F. Kirsch, was living in Detroit from 1917 until 1927.

His parents, Arthur James Kitson and Elizabeth (Mummery) Kitson, emigrated from England and had four sons and a daughter born in Michigan between 1885 and 1904. Arthur was their eldest child, born in Ann Arbor on April 19, 1886. He became a medium sized man with blue eyes and dark hair. Nina Adell Boyd was born in Michigan on June 27, 1886, the daughter of John and Agnes Boyd. She married Arthur in Ann Arbor on January 23, 1909, and their daughters were born in Michigan: Helen on July 20, 1910, and Ruth in 1912. "Photo by Kitson" was marked on the negative of a postal photograph of a drawing of the burning of the old medical building at the University of Michigan. The card was postmarked on August 22, 1911, and its message stated that the building had burned a week earlier. Probably Arthur worked for George L. Kohne continuously between 1918 and 1942. Arthur died on June 24, 1959, and burial was in Memorial Park at Toledo. Nina lived on in Toledo until January 25, 1971.

Hezekiah was born in Michigan to parents from New York on July 2, 1857, last of the three children of Nicholas and Cordelia Kittle. H. Maurice Kittle succeeded William H. Brummitt in Stout's Block on Saginaw Street at Pontiac in 1878. Brummitt reoccupied this gallery in August of 1879, when Kittle moved to Tuthill's Block over the Bill Poster office. From there in 1881 he was advertising a "GREAT ADVANCE IN PHOTOGRAPHY. PICTURES TAKEN INSTANTANEOUSLY BY THE NEW PROCESS ... without worrying the little ones to get them still and in position.... The new Mammoth Camera for taking groups and large pictures, by the instantaneous process, is a success...." In 1882 he offered "... PICTURES of all sizes. PICTURES enlarged to any size. PICTURE FRAMES. Pictures, all sizes, Finished in Crayon, Water Color or Oil...." Maurice moved to East Saginaw about October 1, 1882, and took along Pontiac photographer J. M. Culver as his "right bower." He met with flattering success during his first month in East Saginaw, taking thirty six sittings in a single week. That he and C. Willard Burdick of Lansing had established a partnership was reported in February of 1884. Kittle & Burdick offered to make a cabinet sized photo of every one or any one for 50 cents. Burdick succeeded the partnership at 305 Genesee Avenue in October of 1884 when Maurice returned to his old Pontiac gallery in Tuthill's Block. Stereoscopic views of Pontiac were made by Maurice. This advertisement appeared in a photographic journal in September of 1885: "FOR SALE OR RENT - Gallery in the City of Pontiac; population, 6,000. Will sell for $400, spot cash, or rent for one-third the receipts. Harris & Kittle, Photo Stock Dealers, Detroit, Mich." Later in September, George L. Salterbach was running ads in Pontiac as proprietor of the Kittle Gallery. Albert M. Harris was the senior partner in the Detroit photo supply business. From 1894 on, Hezekiah maintained a store at 148 Woodward Avenue which sold the trunks from his factory on Jefferson Avenue. The back door of the store was near the stage door of the Detroit Opera House and the store was used as a passageway to avoid a walk through the alley. A collection of autographed photographs of theatrical people graced the walls of the store. Hezekiah was sharing his home in 1910 with his sister Margaret, and he still was single in 1920. He died at Detroit on April 19, 1929.

His parents emigrated from the Bavarian region of Germany and David was born in Ohio in 1838 or 1839. Her father came from Pennsylvania and Ruthia (usually Ruth) O. Troub was born to a mother from Kentucky in 1844 or 1845 in Morrow County, Ohio, the daughter of Michael and Phebe (Bloomfield) Troub. She married David at Tabsinon Grove near Valparaiso, Indiana, on September 15, 1861. David then worked and lived on his mother-in-law's farm near Kendallville until shortly before he enlisted. Ruth gave birth to Seymour there in the summer of 1862. David was enrolled as a private in Company C of the 142nd Indiana Infantry at Fort Wayne on October 3, 1864. For the first two weeks of December his regiment, and particularly Company C, was on duty almost continuously, picketing at night and spending the days drilling for the Battle of Nashville, Tennessee, which took place on December 15, 16 and 17, 1864. In freezing rain and snow that accumulated up to six inches, David and his comrades were wet all the time and slept in pup tents on the frozen ground. He caught a bad cold which settled in his lungs, and was also afflicted with camp diarrhea and rheumatism. David never recovered his health and was put on light duty as a train guard until the war ended. He was honorably discharged on July 14, and was paid off with his company at Indianapolis on July 21, 1865. He was quite sickly when he returned to Kendallville, and was treated by a local doctor for lung disease and diarrhea until he and Ruth moved to Michigan in the fall of 1867. Their son Earl (later Gerald) was born here in the summer of 1869. David was very sick for the whole year of 1872, and at times was not expected to live. The family moved to Coldwater in the spring of 1875. The dentist and photographer Hiram Baker boarded with David in 1882, and was not listed in Coldwater after 1883. "D. KLEINDINST, Butterworth Post, G.A.R. No. 109, Photo Artist, Coldwater, Mich." was stamped on the backs of some cabinet mounts. David and Ruth moved from Coldwater to a farm near Dimondale in Windsor Township of Eaton County in 1888. "D. Kleindinst, Artist, Views and Copying, SUNFIELD, MICH." was stamped on the backs of studio portraits. On a Saturday late in January of 1890 David was attacked with "La Grippe." He died the following Thursday, on January 30, 1890, at the home of his brother-in-law, Peter Troub, at Sebewa in Ionia County. One of Ruth's only assets was an interest in the mortgaged Coldwater photograph gallery, said to be worth less than $100.00. She remained in Windsor Township for several years, and was receiving a Widow's Pension of $8.00 per month when she died in the spring of 1900.

Frederick was born in Germany in 1877 or early in 1878. He advertised the Wixson Studio in 1907 as the "... Oldest established Photographic Parlor in Delta County. We show Proofs of our Work. ASK YOUR FRIENDS." The Kleist Studio was advertised in the same directory as successor to the Robb Studio on Ludington Street, and offered high art photography, commercial photography and photographic supplies, while specializing in artistic posing and technique in finishing. "Kleist" was scribed into the negatives of post card negatives, including one of a collapsed ore dock in June of 1909. He was identified as Fred A. Kleist in Cleveland. Florence was born in Ohio in 1885 or early in 1886, and she married first when she was eighteen. Her marriage to Fred about 1922 was his first.

John was born in Detroit to German parents on November 3, 1895, fourth of the six children of Frank G. and Augusta H. Kluge. He became a medium sized man with brown eyes and hair. Mary was born in Ohio in 1894, and by 1917 she was married to John. Their son Harris (later Harvey) was born in Detroit in December of 1919. Mary either changed her name or left the scene, for when Detroit directories began including the name of a spouse in 1928 Betty or Bessie was the name coupled with John's. After a partnership of 27 years with his brother Frank, John retired about 1947. He died in Detroit on November 17, 1954, survived by Betty and his son Harvey. Gaylord was born at Allegan on August 24, 1868, first of the four children of Adrian J. and Lucy J. (Niles) Knapp. He was the partner in Allegan of the veteran photographer George W. Lonsbury. The jeweler Miller Robinson was Gaylord's partner in Saugatuck, and Miller continued as a photographer there until 1894. Clara Julia Averill was born in Michigan on December 7, 1868, the daughter of Alonzo and Mary Averill. She and Gaylord married in 1895, and their children were born in Michigan: Charles in January of 1899, Florence in March of 1900, and Clarence in 1902. Florence died as a child, and something happened to Clara. Alice was born in New York State in 1877 to an Irish mother and an English father, and she became Mrs. Alice Katherine Knapp in 1909. She helped to raise Charles and Clarence, and there were no further additions to the family.

He was called Marion J. Knapp in many census reports and Merion in early gazetteers, but the name was consistently Merton J. Knapp in later gazetteers. Merton was born in Michigan to parents from New York in April of 1863, last of the two children of Jackson and Susan Knapp. His sister Cora was a year and a half older. His mother was a widow by 1870, suggesting that his father was a Civil War casualty, but no military or pension record has been found. His mother married Walter J. Kellogg and gave birth to Katie and Harry between 1872 and 1875. Clara was born in Michigan to parents from New York in October of 1863, and she married Merton about 1887. Their children were born in Michigan: Ruth in April of 1889, Ross in August of 1891, Harry in March of 1893, and Ava in February of 1895. From 1904 through 1909 Merton offered "Portrait Work, Commercial Photography, Photographic Supplies and Finishing for the Trade." Postal photos with "KNAPP" lettered on the negatives depicted a group in Dutch costumes for a pageant, showed a G.A.R. encampment in 1910, and exaggerated the dimensions of size 20 shoes for an advertisement. A 1980 history of Eaton Rapids mentioned a photographer named Joseph Knapp. Clara was an Eaton Rapids widow by 1930.

| Mulford was born in New York State about 1847. His sister Mary was eight years older. She and Mulford were living at Key West in 1850 with their mother, Mrs. Ann M. Knapp. Mulford was living at Throopsville in 1860 with George J. and Emaline Hine. He was said to be eighteen years old when he enlisted in Company C of the reorganized Third Michigan Volunteer Infantry on August 30, 1864. The regiment assembled and organized at Grand Rapids and left there on October 20 for Nashville, Tennessee. The Third was stationed at Decatur, Alabama, in November and then moved to Murfreesboro, Tennessee, for picket and scouting duty. On January 16, 1865, the regiment moved to Huntsville, Alabama, then to New Market, Tennessee, and later camped at Bull's Gap and at Jonesboro, Tennessee. After the Confederate surrender the Third moved to New Orleans, and then by ship and a fourteen days march to San Antonio, Texas. They reached San Antonio on November 6, 1865, and were assigned to provost duty. Mulford was promoted to corporal on January 1, 1866, and was mustered out with the regiment at Victoria, Texas, on May 25, 1866. He was first assessed as a Big Rapids photographer in August of 1866. No Veterans Pension Record was found for Mulford. |           | 111222222222344 |

| Harold was born in Traverse City to parents from Ohio on April 29, 1878, the only child of Charles J. and Estella I. (Udall) Kneeland. He became a tall stout man with blue eyes and brown hair. His name and address were stamped on the back of the 5½ by 6½ inch mount of a photograph of thirteen men, women and children gathered in a parlor. Mary was born in Michigan to parents from Massachusetts about 1879, and she became Mrs. Mary Ann Kneeland about 1907. She gave birth to Charles in March of 1910, when she and Harold were living with his widowed mother. Their daughters Lucy and Mary were born in Michigan between 1911 and 1914. Mary was a widow by 1920, when she had returned from Chicago to Traverse City with her children. |         | 3 13 2t 11112 1 |

| He seems to have been born Charles D. Kniebes. His father emigrated from the Prussian region of Germany, and Charles was born in Michigan to a mother from the Hessian region of Germany on March 13, 1869, last of the seven children of Christian and Elizabeth (Dukesherer) Kniebes. His father died in October of 1870 and in August of 1873 his mother married Henry Ashoff, a widowed farmer with a large family. Her father emigrated from the Heidelberg region of Germany and Mary Elizabeth (sometimes Mamie) Wurz was born in Michigan on December 3, 1867, third of the six children of Fred and Elizabeth Wurz. She married Charles on March 3, 1892. Their children were born in Michigan: Marguerite on September 16, 1893, Frederick on June 14, 1895, and Edward in February of 1900. Henry Smith and Charley were partners in the early 1890s. Only "S & K, St. Joseph, Michigan" was printed on some of their cabinet mounts. At some time, Charley's gallery was at the corner of Ship and State Streets in St. Joseph. Clyde W. Rockey was his partner in the late 1890s. The Kniebes family was among those who emigrated from Germany about 1840 and pioneered Bainbridge Township of Berrien County, Michigan. Ezra was born in Bainbridge Township on May 23, 1873, third of the seven children of Peter G. and Louise (Schmittberger) Kniebes. He became a stout man with blue eyes and dark hair, and was said to be a good water color artist. Ezra sold the Coloma studio to James R. Hamilton in the summer of 1906. He advertised nationally early in 1906: "WANTED - Position to take charge of a first-class studio by an all-round young man, strictly temperate. Wages, $15; best references. Address Ezra Kniebes, Coloma, Mich." A similar ad appeared in the fall of 1906: "WANTED - Position to take charge of a first-class studio by an all-round young man, strictly temperate. Wages, reasonable. Address C. F. Kniebes, 274 Highland Ave., Benton Harbor, Mich." Edna was born in Pennsylvania to natives of Pennsylvania in 1881, and she married Ezra in 1909 or 1910. They never had children, and Edna was providing in 1920 for two male roomers. Ezra died on April 8, 1958, at a long term care facility in Stark County, Ohio. Edna died at Akron a few months later on August 18, 1958.

His parents emigrated from England and Joseph was born in May of 1867 in Windsor, Ontario, the son of Caleb and Ann Knight. Alice Gertrude Moore was born in Ontario to English parents in 1870, and she married Joseph at London, Ontario, on October 20, 1890. Their daughter Winifred was born in Windsor on March 26, 1892. Prior to their immigration in 1895, Joseph commuted across the Detroit River from their home in Windsor to work in Detroit. He probably did his commercial traveling for a firm that manufactured photographic materials, for Joseph was enumerated in 1910 as a photographic demonstrator. Joseph died in Essex County, Ontario, on January 1, 1923.

Her father and her maternal grandparents emigrated from Germany and May was born in Detroit in May of 1872, last of the four daughters of Conrad and Theresa Knittweis. Her mother was a widow by 1880, when she was providing for five boarders in order to support her daughters. Theresa was sharing her home in 1900 with her daughters Margaret, Anna and May, as well as with Anna's husband, Frank A. Steadley. From 1905 through 1910, May was listed as proprietor of the Monroe Studio in Detroit directories. She never married, and she boarded with the family of her sister Anna from 1910 through 1930, when Anna was a widow.

George was born to English parents in November of 1889 at Winnipeg, Manitoba, the only child of George L. and Emma Knowing. His father died while George was a child, and by 1901 his mother was married to Andrew Duncan. George became a five foot eight and a half inch man with blue eyes and brown hair. T. C. Sims was his partner in the Photo Button Company at Winnipeg. With his marriage to Florence about 1926, the first for George, he became the step-father of her three children. He was a member of the Commercial Photographers Association of Detroit in 1927, when he and Florence moved from Detroit out to suburban Saint Clair Shores. George and the veteran Detroit photographer Joseph L. Grossman were the founders of Grossman & Knowing. After George died on June 22, 1934, Joseph retained the name Grossman-Knowing Incorporated until 1941, and then operated as the Grossman-Knowing Company until he retired in 1948.

Electa N. Conant was born in Illinois in November of 1880, eldest of the four children of David J. and Anna M. Conant. Her father was a professional photographer and both of her brothers carried on the profession. August W. Koch was born in Michigan to a German father and a mother from New York in 1868 or early in 1869. An August Koch with the same antecedents was born in Michigan in December of 1868 and was an inmate of the Michigan State Prison at Jackson in 1900. August W. Koch married Electa about 1907, and their son Franklin was born in Michigan in 1911 or early in 1912. Electa was a widow by 1920, when she and Franklin were living with her parents. She had her own place and was providing a home for Franklin in 1930.

The surname was Koehler in Illinois and Michigan, but Kohler in California. Eugene was born to German parents at Rock Island in December of 1869, second of the four or more children of Robert and Helen Koehler. Her father emigrated from Italy and Elena Natalia Solari was born at San Buena Ventura, California, on February 10, 1872, seventh of the ten children of Agostino and Maria Merced (Cota) Solari. She married Eugene about 1894, and their daughter Florence was born in February of 1897. Florence married a man from Kentucky named Roby in the early 1920s, but was divorced and back with her parents by 1930. When she returned home, she brought along her seven-year-old son William Roby. Eugene died at San Francisco on June 2, 1939, and Elena died in Los Angeles County on February 21, 1954.

Adam and Anna Kolb seem to have had the only family of that name in Stronach Township in this period. They emigrated from Germany and France when they were young, and were farming in the township in 1900. Anna was a widow by 1910. Their four children were born in Michigan. Earnest was born in February of 1878 and was a cooper in 1900 and a sawmill boom man in 1910. Katherine or Kate was born about 1880 and was a public school teacher in both 1900 and 1910. James was born about 1884 and was a student in 1900 and a laborer at odd jobs in 1910. Mark was born in August of 1891 and did not live to maturity.

Milton was born in New York City to German parents on November 16, 1887, second of the three children of Simon and Sophia Kolb. He became five feet ten and a half inches tall with blue eyes, brown hair and a moustache. Nathan Lazarnick & Company was a New York firm that specialized in automotive photography. The Detroit branch was opened early in 1910. Milton was single and stayed in large boarding houses while working in Detroit. Apparently he was supplying buildings to the government during World War I. Helen was born in New York City on October 3, 1896, to Russian parents that spoke Hebrew, second of the three children of Nathan and Anna Brody. She married Milton about 1920, and they visited Great Britain, France and Switzerland in 1921. They left New York on June 30 for Southampton, England, on S. S. Berengaria, and were back in New York on the same ship on August 14, 1921. Their daughters were born in New York: Rosalind about 1923, and Nancy about 1928. By 1947 Milton was married to a lady named Joyce who was born in New York on November 16, 1892. They visited Europe and arrived back in New York from Southampton on S. S. Peter was born in Michigan to Dutch parents on April 11, 1886, second of the four children of Klass and Anna (Hamming) Koopman. He became a slender man with blue eyes and black hair. Alice was born in New York in 1882 or early in 1883, and she married Peter about 1915. Their daughter Shirley was born in Michigan in 1916 or early in 1917. The change in address from 240 to 668 Gratiot Avenue during 1920 was due to sweeping revisions in the Detroit numbering system rather than to relocation. Peter was enumerated as an advertising photographer in 1930. He was 65 years of age when he died in Detroit on August 25, 1951.

His father emigrated from the Wurtemberg region of Germany and George was born in Michigan to a mother from the Bavarian region of Germany in July of 1863, first of the seven children of George A. and Margaret Kopp. About 1890 he photographed a cyclist in racing garb with ribbons on his chest and with one foot on a pedal of his bicycle. Theresa was born in Michigan in November of 1876 to German parents, and she married George in 1895 or 1896. Their children were born in Houghton County: John in May of 1897, Charles in September of 1898, Florence in April of 1900, George in 1903 or early in 1904, Theresa (later Angelina) in 1907 or early in 1908, Mary in November of 1909, and Agnes in 1914. Theresa was a widow by 1920, when she still had five of her children at home including John, who was working as a civil engineer.

Johannes Kornrumpf was born on May 16, 1828, in the Hessian region of Germany. His parents were master baker Conrad Kornrumpf and Anna Margarathe (Huecke) Kornrumpf. Julia Doratha Schumann was born about 1835 in the Mecklenburg region of Germany, and she married John in Detroit in 1854. Their children were born in Port Huron: William in January of 1855, Emil in March of 1857, Alfred on June 27, 1859, Emma on March 17, 1861, Rosa in February of 1864, and George in June of 1869. Alfred and Emma died of diphtheria in 1864. Julia died on July 11, 1872, bearing a son who died two weeks later. Otilie Warzemann was born in Germany in March of 1852, and she married John at Port Huron on August 18, 1874. Otilie gave birth at Port Huron to the twins Emma and Otto on August 21, 1875, and in Brooklyn to Cecelia on February 18, 1878, and Minnie on May 11, 1880. John ended up with four daughters and four sons that became adults. "J. KORNRUMPF, Photographer, PORT HURON" was stamped on the similar sized paper sleeves of tintypes as well as being printed on the backs of cartes de visite. John's brother William lived in Brooklyn before John moved his family there late in 1876. John died in Maryland during October of 1896 and was buried there. Otilie died there on June 26, 1908.

He was often listed as Carl, Carol or Charles, and the surname was sometimes Korzyn. He was born in the Polish region of Austria on September 8, 1876, and he became a short slender man with dark hair. He immigrated to America in 1903. Victoria was born in Michigan of Polish parentage in 1895, and she married Karol about 1913. Their known children were born in Michigan: Eleanor in 1914, Zloman in April of 1916, and Genevieve in December of 1918. The change in address during 1920 was not due to relocation, but to revisions in the numbering scheme for the entire Detroit area.

Stanley was born in Detroit to Polish parents on November 16, 1892, first of the seven children of Thomas and Catherine Koscielniak. He was called Stephen as a child, and he matured into a medium sized man with blue eyes and brown hair. He was inducted into the army at Hamtramck on September 21, 1917, and was sent to Camp Custer. There he was assigned to the 160th Depot Brigade, and then transferred on February 14 to Company Two of the Camp Custer Replacement Draft. This unit was sent to Camp Merritt, New Jersey, and then shipped overseas on February 27, 1918. From March 23 to April 27 Stanley was in Company C of the 116th Field Signal Battalion, and then he spent the balance of his military career in the 40th Service Company of the Signal Corps. He was promoted to sergeant on May 24, 1918. He finally returned to the United States on September 10, 1919, and was honorably discharged two days later. Jennie was born in Pennsylvania to Polish parents in 1897 or early in 1898. She married Stanley soon after he was discharged from the army, and their son Harry was born in Pennsylvania in 1920 or early in 1921.

John was born on September 9, 1892, at Novska in Slavonia, a region of Austria at that time. He immigrated to the America with his parents, and he was supporting them in 1917. At this time he was single, and was a tall slender man with dark brown eyes and black hair who had declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States. John advertised in 1923 and 1924: "High Grade Photos & Portraits, Copying & Enlarging, Picture Framing and Kodak Finishing. Satisfaction Guaranteed." Frank Baxter was his partner in the Detroit Photo Enlarging & Copying Company, and continued the company for a decade or more. Max Migdoll was proprietor of the West Fort Studio at 5642 West Fort Street in 1935. By 1941 John had a wife named Hazel.

Louis was born in Ohio on July 11, 1873, the son of Louis M. and Mary F. Kramer. He was the first of their four children, and their only son. Louis ran a series of one-line ads in 1891, each ending in the address of the gallery: "Bring the BABIES. The Best Most Smiling Baby Pictures in the City.... For Photographs with Best Finish, most Artistic Posing, Best Quality for the Least Money, go to Kramer's.... KRAMER The Photographer. Gives his best ARISTOTYPE CABINETS for $1.50 PER DOZ. Equal to any in the City.... KRAMER makes a specialty of Views, Interiors of Rooms and Offices, Funeral Flowers, Family Groups at residence...." Louis M. Kramer took over the photography business the following year and used the same advertisements. When Louis H. Kramer again became the proprietor, he advertised similarly in 1895: "Kramer High Art Photographs. Views and Portraits.... Kramer Cabinet Photos $2.00 and $3.00 per dozen. Trying is Knowing.... Views and Interiors by new process Flashlight.... All kinds of Portraiture. Specialty Landscape Photography...." Louis employed Miss Maud Middleton and Olive A. Thompson as retouchers in 1895, along with Charles A. Merrill as a photographer. Helene was born in New York State to English parents on December 30, 1878, and she married Louis about 1897. She was working in 1900 as a stenographer.

His parents emigrated from the Hanover region of Germany and Louis was born in Ohio on May 8, 1848, second of the five children of Henry and Mary Agnes Kramer. Mary was born in New York to German parents on July 21, 1856, and she married Louis about 1872. Mary gave birth in Ohio to their son Louis on July 11, 1873, and in Michigan to their daughters: Anna on February 11, 1880, Louisa on March 25, 1882, and Philomena on May 10, 1888. In Grand Rapids Louis taught piano, pipe organ, voice culture and the German language, and for a while was organist at St. Andrew's Cathedral. In 1892 he supplemented the advertisements used previously by his son Louis H. Kramer with "Headquarters for Enlargements in Bromide, Crayon, India Ink, Water Colors and Pastel. Enlargements for the Trade...." He employed Louis H. Kramer as a photographer from 1892 through 1894, and Charles C. Bueche as a photo printer in 1893. Their Detroit home was a rooming house in 1910 where Mary, with some help from Louis and from her daughter Anna, was providing for ten male lodgers.

Phillip's parents emigrated from German provinces, Phillip from Hesse-Darmstadt and Mary from Bavaria. He was the eldest of their eight children, and he was born in Detroit in 1854 or early in 1855. His father became one of the two proprietors of the Michigan Volksblatt. Phillip applied for a patent on April 16, 1888, which was granted as Patent No. 401,441 on April 16, 1889, with the assignment of one-half to Detroit soap manufacturer Caspar H. Schulte. The patent described a Method of Mounting Portraits by coating the area of the photograph surrounding the portrait with flaked hematite, ferric oxide which occurs as shiny metallic crystals. This method was employed by Detroit photographer William J. Walker and others to produce an unusual effect with an illusion of depth. Phil never married, and he may have been a truant officer in 1920 for the city of Mount Clemens.

Arthur was born in Detroit on September 11, 1893, fourth of the nine children of John Conrad Krausmann and Emma (Gossman) Krausmann. His mother and his paternal grandfather were born in Germany, and his father was foreman in a cigar factory. Arthur probably was employed by the Ford Motor Company from 1915 until the 1940s. He was enumerated as a photographer for an automobile company in the 1920 and 1930 censuses, and was listed in directories as a Ford employee in 1923 and as an autoworker in 1928. Anna was born in Michigan to German parents in May of 1898, first of the three children of Martin and Elizabeth Bourke. She married Arthur about 1918. Their sons were born in Detroit: Arthur on June 6, 1920, Charles on March 28, 1923, and William on October 12, 1924. Arthur became the assistant to Irving Bacon, manager of the Ford Photographic Department, on October 21, 1929. He had moved up to Elk Rapids in Antrim County by the time he died in February of 1968. George was born in Pennsylvania in June of 1838, third of the six children of Daniel and Eliza Krebs. Margaret was born in Pennsylvania in 1840, and she married George about 1859. Their daughter Belle was born in Iowa in 1860, and their other children were born in Ohio: De Witt about 1864, Cornelia about 1865, and George about 1868. Something happened to Margaret, and George married again about 1888. His bride was Harriette (often Hattie) who was born in Ohio to parents from New York in December of 1850. Hattie had a teen-aged daughter named Verna, who married John H. Brubaker about 1896. In many directories and gazetteers the studio address was listed as 147 Monroe Street. Krebs & Brubaker employed Mrs. Ella M. Caverly as a retoucher in 1902. Miss Ida S. Edison was with the firm in 1904, when Norman Ferris was employed as a photographer. George's residence in 1902 was at Cairo, Illinois; in 1903 was at Goshen, Indiana; and in 1904 was at Delphi, Indiana. From 1905 through 1910 he and Harriette boarded at the home of his partner and son-in-law, John H. Brubaker.

| His parents emigrated from Germany and Carl was born in Maple Valley Township of Montcalm County, Michigan, on March 12, 1892, youngest of the four children of John and Louisa Krogman. He grew up on the family farm, and he became a tall man with blue eyes and light brown hair. "Krogman Photo" or "C. Krogman Photo" was marked on the negatives of post card photographs taken in and near Edmore and in Sidney, thirteen miles south-southwest of Edmore along the Pere Marquette Railroad. One of these post cards was dated and postmarked in 1916. Maple Valley Township is seventeen miles west-southwest of Edmore. Carl was enlisted for service in World war I on August 26, 1918, and then discharged on January 24, 1919. Her parents emigrated from Germany and Mathilda A. Maas was born at Saginaw, Michigan, on November 1, 1893., fourth of the eight children of Elias and Albertina W. (Krumheuer) Maas. She married Carl at Saginaw on November 15, 1919. Their children were born in Michigan: Betty about 1921, Ruth a year later, and Melva in 1927 or early in 1928. Carl and Mathilda resided during the last decades of their lives in or near Hemlock in Richland Township of Saginaw County, Michigan. Mathilda died there on February 15, 1968, and Carl died in a Saginaw hospital on October 22, 1974. |           |     |

Ernest was born in Germany in 1843 or early in 1844, and Julia was born in Germany at about the same time. They both immigrated to America, and they married probably about 1865. Their daughter Ernestine was born in New York about 1867. Their son Charles was born in New York in September of 1869 but died as a child. Ernest was enumerated in 1870 as Charles E. Krueger. "Ernst Krueger's Method of Shortening the Time of Exposure" was translated from the German and appeared in 1872 in The Philadelphia Photographer. "Art Studio S. W. Cor. Main & Huron St., Ann Arbor, Mich." was printed on the backs of some cabinet mounts along with "ERNEST KRUEGER, The First Prize at Cincinnati, 1884, $300.00" and facsimiles of twelve medals. These medals were awarded at New York in 1870, 1871, 1872, 1873, 1874, 1875, 1876 and 1877; at Vienna in 1873; at the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition in 1876; and at Chicago in 1887. At the ninth annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America in Minneapolis during July of 1888, Ernest had a general exhibit as well as competing for the Blair Cup on the theme of Hiawatha. A 22 by 18 inch print signed "E. Krueger, Ann Arbor, Mich." has survived, and may well have been his entry in this competition. Ernest produced 52 group photographs for Christmas in 1888, none of them smaller than 14 by 17 inches. When Ernest left Ann Arbor in July of 1889, a local newspaper noted that his departure was mourned by many creditors.

Herman was born in December of 1856, and emigrated from Germany in 1875 with four younger siblings and his parents, Michael and Dorothea (Papke) Krueger. His name was often spelled Hermann before 1900, and his initials were not always included. Rachel Auguste Erhardt was born in the Prussian region of Germany in 1856, and she married Herman at Grand Rapids on December 25, 1880. Their children were born at Grand Rapids: Christel on December 9, 1881, Helen (later Helena) in August of 1884, Ida on May 25, 1887, Martha on June 18, 1890, and Herman in April of 1892. Herman advertised in 1888: "Enlarging and Finishing in Crayon, Water Colors and Pastels a Specialty. Orders by Mail Promptly Attended to." By 1890 he had added bromide enlarging to his advertised specialties. His smithy had been on Wealthy Avenue just west of Division Street since 1879, his home had been there since 1883, and Herman moved his photograph gallery there about 1892. His partner in 1892 was Adolph C. F. Krueger. He then advertised as a "Portrait and Commercial Photographer ... Only Ground Floor Gallery with Double Light, in Manufacturing and Railway Centre. All kinds of Commercial Work to Order. Negatives of Furniture, Machinery, etc., made to order in all parts of the State at short notice. Large number of negatives of the most popular Summer Resorts of Michigan on hand and New Ones added every season. Enlarging from Small Pictures in Crayon or India Ink a Specialty. Orders by mail promptly attended to." Rachel died on May 14, 1895. Elizabeth (usually Elizabeth) Bohn was born in Germany in April of 1854, married about 1881, and immigrated in 1889. She was a childless widow by the time she married Herman on December 14, 1895. By 1901 Herman was offering retouching and bromide printing as well as photo finishing for amateurs. He was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905. From 1906 to 1915 Herman used variations of this advertisement: "Commercial Photographer. Photographing of Furniture, Machinery, Monuments, Interior and Exterior Views, Blue Prints and Bromide Enlargements..." Most Grand Rapids addresses changed between 1911 and 1912, while the studio on Wealthy probably remained in the same location. Herman lived 61 years before his death in Grand Rapids on February 5, 1918. He was survived by four daughters, one son and four grandchildren as well as his wife. Mrs. Elizabeth Krueger continued to live in Grand Rapids for a while.

Ida was born in Michigan to German parents on May 25, 1887, third of the five children of Herman K. A. Krueger and Rachel Auguste (Erhardt) Krueger. Her mother died when Ida was eight years old, and within a year her father married a lady named Elizabeth. Fred B. Yahnke was born in Michigan to German parents on January 15, 1889, fourth of the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Yahnke. His older siblings were born in Germany, and they immigrated with their parents in 1886. After he married Ida on June 28, 1911, Fred worked a while for a railroad and then drove for a trucking company. Ida gave birth at Grand Rapids to Elizabeth in 1914, and to Herman in October of 1918. As soon as her children were old enough, she got back into the photography business. Ida died in Grand Rapids on December 18, 1968, and Fred lived until March of 1984.

All of his grandparents emigrated from Germany and William was born in Michigan on June 13, 1884, the second child and only son of Frank C. and Matilda (Preussel) Kuenzel. He matured into a tall stout man with brown eyes and light brown hair. Rose was born in Michigan to a mother from the Prussian region of Germany on September 4, 1880, fourth of the six children of Henry and Mathilda Vogler. She married William on May 15, 1907, and their children were born in Detroit: Beatrice on January 3, 1909, and William Robert on September 9, 1917. William was working as a free-lance photographer for the Detroit News on July 21, 1899, when he took a picture published as "Ford Automobile on the Boulevard." He was seventeen years old when he was hired by the Detroit News on April 1, 1901, as their first full time news photographer. Sitting beside pioneer pilot Walter Brookins on the framework of an open flying machine, William took the first aerial photographs of Detroit in 1912. During his 52 years as chief photographer for the Detroit News he was first to take a baseball action picture, and he covered every Detroit Tiger opening game from 1901 through 1952. He photographed every United States president from Theodore Roosevelt to Harry Truman and many other celebrities. He photographed KB lumber camps near Gaylord in 1925. William acquired a reputation for taking historic pictures. He lived in Grosse Pointe Park from 1924 through 1941, and then in Grosse Pointe. After he retired in 1953 he lived in Florida's Dade County, where he died on March 13, 1964. Rose died there nine months later, on December 8, 1964.

Charles was born on October 19, 1889, at Muhos in Finland, which was then part of Russia. He reached Hancock in 1903, and immediately registered at Suomi College. He learned the English language and acquired skill in photography. By 1917 he was a naturalized citizen of the United States, a short slender man with light brown eyes and hair who was partially supporting his father and mother. Her father emigrated from Finland and Aminda was born in Michigan to a Norwegian mother in 1890, second of the four children of Matt and Stiina Grekela. She married Charles about 1918 and their children were born at Hancock: Helen in 1920 or early in 1921, and Carl two years later. "KUKKONEN STUDIOS, HANCOCK AND CALUMET, MICH." was printed on the post card backs of some studio portraits and outdoor scenes. "MASS AVENUE, MASS, MICH. PHOTO BY KUKKONEN" was lettered on the negative of a card postmarked in October of 1913. "PHOTO BY CHAS. A KUKKONEN, 318 QUINCY ST., HANCOCK, MICH." was printed on the backs of views postmarked in 1916. "KUKKONEN, HANCOCK, MICH." was embossed on a view of Quincy Street postmarked in 1919 and on nicely vignettted portraits in the post card format. "Photo by Kukkonen" was lettered on the negatives of postal views of "Hancock's $200,000 Fire, Feb. 20, 1923." After 1919, Charles advertised as a Photographer and Art Studio. His advertisements after 1921 added Kodak film developing and printing and picture frames. From 1926 on he was proprietor of the Kukkonen Studio. Charles died in Los Angeles County, California, on June 4, 1963. His son Carl still owned the Hancock studio in the 1990s.

| James was last of the three children of German parents, and he was born at Rochester, New York, on March 30, 1882. He became a tall man with brown eyes and dark brown hair, and was living in 1900 with his widowed mother, Mrs. Mary Kunze. Elizabeth's father emigrated from Germany and she was born in Michigan in 1885 or early in 1886. She married James about 1904 and their daughters were born in Michigan: Dorothy in 1906, Alice about 1907, and Evelyn in March of 1909. James was a widower by 1918. He was suffering at this time from lead poisoning, which may have caused the death of his wife. By 1920, Mrs. Mary Kunze had come from Rochester to help James raise his daughters. He was living in 1930 with his daughter Dorothy, who was divorced and had a pre-school daughter and son. James spent the last five years of his life as a self-employed civil engineer at Farmington, Michigan. He died at Farmington on August 15, 1966. James was survived by three Children, five grandchildren and eighteen great grandchildren. Interment was in the North Farmington Cemetery. |   |     |

Felix was born in the Polish region of Russia on May 9, 1891, and he became a short man with gray eyes and light hair who immigrated in 1912. Salomea was born in the Polish region of Russia in 1890, and she immigrated in 1913. She married Felix about 1915, and their children were born in Michigan: Lottie (later Leokedya) in May of 1917, Victoria in October of 1918, and John in 1921 or early in 1922. Felix kept his studio in the same location during 1920, while overall revisions in the Detroit numbering system changed its address from 1439 to 4657 Michigan Avenue. He first applied for United States citizenship on October 5, 1918. He renewed his application on September 3, 1925, and for some reason it was denied on September 29, 1930. Felix died in November of 1972 up at East Jordan in Michigan's Charlevoix County.

Sam was born in Michigan to German parents on January 5, 1886, last of the five sons of leaf tobacco merchant Louis Kuttbauer and his wife Caroline (Rosenberger) Kuttbauer. "Sam Kuttbauer, 73 Bagg Street, Detroit, Mich." was stamped on the backs of professionally mounted 4 by 5 and 5¼ by 6¼ inch photographs which seem to have been made while Sam was a student. The home of his parents was at 73 Bagg Street in 1897 and 1898. Sam became an average sized man with dark eyes and hair. Selma was born in Michigan on November 19, 1882, youngest of the seven children of Benjamin and Yetta Salomon. Her parents and all of her siblings emigrated from Germany in 1880, and her father became a Kalamazoo manufacturer of cigars. Selma married Sam in 1908, and they lived with his parents through 1920. Their son Richard was born in Detroit in 1923 or early in 1924. Selma died in Los Angeles County, California, on March 14, 1943, and Samuel lived on there until November 2, 1959.

Edolph was born in Quebec on August 3, 1857, second of the eight children of Moses and Virginia (Cota) Lacomb. Olive was born in Wisconsin in November of 1873, and she married Ed about 1891. Their son Thaddeus was born at Marinette, Wisconsin, on October 13, 1894, and their other children were born in Michigan: Clement at Stephenson on April 8, 1897, and Verna (later probably Ursala) in December of 1898. Olive and their three children were living together in Los Angeles in 1920, when Ed was not to be found. Ed was a widower by 1930, when he was living next door to the family of his son Clement. He died in Los Angeles County on January 17, 1948.

Albert was born in New York State about 1823, and he probably was the son of George and Sarah Lacy. Mary Ann was born in England during the summer of 1824, and she married Albert about 1842. Their sons were born in Michigan: Charles in the summer of 1843, and George about 1852. George was enumerated in 1870 as a jeweler’s apprentice. By 1880 Albert was married to a 38-year-old Canadian lady named Roxey.

His father came from New York and Albert was born in Illinois to a mother from Vermont in January of 1867, the son of Erasmus and Roselle (later Rose) L. Lacy. Her father came from Maine and Mary was born in Michigan to an Irish mother in January of 1865. She married Albert about 1891, and their son Clarence was born in Illinois in March of 1893. A. D. Lacy & Company advertised in 1899: "Special Figures made for Groups and Lawn Parties. All kinds of Landscape and View Work a Specialty. All work guaranteed..." A local directory located A. D. Lacy & Company on the southeast corner of East Main and Sixth Streets in 1902. A 6¼ by 8 inch photograph entitled: "Buying Fruit, Benton Harbor, Michigan" was copyrighted in 1905 by Albert D. Lacy. His father, Thomas T. Lacy, was a widowed carriage manufacturer with eight children about 1864 when he married Mrs. Elizabeth Trimble, a widow with two children. Their only child, this Thomas T. Lacy, was born in July of 1866 at Jersey City, New Jersey. The family moved in 1873 to Tecumseh, Michigan, and in 1880 to Milan. Edith was born in Germany in August of 1875, and she was brought to America in 1883. She married Thomas about 1895, and their daughters were born in Ohio: Helen in September of 1897, Josephine in April of 1900, Edith early in 1901, and Anna in 1902 or early in 1903. Josephine died as a child.

Martin on November 5, 1879, and in 1880 they were boarding with a grocer and his wife. She left this marriage and another with William S. Hicks before she married Mark H. Ladd about 1890. His father came from New York and Mark was born in Michigan to a Canadian mother in July of 1864, second of the three children of Alvin and Augusta Ladd. He grew up in Plymouth, which was Ada's residence while she was retouching for the Lansing photographers Savigny & Christmas. She gave birth to Camilla Marguerite Ladd on September 16, 1892, and to Donald Harper Ladd on April 22, 1896. Mark was an iron moulder in 1900, and he was Plymouth's post master in 1910. He worked as a carpenter for construction firms in California. Camilla was out on her own in 1920, but both children were single and living with Mark and Ada in 1930. Burrell was born in Herkimer County near Utica, New York, on August 27, 1838, the only son of Charles D. and Eliza (Johnson) Ladd. His sister Mary was born in 1836. His mother died about the time he was born, and he and Mary were raised by Celina, his father's second wife, who never had children of her own. Emily Louise Holt was born at Evans in Erie County, New York, on February 25, 1847, last of the five children of Henry F. and Anna Maria (Barnard) Holt. She married Burrell on June 25, 1869, and their son Charles was born in New York in 1870. Their other children were born in Michigan: George on October 8, 1871, Lulu (later Louise) in November of 1874, Harry about 1876, Effie in 1877 or early in 1878, and Burrell (later Bert) on June 3, 1879. An 1888 advertisement for Shipley & Ladd mentioned Burrell's twenty years connection with the Powelson and Millard galleries. Shipley & Ladd provided sixteen 4½ by 7½ inch prints of Belle Isle Park which were tipped into each copy of the Seventh Annual Report of the Board of Park Commissioners, City of Detroit, February 19th, 1889. Ambrose J. Diehl and J. Jefferson Gibson were Burrell's associates in Diehl, Ladd & Company, and they employed Charles A. Ladd as a retoucher, Edward J. Winiker as a photo printer and Lena Lichtwardt as a clerk. Burrell purchased the Muskegon gallery of Norman B. Lawson in June of 1892. He employed his son, Charles A. Ladd, as a photographer from 1893 through 1899, and made him a partner in 1902. The opening of the branch gallery in Montague was projected for the first of May in 1898. Burrell was ill for a year prior to his death on February 11, 1918, and was survived by his wife, four sons, a daughter and eleven grandchildren. The Ladd & Son studio in Muskegon was continued with Mrs. Emily L. Ladd and Charles A. Ladd as proprietors.

Emily Louise Holt was born at Evans in Erie County, New York, on February 25, 1847, last of the five children of 2
 Henry F. and Anna Maria (Barnard) Holt. She married Burrell W. Ladd on June 25, 1869, and their son Charles was 2 1
 born in New York in July of 1870. Their other children were born in Michigan: George on October 8, 1871, Lulu 1 2
 (later Louise) in November of 1874, Harry about 1876, Effie in 1877 or early in 1878, and Burrell (later Bert) on June 1 3
 3, 1879. Emily probably was much more involved with Burrell's photographic activities than is indicated here. Charles 1 m
 A. Ladd was her associate in 1918 and 1919. According to Burrell Sidney Ladd, who was working for Ladd & Son in m 3
 1918, Emily was then living in Okanogan, Washington. She died at Okanogan on March 26, 1920. 3 2

| George was born in Michigan on October 8, 1871, second of the six children of Burrell W. and Emily L. Ladd, and he boarded with his parents through 1893. He immigrated to Canada in 1898, and probably went right to the Yukon Territory. One of his mining partners in the Halfway District was Earl C. Quackenbush. Earl was his immediate neighbor at Turk Creek, and ended up married to George's sister Louise. Agnes Linega was born at Grand Haven, Michigan, to Dutch parents on December 28, 1880, second of the three children of Engbert and Gesina (Halsema) Luinenga. Her father died in 1884. Her mother married Alexander C. DeWitt in 1889, and then gave birth to four more children. Agnes married George at Spokane, Washington, on July 14, 1910, and their daughters were born in Okanogan County, Washington: Christine at Riverside on May 22, 1911, and Burrell at Omak on July 9, 1913. Agnes was George's assistant photographer in 1930, and she probably was involved with his photography business much earlier. George died at Omak on November 30, 1954, and Agnes died there on September 18, 1969. | 1 3d 22 11 3333 113 |   |

| Her father emigrated from Germany and her mother was born into a German family in Wisconsin. Louise was born in Michigan in 1887, and about 1906 she married Harry Whipple Ladd to become Mrs. Louise Bertha Ladd. Harry was born in Michigan on January 31, 1877, fourth of the six children of the photographer Burrell W. Ladd and his wife Emily L. Ladd. Harry was enumerated in 1910 without a vocation, when Louise was providing for a couple that was boarding with them. Harry was a photographer in 1918, and probably in 1920, for the Murillo Studio in Saint Louis. Louise was providing in 1920 for six lodgers. Harry was enumerated in 1930 as the proprietor of the studio, and Louise was enumerated as his partner. Louise never became a mother. One Louise Ladd was born on December 19, 1887, registered with Social Security in Indiana prior to 1951, and died in December of 1974 at Plant City in Hillsborough County, Florida. | 11 22 111 211 333 |     |

Lulu (later Louise) was born in Michigan in November of 1874, third of the six children of the photographer Burrell W. Ladd and his wife Emily L. Ladd. She undoubtedly played a greater part in her father's photographic business than is indicated above. His father came from New York and Earle (often Earl) C. Quackenbush was born in Ohio on May 11, 1867. He was first of the four children of Alpheus and Augusta (Cadwallader) Quackenbush, and was their only son. Earle lived from 1880 through 1900 in Washington, D. C., where his widowed mother was a government clerk. He and Louise's brother George were mining partners in the Yukon in 1901, and were close neighbors in rural Okanogan County in 1910. This was about the time that Earle married Louise, who gave birth to Schuyler in Washington State in 1911. Louise and Earle were sharing their home with her brother Bert in 1930. No record of Louise's death has been found, but Earle died at Seattle on February 8, 1953.

Some Hobart & Lafayette photos were from "... Big Rapids and Howard City." The new gallery of Hobart & Lafayette at Hart was reported to be open for business in October of 1898. Pictures sent to a photographic magazine from Hart by Hobart & Lafayette received favorable comment early in 1899: "... There is a variety of pose and execution that seems suitable to each and every sitter. It is good work." Mrs. Lucy E. Hobart and John A. Lafayette probably were the principals of this partnership.

His father came from Ohio and John was born to a mother from Pennsylvania at Stockdale, Indiana, on August 3, 1861, eldest of the six children of Anthony and Susanna (Brown) LaFayette. In 1869 his parents moved to Croton, Michigan, with one daughter and four of their sons. They added another son and later moved to a house near the Muskegon River in the village of Newaygo. Her father emigrated from France and Emma J. Jerue was born to a Canadian mother in November of 1856 in Casco Township of Allegan County, Michigan. She was sixth of the ten children of Joel L. and Huldah L. (Cook) Jerue. Emma and John were married at Newaygo in 1879, and they were enumerated twice in the census of 1880. On June 3 they were living with Emma's parents in Casco Township, and on June 17 they were living next door to John's parents on Amity Avenue in Muskegon. Emma gave birth in Muskegon to Louis in February of 1881, Margaret in March of 1885, Grace in October of 1886, Arthur early in 1892, and John in January of 1893. Alexander Cowan succeeded Frank S. Jacks as John's partner in 1887. LaFayette & Cowan made cabinets for $2 per dozen and cards for $1.50 per dozen at their Star Gallery over Mann & Pierce's clothing store in the old Lyman Building across from the post office on West Western Avenue at the corner of First Street. John continued the Star Gallery on his own for a couple of years. Some of his cabinet mounts of this period were from Muskegon, some were from Holland, and others mentioned both cities. He was associated with L. Blodgett & Company in manufacturing chairs and handles in 1892, and was classified as a log scaler in 1894. John's opening of a gallery in Muskegon was reported in November of 1898. Mrs. Lucy E. Hobart, an experienced photographer from Big Rapids, became John's partner in LaFayette & Company on May 22, 1900, when they bought the Bell Photograph Gallery on Jefferson Street. They kept two Muskegon studios for a couple of years and then consolidated their operations on West Western Avenue. Mrs. Hobart resided on Amity Avenue a few doors from the LaFayettes, accompanied them on trips, and was probably associated with LaFayette & Company throughout its existence. John had gold mining interests in California in 1904, and lumber interests in 1908 at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. In 1909, John began development tests on a paving material called asbesphalt originated by William W. Barcus. About 1918, Mrs. Hobart took over the photograph studio from LaFayette & Company, and John bought the Heights Theatre in Muskegon Heights. He operated this motion picture theater until 1921, when he sold it and purchased land on Lakeshore Drive in Muskegon. Here he erected an innovative quonset-type theater he named the Rivoli and opened on December 10, 1921. Emma died on July 1, 1923, and John was married again on June 4, 1924, to Marion B. Jackson (Ward). After a short illness, John died on October 8, 1925.

His father came from New York and William was born in Ohio to a mother from Maryland in August of 1841, first of the seven children of Henry Wolcott Laird and Susannah Martha (Brown) Laird. He filed a patent application on May 13, 1878, describing an Improvement in Photographic Printing Frames. The negative and printing paper were clamped to a board with springs at three corners. When unlatched, a portion of the board that included the fourth corner fell away to facilitate examining the print without displacing it. Patent Number 207,358 was granted to William on August 27, 1878. He was living in 1900 on the farm of his married brother, John M. Laird. William never married, and he was living in 1920 with another brother, George C. Laird.

| Thomas was born in April of 1855 to Irish parents at Quincy, Massachusetts, the son of John and Ann Lamb. His sister Kate (formally Catherine) was born six years earlier. Eugenia was born in Michigan to Irish parents in June of 1860, and she married Thomas in 1878 or early in 1879. Their children were born in Detroit: Charles in January of 1880, Vincent in December of 1881, and Irene in November of 1883. Thomas joined the Detroit Police Department in 1887, and in 1898 was detailed to the Corporation Counsel's Office where he specialized in investigating damage claims against the city. In 25 years he saved the city $1,500,000 by proving that people claiming to have been injured on defective sidewalks and the like either had sustained the injury elsewhere or were not permanently disabled as claimed. He sometimes used a camera in obtaining such proof. He found one woman with an alleged leg injury high in a tree picking cherries, convinced her that he was from a magazine, and was permitted to photograph her in the tree. It was reported in 1909 and again in 1910 that Detective Sergeants Fred S. Quackenbush and Thomas B. Lamb were the City Photographer Staff in the Corporation Counsel's Office, and that one patrolman was assigned as the Bertillion operator and photographer at police headquarters. Thomas and Eugenia were sharing their home in 1910 with their son Charles and his wife Lottie, and in 1920 with an eleven-year-old grandson. Thomas retired on December 1, 1924, after 37 years of continuous service in the police department. He planned to visit Florida with his wife after Christmas, and to become a private investigator upon his return to Detroit in the spring. Frederick was born in Ontario in 1853 or early in 1854, the son of John Scott Land and his second wife, Susan. The family included his half-brother Charles, and they immigrated in 1854 to New York State where his sister Carrie was born about 1860. Susan was a widow by 1870, when she was providing a home for Charles as well as for her son Frederick and her daughter Carrie. Susan and Frederick were sharing a Detroit residence with Charles in 1874, and with each other in 1875. Land & Watson employed John S. Foster as a photographer in their Grand Central Gallery, where they sold the Best Berlin Retouched Photographs for $2.50 per dozen. Joseph E. Watson succeeded his partnership with Frederick and continued as a Detroit photographer off and on for another twenty years. "MACKINAC. - NATIONAL PARK SCENERY. Published for John R. Albert was born in the Prussian region of Germany on August 4, 1835, and he became five feet four inches tall with blue eyes and dark brown hair. He was an occupant in 1860 of the boarding house where Louis Black was living with his wife and daughter. Isabella was born in Canada to Prussian parents in February of 1850, and she married Albert about 1866. They do not seem to have had any children. Albert returned from New York to take charge of L. Black & Company when Louis Black died about 1873. Mrs. Augusta Black, the widow of Louis, was a principal of the company from 1874 through 1897 but lived the entire span of years in Berlin, Prussia or Germany. William Black became a member of the firm in 1887, and died in 1891 or 1892. Albert's wife, Mrs. Isabella Landsberg, became secretary and treasurer of L. Black & Company in 1899, and remained in that position after Maurice Black became president in 1901. Albert Landsberg was enumerated in 1900 as a wholesale optician, and he died in Detroit at the age of 65 on February 6, 1901. Isabella was 57 when she died in Detroit on June 1, 1905. L. Black & Company were manufacturing opticians and importers of optical goods. They made a specialty of eyeglasses. In the autumn of 1858 they received a supply of minute photographs, about the size of the head of a pin. Late in 1869 they published 47 stereo views of Detroit buildings taken by an unidentified eastern artist. They republished this series for years on a variety of mounts. The L. Black & Company imprint is found on 1875 vintage stereo views of Detroit by James A. Jenney, and on mass produced stereographs of scenes all over the country from the later 1870s. They were manufacturing a miniature camera and photographic outfit complete with instructions in 1887, which they would ship anywhere by express for $2.00. They continued to publish photographic stereo views of Detroit into the 1900s, as well as lithoprinted stereographs of American and foreign scenery and souvenir albums, postal photographs and larger single views in the later years. They sold stereoscopes continuously for almost fifty years, and before 1900 were selling Kodaks and other cameras. The L. Black Company produced and sold post card photographs of the Cadillac fete in 1912 and the Statue of Liberty and Armistice celebrations in 1918. "PUBLISHED BY THE NORTH AMERICAN POST CARD CO., KANSAS CITY, U.S.A." was printed on the post card backs of typical exaggeration photos, and then "Copyright Now Owned by L. Black Co. Detroit, 1918." was printed above it.

August was born at Buffalo, New York, on March 31, 1851, last of the seven children of John and Margaret Lang. His parents and his four oldest siblings were born in the Wurttemberg region of Germany, and he had a sister and a brother born in New York between 1857 and November of 1849. Something happened to his father, and his mother married a Prussian named John Haack who was a dyer like her first husband. August soon had a half-sister and a half-brother who were born in Michigan between 1855 and 1858. He was single when he died in Detroit of consumption on December 24, 1877.

George was born in Michigan on October 8, 1873, the only son of Edwin and Lavina Lang. His sister Chloa was born in July of 1875. George became a tall man with brown eyes and black hair. He was using his post card camera in and around Carleton in 1908 and 1909, and in 1910 was living on his father's nearby farm while maintaining a studio in Carleton. He continued selling a good volume of post card photographs through 1915. "Photo Cards - Geo. E. Lang, Carleton, Mich." was printed in a single narrow blue line on post card backs, sometimes very light and easy to miss. It appeared on individual and group portraits, taken in the studio or outdoors, as well as on view cards of general interest and multi-view cards. In addition to Carleton, his post card photographs depicted Grape, Ida, London, Maybee, Newport, Petersburg and Scofield in Monroe County, and Belleville, Flat Rock, New Boston, Romulus and Waltz in Wayne County. George compiled, published and copyrighted a map of Monroe County in 1917. He was secretary of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce in 1918 and 1920. By this time his parents had moved into Carleton, and George was living ten doors away from them on Ash Street. He still was single in 1930, and he characterized himself as a draughtsman involved in map making.

Anthony was born in December of 1837, and he emigrated from Bohemia about 1855 with his family. He boarded with Charles Langer in 1862, and succeeded him in the gallery over the Farmers and Mechanic's Bank at the southwest corner of Woodward Avenue and Larned Street after Charles was killed in the riot of March 6, 1863. He was advertising Photographs and Ambrotypes in 1864, and used a round date stamp like a postmark on the back of his cartes de visite in March and April of 1867. He was succeeded in the gallery over Conklin's Store at the corner of Woodward Avenue and Larned Street by A. Jackson. Catherine was born in Bohemia in December of 1843 to Mr. and Mrs. Wenzel Jefikowsky, with whom she immigrated in 1855. She married Anthony about 1862, and their eldest children were born in Michigan: Catherine (later Katie) in February of 1864, and Anthony (later Anton) in February of 1866. The rest of their children were born in Nebraska: Otilia about 1874, Rosalie in May of 1876, Hellen about 1878, Jerome in January of 1881, Raymond in June of 1883, Roland in July of 1885, and Mildred in November of 1888. From 1880 on, the photographer was known as Anton Langer. Catherine was a widow by 1910, when she was sharing her West Point home with her daughters Rosalie and Mildred.

Langer, Charles

Detroit AMBROTYPE GALLERY at 85 Woodward av on the southwest corner of Larned st ..... 1860-1863 d 1

In 1860 from this gallery over the Merchant's Bank, Charles advertised "... Ambrotypes, Melainotypes, Portraits on Leather, Oil Cloth, Paper, Etc., Etc. In the best possible style, and at the lowest prices. Also, Pictures in Lockets, Broaches, Rings, etc., on the most reasonable terms." Charles Langer became the only recorded fatality of the Detroit riot of March 6, 1863. On that day the black saloon keeper William Faulkner was tried and convicted of the rape of a nine year old white girl. A crowd of nearly one thousand had gathered outside City Hall during the trial and it was feared that the local constabulary could not get Faulkner to the county jail without his being lynched. A company of the Provost Guard under Lieutenant Van Stan was called in to escort the prisoner to the jail. Faulkner and his escort were pelted with bricks and paving stones as well as verbal abuse. At one point during the march to the jail, Van Stan turned his men to face the mob with leveled muskets and fixed bayonets and had them fire a blank volley, which only made the crowd more angry. Charles Langer, a respected 24-year-old member of Detroit's German community with a wife and three children, was apparently an unoffending spectator of this scene. One witness noticed him standing on the sidewalk with his hands in his pockets and a pipe in his mouth. Langer was standing across from the jail as the prisoner was hustled inside. By this time, the abuse from the mob had unnerved Van Stan and his troops and several retaliatory shots were fired into the crowd. One witness at the ensuing inquest claimed that one of Van Stan's shots had hit Langer, but the testimony of several others agreed that a particular soldier had taken deliberate aim at Langer and had fired the fatal shot. The bullet struck Charles in the chest, punctured his lungs and cut one of the large veins to his heart, killing him instantly. After the shooting the Provost Guard retreated to their barracks and the mob vented its anger upon the black colony near Fort and Lafayette, where several buildings were burned and many innocent people were assaulted. Order was restored that evening when four hundred members of the 27th Michigan Infantry arrived from their training camp at Ypsilanti. Anthony J. Langer later became proprietor of the gallery and Mary, Charles' widow, was still living in Detroit in 1865. d 1

His father came from New York and Raymond was born on September 5, 1890, at Oakley, Michigan, the only child of Garrett D. and Ida V. (Barker) Lansing. He spent one year as a private in an artillery unit of the Michigan National Guard, and became a tall stout man with gray eyes and brown hair. Her father came from Ohio and Ethel was born in Michigan in 1897. She married Raymond prior to June of 1917, and their daughter Viola was born in July of 1918. Something happened to Ethel soon after 1920. Alice was born at New Lothrop, Michigan, on April 19, 1889, last of the three children of Horace and Jennie Isabel (Munro) Walters. She married Raymond about 1924 and took over the care of Viola. Alice gave birth to Jeanette in February of 1926. The Lansing Studio used at least three different imprints which included the 221 South Washington Avenue address on the post card backs of studio portraits, views of railroad wrecks and scenes in Oakley, 35 miles northeast of Lansing. One imprint included "R. B. Lansing, Prop." while another mentioned "R. B. Lansing - G. E. Johnson" and a third included "R. B. Lansing - T. C. Ward. While U Wait, Day or Night." One of the imprinted Oakley scenes had "Pharis Photo" written on its negative. The partnership with G. E. Johnson produced views of the wreckage caused by the cyclone at Owosso on November 11, 1911. Thomas C. Ward was Raymond's partner in the Lansing Studio in 1913. Raymond was associated with Dorr H. Day in the Day Studio at Owosso. Alice seems to have been a widow when she died at Owosso on August 4, 1974.

He was born Francis LaPine in Michigan to French Canadian parents in March of 1872, third of the six children of Gilbert and Mary C. LaPine. It was reported in May of 1897 that Frank had moved into the Chisholm Street gallery formerly occupied by Henry C. Moore, who had relocated to Colorado. Early in 1898 the same journal noted that Frank had moved his gallery again, this time into the Blackburn Building. That LaPine & Cook were fitting up a gallery with all new instruments, accessories and furnishings which would be the finest in Northern Michigan was reported in April of 1898, and the opening of the gallery was reported a month later. The gallery had a two-story skylight to give plenty of light on the darkest day, and shades arranged so that part of the light could be shut out in bright weather. In 1900 and in 1910 the photographer was enumerated as Francis La Pine. Her father emigrated from Ireland and Frances (later Edith) was born In Michigan to a Canadian mother in April of 1880. She married Frank in 1896 or early in 1897, and their son Earl was born in Michigan in March of 1898. Their daughters were born in Washington: Frances in 1903, and Eleanor in 1912. Edith also was enumerated as a commercial photographer in 1930, and she seems to have been a full partner in the business. Frank died in Washington in August of 1963.

He was called Thomas as a child and was born in Michigan to French Canadian parents on July 31, 1874, fourth of the six children of Gilbert and Mary C. LaPine. He became an average sized man with blue eyes and brown hair, and was known as Edward when he was working for others and boarding with his parents in Alpena. "T. E. LaPine" was printed on cabinet mounts from both Alpena and Marine City, and "L. E. LaPINE, Successor" was printed on some of William S. Beazell's Marine City cabinet mounts. Only "LaPine" was printed on some Marine City mounts, including one carrying a distant view of horse drawn sleighs hauling logs along a frozen river or lake. He was known as Edward T. LaPine at the large place where he boarded in Chicago. He registered for the draft as Thomas Edward LaPine, and named his mother back in Alpena as his nearest relative. The San Francisco photographer was single and was enumerated as Edward Lapine, born in Ohio a couple of years late, but probably was the subject of this entry. One Thomas Lapine left no record of the time and place of his birth when he died in Napa County, California, on March 22, 1963.

Charles was born on June 1, 1871, near Boone, Iowa, fourth of the nine children of Abraham and Thamer (Ward) Lare. He disliked farm work and left home when he was sixteen to pursue an artistic career on his own. Between 1887 and 1896 he spent some time in northern California and Oregon. While at Etna in 1896 he was very ill with typhoid fever. Upon his return to Kansas he married Alice Amelia Delay, who also was a photographer, and they later had three daughters and a son. From Downs in 1897 he published 125 stereo views of California scenery in eleven sets. The Lares also had studios in Eugene at 960 Willamette Street and 992 Willamette Street before they were divorced in 1916. Alice continued the studio at 992 Willamette Street until 1921. Charles remarried while in Michigan, but his second wife soon died in an influenza epidemic. He then worked at Newport News, Virginia, and several other places in the east before founding the B & L Manufacturing Company at Baltimore, Maryland, to make a photographic enlarger which added borders to portraits and had a built-in opaque projector. On January 31, 1924, he applied for a patent on this Combined Photographic Printer and Enlarger, and he was granted Patent Number 1,583,979 on May 11, 1926. In the spring of 1930 he retired to a small ranch at Hermiston, Oregon, where he died on February 2, 1950.

Henry was born in French Canada in October of 1852 or a couple of years later. He immigrated to the United States about 1875, and later became a naturalized citizen. He married a Canadian woman and she gave birth in Michigan to a daughter named Lea in June of 1881. Marie Delphine Carpentier was born at Portneuf, Quebec, on July 29, 1860, sixth of the eleven children of Louis and Caroline (Trudell) Carpentier. She immigrated in 1884, and she became Henry's second wife at Lake Linden in 1886. Their daughter Bernadette was born at Lake Linden on March 13, 1897. Lea still was living with Henry and Marie in 1900. "Instantaneous Portraits of Children a Successful Specialty.... Duplicates Supplied at any Time. Reduced Rates." was printed on some of Henry's cabinet mounts in the early 1890s. His last name was sometimes spelled LaRose. Henry Dullinger was proprietor of the Larose Hotel in 1912. Henry died at Lake Linden on February 2, 1932, and Marie lived until 1940.

Matt was born to Eric and Marie (Kallio) Lassi at Wassa in Finland on September 29, 1886, and became a tall man with blue eyes and dark brown hair. He immigrated to America in 1903 and spent several years in the western states. Emma Ersson was born on December 17, 1885, emigrated from Sweden, and married Matt on July 15, 1907. In 1912 Matt became a naturalized citizen of the United States and established the studio in Butte. He and his wife had three daughters, Lillian born in California in 1907, Violette born at Butte in 1911, and Thelma born at Negaunee in 1916. George was born at Bay City on December 6, 1879, second of the five children of Andrew Jackson Latham and Ella (Wilkinson) Latham. He became a stout man with blue eyes and brown hair. Minerva (usually Minna or Minnie) was born at Bay City to German parents in January of 1887, the only child of Frederick August Schultz and Bertha (Rutzen) Schultz. Minnie married George in 1906 or 1907, and she gave birth to Dayton Frederick Latham on March 4, 1909. Dayton was their only child. Harris & Latham advertised in 1909: "HIGH ART PHOTOGRAPHY in COMMERCIAL and PORTRAIT WORK. Enlarging in Sepia, Crayon and Water Colors. Prices Moderate...." A script "G. A. Latham" was blind stamped into 8 by 10 inch commercial mounts. One carried a photo of nearly eighty men standing and seated in a rural clearing, many with ribbons on their chests and with beer mugs in their hands. George died at Bay City on June 14, 1954, and Minna lived on there until September of 1972.

- George was born in Scotland in 1828 or early in 1829. His wife, Eliza, was born in the Prussian region of Germany a year or two earlier. Their daughter Caroline was born in New Jersey about 1854, and their other children were born in Michigan: Jennett (later Jessie) about 1856, George about 1857, Eliza about 1859, Mary about 1864, and John about 1868. Apparently John died as a child. On the same day as the great Chicago fire, October 8, 1871, most of Holland including the entire business district was destroyed by fire. The Lauder gallery evidently burned with all the other commercial buildings. George's gallery was on Eighth Street in Holland in 1872, he seems to have been listed as George Landers in an 1874 local directory, and he probably left for California in 1875.

His father and his paternal grandfather were born in Canada, his paternal grandmother and his maternal grandparents were born in New York, and his mother was born in Michigan. He and a younger brother were living with their parents in 1900, when Delbert probably was working for his brother Montraville. Her father was Canadian, her mother was born in Washington, D.C., and Nellie was born in Canada in 1876. Her marriage to Delbert about 1903 was her second. On October 3, 1904, Delbert filed for a patent on a Photographic Attachment for Firearms. His invention utilized a camera attached to the barrel of a lever action gun, a cord interconnecting the lever and the film advancing mechanism of the camera, and a second cord between the hammer of the gun and the camera shutter. Patent Number 791,800 issued in his name on June 6, 1905. Nellie gave birth to Doris in 1912, and by 1920 she was a widow. She and Doris were living in 1920 with the family of a sister of Nellie in Cincinnati, and in 1930 they were living by themselves in Detroit.

His father emigrated from Canada and Montraville was born in Michigan in September of 1871, second of the six sons of James E. and Aurilla (Davis) Laur. Her father also was Canadian and Lusella was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in January of 1874, fifth of the six children of Benjamin and Clarissa Baker. She married Montraville about 1892. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Lillian in March of 1894, Beatrice in December of 1898, and Joy in 1913. "Laur Bros., Publishers, Gaylord and Indian River, Mich." produced stereo views of hunting and fishing scenes. "M. Laur, Gaylord, Mich." was blind stamped into the 8 by 10 inch mount of a photograph of the horse drawn grocery wagon of Wm. Ellwanger & Son, who had changed the name of their business by 1906. A similar mount carried a photograph of R.F.D. wagons No. 1 and No. 2 and the drivers in front of the Gaylord post office. Similarly blind stamped 10 by 7 inch mounts with beveled edges and rounded corners carried 5 ½ by 4 portraits covered by a sheet embossed "The Opera Style" and attached to the mount at the top with a fancy cord. The Grayling studio was a branch of the Gaylord business. Lusella and her daughter Joy and her mother were living at Saginaw in 1920 with her widowed sister Sarah Laird. Montraville was boarding at Oakland in 1920 along with Gladys Laur, a waitress in a ship yard who was born in North Dakota in 1892. His wife in 1930 was Maud, who was born in Michigan about 1885 to a Canadian father and a mother from New York and married first when she was twenty-one. Alexander was born near Ottawa City, Canada, in 1854 or 1855. "... He learned his business in Canada, and in 1872 came to East Tawas, and did business there and at Oscoda for a time and then returned to Canada. Subsequently he resumed business at the places named, and in December, 1882, established himself in Alpena, still continuing his business at Oscoda and East Tawas.... He has made something of a specialty of views of logging operations...." He was in business at Oscoda in August of 1876, and by November had erected and opened a gallery at East Tawas. During the season of 1877 he spent alternating periods of a couple of months in Oscoda and then in East Tawas, interspersed with intervals at Point Lookout taking pictures for the excursionists. Alex was offering a dozen photos for $1.75 for a limited time in December of 1877, while assuring patrons that good photos could be made on light cloudy days between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. He usually spent much of January and February in the woods capturing the logging activities at the leading camps. His talent as a violinist, in concert with a guitarist and an organist, was noted. His practice seems to have been much the same during the following years, while adding galleries at Harrisville and Au Sable in 1878 and at Black River by 1882, and basing himself in Oscoda during the winters. He introduced the Minette size of photograph as a novelty in the spring of 1879. "... Oscoda and East Tawas, Mich." or "... Oscoda, East Tawas and HARRISVILLE, Mich." was printed on some of his card and cabinet mounts. He and a young lady from Toronto named Fanny Noades were married late in the summer of 1882, and in December of the same year moved to Alpena, where Alex had purchased the gallery of J. Jefferson Gibson. His 1883 advertisement for Lawson's Alpena Photo Parlors was: "Artistic Photographer, ... Portraits in ink, crayon, and water colors. L's photographs are second to none. A fine line of fancy frames. Old photographs copied and enlarged." Many later cabinet mounts mentioned only Alpena, but some were from "... Alpena, Oscoda and E. Tawas, Mich." Fanny became seriously ill very soon, and by March had returned to Toronto where she died of consumption in June of 1883. The East Tawas gallery was open from May of 1883 until January of 1884 under the management of J. A. Benjamin. The Oscoda gallery was open fairly continuously managed by Albert J. Bradshaw, who purchased both the Oscoda and East Tawas galleries from Alex in June of 1884 and then sold them back to him in December. The photographs which Alex exhibited at the Alpena County Fair in October of 1884 received high praise. A fire broke out in the room next to his gallery in the Culligan Block in March of 1885, and in June he presented each member of the Germania Band with an 11 by 14 photograph of the band. Alex personally opened the East Tawas and Oscoda galleries sporadically during 1885, and in December sold the Alpena business to Albert R. Nicholson and Fred W. Slaght. His Au Sable and East Tawas galleries were sold in January of 1886 to Charles E. Tibbott, the Oscoda studio was converted into a shooting gallery, and the Black River gallery became a restaurant. His last visit to East Tawas was in February of 1886, prior to visiting relatives in Toronto and then traveling comfortably to Dakota and on to the healthful climate of Southern California with a view to entering the business again in a suitable place. One A. J. Lawson was photographically active during the later 1880s around Helena, Billings and White Sulphur Springs, Montana.

Benjamin was born in Monongalia County, Virginia, to natives of that state in 1846 or early in 1847. This region became part of West Virginia when that state was formed in 1863. Benjamin was sixth of the twelve children of Alexander and Susanna Lawson. One B. W. Lawson was a Fremont, Ohio, photographer about 1885. The sale of a half interest in the Metropolitan Art Gallery of Lawson & Company to Clarence W. Wentworth was reported early in August of 1888. Lawson & Wentworth offered the finest Cabinets in the City for $2.00 per dozen. The gallery was on the southeast corner of Washington Avenue and Allegan Street. In the fall of 1889 Cheney & Lawson advertised in a Michigan Agricultural College newsletter: "WILL IT PAY to give $3.00 per dozen for Cabinet Photographs, when we Positively Guarantee just as good for $2.00 as can be had in the city of Lansing. Special rates to all connected with the M. A. C. We solicit a trial, which will be Free of Charge if not Perfectly Satisfactory. Cheney & Lawson." Benjamin was married for the second time about 1906 to a 34-year-old miss named Josephine who was born in Pennsylvania. By 1920 he was married to Alice, who was born in Illinois to parents from Pennsylvania in 1867.

Norman was born February 3, 1857, near Ottawa, Ontario, fourth of the seven children of Andrew and Elizabeth (Bowen) Lawson. His first vocation was photography, followed by some experience in a wholesale dry goods house. In 1883 he offered "PHOTOGRAPHS. 1 doz. Cabinets, $3.00. 1 doz. Cards, $2.00.... OLD PICTURES Copied and Enlarged. Work above the average in quality, below in price.... VIEWS OF MUSKEGON. Send for Catalogue. Lawson's Art Studio ...". He attended the fourth annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Milwaukee in August of 1883. "NORMAN B. LAWSON, Photographer and Publisher of STEREOSCOPIC VIEWS Of every Mill, Prominent Building and Place of Interest in Muskegon. Leave orders for special views...." was printed on the backs of his stereographs, which included views of logging operations and political parades and were numbered on their negatives up to 182. "LAWSON'S 1884 PHOTOGRAPHS...." or "LAWSON'S 1885 PHOTOGRAPHS...." was printed on some of his card and cabinet mounts. Miss Adele Vestey, daughter of a Muskegon physician, and Norman were married in 1885. She was born in Wisconsin to a Canadian mother, and evidently never had children. Norman advertised in 1889: "ALL PHOTOGRAPHS made by the INSTANTANEOUS PROCESS.... LAWSON Makes PHOTOGRAPHS in Private Residences At Night. Telephone Order to Studio. 35, 37, 39 & 41 Mason's Block." He spent some time in Detroit as well as in Chicago in the 1890s before returning to Muskegon. He advertised nationally early in 1905: "FOR SALE - Gallery, best stand in Muskegon; steam heat; rent $20; good light; price $600; have two galleries and only want one. Apply N. B. Lawson, Muskegon, Mich." Norman was mayor of Muskegon in 1905 and 1906; elected on the Democratic ticket in a traditionally Republican community. His administration was remembered as progressive, economical and far-sighted. He apparently was very successful in the real estate and insurance business.

The Detroit branch of N. Lazarnick & Company was opened in March of 1910 in the E. S. George Building with Milton B. Kolb as manager. Kolb remained into 1911 before moving to New York. Frederick E. Cook was employed as a photographer in 1911 and 1913. Charles W. Millis was manager of the Detroit branch in 1912 and 1913.

Nathan Lazarnick was born in western Russia on September 7, 1879, and brought as an infant to New York. He studied art at Cooper Union and for three years was apprenticed to a photographer. He became a free-lance photographer for the New York newspapers and Harper's Weekly, covering general news but concentrating more and more upon automobiles. He photographed the first automobile show at Madison Square Garden and every subsequent national show, as well as the automobile show at the Paris World's Fair in 1900. He was Pathfinder Photographer on most of the Glidden tours and for the National Highway between New York and Atlanta. Shortly after he opened his Detroit branch, he established representation in Cleveland and Indianapolis. He and Spooner & Wells were the only firms specializing in automotive photography that began early in the century and survived into the 1920s, when they were the only ones allowed to take commercial photos of the national auto shows and exhibits. Nathan bought out Spooner & Wells late in 1925, making him the owner of some 500,000 automotive negatives. Nathan Lazarnick died on January 20, 1955. Some 2000 of his negatives are held by the International Museum of Photography in Rochester, New York, and over 100,000 are in the National Automotive History Collection of the Detroit Public Library.

Harry was born at Lansing in May of 1882, the younger son of Philo C. and Angelina Triphena (Trevallee) Leavenworth. His brother Fred was born in May of 1878. Ella C. Beebe was born in Ohio on November 10, 1883, second of the six children of Alby J. and Dora Beebe. She married Harry about 1905, and their daughter Crystal was born in Lansing early in 1908. For some reason, in 1930 Harry was living next door to his wife and daughter. Ella seems to have been a widow when she died in January of 1974 at Newaygo, Michigan.

Mildred was born in Michigan in April of 1882, the only child of Robert R. and Carrie Robinson. Something happened to Carrie, and Robert married Mrs. Anna Bell about 1890. Mildred ended up with a step-sister Lila born in August of 1883, a half-sister Alice born in April of 1891, and a half-brother Robert born in January of 1893. Mildred married Russell C. Leavenworth in 1903, and she gave birth to Laura in 1904. She wrote a card to a friend in Ionia in August of 1905: "Dear Lizzie, - This is a picture of our gallery and home in Boyne. We live in the back part.... This is R. C. in front and Laura and I are in the back ground. From your old friend, Mildred." Like Russell, Mildred was described in 1920 as a photographer operating a studio on her own account, so she probably played a substantial part in Russell's photographic business. She married again in 1938 at Sarasota, Florida.

Russell was born in Michigan to parents from New York on July 20, 1880, the only son of Eugene and Emma Leavenworth. His sister Mildred was born in April of 1892. Russell became a tall man with brown eyes and dark hair. Mildred Robinson was born in Michigan in 1882, and married Russell in 1903. Their daughter Laura was born in 1904. "BIRDSEYE VIEW BOYNE CITY, MICH. Compliments of Leavenworth's Photographic Studio. Copying, Viewing, Enlarging, Picture Framing, Fine Photographs a Specialty. One door north 'Citizen' office." was printed on the back of the 2¾ by 7 inch mount of a 1¼ by 5½ panorama nicely made from three negatives. "Johannesburg Mfg. Co., Photo by Leavenworth, Boyne City, Mich." was lettered on the negative of a 6 by 36 inch panorama of a mill and several 15 foot high stacks of pine logs. Russell advertised his ground floor studio, picture framing and amateur supplies from 1906 through 1911. His panoramic photographs of industries at Newberry were dated 1914 from Boyne City. Included among the post card photographs which he produced from Boyne City were logging scenes, the Bank Block ruins after the fire in February of 1908, a train wreck on the G R & I RR near Mancelona in 1914, the burning of a large mill in June of 1918, and a post mortem portrait of a young girl. Russell moved to Lansing at the behest of local businessmen who saw a need for a professional commercial photographer there. In addition to advertising and industrial photographs, he made news photos for the State Journal, the news services and the Detroit newspapers at $2.50 per photo. "Arbaugh's Pic-nic, Pine Lake, Aug. 24, 1921. Photo by R. C. Leavenworth, 1315 Mich. Ave., Lansing, Mich." was lettered on the negative of a 6 by 38 inch panorama of 70 adults and a few children in front of some trees. Russell began giving simple photographic assignments to Laura's boyfriend Hiram Marple in 1923, and after they were married in 1924, Hiram was taken into his father-in-law's business. Beginning in 1925, for many years Leavenworth had a contract to photograph all the new Oldsmobiles, often from clay models. For Leavenworth Photographic, Hiram photographed in 1927 the dynamited school at Bath, Michigan, and in 1934 the fire which destroyed the Kerns Hotel in Lansing. The firm used a circuit camera extensively for group pictures, took many photographs of celebrities who visited Lansing, and made many aerial photographs from the plane of Art Davis. Roger Boettcher, owner of Leavenworth Photography, donated about 200,000 Leavenworth negatives pertaining to the twentieth century history of Lansing to the Archives of Michigan in 2007.

Loneta was born at Montrose, Michigan, to a mother from Minnesota on August 12, 1899, third of the seven children of George Rossman Leavitt and Ida May (Chaffee) Leavitt. Alonzo Denton was the senior partner in Denton & Leavitt, who were classified as photo enlargers by one source. Charles Anthony Phillips was born about 1900 at Croydon, England, and he lived at Vancouver from 1910 until 1922. He married Loneta about 1923 and two of their children were born at Flint: Gladys about 1925, and Robert about 1929. They moved to Vancouver in June of 1930, and their children Donald and Lonita were born in British Columbia. Loneta died at Vancouver on January 27, 1978.

| Albert was born at Lansing, Michigan, to parents from New York in December of 1844, last of the five children of John and Elizabeth (Robison) LeClear, and brother of the James M. LeClear profiled below. He first enlisted in 1861 as an 18-year-old three months man. Back in Ohio after the expiration of this enlistment, he raised and drilled a company but declined a lieutenantcy when they were mustered into service. Instead, he enlisted on September 9, 1861, as a private and first gunner of the six-gun Battery C of the First Ohio Light Artillery. Byron LeClear enlisted as a private in the same unit on the same day, and they were mustered into service on October 8, 1861. The battery participated in battles at Mill Springs, Kentucky, in January of 1862, at Corinth, Mississippi, in April and May of 1862, and at Chickamauga, Georgia, in the fall of 1863. On September 20, the second day of the Battle of Chickamauga, a bullet wounded Albert's right wrist. A few hours later another bullet hit his left leg, but he continued to man his position. About four o'clock in the afternoon a third bullet tore a big hole in the top of his scalp. The battery was overrun by the rebels, and nearly every horse and man in it was killed or wounded. Albert lay on the field and was found barely alive when the dead were being buried. He was paroled and sent through the lines by the rebels, to be operated upon and then to lay in an army hospital for many months. Byron LeClear died at his home in Ashtabula County, Ohio, on January 6, 1864. Albert was discharged at Columbus, Ohio, on a Surgeon's Certificate of Disability on January 30, 1864. He could do no manual labor for many months, and never again knew a day that was free of pain. He entered his brother's gallery at Batavia, New York, and learned the business. Mary Jennie McCann was born in Ireland about 1843, eldest of the five known children of Robert and Ruth McCann. She came to America with her parents about 1848, and by 1860 they were living in Batavia, New York. She married Albert at Batavia on December 29, 1864. Some cartes de visite with two cent revenue stamps were "From LeClear's New York Fine Art Gallery, Ann Arbor, Mich. Enlarging, India Ink work and Coloring done in the best style, and on short notice. The neatest and best work in every department of Photography done at this department. All Negatives Registered. Duplicates furnished at all times." The gallery of LeClear & Robison was opposite the Firemen's Hall in Ann Arbor, and they paid particular attention to copying and enlarging old Daguerreotypes and Ambrotypes. F. W. Bacon and W. F. Cornell were the other principals of Bacon & Company in Rochester, New York. James M. LeClear was the other brother at Jackson in 1882. Albert advertised nationally in March of 1884: "Wanted a strictly first-class Retoucher. Lady preferred. A. A. LeClear & Co., Jackson, Mich." He employed Miss Anna Robison as a clerk at Jackson in 1887. His Grand Rapids employees included clerk Miss Flora L. Barber in 1888; and artist Miss Delia O'Brien, retoucher Miss Mamie F. Gilbert and apprentice Hiram H. Jones in 1889. Something happened to Mary, and on January 1, 1891, Albert married Julia Ann Neal. Julia was born to English parents at Port Hope, Ontario, on May 27, 1858, and she gave birth at Detroit to Ethelgeen on June 23, 1892. On September 16, 1920, Ethelgeen married Peter Allen Dykhuizen, who was a Grand | 8         |     |

Rapids photographer in the 1920s and 1930s. The printing on some cabinet mounts was modified to read: "LeClear, East Grand Circus Park, Detroit, and Allen Bennett Block, Jackson, Mich." Witherell Street was the eastern boundary of Grand Circus Park. Albert's Detroit employees included retoucher Miss Hettie L. Anthony and photo printer Frederick J. Neal in 1891; and apprentice Forbes C. Welsh in 1892. LeClear & Major employed Hettie Anthony as a clerk in 1893 and as a retoucher in 1894, and clerk Daisy Robison and photo printer Uriah Welsh in 1894. The reopening of Albert's Benton Harbor studio was reported early in 1902. The opening of a fine studio at Grand Rapids, in connection with Forbes C. Welch of Detroit, was projected late in 1902. They were to spend four thousand dollars in furnishing and equipping it with the most improved apparatus. The studio opening was reported early in 1903, with no mention of a partner. From 1904 through 1906 Albert was the president of the National School of Photography at 103 Monroe Street, which was the address of his Grand Rapids studio. He was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905. His studio on Crescent probably did not change location between 1911 and 1912, for most Grand Rapids addresses were revised at that time. He was a nationally recognized artist, and his oil portrait of Millard Fillmore is in the collection of the Smithsonian Institution. Albert died at Grand Rapids on August 10, 1919, and burial took place at Jackson. Mrs. Julia A. LeClear, Albert's widow, was a professional artist at Grand Rapids from 1922 until 1928, and a professional photographer there from 1929 through 1936. From 1932 on she had her son-in-law P. Allen Dykhuisen as a photographic partner.

Frank was born at Pontiac, Michigan, on May 17, 1866, second of the five children of photographer James M. LeClear and Susan Cate (Boswell) LeClear. He obtained a degree in mining engineering before he went to work in his father's Jackson gallery. Her father emigrated from England and Anne Rebecca Metherell was born to an Irish mother in London, Ontario, on July 17, 1867, last of the three daughters of John and Mary Ann Metherell. She came to the United States in 1886, and she married Frank on December 24, 1887. Their sons were born in Michigan: Frank at Jackson on January 8, 1889, Ralph at Grand Rapids on June 28, 1891, Earl at Grand Rapids on April 28, 1894, and Harold at Detroit on June 30, 1895. Frank's Jackson employees included retouchers Bertha Hannaford and Miss Alice Reeder in 1888, and retoucher Miss Nettie Johnson in 1890, which was about the time that his father helped out as a portrait artist. His father continued to work in Frank's Grand Rapids studio as a photographer in 1890 and 1891. Other Grand Rapids employees were retouchers Cora Colby and Florence E. West, developer Hiram H. Jones and clerk Etta M. Wiborn in 1890; and retoucher Alice Reeder and photo printer Edward McDermant in 1891. Though he had a wife and two children at the time, Frank was planning an elopement with a nineteen-year-old widow, Mrs. Averill, who was the ward of the Michigan Trust Company. He had been warned to leave the lady alone by her mother, by his own father, mother and wife, by the superintendent of police and by representatives of the trust company, but declared that as long as Mrs. Averill was willing it was nobody else's business. Harmon Cowens took the matter personally, and gave Frank a severe thrashing. On January 31, 1893, a police court jury decided that the thrashing was justified, and acquitted Cowens of assault charges. Mrs. Averill returned to her mother. James M. LeClear helped Frank start the LeClear Photo Company in Lansing, then almost immediately concentrated his efforts at Jackson. Frank's brother, Harry W. LeClear, was associated with the Lansing company in 1898, but after that Frank was the sole proprietor. He advertised in an 1897 Lansing High School publication: "LeCLEAR makes Photographs that are Photographs. He Made the Class of '97 Work...." He advertised again in 1900: "Our Photograph Work has a Reputation that Extends over Michigan! We Make the Picture to Suit the Customer. The LeCLEAR GALLERY, Top Floor Hollister Blk. Take the Elevator at Allegan Street Entrance. Everything Pertaining to Photography; Platinums, Porcelain and Water Colors a Specialty." Frank's Lansing employees included retouchers Louise Huizinga and Edythe Strang in 1904. Frank was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905. A photo mailed in January of 1911 had this printed on its post card back: "The picture, of which this is only a small part, shows clearly the faces of over 200 men, and is about four feet long. Send us $1.50 by Feb. 1st, and you will get the big picture by the 10th. Taken in front of Ag. Bldg. M. A. C., Jan 12th. Address LeCLEAR PHOTO CO., 508 Hollister Block, Lansing, Mich...." Frank managed both the Lansing and the Jackson studios of the LeClear Photo Company for a while, but John E. Bayliss was manager of the Jackson studio from 1912 through 1927. By 1930 Frank had sold the Jackson studio to Bayliss, who continued to call it the LeClear Photo Company. Frank was succeeded at Lansing by his son Ralph, who was in turn succeeded by Frank's grandsons, Royden "Skip" LeClear and Frank B. LeClear III.

| Grace was born in Michigan to a mother from New York on June 1, 1877, the daughter of the photographer James M. and Susan Cate (Boswell) LeClear. Her two older brothers both were photographers, and she had a younger brother. Her only sister died when Grace was three months old. According to family sources, Grace LeClear was part owner of the LeClear Photo Company in Jackson following the 1914 death of her father. She was identified as the manager in 1920 and as the bookkeeper in 1930. She was boarding with her cousins, Endora V. and Daisy N. Robison, in 1920. Grace and her photographic partner or manager Pete Bayliss never married, but scandalized the city by openly living together. They later moved to Albion. Grace died at Jackson on April 10, 1934. |           | 1 414 22 1122 4 |

| Harry was born at Jackson on August 7, 1871, and as the son of James M. LeClear, he grew up in photography. He attended the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, leaving in 1890. He roomed in Lansing with the family of Frank B. LeClear, his brother and his associate in the LeClear Photo Company. Harry probably was the proprietor of a Waterloo studio in 1900, but the census report does not substantiate this. Hester Ann Berry was born in New York State on August 20, 1884, fourth of the five children of Daniel and Mary Berry. She married Harry at Waterloo on October 28, 1917, and their daughter Mary was born about 1921. Harry died at Waterloo on November 22, 1939. |           | 3 m2 LL 11 31 31 3 |

James was born in February of 1837 on a farm near Batavia, New York. Susan Cate Boswell was born in the same state a year or two later to English parents, and she married James about 1862. Their daughter Hattie May was born at Batavia, New York, on August 31, 1863, and died at Jackson on September 4, 1877. Their other children were born in Michigan: Frank on May 17, 1866, Harry on August 7, 1871, Grace on June 1, 1877, and James on June 2, 1884. James started out as a rural portrait painter that took photographs of his patrons from which he could do the basic work, and then have the patron back for a relatively brief sitting while the finishing touches were made to the portrait. People began wanting to buy the photograph as well as the painted portrait, and then some wanted to have only photographs made. He soon moved into Batavia. "J. M. LeCLARE & Company, NEW YORK FINE ART GALLERY, Pontiac, Mich." was printed on the back of some cartes de visite. When this gallery opened in July of 1866 in Mrs. Phelps' Building over L. P. Durkee's jewelry store, a local newspaper reported that "He takes a new style of picture called Porcelain Type, none of which, we believe, has ever been produced here." J. M. LeClear & Company received premiums for both the best and the second best lots of photographs in oil at the Oakland County Fair in October of 1867. A label stating: "FROM LE CLEAR'S PHOTOGRAPHIC PALACE, 244 Main St., Jackson, Mich." was pasted inside cases behind the daguerreotypes they held. James left Pontiac to establish his Jackson gallery, but reopened the Pontiac gallery in December of 1869 with William H. Robison as operator and advertising the use of the Sarony Posing Apparatus with which he had experience at Jackson "From J. M. LeClear & Co's Excelsior Gallery, Pontiac, Mich., and J. M. LeClear's Photographic Palace, 244, Jackson, Mich." was printed on some cartes de visite. J. M. LeClear & Company was succeeded in Pontiac about 1874 by William Boswell. The NPA monogram of the National Photographic Association was printed on card photograph mounts from LeClear's Gallery in Jackson and others from LeClear & Robison. In 1881 James had a studio designed and incorporated into the Allen Bennett Block as it was being constructed on Jackson's Main Street. He and his brother Albert managed the new gallery together and then alternately until 1887, when James took over. He traded his Jackson flouring mill in 1885 for a 400-acre farm near Stockbridge, and sold the Jackson studio to Adolph A. Jankowsky about 1890. Harry W. LeClear accompanied his father to Grand Rapids as a photographer, became his partner for a while, and then reverted to the photographer status. Other Grand Rapids employees were artist Miss Ada J. Hanford in 1892 and 1893, photo printer Mrs. Mary A. Bates in 1893, and retoucher Mrs. Alice DeYoung in 1895. James returned to Jackson and opened a studio in the new Carter Building in 1896. He brought in his son Frank to take over the management of this studio in 1910. James was 77 years old when he died at Jackson on March 26, 1914. Interment was in Mount Evergreen Cemetery at Jackson. The way Albert, Frank, Harry and James LeClear followed each other around, traded galleries, formed and dissolved partnerships and used ambiguous imprints prevents accurate attribution of many photographs.

Frank B. LeClear and Harry W. LeClear were partners in the LeClear Photo Company in 1898. After that, Frank seems to have been the sole proprietor in both Lansing and Jackson, though his sister Grace had a financial interest in the Jackson studio. He initially managed the Jackson studio, but from 1912 through 1927 it was managed by John E. Bayliss. By 1930, Bayliss had purchased the Jackson studio and was sole proprietor.

His paternal grandparents were Mexican and Jason was born on May 14, 1892, at Ashville, North Carolina, fourth of the eleven children of Joseph and Celia A. Ledford, who moved to Lenawee County in 1901. He became tall and slender with dark blue eyes and dark brown hair, and he enlisted as a private in the United States Army on December 13, 1912. He served in the Quarter Master Corps and/or an artillery unit until he was honorably discharged on February 6, 1915. He then purchased a 29-acre farm in Palmyra Township south of Engle Road near its intersection with Rau Highway, six miles southeast of Adrian. Maud was born in Michigan in 1898, and she married Jason when she was seventeen. She gave birth to Lenore in July of 1916, to William in April of 1918, to Lorraine in 1921 or early in 1922, and to Norman in August of 1929. Jason died at San Francisco on May 15, 1962.

His father emigrated from England and George was born in Grand Rapids on August 25, 1890, the only son of Thomas and Pearl Ledward. His sister Pearl was born in July of 1888, and she became a school teacher. George matured into a tall man with gray eyes and black hair. He was twenty three when he married Lottie, and their daughter Violet was born in 1915. The Ledward Photo Shop offered commercial photography and finishing for amateurs. George died in Michigan in February of 1963.

Her parents were natives of New York State and Lottie was born there in 1883 or 1884. She was twenty nine years old when she married George in 1913, and she gave birth to Violet in September of 1915. Both Lottie and George were enumerated as being in the photo gallery on their own account in 1920, so Lottie seems to have had a proprietary interest in the shop and probably contributed significantly to George's photographic business.

His father emigrated from England and James was born in Pennsylvania to a Scotch mother in December of 1839. 4 2
 His first wife, Emily L. (Downer) Leech, died on January 10, 1863, just eight days after giving birth to their son Frank 2 who survived. James enlisted at Jackson in Company K of the 20th Michigan Infantry on September 5, 1864. He 2 3 joined his regiment on October 5 at Peeble's Farm near Petersburg, Virginia. The 20th had sustained heavy casualties 3 during the advance on Petersburg in May and June and in assaults upon the defenses of Petersburg in July, and lost 48 3 percent of those who went into the Battle of the Crater on July 30. Only 80 men of the regiment could be mustered for 3 duty early in August. They remained at Peeble's Farm through November of 1864, sustaining little loss during a 3 reconnaissance in force on the Boydton Plank Road on October 4 and in the battle of Hatcher's Run on October 27 3 and 28. At the end of November the 20th occupied "Battery Nine" on the City Point Railroad. Trees were felled to 3 form a slashing to retard the advance of the enemy against this position, and James injured his back while lifting the 3 2 butts of these trees. The injury was aggravated by rheumatism brought on by the exposure incident to army life. From 2 3
 "Battery Nine" the regiment rendered conspicuous and gallant service against the Confederates who assaulted and 3 captured Fort Stedman on March 25, 1865, and engaged the enemy to their front while other forces attacked Fort 3 Mahone on April 1 and 2. Before daylight on April 3 the 20th was third in the column which entered Petersburg to 3 secure the surrender of the city. After a few days as Provost Guard they joined the pursuit of Lee's army. Following the 3
 Confederate surrender they marched rapidly to City Point, traveled to Washington by boat, and took part in the great 3 review on May 23, 1865. With the regiment, James was mustered out on May 30 near Washington, returned to 3 2
 Michigan and was demobilized on June 9, 1865. He was married for the second time at Manchester to 18-year-old 3 2
 Cordelia J. Downer, who gave birth to Edith on July 25, 1866, to Charles on February 22, 1871, to Roy on July 5, 2
 1873, to Arlie in 1877 or early in 1878, and to Inez on February 16, 1880. Arlie died as child. In 1887 James was 4 2
 5 feet 5 ½ inches tall with a fair complexion, dark hair and blue eyes. Cordelia died at Paw Paw on July 5, 1905. James 2 lived there alone until his death from apoplexy on September 5, 1910, following an illness of three weeks. His body 2 was returned to Chelsea for burial. 2

His father emigrated from France and William was born in Michigan to an Irish mother on October 24, 1875, second of the three sons of John and Mary Ann Leisaw. He became an average sized man with gray eyes and black hair. Ella was born here in October of 1871, she married William about 1896, and they never had children. William's studio was in the brick building next to the railroad across from the freight office on Pine Street. He photographed Indian Dave, a Chippewa who was present at the signing of the Treaty of Saginaw in 1819 and who frequently visited Columbiaville prior to his death in 1909 at the age of 106. "W. J. Leisaw, Columbiaville, Mich." was printed on the face of stereo views with a professional look, including one of the interior of a factory, probably the Columbiaville Woolen Mill. William was succeeded in Columbiaville by Albert L. Vermilya in 1908. 'Billy' Leisaw drove in Indianapolis 500 mile races in 1912 and 1913 with his younger brother Bob riding as mechanic. His Marquette-Buick finished 72 laps in 1912 before a leaking carburetor caused a fire in the engine compartment. The Amel racer he drove in 1913 went 148 laps before a connecting rod broke. William sold Liberty, Hudson and Essex automobiles for major distributors in Detroit before he affiliated with the Packard Motor Car Company about 1925.

His father emigrated from Ireland and Edgar was born at Annan, Ontario, on October 4, 1875, the son of Charles and Margaret (Cinnamon) Lemon. He had at least three older half-sisters named Lemon. His father was naturalized while Edgar was a minor, providing the son with United States citizenship. Edgar probably joined Company G of the Fifth Infantry Regiment of the Michigan National Guard when it was organized at Sault Ste. Marie in 1896. He was a sergeant when it became Company G of the 34th Michigan Infantry Regiment and entered federal service at Island Lake on April 26, 1898. Company G sailed for Cuba from Newport News in June of 1898, and saw service in the field before and after the surrender of Santiago. Their losses were much greater from the ravages of typhoid fever, malaria and yellow fever than from enemy gunfire. When the Spanish-American War was over, Ed was discharged from the army at Sault Ste. Marie on November 21, 1898, and resumed his position with Bell. His partnership with Le Baron Lockwood was reported early in 1900, and the opening of a new studio in Sault Ste. Marie by Lockwood & Lemon was reported in the autumn of the same year. Their place of business was in the Greeley Block in 1902 and 1905, and at 301 Ashmun Street in 1908. "MARQUETTE B.B.C. 1909. - ED.C.LEMON, PHOTO." was lettered on the negative of a composite post card photograph with a standing figure of each player positioned appropriately about a geometric diamond, including two pitchers, a batter and a mascot dog. Edgar and Merta, born in Michigan in 1886, were married about 1910, and she participated in his photographic business. The Harlow Block was situated at the corner of Front and Washington Streets in Marquette. In 1920 Edgar offered portrait and commercial photography, amateur finishing, Kodaks and supplies. In 1923 he was 5 feet 7 inches tall with a dark complexion, dark blue eyes and brown-grey hair, and weighed 134 pounds. By October of 1937 he was half an inch shorter, had grey hair, weighed 151 pounds, and his income from photography averaged between $175.00 and $200.00 per month.

Charles was born in New York State in 1831, and began the practice of photography in 1848. His wife's parents 3 4 emigrated from England, and Mary was born in Ontario in 1841. She married Charles about 1860, and their daughter 4
Alvaretta was born in Ontario in the summer of 1861. Their daughter Frances was born in Michigan two years later. 4
Some cartes de visite from Leonard's National Gallery in the National Hall at Pontiac had two cent revenue stamps t affixed to them, and others did not. They offered "... Pictures copied and enlarged fom 7 x 9 to 17 x 22." Charles was t succeeded in the National Hall gallery by the Phillips Brothers about 1871. His early card imprints from 231 Jefferson t Avenue in Detroit note that he was "... Successor to G. Grelling." The address on later card mounts was 229 & 231 t Jefferson Avenue, corner Randolph. Still later imprints in the same format give the address as 227 Jefferson Avenue, t corner Randolph. This was described as a modern brick building with a front elevation of four stories where Charles t 3 had a perfectly lighted art gallery and produced a superior class of work in crayon, water-color, and especially oils. 3
Excellent likenesses of the Honorable James F. Joy, the Honorable Zach Chandler and all the supreme court justices of 3
Michigan adorned his reception room along with paintings of other prominent citizens. Some of his patrons for cabinet 3 t portraits at 229 & 231 Jefferson Avenue were African-American. Charles employed George L. Salterbach as a t d retoucher from 1883 through 1885, and had galleries in both Detroit and Lansing according to the gazetteer for 1885. d m
He lived in Detroit at this time, and employed photographer Ward B. Flower in the Lansing gallery. "Leonard's m L Metropolitan Art Gallery, Lansing, Mich." was printed on both card and cabinet mounts. Charles was succeeded by t Daniel W. Smith in the Metropolitan Art Gallery. Some of his Romeo cabinet photographs included a stereo viewer t and views on a table beside the standing person. When Charles left Romeo for Detroit, he may have sold his t photographic equipment and accessories to Harrison L. Burgess, who operated in Romeo before moving to Albion. t m
The same backdrop appeared in Romeo cabinet photographs by Leonard and in Albion cabinet photos by Burgess. t
Charles was 59 years old when he died at Detroit on August 10, 1890, after a lingering illness. His widow, Mrs. Mary 5 d

Ruliff was born in Michigan on September 23, 1884, first of the three children of Mason Howell Leonard and Nina M. (Pratt) Leonard, and their only son. Pena was born in Michigan to a Canadian mother on July 1, 1886, fourth of the five children of William A. and Martha (Vickers) McNair. She married Ruliff about 1915, and they never had children. The Leonard Studio was on Main Street in 1915, making a specialty of children and views. Ruliff also made post card photographs of Morenci, identifying his work by lettering "Leonard" along the bottom near the right edge of the negative. Ruliff died at Santa Clara, California, on May 30, 1958, and Pena died there on September 30, 1959.

| The surname in the some records was LeRoy, Leroy or Leray rather than LeRay. Charles was born in New York State to natives of New York on June 27, 1867, last of the five children of Joseph and Roxana LeRay, and their only son. The family moved in 1873 to Van Buren Township in Wayne County, Michigan, and in 1875 to Belleville where his father opened a wagon shop. The business was expanded in 1878 by his father taking on a partner, and in 1886 Charles purchased the partner's interest. He learned the photographer's trade in 1887, and fitted up rooms furnished with all the latest improvements. Grace was born in Michigan to Canadian parents in September of 1874, and she married Charles late in 1893 or early in 1894. Their children were born in Michigan: May in May of 1897, Cora in March of 1899, Blanche in May of 1900, a son named Cyler about 1902, and Walter in 1907 or early in 1908. Blanche died as a child. | Charles was born in New York State in July of 1850, the son of Nathan and Caroline Lewis, both natives of New York. Mariette was born in Michigan about 1849 to parents born in Michigan. She and Charles married while in their teens, and their daughter Cora was born in Michigan about 1867. One C. E. Lewis produced stereo views in the 1870s from Dover and Wolfboro, New Hampshire. Charles sold photographs for $1.00 per dozen in Flint, and only "C. E. Lewis, Photographer and Portrait Artist" was printed below the image on some cabinet mounts of this period. Charles was a widower when he married Bertha E. Price at Saint Thomas, Ontario, on March 13, 1884. Their son Charles was born in Wisconsin in December of 1885, and their daughter Bertha was born in Michigan in March of 1888. On June 28, 1893, Charles applied for a patent on a Photographic Printing Frame, and Patent No. 513,517 issued to him on January 30, 1894. "C. E. Lewis, St. Louis and Alma, Mich." was printed below the image on some cabinet mounts. He sold cabinet photographs for $1.50 per dozen at Caro. That he was erecting a gallery at Bad Axe was reported in the summer of 1899. Mrs. Bertha E. His father came from Ohio and David was born in Illinois to a mother from Pennsylvania on July 30, 1875, first of the three children of Chalkley and Rebecca (Brown) Lewis. He was their only son, and he matured as a medium sized man with brown eyes and black hair. David was sharing a Ganges residence with his sister Mary in 1900. He advertised in 1906: "Lewis' Studio, Opera House Block, the Best Equipped Gallery in Southwest Michigan. Strictly High Class Portrait PHOTOGRAPHY, Interior and Exterior Views, Beach and Open air Groups, When and Where You Want them. We have Unequaled Facilities for Everything in Commercial Photography. GET OUR PRICES...." In addition to the Opera House Block location, he was listed in 1906 as a South Haven photographer working from his residence at 417 Phoenix Street. "PHOTO BY D. J. LEWIS" was printed on the post card back of a moody winter harbor scene at South Haven, but most Lewis post card photographs produced at South Haven had distinctive numbered captions press printed on the face of the card. Numbers ranged from 25 to 945, and locales included Bear Lake, Christies' Lake, Covert, Eagle Lake, Grand Junction, Lawrence, Paw Paw, Reynolds Lake, Silver Lake and South Haven. Some of these were copyrighted by D. J. Lewis in 1907 or 1908. "The Art Post Card Company, So. Haven, Mich." was printed on the backs of others taken at Eagle Lake and of Vice President Fairbanks and Governor Warner at Albion on September 14, 1907. David was boarding in Bangor with the family of Albert C. Cross in 1910. Captions and "Photo by Lewis, Bangor" or just "Lewis" were lettered on the negatives of postal photos of train wrecks and cyclone damage in 1910 near Bangor, a train wreck at Hartford, the Harbor Pageant in July of 1914 at Ludington, the crystal pool at Pokagon and the beach at Scott Lake. Ola H. Moulton was born in Michigan's Kent County in September of 1881, last of the five children of Roscoe C. and Mary M. (Ames) Moulton. Her father died when Ola was two years old, and her mother does not seem to have remarried. Ola married David at Bangor in 1911, and their daughter Annetta was born at Berea, Kentucky, on January 29, 1919.

Emerson was born to Canadian parents in August of 1844 in Dereham Township, Ontario, and was educated and variously employed locally until he moved to Ann Arbor in 1874. Jane was born in Scotland in May of 1844. She emigrated to Canada where she married Emerson about 1864, and their daughter Agnes and son Robert were born in Ontario between 1865 and 1869. Emerson learned photography from his wife, who was a practical artist, and he produced some stereoscopic views of Ann Arbor. He made the class pictures for graduates of the Homeopathic Medical Department of the University of Michigan in 1878, and for graduates of the Dental College in 1878 and 1879. "Photographed by LEWIS. The City Artist, First Floor over Express Office, Huron Street, Ann Arbor, Mich." was printed on the backs of some of his 1880 card photograph mounts. J. J. Gibson came from Alpena to become Emerson's partner. A national journal reported that Lewis & Gibson were fitting up a new gallery in Ann Arbor which they claimed would be the finest and best appointed in Michigan outside Detroit. A new post office had been built in Ann Arbor, and Lewis & Gibson occupied the former post office building in January of 1883. They contracted with Albert M. Harris of Detroit for the entire outfit, which included apparatus made by the American Optical Company. The resulting Art Store and Photographic Studio had "... Two Operating Rooms, and facilities for First Class Work, all on Ground Floor, together with a full line of Artists' Materials, Fine Steel Engravings, Gold, Oak, Plush, Walnut and Gilt Frames made to order, any size desired. Old Pictures may be sent by mail, Copied to any size, and safely returned. Orders for Artists' Materials, etc., by mail, solicited..." On the hard cover of a 6 ¼ by 3 ¾ booklet was printed: "LEWIS & GIBSON'S SOUVENIR OF ANN ARBOR UNIVERSITY." It was published and copyrighted by Adolph Witteman of New York, and the 33 views in the booklet were engraved from Lewis & Gibson photographs by Louis Glaser of Leipzig. Lewis & Gibson employed Francis D. Brooks, Frank L. Clark, Ralph A. Johnson and William G. Stockman as photographers in 1883. The opening of Emerson's gallery at St. Louis was reported in November of 1886, and only "Lewis, St. Louis, Mich." was printed below the image on some cabinet mounts. Jane was living in 1900 at San Luis Obispo with Emerson, who was a naturalized citizen of the United States and probably had been for many years. By 1910 Emerson was widowed, and he was maintaining his photographic business while sharing his home with a dozen boarders, so he must have employed some domestic help to provide for them.

| His father came from Ohio and Leslie was born at Cushing in Silver Creek Township of Cass County, Michigan, on August 14, 1892. He was last of the two children of Orin Preston Lewis and Elsie Eloise (Ridenour) Lewis, and his brother William was seventeen years older. Leslie was a photographer with his own studio in 1910. Dowagiac is situated at the intersection of four townships, and Silver Creek is the one to the northwest. A post card photograph of five men and a boy at ease in front of a tent was addressed to a man in Ohio with this message: "Dear Sir: Do you desire an exchange? I have 5x7 of landscapes, scenery, etc. Kindly send sample of your work, stating what you desire. Sincerely yours, Leslie O. Lewis, Photographer, Dowagiac, Mich." Margarite Sara Hare was born in Michigan in October of 1895, the daughter of Alvy and Frances Hare, who were natives of Michigan. She married Leslie about 1912, and their daughter Fern Louise was born in Michigan on January 14, 1914. Something happened to Margarite, and early in the 1920s Leslie married a lady named Rose. Her parents emigrated from Denmark, and Rose was born in Michigan about 1892. She and Leslie were living in the 1950s at Fremont, Michigan. - Andrew and his wife were born in Sweden, he in May of 1840 and Christina in February of 1847. They married there about 1868 and immigrated in 1871. Five of their children were born in Michigan: Charles in 1871 or early in 1872, Amelia and Augusta between 1874 and 1877, Edward in February of 1880, and Madeline in May of 1883. Their son August was born in Minnesota in August of 1886. Andrew's Ishpeming gallery was located on First Street in 1878, 1882 and 1884. Some of his card imprints included the words: "... Enlarging and Copying of Photographs and Tintypes in India Ink, Water Colors, Oil and Crayon. Rooms on First Street. ISHPEMING, MICHIGAN. Duplicates of this picture can be had at any time within two years." or "... Rooms on First Street, ISHPEMING, MICHIGAN. All portraits made by the Instantaneous Process. Negatives reserved and duplicates can be had at reduced price. Also Enlarging and Copying." His Cabinet mounts carried the same messages, plus "All kinds of Photographic Work guaranteed to be Good. Viewing of Residences, Etc., a Specialty...." For some reason, a monogram made up of the initials of Nels M. Nelson was used on three of Andrew's cabinet imprints. Only "Lidbergs Art Gallery, Ishpeming, Mich." was stamped on the back of some stereo views. This was printed on other stereo mounts: "A. LIDBERG's Art Gallery, Rooms on First Street, Ishpeming, Michigan. Stereoscopic Views of all places of prominence in the city of Ishpeming; Business Blocks, Streets, Hotels, Mines, Etc., always on hand and sold at a moderate price." He advertised in 1891: "Crayon and Ink Portraits: Best of work Guaranteed...." Andrew's middle son, Edward H. Lidberg, began working in the Redwing studio before graduating from high school. He and a partner continued the business when Andrew retired, and Edward went on to a successful career in photography and real estate.

J. Frank, as he usually was identified, was born in Indiana to natives of Indiana on August 29, 1887, first of the two sons of Orlando L. and Elsie A. (Nave) Linn. Emma was born in Michigan in 1887, and she married Frank about 1904. Their children were born in Michigan: Nancy in July of 1909, and Gerald in 1911. "LINN" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs of class rush activities at M.A.C. in 1912 and of the inauguration of Governor Ferris on January 1, 1913. He and his brother C. Otto Linn were partners in both the Linn Photo Finishing Company and the Linn Photo Company. One source called it the Linn Photo Company as early as 1916, and another located the Linn Photo Company at 107 ½ North Washington Avenue two years later. Frank was a slender commercial photographer with brown eyes and light hair in 1918, and was living with his wife and children in 1920. By 1930 he was divorced and rooming by himself in the home of an 88-year-old widow, while Emma and her children were living in another Lansing neighborhood.

Otto was born at Imlay City, Michigan, on August 24, 1890, eldest of the seven or more children of Herman and Tillie (Thrun) Lindsteadt. He used the surname Linstead in Michigan, and then the surname Lindstead later in his life. Otto was rooming in 1910 with the photographer Francis Harvey and his wife. Jean was born in New York State to a mother from Massachusetts about 1904. She married first when she was fifteen years old, and she married Otto in 1929 or early in 1930. Three bromide or chloride prints by Otto and two by Jean Benet Linstead of Pleasant Ridge were selected for the First Annual Michigan Exhibition of Pictorial Photography at the Detroit Institute of Arts in May of 1932. Something happened to Jean, and Otto married Lucia Savage in Cook County, Illinois on October 2, 1943. He died in Fresno County, California, on May 19, 1961.

Edward and his twin brother Alfred were born in Willow Creek Township, Illinois, on September 18, 1865, third and fourth of the seven children of Jonathan Fallis Linton and Eliza Jane (Sapp) Linton. One source indicated that he married Mayme Stansbury, but each census report enumerated Edward as single. His 22-year-old brother Paul was listed as a photographer in 1900, when he probably was working for Edward. The photographer at 1019 Mount Vernon in 1900 was identified as Edward Linden. Edward was living with his parents in 1910. He and his widowed father were living in 1920 with the family of his sister Rachel and her husband, Joseph A. Godown. Edward still was living with Rachel's family in 1930. He died at Columbus on June 26, 1939.

Paul was born in Michigan to a mother from New York on August 22, 1898, the only son of Justus and Edna Emily (Rose) Litchhult. His sister Genevieve was born on October 10, 1900. By 1910 his widowed mother was keeping house for the widowed post master of Hanover, and Paul was boarding on a farm about twenty miles northwest of Hanover. "Photo By Litchhult, Hanover, Mich." was penned on the post card back of a photograph made from a negative on which "Public School, Hanover, Mich." had been typed. The card was mailed in April of 1918. Paul became an average sized man with brown eyes and hair. Beulah was born in 1906 at Owosso, Michigan, the elder daughter of Earl and Lillian E. (Johnson) Palmer. She married Paul at Saginaw, Michigan, on December 11, 1925. By the time their daughter Faith Elaine Litchhult was born on September 2, 1930, Paul was back living with his mother. Faith died in 1931, and Beulah obtained a divorce. Her father emigrated from Germany and Zella was born in Antrim County, Michigan, on October 16, 1900, the daughter of Charles and Mary Olive (Maddocks) Rewald. She married a man named Greene and gave birth to two daughters, Fay and Frances. The girls came along when she married Paul on March 14, 1937. Paul died at Hanover on May 19, 1981, and Zella died at Spring Arbor, Michigan, on May 4, 1996.

Julia was born in Michigan to an English mother in June of 1871, the only child of James M. and Priscilla Winget. She was called Juliana as a child. She married Lamott W. Litle about 1896, and probably learned photography from him. Their son Albert was born at Flint in 1906. Julia was caring for Albert and providing for three boarders in 1910. She and Lamott were providing a home for Julia's widowed mother in 1930. Many of the records were for the surname Little.

His father came from New York and Jasper was born a few miles southeast of Battle Creek on December 8, 1873, last of the three children of Zacharias and Louisa Jane (Case) Little. Her father came from Wisconsin, her mother emigrated from England, and Maude R. Parker was born in Michigan in 1879 or 1880. She and Jasper married at Three Rivers on July 20, 1903, and had a son DeMotte and a daughter Beatrice born at Cleveland, Ohio, in 1906 and 1907, and a son Sheldon born in Michigan on April 6, 1910. Jasper worked his way through law school at Valparaiso, Indiana, and later graduated in chiropractic medicine at Chicago in 1912. After practicing chiropractic in Battle Creek for a time he turned to lecturing on health subjects, for which he became known across the country. Please see the entry for Toland for more information about the work of Toland & Little. They manufactured post card photographs of Battle Creek, Dowagiac, St. Johns and Three Rivers from negatives on which a local retailer was usually identified as the publisher. Little used three different series of numbers on his post card photos: "E. C." referred to the Eaton County Fair at Charlotte, "C.F." seems to have been related to the Calhoun County Fair at Marshall, and negatives given "No. 20" and the like were also taken at Marshall. Here are some examples of the lettering on his negatives: "I am a Pottawattamie Indian Baby C.F.-1 Copyrighted 1909 by J. A. Little" and "Pottawattamie Indian Village C.F.-3 Copyright - 1909 by J. A. Little" and "Beautiful Fair Lake, Calhoun County Fair Grounds, Marshall, Mich. C.F.-13" and "Fair Lake, a Beauty Spot. Calhoun Fair - Marshall, Mich. C.F.-17" and "Calhoun Fair. Marshall, Mich. C.F.-18" and "Waterfowl on Fair Lake. Calhoun Fair - Marshall, Mich. C.F.-20" and "Every One at Calhoun Fair - Marshall, Mich. C.F.-24" and "The Ponies at Calhoun Fair - Marshall, Mich. C. F.-25" and "No. E.C.-1 Arts & Crafts, Basket Weaving, Pottawattamie Indians. (Copyright - 1909 by J. A. Little)" and "Pottawattamie Indians - In Dance Costume No. E.C.-2 (Copyright - 1909 by J. A. Little)" and "Real Pottawattamie Indians No. E.C.-4 (Copyright - 1909 by J. A. Little)" and "E.C.-5 Pottawattamie Indians Having a Good Time (Copyright - 1909 by J. A. Little)" and "Pottawattamie Indians - Photo by J. A. Little No. 20." and "Pottawattamie Indians at Calhoun Fair, Marshall, Mich. No. 21." No. 20 was another view of women with their woven baskets, and No. 21 was of the same group as No. E.C.-2, taken just seconds apart. Several of these cards were used to advertise the 1910 Calhoun Fair, and most of them were probably sold at any fair with a Pottawattami Indian village as an attraction. "PHOTO POST CARDS, Little, Battle Creek, Mich" was stamped in green ink on the post card back of a photograph made from a negative on which had been lettered "- SANITARIUM - BATTLE CREEK, MICH. 308." The card was mailed in March of 1911. His partner in 1911 was Foster D. Miller, and they were post card manufacturers as well as photographers. After Maude's untimely death about 1926, Jasper's second marriage was to Mrs. Josephine Daniels Steck in 1928. At this time he was traveling four months of the year as a lecturer and spending the rest of his time in Florida. From the late 1930s until 1954 he processed Pacific sea kelp at Battle Creek and marketed the resulting tablets as a dietary supplement. Jasper was 82 years old when he died at his Battle Creek residence on March 14, 1956.

Julia was born in Michigan to parents from the Polish region of Austria in 1888 or early in 1889, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Marszalek. She married the photographer Wladimer (later Walter) Litynski in October of 1909, and seems to have participated significantly in his photographic business. She and Walter went their separate ways about 1920. Julia's partner in 1925 was Adam Szewczyk.

| Roman was born on October 13, 1896, into a Ruthenian family in the Galacia region of Austria, the birthplace of his father Peter Litynski. In company with his sister and brother-in-law, Roman left Bremen, Germany, on the S. S. George Washington on December 14, 1912. They arrived at the port of New York on December 24, 1912. He had yet to apply for American citizenship in 1918, when he was five feet nine inches tall and slender with brown eyes and hair, and considered himself to be working for his nearest relative, photographer Wladimer or Walter Litynski. One Roman Litynski died in Chicago, Illinois, on August 16, 1920. | 1 21 22 11 21 33 |     |

| Wladimer Enstachy Litynski was born in the Galacia region of Austria on December 21, 1885, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Petrer Litynski. He was listed as Ladislaus, Ladimer, Vladimir, Wladimer, Wladimir and Wlademar before the directories settled on Walter. Litynski & Jakubowski had studios at 1150 Chene Street, 399 East Canfield Avenue, 376 East Canfield Avenue and 1525 Michigan Avenue. Walter was president of this company, with George Ebling as vice president and Ladislaus Jakubowski as secretary-treasurer. The Litynski-Jakubowski Company had the same officers and operated only the 1525 Michigan Avenue studio in 1913. In 1914 they were using the studios at 376 East Canfield Avenue and at 1150 Chene Street as well, and in 1915 they moved one of the studios from 376 to 402 East Canfield Avenue. The Michigan State Gazetteer for 1917 still listed the Litynski-Jakubowski Company at 1150 Chene Street. In October of 1909 Walter married Julia Marszalek, who participated in his photographic business. He had applied for United States citizenship by 1918, when he was slim with brown eyes and black hair. Walter and Julia went their separate ways about 1920. Julia maintained the Chene Street studio, and Walter worked three years for Julius Somheil before taking over on a lease the Wyandotte studio recognized as one of the very finest in the state. Joseph S. Stypinski was Walter's partner in 1926 and 1927. Veronica was born in the Polish region of Austria on October 5, 1891, and she immigrated in 1900. She married Walter about 1927, and she was enumerated as a proprietor of the studio on Joseph Campau in 1930. Walter was living in Warren, Michigan, at the time of his death in April of 1969. His father emigrated from Ontario and William was born in Michigan in January of 1867, eldest of the eight children of Detroit financier William R. Livingstone and his wife Susan R. (Downie) Livingstone. He graduated from the University of Michigan with high honors in 1889. During the summer of 1897 he visited Zurich, Switzerland, and returned with the exclusive rights to use the Photochrom printing process in the United States. He founded the Photochrom Company and the Detroit Photographic Company, both later absorbed by the Detroit Publishing Company. He was a member of the Photographers Copyright League in 1901, and an associate member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905. His brother Robert B. Livingstone was a traveler for the Detroit Photographic Company in 1900, and a salesman for the Detroit Publishing Company in 1910 and 1920. William never married. He had been ill for a year and had submitted to an operation six weeks prior to his death on October 26, 1924, at the age of 57.

Harry was born at Bay City to a mother from Illinois on January 13, 1894, last of the four children of Orsamus Alphonso Lloyd and Mary Viola (Milligan) Lloyd. His father always was enumerated as a druggist. "STREET SCENE, TWINING, MICH. Photo by Harry B. Lloyd" was lettered on the negative of a photograph of several men in hats, coats and ties playing ball on a dirt business street. Both cyanotypes and silver prints were made from this negative on post card stock. Twining was forty miles north of Bay City on the Detroit & Mackinac Railway. Elsie Jean Willis was born in 1898 at Birmingham, England, youngest of the five children of George Thomas Willis and Kate (Waldron) Willis. She immigrated with her mother, and they arrived at Boston on June 17, 1914. Elsie married Harry about 1918 and their children were born in Detroit: Arlington on May 8, 1922, and June in February of 1927. Harry died in Detroit on October 4, 1952, and Elsie died in suburban Redford Township on May 19, 1962.

His father came from Ohio and Wesley was born in Michigan about 1864 to a mother from Delaware, last of the four surviving children of Andrew and Emma Loane. By 1870 Emma was the sole head of the family, and was relying on her twenty-year-old daughter Harriet as domestic help and on her fourteen-year-old son Byron as a farm laborer. His mother was living in Niles in 1900, but Wesley was not to be found. Katherine was born in Michigan to Irish parents in April of 1871, and she married Wesley about 1901. They were caring for a thirteen-year-old niece in 1910, and they never had children of their own. Katherine was working as a sewing machine operator in 1920. Wesley was not employed in 1930, when Katherine was managing a gasoline filling station and almost was enumerated as the head of the family.

His father came from Pennsylvania and Victor was born to a mother from New York at Toledo, Ohio, on February 27, 1880, fourth of the six children of Joseph and Adele Lober. He became five feet four and a half inches tall with brown eyes and dark brown hair. Victor enlisted in the army at Columbus, Ohio, on December 7, 1900, and served as a private in the 23rd United States Infantry until he was discharged on November 20, 1903. The Pontiac listing was for Victor Lobere. Victor enlisted in the regular army at Columbus, Ohio, on October 17, 1917, and from Columbus Barracks was assigned to the 328th Aero Squadron. He attended the School of Aerial Photography at Rochester, New York, from April 17 until September 28, 1918. He then was assigned to the Photographic Division of the 74th Aero Unit at Selfridge Field near Mount Clemens, Michigan, and promoted to corporal. Victor was honorably discharged from the army at Selfridge Field on January 14, 1919. Her father came from Ohio and Hope was born in Missouri to a mother from Kentucky in 1893 or early in 1894. She married first when she was eighteen, and she married Victor about 1923. They had no children. Victor was a patient in United States National Homes for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers: at Dayton, Ohio, in February and March of 1926 and again from June of 1926 until June of 1927, and at Danville, Illinois, in September and October of 1927. He was enumerated twice in the 1930 census: rooming in Columbus as a commercial photographer and at home in Newark working as a photographer for the Schreck Company. Victor was residing at Inglewood in Los Angeles County, California, at the time of his death on November 21, 1971.

Augustus was born in Indiana in 1859. The photographers and portrait artists of the Locke-Clute Company offered commercial photography, enlarging and copying. They produced a 13 by 9 ½ inch composite photograph of Detroit's Northwestern High School football champions in 1919, using individual portraits of 3 faculty members, 21 players, the student manager and the mascot. In 1910 and in 1920 Augustus was lodging with Edith P. Clute, the other principal of the Locke-Clute Company, and her mother. Edith continued the company as sole owner at 1443 Washington Boulevard until 1923 and at 512 Washington Arcade in 1924.

Will was born in Michigan to a Canadian mother on February 22, 1874, first of the three children of George and Permilla Locke. He became a short man with brown eyes and dark hair. Mary was born in Pennsylvania early in 1875, and she married Will about 1904. Early in 1899 Will was reported to be opening a gallery at Memphis, Tennessee, but it is more likely that he was only moving the sixteen miles from Capac to Memphis, Michigan. "Locke Photo" was marked on the negatives of postal photographs of Capac streets, schools and churches, and of a great bird's-eye view of a Main Street tug-of-war on July 4, 1916. On the negative of another post card photo, "Get your Photo taken at Wm. Locke Studio, Capac, Mich." was lettered on the side of a barn and "Photos and Picture Framing" was lettered along the side of a road. In 1916 William advertised: "... The latest in photography. Let us enlarge your pictures, either in black or colored work. ALL WORK GUARANTEED." Mrs. Mary C. Locke was sometimes known by her middle name, Carrie, and in 1930 she and Will were sharing their home with their twelve-year-old adopted son William and Will's 87-year-old widowed father, George Locke.

| Joseph was born in Connecticut to a mother from New York in March of 1861, the only son of Joseph R. and Ann E. Lockwood. His sisters Adelaid and Alida were born in Connecticut between 1856 and 1859. Louise was born in North Carolina to parents from South Carolina in November of 1865, and she married Joseph about 1883. Their children were born in Detroit: Louise in October of 1892, and Maurice in February of 1894. In 1887 and 1888 Joseph was general manager of an electric light company. In 1889 and 1890 he was the general manager of an electrical supply house. Between 1891 and 1893 he went from assistant electrical engineer to secretary of the Detroit Electrical Works. From 1894 until 1903 he was president of the Michigan Electric Company. In 1904 and 1905 Joseph was a sales agent for electrical machinery and supplies. By 1910 he had moved to Gulfport, Mississippi, where he was a manager of naval stores. | 1111 ddddd 11 |   |

Le Baron was born in Michigan to parents from New York in May of 1868, the only son of Charles and Josephine Lockwood. His sister Luella was three years older. They were living in 1880 with their widowed mother, who, like her departed husband, was a music teacher. The photographer was listed as Trot Lockwood in 1897. The origins of the nickname are indicated by this excerpt from an 1884 newspaper: "‘Trot’ Lockwood won the five mile race at the skating rink last Saturday evening. ‘Trot’ seems to possess skill and wind to make a good race on the polished floor." Jennie was born in Canada to a Scotch mother in December of 1866, and was brought to the United States in 1875. She married Le Baron in 1891 and their children were born in Michigan: Doris in May of 1892, George in May of 1895, Mary in 1904, and Josephine (later Ruth) in 1907. Adam J. Lothian had been a Sault St. Marie photographer for a couple of years before partnering with Le Baron as proprietors of the Bon-Ton Studio at 71 Portage Avenue. Edgar C. Lemon worked for photographer William J. Bell for a while before teaming up with Le Baron. The partnership of Lockwood & Lemon was reported early in 1900, and their opening of a new gallery at Sault Ste. Marie was reported in the autumn of the same year. Their studio was in the Greeley Block in 1902 and 1905, and at 301 Ashmun Street in 1908. "Amateur Champions ‘Soo’ High School - Photo by Lockwood & Lemon, Soo, Mich." was scribed into the negative of a post card photo of a group of young men with hockey sticks which was mailed in April of 1906. At this time their statements were headed: "LOCKWOOD & LEMON THE UP-TO-DATE Photographers. Views, Landscapes, Etc. Crayons, Pastels, Water Colors, Sepias. Orders taken for enlarged work from miniature to life size. New Greeley Block, Cor. Ashmun and Ridge Streets." Their son George and their daughters Mary and Ruth were sharing the Lockwood parental home in 1920. So was 23-year-old Bonita, who was enumerated as their daughter but had not been included in the census reports for 1900 and 1910. The two younger girls still were at home in 1930.

John was born at Ashprington in Devon, England, on September 14, 1879, first of the five children of John Henry Loder and Alice (Gunning) Loder. He became a tall stout man with brown eyes and hair, and came to the United States in 1901. He had married in England about 1900, and his son Edward was born in Michigan in 1902. John was a widower boarding alone with a family in 1910, but he and Edward were rooming together in 1920. John had declared his intention of qualifying for American citizenship by 1910, and was naturalized by 1930. John's photographic partner, George H. Perkins, continued as a Flint photographer until 1931 or longer. Blanche was born in Michigan about 1890, the daughter of Herbert J. and Mary F. (Golden) Eggleston. The children of her first marriage were born in Michigan: Alexander about 1913, and Dorothy about 1916. Blanche was married to John by 1930, when her children had taken his surname. John died at Riverside, California, on November 9, 1959.

His father and his maternal grandparents emigrated from Germany and Frank was born at Westphalia on October 23, 1889, sixth of the eight children of Franz X. and Elizabeth (Thome) Loeher. His mother died in 1895, and his father married Anna (Kasper) Fedewa about 1898. Anna brought along two step-sisters for Frank, and later provided him with three half-siblings. Frank became a slender man with brown eyes and hair. Though he was single in 1917, he had hopes that his work for the post office would exempt him from military service. Mary was born in Michigan to a German mother on May 16, 1895, eleventh of the eighteen children of Joseph B. and Theresa (Hufnagel) Miller. She married Frank at Pewamo, Michigan, on January 15, 1918. Their children were born in Michigan: Charles in October of 1918, the twins Thomas and Alice on March 23, 1922, and Bernadine in May of 1929. The twins both died as infants. Mary died on October 31, 1974, and Frank died in Cottage Hospital at Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan, on March 11, 1975.

His father emigrated from Germany and Edwin was born at Mapleton in Stark County, Ohio, on November 2, 1853, seventh of the ten children of John Jacob Loehr and Catherine (Shearer) Loehr. Caroline was born in Ohio on November 25, 1854, the daughter of John and Christina (Kinney) Van Voorhis. She married Edwin on November 2, 1876, and three of their children were born in Michigan: Adelpha on January 16, 1880, Charles on January 7, 1887, and Nina on August 3, 1894. Their daughter Camilla was born in Ohio in September of 1896 and lived only until 1903. Edwin's rental of a gallery in Gobleville was reported late in 1902. He advertised in May of 1910: "FOR MEMORY What is Better than GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS. OURS are the GOOD Kind. The Loehr Studio, Opera House Block, So. Haven. Phone 223." Edwin died at South Haven on August 10, 1910. Caroline was married on September 14, 1911, to George W. Harple, who died in 1930. Caroline died at Sacramento, California, in April of 1938.

William Wise Lofft was born in England in 1837. His wife's parents emigrated from Ireland, and Margaret (usually Maggie) Sloan was born in Ontario in 1841. Shad, the last of their three children, was born in Michigan on March 21, 1865. Her father came from New York and Ruby was born in Michigan to a mother from Connecticut on September 28, 1867. She was fourth of the five children of Columbus and Eunice (Hough) Tuttle, and their only daughter. Ruby married Shad on November 30, 1886. Their daughters were born at Lapeer: Nina on December 3, 1887, and Marguerite on March 14, 1889. Shad sold his Lapeer gallery before leaving for Chicago in 1891. He devoted his time exclusively to portrait painting for three years, and then spent a year on the road as a demonstrator for Eastman & Company and for Kilborn & Kurtz. Ruby gave birth to William at Chicago on June 4, 1894, and they returned to Lapeer in October of 1895. In Lapeer Shad offered both photography and portrait painting. He provided most of the views that were reproduced in the Lapeer edition of Headlight. He and Ruby had two more sons born in Lapeer: Henry on April 12, 1896, and Charles on June 19, 1901. Their son John was born at Philadelphia on September 7, 1905. The author Marguerite De Angeli was their granddaughter. Shad died in Collinswood on January 22, 1937, and Ruby died on July 5, 1958, at Camden, New Jersey.

Joseph and his wife were born in Canada, he in 1848 or 1849 and Eliza one year later. Their daughters Maggie and Nellie were born in Michigan between 1872 and 1879. The Gazley Block was at the southeast corner of South Saginaw and First Streets, and the Genesee County Savings Bank was at 93 South Saginaw Street. The Lone & Frisbie gallery opened at Mount Pleasant during the first week in April of 1886, and the entry on Walter J. Frisbie contains much more information about this business. Joseph bought out his partner early in December of 1886. His name was printed on some cabinet mounts from the Excelsior Art Parlors, but not on others. He offered reduced prices on cabinets for ten days in April, giving away a nice 8 by 10 frame with every dozen, and advertised in the summer of 1887: "... Best Cabinets, $2.00 a Doz. Card Size, $1.00 a Dozen. - Large work done in Crayon, India Ink and Water Colors. The best of work done from old pictures, and prices very low. Frames for sale at bottom prices..." In September he was advertising photographs and tintypes, and hired a new operator from Chicago. A year later his gallery was over Fox & Hoy's Furniture Store. Oliver G. Plunkett of St. Johns purchased an interest in the gallery early in July of 1889, and in December they were looking for a young man to learn the business. During the summer the quality and low cost of their views of residences and business places received favorable attention. In September of 1890 Lone & Plunkett sold their gallery to Loren S. Morey of Harrison. The regional newspaper reported in the fall of 1891: "A letter from J. B. Lone says he has been running an 80 acre farm this summer and doing all the work himself. He is preparing to go into the poultry business. He also says 'crops are good and my health has been better than it has for years'"

Lottie was born in Mundy Township of Genesee County, Michigan, on April 1, 1891, last of the four children of Joseph Benson Lone and Mary Augusta (Baldwin) Lone. She was a niece of the photographer Charles E. Baldwin, and she was living with him and his daughter Ella in 1910. On August 14, 1920, Lottie married Daniel J. Kartes and took over the care of his daughters Mary and Katherine, who were six and four years old. She gave birth at Flint to Elizabeth in 1921 or early in 1922, to Lydia in January of 1926, and to Donald in March of 1929. Lottie died at Flint on February 22, 1930.

| Frank was born in Michigan on December 7, 1882, fifth of the six children of Arthur and Sarah M. Longman. He became a tall stout man with blue eyes and brown hair. On Fielding H. Yost's "Point-a Minute" teams at the University of Michigan in 1903, 1904 and 1905 he was a great line plunger and a splendid blocker. Frank was head football coach in 1906 and 1907 at the University of Arkansas, and in 1909 and 1910 at Notre Dame University where his teams won eleven games, lost one and tied two. Edythe N. Eberbach was born in Michigan on December 27, 1882, last of the three children of Edward H. and Mattie (Bodwell) Eberbach. She married Frank on July 10, 1906. It was announced in May of 1908 that Frank C. (Shorty) Longman, "... the former varsity football player, who graduated with the 1906 law class, intends making his residence in Ann Arbor permanent. Sometime ago he opened up a law office in the Ann Arbor Savings Bank block and has been quite successful in his practice. Mr. Longman has recently acquired an interest in a new firm of photographers who have taken part of Mr. Skinner's store on State Street and will do a general commercial photographic business. The new firm is to be known as Longman & Co., and its members are Frank C. Longman, Roy Williams,... and W. W. Thompson. The two latter gentlemen are experienced photographers, and have been employed in the city for some time." The store of James L. Skinner was a one-story building in front of his house just south of Liberty Street. "Longman & Williams, Ann Arbor, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of photographs, including one of 125 Senior Engineers in their caps and gowns in the spring of 1909. "F. C. Longman, Ann Arbor, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of photographs of a play, of homes and boarding houses, and of other Ann Arbor scenes as well as one of a group of young students and their teacher at Somerset Center postmarked in December of 1909. Frank sold his photographic business in December of 1910, and then became a manufacturer of flashlight powders at Ann Arbor. He and Edythe never had children, and they were living with her parents in 1910 and 1920. Frank died from tuberculosis at the University of Michigan Hospital on April 2, 1928. Edythe lived on at Ann Arbor until her death in January of 1969. |           | 1 43 5555 442222222 66 tttt 55 15 77 |

John was born at Lansing on April 15, 1850, first of the three children of John Wesley and Harriet Longyear. His father was an attorney who was elected to two terms in Congress and then appointed judge of the United States District Court in Detroit. After a year of college preparatory work at Olivet College, young John attended Georgetown College at Washington for a year. His health was failing in the early 1870s, and he hoped that outside work would restore it. He went to Cheboygan County as a land looker in 1872, got a job with the state examining school reserve lands in the Upper Peninsula for their mineral value, and then became a land looker for Charles Hebard of Pequaming. As his health improved he became interested in mineral lands, and he soon established a land agency. In 1878 he was appointed agent for the Lake Superior Ship Canal Railroad and Iron Company, and he went on to become very wealthy and influential. He married Mary Hawley Beecher of Battle Creek on January 4, 1879, and their children were born in Marquette: Abbie in March of 1880, Howard in September of 1881, Helen in January of 1885, John in October of 1889, and Robert in February of 1896. John took two pictures at Ironwood in 1886. One was looking north on Ayer Street which was staked out and had a few ramshackle frame buildings. The other showed the Number One shaft of the Norrie Mine on Aurora Street and construction underway for shafts two and three. Hurley, across the river in Wisconsin, was the established business center in 1886 and Ironwood had fewer than three hundred residents. Then Ironwood was almost completely destroyed by fire in 1887, and these two photographs seem to have been the only visual record of its earliest days. Mr. Longyear sent the photos to Ironwood in 1920, where they were enlarged for display in the Commercial Club rooms. John died at Brookline, Massachusetts, on May 28, 1922. His large personal collection of books, maps, photographs and manuscripts pertaining to the Upper Peninsula was donated to the Marquette County History Museum by his daughter in 1925, and became the nucleus of the J. M. Longyear Research Library.

| George was born to Nehemiah and Clarissa (Watterbury) Lonsbury on October 23, 1828, at Arcada in Wayne County, New York. He married Miss Helen Leggett at Watson, Michigan, in 1852 or 1853, and she died at La Porte, Indiana, on June 25, 1856. His second marriage was to Helen's 20-year-old sister, Miss Sarah E. Leggett, at Watson on December 25, 1860, and their three daughters were born on September 4, 1866, February 6, 1871, and November 7, 1880. George advertised in June of 1862: "AMBROTYPES and PHOTOGRAPHS at Lonsbury's Premium Gallery For 50 Cents! and Cases Furnished. Remember Lonsbury takes the best likenesses ever taken in this county, and warrants them permanent and equal to any taken in the broad universe. Nine years of constant application to the art, and a thorough knowledge of all chemical combinations and tests enables me to duplicate the 'human face divine' with all the grace and expression of life, not as something scarce seen far away in a distant and shadowy land, but standing forth bright and clear as angels in a cloudless sky. N.B. - An apprentice wanted." On August 12, 1862, George enlisted as a private in Company I of the Fifth Michigan Cavalry, and he was soon promoted to First Sergeant. The Fifth left Detroit on December 4, 1862, for Washington, D. C., where it was assigned to the Michigan Cavalry Brigade along with the First, Sixth and Seventh Michigan Cavalry. In January of 1863 George had the mumps which went down and settled in his testicles and his back, and resulted in lumbago. The Brigade's first severe engagement was on June 30, 1863, near Hanover, Pennsylvania, where the Fifth had many losses but accomplished its assignment. At Gettysburg on July 3, the Brigade repulsed an attack by rebel cavalry on the rear of the Union army and drove the enemy out of his threatening position. The Regiment followed the Confederate retreat from Gettysburg and fought nine times in Maryland and Virginia by July 19, one day capturing 1500 prisoners and destroying a large wagon train and another dismounting and driving the rebels in confusion from behind stone walls. George was commissioned Second Lieutenant on September 2, 1863. The Cavalry Division was surrounded by Confederate infantry, artillery and cavalry on October 9 at James City, Virginia, until a charge by the Michigan Brigade drove the enemy from the front. At Buckland's Mills, Virginia, on October 19 the Regiment first fought on foot and then in a mounted charge drove the enemy pell-mell for two miles. In February of 1864 a cavalry force of 5000, including the Brigade, made a daring raid upon Richmond. The Virginia Railroad was destroyed, but Richmond was too heavily defended by artillery to be forced by cavalry. On April 16 George was granted 15 days leave to visit his sick mother. Early in May the Fifth was engaged in the Battle of the Wilderness and fought its way down the Brock Road to Beaver Dam Station, where Confederate Army supplies worth millions were destroyed. During a rout of rebel cavalry on May 11, Confederate General J. E. B. Stuart was killed. On May 28 at Hawes' Shop, the Brigade made a dismounted charge into a desperate hand to hand encounter with losses higher than in any other battle, and finally drove the rebels from their works. George was commissioned First Lieutenant on July 16, 1864. During the late summer and fall of 1864, the Michigan Brigade drove the Confederate forces from the Shenandoah Valley with sixteen major engagements. General Custer's report on the battle at Winchester, Virginia, on September 19 included: "Lieutenant Lonsbury, Fifth Michigan Cavalry, with great daring, advanced with a handful of men to within a few paces of the battery and was only prevented from capturing it by an infantry support, hitherto concealed and outnumbering him." George was commissioned Captain of Company M on September 30, 1864, and a few months later had all of his upper teeth removed. The ulcerated and painful condition of his mouth disabled him, and he was granted 20 days leave on January 4, 1865, and then two 15-day extensions before he recovered in mid February. The Fifth took part in driving the rebels from Louisa Court House, Virginia, on March 8, 1865, seriously interfering with General Lee's sources of supply. George was promoted to Brevet Major of U. S. Volunteers on March 13, 1865, for gallant and meritorious service during the war. The Brigade moved around Petersburg, fighting desperately in April at Five Forks, South Side Railroad, Duck's Pond, Sailor's Creek and Appomattox. After Lee's surrender, the Fifth took part in the Grand Review on May 23 at Washington. It was then ordered to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, where George was mustered out of the army and discharged on July 6, 1865. Late in July of 1865 the local newspaper noted that Captain Lonsbury had returned from the war and called attention to his advertisement: "LONSBURY'S PHOTOGRAPHS, GEMS and PICTURES of every description known to the ART, taken in the very best style. I have at great expense procured all the latest improvements, and a new and beautiful IMPORTED INSTRUMENT that cannot be excelled. All miniatures |           |     | warranted to please. Rooms between Jenner's and Public Square...." Within two months George had purchased an interest in the building occupied by Brigg's store, put in a large sky-light, and moved his gallery into the upper part of the building. He joined the National Photographic Association in its second year, between July of 1869 and June of 1870. He owned a large lot in northeast Allegan in 1873, north of Grand Street just west of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad. He still owned the same undeveloped property in 1895. George was advertising his Iron-Clad Gallery in 1874, and in two Allegan newspapers in 1876: "LIFE-SIZE PHOTOGRAPHS! Finished in Ink, Oil, Water Colors or Crayon! Also all other pictures in the highest style of the art. Family supplies received same as cash.... LIFE-SIZE PHOTOGRAPHS! Finished in any style desired. Also smaller work of like superior beauty and finish. Call and see for yourself. Farm produce taken in exchange for work. No climbing of stairs. Lonsbury's ground floor Iron-Clad Gallery." Lonsbury and Charles G. Agrell advertised as "... PHOTOGRAPHERS, at the Iron-Clad Gallery,... FIRST-CLASS PICTURES! of all sizes, and finished in the most approved style, can be had at the lowest prices." George was also village marshall of Allegan in 1877. His 1878 advertisements were: "LOOK HERE! $1.50 Per Dozen for FIRST-CLASS PHOTOS. Cabinets and Promenades $3.00 per dozen - until further notice, at Lonsbury's." It was reported in April of 1884 that George had lost $2000 by the extensive fire in Allegan, and that he had not been insured. Photographs on 5 ¼ by 8 ½ mounts were produced showing several Allegan business blocks burned to the ground by this conflagration. George applied for an invalid pension in 1888 when he was 59 years old, and still 6 feet 2 inches tall with a florid complexion, light hair and blue eyes. He died at his Seattle home of chronic myocarditis on June 6, 1908, and his body was returned to Watson, Michigan, for burial. Sarah received a widow's pension until she died at Medford, Oregon, on January 4, 1928.

His parents came from New York, and George was born in Groveland Township of Oakland County, Michigan, on January 16, 1840, the second son of Hosea and Pheson (Ford) Loring. He attended district schools in Hillsdale County and began learning marble cutting and tombstone making when he was fifteen. He entered the photography business when he was nineteen. George enlisted as a private in Company E of the Seventh Ohio Volunteer Infantry on June 3, 1861. His regiment was assigned to the Army of the Potomac and fought several battles in Virginia. George was promoted to Corporal. He was wounded in the battle of Winchester, and was discharged on a surgeon's certificate of disability in October of 1862. He opened the Owosso gallery in February of 1863. He and Martha M. Keyte of Owosso were married on April 26, 1865, and their sons Clinton and Charles were born between 1866 and 1873. "... If desired new Prints can be had from this Negative at any time. Card Pictures made from old Daguerreotypes or Ambrotypes in plain or vignette style or enlarged to 8x10 inches." was printed on some of his Battle Creek cartes de visite. George sold the book, stationery and wallpaper store to his older son in May of 1891, and became associated with Edgar P. Byerly in the pension business. He was an Owosso alderman for five years, city clerk for one term and city auditor for two years.

All of his grandparents emigrated from Germany and Anton was born in August of 1883 in Michigan to parents from Wisconsin, first of the four children of Adolph and Matilda Lotz. He was average sized with blue eyes and black hair. “Anton Lotz, Manistee, Mich.” was stamped on the back of a dozen eight by ten inch plain buff mounts carrying four and a half by seven and a half sepia toned photographic prints. Many of the backs had hand-written captions such as: “A view of Manistee’s Mill and mill yard” or “Manistee from the North Side, 1896” or “East Lake, looking over to Manistee, Mich. 1896.” One of two winter scenes on residential streets was captioned: “Second St., looking N. W.” Two winter scenes of the ruins of buildings were captioned: “Unitarian Church” and “Armory Hall in Manistee.” The longest caption was: “East Shore Furniture factory burned Dec 25, 1898, at 4 A.M. and burned for 3 days and 3 nights. This picture was taken at 1 P. M. Dec 25, 1898, while it was burning. Tony Lotz.” Another photo in this group was stamped: “PHOTO BY ANTON LOTZ, MANISTEE, MICH.” Though he was quite young to be the photographer of these professional looking images, it seems quite certain that they were produced by Anton Lotz. Her father came from Michigan and Grace A. Oldfield was born in Missouri to a mother from Illinois in May of 1881, third of the four children of Aaron and Eliza Oldfield. She married Anton about 1910, and they never had children. They were providing a home in 1930 for Grace’s widowed mother.

William advertised from Midland that he would attend promptly to picture framing and residential viewing. "W. H. LOVE, Midland, Mich." was blind stamped with intricate embellishments into post card photographs of such Midland landmarks as the Pere Marquette depot. William was succeeded in Midland by the Camp Brothers. "W. H. Love" was lettered on the negative of a post card photo of the West Branch depot mailed in July of 1908.

His father, Loyal or Loyd Lovejoy, came from Maine and Frank was born in Michigan to a mother from Ohio about 1870. Something happened to his mother, his father married a woman from Michigan, and Frank soon had three half-siblings born between 1874 and 1879. By 1880 his father was a widower and an aunt was keeping house for the family. In 1909 Frank advertised as a "Photographer, Special Attention given to Outside Work, Group Pictures, &c. Postal Card Photos a Specialty. Moderate Prices...." Frank was single in 1910, when he still was living with his widowed father.

His father came from Massachusetts and Ahiel Stephen Loveland was born at Comstock, Michigan, to a mother from New York on December 5, 1849, eighth of the ten children of Stephen Bartlett Loveland and Philena (Hyde) Loveland. He was called Ahiel as long as he lived with his parents, and then Stephen for the rest of his life. Mary Ida Sumner was born at Richland, Michigan, to parents from Vermont on August 24, 1853, fourth of the six children of John and Philena (Davenport) Sumner. As an adult she was known as Ida, and she married Stephen at Galesburg on January 19, 1872. Their son George was born in 1874 or early in 1875, and their daughter Lena was born in April of 1878. They were sharing their home in 1900 with Ida's mother and with their daughter and her newlywed husband, Arthur A. Stanard.

Lovewell, Lloyd W.

His father came from New York and Lloyd was born in Michigan in March of 1871. "LLOYD LOVEWELL, So. Lyon, Mich." was stamped on the back of a card photograph mount in ink of the same color used to stamp "Mr. & Mrs. G. E. Gould, PHOTOGRAPHERS, Portrait Painters and Taxidermists, South Lyon" faintly on the same mount. Since this photograph is typical of what Mr. and Mrs. Gould were producing about 1880, when Lloyd was nine years old, he probably was not the photographer.

Garrett was not to be found in the 1880 census, when Mary, Mrs. G. W. Low, was living in Wakeshma Township just outside Kalamazoo with her four daughters. Mary was born in September of 1833 in New York State where Garrett was born, probably at about the same time. The girls were born in Ohio: Cora about 1865, Emma in March of 1867, Mary about 1869, and Clara in May of 1872. William Shakespeare, Junior, was Garrett's partner in the Kalamazoo Shutter Company. Low and Shakespeare were jointly granted six patents. They applied for the first one on July 3, 1888, and it issued on March 5, 1889, as No. 398,980 covering a Camera Shutter. Patent No. 446,529 issued February 17, 1891, for a Photographic Shutter. No. 471,675 was granted March 29, 1892, for another Shutter. No. 493,365 was granted March 14, 1893, for a Ground Glass Adjuster for Cameras. No. 495,066 covering a Photographic Camera Shutter was granted on April 11, 1893. No. 505,111 for a Photographic Printing Frame issued on September 19, 1893. They applied for a seventh patent on December 1, 1899, and No. 652,295 covering a Photographic Shutter was granted jointly on June 26, 1900, to William Shakespeare, Junior, and to Mary E. Low, administratrix of Garrett W. Low, deceased. Mary was sharing her Kalamazoo home in 1900 with her single daughters Emma and Clara. In 1902 the estate of Garrett W. Low was listed as one of the proprietors of the Kalamazoo Shutter Company. E. & H. T. Anthony & Company were sole agents for the Low and Kazoo shutters, and demonstrated them on November 5, 1890, at a meeting of the Photographic Section of the American Institute of New York. Anthony catalogs from 1890 until about 1904 illustrated Low Shutters in square and rectangular shapes with numbers from one to ten. Some had brass trimmings and cherrywood backs. The Low Kazoo Shutter #1 was nickel plated and could be changed from time to instantaneous.

Herman (sometimes Heman) was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan in December of 1837. He was living in Detroit with the family of Simon P. Wilcox in 1850. Herman enlisted at Ionia in Company E of the First Michigan Engineers and Mechanics on October 2, and he was mustered into the United States Army as a private on October 29, 1861. The regiment left Michigan on December 17, 1861, for Louisville, Kentucky, where it was divided into four detachments to serve with the four divisions of General Buell's Army of the Ohio. They built or rebuilt many railroad bridges in Tennessee early in 1862. Several bridges were built rapidly enough during the march of General Buell's Army from Nashville to re-enforce General Grant at Shiloh, Mississippi, to enable Buell to reach Shiloh in time to assist in turning the tide of battle from defeat into victory. During the battle of Stone River at the end of December, 1862, a force of 391 Michigan Engineers and Mechanics under Colonel Innes was ordered to Lavergne, midway between Nashville and Murfreesboro, to protect Union supply lines from Confederate raiders. They had no sooner erected a slight barricade of brush and wagons when they were attacked by three or four thousand Confederate cavalry and a section of light artillery. Seven separate charges on the frail corral were repulsed with loss before it became dark and the rebels withdrew. Herman and his comrades built many bridges and buildings and relaid many miles of railroad track in Tennessee during the first six months of 1863. Herman had been promoted to corporal long before he was discharged on a surgeon's certificate of disability at Louisville, Kentucky, on June 30, 1863. Josephine A. (once Lucy) Smith was born in Michigan to parents from New York in September of 1848, third of the seven children of Lewis D. and Eliza Ann (Grosvenor) Smith. She married Herman about 1869, and their only child Dana (later Blanch) was born in Michigan about 1873. Josephine's brother, Marion L. Smith, was Herman's partner in the book and stationery business, and in publishing stereo views. "Views of Ionia and Vicinity, Published by Smith & Lowe, Newsdealers and Booksellers, Ionia, Michigan." was printed on the backs of more than twenty stereographs, including bird's-eye views, business and residential street scenes, the depot, mills, schools, churches and residences. Most had brief captions written on their backs. Herman and his wife and their daughter were living with Josephine's parents in 1880. Josephine was a widow by 1910, when she was providing a home in Washington for her daughter and for her fourteen-year-old grandson.

Murney was included in a list of "Who's Who in Early 20th Century Clare County" with only "photography" after his name. He was born at Clare, Michigan, on October 18, 1897, and became a tall slender man with blue eyes and light hair. Many records were for the surname Lowrey or Lowry. He was living in 1900, 1910 and 1920 with Frank and Lida (later Eliza) Grover, and was enumerated in 1900 as a step-son, and in 1910 and 1920 as a nephew. Susie Lowry was his nearest relative in 1918, and the Julia Lowery born in 1917 may have been his daughter. Clara was born at Toledo, Ohio, on November 29, 1896, and she married Murney in the early 1920s. Their daughter Leone was born at Vassar, Michigan, on March 23, 1924. Their son Clarence was born at Port of Spain, Trinidad, on December 18, 1927. Their daughter Marion was born on the island of St. Kitts on December 22, 1929. Their daughter Eleva was born at Medellin, Columbia, in September of 1935. The family left Trinidad on S. S. Lady Drake on May 5 and arrived at Boston on May 16, 1932. They left Puerto Columbia, Columbia, on S. S. Talamanca on April 27 and arrived at New York on May 5, 1938. Their destination was Marion, Michigan.

Sylvester was born at Dunkirk, New York, on December 18, 1892, second of the four children of Stanislaw and Pelagia Lukaszewski, who were Polish immigrants from the Prussian region of Germany. He advertised his "First Class Photo Studio. Home Portraits and Commercial Photographers." in 1915. He was a medium sized single man with light brown eyes and dark brown hair getting slightly bald when he enlisted in the United States Marine Corps at Detroit on June 9 or 14, 1917. He was sent to Parris Island near Port Royal, South Carolina. After training he was assigned to the 96th Company of the Sixth Regiment at Quantico, Virginia. He was shipped overseas on February 8, 1918. He was engaged in the Toulon Sector, the Aisne Defense, the Chateau-Thierry Sector, the Champagne Sector, the St. Mihiel Offensive and the Meuse-Argonne Offensive, and was hospitalized on October 2, 1918. He returned to the United States on January 20, and was at the Navy Yards in Philadelphia until February 3, 1919. Sylvester then was sent to Quantico, Virginia, where he was discharged for medical reasons with an excellent character rating on April 30, 1919. He was living with his widowed mother in 1920, when he was single and unemployed.

Ernest was born in Ohio to a mother from New York on May 19, 1871, third of the four children of Elijah F. and Elbertine M. (Brown) Luke. Mary (often Mae) S. Hill was born in Canada on April 5, 1874, first of the six children of Nathan and Eliza M. (Merritt) Hill. She married Ernest in 1895 or early in 1896, and their daughter Antoinette was born in Michigan on December 23, 1899. They were living in 1900 on the farm of Ernest's widowed father. Though the gazetteer identified him as Albert Topping, Ernest's partner in Hart probably was Herbert H. Topping who was a Hart photographer until 1905, and then a Battle Creek photographer until 1913. Mae was teaching school in 1920. Antoinette was single and was back living with her parents in 1930, when both she and her mother were teaching in public schools. Mae died on April 25, 1954, and Ernest died in February of 1967 at Mason, Michigan.

Andrew was born in Sweden in November of 1871, second of the four children of Peter and Christine Lund. His father was a woodsman that immigrated in 1872, and evidently made some return trips to Sweden. His sister Othelia was born in August of 1883 and came to America in 1886 with Andrew and their mother. His sister Elsie was born in Wisconsin in January of 1889. Andrew was single in 1900, but by 1905 he had married a lady named Jennie who was born in Sweden in 1880 or 1881, and they were living with his parents. He was single again in 1910, and was sharing his residence with three roomers. Velma was born in Michigan in 1881, and she married Andrew about 1916. Their daughter, Florence Shirley Lund, was born in Michigan in July of 1918.

Charles was born at Djeremi in Denmark on March 12, 1897, second of the five known children of Villads and Magdalena Lund. The family immigrated in 1907, and Charles became a tall man with blue eyes and dark brown hair. He was inducted into the army on August 15, 1918, and was sent to the Students Army Training Corps at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. He was assigned to the Medical Department and was transferred to Camp Crane near Allentown, Pennsylvania, on October 15, and to Camp Merritt in New Jersey on October 30. From there Charles shipped overseas on November 13, 1918. He served with the Army of Occupation as an ambulance driver, unattended, and was promoted to private first class on April 1, 1919. Charles received his papers as a naturalized citizen of the United States while in the army. He returned to this country on June 4, and was honorably discharged on June 16, 1919. He was enumerated in 1930 as Charley Lund. Margaret Geraldine Koboski was born at Petoskey on January 2, 1903, sixth of the eight children of John Napoleon Koboski and Catherine (Kruskie) Koboski. She married Charles at Petoskey on May 2, 1922. Their children were born in Michigan: Shirley in 1923, Charlene about 1926, Charles about 1927, Robert in November of 1929, and Richard a little later. The senior Charles died at Saginaw, Michigan, on January 9, 1964, and burial was in Greenwood Cemetery at Petoskey. Margaret lived one hundred years before she died at Charlevoix, Michigan, on November 24, 2003.

Fred and his wife were born in Sweden, he in October of 1857 and Clarissa (later Karin) in November of 1855. They married about 1879, their daughter Anna was born in August of 1880, and they immigrated in 1881. Their daughter Sigrid was born in Illinois in January of 1882, and their son Victor was born in Minnesota in June of 1883. Fred was naturalized a citizen of the United States in 1890, and he advertised portraits and picture frames in 1898. His studio and picture framing shop were next to the new library on East Aurora Street in 1901. "A. F. LUNDBERG, IRONWOOD, MICH." or "A. F. LUNDBERG, PHOTOGRAPHER, 227 East Aurora Street, IRONWOOD, MICHIGAN." was stamped or typed on the backs of 10 by 12 inch mounts which carried photographs of groups of children and adults at the fairgrounds and between a church and its parsonage in Ironwood, and on the backs of stereo views of Ironwood street scenes. August was employing his son Victor as a street photographer in 1910, when the entire family was living in Manhattan. Karin was a widow by 1930, when she was sharing her home with her two unmarried daughters who were working as dry goods salesladies.

Frederick was born on March 26, 1830, he emigrated from Germany in 1853, and he married first about 1855. Lutge & Williams exhibited landscape views of different cities along with portraits in their gallery as specimens of their work. Lutge cartes de visite from Port Huron were sold with and without two cent revenue stamps. Frederick's return from Port Huron to Detroit as a photographer was reported on May 14, 1866. The galleries at both 61 and 53 Monroe Avenue were between Farrar and Randolph Streets. Frederick probably employed Christian Lutge at various times between 1863 and 1886. By 1880 Frederick was married to Estella, who was born in Germany about 1851. Their daughter Lena was born on August 12, 1883. Frederick's known employees included Charles C. Brewé as a photographer or operator from 1878 continuously until 1892, John C. Brueggen as a clerk in 1881 and 1884, John F. Brewé as a photographer in 1888, and Austin F. Mann as a retoucher in 1889 and as an artist in 1890. Charles C. Brewé succeeded Frederick at 53 Monroe Avenue in 1892. The gallery at 589 Wesson Avenue was on the corner of Buchanan Street. Fernando C. Hoskins worked there as an operator about 1899, succeeded Frederick there in 1900, and shared that business address with him in 1903. Something happened to Estella and about 1897 Frederick married Louise, who was born in Germany on June 2, 1854. Lena was living with her father and Louise in 1900.

His father came from Maryland and Joseph was born to a mother from Ohio at Allegheny City, Pennsylvania, on February 3, 1864, third of the five children of Joseph H. and Mary (Failor) Lyday. He graduated from Wittenberg College at Springfield, Ohio. June was born in Maine in 1874, the only child of Joseph R. and Lizzie Lumbert. She married Joseph at Chicago, Illinois, on November 12, 1895, and their daughter June was born in Iowa in August of 1897. Joseph arrived in Detroit in 1903, and entered the art publishing field with J. Wesley Hughes in 1906. Lewis Sidney Lyday was a brother of Joseph, and was his associate or employee in the J. H. Lyday Photogravure Company from 1919 through 1935. He was identified as secretary of the company in 1919, 1921 and 1922, and as an assistant, salesman, clerk, secretary or bookkeeper in the other years. Joseph died in his Detroit home on January 1, 1939, and was survived by his wife, his daughter and two brothers. Mrs. June L. His father came from Massachusetts and Dwight was born in New York in December of 1842, fourth of the seven children of Levi and Mary Lyman. Something happened to his father, and by 1860 his mother was married to Russell Bissell. Two cent revenue stamps on the back of the carte de visite sized paper mounts of tintypes were cancelled "L & H." The Lyman & Haight gallery was on the north side of Maumee Street west of the Masonic Temple. In 1867 Lyman was living at Le Roy, New York. Le Roy is in or very near Stafford Township. Following his partnership with Dwight, James R. Haight was an Adrian photographer off and on until 1878, and then an Adrian resident until 1903. Ettie was born in New York in 1846 or early in 1847, and she married Dwight about 1867. Their children were born in New York: Ida about 1868, Russell about 1872, and Watson about 1874. By 1880 Dwight was a widower, and he and his children were living on the farm of his step-father.

Her father came from Connecticut and Mary was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in November of 1836, first of the three daughters of Nathan T. and Caroline M. Lyman. Nathan was a farmer. Mary was helping her mother to keep house in 1860, and to take care of her five-year-old sister Carly. By 1880 Mary was married to Miles L. Amsden from New York, and she had a five-year-old daughter of her own named Lula. She and Lula still were sharing a residence in 1900.

His parents grew up speaking Yiddish or Hebrew in Vienna, Austria, and Morris was born at St. Louis, Missouri, on April 7, 1881, eldest of the seven children of Samuel and Anne Lyman. He became a slender man with brown eyes and hair. Lillian (later Matilda) was born in Missouri to German parents in 1882, and she married Morris about 1907. She was gone by 1930, when the Lyman household included a 41-year-old housekeeper and a 31-year-old female boarder. Later he married a lady named Florence who predeceased him. Morris had lived 79 years when he died in Detroit's Bon Secours Hospital on May 20, 1960. He was survived by a sister and two brothers, and burial was in Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Richard was born to Edmund and Elizabeth (Cronin) Lynch at Greenville, Pennsylvania, on May 5, 1868, but his family soon moved to St. Catherines, Ontario, and he spent his early years there. At fifteen he set out on his own and worked a year or more for a hotel and an insurance company in Detroit before turning to photography. Her father emigrated from Scotland and Barbara Campbell was born in Ontario to an English mother in May of 1866. She was living at Palmerston, Ontario, until she married Richard at Windsor on December 9, 1890. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Dottie in November of 1891, and Pearl in February of 1893. Richard's initial photographic partnership was brief, and he soon bought out the interest of Edward C. Bryan in the gallery. One of his cabinet photographs shows two identically dressed little girls with their dolls and an elaborate tea service. From October 1 to 15, 1898, Richard ran a sale at one-half Detroit prices on 16 by 20, 18 by 22 and 20 by 24 portrait frames. In 1901 he advertised as an "Artistic Photographer, Groupings and Children's Photos Taken With Care. Homely People Made Handsome. All the Late Cards and Finishings. Satisfaction Guaranteed. LYNCH, The Photographer." Frederick W. Ginzel was Richard's partner in what was primarily a furniture business from the beginning. Richard was a charter member of the Wyandotte Republican Club in 1896, and was elected and re-elected supervisor of the old First Ward from 1900 through 1903. He served as a Wayne County deputy sheriff for two years about 1905. John L. Sullivan replaced Fred Ginzel as Richard's partner in the furniture business in 1917, and Richard sold his interest to Sullivan in 1929. However, the Sullivan family continued to use the name Lynch & Sullivan for several decades. Barbara Lynch died in November of 1920 and Richard never remarried. After a number of years of failing health with periodic improvements and reversals, Richard died at the home of a daughter on December 13, 1939. Burial was in Woodmere Cemetery. He was survived by two married daughters and a grandson.

Alford was born in Michigan to a mother from New York on March 16, 1875, first of the three children of Alfred D. and Sarah M. Lyndon. His brother Roy is profiled below. Julia was born in Missouri in September of 1891, last of the six children of Eugene and Nannie (later Nancy) M. Francisco. She married Alford in 1909 at St. Louis, Missouri, and she gave birth in Michigan to Thomas in 1911 and to Dorothy in 1914. The photographer was sometimes listed as Alfred S. Lyndon, and he was selling photographic supplies in 1907 and 1908. "Lyndon" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs of interurban cars wrecked on April 28, 1908, the Block M at Ferry Field on November 19, 1910, views of Portage Lake mailed in the summer of 1911, a kickoff and a scrimmage at Ferry Field, the 1913 U of M football team, the 1913 and 1917 Engineering Classes, the 1916 Law Class, Hill Auditorium and the Hotel Whitney. "LYNDON STUDIO" and "GLEN LAKE, MICHIGAN" were lettered on the negative from which post card photos were printed. "Lyndon, Ann Arbor, Mich." was lettered on the negative of a 3 ½ by 11 inch postal "Bird's-Eye View of Agricultural Department, M.A.C." produced by the Albertype Company of Brooklyn, New York. Wzystan Stevens has collected over three hundred of these panoramas by Alford, most of them produced as Albertypes between 1907 and 1909. From 1909 to 1912 Alford advertised: "When you think of Michigan you think of LYNDON The Photographer, Don't you? Then don't forget that he keeps all his negatives. Want prints from any?" His ad "Dedicated to the Class of 1913" included: "... Lyndon's Pictures are the foundation of all Memory Books for Michigan Students. A Special Rate for Large Orders." Alford augmented his photography business with a phonograph shop at 118 East Liberty Street in 1916 and 1917, when he was tall and stout with gray eyes and gray hair. A 1917 ad was: "Advice. Young Man: Be honest with yourself and with others in all your dealings; It is LYNDON'S honest dealings for twelve years with Michigan men that places him far ahead of all comers in the Kodak and amateur finishing business. It is a well-known fact among his customers that when they want the best, there is only one man in Ann Arbor who can spell B.E.S.T. That is LYNDON.... Kodaks and Finishing exclusively." He employed Eugene J. Francisco, a nephew of his wife, as a photographer from 1914 through 1918, and made him a partner in Lyndon & Company in 1920. Alford and his family lived in Chicago for a year or more about 1920. Lyndon & Company advertised in 1924 as "A Recorder of Michigan's Traditions Since 1905." The company continued at the same address under Eugene J. Francisco through 1924 and 1925 until Alford rejoined the company in 1926. Alford died in December of 1962, and his widow, Mrs. Julia M. Lyndon, was living in Ann Arbor in 1965.

Roy was born in Michigan to a mother from New York on February 5, 1879, last of the three children of Alfred D. and Sarah M. Lyndon. His brother Alford is profiled above. Aletha M. Hill was born in New York State to natives of New York in August of 1876, and she married Roy in 1899. Their children were born in Michigan, Marjorie in 1900, Maynard in 1907, and Robert on January 25, 1914. In August of 1907 Roy took several panoramic views in the vicinity of Howell which he printed on double-wide post card stock. The views included a bird's-eye of Howell taken from the Central School House tower, the business district on the north side of Grand River Avenue, Deer Lake on the grounds of the State Sanatorium, and some of the Sanatorium buildings. He also produced a number of standard size postal views. That Roy had built a new studio on Grand River Avenue in Howell was reported in June of 1908. His success was partially attributed to his attendance at photographic conventions and to his keeping up-to-date in other ways. In 1911 Roy was also manufacturing garments. He was stout with grey eyes and hair in 1918. Roy died at San Diego, California, on May 13, 1961.

Alexander was born at Toronto, Ontario, on January 1, 1848, fifth of the nine children of William and Sarah (Young) Lyon. His parents and all of his older siblings were born in London, England. Her father emigrated from Scotland and Tina Armstrong was born to an English mother at Galt, Ontario, on December 28, 1858. She married Alexander about 1876. Their son Melvin was born at Woodstock, Ontario, on August 30, 1878. "Mr. Lyon was head operator for the great studio of Wm. Notman, Montreal. For grandeur this place has never been excelled to this day. This artist was offered the highest salary ever paid an operator. He is clever with the brush as well as the camera." Alexander's North Hamilton Street address was listed as 110 & 112 in 1886, as both 116 and 108-112 in 1888 and in 1896, as 112 in 1890 and as 108 in 1898. He employed William B. Darling as a retoucher in 1890. His cabinet photographs from Hamilton Street showed children on tricycles, with dolls and with pets, several uniformed members of the Michigan State Troops, funeral floral arrangements and many other children and adults. Alexander's sale of the Hamilton Street gallery to Charles G. Wynn of Detroit was reported early in 1899. Alexander died at Saginaw.

Clyde was born in Michigan on July 19, 1884, second of the three sons of Elias W. and Viola R. Lyon. He became a medium sized man with brown eyes and hair. Her father emigrated from Holland and Leta was born in Michigan on October 18, 1891. She married Clyde in October of 1908, and their children also were born in Michigan: Doris early in 1909, Edith in 1912, and Kenneth in November of 1919. Clyde undoubtedly started working with his father, Elias W. Lyon, long before Lyon & Son was listed in the gazetteer. An 1899 picture of Clyde with his gun and his dog is among the Lyon family photographs which have survived. Lyon & Son took many dramatic post card photos during the Kalkaska business section fire of July 5, 1908, as well as views of Main Street before and 109 days after the fire. Other Lyon & Son postal photographs depicted the high school football team, a potato warehouse, Babcock's mill crew, the telephone central, churches, construction, the G R & I depot, the G.A.R. hall, and the fire of April 14, 1910. Clyde wrote on April 14 that the big fire in Kalkaska which began about 3:00 A.M. that morning had seemed for a while to be threatening the Lyon & Son gallery, but ended up being confined to the other side of Third Street. "LYON" or "C. LYON" was lettered on the negatives of many post card photographs of Kalkaska and vicinity including interiors of a racket store and of a butcher shop, harvesting tanbark, steam hoisting logs onto railroad flatcars, the P M and G R & I depots, deep snow scenes, a soft drink parlor at Sigma, protecting Stearns Camp No. 1 from forest fires in July of 1911, the aftermath of a South Boardman boiler explosion in 1912, and a railroad wreck near Westwood in September of 1916. "Ready to start Viewing, Jan. 1, 1916." was written on the front of a postal photo of Clyde in galoshes and a heavy coat, while "I am Viewing around Camp now. Money is scarce but I can make good. Clyde Lyon" was written on the back. A script "Lyon, Kalkaska, Mich." was blind stamped into postal portraits and logging scenes. A Lyons Photo Shop post card showing "BOYS LEAVING FOR CAMP CUSTER, JULY 22, 1918" was sent to "Mrs. E. Telleshaw, c/o Stems Camp, Mancelona, Mich." with the message: "We are mailing you six Post Card folders at 10¢ each and are sending babys pictures. Yours Truly, Lyons Photo Shop." "FLASH BY -LYONS PHOTO SHOP-" was lettered on a post card photo of costumed ladies at an indoor carnival in March of 1919. "LYON" was lettered on the negatives of a series of photographs of the fire in Kalkaska on May 9, 1925. Leta was living in Grand Rapids just prior to her death in December of 1969.

He was raised on a farm in Essex Township of Clinton County, Michigan, from 1851 until he went to St. Johns to learn photography. Viola R. Wasson was born at Charlotteville, New York, on February 15, 1852, second of the three children of Thomas and Anna B. Wasson. She married Elias on August 19, 1871, and their sons were born in Michigan: Floyd R. Lyon on September 15, 1880, Clyde E. Lyon on July 19, 1884; and Elias William Lyon, Junior, on August 21, 1887. "From E. W. LYON'S Fine Art Gallery, Ithaca, Mich." was printed on the carte de visite sized paper sleeves of tintypes, some of which Elias sold at the rate of 9 for 75 cents. "... Manufacturer and dealer in all kinds and sizes of square Frames." was printed on some of his later card mounts from Ithaca. About 1893 Elias may have worked at Stanton and possibly at St. Johns, and he may also have worked about 1895 at Bellingham, Washington. "E. W. Lyon, PHOTOGRAPHER. Work as good as Any, Prices lower than Many, Viewing a Specialty. Shelby, Mich." was printed on small pink labels pasted on the backs of photograph mounts. Elias was selling cabinet photographs from Shelby for $2.00 and for $2.25 per dozen. Pictures of most members of his family were taken in this format at Shelby. Floyd R. Lyon became his father's partner at Ovid, and they operated the Ashley studio as a branch of the Ovid business. Clyde E. Lyon was his father's partner at Kalkaska, with Alden as a branch studio in 1911. The Lyon & Son studio in Kalkaska was the subject of one post card photograph, while portraits of father and son graced another along with: "VIEW AND PORTRAIT ARTISTS. Photos Enlarged. BEST WORK. Lowest Prices. Souvenir Post Cards of Local Scenery. LYON & SON, Kalkaska, Mich." Most notable of other Lyon & Son postal photos was a dramatic series of the fire in the business section of Kalkaska on July 5, 1908. Mrs. Viola R. Lyon was 58 years old when she died at Kalkaska on April 5, 1909. "LYON" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs with or without accompanying captions. One caption was: "MAIN STREET WEST, MAPLE RAPIDS No. 6." This card was mailed in August of 1910. Clyde succeeded the photographic partnership in Kalkaska, and Elias seems to have succeeded Floyd at Barryton about 1920. By this time Elias had married a lady named Frances born in New York in 1848. Elias died in 1925. | 1 222 11 322 3ttt5 ttt mt mR tttt 5tt mm 33 1 |     |

Floyd was eldest of the three sons of Elias W. and Viola R. (Wasson) Lyon, and was born at Ithaca, Michigan, on September 15, 1880. Cora Belle Hoffman was born in Michigan on January 10, 1886, first of the four children of Theodore and Elizabeth B. (Fortman) Hoffman. She married Floyd at Barryton on June 6, 1906. Their sons were born at Barryton: Floyd on January 30, 1908, Erwin on May 26, 1909, Elmer on June 23, 1910, Clifford on January 13, 1912, and Elton on December 7, 1914. "Taken by F. R. Lyon, 1899" was written on the back of 7 by 9 inch mount that carried an "E. W. Lyon, ... Shelby, Mich." sticker, and a picture of a four horse parade wagon passing the Hotel Shelby. Floyd and his father were partners in Ovid, with a branch studio at Ashley, and Floyd probably participated in his father's photographic business to a much greater extent than has been recorded. "Lyon & Hoffman" was scribed into the negative of a post card photograph along with: "Show-Day 5/5-6/1909. Barryton, Mich." The photo shows a museum railroad car promoting California on a siding at Barryton. Floyd's Barryton post card photographs include views of his studio with its huge slant light facing the street, views of his family, and a couple of advertising cards. One showed a lion with a camera and the words: "LYON STUDIO. FOTOS. Post Cards 75¢ doz. IN FOLDERS, 12 for 50¢. TO-DAY ONLY. GALLERY UPSTAIRS." The other showed two views of a model aeroplane. Lettered on its wings and tail were: "SPECIAL REDUCED PRICES OF ALL PHOTOS. POST CARDS $1.00 PER DOZ. - TO-DAY at LYON'S STUDIO." Floyd's postal photos also included the expected bird's-eye views, street scenes, logging, potato shipping and other industries, construction, fairs, fires, schools, churches, streams, farms and the depot. He also went ten or twelve miles south to photograph the towns of Mecosta and Remus and the resort area at Blue Lake for post cards. He sent a post card showing the 38 pupils of Helmer School to "Mr. Brown, Teacher of Helmer School" with the message: "Please let me know just how many post cards is wanted soon as is convenient. Respt'ly, F. R. Lyon." Floyd was average sized with blue eyes and brown hair, and was missing the little finger on his left hand. Cora died on August 25, 1946, and Floyd lived in Michigan until his death on October 30, 1965.

Sandy, as he was known throughout his career, was born on January 13, 1881, at Milwaukee, Wisconsin. His father was born in Scotland, and his mother was born in Canada of English parentage. He came to Ogemaw County with his family when he was 12, attended the public schools of West Branch, and worked in the lumber camps of northern Michigan. In 1896 he began an apprenticeship to a jeweler and watch maker. He purchased the West Branch jewelry business in 1901, and was married there in the same year to Miss Cora E. Winslow. Her father came from Vermont and Cora was born in Michigan about 1880, first of the three children of Curtis J. and Eva H. Winslow. She gave birth in Michigan to four sons: Keith in 1907, Bruce in 1913, Craig in February of 1915, and Dean in December of 1917. Sandy was tall and stout in 1918, with brown eyes and black hair. Cora died on January 7, 1919. Five years later, on July 7, 1924, Sandy married Mrs. Anna Bowman of West Branch. In 1926 the Mackays purchased a 100-acre farm three miles east of West Branch. Sandy was an Episcopalian, a Mason, an Odd Fellow, a Pythian and a life-long Republican. He had never run for office before 1936, when he was elected to the legislature with a substantial majority of the vote. He was re-elected in 1938, 1940, 1942 and 1944. "MADE BY SANDY MACKAY, WEST BRANCH, MICH." was stamped on the post card backs of photographic views of West Branch and of Selkirk, ten miles east. Legends were written on the negatives of several of these views in a large distinctive script. Not all views with these script legends carried the identifying stamped message. "Residence, Sandy MacKay, West Branch, Mich." and an "SM" monogram were lettered on the negative of a postal photo. Another photograph of the same home in which the trees had grown larger was postmarked in 1915. The time span of Sandy's photographic activity indicated above was estimated from the meager clues available.

Reginald was born to a mother from Pennsylvania at Byron Center, Michigan, on July 22, 1895, the younger son of Seward Morrison MacNitt and Flora (Bacon) MacNitt. His father died in 1909. Reginald produced photographs in the post card format for sale in 1914, 1915 and 1916. He became a five foot eleven and a half inch slender man with blue eyes and light hair, and prior to 1917 he spent nine months as a private in the Michigan militia. Her father emigrated from the Tyrol region of Austria, her mother emigrated from France, and Lillian M. Zanella was born in Michigan in September of 1892, third of the five children of Joseph and Margaret Zanella. She married Reginald about 1915, and they never had children. Reginald was listed as the secretary and treasurer in 1917 and as the president in 1918 of the Amateur Finishing Syndicate. He emphasized Kodak Finishing from 1919 through 1923, while Lillian was his assistant and managed the associated craft store. Reginald explained later that he conducted the photographic business and the associated art store in the Nickels Arcade as a means of financing his education at the Michigan State Normal College and the University of Michigan. When graduate work and the mandates of a fellowship did not leave him time to run the store properly, he sold it. 628 West Summit Street was the home address of Reginald and Lillian. In 1927 Reginald was an active member of the University of Michigan chapter of the honorary educational fraternity, Phi Delta Kappa. His Social Security Number was issued in Ohio before 1951, but he was back in Ann Arbor when he died in August of 1977. One third of the directory and census records used the surname McNitt.

Alonzo was born in Massachusetts in January of 1837, last of the four or more children of Luther C. and Polly Macomber. He enlisted at Boston in Battery A of the First Battalion of Massachusetts Heavy Artillery on February 19, 1862. He was honorably discharged from the army on February 27, 1865. He and 27-year-old Miss Hester J. Canney were married at South Exeter, Maine, on October 18, 1869, and they never had children. Lorenzo D. B. Shaw came from Boston, Massachusetts, to establish Shaw & Macomber, and both partners were living at the East Saginaw gallery in 1873. Lon stayed at East Saginaw, while Shaw had moved to Muskegon by 1875. "LON D. MACOMBER, Successor to Shaw & Macomber, 326 Genesee Ave., E. Saginaw, Mich." or "A. D. MACOMBER, 316 Genesee Ave., Ea. Saginaw, Mich." was printed on paper sleeves below the oval openings for tintypes. Alonzo died from pneumothorax on August 10, 1901, at Denver, Colorado, and burial was in Fairmount Cemetery there. Hester applied for a Widow's Pension based upon his military service.

Her father emigrated from Canada and Adelaide was born in Michigan on July 22, 1889, second of the three children of James H. and Loretta J. (Dodge) MacVicar. Her brothers were born in Michigan: Malcolm in February of 1887, and Stephen (later James) in August of 1894. Their father died prior to 1900, and their widowed mother continued to provide a home in Ypsilanti for Adelaide and Malcolm through 1942. Adelaide was identified as a Rentschler retoucher in 1919, 1920, 1923, 1925, 1926, 1929, 1933, 1935, 1936, and 1940; as a Rentschler finisher in 1930, 1932 and 1937; as a Rentschler bookkeeper in 1922, and as a Rentschler clerk in 1927. Without any mention of Rentschler she was identified as a retoucher in 1939; as a photographer in 1928, 1930 and 1931; and as an artist in 1938. Adelaide never married, and she died in Los Angeles County, California, on March 28, 1980.

Elwood was born in Michigan to Danish parents in September of 1876. He probably was sixth of the eight children of Johanis and Bodil Madsen, though he was not enumerated with their family or anywhere else in the 1880 census. They were farming in Sidney Township of Montcalm County in 1880, and had brought their four oldest children when they immigrated about 1874. Elwood became five feet eight inches tall. Her father came from New York and Ella was born in Michigan in March of 1881. She married Elwood about 1899, and their son Clyburn (later Blair) was born in Michigan in September of 1908. Elwood was employed for more than thirty years by the Pere Marquette, the only railroad that served Gowen and Ewart.

His parents emigrated from Germany and Gottfried was born in Ontario in September of 1872, sixth of the seven children of Gottfried and Wilhelmina Maedel. He immigrated to the United States in 1891. Emily's parents also came from Germany, she was born in Michigan in March of 1875, she married Gottfried in 1899, and she gave birth to Robert in 1915. The Detroit photo printer was identified as Godfrey C. Maedel. In 1912 Gottfried advertised: "Make Your Appointments Early for CAP and GOWN PICTURES. Our Designs for This Style of Portraiture are Very Attractive and Exclusive." His ad in 1913 was: "It's but seventy-two years since the first photographic portrait was made in America – a picture of Miss Dorothy Draper was made by her brother Professor John William Draper of the University of the City of New York. It took an exposure of five minutes in the full glare of the noon day sun. Today it takes but a fraction of a second, even in the softly modulated light of a studio. Clever photographers and fast plates and lenses have made 'having your picture taken' a rather pleasant experience these days. G. C. Maedel is the Photographer of our town." In 1915 he advertised "Portraits of Character" and in 1916: "At Home Portraits, Children's Pictures a Specialty." In 1918 his ad was for the "Randall Studio. Portraits, Fraternity Groups. Painstaking, Artistic, Plus Technical Quality. All negatives taken since 1899 are carefully preserved." For 1919 and 1920 this was reduced to: "Artistic Portraits, Plus Technical Quality." In 1926 the Maedel Studio sold photographs and artistic framing. Will Armstrong was Gottfried's associate in 1926, and succeeded the partnership at 121 East Washington Street with the Randall-Maedel Studios in 1927 and with the Maedel Studio in 1928 and 1929. Gottfried was working from his home in 1930.

Mahan, Theodore S.

- Cleveland, Ohio, PHOTOGRAPHER and AMBROTYPE at 205 Superior st ..... 1859-1860 1
Hillsdale daguerreian artist ..... 1860 2
East Saginaw PHOTOGRAPHER in Hoyt’s New Block at the corner of Genesee and Water sts ..... 1860-1861 3 4
United States Army soldier ..... 1861-1863 5 6
Cleveland, Ohio, resident ..... 1863 5
Theodore was born about 1836 in Ohio to Asa and Mary Mahan. Asa became the first president of Oberlin College in Ohio during that year. He left Oberlin in the late 1840s and through most of the 1850s was a Congregational clergyman at Jackson, Michigan. He noted a college faltering at Leoni, and was instrumental in moving it 35 miles southeast to the growing city of Adrian, where in March of 1859 Asa was chosen to be the president of Adrian College. The 1860 census recorded Theodore in two places, living in Adrian with his parents and siblings and boarding in a Hillsdale hotel. In the fall of 1860 Theodore announced that he had recently come to East Saginaw from Cleveland and had fitted up a new gallery with an entire new set of instruments and apparatus with all the latest improvements and “... the largest SKY-LIGHT in the country, in combination with a side light, which makes it the best, and in fact the only good light in the city.” This gallery was in the new Brick Block with the entrance on Water Street. He offered “AMBROTYPES, of a new and lasting style; MELANOTYPES and Ferrotypes; Plain Photographs, and Photographs CABINET and LIFE SIZE, colored in Oil by the best Painters. Persons having Pictures of deceased or absent friends, can send them in and obtain a correct likeness in Oil, the size of life or smaller.” Other advertisements offered to copy daguerreotypes, suggested photographs and ambrotypes as Christmas and New Year’s gifts, and reminded patrons that a cloudy day was just as good for taking pictures as a clear one. At East Saginaw on July 30, 1861, Theodore entered the service as First Lieutenant of Company D at the organization of the Sixteenth Michigan Infantry. He received his commission on August 9, got married at Detroit on August 24, and was mustered into the army on September 7, 1861. He was commissioned Captain on August 23, 1862, and so mustered the same day. During the Battle of Fredericksburg, Virginia, on December 13, 1862, he was wounded in the scrotum by a musket ball and was thrown ten feet by a shell fragment that struck the left side of his chest. There was no external wound on his chest, but the internal wound seriously affected his lung. After medical treatment, the resulting disability was persistent and his convalescent leave of absence in Cleveland, Ohio, was repeatedly extended until he resigned in April of 1863. His honorable discharge was issued at Falmouth, Virginia, on April 17, 1863. He was confined to his bed most of the time, but visited a probate judge on June 12 to have a pension application prepared. Theodore died at Cleveland on June 23, 1863. Mrs. Mary A. Mahan received a widow’s pension until she married Lotan E. Osborn at Ludington on June 30, 1879. After Mr. Osborn died at New Era on May 18, 1894, Mary was able to get the pension restored. She was living at Shelby in 1901, but by June of 1919 was paralyzed and needed help. From then until her death at the age of 91 on May 2, 1928, she lived with Mrs. Alice Palmer in Muskegon. Burial was in Lakeside Cemetery. 5

Carl was born in Pontiac, Michigan, to a mother from Ontario on February 3, 1874, the only son of William Harvey Maiden and Rebecca J. (Philp) Maiden. His only sister Edna was born in Southfield Township, Michigan, on February 10, 1881. Carl became a short man with blue eyes and black hair. From Yale he advertised as "Maiden, the Fotografer" and guaranteed good work. Alma Ethel (usually Ethel) Keillor was born to parents from Ontario in Sheridan Township of Huron County, Michigan, last of the nine children of Thomas Coates Keillor and Louisa Ann (Welsh) Keillor. She married Carl at Bad Axe, Michigan, on October 27, 1897. Their children were born in Michigan: Alberta on July 24, 1898, and Earl on December 31, 1906. Carl was enumerated twice for the 1930 census: on April 12 in Waterford Township with his wife and daughter, and two days later lodging at the Pontiac hospital where he was working. Ethel seems to have been a widow when she died in Michigan on December 30, 1956.

His father emigrated from Germany and Edward was born in Michigan to a mother from Iowa on June 19, 1883, second of the five children of Jacob and Fannie Maier. He matured into a tall man with brown eyes and brown hair. Edward remained single, lived with his parents, and probably worked for his father continuously until he succeeded Jacob in the late 1920s. He and his younger brother and sister were living with their widowed mother in 1930.

Jacob was the eldest son of Jacob and Christina Maier, and he was born in the German state of Wurtemberg in September of 1853. He immigrated with his parents in 1870, and eventually became a naturalized citizen of the United States. His eight siblings were born in New York about 1855 and 1868, in Pennsylvania between 1857 and 1865, and in Michigan between 1869 and 1873. Fanny, his wife, was born in Iowa to German parents in September of 1856. She married Jacob in 1879 or 1880, and she sometimes was known as Emma. Their children were born in Michigan: Maud in March of 1880, Edward in June of 1883, Bertha in August of 1885, Frederick in July of 1887, and Laura in March of 1897. "J. MAIER, GENERAL PHOTOGRAPHER; All work done in an artistic style...." was printed on many of Jacob's card and cabinet mounts during the 1890s, and the same words were used in his advertising of this period. Beginning in 1898, his advertisements changed to: "... General Photographer. Enlarging in Crayon and Pastel. All Work Guaranteed." After 1911 he added: "... Films Developed and Finished for Amateurs." Edward G. Maier was working for his father in 1910, 1918 and 1920. He had become Cass City's photographer by 1930, when his mother was enumerated as a widow.

Frank was born at Portage Entry, Michigan, to Finnish parents on July 20, 1875, the only child of Nels and Eva (Hecko) Majhannu. With the help of one female servant, his mother provided in their home at Negaunee for ten young Finnish boarders who were miners like her husband. Frank became tall and stout with blue eyes and dark brown hair. Shortly before he married his parents adopted a girl who was born in Finland in May of 1895 and was brought to America in 1898. Mary (sometimes Marie or Maria) was born in August of 1882 (or 1875) and emigrated from Finland in October of 1899. She married Frank in April of 1900, and their son Rudolph was born in Michigan in 1903 or early in 1904. In 1910, and probably for much of her married life, Mary was a saleslady in Frank's dry goods store. "© by F W MAJHANNU" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs of Michigamme scenes. After 1911, he was consistently identified as Frank U. Majhannu in the gazetteers. "F. W. Majhannu" was stamped inside the cover of some of the books in Frank's library, including an English volume on photographic printing. Frank died on May 29, 1935, in Spur Township of Baraga County, Michigan. 3 2

His grandparents emigrated from Scotland and England and his parents, George and Emily (Gould) Major, were born in New York State. Charles was their elder son, and was born in Michigan in June of 1865. He became a junior partner in his father's produce firm in 1894, after he had gained ten years experience with other companies. Her father came from Maine and Mamie (later Mary W.) was born in Detroit to a Scotch mother in July of 1866. She married Charles in 1891 or 1892, and they never had children. In the amateur competition sponsored by the Michigan Photographers Association during their second annual meeting at Detroit in February of 1897, Charles was awarded the first prize in Class H for the most artistic display. Within months he was in the business of commercial photography, while maintaining his position with the produce company for the first year. In June of 1897 he was advertising "PHOTO BUTTONS Made to order from any photograph on the newest and prettiest button yet introduced..." In 1898, C. L. Major & Company were "Photographic Finishers and Button Mnfrs. We carry a full line of Blair Camera Company's make of Cameras and Photo Supplies, and make a specialty of supplying the Amateur Photographer with everything to take and make pictures. Special attention is given to Developing and Printing. We are manufacturers of Photo Buttons and Photo jewelry, and cover Cloth Buttons for dressmakers and tailors." The company's 1899 advertising was very similar, and mentioned their "...FREE DARK ROOM." A circular stamp with "C. L. MAJOR & Company, Photographic Finishers, 253 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich." was used on the back of 5 by 5 inch mounts for prints from amateur negatives. "1900 Spring" was written on the back of such a mount. Mary was working as a photo retoucher in 1900, but was contented to be a housewife during their years in Rochester.

Earl was born in Flint Township of Genesee County, Michigan, on September 27, 1896, first of the four children of Grove Benjamin Maltby and Etta May (Smith) Maltby. He grew up on the family farm, enlisted in the regular army on June 2, 1918, and was sent to Columbus Barracks, Ohio. Assigned to the Medical Department, he was transferred to Greenleaf, Georgia, promoted to private first class on September 15, and transferred to Upton, Long Island, New York, before shipping overseas on November 10, 1918. He served with the Medical Detachment at Base Hospital 91 until he returned to the United States on August 1, 1919. He and Roy J. McCrary both worked at the same hospital, both trained at Columbus Barracks, both were promoted to private first class on the same date, and they left for Europe and returned on the identical dates. Earl was honorably discharged from the army on August 7, 1919. Her father emigrated from Germany and Ilah Bertha Winkler was born in Michigan to a mother from Illinois on May 15, 1906, eldest of the four children of Fredrick W. and Anna Winkler. She grew up on the family farm in Volinia Township of Cass County and then taught school at Flint before marrying Earl on August 31, 1935. Their residence was in Flushing when Ilah died at Flint on January 26, 1973. Earl lived until April 3, 1993.

Austin was born on November 2, 1856, at Ottonville, Ontario, fifth of the seven children of James A. and Amelia Teresa (Sanogan) Mann. His father was a carriage maker before he became a photographer at London in 1867, and his mother died when Austin was only five years old. He attended the schools of London before going to work for his father. Austin and 24-year-old Miss Georgiana Spence of London were married on August 12, 1880. Three of their children were born in Canada: Blanche in August of 1881, Earl in July of 1883, and Myrtle in September of 1885. Their daughter Hazel was born in Michigan in March of 1891. From St. Thomas, Austin offered "... Copies and Life Size Crayons to Order, and Work done in Oil, Water Color and India Ink." Mann & (Charles A.) Schaldenbrand succeeded Ferdinand Friend at 244 Woodward Avenue, and the printing on the back of some of their cabinet mounts was for his studio. The photographs on their cabinet mounts included a young man balanced on the rear wheel of his bicycle and portraits of men in band or militia uniforms. They advertised photo-enlargements, commercial work and amateur printing. Austin moved to Mount Clemens in August of 1896 and went to work for Alonzo C. Novess, whose business he purchased in 1901. An advertisement in 1904 was: "A. F. MANN & SON, PHOTOGRAPHERS. Neat, Artistic, Natural. Special attention given to children. Visitors are invited to call and inspect our work. Hotel grouping. Printing and developing for amateurs. A dark room at their service. Our Carbon Photos are the best. FINE PHOTOS - Portraits. Telephone Number 300. 77 & 79 Gratiot Ave., N., Mt. Clemens, Mich." Views by A. F. Mann & Son were reproduced in Cutter's Guide to Mt. Clemens in 1904 and 1906. Earl A. Mann was the son who was associated with Austin, and Myrtle B. Mann was their office lady in 1905. Their high grade work included platinum in various tones, platinos, collodion-carbons, platino-carbons, sepia tones of various kinds, and fine imitations of old steel engravings. After fifty years as a photographer, mostly in Mount Clemens, Austin retired in 1931. He moved to Birmingham only three months before he died on January 26, 1935, and was survived by two of his daughters and his son. Burial was in Detroit's Grand Lawn Cemetery.

His parents came from New York, and Frank was born in Indiana or Michigan in October of 1859. Mary was born in Denmark in May of 1863, she was brought to America in 1869, and she married Frank in 1889 or 1890. Their son Orville was born in Virginia in August of 1893, their son Frank was born in Michigan in July of 1897, and their daughter Dorothy was born here in 1901 or early in 1902. "FORMATION - MACCABEE PARADE, KALAMAZOO, MICH. JUNE 7 - 1910. BY F. W. MANN 20-155." was lettered on the negative of a post card photograph, and "JUNE 7 - 1910. MACCABEE PARADE, KALAMAZOO, MICH. BY F. W. MANN. 20-159." was scribed into the negative of another. Many other postal photos were numbered in this series without the reference to F. W. Mann. A card numbered "20-6" was mailed in November of 1908. Other cards with low numbers in the series were "Pub. by E. E. Labadie." A card numbered "20-222" was mailed in February of 1912. Frank's shop was at 228 East Main Street from 1904 through 1911, and Mrs. Mary D. Mann was the news dealer at this address by the fall of 1912. Mary was still living at Kalamazoo in 1918 when her 21-year-old son, Frank William Mann, was working for an electric company out of Newport News, Virginia.

His father came from Kentucky and Fred was born in Rush County, Indiana, on February 29, 1872., last of the six children of Willis R. and Eliza Conner (Brisson) Mann. Fred was single in 1910, and was sharing his home with his 82-year-old widowed mother, Mrs. Eliza C. Mann. A script "F. Mann" with "ROSCOMMON, MICH" in much smaller block letters was blind stamped into post card photographs about 1907, including views of Frederic and Roscommon. "Gaylord, Mich. copyright June 4, 1908. F. Mann." was lettered on the negatives of several postal photos. "Fred E. Mann, Photographer, Roscommon, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of photographs of Higgins Lake, Lyon Manor, Markey, Roscommon, St. Helen, the Au Sable River and Pioneer Picnic Day at the Standish race track, as well as studio portraits in the post card format. Many cards with this imprint were postmarked in 1913 or 1914. Marnie was born in Iowa to German parents in August of 1878, one of the ten children of August and Rosetta Rundorff. She was enumerated in 1910 as a designer on her own account, and she married Fred at Roscommon on January 3, 1914. Fred died at Roscommon on October 22, 1922.

Hartwell was born in New York State in 1825 or early in 1826. He probably was the son of William and Rebecca Mann, who were his next-door neighbors in 1850. Susan was born in New York in 1826 or early in 1827, and she married Hartwell in the late 1840s. Their son Hartwell (Later Charles H.) was born in New York in 1849 or early in 1850, and their daughter Delia was born in Michigan in 1857 or early in 1858. Something happened to Susan, and by 1870 Hartwell was married for the second time. His bride was Mary M. Piester, who was born in Ontario in 1834 or early in 1835, a daughter of Barney and Henrietta Piester. Twenty-year-old Martha M. Piester had been working as a dress maker and boarding with Hartwell and Susan Mann in 1860. Hartwell and Mary were providing a home in 1880 for two of Mary's unmarried sisters and their widowed mother. Hartwell often was listed with no occupation specified, and over the years he was called a dealer in fruit trees, a florist, a sewing machine agent, a trader, a speculator and a real estate agent. Photographer Adelbert A. Barr occupied the gallery at 72 Canal Street for a number of years ending in 1888. Early in 1889 a national photographic journal noted under "GALLERIES FOR SALE.... Mr. H. C. Mann of Grand Rapids, who has got stuck with a gallery on his hands. He is not a photographer, and offers a splendid chance to some one." In the fall of 1889 the same periodical reported that "... the gallery at 72 Canal Street, Grand Rapids, Michigan, if not already sold, can be secured at a very great bargain." On the backs of some cabinet mounts was printed: "From the Photographic Studio of H. C. MANN, 72 Canal Street, Grand Rapids, Mich. Landscape and Architectural Views promptly attended to. The NEGATIVE of this Photograph is preserved for future orders, and can be reduced for the Smallest Locket, or Enlarged up to Life Size and Finished in Ink, Crayon or Water Color." In script on the back of an 8 by 10 inch photograph of the interior of a car filled with seated passengers was written: "First Train to Lansing, by H. C. Mann." A. Fred Wolfe was the proprietor of the gallery at 72 Canal Street later in 1889 and in 1890. Hartwell had lived in Grand Rapids nearly forty years when he died almost without warning at his home there on August 1, 1891. He left a married daughter in Kansas and his widow, Mrs. Mary M. Mann, who continued to reside in Grand Rapids until 1900, when she was providing a home for a twelve-year-old niece and was enumerated as a landlady.

James was born in New York State to natives of New York in February of 1836. Amanda M. Pratt was born in New York to natives of New York in April of 1841, first of the seven children of Aaron B. and Pluma Pratt. She married James at Lyons on November 24, 1859. James enlisted as the Quarter Master Sergeant in Company E of the Sixth Michigan Cavalry at North Plains on September 20, 1862, and was promoted to First Sergeant on October 31, 1863. He was commissioned Second Lieutenant of Company G of the Second Michigan Veteran Volunteer Infantry on April 1, 1864. At Fairfax Court House, Virginia, early in June he was afflicted with malaria and was sent to a hospital at City Point with billiary derangement, diarrhea and partial paralysis of his left leg. James resigned his commission and at City Point, Virginia, he was honorably discharged for physical disability on October 14, 1864. Amanda gave birth to Cornelia (later Cora) in New York State in May of 1865, and to Charlina in Michigan in 1868 or early in 1869. When James applied for a pension in 1890 he was 5 feet 10½ inches tall with a light complexion, dark hair and grey eyes. George F. Bow was proprietor of the Manning House in 1894 and 1895, was managing the hotel for James in 1896 and 1897, and was again its proprietor from 1898 until 1901 and from 1904 to 1909. Five boarders were enumerated at the Grand Haven hotel where James employed fourteen female servants and two male servants. Rheumatism and liver trouble led to heart failure and James died on December 30, 1902. Burial was at Kalkaska. Mrs. Amanda M. Manning lived until May 19, 1904.

John and his twin brother William were born at Ann Arbor to Irish parents on July 17, 1873, third and fourth of the five children of John and Catherine Manning. He first came to Detroit twenty years later. In the latter part of the 1890s John became Canadian manager for a large eastern publishing house, with headquarters in Montreal and Toronto. Grace Palmer was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in the spring of 1876, and she married John about 1902. Their sons were born in Michigan, John in 1906 and Lawrence in 1908. Poor health forced John to resign from the Canadian position in 1906. He returned to Detroit, where he and his brother William founded The Manning Studio, and were also the proprietors of Manning Brothers until the firm was incorporated in 1932. Their studio was destroyed by fire in 1913. The Lincoln Building was at 333 State Street on the corner of Park Street. When the Commercial Photographers Association of Detroit was organized on February 11, 1921, John and Will Manning were among the charter members. They were also members of the Photographers' Association of America. At incorporation, John became president of Manning Brothers, William's son Edward P. Manning was vice president, and William was secretary and treasurer. He also was president of the Manning & Locklin Sand & Gravel Company. The residence of John and Grace was in Highland Park in 1910, 1920 and 1930. John died in Grace Hospital of pneumonia and complications on January 14, 1934, after several months of failing health. He was survived by his wife Grace, his sons John and Lawrence; his brother William; a sister and a half-brother. Burial was in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery.

| William and his twin brother John were born at Ann Arbor to Irish parents on July 17, 1873, third and fourth of the five children of John and Catherine Manning. Margaret was born in Michigan to Irish parents in May of 1878, she married William in 1896 or 1897, and their children were born in Michigan: Edward in June of 1899, Alice in 1902, Margaret in 1903, William in 1905, Katherine in 1906, and Irene in 1909. William was in his early twenties when Anthony F. Godfrey took him on as a partner, and in his early thirties when with John J. Manning he founded The Manning Studio. He mailed a number of letters on January 15, 1906, informing various businesses that he had severed his connection with A. Godfrey & Company and would be opening The Manning Studio about February First, offering interior and exterior viewing, photos for catalogues, lantern slides, developing and printing for amateurs, flash lights, copying and bromide enlargements. William and his twin also were the proprietors of Manning Brothers until the firm was incorporated in 1932, retaining the same specialties through 1926 except for the amateur services. The Lincoln Building was at 333 State Street. At incorporation, John became president of Manning Brothers, William's son Edward P. Manning was vice president, and William was secretary and treasurer. John died in January of 1934. The officers of Manning Brothers in 1935 were: William H. Manning, president; Edward P. Manning, first vice president; William H. Manning, Junior, second vice president; and John B. Snyder, secretary-treasurer. The junior William H. Manning died in September of 1937. The senior William H. Manning died at his winter home in St. Petersburg, Florida, on April 16, 1947. Burial was at Mount Olivet Cemetery in Detroit. Manning Brothers was continued by family members and by 1948 had moved to 16300 Brush Street in Highland Park. More than 250,000 Manning Brothers negatives were acquired in 1990 by Charles A. Hubert was born in Monroe Township of Madison County, Indiana, on June 17, 1879, first of the six children of Ambrose A. and Angeline (Mabbitt) Manring. He grew up on the family farm, and became a medium sized man with blue eyes and brown hair. After attending Northern Indiana University at Valparaiso and the normal school at Muncie, he spent a year and a half out west. Dora M. Lewis was born in Indiana about 1888, the daughter of B. S. and Mary E. (Bowman) Lewis. She married Hubert on September 10, 1904, and they never had children. After farming for a few years Hubert began studying photography and did his preparatory work at Monroe, followed by six months of practical experience in Chicago. He assisted his recently widowed brother for a couple of years before opening the studio in Alexandria. Dora was doing the photo finishing in the Toledo studio in 1920. Hubert died at Toledo on October 16, 1963, and Dora lived there until May 6, 1978.

Leantha was born in Ohio in October of 1888, eldest of the four children of John W. and Flora A. Mapes. The Mount Pleasant newspaper reported in 1917: "Miss Leantha Mapes, a former teacher in this vicinity, is visiting her home at 511 South Main Street. Miss Mapes is engaged now in Home Portrait Photography and expects to do some work along that line during her stay in the city. After leaving here a few years ago Miss Mapes went to Saginaw and opened a studio. In 1914 she went to McMinnville, Tenn., where she studied at the celebrated Southern College of Photography in that city for some time. After finishing there she located in West Virginia. Miss Mapes expects to return to the south after a visit here. Home portrait photography represents a high-class of work." Leantha was sharing her home in 1920 with her widowed mother.

His paternal grandparents were born in Massachusetts, and his maternal grandparents were born in New York. George was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan on May 25, 1873, first of the eight children of Asa James Marble and Dora Marble. He grew up on the family farm, and he became a tall man with blue eyes and brown hair. George advertised as a "Commercial photographer, photography in all its branches." Mary (later Marion) was born in Canada in 1873, and she came to the United States in 1889 or 1890. She married George some time between September of 1918 and February of 1920. By 1930 she was a widow working as a masseuse in one of the mineral baths at Mount Clemens.

Detroit PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... 1910 t

In July of 1910, Detroit was decorated with arches and bunting and signs welcoming the Elks from all over the country. The decorations and the huge parade on July 14th were recorded in postal photographs by several local photographers. On the post card backs of many photographs was printed: "By MARCELL PHOTO Company, Official ELKS PHOTOGRAPHERS, National Convention - Detroit, 1910." F. Ralph Marcell of Maryville, Missouri, used composite post card photographs about 1911 to advertise his Quality Portraits of Men, including nationally prominent political figures. t t t t 1 1 1

Marcott, Henry

Fork Township lumber piler at a saw mill ..... 1900 1
Farwell associate of Richard B. Himes in the photograph business ..... 1902 2
Bradley County, Tennessee, laborer at odd jobs ..... 1910 1

Henry was born in Vermont in November of 1876. Emma was born in Oregon to parents from Michigan in April of 1883, and she married Henry about 1899. Apparently the marriage did not last, for in 1901 Henry was living with Mrs. Tryphena Morton in Farwell as her nephew. She died suddenly on January 17, 1902, and Henry took her body to Alma with the help of Himes for a private funeral. Then Henry asked to be appointed administrator, representing an estate of $28 cash and personal effects. In response to queries instituted by other relatives, Henry confessed to appropriating $500 left by the widow and dividing it with Himes, and returned $400 of the amount. Relatives claimed that $1000 more was missing. Marcott and Himes were arrested for conspiracy in April of 1902, but Himes was establishing a photographic operation at Weidman a couple of weeks later. Mrs. Maggie J. Roark was born in Tennessee in 1869 or early in 1870, and when she married Henry about 1906 she brought along her son John. She gave birth in Tennessee to Mary about 1907 and to Thomas in May of 1908. 1 2

- William was born in Michigan to parents from the Wurtemberg region of Germany in 1847 or early in 1848, second of the seven children of John P. and Caroline Markle. The surname was sometimes spelled Markly. William said that he was 18 years old when he enlisted at Detroit in Company I of the Second Michigan Volunteer Infantry on March 24, 1864. He joined his regiment on September 18 near Petersburg, and saw his first action on September 30, 1864, at Poplar Springs Church, Virginia, where the Second had seven men wounded and twelve missing. In the advance on the Boynton Plank Road on October 27, seven men of the regiment were wounded and seven were missing. During the March 25, 1865, Confederate attack on Fort Steadman, the Second sustained heavy losses while holding Battery Number 9 and charging on the heels of the retreating enemy. After the fall of Petersburg and the Confederate surrender, the regiment marched in the grand review at Washington on May 23, 1865. William was mustered out of the army at Delaney House, D. C., on July 28, 1865. He still was living with his parents in 1870.

William was born in England in 1829 or 1830. His wife and children were born in New York: Eliza about 1838, Inez in October of 1859, William in October of 1864, and Nellie in 1872 or 1873. Many details of William's daguerreian activities in New York State were included in Tom Kailbourn's article and yet to be published notes. By 1855 William was using landscape and other fancy backgrounds and offering crayon daguerreotypes and stereoscopic pictures. Two years later he was making Melainotypes, Ambrotypes, Amuregraphs, Anapographs, Pearlotypes, Transferotypes on leather, silk and paper, Relieved Transparent Crystalotypes and Sphereotypes as well as Daguerreotypes. His Dansville gallery was destroyed by fire on November 5, 1859, and he worked from a temporary shop in the burnt district until his new gallery was completed on the site of the old one in time for the Holidays a year later. "MARRATT'S City Hall Photograph Gallery, Fisher Block, Woodward Ave., Detroit. All kinds of Copying done in Best Style. Portraits in India Ink and Water Colors. Life Size Portraits in Crayon. Superior Tintypes. All work guaranteed First Class." was printed on some of William's card mounts of the 1870s, and the same language was used in his 1877 advertisements. He employed Irving H. Wood as an agent in 1878. His gallery was described in 1880 as having floor space of 100 by 60 feet and being "... tastefully and elegantly finished,... replete with everything necessary or convenient for the efficient practice of the art, or for the comfort of visitors.... Mr. Marratt ... has tripled the business in the six years he has conducted it. Four assistants find constant employment, and the proprietor is fortunate in having a family which takes an interest in his work.... He has had an experience of thirty years, and came originally from New York State. It is principally through his exertions that a uniform scale of charges for card photographs has been adopted in this city. Some of the photographs taken twenty years ago by himself are exhibited in his rooms today, and they are as bright and clear as if only made two days since.... His prices range from one dollar to five dollars per dozen for card portraits, the cabinet size ranging from five dollars or less, according to style. The tin types are of the highest order of artistic finish, and are furnished four for fifty cents...." William's advertisements of this period listed prices of "... Cards per doz., $1.50 to $3 - Cabinets per doz., $3.50 to $5 - Tintypes, card size, 4 for 50 cents. Special attention given to large work; Copying and Enlarging Old Pictures in every style known to the Art..." He served on the council of the Detroit Photographic Association during the 1880s. His cabinet photographs included portraits of United States Senator Zachariah Chandler, musicians, acrobats, hunters, a milk peddler and a little girl with her doll. His employees included Charles G. Wynn as a photographer in 1880, as a clerk in 1881, and as a photographer from 1882 through 1886; William Marratt, Junior, as a photographer in 1883 and as a clerk in 1886; retoucher Miss Josephine L. Anthony in 1884; retoucher Miss Maggie J. Lappan in 1885, 1887 and 1888; photo printer Thomas W. Carswell in 1888 and 1889; photographer Charles E. Schneider in 1889; photo printer William Carswell in 1890; photographer William J. Hogan in 1890; Lillian F. Phillips as an artist in 1894 and as a retoucher in 1895; and clerk Marguerite Kennedy in 1895. "836-840" or "836-838-840 Grand River Ave." was the address printed on his mounts in the later 1890s. William was succeeded at this location by his son in 1899.

William was born in New York in October of 1864. His father emigrated from England, and his mother was a native New Yorker. William's father was his partner in 1887, when they employed John W. Webster as a photographer and Miss Nina Grigg as a photographer's assistant. Bertha (sometimes Nellie) was born in New York in August of 1869, she married William in 1890 or 1891, and they never had children. William succeeded his father on Grand River Avenue in 1899, and managed this studio while residing in Mulliken, over 100 miles from Detroit. "Marratt, View and Portrait PHOTOGRAPHER, DETROIT & Mulliken, Mich." was printed on some photograph mounts. He continued to use the "Junior" until 1905, and then it was dropped by most sources. "THE WATER TOWER TAKEN BY LIGHTNING FLASHES AT 9:45 P.M., JULY 26, 1910. BY MARRATT, GRAND LEDGE, MICH." was lettered on the negative of a postal photograph. A script "Marratt" was blind stamped into other Grand Ledge post card photos. "MARRATT, Grand Ledge" was printed on 8 by 10 inch mounts, including one for a photo of 35 members of the Methodist Ladies Aid taken about 1915. He advertised in 1916: "We do ANYTHING PHOTOGRAPHIC at the MARRATT STUDIO, Grand Ledge, and keep our prices right to suit the customer - send us your Kodak films." William and Bertha were together in 1920, but some time in the next ten years they divorced. Bertha moved up to Lake Odessa in Ionia County, where in 1930 she was working as a bookkeeper for a hotel.

His father came from Vermont and Daniel was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in January of 1842, first of the three children of Charles and Phebe Ann Marsh. His sisters Lucy and Harriet were born in Michigan between 1843 and 1846. Flora was born in Michigan to parents from Ohio about 1857, the only child of Tris W. and Nancy Badger. She married Daniel about 1879, and they were living in 1880 with her parents. Their daughter Linnie (later Lannie) was born in Michigan in January of 1881. Stereo views of Yellowstone National Park, including "113. Interior of Devil's Kitchen." were photographed and published by D. Marsh of Big Rapids, Michigan. While on his way home in the autumn of 1887 to Grand Rapids, Michigan, from Bozeman, Montana, he took an extensive series of views of Custer and Crow Agency. Daniel was a widower by 1900, when he and his school teacher daughter were boarding with a Weiser couple. Daniel was living alone in 1910, but by 1920 he had been rejoined by Lannie, who was now a high school librarian.

Milo was born in November of 1847 to parents from Massachusetts at Pleasant Valley, Michigan, last of the four children of Elijah and Betsy Marsh. His father was the first post master at Pleasant Valley, a rural post office in Livingston County which closed in July of 1852. Milo graduated from the Literary Department of the University of Michigan in 1870, and from the University of Michigan Department of Law in 1872. Ida was born in Michigan to parents from New York about 1853, one of the daughters of Martin L. and Caroline L. Whitney. She married Milo about 1871, and their daughters Myrtie and Mirabell were born in Michigan between 1872 and 1875. "... Pictures taken in Sunshine or Rain. COPIES taken from any PICTURE & enlarged to 8 x 10 inches. Pictures in OILS, INDIA INK or CRAYON. Negatives preserved one year." was printed on some Marsh & Browne card photograph mounts. "MARSH & GOODMAN, ARTISTS, Duplicates can be had from this picture at 12 cents each. Copies taken from all pictures and enlarged. PORT HURON." was printed on other card mounts. Milo practiced law from the same Port Huron addresses which housed each of his photographic partnerships. He died at Benton Harbor on February 5, 1916.

His father came from Massachusetts and Willis was born in New York on January 23, 1853, last of the three sons of James Hulbert Marsh and Charity (Hill) Marsh. His brothers also were born in New York: Frederick on March 8, 1847, and Frank on October 21, 1849. Charity was gone by 1860, when James was raising the boys with the help of his parents and his sister Frances. James died on December 20, 1864, suggesting that he was in the Union Army though no service record has been found. Angeline F. Marsh was enumerated later as the mother of Willis. Norah was born at Coldwater, Michigan, to parents from New York on April 21, 1853, the daughter of Henry Clark Gilbert and Harriet O. (Champion) Gilbert. Her father was commissioned Colonel of the Nineteenth Michigan Infantry on September 5, 1862, and he led the regiment into some fierce conflicts. At Thompson's Station, Tennessee, on March 5, 1863, their brigade was assaulted by an overwhelming Confederate force, and repulsed three separate charges in a five hour battle. The Nineteenth had 113 men killed or wounded in this engagement, and when their ammunition was exhausted the brigade was forced to surrender. The officers were later exchanged and the enlisted men paroled, allowing the regiment to be reorganized and back in action by June. At Resaca, Georgia, on May 15, 1864, the Nineteenth made a desperate charge and captured a Confederate battery, but at a fearful loss of life. Colonel Gilbert was among the 80 casualties, and died of his wounds at Chattanooga, Tennessee, on May 24, 1864. Norah married Willis at Clarendon, Michigan, on May 4, 1873. Their daughter Zella was born in 1873 or early in 1874, and their son Phillip was born in June of 1889. Cabinet photographs by Willis included views of store fronts as well as the usual portraits. One of his card photographs showed a doll watching a little girl doing her washing, with some of it hung up to dry. Norah obtained a divorce from Willis, and on April 7, 1896, she married Josiah S. Crooks. Nellie was born in Michigan to parents from New York in October of 1875 and she married Willis about 1896. Their children were born in Michigan: Marguerite in January of 1898, Carrie in November of 1899, and Frederick in 1901 or early in 1902. Willis died in 1905 at Quincy, where Nellie was working in 1910 from her home as a washerwoman.

His father came from Maine and William was born to a Canadian mother in Ottawa County, Michigan, on February 18, 1852, third of the six children of Hiram and Charlotte Marshall. Josephine was born to Orion and Anna (Myers) Monroe at Otsego, Michigan, on December 11, 1858, and she married William there on August 2, 1874. She gave birth to Harry E. Marshall on October 6, 1883, and Clyde Sharpe Marshall on May 30, 1892. William's loss of $800.00 in the recent large fire at Montague was reported in November of 1884. At one time his Montague gallery was in the Ripley Block. His cabinet photographs from Big Rapids included groups of students and views of the building housing the Ferris Industrial School, a female police officer, potted plants, a little girl with a stereo viewer and an eight-view composite sequence of three men and a clock. About 1895, his gallery was on North Michigan Avenue in Big Rapids. He rented the Hobart gallery there in the spring of 1898, and was reported to have located permanently at Big Rapids in November of 1899. He and Josephine were divorced, and William was sharing his home with a widowed house keeper and her daughter in 1910. He married the lady that had been his house keeper, Mrs. Elizabeth (Fredericks) Brown, at Big Rapids on December 3, 1912. Elizabeth was born at Elkhart, Indiana, on January 9, 1861. William died at his home in Grand Rapids on May 2, 1923, and interment was in Oak Hill Cemetery. Elizabeth lived on in Grand Rapids until her death in September of 1944.

Edward was born in Michigan to parents from the Bohemian region of Austria on February 4, 1886, last of the four sons of Paul and Mary Marshick. He became a short man with light blue eyes and dark brown hair. The census report indicated that Edward was working in 1910 for his brother Martin, who was seven years older and is profiled below. The Feature Film Company was at 407 Woodward Avenue and produced "State Right Feature Films, Motion Pictures taken to Order." By 1918 Edward had a wife named Lillian Belle Marshick who was born in Michigan in 1890. Something happened to Lillian, and about 1923 Edward married Eleanor. She was born in New Jersey on November 2, 1898, and she never became a mother. Eleanor was working as a bookkeeper in 1930, and as a letter carrier in 1945 when many of the men had gone to war. Edward died at Saint Petersburg in May of 1960, and Eleanor died there on January 26, 1971.

Martin was born in Michigan to parents from the Bohemian region of Austria in November of 1878, second of the four sons of Paul and Mary Marshick. Woodmere began in 1878 as a railroad station six miles southwest of Detroit, and in 1901 was incorporated as a suburb between the western city limits and River Rouge. Its post office was absorbed by Detroit in the same year. The gazetteers listed Martin's studio as a Woodmere business through 1907, as did Detroit city directories through 1906. The census report for 1910 indicated that Martin was employing as a photographer his brother Edward, who was seven years younger and is profiled above. Other records suggest that they were partners. Both Martin and Edward were single and living with their parents at this time.

John was born in Michigan to Dutch parents on October 22, 1878, the younger son of John W. and Gercena or Gezina or Grace Marsman. He became a stout man with blue eyes and light hair. Katherine was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan on March 13, 1877, and she married John in 1899 or early in 1900. Their children were born in three different states: Marion in Illinois in 1901, John in Pennsylvania in 1910, and Catherine in New York in 1913. Katherine seems to have been a widow when she died in New York State in February of 1966.

He and another young single man were lodging with the bank manager in 1901. Alfred came to Michigan in 1901 or 1902, and he eventually became a citizen of the United States. About 1904 Alfred married a lady born in Michigan to parents from New York who was identified as Mrs. Loula Ruth (usually L. Ruth) Martin. Their children were born in Michigan: Helen in October of 1908, Robert in 1914, and Jean about 1921. They were living in 1910 next door to the photographer E. Donald Roberts, whose studio Alfred may have been managing. Alfred and Ruth divorced, and about 1927 Alfred married Grace who was born in Canada in 1896 or early in 1897. |      | 1 44 11 22222 |

His brother Albert was born on November 12, 1848, and his mother died in 1849. His father married Susan Edson Butler in 1851, and by 1861 four more children had been added to the family. Arthur enlisted as a private in Company B of the 24th Michigan Infantry at Chester on March 11, 1865. He was mustered into the Union Army on March 25, and he joined his regiment at Springfield, Illinois, on March 31, 1865. Following the Confederate surrender, Arthur was mustered out of the army at Detroit on June 30, 1865. Josephine Cole was born in New York State in September of 1836, third of the five children of Henry and Catherine Cole. She married Arthur on December 12, 1869, and she had no children that survived. On September 23, 1891, Arthur applied for a pension based upon his Civil War service. Josephine died in 1904. Her father came from New York and Nancy Anne was born in Michigan in 1845. She married Arthur some time between 1910 and 1919. Nancy applied for a widow's pension on March 21, 1927, probably shortly after Arthur's death. |           | 1 3333 2222 13 14 33 11 44 |

His father came from Pennsylvania and Elmer was born in March of 1861 at Lawton, Michigan, the only child of David and Hellen (Hutchinson) Martin. His mother was a widow by 1870, suggesting that David was a Civil War casualty, but no evidence of that has been found. Elmer entered the photography business at Kalamazoo, and he was living there in 1880 with his mother. Her father emigrated from Scotland and Mary was born in Canada to an English mother in May of 1862. She was brought to the United States as a child, and she married Elmer about 1883. They had two children born in Michigan: Albert in October of 1885, and Genevieve in April of 1889. The rest of their children were born in Illinois: Arlene in May of 1890, Charles in April of 1893, and Dorothy in May of 1898. Elmer was a pioneer of the Photographers' Association of America and a member of the local association. He employed Miss M. F. Whitney as a retoucher from 1903 through 1908, Charles Simon as a photo printer in 1904 and 1905, and Miss Florence M. Elmer as a clerk in 1910 and as a retoucher in 1912. For 28 years before moving to the Kendall Block, his studio was at the southwest corner of Monroe and Ionia Avenues. In 1920 he was a widower and his 31-year-old daughter, Genivieve, was an attendant in his studio. A 4½ by 6½ inch photo from the 1920s of a group of 34 men of all ages armed with tree trimming saws, a tar pot, an axe, a peavey and other tools is in a folder with the imprint: "Martin, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH." However, the image is embossed: "The Miller Studio" in Old English type. On April 15, 1929, Elmer and his second wife had gone to the studio in the Kendall Building, but he returned to their apartment while she stayed at the studio. He was later found dead in the apartment by neighbors. Death was attributed to a skull fracture sustained in a fall during an attack of the heart disease from which 70-year-old Elmer had suffered for many years. Besides the widow, Mrs. Maude C. Martin, he was survived by all five of his children. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Kalamazoo. Maude was proprietor of the Kendall Block studio from 1929 until 1931, was a photographer for Leonard A. Versluis in 1931, and was managing the White Studios in 1932.

James was born in 1825 at Glenwell Falls, New York. He originally planned to move from Odd Fellows Hall in May of 1849, when he returned from a trip east to obtain the recent improvements in his art. He was still in the hall in September, when he exhibited "... numerous Frames and Daguerrean Likenesses ..." at the Michigan State Fair. During the following twelve months his advertisements used a facsimile of this letter: 3 1

Respectfully yours, 2

J. C. Holmes, Secretary 2

Michigan State Agricultural Society 2

In November of 1849 he was offering "MARTIN'S PREMIUM Colored Daguerreotypes.... Miniatures taken without regard to the weather." His rooms in Odd Fellows Hall now became the Premium Daguerrean Gallery, from which he was producing a blue circle around pictures in May of 1850, and was admonishing his patrons: "Of those for whom you fond emotions cherish, secure the shadow e're the substance perish." He carried a large stock of lockets, improved cases and beautiful frames. James was awarded First Premium and $2.00 for his exhibit of daguerreotypes at the second annual Michigan State Fair, held at Ann Arbor in September of 1850. Soon after this he opened his second gallery on Jefferson Avenue next door above the Gothic Store and near the Young Men's Society Building, with a skylight which enabled him to take superior likenesses. To enhance his Premium Daguerrean Miniatures he offered cases, frames and lockets of all sizes and styles. He also kept apparatus, plates, cases and chemicals constantly on hand and for sale to other daguerreotypists. It was announced in November that the old rooms would also be open during the winter. James final advertisement appeared in February of 1851, and Moses Sutton was identified as his successor in August of 1851. By 1860 James had a 25-year-old wife named Mary and a 4-year-old daughter named Fannie, both born in New York State. He sold the second-floor gallery on Third Street to Alfred J. Hassler in 1864, and became a merchandiser of stereo views and other photographs. After his death at St. Paul on March 9, 1869, his widow and daughter moved to Sandy Hill, New York. 5

Martin, John

Alma PHOTOGRAPHER ..... 1918 t
"Photo by John Martin, 413 Beaver St." was stamped on the post card back of a photograph of a baby which was postmarked in December of 1913 at Lansing, Michigan, and on the faces of a series of postal photographs of a patriotic parade in Alma at or near the end of World War I. Beaver Street does not appear on modern maps of Alma, Lansing, or any nearby town. John W. Martin was born in this country on March 20, 1873, and became a stout man with blue eyes and brown hair. He worked in the Republic Motor Truck factory at Alma in 1918, when he and Katherine Martin lived in nearby St. Louis, Michigan. t 1

His father came from Ohio and Plinton was born in Michigan to a mother from Maine in December of 1870, the only child of Andrew M. and Abbie A. Martin. He took the usual cabinet portraits of babies and adults, but also posed a little girl standing next to a nicely made baby buggy in which her doll was resting. Plinton was living with his parents in 1900, when they were neighbors of the professional photographers Rollin H. Stocoum and Arthur J. Baumgardner. He never married, and he continued to live with his parents through 1910. In 1920 Plinton was boarding with the family of a younger couple.

Albert Thomas Martyn was born in Ontario to English parents in June of 1869, last of the seven children of Edmund and Elizabeth Martin. The Canadian records and many of the United States records were for the surname Martin. Albert came to Michigan about 1885. Mary Blanche Hackett was born in Canada in February of 1872, the daughter of George H. and Margaret (Freeman) Hackett. She was brought to Michigan as a child. Mary married Albert about 1891, and they never had children. Albert's photographic partners were Arthur W. Venners and then Herbert J. Baker. The partnership with Baker was dissolved in August of 1893, with Martyn continuing the business. After 1891 he usually was listed as A. Thomas Martyn. "Martyn, Oscoda and Au Sable." was printed on some cabinet mounts. He set up his portable gallery building at Harrisville for about ten days in June of 1894, prepared to do all kinds of photographing, view taking, etc., and to finish his work in a highly artistic manner, with cabinets priced at $3.00 per dozen. After doing a satisfactory business he stored his portable house at Harrisville until fall, when he returned to set up during the Alcona County Fair. He was back doing business at Harrisville in September of 1895 and in May of 1896. Blanche was the proprietor of an Oscoda millinery shop from 1893 until 1905, and she was enumerated as a Howell milliner in 1910. They were known in Howell as Thomas and Blanche Martin.

His father came from Vermont and Edgar was born in New York in March of 1855, second of the eight children of Edgar M. and Susan T. (Allen) Marvin. He was called Eddie as a child, and later he became known as Ned. He moved to Michigan in 1880. His first wife was born in Michigan, and she gave birth here to Nona in January of 1882. Some of his Grand Ledge cabinet photographs use back or side lighting very effectively, while most of his card and cabinet photos are comparable to those of his contemporaries. Ida Jane Fisher was born in Michigan to parents from New York in November of 1861, second of the six children of George and Elizabeth Fisher. She married Ned about 1886, and they never had children. Ned and his brother-in-law Truman S. Fisher formed the partnership of Fisher & Marvin in June of 1892. Ned's Detroit employees included his father-in-law George Fisher as a clerk in 1895; his brother Harris J. Marvin as a print maker in 1895, as a photo operator in 1896, and as a solar printer in 1897; Augustus J. Belanger as a photo operator in 1896; May M. Fisher as an artist in 1897 and Fred J. Belanger as a photo operator in 1898. Marvin & Henry F. Brown employed Miss Nona Allen Marvin as a clerk in 1900, as an assistant in 1901 and as a cashier in 1902. After ten years in Detroit, Edgar apparently maintained or regained ownership of the gallery in Grand Ledge, for he advertised nationally in the autumn of 1901: "FOR SALE - Gallery in bright Michigan town. Well equipped; 10,000 negatives; fine stock of framing goods and machinery; water works; electric lights; splendid location; low rent. Ten thousand people within a radius of ten miles, no competition. Price low and terms reasonable. E. A. Marvin, 204 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich." Ned was 54 when he died in Detroit on February 2, 1910. His widow, Mrs. Ida Jane Marvin, lived on in Detroit until 1941.

James was born at Hastings, Michigan, on December 16, 1877, and became a five foot nine inch man with blue eyes 1 4 and light brown hair. He was a laborer prior to his enlistment at Kalamazoo on May 12, 1898, as a private in Company 4 1
E of the Second United States Infantry. He was discharged from the army on October 3, 1898, with a rating of 1 excellent. James and his widowed mother, Anna D. Mason, were living at Flint in 1900 with her parents, James P. and 1 2
Anna M. Roberts. Her father came from Pennsylvania and Vera was born in Michigan in 1879 or early in 1880. She 2 married James about 1907, and they are not known to have had any children. Their home at Flint in 1910 was two 2 doors from Edward C. Bowman and seven doors from Clarence C. Holden, both professional photographers. 2
Something happened to Vera, and James married again about 1919. His bride was Nora, who was born in Michigan in 2
1885. Nora participated in his photographic work, and in 1920 and 1930 they were sharing the home of his widowed 2 mother. The Mason Studio was in the Stebbins Block at Hastings in 1923. 2 3

John was born in Michigan in 1854 or 1855 of Prussian parentage. His wife's parents emigrated from England, and Alma (later Anna) was born in Michigan about 1856. John succeeded Henry Dunham in the gallery over John Butler's grocery store in Marshall, and offered "... All kinds and styles of Pictures known to the trade made in the best manner, and at reasonable prices." In 1880 he advertised: "For the Holidays! When looking after gifts don't forget those elegant velvet frames at Mast's." In 1885 it was: "J. E. MAST the ARTIST PHOTOGRAPHER is producing the FINEST PHOTOS AND TINTYPES made in the city. COPYING A SPECIALTY. I also carry a complete assortment of PICTURE FRAMES of all styles and sizes. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases..." At this time he employed George P. Miers as an artist. "J. E. MAST, PHOTOGRAPHER, and Dealer in WALNUT AND VELVET FRAMES, Easels, Passe-partouts, Etc." was printed on trade cards and on the backs of stereoscopic views of Marshall along with: "... No. 78 State St., Marshall, Michigan." John was succeeded in Marshall by Young & McKay, and he succeeded G. W. Upham at 12 East Erie Street in Albion. "From J. E. Mast's Ground Floor Art Parlors, 12 Erie Street, ALBION, MICH." was stamped on the back of the 11 by 14 mount with gilded bevel edges carrying a full sized photograph of 21 well dressed young women and one young man, all looking in many different directions. One of the cabinet photographs from John's ground floor gallery at 110 Erie Street in Albion was of over one hundred men posed in front of the office of the Gale Manufacturing Company. While he worked in Albion, John's wife Anna continued to occupy their home in Marshall, only ten miles away. Their residence in Marshall was in the Gothic Revival style at 325 Forest Street, and was built in 1871. John exchanged this home in 1896 for a property on South Kalamazoo Avenue, and he received $15,000 in addition. John died in 1928 at Santa Monica, California, and interment was in Oakridge Cemetery at Marshall, Michigan.

His parents emigrated from England and Walter was born in Michigan on March 12, 1874, last of the two children of Mark and Eliza Masters. His sister Edith (later Maud) was born in July of 1872. He became a stout man with brown eyes and dark brown hair, and he was living in 1900 with his sister and her husband. Mabelle was born in Canada or Connecticut to Canadian parents on June 3, 1880, and she married Walter in 1904 or 1905. Their daughter Mildred was born in Michigan in October of 1908, and their son Walter was born here in 1919 or 1920. Walter's boat building and incubator manufacturing businesses were conducted as Masters & Hass. Mabelle seems to have become a widow who lived at Walloon Lake until her death in May of 1970.

Ismar was born at Posen in the Polish region of Germany on November 2, 1879, one of the seven children of Solomon and Cecelia Masure. His family immigrated in 1882 to America, where Ismar became a medium sized man with grey eyes and black hair. His brother Morris L. Masure became the partner of photographer Frank G. Spengler at 522 South Halsted Street in Chicago in 1895. Morris continued the photographic business at that address in his own name from 1897 through 1900, and still was a Chicago photographer in 1910. Ismar probably gained photographic experience in his brother's studio. The listings in several gazetteers and in the 1920 census report were for B. Masure. Ismar married, but by 1920 he was divorced and had been naturalized a United States citizen. He still was living by himself in 1930.

Samuel was born on August 4, 1811, at Woodstock, Vermont, fourth of the seven children of Abram Perkins Mather and Charlotte (Field) Mather. Mary A. Reed was born in 1818 at Chester, Massachusetts, and she married Samuel in 1834 at Troy, New York. Their daughter Martha was born in 1843 in Troy, New York. Mill's store was opposite Charles T. Gorham's Exchange Office. Palmer's Block probably was on the north side of State Street near Hamilton Street. Mather claimed that his 250 square foot skylight and sidelight at this location were the best in the State. Mary died in 1889 at Kansas City, Kansas, and Samuel died there on May 1, 1895.

His father was Canadian, his mother was born in Michigan to English parents, and Charles was born in Michigan on June 14, 1881. He had an older sister and was third of the four sons of John H. and Elizabeth Mathers. He grew up in Central Lake, and became a short stout man with blue eyes and dark brown hair. 1904. Her father came from Canada and Minnie was born in Michigan about 1887. She married Charles in 1904, and she gave birth to Willet J. Mathers in 1905. "Central Lake, Mich. - C. E. Mathers" was press printed on the face of post card photographs, including one of about eighty employees sitting and standing in front of the Central Lake Canning Company. "MATHERS" was lettered on the negatives of other postal views of Central Lake. Charles, Minnie and Willet were a family in 1920, but by 1930 Charles was married to a lady named Evelyn. She was born in Canada in 1877, was brought to the United States in 1884, and she married first about 1901. Charles and Evelyn were providing a home in 1930 for her widowed mother, Mary A. Cluff.

George was born at Middleville to parents from New York in January of 1875, the younger son of George W. and Anna Augusta (Penney) Matteson. His father was a physician. George graduated from high school and became a tall man with hazel eyes and light brown hair. He advertised locally on August 12, 1893: "NEW PHOTO-GRAPH GALLERY. I have just opened my gallery in the Chappel building and if you will call in, I will demonstrate to you that there is no need of going away from Wayland for Good Pictures. G. L. Matteson." One of his cabinet photographs shows sixteen pupils and their teacher standing in front of a one-room schoolhouse. Three landscape illustrations in the cited publication were marked: "Photo by G. L. Matteson." Her father came from Pennsylvania and Ella Mae Toot was born in Michigan in April of 1876. She married George about 1899, and their son George was born in Michigan in 1901. Ella and her son George were not with her husband at West Branch in 1910, but they were reunited by 1915 and probably long before.

His father emigrated from the Hessian region of Germany and Harry was born Henry J. C. Maus at Bay City on June 6, 1877, the eldest child of Jacob and Helena Maus. His mother was born in Michigan to parents from the Prussian region of Germany, and she gave birth to two daughters and four more sons. He always was called Harry as an adult, when he was six feet two inches tall and slim with blue eyes and light brown hair. Her father emigrated from Northern Ireland and Henrietta (later Harriet) was born in Michigan in July of 1879. She married Harry about 1899, and they had no children for almost twenty years. They visited Europe in 1913, and their return trip on S. S. Moltke from Genoa, Italy, took two weeks. They arrived at New York City on August 19, 1913. The studio at 61 Monroe Avenue was occupied by photographer Gladys A. Goodman in 1914, and by photographer Harry Feinberg in 1916. Harriet gave birth to Janet at Detroit in November of 1918. Jean was born in Michigan in May of 1919, and she was adopted by Harry and Harriet before the year was out.

| Leland PHOTOGRAPHER .....  | 1927-1929 | 2   |

Many of the dates listed above were estimated. Severt was born at Suttons Bay to Norwegian parents on October 5, 1887, the only child of Severt and Mary (Tellerbo) Mauseth. He was slender with blue eyes and light brown hair when he was inducted into the army at Leland on March 7, 1918. Severt was assigned to the Aero Service and sent to the United States School of Aerial Photography at Kodak Park in Rochester, New York. Katherine Bell Groves was born in New York State in 1895. She was a resident of Cranberry Creek, New York, when she married Severt at Rochester on August 12, 1918. In mid October, Severt was transferred to Madison Barracks, New York, where he was honorably discharged on December 18, 1918. He photographed the lumber and fruit industries, fishing, high school events, early dance troops, the Leland Pageant, and scenes in the snow and along the shore. He produced some of his work in the post card format for sale by local retailers, and none of his photos seem to have been signed. He operated from a shop in Leland for a while, as well as from his home at Suttons Bay. Katherine gave birth to their son Harry in 1920, and to their daughter Oleana in 1922 or early in 1923. She was a hard worker and brought in the majority of the household income by cleaning, washing and cooking for prominent local families. Severt died at Suttons Bay of pneumonia in January of 1929. Katherine lived until 1984. Harry taught photography for a while at Iowa City, Iowa, and some of Severt's negatives are still retained by his descendants.

May, Franklin

Niles PHOTOGRAPHER ..... 1862-1863 1
One Franklin May was enrolled for three months as a private in Company I of the 54th Indiana Infantry at Knightstown on June 4, 1862, and was mustered out with his company at Indianapolis on September 26, 1862. He was enrolled as a private in the Second Independent Battery of the Indiana Light Artillery at Indianapolis on September 23, 1863. The Battery may have seen action in August of 1864 at Fort Smith, Arkansas. Franklin was imprisoned for larceny during January and February of 1865, and was mustered out with his company at Indianapolis on July 3, 1865. He and Miss Minnie Ewald were married at Frankfort, Indiana, on July 6, 1873, and their two sons and two daughters were born between June of 1874 and June of 1880. They later divorced, and by 1899 Franklin was in the National Military Home at Marion, Indiana. The Niles photographer was assessed in May of 1863, after the soldier was discharged from the infantry and before he enlisted in the artillery, so they could be the same person. However, Knightstown and Indianapolis are more than 150 miles south of Niles. Note that Franklin Ray was a Pokagon photographer in 1862 and 1863, and that Franklin Wray was a Niles photographer in 1864 and 1865. 2 1

Darwin was born in New York State in April of 1841, third of the four sons of Addison M. P. and Amanda Maynard. At Bristol, Illinois, on August 4, 1862, he enlisted in Company H of the 89th Illinois Infantry, and he was mustered into the army as a corporal on August 25, 1862. At this time he was five feet ten inches tall with a light complexion, grey eyes and brown hair. Darwin transferred out of Company H on March 12, 1863, and into Company F of the First Infantry Regiment in the Mississippi Marine Brigade. He later was a private in Company G. of the Marine Regiment, and had become a hospital steward by the time that he was mustered out of the army at Vicksburg, Mississippi, on June 30, 1865. Frances S. Welch was born in New York State in September of 1844, and she married Darwin at Ellington, New York, on October 9, 1867. Their sons were born at Ellington: Sidney on October 31, 1868, and Addison on May 9, 1870. Their daughter Lucy was born in Iowa early in 1871, and their daughter Dora was born in Michigan on July 31, 1872. Darwin came from New York State in December of 1870 to purchase the North Lansing gallery of Harry O. Hall. He moved to Nebraska in 1889, and returned to Michigan in 1892. Darwin applied from Michigan for an invalid pension based upon his Civil War service on September 15, 1893. Frances was not in Florida with Darwin in 1900, but was living with the family of her eldest son out in Minturn, Colorado. Darwin joined them there in 1901, and he died at Minturn on April 3, 1909. Frances applied from Colorado for a widow's pension on April 29, 1909.

James was born in Massachusetts in 1815 or 1816. Rhoda (later Elsie) was born in New York seven years later, and she married James about 1838. Three of their children were born in New York: Wesley in 1840, Lydia three years later, and John a year after her. Then they had three sons born in Michigan: Myron about 1848, Anson in March of 1850, and John in 1851. The first John apparently did not survive, for both sons were named John D. Maynard. In 1850 and in 1860 James and Rhoda also were raising a girl named Julia B. Dixon, who was born in Michigan about 1846. All earlier records were for James W. Anthony was born at Biecz Gorlee in the Polish section of Austria on March 15, 1888, and immigrated in 1905. In 1914 he made a specialty of large groups and family photos. "A. MAZUR, PHOTOGRAPHER, DETROIT, MICH." was embossed into high quality full length studio portraits in the post card format. "A. Mazur Studio, 360 Canfield Ave. E., Detroit, Mich." was printed on tan 12 by 14 inch mounts for photos of wedding groups, &c. Anthony had applied for American citizenship by 1917, when he was a short married man with brown eyes and black hair. His studio remained in the same location during 1920, while its address changed along with most others in Detroit. Alex J. Sulewski worked as a photographer for Anthony in 1921, and succeeded him in the Canfield Avenue studio in 1922. By 1930 Anthony was a United States citizen, was divorced, and was rooming in the home of Stanley Sowinski.

Edgar was born in Indiana to parents from Ohio in May of 1869, the only son of John F. and Elizabeth McClain. His sister Anna was born in Ohio about 1854, and his sister Maggie was born in Indiana about 1861. Maude was born in Indiana in March of 1867, and she married Edgar in 1891 or 1892. Their son Franklin was born in Indiana in May of 1893. Maude divorced Edgar and married John B. Thomas, and Franklin went along as his step-son. They were living in 1910 in Cleveland, Ohio. Her father came from Illinois and Myrtle was born in Iowa to a mother from Tennessee in 1879 or early in 1880. She married Edgar about 1904, their son Orville was born in Missouri in the spring of 1905, and their son Oliver was born in Iowa in February of 1909. Edgar was a widower by 1920, when he was raising Orville and Oliver by himself and was enumerated as Samuel McClain.

Hazzard was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in March of 1866, the only child of Jerome I. and Nettie S. (Stowell) McClellan. Herman L. Emmons had some photographic experience before he took on Hazzard as a partner. The Mendon photographer in 1892 was identified as Abner McClellan. Olive was born in Indiana to parents from Ohio in December of 1866, and she married Hazzard in 1892 or 1893. Their son Donald was born at Mendon in March of 1896. Hazzard wrote to the Carnegie Library Fund in New York in 1905 and obtained a grant of $10,000 for erecting the library at Mendon. He was a music dealer as well as a photographer about 1907, and one of his post card views of Mendon showed the morning glory horn of a phonograph projecting over the doorway of McCLELLAN'S PHOTO & ART ROOMS. Post cards were prominently advertised on the front of this building, and many of Hazzard's postal photographs of Mendon and vicinity have survived. They included bird's-eye views and street scenes, exterior and interior views of churches, rivers and creeks in summer and winter, a ballroom filled with dancing couples, and a parade float carrying more than fifty men, women and children with flags. On October 4, 1916, the largest fire in St. Joseph County history destroyed the business section of Mendon. It began behind a meat market on the south side of Main Street and spread east and west before leaping to the north side. "... on the west side of the business section the flames were just as active, taking in order the Post Office Block; Swonk's grocery and Schumaker's hardware with the Masonic Temple overhead; Shank's building,... ; then Miss Hattie Woodcock's building; Britton's broom factory; a double store building; McClellan's residence and an ice cream parlor building and lastly McClellan's photograph gallery. Here the fire stopped on the south side, west end." Marshall E. Parham produced a graphic series of post card views of the smoldering ruins while this fire was still being fought. There were few qualified fire-fighters, for many residents of Mendon had gone to Kalamazoo to watch "The Human Fly" climb the outside of a six-story building. Donald accompanied his parents to Chicago, where he also was employed as a gas appliance salesman.

William was born in Nova Scotia to English parents in July of 1825. Minerva was born in New York State about 1831, and she married William about 1853. They had two children born in Illinois: Lillian in 1854 or early in 1855, and William two years later. William was identified consistently as W. McClellan on cartes de visite from Monroe with at least twelve different imprints, and on card mounts from Union City with even more variations. He advertised regionally in 1867 as “WM. McCLELLAN, Photographer, and dealer in PICTURES, FRAMES, Engravings. Photographs and Stereoscopic Views of Churches, Public Buildings, Residences, etc., taken when desired, AT LOW RATES.... Monroe, Mich.” William was enumerated twice for the 1870 Census: in Monroe with his family on June 29, and by himself in Union City on August 1. From Union City in 1870, he advertised “Pictures Taken in Every Style and Satisfaction Guaranteed.” He succeeded James R. Davis in Dallas, retaining Alfred R. Billows as an operator. William’s daughter Alma was born in Texas in September of 1883, probably to a wife that was younger than Minerva. Ada was born in Canada in April of 1858, and her marriage to William about 1897 was the third for both of them. Alma was living with them at Los Angeles in 1900.

William was the son of James and Ann (Thompson) McComb, who emigrated from Ireland, and was born at Toronto, Ontario, on August 28, 1844. He "... attended the common schools of his home locality, but later learned the profession of photography, in which he is now an adept. He acquired his training in art in Ottawa, Canada, and studied under the most skillful artists of the Dominion..." Ellen Walker was born in August of 1844 to parents that emigrated from Scotland, and she married William at Ottawa in 1864. She never had children, but they were sharing their home with two nephews and a niece in 1900 and with a fifteen-year-old adopted daughter named Eileen in 1910. In 1879 William offered "Pictures taken in all styles, satisfaction in price and quality guaranteed..." He attended the inaugural convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Chicago in August of 1880, and was on the initial list of P A of A members published in May of 1881. One 1882 issue of the New York Daily Graphic carried many pictures of Muskegon, all reproduced from photographs by William McComb. He exhibited large crayon work at the Photographers' Association of America convention at Indianapolis in August of 1882. In the Marble Front Art Studio at 19 West Western Avenue, instantaneous photographs of children, crayon work, and bromide pictures were his specialties, and the instantaneous process was used exclusively. He employed his brother, George T. McComb, as a photographer or photo printer from 1885 or earlier until George opened his own gallery about 1895, and again afterwards. Some of the 39,000 negatives William had accumulated were destroyed by a fire about 1892, but many were preserved and improvements were made as the gallery was restored to first-class working order. In 1893, William was "... making some of the best life-size pictures ever shown in Muskegon..." He sold frames, albums and art goods from the Lyman Block, and his group picture of the "Old Settlers" of Muskegon was hung in the Hackley Library. When the Muskegon gallery was closed in October of 1905, William planned to open a new studio, probably in the west, but no location had been selected. He was a resident of the Masonic Home in Alma at the time of his death on July 14, 1921, and his funeral services were held in the Muskegon home of his nephew George.

James was born in Scotland in May of 1850, and was brought to the United States when he was seven. He offered photo-enlarging in crayon and water colors in 1890. He advertised in 1891: "Portraits Taken by Improved Process, Views a Specialty.... Orders by Mail Receive Attention. Studio, Superior Street." Views of the buildings and mines of Crystal Falls in The Menominee Iron Range were reproduced from photographs by McCourt. "JAMES McCOURT, Photographer, Crystal Falls, Mich." was stamped on the back of 8 by 10 inch commercial mounts. One photograph on such a mount was of nine men and three women, each holding a rifle, in front of a board and batten shack and a rack with twelve deer hanging. James married and became a naturalized citizen in 1875, and his daughter Agnes was born in Michigan about 1877. Agnes married Abraham Flewelling in 1900 at Crystal Falls, where James was enumerated as a widower living by himself. Clara was born in Wisconsin in 1855 or early in 1856, and her second marriage was to James about 1901. She and James were living at Centralia, Washington, with Abraham and Agnes Flewelling in 1910. James was again a widower by 1920, when he still was living at Centralia with his daughter and her husband. 3 m

His father came from Vermont and Ogle was born in Michigan to a Canadian mother in August of 1864, third of the ten children of Ezra and Estella S. (Bradley) McCoy, and brother of the photographer Bradley C. McCoy. He and two of his brothers were living in 1880 with their maternal grandparents, Thomas and Louisa Bradley. Frances Ensign was born in Michigan to an Irish mother in December of 1861, and she married Ogle about 1886. She gave birth to Eugene in February of 1888, and to Ogle Junior in January of 1895. The senior Ogle was awarded premiums for an India ink portrait and a colored photo which he exhibited at the Oakland County Fair in October of 1889. His advertising late in 1889 and during the early months of 1890 was: "Every Thing new in fine cabinet photos, groups, &c. Special attention given to Baby pictures. Life size portraits $5.00. Proofs given with each sitting...." His large pictures at the Oakland County Fair in 1890 were considered by the judges to be worthy of attention. Ogle used a series of one line ads in 1895: "You can get anything in the Photographic Line at O. H. McCOY'S.... Crayon, Pastel and Water Color Portraits at O. H. McCOY'S.... If you want a half tone made, go to O. H. McCOY'S." During the season in 1896 it was: "We make a Specialty of Crayons, Pastel, Water Colors, for the Christmas Trade." About 1897 he was making a specialty of high grade photography and paying special attention to photographing babies. The second annual meeting of the Michigan Photographers' Association was held at Detroit in February of 1897, and there Ogle was awarded the first prize in Class C for his exhibit of twelve Paris Panels, portraits exclusively. In April he advertised: "Finest Work Only. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Enlarging in Crayon, Water Color and Pastel a Specialty, also Half Tone Work." One month later a national journal stated: "We reproduce an excellent picture from the studio of McCoy, Pontiac, Michigan. The reproduction does not do the original photo justice." His advertisements during the last seven months of 1897 were: "See the HAND CAMERAS at O. H. McCoy's. - Dexter, $4.00; Cyclone, $6.00." In 1898 he employed Miss Minnie Griffith as a photographer and Bradley McCoy as an assistant photographer. In the autumn of 1898, Ogle purchased the Rochester gallery of L. E. Adams. In 1899 he made a "SPECIAL CHRISTMAS OFFERING ... For one week only, commencing on Monday, Nov. 27, we will give a splendid LIFE SIZE PORTRAIT FREE with every dozen cabinets at McCoy's Gallery. Better place your order before the rush comes. - McCoy." Both Ogle and Frances were enumerated as photographers with their own gallery at Bridgeport in 1910. His mother-in-law, Mary Ensign, lived with Ogle's family in 1900, and then next door in 1910 and in 1920. By 1920 he was married to Mary, who was born in Michigan in 1886, and who's father came from Wisconsin. He was enumerated as married in 1930, but was lodging by himself with a family in Brawley.

Roy was born in Michigan on April 19, 1896, to James and Anna McCrary, both natives of Michigan. He enlisted in the regular army on June 6, 1918, and was sent to Columbus Barracks, Ohio, where he was promoted to private first class on September 15. He was shipped overseas on November 10, 1918. There Roy served in Base Hospital 91, and was promoted to sergeant on February 1, 1919. He returned to the United States on August 1, and was honorably discharged on August 7, 1919. By the first of the year Roy was married to Matilda, who was born in Indiana in 1899. He and Earl O. Maltby both trained at Columbus Barracks, were promoted to private first class on the same date, and left for Europe and returned on the identical dates before they became photographic partners. Roy categorized his occupation after the war as "X-Ray and Photography." Roy was divorced by 1930, when he was rooming by himself with a Pontiac family.

His father emigrated from Canada and Roy was born at South Haven to a mother from Vermont on November 16, 1878, eldest of the three children of Duncan R. and Linnie M. McCrimmon. His father worked for others and on his own in a variety of small businesses. Roy attended the local public schools, as did his sister and his brother. He began photographing his family and friends in the 1890s, and soon his pictures also included marine scenes and community events. He became a medium sized man with blue eyes and brown hair. In 1908 he married Miss Mary Hatch, an elementary school teacher and the daughter of a local fruit farmer. Their children were born in South Haven: Kenneth in July of 1909, John in 1911, Laurene in 1913, Mary in April of 1915, Margaret about 1920 and Ruth about 1922. In support of his real estate and insurance business, Roy began photographing homes, business establishments and accident scenes, and some of his most newsworthy photos were published in local newspapers. He had his early negatives processed by professional photographers, but later built a dark room in the basement of his home. He often climbed the smokestack of the South Haven powerhouse for aerial views of the piers and incoming vessels. Roy spent several weeks in a convalescent home in Bangor, Michigan, prior to his death there on September 4, 1957. More than two thousand of his glass and film negatives were donated in 1996 to the Michigan Maritime Museum at South Haven. The museum staff has put together a book featuring his work.

His father emigrated from Canada and John was born in Michigan to an Irish mother on November 17, 1876, third of the six children of Samuel and Mary McCurdy. His older brother Walter also became a photographer. John never married and he was living with his widowed mother in 1900, 1910 and 1920. Beginning in 1914, he conducted his photographic business from her Collingwood Avenue home. By 1918 he was a stout man with brown eyes and gray hair. The change in address from 157 to 735 Collingwood Avenue during 1920 was due to overall revisions in the Detroit numbering system rather than to relocation. His mother was gone by 1930, when John and his 40-year-old sister Edith were sharing the Collingwood home. He was 71 years old when he died in Detroit on February 26, 1947.

Edward and his twin sister Jennie were born in Ontario on March 4, 1865. They were the only children of their widowed mother, Mrs. Phoebe Jane (Rohrer) McDormand, who was raising them while working as a weaver at Walsingham in 1871. On May 5, 1872, Phoebe married the widower Isaac Bowers, who had an eight year old son. Their family was enlarged by a daughter about 1874 and a son in July of 1878 before they moved to the United States in 1879. When Edward was forced to leave school early, he apprenticed himself to a Grand Rapids photographer. Ethel Pearl Williams was born at Sturgis on November 23, 1869, and she married Edward in May of 1886. Their children were born in Michigan: Florence in 1888 or early in 1889, and Verne two years later. "Mack" in large script was printed on the front of some cabinet mounts, while on the back was printed: "From E. J. McDERMAND'S Art Studio, 55 West Bridge Street, Grand Rapids, Mich. - For Nice Clean Work come to us. Low Prices and Satisfaction Guaranteed. - Extra Copies of this Photo at any time, for 12½ cents each. - Life size Portrait from $2.00 up. Finished in Crayon, India Ink or Water Colors. Call and see Samples." Other cabinets with the same front had different printing on the back: "... Landscape and Architectural Views promptly attended to. - THE NEGATIVE of this Photograph is preserved for future orders, and can be reduced for the Smallest Locket, or Enlarged up to Life Size and Finished in Ink, Crayon or Water Color." Elmer E. Evans worked for Edward as a photographer in 1889. "McDermand, Grand Rapids and Muskegon." was printed on some cabinet mounts. Edward maintained his Grand Rapids residence while conducting the photograph business in Holland. In addition to the locations listed above, he established photograph studios in Florida and at Niagara Falls, New York. He was listed as Edwin J. McDermand in several Grand Rapids directories in the early 1900s. Edward spent many years as photographer for the Grand Rapids Chair Company. He owned his home on Main Street at Zeeland in 1918. He and Pearl were providing a home there in 1920 for Edward's widowed mother, Mrs. Phoebe McDermand. Occasionally before and usually after 1928 he was identified as Edward J. MacDermand. He and Pearl celebrated their golden anniversary in May of 1936. Edward had been ill for some time and was 73 years old when he died at his Zeeland home on October 18, 1938. He was survived by his wife, their son, their daughter, seven grandchildren, three great grandchildren and two sisters. One of the sisters was Mrs. Jennie E. Smith of San Francisco, California, who was a Manistee photographer from 1903 until 1915.

H. McDuffee. He was often enumerated as Louis, and the surname was often spelled McDuffie. He was enumerated 1 twice for the 1900 census: in Morenci with his family, and as a railroad newsman rooming with a family in Montpelier, 1
Ohio, 22 miles southwest of Morenci. "LOU MC DUFFEE, MORENCI, MICH." was printed below 3 ½ by 4 ½ inch prints on 5 3 t ½ by 6 ½ commercial mounts. One of the photos was of eleven men and women standing in front of a mill. Some of t 1 the women had an apple and a paring knife in their hands and one man was holding a basket of apples. Jennie was born 1 in Michigan to German parents in the spring of 1880, and she married Lou about 1902. Their sons were born in 1
Pennsylvania: Earl in 1903 and Orville in 1904. Their daughter Mary was born in Michigan in 1912. 1

John's grandparents emigrated from Ireland and his parents, James and Mary P. McEvoy, were born in Ontario. He and two sisters were born in Ontario, John in 1861 or 1862 and the girls between 1863 and 1867. Two more sisters were born in Michigan between 1869 and 1871. John pitched his photographic tent at Whittemore from July 23 to 28 of 1884, did well, and planned to return there soon. Early in September of 1886, he was expected to be opening his East Tawas gallery soon. In 1887 he advertised as a "Photographic Artist. Enlarging, Copying, &c. Also, Dealer in Books, Stationery, Picture Frames and Novelties. East Tawas and Tawas City, Michigan." He was doing a pretty good business in May of 1887. During the summer he set up his tent at Harrisville and at Killmaster and was paid more than one hundred dollars in advance for photographs. By September of 1887 the prints had not been delivered, and John was nowhere to be found. In partnership with C. L. Glendenen, John operated galleries about 1889 at Eagle Rock and Rexburg, Idaho. From Pocatello he maintained branch galleries at Blackfoot and Idaho Falls, Idaho. Margaret Evans was born in Wales on January 13, 1871, and she was brought to the United States as a child. She married John about 1890, and their son Earl was born in Idaho in August of 1891. John warned a Portland woman that he would distribute some photos with which she was not satisfied to bums and bars unless she paid the one dollar balance due on them. One of her photos was picked up on the street with defamatory writing on the back, and John was charged with criminal libel and jailed in default of $500.00 bond. Margaret gave birth to their other children in California: the twins Ethel and Athen in May of 1896, and Leroy in August of 1898. She was enumerated in 1920 as a photographer with her own shop, indicating that she had participated significantly in John's earlier photographic businesses. Margaret remained at Oakland when John went to establish a store in New Mexico, and she seems to have been a widow when she died in California's Santa Clara County on November 18, 1956.

His father emigrated from Scotland and Hector was born in Canada to an English mother in 1855 or 1856. He was single in 1880, and was residing in the hotel of Orman O. Pray. One of Hector's card photographs was of the Ottawa matriarch Ogabegjokwe, or Margaret Boyd, of Harbor Springs in some of her Indian finery. He produced stereoscopic views of Petoskey. McInnis & Flower were portrait and landscape photographers. Hector still was single in 1889. The Lincoln County photographer and the Rossland photographer were identified as H. C. McInnis.

Hervey was born in Ohio in July of 1857. He married about 1878, and his wife gave birth in Ohio to three daughters: Gertrude in October of 1880, Echo in October of 1882, and Franc in April of 1887. Hervey's partner in 1887 probably was George H. Ford, and "McIntyre & Ford,... Union City, Mich." was printed on some of their card photograph mounts. John Richardson was a principal of H. H. McIntire & Company. Some of Hervey's cabinet imprints mention only Union City, while others are "From the McINTIRE STUDIO and ART HOME, located at Union City, Albion, Homer, Hillsdale. The negative of this print is at Union City, where you can order duplicates at any time by mail, by sending name and number as is placed on the back of this print. Large Crayon and Ink Portraits a Specialty. H. H. McINTIRE, PROP'R," followed on some mounts by "SUCCESSOR TO Avery, HILLSDALE, MICHIGAN." Contrary to the practice of most small town photographers, he actually put negative numbers on more than half of the mounts which I have seen. Albion, Hillsdale, Homer, Union City and Coldwater were listed below the photo on other cabinet mounts, while on the reverse was: "From the McINTIRE STUDIO, the only place where you can get PORTRAITS, ready to frame, at the following prices: 11 x 14 - $2.00, 14 x 17 - $3.50, 16 x 20 - $4.00, 20 x 24 - $5.00. These are from negatives we have on hand. FIFTY CENTS EXTRA for making Negative copies now - as the picture may require; if old and faded it will cost more than a good bright one. Don't give your work out away from home when you can save agent's profits by sending it to H. H. McINTIRE, Union City, Mich." Something happened to his first wife and in 1889 or 1890 Hervey married Florence, who was born in Michigan to parents from New York in May of 1857. She married John Hart and gave birth to Ella Floy Hart in Michigan in 1876, and to Fred E. Hart in Texas in November of 1884. Hervey was enumerated twice in the 1900 census: alone as a South Bend photographer and with his family at Rochester, Indiana, forty miles south of South Bend. The family included Florence and her two children as well as his three daughters. After seven years of hard work and self-denial, Hervey filed his first patent application on a Photographic-Printing Apparatus on May 19, 1902, and Patent Number 727,670 issued to him on May 12, 1903. Application for the reissue of this patent was filed on June 16, 1903, and Reissue 12,130 was granted on July 7, 1903. His second patent application on a Photographic-Printing Apparatus was filed on November 24, 1902, and Patent Number 732,650 was granted on June 30, 1903, assigned to the St. Joseph Loan & Trust Company of South Bend, Indiana, as trustee. His third patent application covering a Photographic-Printing Machine was filed on June 9, 1903, and Patent Number 754,083 was issued to him on March 8, 1904. Hervey's fourth application for a patent on a Photographic-Printing Apparatus was filed on March 29, 1904, and Patent Number 784,587 was granted to him on March 14, 1905. After his first patent was granted, Hervey was able to interest a group of South Bend capitalists in establishing the South Bend Photo Printing Machine Company to finance securing more patents and manufacturing the machines. The operation of the machine was similar to that of a small job printing press. At the same time that pressure was exerted to hold the paper to the plate for the exposure, an electric light was automatically turned on for a preset time. Once the proper length of exposure time for a particular negative had been determined, the machine could be set for that time and an unlimited number of prints could be made as fast as paper could be fed into and out of the machine. The machine was demonstrated at the annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Indianapolis in August of 1903 by Hervey, who sold four machines on the first day. The following year the McIntire photo printing machines were being operated at the World's Fair in St. Louis by boys and girls, turning out thousands of exposition prints daily, and were said to be the sensation of the PA of A convention there in August of 1904. The South Bend Photo Printing Machine Company was at 134 North Michigan Street in 1903, and was at 925 South Webster Street in 1904 and 1905. The McIntire Photo Printing Machine Company was at 405 East Madison Street in 1910. Hervey and Florence still were providing a home in 1920 for her two children and his youngest daughter, now known as Frankie. Hervey was a widower by 1930, when he was living with the family of his daughter Gertrude and her husband, Peter P. Schohl.

Charles was born in Michigan to Canadian parents in February of 1876, and probably was one of the six children of Duncan J. and Eleanor McIntyre. Marie was born in Michigan in March of 1877 to German parents, and she married Charles about 1895. When the Saginaw Professional Photographers' Association was organized in November of 1906, Charles was elected secretary and treasurer. He and Marie never had children. Something happened to Marie, and Charles married again about 1926. His bride was Miss Lavine L. Sauve, who was born in Michigan to French Canadian parents in 1900 or early in 1901. Charles and Lavine were sharing their home in 1930 with her sister Louise. 1

His father emigrated from Scotland and Duncan was born in Ontario in October of 1839. Her father also emigrated from Scotland, Eleanor was born in Ontario in February of 1845, and she married Duncan in 1859 or 1860. Three of their children were born in Ontario: Ellison about 1860, Margery about 1862, and John about 1865. They raised three more children, probably including the Charles E. McIntyre profiled above. "Taken at Port Austin Nov 17, 1872. By Duncan McIntyre" was written on the paster holding an interesting ferrotype portrait into its carte de visite sized paper frame. In July of 1881, Duncan moved "... from Potter Street to Washington Avenue, next to the City Library. He still continues to Enlarge Pictures, Finish in Ink, Water Colors and Crayon. Satisfactory Prices as Usual." A few weeks later he was advertising "... Tin Types and Photographs of all Descriptions." You could get photographs for $2.00 per dozen or two good tintypes for 25 cents from Duncan early in 1882. He employed Clemmie Moon as a photographer in 1883. In the spring of that year Duncan cut his price for cabinet photographs to $3.00 per dozen, starting a price war in the local newspapers which lasted until December of 1884. By 1885 he was offering "... Tin types a specialty, 4 for 50¢, two for 35¢. Cabinet tin types, 50¢; card photos, $1.75 per dozen; cabinet photos, $2.50 and $3.00 per dozen." Some cabinet imprints from the late 1880s place Duncan's gallery at the corner of Genesee Avenue and Cass Street or at the west end of the Genesee Street bridge, where he was selling a dozen cabinets for $1.50 and four tintypes for 25 cents. Charles E. McIntyre worked for Duncan as a photographer in 1900. Eleanor was a widow living at Saginaw in 1910 with her daughter Margery and her husband, George W. Wallace.

Christie was born in Canada in March of 1860, fourth of the six children of Charles and Jane McKay, and was called Christiana as a child. She immigrated to the United States with her family in 1865, and she still was living with her parents in 1880. Young & McKay succeeded John E. Mast in the second floor gallery on the northeast corner of State and Jefferson Streets, which was their place of business throughout their career in Marshall. The changes in address were due to revisions in number assignments, conventions and street names. Christie and her partner, F. Adell Young, were sharing their home in 1900 with Christie's widowed mother. Christie lived until 1941. The Marshall Historical Society holds a portrait of her taken about 1885.

James was born at Kingston, Ontario, on October 8, 1842, the son of James H. and Eleanor (McCormick) McKee. Jessie E. Bennett was born in New York State to natives of New York in 1856, second of the five children of Elijah S. and Harriet A. (Parmaler) Bennett. Her family was living at Portage, Michigan, at the time of her marriage to James on January 13, 1876. She and James later lost two sons, but their daughter Grace was born about 1876 and survived. James was enumerated in 1880 as the proprietor of a dry goods store. It was reported in 1884 that "He closed his commercial affairs, and in 1881 founded the business in which he is at present engaged. He bought the building where he operates and added the necessary fixtures for the prosecution of his art.... He owns, besides his place of business, other property within the village corporation."

From 1870 to 1875 she boarded in Lansing with her brother Dougal McKenzie, who was a lawyer. That a North Lansing building was being prepared for Janet's art gallery was reported on November 7, 1871. She was sometimes listed as Jeanette or Jennette in Lansing, and as Janett in Stockbridge. She married Asher G. Miller in the spring of 1877. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Nellie in 1878 or early in 1879, and Ester in July of 1880. Janet died at Stockbridge on August 2, 1921. |           | 1 33 11 LLL 11 3 |

| His father came from Virginia and Robert was born in Northfield Township of Summit County, Ohio, on March 7, 1850, seventh of the eight children of Robert Cook McKisson and Rebecca (Viers) McKisson. He also had two older half-brothers and two younger half-sisters. Robert grew up on the family farm, attended the common schools, and only later graduated from the high school at Kent, Ohio. Chronic rheumatism incapacitated him for more physically demanding occupations, so he began the study of dentistry about 1871 at a commercial college in Cleveland, and continued at a dental college in Cincinnati. Robert seems to have used the surname McKisson consistently in Ohio, and the surname McKesson consistently in Michigan. Her father emigrated from England and Elizabeth G. Keating was born in Canada on August 22, 1859, and she married Robert in 1878. Their son Robert (later Ray) was born in Ohio on April 1, 1881. Daniel W. Thompson also was a principal of R. C. McKesson & Company. One of their cabinet photographs was of a little girl holding a stuffed fawn while seated on a stool supported by deer legs. Robert was elected Township Clerk in 1882, and he was re-elected continuously for twelve years or more. He served as County Deputy Game and Fish Warden from 1887 until September of 1894, and then was re-appointed in February of 1895. Elizabeth died at Manistique on April 8, 1901. Huldena Knuth was born in the Prussian region of Germany in 1880, and she was brought to America in 1882 by her parents, Carl and Wilhelmina Minnie (Raddatz) Knuth. She married Robert on April 21, 1902, and their sons were born in Manistique: Ferris on January 30, 1903, and Leonard on November 18, 1905. She and Robert divorced, and Huldena married William Demarsh on October 21, 1916. Robert died at Manistique on January 14, 1927. |           | 1 333 2222 1m 23 13 mt 2222 33333 |

His father came from Pennsylvania and Ed was born in Wisconsin to a mother from Ohio in March of 1860, third of the five children of Hugh H. and Mary McKinzie. His first wife was Canadian, and she gave birth in Michigan to their twins Edgar and Edwin in August of 1880. This marriage did not last, and Ed soon married Mrs. Hannah (Richardson) Sharp who was born in Canada in the summer of 1851. Hannah brought along her son William, who maintained a Fremont photograph gallery from 1897 through 1902. The opening of Ed's gallery at Fremont was announced in the spring of 1899, and probably was in association with his step-son William H. Sharp. Ed's wife was enumerated in 1900, 1910 and 1920 as Elizabeth, who was born in Canada on October 18, 1853, immigrated in 1884, and whose marriage to Ed in 1890 or 1891 was her second. Ed was a widower by 1930, when his widowed sister Emma was keeping house for him. The surname was spelled McKenzie in many records. 1 3

All of his grandparents were Irish, his father was born in New York State, and his mother was born either in Ireland or in Pennsylvania. Robert Bruce McKnight was born in Michigan on August 14, 1876, fifth of the six or more children of James and Maggie McKnight, and he became a slender man with grey eyes and dark hair. All census records were for Bruce McKnight, and all gazetteer listings were for R. B. McKnight. "R. B. McKNIGHT, WALLED LAKE, MICH." was printed on the post card backs of photographs such as one of a young man holding his tin snips and solder pot, four ladies in a rowboat, six girls with youngsters in strollers or baby buggies, and scenic views of Farmington and Walled Lake labeled in the negative. Many Walled Lake postal views with similar lettering had nothing else to identify the photographer. Bruce married about 1908. He and his wife, Beatrice Emma McKnight, never had children. In 1918 Bruce was working by the day on various farms near Walled Lake. In 1930 he and Beatrice were providing a room for a young school teacher.

Rebecca was born in Ohio about 1832, second of the eight children of James and Rebecca McLaughlin. Apparently she never married. "LYONS FLOOD. No. 1. Main street, looking west.... Miss R. R. McLAUGHLIN, Photographer, PEWAMO, MICH." was printed on a label affixed to the back of a stereo view. The captions of seven additional views were listed between No. 1 and the name of the photographer. A different label headed: "FLOODED VILLAGE SERIES. - From February 8 to 22, 1887, the village of Lyons..." listed 12 stereoscopic views, and was applied to the back of an unlisted view. Another stereograph related to the flood was printed from a negative on which had been lettered: "R. R. McLaughlin, Art., Pewamo, Mich." and was captioned in script on its back. "House of Correction, Ionia. By Miss R. R. McLaughlin, Muir" was written in ink below the stereoscopic pair of images of the cathedral-like buildings of the Intermediate Prison at Ionia. Similar script legends were penned on other stereo views of the prison, of Grand Ledge, Lansing, Lyons and Pewamo, and of rural scenes. "S.D.A. Camp Ground 1887, Grand Rapids, Mich. Miss R. R. McLaughlin, Artist, Charlotte, Mich." was lettered beneath a 3 ¾ by 7 ½ inch panorama made by re-photographing two nearly square photos which had been carefully matched where they met. "30 cts Miss R. R. McLaughlin, Photo Art, Charlotte, Eaton Co, Mich" was written on the back of the 5 by 8 mount of the resulting photograph. "PRE-HISTORIC RELICS. - Stereoscopic Views From The Original Negatives. - Prominent among the relics is found a tablet that has been deciphered to mean the 'ten commandments,' another the history of the flood while other Caskets contain specimens of ancient coins now in an advanced state of metallic decomposition. These valuable records of an extinct race have been faithfully photographed and mounted suitable for the stereoscope and furnished at 20 cents each, $1.00 per half dozen, $1.80 per doz. or the entire set - about 50 in number - at 12½ cents each. As it impossible to name these views, each negative is carefully numbered from 1 to 50 and the public are requested to order by number accordingly. No discoveries since the exhuming of the city of Pompeii has created such wide-spread interest, and no set of views is complete without these curiosities. Agents wanted. R. R. McLAUGHLIN, Charlotte, Mich." was printed on labels used both on stereo views and on single image cabinet mounts. The relics depicted have come to be known as the Soper Frauds.

| Gurden was born to natives of New York in Walton Township, New York, on June 30, 1846, eighth of the nine children of James and Hilichie (Suline) McLean. Rebecca was born at Sheffield, England, on September 6, 1848, first of the three children of William and Ann Cooling. She and her family were living in Vernon Township by 1860, and she married Gurden in Shiawassee County on January 5, 1868. Their children were born in Shiawassee County: James William on September 25, 1868, John on November 23, 1870, Edith on December 15, 1872, Burt on November 17, 1875, Ethel on August 8, 1878, Daisy on February 22, 1881, James G. on December 15, 1884, and Ray on July 31, 1887. Edith did not live for a full year, and Burt died when he was nineteen, but the other six survived. The Corunna gallery of Arthur J. Sutton was purchased in the spring of 1898 by Welte & McLean of Owosso, who were "Photographers and Portrait Artists. Manufacturers and Dealers in PICTURE FRAMES of all Styles and Sizes. Scenic and Commercial Photography a Specialty." It was reported in September of 1899 that Welte & McLean were succeeded in the Owosso studio by McLean & Schaible. Gurden advertised state wide in 1901 as "G. McLEAN, Photographer and Portrait Artist, Manufacturer and Dealer in PICTURE FRAMES of all Styles and Sizes. SCENIC AND COMMERCIAL PHOTOGRAPHY A SPECIALTY. OWOSSO, MICH." John, the second son of Gurden and Rebecca, continued the McLean Gallery following the death of Gurden at Owosso on February 27, 1901. | McLean's is in Bridgeton Township of Newaygo County, Michigan. John was born in Canada to Scotch parents in 1851, and he came to the United States in 1870. His marriage to Irene A. Brainard about 1882 was his second. Her father came from Ohio and Irene was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in 1862. Their children were born in Michigan: Grace about 1883, Ruby in 1887, Harry about 1889, Ernest on April 22, 1894, and John about 1896. The settlement of McLean's was named for the senior John, who became its first postmaster on May 3, 1898. The post office at McLean's was closed on May 31, 1909. John was living at Muskegon with the family of his daughter Ruby in 1920, when he had finally taken the first steps toward naturalization. Irene remained in Bridgeton Township when John moved to Muskegon. When he moved back to a Bridgeton Township farm they continued to live separately, and seem to have divorced. By 1930 John was a naturalized citizen of the United States. Irene died in 1936, and John lived until 1939. | 2 11 311 344 111 33 |   |

Jessie May Stanley was born in November of 1862 to parents from New York in Genesee County, Michigan, eighth of the thirteen children of Oliver and Lucy Cordelia (Stanley) Stanley. She grew up on the family farm, and she married James A. McLellan on May 14, 1882. Jessie gave birth to Harry in Michigan on April 11, 1883, and to Alice here on March 7, 1888. She undoubtedly participated in the photographic business of her husband during the decade prior to succeeding him in the Sherwood gallery. In December of 1898 it was announced that Mrs. McLellan had taken possession of the Bronson gallery which she had purchased from Mrs. Morgan. Jessie was enumerated as a widow in the 1900 and subsequent census reports. She was living at Tulsa in both 1920 and 1930 with the family of her divorced daughter, now Mrs. Alice Giacomini. Jessie died in 1930.

His sister was a year older, and they had a half-sister and a half-brother that were two decades older. Leon advertised nationally in October of 1899: "WANTED - Position as retoucher. Am a total abstainer. References furnished, and also samples of work. State salary paid in first letter. Address Leon McMannis, 213 Summit Street, Ypsilanti, Mich." He boarded with a family at Alma. The Pisgah Home was a missionary hospital where Leon was enumerated as a laborer. At Pasadena he lodged with a family in 1920, and he was living with his widowed mother in 1930. Apparently Leon never married, and he died in Los Angeles County on February 5, 1950. |           | 1 333 222 111 33 |

| His father emigrated from Ireland and Alphonso was born in January of 1845 at Portland, Ontario, second of the ten children of William and Mary McManus. In May of 1868 he informed "...the citizens of Traverse City that he has opened a gallery in this place where he is prepared to take pictures in the latest styles of the art." For several years he seems to have maintained photographic businesses in Newboro and Traverse City which were more than five hundred miles apart overland, and much farther by boat, the preferred method of travel in the 1870s. Though Alphonso was not the first to establish a photographic business in Traverse City, for many years the McManus Brothers were the only photographers in the Traverse Region. His only associate in McManus Brothers was Thomas D. McManus. They produced stereoscopic views of Traverse City. They advertised early in 1873: "... Having rooms fitted with all the modern improvements and an operator of long experience, we are prepared to Do All Kinds of Work in our line as well and at as reasonable rates as can be procured outside. COPYING AND ENLARGING DONE TO ORDER. (Jennie) Manwaring of Traverse City in July of 1880, they lived on Peninsula Street for many years, and they never had children. He attended the inaugural convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Chicago in August of 1880. In 1916, the McManus Brothers gallery had been at 251 or 253 East Front Street for as long as anyone could remember. Alphonso died after a brief illness at his home on March 4, 1916, survived by his wife, four brothers and three sisters. James was born in Canada on May 8, 1876, probably third of the six children of James and Agnes McManus. He became a slender man with grey eyes and brown hair, and came to the United States in 1898 or earlier. Her father emigrated from England and Stella was born in Ohio about 1878. She married James in 1903 or 1904, and she gave birth to Harold in May of 1909 and to Evelyn in 1913. James purchased the studio of the veteran Chelsea photographer Ernest E. Shaver from his widow and took possession on April 1, 1918. He advertised: "... As the saying is, 'It matters not, whether we are rich or poor, we have no lease of life.' Suggestion: Make an appointment for a sitting today – tomorrow may be too late, and the kind of Photos we make will please you. OPERATING HOURS, 9:30 A. M. TO 3 P. M." His father emigrated from Ireland and Thomas was born in Canada in December of 1849, fourth of the ten children of William and Mary McManus. Her father came from Vermont and Julia Therman was born in Michigan to an Irish mother in April of 1859. She married Thomas in 1878 or 1879. Their sons were born in Michigan: Benjamin in May of 1880, and Theron in September of 1895. Thomas and Alphonso were the only proprietors of the McManus Brothers gallery. It was reported in 1873 that "There are many things in McManus Bros.' photograph gallery well worth seeing. Every lover of beautiful pictures who visits Traverse City should call there and examine what may there be seen without a penny's expense. One peculiar and valuable feature of their work is the skill shown in making a new, beautiful and perfect picture from an old and damaged one. This is often a matter of great interest to those who have lost friends and who possess only marred and imperfect likenesses of them. Just how this thing is done we do not know, but that it is done is certain.... McManus Bros.' place of business is on the north side of Front Street opposite Paige Bros.' store. They propose to remain here only until the first of May." Thomas and Julia were living in 1880 up in Petoskey, where he was the proprietor of a saw mill, so in the early days he had more of a financial interest rather than an operating interest in the photographic business. Both Alphonso and Thomas were associated with Charles E. McManus in the furniture business about 1882. Their gallery was on the north side of Front Street two doors west of Park Place in 1884, and was said to be one of the finest equipped galleries in Michigan in all branches of photographing. Tom was the proprietor of a shop called a bazaar in 1908 and in 1911, and of a dry goods store from 1914 to 1917. He apparently operated the McManus Brothers studio on his own for a year or two after the death of Alphonso.

Alfred was born in Ontario to English parents, probably in January of 1849, and was a widower by 1881. He apparently had little or no involvement with photography before coming to Detroit. He produced cabinet portraits at $2.00 per dozen from 153 Woodward Avenue which betrayed no lack of experience, and which promised: "... Special care taken with babies and children. Instantaneous Process only used. Copying and Enlarging at equally low prices..." Mounts with 150 and 152 Woodward Avenue as the gallery address carried similar statements. He employed Miss Kathleen S. Turner as a clerk in 1887, and Miss Eleanor Henrion as a clerk in 1889. He advertised nationally in May of 1889: "FOR SALE - A fine Gallery doing a good business. Splendid location on best avenue in the city. Will pay for itself the first year...." and again in September of 1889: "FOR SALE - Fine Gallery in Detroit. A bargain. Good business; 1,200 negatives. Reason for selling, have two galleries...." McMichael & J. Wesley Hughes employed Lincoln E. Smith as a retoucher in 1889, and Smith continued to work for Alfred in 1990 as a photo printer. McMichael & Hughes imprints, and those of McMichael after 1890, used 210-212 Woodward Avenue as the gallery address. Alfred employed Harry T. Hall as a photographer in 1890; Margaret A. Bruce as a retoucher in 1891; Miss Maggie E. O'Leary as a clerk, Edward Chartier as a photographer and Samuel J. Ritchie as a photo printer in 1892. In 1893 the studio occupied two floors, each 40 by 80 feet in area. "His reception rooms, parlors and office are models of refined elegance. The operating, printing, finishing and retouching rooms are all fully equipped with the latest improved instruments and appliances, and several skilled artists are employed. In addition to executing photography in all its branches, Mr. McMichael is prepared to enlarge portraits in water colors, pastel, India ink and crayon, and on porcelain...." William G. Starkey was employed as a photo artist in 1893 and as an artist in 1894 and 1895, Samuel J. Ritchie returned as a photo printer in 1894 and 1895, and John N. Mutton served as a photo printer in 1895 and 1896. Alfred was chairman of the entertainment committee for the Detroit convention of the Photographers' Association of America in August of 1895. One event arranged by "the hustling McMichael" was a steamboat excursion up the river and across Lake St. Clair to the famous "Flats" with a stop at the Rushmere Club, and with supper and dancing on the return trip by moonlight. During the convention he was awarded a second place bronze medal for his exhibit of composition group photographs. He received first prize in the composition class early in 1896 at the first annual meeting of the Michigan Photographers' Association, and the gold medal for the best single picture exhibited was awarded to his study "The Maiden's Reverie," which was reproduced as the frontispiece of a photographic journal. He received a total of four first prizes and one other medal, and was elected treasurer of the MPA for 1896. During the 1896 P A of A convention at Celeron, New York, he was awarded a bronze medal in Class D and judged to have the best entries in Classes F and H. Alfred served as first vice president of the Michigan Photographers' Association in 1897, and at its fourth annual convention, held in Grand Rapids on February 1, 1899, he was awarded the first prize in Class A, four pictures each ten inches or larger. He received the third prize in Class A at the PA of A national convention six months later. Alfred was boarding with the family of photographer James Arthur in 1900. "McMichael, 210 and 212 Woodward Ave." was printed below the image on 3 by 2 inch photograph mounts. Alfred was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905, and an exhibitor at the 1905 convention of the Ohio-Michigan Photographers' Association. He advertised nationally in the summer of 1906: "FOR SALE - Old established studio; splendid business; best location; good prices; equipped to 20 x 24; Dallmeyer and Ross lenses; Aristo lamp and bromide outfit; a money maker and a bargain...." Alfred died in Detroit on September 12, 1907.

His father emigrated from Ireland and Ephraim was born in New York State in June of 1856, third of the four sons of David and Jane McMillen, "From EPH. McMILLEN'S Photograph Rooms, ....., Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged. Picture Frames always on Hand." was printed on some of his earlier card photograph mounts and stereographs, with "Flushing" written in on the dotted line. Later card mounts located his gallery at the east end of the bridge, and on some of these his name was crossed out and "M. A. Call" was printed above it. Her father came from New York and Myra was born in Michigan in 1866 of early in 1867. She married Ephraim about 1881, and then proceeded to give birth to five children. They included three sons born in Michigan: Ephraim about 1891, Franklin about 1894, and William about 1897. She and Ephraim also adopted a daughter named Pearl, who was born in Michigan to a mother from Wisconsin about 1893.

Jackson (Jackson Art Gallery) PHOTOGRAPHERS at 198 & 200 Main st east next to the Hurd House ..... 1874-1875 m 1

Moses was born at Argyle, New York, on January 3, 1813. He received an academic education, spent two years at Union College, and graduated in medicine in 1840 at Fairfield, New York. He settled in Jackson in 1841, and practiced medicine successfully for ten years before turning his attention to real estate, at which he was even more successful. He was elected to the Michigan Senate on the Free Soil ticket in 1852 and served one two-year term. He was involved in the construction of the Jackson branch of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad and of the Grand River Valley Railroad. He was mayor of Jackson in 1866 and 1867. He formed a corporation capitalized at $30,000 with himself, his daughter Belle McNaughton, and Mrs. Anna C. Vail as directors, to establish the Jackson Art Gallery. Anna had been conducting a gallery in the same location, and she and Belle operated the gallery, though Moses was identified as the manager in 1874.

His father emigrated from Scotland and Samuel was born in Canada on March 8, 1841, perhaps last of the twelve children of Simco George McNeil and Sarah (Shilton) McNeil. His family moved in 1847 to the United States, and Samuel later became a naturalized citizen. He enlisted as a private in Company H of the Ninth Michigan Infantry at Orange in Ionia County on August 16, 1861, and was mustered into the Union Army on October 15, 1861. The regiment spent the months of November and December at West Point, Kentucky, and then traveled down the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers to reach Nashville, Tennessee, on January 23, 1862. The Ninth helped in June to drive the Confederates out of Chattanooga, Tennessee, and then had an isolated third of the regiment surrendered after a fierce nine-hour battle against an overwhelming force of cavalry. At the end of December the Union right was crushed at Stone River, and by holding the Nashville Pike the Ninth checked the stampede to the rear and returned the disorganized forces to their commands. Samuel was discharged for disability at Louisville, Kentucky, on September 12, 1863. Philena Cross was born in Michigan in 1848, the daughter of Joseph and Sarah Cross. She married Samuel on November 7, 1865, and she seems to have brought along two daughters, for Mary and Angelina were born in Michigan between 1863 and 1865. Philena gave birth in Michigan to Julia about 1866, to Agnes about 1867, to Elmer in February of 1870, to Electa about 1871, to Zora about 1874, to Wallace about 1878, and to Charles in 1879. Philena died in 1881. Mary was born in Michigan to Canadian parents in July of 1872, and she married Samuel about 1890. Their children were born in Michigan: Nettie in June of 1891, Clara in February of 1896, Daisy in September of 1897, Martha about 1900, Ralph about 1903, and May about 1905. Samuel died on August 14, 1909, and in 1910 Mary was farming in Gilmore Township of Isabella County, Michigan. 1

His father came from New York and Burton was born at Mayville to a Canadian mother in May of 1870, second of the five children of Almond H. and Mary Elizabeth McNinch. Carrie Belle Fox was born at Mayville to parents from Ontario on January 7, 1871, first of the four children of Hiram and Margaret Catherine (Clink) Fox. She married Burton at Mayville on October 6, 1892, and their children were born at Mayville: Linton Bernard McNinch on November 3, 1893, Harold Fox McNinch on January 13, 1895, DeVere McNinch on March 18, 1897, and Junita Belle McNinch on March 25, 1899. Carrie died at Mayville on August 8, 1903. Burton's cabinet photographs include one of a proud young man with his flute, his wife and their little son, and another of a girl with her arm around a woman with severely crossed eyes. He advertised locally in December of 1905: "Order that portrait now in order to have it in time. They make very desirable presents for Xmas. A fine line of frames and they are cheaper than ever at McNinch's." Burton planned to be in his gallery every Wednesday and Saturday from late October until the first of December, 1907, and then to be in the gallery every day for a while. Beginning early in May of 1908, he leased his gallery to John J. Shaffer for the summer. Before Christmas he was warning his patrons: "If you expect first class work at the Photograph Gallery these short days, it will be necessary for you to be in not later than 2:30 standard time, and don't bring any flour on your face...." About 1905 Burton married Mrs. Daisy Crosby, who was born in Michigan to a mother from New Hampshire in 1876. Her four-year-old daughter Winifred came along with Daisy, who gave birth to Leland (later Clare) in 1907, and to Donald in October of 1909. Burton disposed of his studio early in 1913 and asked for all photography business to be settled by March 15. A few weeks later he moved down state and went into the paper hanging business. Burton was back in Mayville when he died on March 4, 1929.

McPherson & A. J. Roloson produced stereo views in the 1870s from Darien, Wisconsin, and in the 1880s McPherson, Roloson & Graves made stereoscopic views at Delavan, Wisconsin. Henry's father came from New Hampshire and he was born in Ohio to a mother from New York in August of 1831. His wife Helen was born in Ohio to parents from New York about 1836. She was described as a portrait artist in 1880. Their elder son, Adelbert C. McPherson, was born in Ohio in October of 1853. He married a girl named Jennie who was born in Michigan about 1856, had a daughter born in Wisconsin in 1879, and was enumerated as a photographer in 1880. Their younger son, Paul A. McPherson, was born in Ohio in August of 1860, and he too was identified as a photographer in 1880. Henry was a widower providing a home for Paul and his wife in 1900, when Adelbert and his wife lived five doors down the street. Both Adelbert and Paul were enumerated as Rockford photographers.

Harriet Ezeltha Reader was born to parents from Ohio in Crystal Township of Montcalm County, Michigan, on June 27, 1875, last of the two children of Andrew J. and Edith Ellen (Siple) Reader. Her brother Marcus was four years older, and as an adult she was known as Hattie. John Pierson was born to a mother from Ohio in Elkhart Township, Indiana, on April 4, 1859, the son of William J. and Nancy (McWherter) Pierson. Ellen Landora Coonce was born in Ohio on December 6, 1864, and she married John in Montcalm County, Michigan, on March 14, 1881. They had two daughters and a son born between September of 1883 and October of 1885, but one of the girls and the boy lived for only a few months. Ellen died on December 31, 1886. John had changed his surname from Pierson to McPierson by the time he married Hattie in the spring of 1891. Their daughters were born at Wolcottville, Indiana: Edith on August 28, 1892, and Edna on December 29, 1894. Hattie died in Indiana on October 8, 1918, and John died on November 23, 1931, in the State Hospital at Traverse City, where he had been a patient for more than a year. Some time after 1910 Hattie may have divorced John McPierson and married a Canadian named George Hurst.

His father came from Massachusetts and Charles was born at Farmington, Michigan, on November 3, 1843, second of the four children of James I. and Louisa Mead. The family moved in 1852 to Lansing, where his father became a very successful businessman and dry goods merchant. Miss Harriet L. Umphrey of Meridian married Charles on November 17, 1869. Harriet was born in Michigan to parents from New York in April of 1845, second of the four children of William S. and Sophronia Umphrey. She gave birth in Lansing to Earl about 1870, to Bernard about 1873, to Ethel about 1875, and to Deak in August of 1879. Charles advertised locally in June of 1876: "... Having for a number of years Ripped off Calico and Weighed up Cotton Batting for nearly ALL OF YOU, your features have thus become in a general way impressed upon my mind, But I Want Your Photograph! And accordingly have bought ENGELHART'S PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY, and secured an OPERATOR who has Squinted through the CAMERA for NINE Consecutive Years!..." This experienced operator was George Kean. Charles advertised again three days later: "... For Two Weeks, beginning with Friday, June 23d, I will make Photographs for $1.50 Per Dozen! Finished in the highest style of art! Don't any one stay away because their ears are large. We have Children's Sizes. We are not doing a tin-type business, but if any Fellow and his Girl wants a Picture right off, we can fix them on tin in a little higher style of art than has ever been done in this city. ROOMS ALWAYS OPEN. NIGHT OPERATOR IN ATTENDANCE." He hired Bay City photographic artist J. Harvey Scotford in November of 1876. "Tin-types, if you want them, taken with the same care as a negative." and "Hereafter I shall make in addition to my $3.00 per Dozen cards a quality at $2.00 per Dozen." were included in his newspaper advertising. "C. H. MEAD, Photo-Artist, Rooms opposite Republican Printing Office. Copying and Enlarging a specialty. Lansing, Mich." was printed on his card photograph mounts. A much longer message was printed on stereo mounts: "VIEWS IN AND ABOUT LANSING. I aim to produce the best and most artistic photographic results. By using all modern appliances, the best Lenses and purest Chemicals, I design to make my Portrait work, as well as Views, durable and beautiful. Enlargements made from any kind of pictures, in CRAYON, INDIA INK, or OIL COLORS, and satisfaction guaranteed. Prof. J. S. JENNINGS has charge of this branch, which is sufficient assurance that the work will be well done..." Following a list of twenty specific stereoscopic views of streets and public buildings, the imprint continues: "... Also a large number of other Views, including many Private Residences and River Views. 25c. EACH--SENT BY MAIL ALL OVER THE WORLD. C. H. MEAD, LANSING, MICH." Mead & Jennings also produced stereo views. "PERMANENT ARTOTYPES. The Most Beautiful Pictures Made. Mead & Jennings' Art Studio, Lansing, Mich. Exclusive Licensees for the beautiful and permanent Artotype printing process, in Lansing." was printed on the back of some cabinet mounts. The Artotype was a photo-mechanical continuous tone process patented by two German inventors and controlled by a New York company. With production costs and mounting requirements similar to that of silver prints, the principal advantage of the Artotype was the permanence of ink. A fire was discovered in the Engelhart Block at one o'clock on the morning of March 26, 1878, which consumed the operating room of Mead & Jennings' gallery and damaged their work department and reception room. Six cameras were destroyed, including a large solar costing over $300.00. All plates, negatives, chemicals, draperies and furniture were ruined, along with many paintings. Their completely uninsured loss was estimated at $2,500.00. Two weeks later they were fitting up the second story of the building on the southeast corner of Washington Avenue and Allegan Street and had expectations of opening a new gallery within ten days. Mead & Jennings dissolved their partnership at the end of 1879, and were succeeded by Burdick & Powe early in 1880. Charles died of heart failure at the age of 69 on November 4, 1912, survived by his wife and three sons. More than forty of his drawings of Lansing made between 1868 and 1874 are held by the Lansing Public Library.

She married Harry about 1884. Their daughter Lila was born in Indiana in February of 1890. Their other daughters were born in Michigan: Addie in February of 1895, and Hazel in April of 1897. Addie married a man named McCarthy but was living with her parents in 1920. In addition to the usual portraits, Harry's cabinet photos included well-done double exposures of a bearded man sitting and reading while his second image stands behind him with a threatening axe, and of eight-year-old Lila Meador in various pairs of poses and costumes. "MEADER" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs of the Williamston ladies band posed in the park, and others of the ruins of the depot, elevator and a church in Fowlerville after the cyclone of May 15, 1909. "Meador" in script, above "WILLIAMSTON, MICH." in smaller block letters, was blind stamped into plain grey 8 by 10 inch mounts carrying 5 by 8 photographs of groups of students posed beside their New Hudson school in the early 1930s.

His father emigrated from Scotland and Henry was born in Michigan to a mother from New York on March 29, 1883, the only son of Jacob and Mary Medler. His sister Grace was born in August of 1880, and his sister Gertrude probably was born earlier. Ella was born at Saginaw to German parents on September 17, 1885, seventh of the nine children of John and Mary (Frahm) Gehrls. She married Henry about 1906. Their children were born at Saginaw: Geraldine on July 31, 1908, and Ronald in 1914. Henry was a medium sized man with blue eyes and dark brown hair who by 1918 was getting slightly bald. He was divorced by 1930, when he was living with the family of his sister Grace and her husband, George Koeppen. Ella died at Saginaw on January 1, 1933, and Henry died up at Mio in Oscoda County, Michigan.

Agnes was called Aartje as a child, and she was born over in Holland in 1868 or early in 1869. Her parents, Gerrit and Petronella (sometimes Nellie) Meinardi, brought her along when they immigrated to the United States in 1870. Her sisters Giltje (later Tillie) and Akka were born in Illinois between 1870 and 1873, and her brother William was born there in September of 1876. More additions to the family were born in Michigan: Simon in February of 1878, Gerrit in November of 1879, and Marie in October of 1888. Agnes, Tillie and William were listed as boarding with their mother in 1893. Gerrit and Petronella had moved by 1900 to Chicago, where they were providing a home for their four youngest children.

His parents emigrated from Holland and Jacob was born at Kalamazoo on August 23, 1894, third of the five sons of Peter and Bertha Meints. He became a five foot ten inch slender man with blue eyes, light brown hair and a ruddy complexion. On the back of a post card photograph of the roller coaster at a Detroit amusement park was stamped: "Printed by Jacob Meints, 741 Portage St., Kalamazoo, Mich." The Meints family lived on Portage Street in 1900, and at 741 Portage Street from 1910 through 1920 or longer. Jacob became a veteran of World War I. He obtained a passport in April of 1924 in order to travel through France, England, the Netherlands, Germany and Belgium. He arranged to sail from New York on S. S. Majestic on May 24, and returned from Liverpool to Quebec on S. S. Canada in September of 1924. Jacob still was single in 1930, when he was living on Portage Street with his widowed mother.

William was born at Guelph, Ontario, to Scotch parents on March 25, 1861, the only son of Henry and Margaret Melville. His sisters, Helen and Margaret, were born between 1864 and 1868. Lucy Isabel Craven was born in Canada to English parents on June 29, 1859, ninth of the thirteen children of Cranswick and Ann Craven. She married William at Toronto on October 30, 1884. Their children were born in Canada, Lucy in May of 1885 and John in April of 1891. William commuted across the Detroit River from his Windsor home to his jobs in Detroit. He crossed the river for the last time with his family on August 27, 1898, when they headed for Sault Sainte Marie. There William offered his services as a taxidermist as well as a photographer. The opening of the Ashmun Street studio was reported early in 1900. "W. P. MELVILLE, Soo, Mich." was printed on some photograph mounts. William was naturalized a citizen of the United States at Sault Sainte Marie on October 22, 1904. "When reordering return this CARD with No. wanted written on back. W. P. MELVILLE, McMillan, Mich." was stamped on the post card back of some photographs, including one with "Melville" and "School, Seney, Mich." lettered on its negative. Postal views of the streets, residences, stores, school children and mills of Garnet, numbered to at least 9 and postmarked in 1911 or 1912, had "Melville Photo" lettered on their negatives. "Melville" or "Melville Photo" was lettered on the negatives of scenes at Germfask, Helmer and McMillan and of several post card views of the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical plant at Newberry, some of them postmarked in 1911, 1912 or 1913. William opened a photographic studio in the rear of Leighton's store at Newberry in May of 1912. He applied for a passport on June 4, 1915, with the intention of prospecting and mining in Norway and Sweden for no more than six months. His return trip was on S. S. Bergensfjord, leaving Bergen, Norway, on September 29 and arriving at New York on October 8, 1915.

Herbert was born in North Carolina in September of 1835 or earlier, and in census reports usually was designated as mulatto. Celia was born in North Carolina about 1830, and she married Herbert about 1853. Three of their children were born in North Carolina: William about 1855, Anna about 1856, and Lillian about 1859. The rest of their children were born in Ohio: Mabel about 1860, George about 1862, Catherine and Frederick about 1865, and Franklin (later Frank) about 1867. Celia and her children also were designated as mulatto. Herbert was a widower by 1880, when only William, Anna, George and Frank still were sharing his home. Mary was born in Pennsylvania in November of 1841, and she married Herbert about 1882. She was described as black, and they never had children. John E. Storey was an Adrian barber for several years prior to his photographic partnership with Herbert, and for many years afterwards.

His parents, Charles J. and Eleanor (Wackershausen) Merbach, emigrated from Prussia and Austria. They had a daughter and a son born in Wisconsin between 1855 and 1858, and then Charles was born at Portage City, Wisconsin, on March 15, 1859. His father died before the end of the year, and Charles was still a small boy when the widow brought her three children to Detroit, where he attended Barstow School. His mother married Samuel Snell and had at least three more children. Her father emigrated from Germany and Rosa Schmidt was born in Indiana to a mother from Switzerland in January of 1861. She and Charles were married in Detroit on September 16, 1883, and their daughter Lola was born in September of 1884. Charles became one of the prominent Masons in Detroit. Mr. and Mrs. Merbach erected the Merbach Apartments at John R and Erskine Streets in 1905, and after retiring from the shoe business they built the Carola Apartment Hotel in 1913. They managed this hotel for two years and still owned the property when Charles died on May 5, 1920, survived by Rosa and their only child, Mrs. Lois Merbach Hamilton.

Edwin was born at Leicester, England, to Edwin and Mary Jane (Paget) Merchant on July 1, 1887. He was a tall slender man with light blue eyes and light brown hair when he immigrated in 1908. Edwin was residing in the Battle Creek Sanitarium in 1910, and he may have been an inmate. "E. T. MERCHANT, Industrial and Commercial Photographer, Phone 301-F1, 139 West Main St., Battle Creek, Mich." was stamped on the back of the 11 ¾ by 13 ¾ mount of a 7 ¾ by 9 ½ photograph of a thirty foot Christmas tree on a sleigh with five sets of runners pulled by a four horse team in an urban setting. Her father came from Vermont and Derr Alice Lewis was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in December of 1881. She was first of the three children of Harvey E. and Alice J. (Owen) Lewis, and their only daughter. Derr taught school before she and Edwin were married at Battle Creek on October 27, 1916. By 1917 Edwin had formally declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States. "Photographed by E. T. Merchant, Feb. 1, 1918" was penned in script on the back of a 7½ by 9½ photograph of a very new looking truck with chains on the rear wheels and canvas shields around the open driver's compartment. Edwin was inducted into the army at Lansing on October 1, 1918, and was sent to Columbus Barracks, Ohio. The war ended, and he was honorably discharged on December 4, 1918. Some time in the 1920s Edwin was naturalized a citizen of the United States. Derr died at Los Angeles on April 2, 1953, and Edwin died there on March 9, 1955.

John was born about 1827 at Somerset, Maine. He and Miss Louisa Ackham were married on January 15, 1852, and their son John was born in 1855 or 1856. In May of 1857, they purchased a 20 acre farm near Disco and Utica in Shelby Township, Macomb County, Michigan. Their daughter Hattie was born in 1859 or early in 1860. On August 2, 1862, John enlisted at Romeo in the 22nd Michigan Infantry, and at Pontiac on August 14 was mustered in as a private in Company B. When the regiment departed Pontiac early in September for Lexington, Kentucky, John was sick and was left behind. After treatment for typhoid fever in a Pontiac hospital he was sent home on a convalescent furlough, and by November was able to rejoin his regiment. In January of 1863 he was detailed as a nurse in a Lexington hospital. By the end of January he was a patient there, being treated for erysipelas and dyspepsia. Two months later he was transferred to St. Mary's Hospital in Detroit, and was discharged for disability from the hospital and the army on June 1, 1863. He tried peddling for a couple of years, and then turned to raising what produce he could on his little farm. His first wife died in May of 1867 and he married 34-year-old Eliza Ann Beal at Berlin in St. Clair County on September 14, 1867. Their son Gardner (later Elton) was born on January 19, 1870. John was 5 feet 9 inches tall with a light complexion, brown hair and blue eyes when he applied for an Invalid Pension on September 9, 1871. Due to inadequate efforts by his attorneys and his own negligence, his pension had not been granted at the time of his death at Bellaire on May 15, 1882. With a son under 16, his widow took up the effort and was unsuccessful for eight years, but was receiving a pension of $12.00 per month when she died at Bellaire on April 2, 1906.

His parents came from Connecticut and John was born about 1836 in Chenango County, New York, third of the seven known children of John D. and Temperance Merriam. He was five feet five inches tall with a light complexion, blue eyes and light hair when he enlisted at Conneaut as a private in Captain Thomas J. Carlin's Company of the Second Independent Battery of Ohio Light Artillery on August 28, 1861. The battery arrived on September 21 at Jefferson City, Missouri, and marched from there on October 4. They reached Tipton on October 7, Warsaw on October 17 and Springfield on October 22, 1861. John contracted diarrhea on this march, it became chronic, and he spent most of the next six months under the care of the regimental surgeon. From Batesville, Arkansas, he was given 20 days sick leave on May 16, and he was discharged on a Surgeon's Certificate of Disability at St. Louis, Missouri, on May 31, 1862. The Niles photographer was identified as J. I. Merriam. Merriam & Wells were succeeded by D. C. Dunham. Her father came from Vermont and Clara was born in Massachusetts in January of 1852, second of the three children of William R. and Lavina Huntoon. She married John at Red Oak Junction, Iowa, on September 14, 1875. Their first two children were born in Iowa: Nellie in 1876 or 1877, and Judson in February of 1880. John continued to be afflicted with diarrhea, and applied for an Invalid Pension in April of 1880. Clara gave birth to Chester in Iowa on August 22, 1884, and to Bernice in Nebraska on January 26, 1887. The Weeping Water photographer was identified only as Merriam. John's death on July 25, 1899, was attributed to chronic diarrhea. Nellie died as a child, but Clara was providing a home at Omaha in 1900 for her other three children, her widowed father, and her sister Agnes.

His father came from Massachusetts and Fremont was born in Michigan to a mother from New York about 1848, second of the three children of Joseph and Elizabeth Merrick. He seems to have been a nephew of the photographer and dentist George W. Merrick. His brother Herbert was a year or two older, his sister Sarah was three years younger, and they had two older half-sisters with the surname Smart. Herbert, Fremont and Sarah were living at Kendallville with their mother in 1870.

| George was born in Massachusetts to parents from New Hampshire about 1809, the son of Sarah Merrick and the brother of Rufus and Joseph Merrick. Nancy was born in Connecticut about 1814, and she married George about 1835. Their children were born in Michigan: Landeala about 1837, George about 1839, and Reuben about 1842. The second annual Michigan State Fair was held at Ann Arbor late in September of 1850, and the daguerreotypes exhibited there by G. W. Merrick were deemed to be deserving of special notice. It was reported in 1854 that "Dr. Merrick, of Adrian, Mich., is still producing Daguerreotypes in a style worthy of our Art." and "... His skill as an artist has been substantially set forth by the reception of several prizes, at various exhibitions." A. S. Barber was Merrick's partner on the south side of Maumee Street between Main and Broad Streets in 1859. There was another George W. Merrick in Adrian from 1850 through 1880, who was a deaf and dumb married cabinet maker. |           | 2 44 22 111 333 AA 22 |

Charles was the son of the photographer Leonard A. and Sarah C. Merrill, and was born in New York State in December of 1852. Cabinet photos from Charles' Photograph and Gem Gallery at 72 Canal Street included views of industrial buildings. Merrill, Bayne & Company produced, in addition to studio portraits, a stereograph of a salesman with his satchel of stereo views open on his lap, and a series of stereoscopic views along the route of the Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad and of the resort area around Petoskey and Bay View. A small label with "C. L. MERRILL, ARTIST, PORTER BLOCK, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH." was adhered to the back of a mount usually reserved for stereo views but carrying a single four by seven inch view of the Harbor Point Hotel in Emmet County. In 1880 Porter's Block was at 133 and 135 Monroe, on the southwest corner of Monroe and Division Streets. Charles seems to have lived with his parents until he married about 1881. His bride was Annie (later Anna), who was born in Canada in June of 1849 and came to the United States in 1875. Their son Leroy was born in Grand Rapids in December of 1885. Leonard A. Merrill was a photographer for Merrill & Bayne, and was associated with Charles in C. L. Merrill & Company. Employees of the company included Cory P. Montross as a photographer in 1883; Miss Nellie Moriarity as a retoucher from 1886 through 1888 and as a photo printer in 1889; and Miss Winifred I. Sollau as a photo printer in 1888. One series of stereo views made by C. L. Merrill & Company about 1883 consisted of two views of a residence at the corner of Lyon and Ransom Streets in Grand Rapids, plus seven bird's-eye views taken in different directions from the roof of this house. Among the cabinet photographs taken by C. L. Merrill & Company were a portrait of a policeman and a view of a top-hatted gentleman in his two-horse carriage in front of his home. It was reported in August of 1892 that "Mr. E. H. King now occupies the gallery formerly operated by C. L. Merrill." The gazetteer for 1893 listed both King and Merrill at 51 Monroe Street. More than two dozen cabinet photographs of a child with Down Syndrome were taken periodically during the first five or six years of his life. Most were portraits of the boy alone, but others were taken indoors or outdoors with his mother and/or father. Except for a few on blank mounts with no imprint, all were on the mounts of C. L. Merrill & Company. They were augmented by three later photographs of the boy and portraits of his mother and father, all on mounts from The Sterling Studio, 75 Hinckley Block, Seattle. The young man probably was Leroy A. Merrill, who still was living with Charles and Anna in 1910, and was without an occupation. Anna and Leroy do not appear in the census for 1920, when Charles was married to Aileen who was born in Ohio to a mother from New York about 1860.

James was born at Haverhill, Massachusetts, to parents from New Hampshire on November 3, 1881, third of the four children of James C. and Ella F. Merrill. He returned to the Illinois College of Photography at Effingham for a few days visit in the spring of 1905. Frank Forsyth was the son of a professional photographer, but does not seem to have continued a photographic career after his partnership at Flint with James. Lillian W. Short was born in Michigan in November of 1869, the only child of Albert E. and Polly A. Short. She married Edwin A. Howe in 1888 or early in 1889, and their children were born in Michigan: Ethel in January of 1890, Albert in September of 1891, and Clarissa in May of 1895. Lillian was a widow when she and James went from Flint to Windsor, Ontario, to be married on August 15, 1905. She still was keeping house for James in 1942.

Leonard was born in Vermont to natives of Vermont in January of 1828, the son of Alonzo and Jerusha Merrill. Sarah was born in New York to natives of New York in September of 1827, and by August of 1850 she was married to Leonard. Their children, Charles L. and Minnie L. Merrill, were born in New York between 1852 and 1856. There was a shortage of pennies in 1863, so many merchants filled a need by having penny sized copper tokens coined which carried their name. One example had "L. A. MERRILL, PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH." on one side, with a liberty head circled by stars and 1863 on the other. In 1865 Leonard claimed: "All of the latest styles of work done here." The large and handsome gallery that he opened in 1867 was upstairs in the Post Office Block and could be reached through the entrance on Canal Street between Lyon and Pearl, or from Exchange Place through the door next to the side entrance of the post office. Each copy of the 1867 Grand Rapids City Directory had a photograph of the editor pasted into it as part of Leonard's advertisement, which stated: "At this Gallery the Public may rely upon getting the best Pictures at the lowest living rates." He used the same statement in 1868 for his PHOTOGRAPH and Gem Gallery, along with: "The BEST is the CHEAPEST... See us if you want a GOOD PICTURE, and at a reasonable figure. Special Attention paid to Gems!" Leonard employed his son Charles as a clerk from 1874 through 1876, and later was his associate in C. L. Merrill & Company. Leonard had been an invalid for many years before his death at the Chicago home of his son-in-law on February 13, 1904. His body was brought to Grand Rapids for burial.

His father emigrated from Canada, and William was born in New York in September of 1854, fifth of the eight children of William R. and Cornelia Merrill. Olive was born in Pennsylvania to English parents in May of 1846, and she married William in 1882. They settled in Clinton County in 1882, and they never had children. William advertised in 1884 as a "Photographic Artist, Landscape and Stereoscopic Views Made to Order. All Styles of Picture Frames." Two different card mounts used the same words: "MERRILL'S PHOTOS. QUICKER'N WINK. Cor. Main and Clinton Streets, OVID, MICH." During the later 1880s, William employed Harrison L. Burgess and taught him photography. Late in 1898 Frank H. Nix was reported to have leased the Merrill gallery in Ovid. In a 1905 ad, William claimed: "Established 1881." Some time before 1915 William served as a Trustee of the Village of Ovid. Neither William nor Olive was enumerated in the 1930 census report.

John and his wife were born in Michigan, he about 1869 and Lillian to an Irish mother in 1871. "Merritt Photo" was lettered on the negative of a 1915 post card photograph of an unusual cottage on Corey Lake, and was scribed into the negative of another postal photo taken in Mendon shortly after the fire of October 4, 1916. Corey Lake is five miles west, and Mendon is twelve miles northeast of Three Rivers. In the 1920s Merritt also sold camera supplies. Mrs. Lillie B. Her father emigrated from Canada and Letta was born in Michigan in September of 1866. His father emigrated from England and Charles W. Merritt was born in Canada in July of 1859. Both of their mothers were English in one census report and Canadian in another. Charles immigrated in 1882, and he married Letta about 1884. Their children were born in Michigan: Blanche in February of 1886, Birdelia in February of 1888, Hester in October of 1890, Charles in July of 1893, and Zylphia in March of 1899. Charles was working in a furniture factory as an engineer in 1900 and in 1910. The only Charles Merritt of the right age found in Canadian censuses was born in Nova Scotia and was living in 1871 at Clementsport with his parents, George and Emaline Merritt, both natives of Nova Scotia. He was fourth of their five children, and in 1881 was farming near Clementsport with his widowed mother and his younger brother Edward.

His father came from Massachusetts and William (often Wilbert) was born at Akron on April 4, 1890, last of the two children of Edgar P. and Mary (Streeter) Merry. His brother Fred was born in December of 1888. Their parents evidently divorced and about 1896 their mother married Clint Stanton, who in 1900 was identified as the step-father of William and Fred. William became a medium sized man with blue eyes and brown hair, and was boarding in 1910 with an Akron couple that were in their forties. He used a script blind stamp on a post card photograph taken in his studio of a young woman and a young man standing on either side of a seated woman and trying to read a letter over her shoulders. The bib overalls of the man contrast with the rather elegant apparel of the women, their stance has some tension, and William produced an unusual and slightly goofy photograph. Mary Lavetta Morris was born at Sherodessville, Ohio, on December 3, 1890, the daughter of Daniel and Naomi (Matthews) Morris. She married William at Caro, Michigan, on October 24, 1910. Their children were born at Akron: Joyce on November 15, 1811, Daniel on May 16, 1913, Loris in 1914, and Naomi in 1917. Mary died on December 8, 1929, leaving William to raise four teenaged children. By 1930 his daughter Joyce was a college student. William later married Mildred Leach, who was born on February 3, 1888. He died at Caro on March 7, 1966, and Mildred lived until October 15, 1975.

Richard H. Mertz was born in Wisconsin to parents from the Prussian region of Germany in October of 1863, sixth of the eight children of Richard and Josephine Mertz. Richard, or more probably his father, became the first postmaster of Gladstone on May 24, 1887, shortly after the village was platted. He sold books, stationery and notions there until 1895, and was listed as postmaster in the gazetteers for 1895 and 1897. Lauretta was born in Wisconsin to parents from Pennsylvania in June of 1874, last of the six children of Hiram Lafayette Hurlburt and Lauretta Chapman (Brainerd) Hurlburt. She married Rich in 1894, and their daughter Addie (Later Adele) was born in Michigan in January of 1897. "R. H. MERTZ, Gladstone, Mich." was printed on one cabinet mount which carried four different facial expressions of a photogenic baby, and another with a picture of a small boy on a stool with a large black dog at his feet. Rich and Lauretta had three children born in Montana between 1902 and 1908: Lauretta, Martha and Richard. The senior Richard was 69 years old when he died in Montana on June 11, 1933. His father came from Massachusetts and Charles was born in Ohio on November 21, 1881. He probably was born at Toledo, last of the four children of Charles R. and Agnes G. Messinger. If so, he grew up in a household that included several servants. Charles matured as a short slender man with blue eyes and brown hair. Her father emigrated from Berlin, Germany, and Helen was born in Ohio to a Nicaraguan mother on January 28, 1886. She became Mrs. Helen Kathryn Messinger about 1905. Their daughter Doris was born in Toledo in March or April of 1910. Their other daughters were born in Michigan: Jane in 1913, and Barbara in September of 1918. Elmer M. Day also was a founder of the Detroit Commercial Photograph Company. He had no prior photographic experience, and by 1913 had returned to other fields of business. "Copyrighted by C. R. Messinger, July 7 -14." was written in script on the negative of a bird's-eye view showing the Whitney Building, the Statler Hotel and the Hotel Tuller under construction. "MR. This company succeeded the Art Album Company in producing albums in which every page or leaf was supported by a metal hinge and was detachable and interchangeable. Most of the openings in the leaves were sized for cabinet photographs. O. S. Garretson was president of this company, and in 1897 was living at Buffalo, New York. A. J. Little was identified in local directories as vice president, and in one gazetteer as the manager. Erastus H. Hussey was secretary and treasurer according to the same directories, but just the secretary in the gazetteers. He had occupied a similar position with the Art Album Company. By 1898 the Metal Back Album Company was capitalized at $50,000.

Amasa was born at Phillipsburg, New Jersey, on April 30, 1867, second of the six children of Joseph L. and Caroline (later Catherine) Metler. He was called Edwin or Emrey as a young man, and he came to Adrian in 1887 to take a preparatory course at Adrian College. Amasa spent four or five years in pastoral work in western Pennsylvania before settling permanently at Adrian. By the end of 1894 he was succeeded at 49 West Maumee Street by Frederick Limbacher. Her father came from New York, her mother emigrated from the Baden region of Germany, and Martha Anna (often Mattie) Grassman was born in Michigan in 1871. She was second of the four children of William and Catharine (Hill) Grassman. Mattie married Amasa in 1900, and their son Alvin was born in 1906. Envelopes were imprinted: "Metler's Ground Floor Fotografic Studio. PROOFS These Proofs are from unretouched negatives. ALL imperfections will be removed from the finished picture. AN EXTRA CHARGE will be made if more than one negative is ordered. MARK THE ONES desired and return Proofs. No order will be finished until Proofs are returned. WE WILL CHARGE for all proofs not returned. WE GUARANTEE our workmanship and will make re-sittings free when failure has been our fault. Otherwise we make a slight charge for re-sittings. If any proofs are missing it is because they were not good.... Metler's Studio, Adrian, Mich." In the spring of 1908 Amasa was reported to be the first photographer in Adrian to make a success of color photography. He furnished most of the illustrations for Memoirs of Lenawee County. In 1911 he was stressing high class portraiture, framing and enlargements. About this time he was advertising with a press printed post card made from a composite photo of some sixty baby heads pyramiding out of a bushel basket and labeled: "A BASKET OF PEACHES From Photos taken at METLER'S STUDIO, Adrian, Michigan." On March 19, 1912, he spoke to the Professional Photographers Association of Michigan convention at Saginaw on "Your Opinion as to Inviting in Subjects: Is It a Profitable Practice?" Between 1909 and 1915, "A. E. METLER, Photographer, Adrian, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of studio portraits, views of Adrian and scenes around Gull Lake, ninety miles northwest. Amasa continued to make post card photographs longer than most local photographers. He produced cards of the 1924 Memorial Day Parade in Adrian, and of Devil's Lake, the Irish Hills towers and the Wigwam Restaurant three miles east of Adrian in the 1930s. "MICHIGAN, 'The Tourists Paradise.' The home of 10,000 lakes. 500 square miles of water. 1,600 miles of shore line. The finest roads to be found. ADRIAN the gateway to Michigan. The Metler Studio of Photography." was printed on the post card backs of a series of views of the Adrian College campus. About 1929, Amasa moved his studio from the old Andrew Howell residence at 146 East Maumee Street to the second floor at 130 East Maumee Street. In 1937 he moved again to what had been the old Barnum Studio in the Underwood Building. After an extended illness, he died at University Hospital in Ann Arbor on January 13, 1943, survived by his wife and son. Burial was in Oakwood Cemetery at Adrian.

His father emigrated from Germany and Edward was born in Ontario (possibly at Chatham) in 1863, the only son of Joseph E. and Margaret Metzen. He was brought to Detroit by his parents in 1864 along with his older sisters, Louisa and Anna. His sister Minnie was born here in 1866 or early in 1867. His mother was a widow by 1870, when she was supporting Edward and herself with her sewing. Annetta was born here on March 21, 1870, and she married Edward about 1888. Their children were born in Detroit: Marguerite about 1890, Edward about 1891, and Erle about 1895. In 1891 Metzen & Raphael employed Charles A. Ladd as a retoucher, Mrs. Hattie E. Malcomson as a clerk, and Lyman J. Postle as a photo printer; and they used "TWO BROTHERS" as a trademark on the back of their cabinet mounts. Edward used the same trademark on cabinet photos from his rooms on Woodward Avenue which included a reception parlor, a ladies toilet, a gallery, the studio and operating rooms. By this time he was said to have nine years of photographic experience. His son, Erle N. Metzen, was in France with the American Aviation Service during World War I. Edward died in Florida's Pinellas County in 1950, and Annetta died at Homestead, Florida, on September 15, 1966.

Frederick was born in Michigan to parents from the Bavarian region of Germany in 1857 or early in 1858, second of the three children of John M. and Almira (later Wilhelmina) Meyerhuber. His sister Anna was three years older, and his brother Charles was a year younger. Anna was born in Pennsylvania to parents from the German state of Wurttemberg in June of 1858, second of the five children of Julius and Fredericka Zennegg. She married Fred about 1878, and their children were born at Adrian: Florence in August of 1880, Arthur in August of 1884, and Fred in October of 1889. A label with "Fred M. Meyerhuber" and a script legend: "Back View from Gallery; April 15, '75, Half past 5 O'clock." were put on the back of a stereoscopic bird's-eye view of a mostly residential neighborhood. This photograph probably was made while Fred was employed by Carpenter & Hall or by James M. Hoag. Fred succeeded his former employer, James M. Hoag, in the gallery over Kinzel's confectionery and opposite the U. S. Express office. In 1882 he advertised: "Old Pictures Enlarged to any size desired, in India Ink and Crayon. ALL KINDS OF PHOTO WORK DONE." He exhibited Imperial Photographs of children at the annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Indianapolis in August of 1882. The same stamp which was used on some of his card and cabinet mounts was applied to the back of stereo views of the wreckage left by the great cyclone in September of 1885. "All kinds of Photographs taken instantaneous." was printed on some of his later card mounts, and 1887, 1888 or 1889 was printed on some of his cabinet mounts. Fred died after a brief illness on June 25, 1889. Ozro F. Tucker was proprietor of the gallery over 25 East Maumee Street in 1890. Anna and her daughter Florence lived together in Adrian through 1930.

One source stated that Packard Shutters had been made and sold to the trade by the Michigan Photo Shutter Company since 1890. The managers of this company were W. G. Henshaw from 1903 until 1919, L. H. Henshaw from 1920 to 1925, Mrs. L. H. Henshaw in 1926, and Mrs. L. B. Zwisler in 1930. Both instantaneous and time exposures with Packard Silent Shutters were accomplished by squeezing an air bulb. The shutters were made in sizes from 1½ to 6½ inch opening. The Packard-Ideal Shutter was introduced in 1906 with significant improvements. It was mounted inside the camera behind the lens where its thin profile was important. A series of photographic post cards was issued in 1909 advertising the Packard-Ideal Shutter with pretty young women and monthly calendars. The company address on these cards was the corner of Water and Edwards Streets. Advertisements emphasized the simplicity, durability, speed, smoothness of operation, range of sizes and styles, and the reliability of Packard-Ideal Shutters. 1 t t 2 2

Michigan Photographers' Association

This association was organized at Detroit on January 15, 1895, with C. L. Weed recognized as the founder, and the constitution of the Ohio association was adopted with a few amendments. The officers elected were: George H. Fowler, Charlotte, president; Clarence H. Smith, Detroit, first vice president; George Harman, Bay City, second vice president; James M. White, Port Huron, treasurer; and George Huntington, Detroit, secretary. The first convention was held at the Detroit Art Museum on January 15 to 17, 1896. Arthur & Philbric were awarded the silver loving cup put up by C. L. Weed and A. G. McMichael won four first prize medals. New officers included president C. M. Hayes of Detroit, first vice president C. E. Heath of Grand Rapids, second vice president E. S. Tray of Jackson and treasurer A. G. McMichael of Detroit. J. E. Watson of Detroit was elected secretary for 1896, and announced that the second annual convention would be held in the same place on February 2 and 3, 1897. Beyond the usual classes of professional competition, a gold medal was to be awarded for the most artistic novelty in photography and amateurs would be able to compete in landscape, marine, instantaneous, cloud effect and composition classes. These amateur exhibits were novel for 1897. One photographic journal devoted five pages to this second annual meeting, and also noted that the committee considering the matter had reported unanimously in favor of Sunday closing, citing that 278 of 330 photographers heard from advocated closing Sundays. A bill making Sunday closing compulsory had been prepared for presentation to the legislature. A separate report a few pages later noted that 27 Detroit photographers had organized to oppose the Sunday closing law being promoted by the M.P.A., with Herman Baron as secretary. He explained that only Woodward Avenue firms that catered to the rich favored the bill, while galleries patronized by the working classes were opposed to it since Sunday was the only day when a working man could be photographed. He mentioned opposition to the bill in other parts of the state and noted that there were only nine Detroiters among the 87 members of the M.P.A., and that two of them had refused to endorse the bill. The officers elected for 1897 were: Joseph E. Watson, Detroit, president; A. J. McMichael, Detroit, first vice president; William L. Smith, Saginaw, treasurer; and E. S. Tray, Jackson, secretary. The third annual convention of the M.P.A. was held at Jackson in February of 1898, and the officers for 1898 were: Edward S. Tray, Jackson, president; William L. Smith, Saginaw, first vice president; Edwin B. Ives, Niles, second vice president; George E. Heath, Grand Rapids, treasurer; and J. F. Rentschler, Ann Arbor, secretary. During the fourth annual convention at Grand Rapids on February 1, 1899, Clarence M. Hayes of Detroit was elected president, and the silver trophy for professionals was awarded to Frank C. Fryett of Grand Rapids.

Michigan Photographers' State Association

At Randall's gallery on the evening of May 22, 1866, a previously formed committee which had hastily drafted a constitution and by-laws read them to the assembled photographers. Parts of the report which dealt with organization and the election of officers were adopted, and the remainder was referred back to the committee. Then these officers were elected: J. J. Bardwell, president; J. F. Raymond, vice president; G. Grelling, corresponding secretary; Geo. R. Angell, recording secretary; and Moses Sutton, treasurer. The objects of the association were defined as advancement of the photographic art and the diffusion of knowledge among its members. A letter from New York urging opposition to the owners of the Cutting Bromide Patent and another from Chicago recommending settlement with them were read. The sentiment of this meeting was markedly in favor of opposition, and the proceedings of former meetings relative to the demands made upon them by the owners of the patent and the action taken were incorporated into the records of the association. They met again on May 29, 1866, with president Bardwell presiding. The articles of association were taken up, section by section, discussed and adopted. Letters from several towns elsewhere in Michigan were read, all encouraging this movement among photographers. Regular meetings of the association were to be held monthly.

Battle Creek PHOTOGRAPHIC ENLARGEMENTS ..... 1890-1891 m

Herman A. Twarock was proprietor of the Detroit company, which copied photos in crayon work and guaranteed satisfaction. He was a manufacturer and a wholesale and retail dealer in picture frames and pictures, albums, cornice poles and room mouldings, and made picture frames of all descriptions to order at the lowest prices. The Battle Creek operation may have been a completely separate business. d

Michigan Portrait Veiw and Advertising Company

"MICHIGAN PORTRAIT VEIW AND ADVERTISING CO.," was printed below the image on cabinet mounts that seem to date from about 1895, with "view" spelled as shown. Such a mount carried a photograph of a boy standing at attention in his matching plaid knickers and jacket on a rural road with a team of horses and a rail fence in the background. t

Michigan University Party

Over seventy stereoscopic views of the Lake Superior region were published in several differently marked series, most carrying no designation of the photographer or publisher. Printed on the mounts of what may have been the earliest series was: "Views of Lake Superior. Taken in the year 1868 by the Michigan University Party.... William B. Holmes, Importer and Dealer in Photographic Materials, Stereoscopes and Views, 555 Broadway, New York. Sole Agent." Albert Edward Foote, 1867 graduate of the University of Michigan medical school and assistant in the chemistry laboratory, organized an expedition to Lake Superior in 1868 which spent considerable time on Isle Royale and added 275 species to the herbarium at the university. One or more members of this expedition apparently produced the negatives from which the stereo views were published. Views were included of the Pictured Rocks, Marquette and vicinity, Isle Royale, Grand Island and the north shore of Lake Superior. One view labeled "The University Party" showed seven members of the expedition in a canoe, a row boat and a small sail boat. Members of the party and a dark tent appeared in some of the other views.

Saginaw PHOTOGRAPHERS at 708 State st ..... 1902-1905

"MICHIGAN View Company., Detroit, Mich." was stamped on the back of 8 by 10 inch mounts. One photograph mounted in this way showed six men standing in front of the business frontage of Miller & Marskey, Wholesale Notions. Crates at either side of the photo are addressed to "Miller & Marskey, East Saginaw, Mich." and to "Miller & Marskey, Saginaw E S, Mich." Murray L. Hendrick was the proprietor of the Saginaw company, which made stereoscopic views and stamped its name on the backs of mounts from 6½ by 8½ to 8 by 10 inches, carrying sepia prints up to 7¾ by 9½. Residences were the most common subjects, but photographs of business frontage in Midland, of one-room school houses and of a horse being shod were so stamped.

Charles was born to natives of Connecticut on January 4, 1835, at Wilton, Connecticut. Her parents also were born in Connecticut and Sarah Amelia Avery was born at Cornwall, Connecticut, on October 1, 1842, second of the four children of John and Rebecca Starr (Edwards) Avery. She married Charles at Ionia, Michigan, on September 27, 1859. Their daughters were born at Port Chester, New York: Lillian on July 21, 1860, and Grace on April 14, 1862. Charles and George W. Clark were partners in Ionia. Powelson & Millard employed George H. Ribble and James L. Ruddon as photographers and John C. Berger as a photo printer in 1880. Charles bought out Benjamin F. Powelson later in the same year, to become sole proprietor of "THE OLD RELIABLE POWELSON GALLERY... spacious, conveniently arranged, eligibly located, and supplied with all the latest improvements known to the art. Two entire floors at No. 224, each 30 by 80 feet in dimension, and one floor at No. 226, are fitted up as reception rooms, operating rooms, printing department, studios, &c. The reception room is elegantly furnished, and is filled with the finest specimens of photographic work, India ink, oil and water colors. Mr. Millard makes a leading specialty of commercial photography, and in this line transacts a very large business. Machinery, stoves, pianos, organs, furniture, and all articles pertaining to manufacturing and commercial pursuits, are faithfully photographed for catalogues, advertising purposes, or sample cards for commercial travelers. Special attention is also paid to the reproduction of architects' designs for public or private buildings, some beautiful specimens of which may be seen at the gallery. Every picture produced here is carefully numbered and registered, and duplicates may be obtained at any time. Six skilled artists are regularly employed...." Some of Charles' employees were: Miss Carrie L. Chalmers, clerk in 1881 and bookkeeper from 1882 to 1884; George H. Ribble, photo printer in 1881; Marcus H. Kerr, crayon artist in 1882 and artist in 1885; John E. Chevalier, artist in 1884; J. Wesley Hughes, retoucher from 1884 to 1886 and photographer in 1887; William T. Dyer, photo printer in 1884 and photographer in 1888; James L. Ruddon, photographer in 1884 and from 1887 to 1889 and photo printer in 1886 and 1890; Miss Flora E. Smith, photographer in 1884 and clerk in 1885 and 1886; Frederick Marshall, photo printer in 1886; Lyman B. Avery, photo printer in 1886 and photographer in 1887; John Chauncey Page, porter from 1886 to 1888 and photo printer in 1889 and 1890; Clara P. Smith, artist in 1887, 1889 and 1890; Miss Anna Darst, retoucher in 1889; John Ruddon, photo printer in 1889 and 1890; Edgar A. Kepler, photo printer in 1889; Charles E. Whitmore, photo operator in 1889 and 1890; Miss Bessie Ball, retoucher in 1890; Miss Maggie O'Leary, clerk in 1890; and William Gutmann, photo finisher in 1890. In February of 1884, Millard's gallery was reported to be doing the largest business in Detroit, and to be getting $6.00 per dozen for cabinet pictures. Early in 1886, Charles sent examples of his 'glace' work to a photographic journal which commented: "... The print is mounted over a convex surface in the center, which lends a peculiarly pleasing effect to the photograph." The process was his own, but he would use it to finish prints sent to his establishment by other photographers. He advertised in 1889: "MILLARD'S STUDIO, 224 and 226 Woodward Ave., Detroit. 'FIRST-CLASS IN ALL ITS APPOINTMENTS.' PHOTOGRAPHS. - All the leading styles and sizes. PORTRAITS. - Point Crayon, Pastelle, Water Color, Oil, made from any original picture. FRAMES. - Elegant line in Gold, Bronze and Natural Woods. ARTISTS. - Only the most competent employed in each department. PRICES. - Low as artistic work can be produced. NEGATIVES. - 55 thousand registered, from which duplicate photos can be obtained. TELEPHONE No. 1510." Charles was 54 years old when he died after a brief illness on January 25, 1891, and the business was continued for three years in his name managed by his brother-in-law and former employee, Lyman B. Avery. Huntington & Clark purchased the business, and called it the Millard Studio in 1894 and 1895. Mrs. Sarah A. Millard, Charles' widow, became a principal of the Heath Electric Company in 1892 and maintained this interest for two years after she went in 1896 to live with her daughter at Buffalo, New York.

It was reported in August of 1898 that “A. J. Miller, a traveling photographer, put in here Saturday in his cat-boat in which he is cruising up the lakes. He has a fine photographer’s outfit and exhibits some excellent work. He is a genuine rover. His range is limited only by the bounds of the continent and naturally he is bright and versatile and entertaining.” A few days later Miller took a view of the Alcona County courthouse with the county officers in the foreground. During the last week in August he took eleven views of Hubbard Lake, finished six dozen pictures, and then sold the negatives to local business men. He gained a reputation for the best work, did a land office business and earned quite a bundle of money. He took four pictures of the Harrisville school late in September.

His father emigrated from Scotland and his maternal grandparents were Irish. He was born Gavin Ethelbert Miller at Muskoka, Ontario, on May 13, 1882, fourth of the seven children of Robert Orr Miller and Martha Harris (Hughes) Miller. He was called Gavin as a child and usually Bert as an adult, though he was enumerated as Ethelbert in 1910. His mother was the sister of J. Wesley Hughes and of Alexandria, the wife of the professional photographer Charles Sarjeant. Bert and his sister Florence came to Detroit in October of 1899, and in 1900 were living with the family of Charles and Alexandria Sarjeant. Muriel was born in Canada in February of 1882, fifth of the six children of George and Lydia Johnston. She came to Michigan with her family in 1889, and she was a music teacher before she married Bert about 1904. Their daughter Evelyn was born in Detroit early in 1906. Bert had formally declared his intention of qualifying for United States citizenship by 1918, when he was a five foot six inch man with brown eyes and grey hair, and had broken his instep in a motorcycle accident. He and Muriel were living in suburban Bloomfield Township in 1920, but had moved back into Detroit prior to 1930. By this time Bert had been naturalized a citizen of the United States, and he was 66 years of age when he died in Detroit on March 9, 1949.

Covert was born to parents from New York at Ridgeway in Lenawee County, Michigan, on February 15, 1859, third of the seven children of Lewis V. and Elizabeth (Scofield) Miller. He remained in Macon Township of Lenawee County until he moved to Ionia in 1887. In Ionia on March 24, 1887, he married Josephine "Jade" Theresa Anderson, the daughter of Alexander and Mercy Elizabeth (Delong) Anderson of Ionia County. Jade would not marry until Covert could show her that he had $100.00 in the bank. After they were married she learned that other bills had been let go in order to accumulate the $100.00 bank balance. Covert was a railway mail clerk on the Grand Trunk for 25 years, sorting mail between towns, and dropping off and picking up mail bags without stopping at the small towns. He found the orphaned eight year old Will Thomas selling newspapers on the streets of Detroit in 1903, and he and Jade raised him as their foster child, Will T. Miller. Will graduated from Ionia High School in 1914, and from the University of Michigan a few years later. Covert played the cornet and the organ, was remembered as quiet and steady and serious and a perfectionist, and as pretty much of a loner with a dry sense of humor. He was active in his church, and enjoyed double twelve dominos as Saturday night entertainment. Some of his photographs were stamped on the back: "Photo by C. O. Miller, Detroit, 846 Lafayette Ave." This was his home address from 1896 through 1901. His No. 4 ANSCO folding camera Model D, Patent July 23, 1901, with Wollensak optics and a Cyko automatic shutter is still in his family. Covert lived as a retiree at Muir. He was ill for four years before his death at Muir on November 2, 1935, and was survived by his wife and their foster son.

His father emigrated from Germany and Daniel was born in Hay Township of Huron County, Ontario, on April 21, 1870. He was third of the eight surviving children of Conrad Mueller Miller and Sarah Anne (Ellenbaum) Miller. Daniel immigrated in 1890, and he was naturalized an American citizen in 1900. Sophia A. Lemner was born in Ontario on April 7, 1870, seventh of the eleven children of Jacob and Caroline Lemner. She came to Michigan in 1894, and she married Daniel on January 1, 1896. Their children were born at Sebewaing: Mildred in July of 1897, Harold in February of 1900, Paul in 1905 or early in 1906, and Kenneth early in 1908. Paul seems to have died as a child. An attractive metal chair of bent and twisted heavy wire, sometimes called an ice cream chair, appeared in several of Daniel's cabinet photographs. Failing eyesight forced Walter B. Freeland to retire from photography, and he sold his Pigeon studio to Daniel early in the spring of 1917. Something happened to Sophia, and by 1920 Daniel had Married again. Leana was born in Illinois to Canadian parents in 1871, and her marriage to Daniel was her second. Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Miller became proprietors of the Pesha Art Company in 1918. Arthur Mast was boarding with Daniel's family early in 1920, and succeeded him as Sebewaing's photographer later in the year. Sons Harold and Kenneth accompanied Daniel and Leana to California, and were living with them in 1930. Daniel died at Los Angeles on August 21, 1942.

- Foster was born in Michigan to parents from New York in March of 1870, the only son of William J. and Julia G. Miller. He evidently was the nephew of the photographer John F. Miller profiled below. Foster's sisters were born in Michigan: Nellie in February of 1874, Clara in June of 1876, and Mary in November of 1879. Mary died as a child. The young lady that became Mrs. Nellie Grace Miller about 1893 was born in Scotland in April of 1870, and she came to America 1880. She and Foster were the parents of two sons. William was born in Scotland in March of 1897, but was a United States citizen due to his parentage. George was born in Illinois in April of 1899. Miller & Little, classified as photographers, were also identified as post card manufacturers in the same directory. Jasper A. Little had been a Battle Creek photographer specializing in post cards for several years prior to his partnership with Foster, and was a dealer in post cards for a couple of years afterwards. The 1920 and 1930 census reports had more complete statements about Foster's business, but they were illegible except that in 1930 he was selling something for factories.

John was born in New York to a mother from New Jersey in July of 1842, third of the five children of Nicholas P. and Sally Jane Miller. His younger brothers, born between 1844 and 1848, were William J. and Foster Dewitt Miller, so John seems to have been an uncle of the Foster Dewitt Miller profiled above. John purchased the New York Photograph Gallery of Sheldon C. Wright at Battle Creek and took possession on February 12, 1877. In 1879 he offered "Copying and Enlarging in every style of art." Sarah was born in New York to natives of New York in October of 1855, and she married John about 1879. In 1880 both she and John were enumerated as artists. Their son Ned was born in Battle Creek in August of 1881. In 1883 John advised that his "PHOTOGRAPH STUDIO, opposite the Opera House. West Main St., is the place to go to get your Pictures taken. THE BEST GALLERY, the Greatest Variety of Backgrounds and Accessories. All work warranted satisfactory. -COPYING AND ENLARGING- All Kinds of Pictures to order a Specialty." John produced stereoscopic views of Battle Creek, including one of carriages in front of the Menger Hotel. His studio at 22 West Main Street was opposite the Opera House. Early in 1886 he was making cabinet photographs for $2.50 per dozen, and card photographs for $1.25 per dozen. The gazetteers maintained that John was a clothing merchant through 1900, though other sources indicate that by 1897 he had become a painter and wall paper hanger. Sarah still was keeping house for John in 1900.

John was born in January of 1842 and emigrated from the German state of Wurttemberg in 1867. Margaret (sometimes Maggie, Margareta or Margret) was born in Wurttemberg in May of 1847 and immigrated in 1868. She and John married either just before he left Germany or shortly after she arrived in America. Their children were born in Michigan: Wilhelmina (earlier Minnie) in 1868 or early in 1869, Henry in 1871 or early in 1872, Frederick (later Fred) in October of 1874, Eleanor (usually Nellie) in August of 1880, Margaret in September of 1882, Emma in March of 1884, Clarence in October of 1885, Grover in March of 1888, Lovina (later Vina) in September of 1889, and Ruth in October of 1891. John was a widower by 1930, when he was providing a home in Ypsilanti for four of his children: Fred, who was now proprietor of the grocery store, Grover, Nellie, and the widow Wilhelmina Monroe.

His parents came from New York and John was born in Michigan on April 20, 1875. He grew into a slender man with brown eyes and auburn hair. Lucille A. Moulton was born in here in 1874, and she married John about 1901. She gave birth to Bernice and Robert in Illinois between 1904 and 1906, and to Nancy Ann in Michigan in 1916 or early in 1917. "G.A.R. ENCAMPMENT, June 21-22-23, 1911, Ypsilanti, Mich. (This photo on sale by J. S. Cooper Art Studio, which was over the post office. In 1916 John supplemented his photography business with pictures and picture framing. One year later he offered the "Best in Photography."

John was born in Indiana to parents from Ohio in March of 1869. He and his twin brother Jonas were third and fourth of the five children of Robert F. and Sarah A. Miller. They grew up on the family farm. Her father came from Pennsylvania and Altha was born in Michigan to a mother from Ohio in September of 1869. She married John about 1898, and she may have had some prior photographic experience. In 1910 she was proprietor of an Oregon photo gallery, while John was an employee. Their daughter Aneta was born in Oregon about 1911. Altha was reporting for the local newspaper in 1930.

Leondras, often listed as Leonidas or Lee, was born in Crawford County, Pennsylvania, on October 28, 1844, first of the three children of Jessie Milton Miller and Angeline Louise (Livermore) Miller. He and his brother Lysander came with their parents in 1849 to Oakland County, Michigan. Their sister Adaline was born about 1853. By 1880 he was married, but he and his one-year-old daughter Mary were living with his parents. He became associated with Lysander W. Miller in 1879, and in 1882 bought out his brother's interest in the gallery, which was located in the old Shearer Block opposite the Fraser House on Center Street near Water Street. This was apparently the studio that was reported to have burned out early in 1884. Lee and Lysander were partners again from 1884 until 1887. Lee was married again about 1887 to a lady named Mary who was born in Canada in April of 1861. He was using the instantaneous process before he left Bay City. "Miller, Successor." was added to the "NICHOLSON, Alpena, Mich." which was originally printed below the image on cabinet mounts, including some with outdoor scenes. Some of Lee's 19th Century Alpena photographs were on "Swiss Panel" mounts measuring 6 ½ by 2 ¾ inches. In 1894 he hired canvassers to sell cards in Harrisville good for discounted prices on portraits. He arrived in Harrisville on Saturday, June 23, as advertised, and was busy for three days redeeming the cards. He employed Frank G. LaPine as a photographer in 1899. L. M. Miller was identified as the Official Photographer of the Detroit & Mackinac Railway, and accompanied a group of newsmen on a two-day inspection trip of the railroad in October of 1901.

Lester was born at Jones, Michigan, on October 9, 1887, the son of Elmer Ellsworth Miller and Cynthia C. (Banks) Miller. Something happened to his mother, and by 1900 Lester was living on the farm of his widowed grandmother, Sarah C. Miller. By 1910 he was joined there by his widowed father. Lester became a medium sized man with dark brown eyes and hair, and in 1910 was supplementing his photography by working out as a farm laborer. Meryl Luella Knevels was born at St. Joseph, Michigan, on August 20, 1891. She married Lester in Cass County on August 3, 1911, and gave birth to Eugene Claude Miller on July 24, 1912. "Nov. 14, 1908. Dear Cousin, This is a picture that I took in west of our place. Lester" was written on the post card back of a photograph of a dirt road cut through a hill. The card was postmarked at Jones. "We live south of the R. R. track just a few rods. Lester took this picture." was written on the post card back of a photo with "MAIN STREET, JONES, MICH. MILLER." lettered on its negative. Other postal photographs had "MILLER" lettered on their negatives, including a bathing scene at Corey Lake postmarked in July of 1912. Corey Lake is five miles east, and Three Rivers is ten miles east of Jones. "Lester K. Miller, Corey, Mich." was printed on the backs of some post card photographs. "LESTER K. MILLER, PHOTOGRAPHER, THREE RIVERS, MICH" was stamped on the post card backs of other photographs, including one inscribed: "Solomon's Seal Berries." The Three Rivers studio was listed at 111 ½ North Main Street in one gazetteer, and at 28 ½ North Main Street in a 1934 city directory. Lester died at Three Rivers on February 14, 1955, and Meryl died there on October 29, 1975.

Lysander was born in Pennsylvania on October 1, 1846, second of the three children of Jessie Milton Miller and Angeline Louise (Livermore) Miller. He began his photographic career in 1869, probably somewhere in the Saginaw Valley. Eva St. Clair Brown was born at Mount Hope, New York, on January 22, 1855, the daughter of William Henry Brown and Sarah Caroline (Staples) Brown. She married Lysander in 1872 or early in 1873. Their children were born in Michigan: Harry at South Bay City on June 23, 1881, Eva at Manistee on November 11, 1882, and the twins Lenora and Leora At Hart on April 22, 1895. Jenney & Miller published stereo views of Flint, of Mackinac Island, and of the St. Clair River from Port Huron to the St. Clair Flats. A label with: "L. W. MILLER, PHOTOGRAPHER, And Dealer in Frames, Local Views, Etc. Strictly First Class Work. Shearer Block, Center St. BAY CITY, MICH." was pasted over the printed: "GIBSON, Photographer, GRISWOLD BLOCK, WATER ST. Bay City, Mich." on the back of card photograph mounts. L. W. Miller & Brother produced stereoscopic views of Bay City. About 1881, Lysander was succeeded in Flint by Carter & Persons, who retained his negatives. In May of 1882 he sold his Bay City interests to his brother Lee and bought out Manistee photographer Jacob A. Hanselman, only to return to the Bay City partnership with his brother a couple of years later. "L. W. Miller & Co., St. Louis and Alma, Mich." was printed on some cabinet mounts. From the number of different cabinet imprints with the words: "Miller & Smith, St. Louis, Alma, Petoskey" it is probable that Miller & Philip B. Smith served all three towns until 1895. One photo on such a mount shows a girl wearing a crown and a gown covered with watches and jewelry and holding up a banner advertising a jeweler, while in a similar photo the girl's clothes are covered with tools, keys and metal parts and the advertising is for a hardware merchant. Some Miller & Smith cabinet mounts mention only Petoskey, where they employed Horace M. Wilcox as a view operator in 1890. Lysander died in Ann Arbor on December 16, 1916. Eva continued to live in Ann Arbor through 1932, and she died at Boston, Massachusetts, on March 1, 1935.

Michael was born at Wolcott, New York, on December 13, 1800. Lydia Dorsey was born in Maryland about 1797, and she married Michael at Lyons, New York, on May 21, 1826. Lydia gave birth to Deborah in New York in 1835 or early in 1836. The family arrived on December 9, 1836, in Homer, where Michael farmed and was a part time Methodist minister. He was at times a justice of the peace. Michael later became a daguerreian artist, the occupation he followed for the rest of his life. "He was the first portrait artist in the place, and carried on his business in a little car with which he visited the different towns in this section..." Lydia gave birth to Mary in Homer about 1839. Her daughters were living at home in 1860: Deborah was a teacher, and Mary was a milliner. Michael died on October 26, 1863. Lydia was providing a home at Homer in 1870 for both of her daughters. Deborah still was single but Mary was now Mrs. Gavier and had three daughters: Laura was born in California about 1863, and Louisa and Florence were born in Oregon between 1865 and 1868. Deborah and her husband, the tinsmith Francis Stevens, were living at Homer with Lydia in 1880.

Her father came from Pennsylvania and Minnie was born in Metamora Township of Lapeer County, Michigan, on October 8, 1869, fifth of the six children of Austin and Eliza Jane Travis. She grew up on the family farm, and she married Samuel E. Miller in May of 1888. She gave birth in Metamora Township to Earl (later George) on September 5, 1889, and in Dryden Township to her son J. N. on May 4, 1892. By 1898 her husband Samuel had left farming to become a professional photographer, and he is profiled below. He died in 1922, and in 1930 Minnie was living in Dearborn with the family of her son George. Minnie died in 1957, and burial was in the cemetery at Oxford.

Oliver was born in New York to a mother from Pennsylvania about 1835, eldest of the three sons of John D. and Catherine Miller. By 1860 his mother was a widow operating the family farm with the help of her 21-year-old son Franklin. Oliver was 28 years old when he enlisted at Atlas in Company D of the Twentieth Michigan Volunteer Infantry on January 5, 1864. In March the regiment was ordered from Tennessee to join the Army of the Potomac, and arrived by rail on April 11 at Annapolis, Maryland. From there the 20th marched to Washington and took part in a review before the President and the Secretary of War. The regiment fought on May 6 in the Battle of the Wilderness, and on May 9 at a crossing of the Ny River. On May 12 they made a charge in line on the rebel works at Spottsylvania Court House under concentrated artillery and musketry fire, losing 144 men killed or severely wounded, including many officers. Sharply engaged at the attempted crossing of the North Anna River on May 24 and 25, and at Bethesda Church on June 2 and 3, the 20th again had heavy losses. Reaching the works around Petersburg on June 16, the regiment attempted to storm the Confederate outer line under heavy artillery and musketry fire with a greater percentage of casualties than on May 12, again losing several officers. The depleted regiment took part in the disastrous Battle of the Crater on July 30, losing in killed, wounded and missing 48 percent of those who went into the action. Oliver was taken prisoner on July 30, 1864, and died in prison on January 19, 1865. He was buried at Danville, Virginia.

He was born Orrin Edgar Miller in Michigan to parents from Ohio on March 24, 1878, the only child of Alexander G. and Maggie Miller. He became a slender man with blue eyes and brown hair, and he probably was working in 1910 with his father, who also was a carpenter. Oda Bird Andrews was born in Michigan about 1889, the daughter of Frank and Bird (Miller) Andrews. She married Orrin about 1906 and their sons were born in Michigan: Harry in 1907, and Floyd in March of 1910. Oda divorced Orrin and married Stanley D. Straight on February 7, 1912. She took along her younger son, who became Floyd L. Straight. Gladys was born in Michigan in 1892, and she married Orrie about 1911. Gladys helped to raise Harry, who had remained with his father, and later became assistant photographer to Orrie at Big Rapids. All records subsequent to 1910 were for Orrie E. Miller. "Photo By O. E. Miller" was lettered, and "Largest Twin Cattle in America; Owned by Hafey & Bannen, Lakeview, Mich. Weight 7210 lbs." was printed on the negative of a post card photograph. "O. E. Miller, Photographer" was stamped on the post card back of a photo of the wreckage of a barn. The "MILLER" embossed into post card photos of the Free Methodist Church at Stanwood may have marked prints made from a negative by Orrie. Gladys and Orrie were living in 1930 with his widowed mother, who had become Mrs. Maggie Taylor.

Spencer was born at Sodus in Wayne County, New York, on January 16, 1836, first of the five children of Jared and May (later Maryann) Miller. He was 5 feet 7½ inches tall with a light complexion, brown or auburn hair and dark brown or hazel eyes when he enlisted at Marshall as a private in Battery E of the First Michigan Light Artillery on February 28, 1862. This unit was also called the Fifth Michigan Light Artillery, and was later consolidated with the Seventh Independent Battery. In May of 1862 near Pittsburgh Landing, Tennessee, Spencer contracted typhoid fever and diarrhea for which he was treated in the regimental hospital. From the first of June until the last of August he was a patient in the Marine Hospital at Cincinnati, Ohio. He was discharged for disability at Cincinnati on September 17, 1862, and was so debilitated that he was unable to walk without a cane. He and fourteen-year-old Miss Helen M. Kocher were married at Battle Creek on September 19, 1863, their son Frank was born in 1865 and their daughters Edith and Ella were born in 1867 and 1869. Helen died at Kalamazoo on November 20, 1879. Spencer lived for a while in Lansing as well as in the places indicated above. He never recovered his strength after leaving the army, rheumatism kept him from working regularly, and he applied for an Invalid Pension in February of 1880. By 1882 he needed to accept charity in order to feed and clothe his family. His second marriage was to Mary Kerney and ended in divorce at Jackson in 1890. His third marriage was to Ella H. Smith at Grand Rapids on December 24, 1891, and lasted until Ella's death on April 20, 1902. During his last years, Spencer was receiving a pension of $32.00 per month and was living with his younger daughter and her husband when he was not a resident of the Soldiers Home. He died on July 30, 1919, following a final illness of two months. Burial was at the Michigan Soldiers Home.

William was born in July of 1872 in New York State to natives of New York, last of the six children of Gilbert and Catherine E. Miller. His widowed mother was working as a tailoress to provide a home for her two youngest sons in 1880. Roy Marshall was a principal of W. H. Miller & Company. William and his mother still were sharing a home in 1900 and in 1910. Her father emigrated from Canada and Hettie was born in Michigan in 1869. She married William about 1911, and she still was keeping house for him in 1930.

Isaac was born at Pontiac in 1824, probably to Samuel L. and Catherine (Dayton) Millis. Isaac was interested in pine lands and had amassed quite a fortune through their sale before moving to Detroit. He may have begun learning to make daguerreotypes in Detroit as early as 1852. "March 1st, 1858, by I. T. Millis, Detroit" was written behind one of a pair of post mortem tintypes of an infant in a double case. The child was resting on a dark cushion in one image, and in the arms of the mother in the other. Isaac began advertising in 1860 as successor to his former employer, Daniel B. Nichols, at the corner of Larned Street and Woodward Avenue. By 1862 he was offering "... Card Photographs in the Highest Style of the Art... Photographs, Ambrotypes, Daguerreotypes and Melaineotypes of every description, also, Photographs in Water and Oil Colors, executed in a Superior Style.... N. B. - No Twenty-Five Cent Pictures Taken.". Though the address was given in many different ways, his gallery seems to have been in the same location from 1860 through 1868, over D. Preston & Company's banking office at 72 Woodward Avenue on the southeast corner of Larned Street. An 1863 visitor reported that it was "... one of the first-class galleries of the city. Mr. M. is a thoroughly practical operator, and his rooms are hung with specimens of his skill. Undoubtedly the largest collection of specimens of the old daguerreotype process (retained to show improvements made) in the city, may be seen here. His work is distinguished by softness of tone and clearness of outline." As many as three 5 cent revenue stamps were affixed to some of his photographic portraits about 1865. Isaac was 48 years old when he died in Detroit of brain disease on August 23, 1872. An obituary described him as the well-known photographer and operator in pine lands, and mentioned that he had been sick for some time. Mrs. Theresa M. Millis, his widow, continued to occupy their home in Detroit through 1878, and became the third wife of Edward William Porter in March of 1879.

He was born Francis X. Millman in Hampshire County, Virginia, to Henry and Mary (Ludtman) Millman in February of 1843. His parents were born in Germany and Holland. He was five feet seven inches tall with a fair complexion, grey eyes and brown hair when he enlisted under the alias Franklin G. Recklee at Cleveland in Battery B of the First Ohio Light Artillery on September 5, 1861. He took part as a private in the battles at Stone River, Tennessee, in January of 1863, and at Chickamauga, Georgia, in September of 1863. Frank re-enlisted at Nashville, Tennessee, on January 4, 1864. He contracted gonorrhea, affecting his genitals and causing a chronic inflammation of his eyeballs, for which he was treated in Nashville hospitals from October 6, 1864, until he was furloughed on November 3. He returned on November 25, 1864, and spent much of his time in Nashville hospitals before he was discharged from the army as a corporal at Cleveland, Ohio, on June 9, 1865. He and 20-year-old Miss Sarah Ann Cole were married at Mentor Plains, Ohio, on September 27, 1865. Frank canceled two-cent revenue stamps on the back of his Mendon cartes de visite with his initials and the date. Two cent revenue stamps also are found on Millman & Freeman cartes de visite. Sarah gave birth to Nellie in Ohio on May 2, 1867, Theresa Ann in Maryland on November 13, 1870, Frank on September 29, 1873, Katherine on February 5, 1876, and Lydia on January 28, 1886. Frank was enumerated as a farmer with his father in 1870 and as a gardener on his own in 1880. He applied for a Invalid Pension in April of 1894. Frank was enumerated as a florist in 1900 and in 1910. He was retired by 1920, and was troubled with bronchitis during his last ten years. He was pensioned at $72.00 per month at the time of his death from arterio sclerosis on November 26, 1924. Burial was in Saints Peter and Paul Cemetery. Sarah received a Widow's Pension of $30.00 per month until her death on June 10, 1926.

Post cards were a specialty of Millman & Gilbert, who also did amateur developing and printing. Raymond C. Gilbert used the same words in his 1918 advertising for his Lightning Studio. No Wayne Millman was found in the census records, but Wayne Earl Millman was born in Kalamazoo County on July 30, 1891, second of the three sons of Myron and Cora A. Millman. He was a Climax Township student in 1900, and a hired hand on the Leroy Township farm of Peter M. Voyce in 1910. By June of 1917 he was married to Florence and farming in Craig Township, and 1920 he and Florence were farming next to his parents in Leroy Township. His mother emigrated from England and Paul was born in Ontario in May of 1870, first of the three or more children of Neil and Isabella Milloy. The 1881 Canadian record was for Maloy, Paul was listed in Detroit as both Malloy and Milloy in 1892, as Malloy in 1893, and all other records were for Milloy. Her father emigrated from England and Lottie (later Lotta) was born in Michigan to a mother from Pennsylvania in October of 1876. She married Paul about 1896, and they never had children. Paul may have been in business for himself at Memphis in 1900, he definitely had his own studio with employees in 1920, and he and Lotta both were enumerated as photographers and artists in business for themselves in 1930.

Henry was born in Michigan in 1839 or early in 1840, a son of Ira and Larone (Randall) Mills. He and his brother William (who is profiled below) were living in 1860 with the family of their brother A. E. Mills, who also was a blacksmith. One Henry Mills of the right age was a resident of Detroit when he enlisted there on August 12, 1862, in Company D of the 24th Michigan Infantry. He was mustered into the army as a private the next day, and left Detroit on August 29 with the regiment, which was assigned to the First Brigade, First Division, First Corps of the Army of the Potomac. By its steadiness under fire, its determination to hold its ground despite heavy losses, and its readiness to assault the enemy at Fredericksburg and Port Royal, Virginia, their unit gained the name of the "Iron Brigade." At Gettysburg on July 1, 1863, the killed or wounded of the regiment included 22 of their 28 officers and 316 of their 468 enlisted men. Henry died of disease at Baltimore, Maryland on December 12, 1863, and was buried there in London Park National Cemetery.

Loretta A. Easton was born in Michigan in 1840 or late in 1839, last in a family of eight or more children. In 1860 she married William R. Mills, who had been living six doors away in Belleville with the family of his brother. William was born in New York State about 1835, alternated between being a photographer and a physician, and is profiled below. Gertrude Hart was born in Michigan about 1857 and early in 1860 was living with Loretta. She seems to have been adopted by William and Loretta, when she became Adella G. Mills. Loretta gave birth in Michigan to Henry on March 5, 1861, to Leila on November 9, 1864, to Solora (later Lora) on March 3, 1869, and to Esther on January 15, 1871. Loretta was a milliner until her death from scrofula on February 12, 1873. In 1875 William married a lady named Czarina. Her father came from Vermont and Czarina was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in January of 1836. Loretta’s daughter Lora married Hartford photographer Franklin W. Toogood about 1892, and in June of 1896 she gave birth to a daughter of her own named Mildred. Franklin and Lora were providing a home for the widowed Czarina in 1900. 1

William was born in New York State to natives of New York in the summer of 1843, first of the four children of Martin and Maria Mills. The William H. Mills who served as a commissary sergeant and a first lieutenant in the Eighth Michigan Cavalry from December of 1862 until July of 1865 does not seem to have been the photographer. Henrietta was born in Michigan to parents from Pennsylvania in 1845, and by 1870 she was married to William. At the St. Joseph County Fair in the fall of 1871, William was awarded premiums of $2.00 for the best exhibit of photographs and ambrotypes, $2.00 for the best single photograph, and $2.00 for the best single ambrotype exhibited. Henrietta gave birth to their daughter Dee in Indiana about 1873, and to their daughter Mae in Michigan about 1885. Dee became a milliner with her own shop, and Mae became an artist. Peoria, Illinois, had a photographer named W. H. Mills around 1885. Henrietta was a widow by 1920, when she was living in Grand Rapids with her daughter Dee.

William was born about 1835 to Ira and Larone (Randall) Mills at Sodus, New York. He and Miss Loretta A. Easton were married in 1860. Mrs. Loretta A. Mills is profiled above. Their children were born in Michigan: Henry on March 5, 1861, Leila on November 9, 1864, Solora (later Lora) on March 3, 1869, and Esther on January 15, 1871. William was 5 feet four inches tall with a light complexion, brown hair and blue eyes when he enlisted at Hartford in Company A of the First Michigan Volunteer Cavalry on February 27, 1865. He was mustered into the army on March 6 and on March 14 arrived at the remount camp in Pleasant Valley, Maryland. He finally joined Company A on May 25, 1865, just after the Grand Review at Washington. The Michigan Brigade was at once ordered to proceed to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and from there to Fort Laramie, Wyoming. An engagement with Indians occurred at Willow Springs, Dakota, on August 12, 1865. In Wyoming, portions of each regiment were consolidated into a regiment designated as the First Michigan Cavalry. William was transferred into Company E of this new organization on November 17, 1865. They began a march to Salt Lake City, and a few days later William's horse fell at Echo Canyon, Utah Territory. His saddle struck William in the back at the point of his hips, and gave him a wound which troubled him for the rest of his life. It would heal for a while and then in three or four weeks would open and discharge again. William was skilled in the use of medicines which were frequently supplied to him by the regimental surgeon, so he treated his own wound as well as the afflictions of his comrades, who endured great hardships in their campaign against the Indians. William was honorably discharged at the expiration of his one year term of service at Camp Douglas, Utah Territory, on February 26, 1866. The regiment was mustered out, paid and disbanded at Salt Lake City on March 10, 1866. Under much pressure from Governor Crapo of Michigan, Congress eventually made an appropriation to partially compensate the men who were mustered out in Utah with no means of reaching home. William managed to get home and to resume his marriage with Loretta, who was a milliner until her death from scrofula on February 12, 1873. His second marriage was to 39 year old Miss Czarina Carlton at Hartford on December 23, 1875. By June of 1879 William was entirely disabled from manual labor by his wound, by the piles resulting from its internal discharges, and by bronchial troubles, and he applied for an Invalid Pension. A national periodical reported late in 1897 that "W. R. Mills is building a photograph gallery on his premises on East Main Street, Hartford, Michigan." William was in a feeble condition and under the care of a local doctor from February of 1899 until his death from heart failure on November 15, 1899. He was succeeded as a Hartford photographer by the husband of his middle daughter Lora, Frank W. Toogood. He left Czarina their unmortgaged residence worth $775 and a horse she sold for $40. She received a widow's pension until her death on April 28, 1917.

Big Rapids druggist .....1892-1920 m 1

His father emigrated from England and George was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in February of 1862, second of the four children of Jonathan and Loretta Milner. Her father came from Canada and Jennie was born in New York in September of 1861, last of the three children of Daniel F. and Ann (later Della) Comstock. She married George about 1883, and their son Franklyn was born in Michigan in October of 1889. "Milner" and "Little Manistee River, May 31, 1900" were written on a photograph of six fishermen standing beside a simple board-and-batten lodge. The photo was adhered to a 5½ by 6½ inch commercial mount. "Little Manistee, 3 Wards, May 30, 1900" was lettered on the negative of a picture of three fishermen on a similar mount. This mount, two others of the same size, and four 8 by 10 inch mounts all had labels from George W. Milner's City Drug Store affixed to their backs. The larger mounts carried photographs of Big Rapids business streets and major buildings. In 1917 George advertised: "Drugs and Kodaks, Developing and Printing...."

John was born in Schoharie County, New York, on May 5, 1842, second of the ten children of Levi and Mary Anne (Terrill) Minkler. By 1860 Levi had moved this family to Omro Township in Winnebago County, Wisconsin, and John was the only one of his children that was not enumerated there in the 1860 census report. At Oshkosh, Wisconsin, on October 21, 1861, Levi enlisted as a private in Company F of the Eighteenth Wisconsin Infantry. He was captured during the battle of Shiloh on April 6, 1862, and he died of disease in a Confederate prison at Montgomery, Alabama, on June 16, 1862. His wife died in Wisconsin on April 28, 1864, leaving John and their other children born between 1841 and 1861 as orphans. Mary J. Knapp married John in 1868. Like John, William H. Morse also was a principal of Minkler & Company. John shared his Grand Rapids home with Edward J. McDermand in 1891 and 1895, while McDermand managed a photograph gallery at Holland. John employed Mollie Sharp as a clerk in 1888, and Abraham J. Van der Meer and Jacob Van der Meer as photographers in 1897. By 1900 John was a widower with three children: Chester born in Michigan in April of 1885, Lucia born in Indiana in February of 1887, and Eletia born in Michigan in July of 1891. John was a resident of Portland, Oregon, from 1906 until he died.

His paternal grandparents came from New York and his maternal grandparents emigrated from the Prussian region of Germany. Harry was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan on September 24, 1882, last of the two known children of George and Emma Minkley. His sister Addie was born about 1879. Harry became a tall slender man with brown eyes and brown hair. He was living in 1900 with his grandparents, Markus and Lucy Jane Minkley, and in 1910 with his mother and her second husband, Harry Hammond. Her mother emigrated from the Wurttemberg region of Germany and Amelia was born in Michigan in 1888. She married Harry about 1907, and their daughter Althea was born about 1915. "Minkley Photo" along with captions like "RIVERSIDE, LAKELAND, Mich" or just "LAKELAND, Mich" were lettered on the negatives from which post card photographs were printed. Effective October 1, 1923, Harry was appointed to the newly created position of Medical Photographer in the Department of Roentgenology of the Medical School at the University of Michigan, with a salary of $1500.00 per year.

Albert was born in the Polish region of Russia on April 20, 1877, and immigrated in 1906. Josephine was born in the Polish region of Austria in 1882, she married Albert about 1901, and she gave birth a year later to Mary Matilda. Josephine and her daughter followed Albert to America in 1907. Josephine gave birth in Michigan to Felix in January of 1910, and to Lillian in 1914. An Albert Merecki was a Detroit photographer at 675 Medbury Avenue in 1914. "Good Work Guaranteed" was Albert's slogan in 1916. "A. J. MIRECKI, 1072 CHENE STREET, DETROIT, MICH." was blind stamped into a postal composite photograph dated 1916 with portraits of the five professors and seven graduates of Detroit's Polish-American College. By 1918 Albert had applied for United States citizenship, was tall and bald with blue eyes, and Detroiter Joseph Mirecki was a near relative. His parents, Peter and Mary Rita (LeClaire) Moblo, were born in Canada and New York. Edward was first of their six children, and was born in New York State in January of 1861. Delvina Mary St. Charles was born in Canada in October of 1862, and she married Edward about 1885. Their children were born in Michigan: Agnes (later Inez) in April of 1888, Nettie in June of 1889, Mammie in May of 1892, Lillian in February of 1894, Irving in August of 1895, Willard in May of 1897, and Elmer in 1902. They adopted Evelyn St. Charles, who was born in 1904. I have heard that Edward had a gallery at Traverse City before moving to East Jordan. He advertised in 1890 as a "Photographer and Dealer in Photo Materials. Picture Framing of all Kinds." His Traverse City cabinet photographs included a Civil War era soldier copied from an earlier picture, a nurseryman holding a sapling and some pruning equipment, and views of houses. Some of them were from "West Union Street." For a while he employed Henry Smith as an assistant, until Henry left in July of 1897 for a similar position on Mackinac Island. Edward photographed the group around Perry Hannah at the placing of the cornerstone of the Traverse City State Bank on June 27, 1903. His son Irving was manager of the Moblo & Son studio in 1920 and 1921.

Panoramic photos of Camp Custer by T. F. Mock were press printed and published by M. E. Hamm of Battle Creek about 1918. The Battle Creek photographer of the later 1920s was identified as Theo F. Mock. Mrs. Grace A. Mock was living in April of 1930 at Clearwater, Florida, accompanied by all three of her children and by Margery's husband, Cecil Logsdon. They seem to have been in Florida for several years, so her enumeration as a widow probably was incorrect. |           | 2 44 111 22 ttt 3m 111 |

Her father came from Pennsylvania and Catherine was born in Ohio in August of 1855, fifth of the six children of Samuel and Catherine F. (Clemmons) Klingensmith. She was called Cassie as an adult, and was a school teacher in Michigan for five years before she married Eber Moffitt on November 18, 1895. His father came from Ohio and Eber was born in April of 1855 to a mother from Connecticut in Cascade Township of Kent County, Michigan. He was ninth of the twelve children of Eber and Nancy Jane (Lindsley) Moffit, and he became a locomotive fireman. Cassie established, in connection with her husband, the Lowell photographic Studio. "Moffit. Lowell." was written in ink below the image on some blank cabinet mounts in 1896. Her cabinet photographs included a man playing a banjo, a boy with his tricycle and the South Bell School south east of Lowell. The enlargement of Mrs. Moffit's gallery was reported in the summer of 1898. The Moffitts were neighbors of Thomas and Rachel Murphy in 1900, when Cassie's annual photographic business amounted to $1800, and was expected to increase. Rachel Murphy and Cassie both were Lowell photographers between 1900 and 1905. Though Eber died in 1902, the studio was listed in his name in the classified section of the gazetteer for 1905, but in Cassie's name in the alphabetical section of the same source.

His father emigrated from the Hessian region of Germany and Fred was born in Detroit on August 27, 1876, to a mother who came from the Prussian region of Germany. He was last of the five children of John W. and Elizabeth Mogk, and became an average sized man with brown eyes and hair. He was living at Anaconda in 1900 with his newly married sister Elizabeth and her husband, Joseph Troske. Charlotte (usually Lottie) Kinsel was born in Detroit of German parentage on August 7, 1881, the daughter of Charlotte Kinsel and August C. Hoeninghausen. She married Fred in 1901 in Michigan, and their daughter Bernice was born on June 2, 1902, at Anaconda, Montana. They were living in River Rouge in 1918. Fred advertised in 1921: "Commercial Photography in all Branches, My Work is the Best Recommendation." He was identified as a retired electrical contractor upon his death at his Wyandotte home on May 10, 1941, survived by his wife and daughter. Burial was in Woodmere Cemetery. ## Mohican

"MOHICAN" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs between 1915 and 1921. One captioned "AUTUMN" was mailed to Glennie from somewhere close by in May of 1916. Many others were views of the Au Sable River, Vaughn Lake, Spruce Lake and McCollum Lake in northwestern Iosco County and western Alcona County, and some of these were dated in 1918 and 1921. One was captioned "Chief Mohican, Camp Rover, Midriver Park, Mohican Photo" and had "James F." written on its back. A pair of deer hunting photographs were signed on the back: "James Bristol, Caro, Mich., Nov. 1919." The negative of a view across a field to a barn on the left, a house on the right, and more distant buildings between them was lettered: "BRISTOL CITY, MOHICAN PHOTO" and "James Bristol, Nov. 7, 1919" was written on the post card back of the resulting print. "PART LOG YARD, CAMP BRISTOL, MOHICAN PHOTO 2-20-21" and "CAMP BRISTOL, MOHICAN PHOTO, 2-20-21" were lettered on the negatives of other post card photographs.

| Arthur was born January 7, 1889, at West Mersea in Essex County, England, fourth of the six sons of Thomas and Charlotte L. Mole. The family immigrated to Zion City in July of 1902, and Arthur became a slender man with grey eyes and brown hair. Her father came from Pennsylvania and Della was born in Iowa to a mother from Missouri in 1887. She married Arthur about 1913 and their children were born in Zion City: Kenneth in 1914, Dorothy in January of 1916, and Clifton in February of 1919. Arthur was naturalized a citizen of the United States in the Lake County Circuit Court at Waukegan on September 20, 1916. During and right after World War I, he and John D. Thomas spent a week or more at each of dozens of military camps setting up living photographs on patriotic themes. The first in 1917 created an American flag with 10,000 sailors at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station near Zion. The largest in 1918 produced a United States shield with 30,000 recruits at Camp Custer. Arthur used an 11 by 14 inch view camera mounted on top of rickety wooden towers 70 to 80 feet tall steadied by guy wires, and compensated for distance by placing many more men across the back of the design than stood across the front. Arthur visited England and France for a couple of months in the summer of 1919 for photographic purposes. He was identified as a real estate broker when he and Della visited England in 1957. When Arthur visited England in the spring of 1960, he was retired and was accompanied by 63-year-old Mrs. Bertha R. Mole and by his photographer son Kenneth. Arthur died on August 14, 1983, in Broward County, Florida. |           | 4 15 44 222 55 333t 333 6666 77 |

| Archie, also identified as Aschylus, Archyles and Achilles, was born in Chautauqua County, New York, on May 13, 1846, the only son of Oscar and Mary Louise Monfort. The family moved to Canada when he was an infant, and then on to Detroit about 1852. His sister Florence was born in Canada about 1848, and his other sisters were born in Detroit: Mary about 1857, and Bell about 1866. Archie's gallery in Detroit was small, but he was experimenting here with notable success. His mother was a Detroit oculist. George Hill came to Mrs. Monfort for treatment, and as his vision was restored became interested in photography. Archie Monfort and George Hill joined forces and traveled west to establish a gallery in Burlington which became quite prosperous and famous. They produced stereographs, and they successfully exhibited many artistic photographs at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893. Olive was born in Iowa to German parents in April of 1868, and she married Archie about 1890. They never had children. When Archie moved to Chicago the Burlington firm became Hill & Everett until the death of George Hill on December 18, 1900. |           | 1 41 44 11 4444 54 11 44 |

Frank was born about 1854 at Rochester, New York, third of the four sons of daguerreotypist and photographer Myron H. Monroe and his wife Mary. He also had three younger sisters. His brothers George and Harvey are profiled below, and Harvey was the other Monroe Brother in 1875. Frank was identified as Dr. Francis A. Monroe by one source. Obviously pirated stereo views were published by Monroe Brothers with several different imprints, including: "American Scenery, Niagara,..." - "American Scenery, California,..." and "Monroe's Popular Views, Georgia & Florida Series." Frank seems to have spent many years as a dentist at Jamestown, New York.

George was the second son of Rochester daguerreotypist and photographer Myron H. Monroe, and was born in 1851. Like his father, George produced stereo views and became the most important stereoscopic photographer ever to practice in Rochester as well as the leading photographer of his period in the city. George Eastman came to George Monroe in 1877 and arranged to be taught the rudiments of wet plate photography. Much of Eastman's early experimental production of dry plates was done in the Monroe gallery. The first extensive field trial of Eastman's dry plates was done by Monroe at the Thousand Islands during the summer of 1880. The plates were brought to Rochester for development, and most of them produced good prints. Monroe had met and had impressed Edward Anthony on this field trip, which led to the E. & H. T. Anthony Company becoming sole agents for Eastman Dry Plates. George Monroe advertised locally in 1880: "Dry Plate Photography is now an accomplished fact. By the use of Gelatin Dry Plates I am enabled to do work that I could not attempt with the old method of Bath or Wet Plates. These Dry Plates I now have always on hand, stored in boxes, so that I am ready on the shortest notice to photograph anything out doors or in. Winter's cold nor summer's heat does not affect these plates. I carry no chemicals with me. I simply expose the plate to the object and the chemical work is left until my return to the gallery. I use two grades of plate - one called 'Ordinary Rapidity' for photographing Buildings, Residences, Machinery and Views of Scenery; and a grade called 'Instantaneous' for photographing Animals, Streets, Moving Objects out doors, Children in the gallery, Interior Views and all work requiring quick exposure. Lack of space forbids further description. Call and see for yourself." George attended the first convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Chicago in August of 1880, and was somewhat successful as a manufacturer of dry plates in Rochester. The dissolution of his partnership with Frederick P. Moore was reported in October of 1884, noting that George was continuing to manufacture the Monroe Dry Plates. After emulsion making experience on his own and with Cramer and Hammer, George was hired by George Eastman early in 1892, but by June was discharged when some of his film began to deteriorate on dealers' shelves. About 1897 George may have been involved with the Monroe Camera Company of Rochester, New York. The Chautauqua Plate was extensively advertised by the Monroe Dry Plate Works from July of 1897 through November of 1898. George advertised nationally in the summer of 1898: "WANTED - A pair of stereo lenses; please describe and state lowest cash price, with privilege of examination. Geo. H. Monroe, Pontiac, Mich." The Monroe Dry Plate Works was absorbed by the Jamestown Dry Plate Works of Jamestown, New York, by the beginning of 1899. This announcement appeared in a photographic journal a year later: "Mr. Geo. H. Monroe, lately with the Jamestown Dry Plate Works, has withdrawn from that company, taking with him the coating and other machinery and appliances together with his sole right to the use of the proprietary name 'Chautauqua Plate' and his formula for making the same. Mr. Monroe expects to be fully equipped to supply all his old customers in the very near future, and desires them to correspond with him at 12 Cook Ave., Jamestown, New York." Late in 1900 the Columbia Dry Plate Company of Jamestown, New York, was advertising as manufacturers of Columbia and Chautauqua Dry Plates. "Geo. H. Monroe, Jamestown, N.Y." was professionally printed on the mounts of stereo views, including one with "785. CASS LAKE, MICH. CAMPING SCENE." lettered on its negative. Cass Lake was four miles west of Pontiac. Anna was born in Pennsylvania to German parents in September of 1868, and she married George in the spring of 1888. Their son Frank was born in Celeron in 1901 or early in 1902. George lived until 1916.

| Harvey was born at Rochester, New York, on October 22, 1846, first of the four sons and three daughters of daguerreotypist and photographer Myron H. Monroe and his wife Mary. Two of his brothers are profiled above. In 1870 Harvey was living with his grandmother, Mrs. Cynthia Gage. On October 23, 1872, he married 20-year-old Mary Agnes Davis, granddaughter of the founder of Davisburg. He and "Mate" had five children born in Michigan: Charlotte (usually Lottie) in 1874, Adella about 1876, Hector in September of 1879, Charles in 1884, and John about 1892. "H. G. Monroe, Davisburg, Mich., Landscape Photographer." was printed on the mounts of stereoscopic "Views in Carson City, Mich." Another stereo view was labeled: " H. G. Monroe, Photographer, Davisburg, Mich. LANDSCAPES, INTERIORS. Interior of the Paint Shop of J. E. Howe, Carson City, Mich. " and the sign being prepared for photographer Nathan D. Haley was prominent in the view. Carson City was more than seventy five miles northwest of Davisburg. Frank was the other Monroe Brother in 1875. In addition to his photography and his supervision of the construction and operation of the water works, Harvey was characterized as a carpenter, an engineer, an avid reader, a democrat and a violin maker. He died at Pontiac from cancer trouble on December 16, 1910. Burial was in Oak Hill Cemetery. |           |     |

Calvin was born in Michigan to parents from Massachusetts on September 27, 1837, first of the five children of Henry and Abigail (usually Abby) Kingsley Montague. He stood 5 feet 6½ inches tall with a light complexion, dark hair and blue eyes when he enlisted at Kalamazoo as a private in the Second Michigan Infantry on April 18, 1861. By May 10 he was a sergeant in Company K, and was so mustered into the army on May 25, 1861. On June 30, 1862, at Harrison's Landing, Virginia, sun stroke afflicted him with vertigo and partial blindness. "Chickahoming Fever" put him in the regimental hospital at the same place for a couple of weeks in late July and early August. On February 24, 1863, he was commissioned Second Lieutenant of Company E, and he was so mustered on March 20. While in action at Jackson, Mississippi, on July 1, 1863, a musket ball tore away flesh and injured the bone of his left leg between his knee and his ankle. By January 14, 1864, Calvin was sufficiently recovered to marry Louise Melvina Eldred at Ceresco, Michigan. Louise (often Louisa) was born at Climax, Michigan, on September 27, 1843, second of the five children of Caleb and Amanda Melvina (Gardiner) Eldred. On March 11 Calvin was commissioned Captain of Company K in the 102nd United States Colored Infantry. He spent the month of December in 1864 on detached service with General Foster's expedition. He was promoted on June 19, 1865, and was mustered as a Major on the same day. He was mustered out of the army with the regimental organization on September 30 at Charleston, South Carolina, and was made a Brevet Colonel on October 30, 1865, for distinguished and meritorious conduct in the field. Schuyler C. Baldwin & Montague advertised from "... opposite Michigan National Bank,... Photographs, Carte de Visites, Gems, Ambrotypes, Miniatures on Porcelain. Frames of all kinds, Stereoscopic Views of Kalamazoo. Photographs of any size made from old pictures. Having had twenty years experience, we can give in the 'HIGHEST STYLE OF THE ART' Every kind of picture, made at the present day." Caleb Eldred, Junior, was a principal of C. S. Montague & Company, suppliers of photographic goods as well as of photographic services. Calvin and Louise lived in or near Climax, Kansas, for at least four years before they moved back to Michigan in the fall of 1878. Louise gave birth to Grace Eldred Montague in Kansas on November 27, 1876, and to Kittie Eldred Montague in Michigan on January 1, 1879. Calvin rented his father's farm from 1878 until 1881 but was required to hire others to do most of the work, for he was ill most of the time. Though he had a desk job at the pension office, his chronic gastritis often interfered with his work and caused him to miss civic and Sunday School meetings. Both of their daughters remained single and were living with Calvin and Louise at Garrett Park in 1900 and at Washington in 1910. Grace had become a trained nurse, and Kittie was a stenographer. Louise died some time prior to 1920, when Kittie still was living with her widowed father. By the time Calvin died on January 4, 1922, he was drawing a pension of $50.00 per month.

Robert was born in Scotland about 1820. Her father emigrated from Canada and Malinda was born in Michigan in 1826 or 1827. She married Robert about 1849 and their children were born in Michigan: Charles about 1851 Robert about 1855, and Mary about 1858. Robert enlisted on December 9, 1861, at Mount Clemens in Company C of the Fourteenth Michigan Volunteer Infantry. The regiment was organized at Ypsilanti and left on April 17, 1862, for St. Louis, Missouri. The 14th joined General Grant's army at Pittsburg Landing and from May 10 to 31 took part in the siege of Corinth, Mississippi. They captured a fort and took a large number of prisoners on November 1 at La Vergne, Tennessee, and fought at Stone River, Tennessee, on January 3, 1863. The regiment was mounted in the spring of 1863 and proceeded to kill or capture most of the guerillas that infested Tennessee, and drove the rest out of the state. Robert re-enlisted at Columbia, Tennessee, on January 4, 1864, with the understanding that the regiment would remain mounted, but on orders from on high they were dismounted in the spring of 1864. As infantry they took part in the Atlanta Campaign and made a brilliant charge on September 1 at Jonesboro, Georgia, which broke the enemy line and captured a general and his staff, four artillery pieces and 300 men. After Atlanta fell the regiment marched with Sherman to the sea, and reached Savannah on November 16, 1864. When Savannah surrendered late in December, the 14th marched through South Carolina and fought on March 12, 1865, at Fayetteville, North Carolina. The last severe battles of Sherman's army were at Averysboro on March 16 and at Bentonville, North Carolina, on March 19 and 20. Robert was mustered out of the army at Louisville, Kentucky, on July 18, 1865. He was not to be found in the census reports for 1870 and 1880. His wife Malinda was working as a housekeeper in 1870, when she and her son Robert were included in the household of the photographer James Batty. By 1880 Malinda was married to James Batty. Robert was 67 years old and a little over five feet tall with a light complexion, dark brown hair and dark hazel eyes in June of 1886 when he first applied for an Invalid Pension. He had contracted bloody flux at Stone River, Tennessee, in November of 1863, and had been incapacitated by piles and rheumatism much of the rest of his life. His pension file contains declarations and supporting affidavits filed in September of 1886, July of 1887, July of 1888, and March of 1890, but no indication that he ever received a pension.

Cory was born at Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, to natives of Pennsylvania on April 21, 1867, last of the four children of Peter H. and Mary (Winchel) Montross. Her father emigrated from England and Maggie Lorena Pratt was born to a mother from New York in Walker Township of Kent County, Michigan, on October 23, 1873. She was second of the five children of Uriah Hitite Pratt and Mary Ann (Brown) Pratt, and she married Cory at Grand Rapids on November 13, 1889. Their son Edgar was born in Michigan on October 12, 1890. The rest of their children were born in Alabama: Zella on August 19, 1893, Mary Agnes on October 14, 1895, Christopher on October 28, 1897, and Clara on July 23, 1902. Cory and Maggie were providing a home in 1930 for their daughter Clara and her new husband, Wyatt E. McKinsey, and in 1932 through 1939 for their son Edgar. Cory died at Royal Oak, Michigan, on February 29, 1952.

John was born in New York State to natives of New York in April of 1859, second of the six children of Edward M. and Sarah M. Moody. James D. Pitts was a Shelby photographer for several years prior to taking on John as a partner. "Pitts & Moody, PHOTOGRAPHERS. Negatives Preserved for Future Orders. Shelby, Michigan." was printed within a fancy pattern on the back of 8 by 10 inch buff mounts of photographs of logging with a steam skidder, a modest harbor, a small town lumber mill and men working on its mill pond. The same elaborate design was printed with "Moody" substituted for "Pitts & Moody" on the back of the mount of a photo of the wreck of a logging locomotive which overturned two miles east of New Era on April 9, 1894. Martha was born in Indiana about 1865 to natives of Indiana, and her marriage to John about 1908 was the first for both of them. They had no children.

His father came from Massachusetts and James was born in New York to a mother from Connecticut in May of 1860, last of the four sons of James and Eliza A. (Hinds) Mooers. In 1895 a 24-page booklet entitled Glimpses of Olivet, Views by J. L. Mooers was printed by Frank N. Green at Olivet. The second annual meeting of the Michigan Photographers Association was held at Detroit in February of 1897, and there James was awarded the second prize in Class F for his exhibit of cabinet photographs. A reviewer may have had some of these prints in mind when he wrote: "... Some of the best work exhibited, from an artistic point of view, came from small Michigan towns, where the photographers had not the advantage of rich toilets or fashionable sitters to make pictures of. Some of the pictures of homely people were fine examples of light and shade, and showed that the artist had mastered the difficulties of rendering both texture and tone values as well as his more favored brothers in the cities." Mooers & Hance claimed to do "Fine Work in All Styles of Photographs." James married about 1892, but in 1900 was living with his brother Charles along their brother William and their widowed mother. He was enumerated as divorced in 1910 and 1920.

| Niles carpenter for a contractor .....         | 1920 | 1 |
| Bakersfield, California, carpenter .....       | 1930 | 1 |

His father came from Pennsylvania and Allen was born in Minnesota to a mother from Michigan in December of 1859, the younger son of Enos and Emily Moon. Something happened to his father, who may have been a Civil War casualty. By 1880 his mother was married to Robert Bailey, who had been a Jackson photographer since 1867. Allen undoubtedly was working for his step-father in 1880. Her father emigrated from England, and Sarah was born in Canada in 1861 or early in 1862. She married Allen about 1878, and their son Robert was born in Iowa a year later. Between 1880 and 1900 Allen ended his marriage to Sarah, and then entered into and terminated a second marriage. Her father came from Ohio or Pennsylvania and Cora was born in Indiana to a mother from New Jersey in September of 1865. She married Allen in 1899 or early in 1900, and they never had children.

He was born Charles Harry Moon in Michigan to natives of Michigan on August 29, 1880, eldest of the three sons of Charles L. and Mary A. Moon. Marie was born in Ohio to German parents in 1881, and she married Harry about 1903. They never had children. "DeWitt, Feb. 22, 1912. PHOTO BY H. MOON. 2376-F." was scribed into the negative of a post card photograph of a snow covered business street. Other postal photos had captions such as "South Side Main Street, DeWitt, Mich. 2376-A." or "Corner Main & Bridge Streets, DeWitt, Mich. 2376-B." scribed into the negatives in the same lettering. After 1923 the listings were for C. Harry Moon.

His father emigrated from England and Harry was born in Detroit on November 28, 1879, the only son of James W. and Louise A. (Whiting) Moore. His sister Louise was born in May of 1890. His wife's father came from Massachusetts and Louise T. Tomlinson was born in Michigan to a mother from New Jersey in January of 1879, the only child of Myron E. and Charlotte H. Tomlinson. She married Harry about 1903. Harry was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905. M. H. Bogue replaced him as the partner of Frank J. Whiting in the Detroit Photographic Supply Company in 1906. Louise gave birth to their daughter Marcia in Michigan in 1916 or early in 1917. She still was keeping house for Harry in 1942.

Henry was born in Michigan to parents from New York in March of 1856, second of the four children of Oscar C. and Mary A. Moore. He grew up on the family farm. "Henry C. Moore, PHOTOGRAPHER, Corunna, Michigan. Plain and Stereoscopic Views Made a Specialty." was printed on the back of a stereo view of two baseball teams, one in checkered knickers with bibbed fronts like overalls. "H. C. Moore, Corunna, Mich." was printed on the back of some cabinet mounts with "Moore & Goddard, Corunna, Mich." printed below the image. The Times of Owosso announced on Friday, November 9, 1883, that "Henry C. Moore, the photograph artist at Corunna, is soon to move to Owosso and open a new and splendid gallery over the store of Dimmick & Son on Washington Street." Oscar C. Moore, four years younger, was the other brother. It was announced late in 1891 that "Moore Brothers have removed from Owosso, Michigan, to Telluride, Colorado." That "H. C. Moore has closed his studio in Alpena to settle in Colorado." was reported in the spring of 1897. Henry probably inherited the family farm, for he was providing a home for his widowed mother in 1910. He was enumerated as single in each of the census reports, including the one for 1930.

His father came from New York and Llewellyn was born in Chester Township of Eaton County, Michigan, on August 11, 1858, first of the twelve children of Philo Perry Moore and Zilpha Miranda (Wheaton) Moore. Nellie was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in October of 1864, first of the two known children of James M. and Diantha Wilkinson. She married Llewellyn about 1889, and they never had children. "MOORE'S STUDIO, Harrison, Mich., Negative By _____." was printed on the face of ornate 8 by 10 inch mounts carrying 4 ½ by 7 ½ prints of a Chicago & West Michigan construction train at the High Bridge over the Manistee River 60 miles northwest of Harrison, a log sorting gap and booms, and other logging operations. "Morey & Moore, Harrison, Mich., L. O. Moore, Operator." was printed on the back of the plain 5 ¼ by 8 ½ mounts of photographs of a large lumber mill. Loren S. Morey was a Harrison photographer for four years prior to his partnership with Llewellyn, and a Mount Pleasant photographer for several following years. "To preserve its finish, get this picture framed by Morey & Moore, at L. S. Morey's, Harrison, Mich. Viewing a specialty. Enlarging neatly done. L. O. MOORE, Operator." was printed on the back of the mounts of 4 ½ by 7 inch photographs. "L. O. Moore, Harrison and Gladwin, Michigan." was printed on the face of some cabinet mounts. Nellie was a teacher in 1900, then was working as a binder for a printing office or publishing company in 1910 and 1920, and was teaching in a private school in 1930. Martin was born in Hector Township in the Finger Lakes region of New York on March 14, 1836, fifth of the fifteen children of Levi Sebring Moore and Patience (Whitman) Moore. He enlisted at Colon as a private in Company F of the Second Michigan Infantry on March 29, 1864, was mustered into the army on April 29 and joined his company on May 23 near Petersburg, Virginia. He soon contracted chronic diarrhea and a liver disease and was hospitalized in or near Washington until October. He was honorably discharged and mustered out of the army at Delaney House, D. C., on July 28, 1865. Lydia Ann Hodskey was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in May of 1849, the daughter of Lester and Amanda Hodskey. She married Martin at Colon on April 25, 1869. Their daughter Bertha was born at Big Rapids on April 14, 1874, and their son Earl was born at Carson City on June 20, 1882. Lydia was a Carson City milliner and dress maker from 1878 through 1881. Martin was 5 feet 7 inches tall with a fair complexion, black hair and blue eyes when he applied in July of 1886 for an Invalid Pension based upon the disease he had contracted in the army. Martin and Lydia spent their last years in the Grand Rapids home of her cousin, Mrs. Florence Brenner, supported by his pension of $72.00 per month. Martin died of prostatitis and uremic poisoning on December 17, 1923. Lydia received a Widow's Pension of $30.00 per month until her death on January 29, 1926. Orlando was born in the state of New York about 1823. Her father came from New York and Cornelia (later Emelia) was born in Canada to a French mother in June of 1829. She married Orlando about 1856, and their sons were born in Michigan: Frederick in June of 1858, and John in November of 1868. The entry for Palmer includes a long advertisement for Moore & Palmer's General Daguerrean Depot. In 1851 Orlando offered "... Miniatures set in Rings, Pins, Locket, Cases, &c.... Stock, chemicals and apparatus furnished." In 1853 his gallery was between Griswold Street and Woodward Avenue. He was awarded a diploma and $2.00 as First Premium for the best daguerreotypes exhibited at the fifth annual Michigan State Fair, which was held at Detroit in September of 1853. This award was featured in his advertising from October 12, 1853, at least through the following May. He exhibited at the sixth annual fair in 1854, but the premiums were awarded to other Detroit daguerreotypists. In 1856 he advertised "MOORE'S SKY-LIGHT DAGUERREIAN GALLERY,... Likenesses taken single or in groups, of all sizes, from the smallest to the largest ever taken in this city." His offer in 1858 and 1859 was: "Ambrotypes, or Daguerreotypes, put up in good case for Fifty Cents..." Frederick C. Moore was associated with his father in the gallery in 1876. Orlando's wife, Mrs. Emelia Moore, established her wax emporium in 1875, and continued as an artist in wax and a preserver of natural flowers for more than ten years. Orlando participated in the business in a minor capacity off and on during this period. Emelia was enumerated as a widow in 1900.

“Walter I. Moore, Charlotte, Mich.” was stamped on the back of the 8 by 10 inch plain buff mount of a 4¾ by 7¾ photograph of a group of students standing on the stoop of their one-room school. Their male teacher is standing in one doorway behind them, and a couple of other adults, possibly parents, are standing in the other doorway. There is a good supply of firewood visible at one side of the school, and a boy on his horse at the other side.

Willard was born at Mount Clemens to natives of Michigan on September 12, 1894, third of the seven children of Gilbert L. and Alice Moore. He became a short slim man with brown eyes and black hair. His middle initial was missing on the census reports for 1900, 1910 and 1920, and it was R in the 1930 report and on the draft registration card in 1917. Willard still was single and living with his parents in 1930.

Zephaniah was born to a mother from Massachusetts at Wilmington, Vermont, on June 30, 1841, last of the five children of Zephaniah Swift Moore and Lydia S. (Smith) Moore. His name was abbreviated during the three years he spent at the home of his only brother in Georgia, and he was known as Zephie S. Moore for the rest of his life. His brother later served in the Confederate service and died in 1864. When Zephie enlisted in the Navy at Chicago on August 26, 1864, he was 5 feet 7½ inches tall, weighed 145 pounds and had grey eyes, brown hair and a dark complexion. The physician found him to be unqualified for land service and suggested that he apply for the position of paymaster's steward. He was accepted and sent down to the receiving ship Great Western at Cairo, Illinois. On September 9, 1864, he reported to the U. S. Steamer Juliet, a gun boat of the Mississippi Squadron. On July 22, 1865, he was the last man discharged from the Juliet at Mound City, Illinois. Bernice Alice Taft was born on April 11, 1840, the daughter of Varnum and Samantha (Grover) Taft. She married Zephie at Bennington, Vermont, on October 19, 1869. Their daughter Alice Mae Moore was born at Jackson on August 18, 1877, and later was called Allie or Marguerite. Their son Roland Burns Moore was born at Jackson on February 16, 1883. About 1872 Zephie employed artist Miss Marion McOmber and clerk John H. Tibbetts. Bernice died at Jackson on June 1, 1901. Lydia Adell Fort married George W. Playford in 1871 and was widowed by his death in 1896. She and Zephie were married at Reading, Michigan, on October 19, 1902. After Lydia's death in February of 1917, Zephie lived with his daughter Marguerite and her husband, Wheeler V. Gardner, at Grand Rapids. He died there on April 21, 1926.

Hector was born in December of 1850 at St. Pierre les Becquets in Nicolet County, Quebec, the son of Aime and Marie (Petit) Moras, and he grew up on the family farm. Alvine Dion was born into a neighboring family about 1856, and she married Hector at St. Pierre in 1874. Their son Lucien was born in Quebec in July of 1875, and their daughter Lucina was born there two years later. Their daughter Corinne was born in New Hampshire in April of 1879. Their other children were born in Michigan: Lydia in January of 1884, Jane in September of 1886, William in July of 1888, Rose in August of 1892, and Laura in December of 1894. As Hector Morasse he advertised in the gazetteer for 1889: "... CHILDREN and FAMILY GROUPS a specialty. First-Class Work at Lowest Price." However, "H. P. D. MORAS, ESCANABA, MICH." was stamped on the backs of some cabinet mounts, and "Morasse" was printed on others. The surname was Moras in all Canadian records and in all but one American record. Hector was a widower by 1900, and he still was providing a home for his three youngest daughters in 1920, when he was enumerated as Edward Moras.

His father came from New York and Freeman was born in Michigan on May 17, 1898, sixth of the seven children of John A. and Clara Maria (Sanderson) Moray. He matured as a medium sized man with blue eyes and brown hair. Her father emigrated from Germany and Vera was born in Michigan in 1897. She became Mrs. Vera Isabella Moray in 1917. Their daughter Virginia was born in Lansing in August of 1918, and she seems to have died as a child. Their son Stuart was born in Lansing in February of 1930, when his mother had changed her name from Vera to Virginia. Freeman died at Lansing on December 9, 1980.

His father emigrated from Quebec and John was born at Seneca Falls, New York, on May 12, 1858, second of the eight children of Israel and Mary Ann (Conklin) Moray. Her father came from New York and Clara Maria Sanderson was born at Amboy, Michigan, to a mother from Pennsylvania on January 14, 1864, first of the four children of Frederick M. and Rachel B. (Hagaman) Sanderson. She married John on August 8, 1885, and their first three children were born in Michigan: Rachel in Fowlerville on July 16, 1886, Frederic in Lincoln Township of Osceola County on September 15, 1887, and Tina Clarella in Fremont Township of Isabella County on May 1, 1890. Their son George was born at La Grange, Indiana, on October 6, 1892. Their last three children were born in Michigan: John in Porter Township of Van Buren County on February 15, 1896, Freeman (later Ezek) on May 17, 1898, and Villetta at Lawton on May 22, 1908. "Moray" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs along with legends such as "Wild Cat Canal 1838, Brant, Mich." One of these cards was mailed to a man in Lansing with the message: "... Your order was received and I will forward the remedy today. Perhaps reach Lansing sometime Mon. or Tues. I hope you may be able to build up a good trade for it. Yours truly, J. A. Moray." William was born in New York State to natives of New York in June of 1848, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Morehouse. His sister Mary was three years older. Their mother seems to have died soon after William was born, and a lady named Mary Barhydt was caring for the children in 1850. She still was with the family in 1860, though by then William H. Morehouse had a wife named Adaline, who was born in New York State about 1821. "W. J. MOREHOUSE, PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY, over Slawson's Drug Store, COR. LAFAYETTE & CASS STREETS, GREENVILLE, MICH. A beautiful novelty given with every ½ dozen Cabinets or dozen Photographs." was printed on 4 ¼ by 2 ½ inch trade cards. "W. J. Morehouse, PHOTO. ARTIST. Copying and Enlarging. Lafayette Street, Greenville, Mich." was stamped on the back of many of his card and cabinet photographs. Julia was born in Michigan to German parents in December of 1865, and she married William about 1883. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Mary in October of 1887, Bertha in December of 1891, and Ruth in July of 1896. When William was first in Port Austin he advertised: "... Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged; Crayon Pictures a Specialty." By 1920 Julia was a widow providing a home in Detroit for her daughter, now Ruth Perry, and for her grandson Keith Perry.

Loren was born in New York State to natives of New York in July of 1857, fifth of the seven children of Aaron D. and Lydia (Searle) Morey. His father married again, and three additional Morey children were born in the 1870s. Ella was born in Michigan to parents from New York on March 28, 1859, second of the three daughters of Judson and Eliza Barrett. She married Loren about 1881 and their daughters were born in Michigan: Rheba in March of 1883, and Inis in June of 1888. "L. S. Morey, PHOTOGRAPHER and Dealer in Picture Frames, Mats, &c., Harrison, Mich." was stamped on the backs of 5 ¼ by 8 ½ inch buff mounts carrying photographs of logging camps in the snow. "To preserve its finish, get this picture framed by Morey & Moore, at L. S. Morey's, Harrison, Mich. Viewing a specialty. Enlarging neatly done. L. O. MOORE, Operator." was printed on the back of the mounts of 4 ½ by 7 inch photographs. Loren purchased the photograph gallery of Lone & Plunkett, and his arrival at Mount Pleasant with his family and his taking possession of the gallery in September of 1890 were noted by the local newspaper. He advertised as a "... LANDSCAPE AND PORTRAIT PHOTOGRAPHER ... My full crayon, life size portraits and smaller, give universal satisfaction. Outside orders respectfully solicited. Promptness and fine work throughout is my motto. Prices furnished on application." By March of 1891 he had doubled his business since adopting the new Aristo paper, which he used to make burnished prints which were more durable, more attractive and valuable in every way, though no more expensive than the old albumen prints. By April he had hired Mrs. Etta Clark as a portrait artist specializing in enlarging and retouching. A month later he was acquiring a reputation on his work for outside parties, and he sold six safety bicycles in the next three weeks. Late in July he was visiting Edmore with his family for two weeks and expected to photograph the mounds and ancient relics in that vicinity. In September of 1891 he was advertising from his studio over Fox & Hoy's Furniture Store: "... Call and Examine our New OMEGA WORK. - A 14 x 17 Portrait Given to Every Purchaser of one dozen Cabinets. Satisfaction Guaranteed." The same month he received favorable editorial comment on the photographs he had made of the clay tablets and relics of a prehistoric race, dug from the mounds near Wyman. These artifacts later became known as the Soper Frauds. His 1892 advertisement was similar to that in 1890, with the addition: "... Studio: corner Broadway and Main Street; Branch: north side Broadway, over Fox & Hoy." Some of his cabinet mounts carried a similar message: "... Our Portraits in Crayon, Pastel, Ink and Water Color are acknowledged to be superior in finish and quality, and will have my special attention. Nothing but strictly first-class work allowed to leave my Studio, price and grade considered. Duplicates may be had at any time, but no reduction except in large orders." Loren and his daughter were visiting friends at Mount Pleasant in August of 1900. Something happened to Ella, and by 1930 Loren was married to Emma who was born in Michigan to Canadian parents about 1860.

In 1893 J. Jefferson Gibson & Morgan employed Lizzie Deery as an artist and Ella T. Crawford as a clerk in their Port Huron gallery in the New Commercial Bank Block. Early in 1894 a photographic magazine mentioned a photo by Morgan & Gibson of Ann Arbor entitled "Mother's Voice." It showed "... four little girls posed as singing, on Easter morn. It is an ambitious picture and is well done." Frank J. C. Hollister was a principal of Morgan & Company. Albert advertised: "A. A. MORGAN & CO., (Port Huron) Photographers For Orchard Lake Cadets, Studio at Orchard Lake." in the spring of 1897. "Morgan" was lettered on the negative of an 18 by 22 inch composite photograph labeled "U. S. Federal Force, Port of Port Huron and St. Clair River District, 1898." Directly below the central view of the customs house were pictures of a dog and a cat. Above and on both sides of the central view were numbered portraits of 52 men and one woman. Their names were lettered in the lower corners and along the bottom edge of the negative. Albert's decision to establish a photographic business in Detroit was announced late in 1899, and his sale of a half interest in the Port Huron gallery to Phillip McKaig was reported in January of 1900. Early in 1901 a photographic journal devoted a full page to reproducing Albert's portrait of a man, and commented on another page that "The specimen of Mr. Morgan's work is very fine. It is full of detail, none of the character being obliterated." Albert was boarding with a Detroit family in 1900 along with eight others including two photographers. They were Edward Thompson and Henry F. Brown, who was in the process of moving his photographic business from Northville to Detroit. The sale by Mrs. A. A. Morgan of her half interest in the Morgan Gallery at Port Huron to Phillip McKaig was reported in the spring of 1901.

Frank was born in New York State in 1881 or early in 1882. Her father came from Pennsylvania and Blanche Graves was born in Michigan on April 4, 1886, last of the six children of Amos and Hannah Graves. Her father seems to have died, and about 1889 her mother married Webster Harvey. Her family was living in Williamston in 1900, next door to photographer Harold J. Meader. Blanche married Frank about 1903, and their children were born in Michigan: Waldemar in 1904, Gwendolyn in October of 1909, Mercedes early in 1913, Patricia in February of 1917, and Spencer in 1920. They were living in Ann Arbor in 1920, when Frank was an accountant for a bank. Blanche G. Morgan seems to have been a widow when she died in Los Angeles, California, on November 15, 1976.

Isaac was born in New Brunswick on August 5, 1853, fourth of the seven children of Jacob Valentine Morrell and Auer Ann (Vail) Morrell. His mother died in 1863, and his father had two more wives and six more children. Isaac was boarding with a Paw Paw family in 1880. Her father came from Virginia and Carrie was born in Illinois to a mother from Kentucky in March of 1865. She married Isaac about 1887, and their son Waldo seems to have died as a child. Their other sons were born in Illinois: Bruce in December of 1888, and Cecil in July of 1897. Carrie also was enumerated as a photographer in 1900, and probably contributed significantly to Isaac's photographic business. Isaac was a naturalized citizen of the United States by 1910, and he was a widower by 1920.

Moses was born in New Brunswick on October 4, 1849, second of the seven children of Jacob Valentine Morrell and Auer Ann (Vail) Morrell. His mother died in 1863, and his father had two more wives each of whom produced three children. Moses immigrated about 1880, and he became a naturalized citizen of the United States in 1892. Emma was born in Michigan in May of 1857, second of the five children of George W. and Eliza A. Brink. She married Moses in 1880 or 1881. Their daughter Lena was born on May 31, 1884, and she died as a child. Their daughter Zena was born in Illinois on June 25, 1891. The photographer John W. Overholt was their next door neighbor in 1900. Moses and Emma were providing a home in 1930 for Zena, who was a physical instructor at the YWCA. Emma died in 1935 in Polk County, Florida, and Moses died there in 1941.

Sidney was born in Vermont to natives of Vermont in 1844. In 1875 there was an artist named S. B. Morrell in Racine, Wisconsin. Elizabeth Foster was born in Canada about 1862, and she was brought to the United States in 1864. She married Sidney early in 1880, when she was known as Lizzie. They had two children, including Laura who was born in Michigan about 1889. "S. B. MORRELL, Photo. View Artist, 237 Bagg Street, Detroit, Mich." was stamped on the buff backs of 8 by 10 plain black mounts which carried casually posed sepia toned 6 by 8 inch prints of groups of enlisted men in the field. The photographs included thirteen members of Company C in the 31st Infantry Regiment and twelve men of Company C in the 33rd Infantry. Elizabeth still was keeping house for Sidney in 1920.

Pendleton was born at Brunswick, Georgia, to Pendleton Stewart and Lillian (Littlefield) Morris on September 15, 1887. Morris & Wilding offered a motion picture advertising service and manufactured commercial motion picture films. In 1917 their office and studio were both at 329 Monroe Avenue. Norman E. Wilding continued the business into 1919 as Morris & Wilding, but by 1920 had renamed it the Wilding Film Manufacturing Company. Pendleton was a tall single civil engineer with grey eyes and brown hair when he was called into active service at Fort Sheridan, Illinois, on May 14, 1917, and was sent for training at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. He was assigned as a Captain on the staff of the 310th Engineers on August 15, 1917. He and Miss Belle McCormick of Grand Rapids were married at Chicago on December 29, 1917. He was promoted to Major of the 310th Engineers on April 17, 1918, and served at Camp Custer in Michigan and Camp Mills in New York before shipping overseas on July 21, 1918. He was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel of the 310th Engineers on September 9, 1918, and was awarded the British Distinguished Service Order "In recognition of meritorious service rendered the Allied cause," and the Russian Order of St. Anne. Belle gave birth to Pendleton S. Morris the Third on March 20, 1919. Pendleton returned to the United States on July 18, and was honorably discharged from the army on August 18, 1919.

Alonzo was born in Fairfield Township of Lenawee County to parents from New York on November 6, 1849, oldest of the three sons of Lorenzo D. and Sylvia (Baker) Morse. His sister Laura was born in the summer of 1863. Alonzo's partner in 1872 seems to have been Josiah C. Sheakley. The Adrian Street gallery probably was lost when the entire business section of Blissfield burned down on January 13, 1875. Nellie B. Rice was born in Michigan to parents from New York in April of 1852, first of the two children of Henry B. and Jennette A. (sometimes Jennie) Rice. She married Alonzo on December 31, 1878. Alonzo's brother Edgar also was a principal of A. Morse & Company, and they were doing business throughout Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Nellie gave birth to a daughter in Pennsylvania in November of 1879, and Lorie died as a child. Alonzo and Nellie were living in Philadelphia with her parents in 1880, when her father also was working as a photographer. Their other daughters were born in Illinois: Zaidee in March of 1883, and Olive in May of 1890. Alonzo maintained a gallery in Chicago for twenty years before returning to Fairfield where he conducted a photographic business in association with his sister Laura. Though he was enumerated as married in 1900 and in 1910, he was sharing his home only with his sister. He and Laura still were sharing a home in 1930, when Alonzo was characterized as widowed. Alonzo died on December 5, 1938.

Edgar was born in Fairfield Township of Lenawee County on September 2, 1852, youngest of the three sons of Lorenzo D. and Sylvia (Baker) Morse. After attending the local schools he became a teacher. Julia Crelley was born at Jonesville in Hillsdale County, Michigan on October 15, 1855, one of the eight children of Thomas and Julia (Sagriff) Crelley. She married Edgar on December 8, 1874. In 1876 Edgar went to Iowa and worked on a ranch owned by his uncles. A year later he returned to Fairfield and to teaching. He soon became a partner of his brother Alonzo in A. Morse & Company, and traveled throughout Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania as a photographer. Julia gave birth to nine children, all of whom survived. Her daughter Silvey was born in Pennsylvania in October of 1879. Her other children were born in Michigan: Ralph in January of 1877, Frank a year later, Earl in January of 1887, Floy in May of 1889, Estella in March of 1893, and Edgar on January 2, 1896. Two born in the early 1880s have not been identified. In 1882 Edgar returned with his wife and children to the family farm in Fairfield Township. He was elected secretary of the local Mutual Fire Insurance Company in 1897. He was supervisor of Fairfield Township for 13 years, served at various times as secretary, treasurer and chairman of the county Democratic committee, and was superintendent of the poor from the fall of 1898 until his death on August 17, 1908. Julia was living in 1910 in Adrian, where she was providing a home for her youngest son Edgar.

Laura was born in Michigan to parents from New York in July of 1863, youngest of the four children of Lorenzo D. and Sylvia (Baker) Morse. She was thirteen years younger than her brother Alonzo. Laura was living on the farm for many years with her mother, who was enumerated as divorced in 1880 and as a widow in 1900. She was sharing the home of Alonzo from 1910 and 1930, and one source implied that Laura was a full partner in the Fairfield studio.

Sophus was born in Germany to Danish parents in 1860 or 1861, immigrated to the United States in 1885, and became a naturalized citizen. Augusta was born in Norway in 1867 or 1868, she came to America in 1882, and she married Sophus about 1887. Their sons were born in Michigan: Leo in 1888, and Severt (later James) in 1904. Sophus came to Iron Mountain from Chicago to work for Hans A. Hansen who had opened a gallery in a new building opposite the Milwaukee & Northern depot. They soon became partners and advertised: "Life Size Pictures, Children a Specialty." Most of the views of buildings and mines in The Menominee Iron Range were reproductions of photos by Mortenson, but one was by Murdoch & Mortenson and a couple were by Murdoch. An advertisement in this 1891 publication was for "S. MORTENSON, Photographic Artist, the Best Equipped Studio on the Range. Besides PORTRAITURE, Mr. Mortenson makes a Specialty of Landscape Photography, Groups, Animals, etc..." Some cabinet photographs of this period had "S. Mortensen, IRON MOUNTAIN, MICH." impressed into the mount below the image. His 1892 ad was for "The leaping photographer. The finest scenic effects. All work done pertaining to the art..." Ten years later he advertised as the "Leading Photographer, Artistic Effects, Modern Methods. Opposite C & NW Railway Depot ... all the latest positions, mounts, etc." Iron Mountain was about six miles from Niagara, Wisconsin. Sophus died on a St. Paul passenger train near Coleman, Wisconsin, on May 26, 1913. Both of her sons were living in Iron Mountain with Augusta in 1920.

George was born in England in March of 1867, and he came to America with his parents in 1870. He became a citizen of the United States, probably when his father was naturalized while George still was a minor. Ida was born in Michigan in February of 1872, fourth of the six children of John F. and Elizabeth Post. She married George about 1901 and their children were born in Michigan: George in January of 1893, James in April of 1895, and Lucy in May of 1897. Their children were grown and George and Ida were living by themselves in 1930.
