Luther, a son of Bridgeman C. and Abigail J. (Goodenough) Moulton, was born on their farm in Howard Township of Cass County, Michigan, on September 27, 1843. He enlisted in the Twelfth Michigan Infantry and served until his health failed, then sailed the Great Lakes and rose to be master of a schooner before he took up photography at St. Joseph. He and Sarah Adelaide Armstrong of Ashland, Michigan, were married on August 7, 1866, and later had three daughters, though only one lived to maturity. "From the Excelsior Gallery! 62 & 64 Western Avenue, Muskegon, Mich. - Sun Pictures of all styles and sizes, from gems to life size solar prints. A large stock of Frames, Albums, Cases, etc., constantly on hand. L. MOULTON, Proprietor." was printed on the pasters holding tintypes into their carte de visite sized paper frames. Luther produced an extensive series of stereo views from Muskegon, depicting lumbering and shipping as well as local buildings and scenery. He was granted Patent Number 105,233 on July 12, 1870, covering a Frame for Sensitizing Photographic Paper. Later in the same year he began advertising nationally his "Solar Printing-Frames" which were based upon this patent. He published stereoscopic views of Beaver Dam, and on August 12, 1873, was issued Patent Number 141,658 describing Machines for Washing Photographs. His Rapid Photo Washers were awarded the Holmes Silver Medal at the 1874 Chicago convention of the National Photographers' Association as the second greatest improvement in photography during the previous year. The washers rotated and sprayed water on both sides of the prints, washing them thoroughly in ten to fifteen minutes and using less water than any other method. They were manufactured in three sizes, the smallest with a capacity of prints up to 14 by 17 inches or of 84 cards, and the largest holding prints up to 22 by 28 or 220 cards. They were sold nationally through the Scoville Manufacturing Company. The NPA monogram on Luther's card photograph mounts from Beaver Dam and on heavier cards without a place name (but probably from Grand Rapids) attest to his membership in the National Photographers' Association. His Grand Rapids stereo views included streets decorated for the Fourth of July in 1876, a sham battle enacted at Reed's Lake by Michigan State Troops in August of 1876, and sentimental compositions with diaphanous angels. In 1876 he was advertising "... Special Facilities for Trade Work, such as Solar Printing, Copying and Enlarging, Photographing Manufactured Goods, and Photographic Advertising generally. Also Inventor and Manufacturer of the RAPID PHOTO WASHER ... Circulars Free." He claimed to have the finest photographing rooms in Grand Rapids, staffed in 1876 by photographers Florence E. Livingston and George W. Martin and photo printer Ida M. Armstrong. His 1877 ads emphasized "Solar Printing, Enlarging, Copying and Coloring for the Trade. Canvasser's Work solicited." 1878 employees included photographer Seymour W. Stiles and photo printer Caroline Towles. From 1878 through 1880, separate ads were run for the photograph gallery of Mr. Moulton and the art studio of Mrs. Moulton at the same address. He advertised "Portraits in water colors, ink and pastel.... Special attention given to sittings by appointment." and "... Copying, Enlarging and Solar Printing For The Trade." She offered paintings in water colors, India ink and pastels as well as instructions in the mediums. Sarah probably participated in finishing photographs much of the time that Luther was in the business, and often had a business address as an artist between 1880 and 1908. From 1900 until 1902 she was chairman of the M & J Manufacturing Company which made skirt supporters and novelties. In 1879 Luther was elected to the Michigan Legislature from Kent County on the Greenback ticket. By 1880 his book The Science of Money had been published and he was lecturing on finance. He began studying law in 1882 and founded a patent soliciting firm in 1883, with himself as the mechanical expert and with a lawyer for a partner until he established his own legal credentials. For a while he also served as treasurer of a publishing company and was part owner of an iron and brass foundry. He was 47 years old in 1890, when he was admitted to the bar and began devoting most of his attention to the patent business. It was carried on in his name alone until 1896, when he took his draughtsman in as a partner for four years. After many years on his own, he formed a partnership with a younger lawyer in 1914 that lasted until Luther's death on September 9, 1919. The business continued in the partner's name.

Their father was a Methodist Episcopal clergyman. "A. S. Mount, Photographer, Nashville, Mich. – Additional copies of this picture can be had if desired, without further sitting." was printed on the backs of card photograph mounts. Cora was born in New York State to natives of New York in April of 1851, eldest of the three children of James and Avis W. Owen. She married Albert about 1869 and their children were born in Michigan: Fairy in March of 1877, and Archie in January of 1879. Fairy attended college and became a public school teacher. Albert and Cora were providing a home for his widowed mother in 1900, and for Cora's widowed mother in 1910. Cora was a widow herself by 1920. David was born in Pennsylvania to natives of Pennsylvania in March of 1852, fifth of the six children of David and Christianna Moyer. Sally (Sarah by 1900) was born in Pennsylvania to natives of Pennsylvania in July of 1857, and she married David about 1878. Their daughter Vurna was born at Constantine in January of 1880, and she died as a child. Their daughter Dena was born at Constantine in December of 1881. Their son Vernon was born at South Haven in July of 1895. David's photographic partners were Bertram C. Hopkins and later, George F. Gates. In 1898 Biographical Sketches of South Haven reproduced Moyer & Hopkins photographs of streets, schools and other public buildings, and carried their advertisement: "... Up to date on style of work. Down to date on prices.... Will make your PICTURE FRAMES while you wait.... SEE YOURSELF as others see you..." The M. H. & G. Company published "GATES' PICTURESQUE AMERICA" and "GATES' PICTURESQUE EUROPE" stereoscopic views on curved buff mounts similar to those used by George F. Gates in Chicago under a variety of company names. David made the photos of the senior class for the 1915 South Haven High School Yearbook. In 1920 and in 1925 David and Sarah were providing a home for their son Vernon and his son Derwood. Vernon was a widower, and he too was enumerated as a candy merchant. From 1929 or earlier until 1932 David was a principal of his son's candy manufacturing business, V. T. Moyer & Company. By 1930 David also was a widower, and he still was sharing his home with Vernon and Derwood. David was taken to South Haven City Hospital following a stroke at his home on the morning of October 4, 1932. He died at the hospital on the morning of October 6, 1932.

Otto was born in Pennsylvania to a mother from Indiana in October of 1881, last of the seven children of Christian and Barbara Moyer. He was living with his widowed mother in 1900. Lena was born in Michigan to English parents about 1883, and she married Otto about 1900. Their five daughters and a son were born in Michigan: Otha in 1901 or early in 1902, Zera in 1905, Robert early 1908, Lucille in 1910, Muriel about 1915, and Eloise in June of 1917. "MOYER'S ORCHESTRA, KALKASKA, MICH. FLASH BY MOYER" was lettered on the negative of a postal photograph of five men and five women, mostly young, with their instruments. The card was postmarked in March of 1907 and carried this message: "Mar 25th ... This was taken by Otto one night last winter in our parlor where we practice. All the orchestra was not here."

William was born in Pennsylvania to natives of Pennsylvania in February of 1860, first of the five or more children of Jacob and Lucy Moyer. Her father came from Virginia and Alice Jane Fletcher was born at Kalamazoo, Michigan, to a mother from New York on July 13, 1862. She married William about 1881 and their children were born in Michigan: Lila in July of 1883, Floyd in June of 1885, Mahlon in January of 1896, and Maynard not until 1904. Mahlon only lived until May of 1898. Floyd W. Moyer undoubtedly was William's junior partner in 1910. William was a widower by 1920, when he was providing a home for his widowed mother, now Mrs. Lucy A. Beebe. Luella M. Taylor was born in Illinois to natives of Illinois in 1872 or 1873, and she married William about 1924. William died at Benton Harbor on December 15, 1934.

Alva was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan on September 10, 1891. He was living in 1900 and 1910 on the farm of his maternal grandparents, David and Helen Gilbert. A post card photograph of 25 children seated and standing in a classroom with a slightly older female that may have been their teacher was blind stamped "ALVA MUDGE, PHOTOGRAPHER, WALKERVILLE, MICH." Walkerville is in Leavitt Township. "Main St. – Walkerville, Mich. Photo by A. R. Mudge" was lettered in green ink on the face of a post card photograph. Alva was working in 1917 for the Consumers Power Company on the large dam on the Manistee River that was later called the Tippy Dam, and was said to have a wife and child. Something happened to this family, and by January of 1920 Alva had an 18-year-old wife named Venius from Utah and a 2-months-old daughter named Margaret born in Washington.

One Adolph Mueller served in Company A of the Ninth Ohio Infantry during the Civil War. The Artotype, one of the earliest photo-mechanical printing processes, was based upon three United States patents. Two were granted to J. Albert of Munich in 1869 and 1871 and were assigned to Edward Bierstadt of New York. The third was Patent Number 208,114 granted to J. B. Obernetter of Munich on September 17, 1878, which was assigned to B. F. Powelson and Adolph Mueller of Detroit, and to W. A. Cooper and W. E. Lindop of St. Thomas, Ontario. The Artotype Company was established at New York in the fall of 1878 to license the process and Bierstadt was its principal operator and instructor for several years. Adolph Mueller may have moved to New York to work with Bierstadt.

His father emigrated from Scotland and Frank was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in February of 1860. His sister Mary was three years younger, and they were living in 1870 with their mother, Mrs. Roxa Muir. The household included 77-year-old Sarah Fuller, who probably was their maternal grandmother. Frank and Mary were boarding with Arnold and Mary J. Lane in 1880. Eleanor M. Tompkins was born in Canada in April of 1859, immigrated in 1883, and married Frank in 1889. They had two children, including Nellie born in July of 1892. "FRANK MUIR, View Artist, DUPLICATES OF THIS PICTURE 35c EACH. Woodmere P. O., Wayne Co., Mich." was stamped on the back of 5 by 8 inch photograph mounts. Woodmere was absorbed by Detroit in 1901. "F. MUIR, Cor. Mich. Ave. and 25th St., and 1278 Fort St. W., Detroit, Mich." was printed in at least three different ways on cabinet mounts. Springwells was renamed Fordson in 1925, and was annexed by the city of Dearborn in 1928. Frank was 64 years old when he died in Detroit on October 15, 1924. His widow, Mrs. Eleanor Muir, still was living in Detroit in 1925.

Rachel was born in Michigan to Canadian parents in February of 1870, and she married Thomas Murphy about 1898. Thomas was born in Michigan in March of 1872, and was the village clerk at Lowell from 1902 until 1911. He also was an insurance agent in 1900, when he and Rachel were neighbors of Eber Moffitt and his wife Cassie, who was a Lowell photographer from 1896 until 1905. Rachel may have died giving birth about 1906, for in 1910 Thomas had a three-year-old son named Malcolm and had been married to 26-year-old Maud for two years.

His maternal grandparents were Canadian and Ralph was born in Michigan on October 31, 1881, the elder son of Albert and Sarah (often Dollie or Dolly) Murray. His brother Roy was born in June of 1883. Their widowed mother was providing a home for her sons until 1909. Ralph had brown eyes and brown hair, and he became tall and slender. "Murray Photog" was lettered on a post card photograph of "Eggorotes" from the Philippine Islands climbing a pole, probably as an attraction at the Michigan State Fair. Ralph sent this card to a friend in Vermont early in 1909, with an offer to send many similar cards in trade. Ralph and Roy were lodging with a Denver lady in 1910, while Dollie stayed on in Detroit until 1913. She had joined Ralph in Los Angeles by 1918. Ralph still was single in 1920.

His father came from New York and Rowe was born in Illinois to a mother from Wisconsin in December of 1870, the younger son of William and Jennie Murray. His brother Guy was two years older. Something happened to their father, and by 1880 their mother was married to Lyman E. Patten. Her father emigrated from Canada, Grace was born in Indiana in November of 1871, and she married Rowe about 1892. Their children were born in Michigan: Mignon in September of 1893, and the twins Faymond and Raymond in December of 1896. "ROWE D. MURRAY, I. P. A. 3345, 484 Wabash Ave., Detroit, Mich." was stamped in red ink within a 1¼ inch circle on the post card back of a photograph with the inscription: "Looking north, Detroit River from Bar Point, Lake Erie. Bois Blanc Island in distance." Rowe lived at 484 Wabash Avenue in 1912 and 1913, and apparently was a member of the International Photographic Association. He and Grace were providing a home in 1920 for her widowed mother, Elizabeth Beamer.

His parents emigrated from the south of Ireland and John was born in Detroit in June of 1856. He was living in 1880 with the family of his brother Andrew, who was born in New York State about 1851. Rose was born in Michigan in 1867, she married John about 1885, and they never had children. They were living in Grosse Pointe in 1900 and 1910, but in Detroit in 1920. "B.P.O.E. PARADE, DETROIT 1910, MURTAGH. PHOTO. CO" was lettered on at least three different negatives from which post card photographs were printed. "PHOTO AT NIGHT, MURTAGH CO. B.P.O.E., DETROIT 1910" was lettered on another postal negative. In 1910 John was proprietor of the Murtagh Photographing, Picture & Frame Company at 38 Broadway. "MURTAGH & LAGROU, 1190 GRATIOT AVE., DETROIT, MICHIGAN." was printed on the post card backs of studio portraits. "MURTAGH & LAGROU, PHOTOGRAPHERS. Artistic Picture Framing and Enlarging, Kodaks, Supplies Etc. Finishing for Amateurs. 1190 GRATIOT AVENUE NEAR MT. ELLIOT" was printed on a label affixed to the back of large photograph mounts. The change from 1190 to 3756 Gratiot Avenue during 1920 was due to overall revisions in the Detroit numbering system rather than to relocation. John had been living retired in Grosse Pointe for many years at the time of his death on December 13, 1939. He was remembered as a former portrait photographer whose patrons had included celebrities of early Detroit. He was survived by his wife, Mrs. Rose Kies Murtagh. Burial was in St. Paul Cemetery.

His father came from Indiana and Courtland was born in Michigan on July 9, 1881, first of the six children of Edwin W. and Stella Muzzall. He became a slender man with brown eyes and dark hair. Courtland's intention of leaving Crown Point for Grand Haven, where he had purchased a studio and planned to enter business for himself, was reported late in 1901. One year later he was declaring state wide that he was the leading photographer of Grand Haven, offering commercial photography, photo enlargements and finishing for amateurs. Edna M. Martin was born in Indiana to parents from Pennsylvania on October 6, 1881, and she married Courtland in Lake County, Indiana, on May 25, 1903. They had two daughters born in Michigan: Lois in 1904, and Thelma in 1906. Their other children were born in Washington: William in 1911, and Stella in 1913. Vernor Muzzall, born in Michigan about 1883, was working in Everett as a photographer for his brother Courtland in 1910. Courtland and his family were enumerated twice only a few days apart for the 1920 census report. Courtland seems to have died before 1940, but Edna lived on in Washington until February 16, 1977.

George was born in Pennsylvania to natives of Pennsylvania in May of 1848. The George W. Myers that served in Company H of the 13th Michigan Infantry during the Civil War was not the photographer, for he lived near Gobleville until 1885, at Paw Paw until 1893, and then at Hillsdale until his death in 1924. Her father came from Ohio and Rebecca was born in Indiana to a mother from Virginia in February of 1844, and she married George about 1875. Before 1884 he was listed as George W. Mires. His patrons included African-Americans. In 1900 George and Rebecca were providing a home for seventeen-year-old Bennie Shrope, who was studying photography with George and attending a public school. George lived by himself for many years, and he was enumerated as divorced in 1910 and as a widower in 1920 and 1930.

His father came from Indiana and Horace was born in Kansas to a mother from Michigan on December 22, 1860, eldest of the four children of John and Ellen M. Myers. Horace was known as Harris C. Myers at La Crosse, where he was living with his mother, who was enumerated as a widow. His mother opened a gallery at La Crosse in 1875, and she lived there through 1903. Horace and his sister Jessie were living in 1900 with their father, who was enumerated as a widower. The listing at Marquette was for H. C. Myers. The Michigan State Gazetteer for 1885 carried this advertisement: "CHILDS' ART GALLERY. Strangers and Tourists visiting Marquette should not fail to see the immense collection of STEREOSCOPIC VIEWS of the magnificent scenery of Lake Superior, which vies with any portion of America in grandeur and beauty. The Medicine Hat Times for December 31, 1889, reported that H. C. Myers was in that Alberta town taking orders for the enlargement of photographs as the agent of a Toronto firm. Horace was about 42 years old when he married for the first time. Her father came from Pennsylvania and Anna Verde Long was born in Iowa in June of 1880, first of the three daughters of Abram T. and Annie W. Long. She married Horace at Boise on June 20, 1907, and their son Horace was born there in 1908. The senior Horace was a widower by 1920, when he was raising his son on his own. Irving was born at Linden, Michigan, on October 6, 1889, last of the two children of William P. and Jennie Myers. He became a tall slender man with brown eyes and hair. He and his parents were living in 1910 next door to Joseph H. Phipps, who had been a Fenton photographer from 1862 through 1897. Olive was born in Michigan in 1898, and she married Irving about 1915. Their children were born in Michigan: Margaret in February of 1917, Grace in 1920 or early in 1921, and William in November of 1929.

Lewis was born into a German-speaking family in France on July 23, 1831, and he was brought to the United States as an infant. During the summers of 1862 and 1863 he worked in a saw mill at Croton. He was 5 feet 5 ½ inches tall with a light complexion, blue eyes and black hair when he enlisted as a private in Company A of the 21st Michigan Infantry at Grand Rapids on September 1, 1864. He joined the regiment at Chattanooga, Tennessee. By early December he was suffering from ulcerated or bleeding piles brought on by tearing up railroad tracks, exposure and long marches in the vicinity of Augusta, Georgia. He was mustered out of the army on June 8 at Washington, D. C., and was honorably discharged at Grand Rapids on June 20, 1865. In later life he was often identified as Lewis S. Meyers. Catherine Meyers was born in the Baden region of Germany about 1839, and she immigrated to Croton Township about 1857. She married Lewis at Croton on May 13, 1868, and they never had children. They lived on a farm in Big Prairie Township of Newaygo County and were served by the post office at Morley in Mecosta County until they moved into Sand Lake. Lewis applied for an Invalid Pension early in 1889, and was receiving $22.50 per month at the time of his death at Sand Lake on April 14, 1914. Burial was in the Sand Lake Village Cemetery. Catherine lived on a Widow's Pension at Sand Lake until her death on July 18, 1926.

In the summer of 1863 on a page headed "Minor Correspondence," a photographic journal printed this reply to a letter: "J. L. N. of Mich. - We doubt if you have ever seen any absolute alcohol, although you have purchased much under that name. The genuine alcohol absolutely free from water, is procured with great difficulty, and when sold commands a high price. Moreover, in the process of separating the water, the alcohol is apt to be to a considerable extent decomposed. The purest and best alcohol for photographic purposes contains at least five per cent. of water, and that amount of water is not detrimental to it."

His father was born into a German-speaking family in Russia, and he immigrated in 1888. Barney was born in Detroit to a German mother on August 10, 1893, second of the seven children of Adolph and Emma L. Nagel. He went to work for the Detroit News in 1912 after responding to an advertisement seeking a “likely young man for the photographic department.” William A. Kuenzel was the entire photographic staff of the News at this time. Barney remained second in seniority to Kuenzel among the Detroit News photographers for the rest of his life. He was a slender single man with blue eyes and brown hair who was supporting his father and mother when he was inducted into the army at Detroit on September 21, 1917. He was sent to Camp Custer where he was assigned as a photographer in the Headquarters Company of the 85th Division. He was transferred to the Air Service in March and to the United States Army School of Aerial Photography at Madison Barracks, New York, on April 10, 1918. He was assigned to the 22nd Photo Section on August 16, was promoted to corporal in September, and was shipped overseas on October 15, 1918. He returned to this country on February 18, and was honorably discharged on March 11, 1919. Barney was 58 years old when he suffered a fatal heart attack at Amherstburg, Ontario, while on vacation during the summer of 1951. He was survived by Alice, his wife, and Bernard, Junior, his son, and was said to have virtually covered Detroit’s growth with his camera.

John William Nara was born in Finland on November 23, 1875, and he immigrated in 1895. Maria Piehi was born in Finland in 1877 or 1878, immigrated in 1896, and married him about 1903. Their son Raffael was born in Michigan on April 14, 1905. The photographer was called "J. W." by his family, and was identified as J. W. Nara, J. William Nara or William Nara on his photograph mounts. He produced photographs of many sizes and shapes, and some on cabinet mounts could be taken for 19th Century work. A double house that he had recently purchased and had partially furnished was totally destroyed by fire on December 10, 1903, along with a $100 camera. A 1903 letterhead reads: "WILLIAM NARA, (Suomalainen Walofuwaaja) PHOTOGRAPHER. Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged to any size. We also sell up to date Novelties & Souvenirs. Interior Views Specialty By Orders. Photographic Novelties & Jewelry. Photo buttons, Watch Charms, Medallions, Brooches, Stick pins, etc. Landscapes and Views of Copper Country Mines, Public Buildings, Residences, Streets, etc. Stamp & Minette Photos. Enlarging of Portraits in Sepia, Crayon, Water Color, Pastel, etc., furnished on demand." He took many pictures of himself in various poses and clothing, including his uniforms as infantryman, KOTM lodge member and tuba player. A series of 25 photos by J. W. Nara of the Italian Hall disaster at Calumet on Christmas Eve in 1913 were mechanically reproduced in a stereo format. A facsimile of his signature and "W. NARA'S PHOTOGRAPHIC ART SCENERY and Copper Country MINING VIEWS. CALUMET, MICH." was stamped on the back of stereoscopic views of the Light Guards marching through the streets and leaving from the depot as well as other scenes. "J. W. NARA, Calumet, Mich." was embossed on post card photographs of parading miners' wives and Masons, an outdoor boxing match and a young man sitting on his motorcycle in the studio. "NARA'S Photo-Gems of Copper Country. Original Photo-Post Card. Series A, I-46. Copyright 1906 by J. W. Nara, Calumet, Mich." was printed on the back of a photograph of the Calumet & Hecla Public Library. "Calumet New Studio, Ground Floor, Calumet, Mich." was blind stamped into postal photographs of miners and their families marching through the streets. By 1918 J. W. was a naturalized citizen of the United States, and was medium sized with light blue eyes and light brown hair. The Naras moved to Bootjack, a small town in a farming region of Houghton County east of Torch Lake. J. W. died there in 1934. His head stone in Lakeview Cemetery reads William John Nara. His grand sons became a dentist and a veterinarian in the Copper Country.

James was proprietor of the Original Cheap Photograph Gallery in Columbus, also called the New Excelsior Gallery, and had the exclusive patent right there for a newly invented camera with which he could take miniatures for five cents each, or fifty cents per dozen. Some time in the early to mid 1860s, J. H. Nason was proprietor of the Union Picture Gallery at Auburn, New York. "NASON'S GALLERY ... Cheapest and best place in the city. Photographs only $1.50 per Doz. All work warranted to give satisfaction. N.B. - The only Gallery in Detroit where the celebrated Sarony Rest and Posing Machine is used. The above combines beauty, style, grace and ease to our pictures. Negatives preserved." was printed on the back of some cartes de visite. These included two different bird's-eye views of the west side of Woodward Avenue looking toward the Detroit River. James employed Miss Mary Joyce as a photographer in 1868. He published stereo views from Cleveland, including a series showing Chicago after the destructive fire in October of 1871. Nason's New Photo Parlors at the corner of Main and Clinton Streets in Buffalo, the largest establishment of the kind in the state, occupied an area of 11,000 square feet on two entire floors.

His maternal grandparents emigrated from Germany and John was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan in January of 1876, the elder son of John and Theressa Navarre. His family was living in 1880 with his paternal grandparents, Robert and Sophia Navarre. His brother William was born in March of 1884. "J. H. Navarre, Belleville, Mich." and "J. H. Navarre, Carleton, Mich." and "J. H. Navarre, Deerfield, Mich." were printed on cabinet mounts. "J. H. Navarre, Flat Rock, Mich." was printed on similar mounts including one with a photograph of the Belleville Hotel. "J. H. Navarre, Belleville, Mich." was printed on the face of a later 5 by 7 inch mount below an oval portrait, and "J. H. Navarre, Flat Rock, Mich." was stamped on the back of the same mount. The opening of a photograph gallery in Wyandotte by John Navarre, Junior, was reported early in 1899. John was enumerated twice as single for the 1900 census: on June 2 as a boarder in a Belleville hotel, and on June 22 at the home of his parents in Brownstown Township.

His father came from New Jersey and Carlton was born in New York in 1817 or 1818, probably the son of Jesse and Miranda Neal. His first wife, Mrs. Anna Maria Neal, was born in New York State about 1823. She gave birth in Michigan to Oscar about 1843, to Orrin about 1846, to Emily about 1848, and probably to Marietta about 1851 and to Albert about 1853. Anna died at Grand Rapids on March 17, 1856. The gallery of Frederick G. Heath & Neal was at the northeast corner of Canal and Pearl Streets. Carlton shaved two or three years off of his age when he enlisted at Grand Rapids as the First Sergeant in Company K of the Third Michigan Infantry on May 13, 1861. On June 10 he was mustered into the army, and on June 12 he married Miss Virtue Mitchell. She was born at Bath in England about 1834, came to the United States in 1847, and came in 1853 to Grand Rapids where she worked as a dress maker. Virtue gave birth to Nellie about 1864, to Frederick about 1867, and to Gayceus about 1873. Carlton was commissioned a Second Lieutenant on July 1, but resigned on November 25, 1861, when he was found to be deficient in knowledge and capacity by a military board. He re-entered the army on November 3, 1862, when he was commissioned Junior Second Lieutenant of Battery L in the First Michigan Light Artillery. While crossing the Clinch River in East Tennessee during November of 1863, one of the men of the battery was thrown from his horse and was struggling to stay afloat when Carlton came to his assistance, got very wet, and caught a severe cold. By February of 1864 Carlton was a Senior Second Lieutenant on detached service with a small group guarding a fort at Cumberland Gap in East Tennessee. They were exposed to a severe storm in an open log shanty, and Carlton caught another bad cold that left him with asthma and bronchial problems and deaf in one ear. During May and June of 1864, he spent some time in Michigan. During a review in August of 1864, he was relieved from this duty after he told his captain that he could not hear the commands. He was commissioned Captain on January 14, 1865, and so mustered a month later. He was honorably discharged and mustered out with his battery at Jackson, Michigan, on August 22, 1865. Carlton was 5 feet 8 inches tall with a fair complexion, gray hair and blue eyes when he applied for an Invalid Pension on August 26, 1887, based upon naso-pharyngeal catarrh, total deafness of his left ear and severe loss of hearing in his right ear. By March of 1890 he was totally deaf and the catarrh was so bad that he required almost constant attendance. Early in 1892 his 21-year-old daughter, Deese Weinette, became his housekeeper and caretaker. Carlton died at Grand Rapids on July 15, 1896. Virtue continued to live in Grand Rapids on a Widow's Pension of $15.00 per month until her death at the age of 73 on May 31, 1906. Burial of both wives was in the Fulton Street Cemetery.

Frederick was born in May of 1864 to English parents in Hope Township, Ontario, the younger son of John and Maria Neal. He and his brother Elisha had eleven sisters. They were boarding in 1889 at Grand Rapids with their parents. Frederick returned from Grand Rapids to Port Hope, Ontario, to marry Annie Oliver on September 10, 1892. Annie (later Anna) was the daughter of James and Margaret Oliver, and was born at Port Hope in August of 1868. She gave birth in Michigan to Edith in August of 1893, to Clarence in January of 1896, and to Loretta in November of 1897. Miss Sadie Kitts did photo printing and retouching for Loran W. Schellhaus before she and Frederick formed the partnership which took over both the main gallery on Monroe Street and the branch on Ionia Street from Schellhaus. Forbes C. Welsh was one of Frederick's partners at Albion, and most of the photographs reproduced in the Albion issue of Headlight were furnished by Welsh & Neal. Uriah W. Welsh was Frederick's associate at Cadillac, where they succeeded Herbert L. Bragg. Frederick employed Jessie L. Jones as a retoucher and his brother-in-law Thomas J. Oliver as a printer at Albion in 1897. His sale of the Albion studio to Miss Kate Priestly was reported in July of 1898, but in February of 1899 it was noted that Elmer J. Wasson had sold the Albion studio that he had purchased from Frederick several weeks earlier.

Thomas was born on England's Isle of Man about 1831, but claimed to be only 28 when he enlisted at White Lake in Company I of the Sixth Michigan Cavalry on September 16, 1862. He was mustered into the army as a private at Pontiac on October 11. At this time he was five feet six inches tall with a fair complexion, blue eyes and light hair. He was wounded and taken prisoner at Seneca, Maryland, on June 11, 1863. He was admitted to a Confederate hospital at Richmond, Virginia, and then paroled at City Point, Maryland, on June 20, 1863. He was treated for a flesh wound in the right thigh in an Annapolis, Maryland, hospital for several weeks, and then reported to a parole camp on August 7. He was sent to the cavalry depot in Washington on September 22, and returned to his regiment on October 11, 1863. One week later, on October 18, he was wounded in action at Charleston, Virginia, by a shell which took off the toes and fractured the adjacent bones of his left foot. The foot was amputated back to his instep before he was admitted to the hospital at Sandy Hook, Maryland. He spent several months in the hospital at Frederick, Maryland, then elected not to enter the Veteran Reserve Corps and was discharged on June 29, 1864. He returned to Straits Lake in Oakland County, Michigan, and had applied for an Invalid Pension by July 27. Since the Surgeon's Certificate of Disability on which he was discharged stated that he was one half disabled, he had no trouble qualifying for a pension. He was assessed as an Ovid photographer in February of 1865. He and Miss Ruth Walker of Ovid were married there on August 10, 1871. According to later statements, Ruth was born in Ireland in 1828 or 1829, but only admitted to being 37 at the time of her marriage. Thomas died of paralysis on June 11, 1893. Ruth qualified for a Widow's Pension, and was receiving $8.00 per month at the time of her death on June 14, 1901.

Arthur was born at Thorndale, Ontario, on October 23, 1886, eldest of the four children of John and Victoria (Winnett) Near. He became a tall slender man with grey eyes and dark brown hair. Arthur spent seven months in Detroit in 1906, he immigrated for good in April of 1907, and his family followed early in 1910. Howard W. Neal was the son of Ambrose J. Diehl, who was a photographer from 1879 until 1920, and conducted photographic businesses in Detroit and Grand Rapids from 1882 through 1900. Howard's partnership with Arthur was his only photographic venture. Her father came from Pennsylvania and Florence was born in Michigan to a Canadian mother in 1890. She married Arthur about 1918, and their sons were born in Detroit: Robert in 1921 or early in 1922, and Gerald in May of 1926. Arthur was described as a sub-station operator for the Edison Illuminating Company in 1918, as a sub-station electrician in 1920, and as the operator of an electric sub-station in 1930. Florence Maud Near was living in Detroit in 1934, when she was identified as Arthur's widow.

That Phinisey & Neate were Monroe photographers was inferred from cabinet photographs with no location specified which were found among photographs from Toledo and Norwalk, Ohio, as well as from Monroe. Theodore W. Phinisey was a Monroe photographer from 1886 through 1889, and then moved up to Clare.

His father emigrated from England and Clarence was born in Michigan in January of 1868, the only child of William and Catherine Needham. A substantial portion of Milan lies in York Township. Bertha was born in Michigan in October of 1869, she married Clarence in 1887 or 1888, and she gave birth in Michigan to their daughter Leah in July of 1892. "C. F. NEEDHAM, Milan, Mich." was printed diagonally at the lower right corner of 7 by 3½ inch mounts for oval prints, and then "G. K. Weller, Portrait Photographer" was blind stamped over it at the same angle. George K. Weller was Milan's photographer from 1906 until 1927. Clarence and Bertha were living in 1920 with the family of their daughter and her husband, Ralph Hazelwood.

Frank was born in Michigan to German parents on November 20, 1877, third of the eight children of Frank and Caroline Neifert. He became an average sized man with brown eyes and black hair. Her father came from Ohio and Gertrude was born in Michigan about 1883. She married Frank in the autumn of 1900, and their sons were born in Kalamazoo: Bates in 1901, Bernard in 1904, and Carson in 1912. Frank purchased the studio in the National Bank Building from John M. Reidsema. Photographer John H. Oogle had the same business address in 1913. "KALAMAZOO VIEWS, Schuyler C. Baldwin, Photographer." was printed on one end of the orange face of tall stereo views with "From the Neifert Studio, Kalamazoo, Mich." stamped on the lavender back of the stereo mounts. Apparently Frank sold views made from some of Baldwin's forty to fifty-year-old negatives. 122 South Westnedge Avenue was at the corner of Academy Street. By 1925 Frank had been the official photographer for the General Gas Light Company for many years. He specialized in commercial photography, but also did a substantial business in portraits. 606 Academy Street was also the address of Frank's residence in 1930. 2 1

|---|-----------|-----|
| Grand Rapids manufacturer of fine furniture .....   | 1870-1892 | 1 2 |
| C. C. Comstock acquired the business in 1857 that would become Nelson, Matter & Company, and he proceeded to open a fair wholesale trade in the Chicago and Milwaukee markets with a complete revolution in the manner of introducing and selling furniture and cabinet wares to the trade. Formerly, manufacturers loaded sample furniture into one or more chartered railroad cars that were transported to a siding in a town with prospective customers. There local dealers could inspect the samples and place orders before the samples were moved to other towns. As an alternative, artistically talented salesmen began taking orders from their drawings of the various styles. In the spring of 1862, Elias Matter, then an employee, conceived the idea that photographs would provide a superior depiction of the products and could be made more easily than drawings. Mr. Comstock adopted his suggestion, and soon nearly every large furniture factory was operating its own photograph gallery. After a fire in 1887, Nelson, Matter & Company erected a 160 by 68 foot brick and sandstone factory of seven stories and a basement. Their photograph gallery was on the roof, and was reached by an elevator as well as by stairways. |           |     |

Nels was born in Sweden in April of 1863, and he immigrated either in 1865 or in 1880. By 1887 he was a naturalized citizen of the United States. He married a daughter of Sophea Lehman and their children were born in Michigan: Marie in June of 1891, and Minton in March of 1894. By 1900 Nels was a widower raising his daughter and son on his own. He and his children were living with his mother-in-law in 1910. Nels still was a widower in 1920. Some of Nels' earliest advertising from Ishpeming included: "Fine Mining Views ... Finest Gallery in Upper Michigan. Open Every Day. The Best of Work Only." A couple of years later he was selling picture frames and photo enlargements. An engraving of his gallery was printed on many of his cabinet mounts, while others carried such phrases as: "Portrait & Landscape Photographer ...Enlargements of all styles a specialty.... Instantaneous Portraits of Children a Successful Specialty.... Duplicates Supplied at Any Time. Reduced Rates." Stereoscopic views of the Cleveland, Iron Cliff, Lake Angeline, Lake Superior and New York mines, as well as bird's-eye views of Ishpeming and views of the depot and school at Republic, were "From N. M. NELSON'S Art Gallery opp. Nelson House, Ishpeming, Mich. All kinds of Views, Photographs and Portraits, The Most Artistic Work Only." Nels utilized the double post card format for panoramas of several Ishpeming street intersections, the Lake Superior Mine, the Pewabic Mine, the Chapin Mine, the Chapin "Cave," and for bird's-eye views of the ore docks at Marquette and of the town of Iron Mountain.

His father came from Pennsylvania and Robert was born in Michigan to a Canadian mother in September of 1851. Nancy A. Nelson was born in Michigan to parents from New York in June of 1850. She married Robert about 1876, and their children were born in Michigan: James about 1878, and Mary in September of 1881. Robert and Nancy were sharing their home in 1880 with Nancy's mother, Mary M. Nelson. With Thomas H. Temple, Robert invented a table-top cabinet which exhibited a continuous series of single photographs for viewing. It was similar to some stereo viewers of the 1860s. Their patent application was filed March 24, 1892, and Patent Number 489,713 was issued to them on January 10, 1893. Robert and Nancy's daughter Mary never married and became a public school teacher. Nancy was living in Hudson as a widow in 1930, when she still was providing a home for her daughter.

William was born in Denmark in July of 1868 and immigrated in 1892. He married, but by 1900 he was a widower and had his first papers toward United States citizenship. Louis O. Haugen was an Ironwood photographer for several years prior to his partnership with William, and he remained in the photographic business there for another decade. By 1920 one William Nelson who was born in Denmark about 1868 was an inmate of the Oregon State Insane Asylum, and though some inmates had assigned jobs, he did not.

His father emigrated from the Bohemian region of Austria and Louis was born in Ohio to a German mother in 1867. Some of his siblings seem to have been born in Ohio: Emma in 1864, Helen in 1870, and William in 1872. The other brother at Joliet in 1891 was identified as F. J. Nemeck. Her father emigrated from England and Susie was born in Illinois to a mother from Ohio in 1871 or early in 1872. She married Louis about 1890 and their sons were born in Illinois: Jack in 1891 or early in 1892, and Louis a year later. The years that Louis spent at Bisbee have been approximated. Photographs in a "Souvenir of Bisbee" published in 1904 were credited to him. Susie obtained a divorce and, with her sons, was living at Bisbee in 1910. Louis and his wife, Winifred, both were enumerated as Niles photographers in business on their own account in 1920. They seem to have gone their separate ways, and in 1930 Louis was sharing his home in South Bend with his sister, now the widow Emma L. Stewart.

Edward was born in Wisconsin to Canadian parents on August 5, 1873. His purchase of the Manistique gallery from Hans I. Anderson was reported in March of 1903. Anna's parents emigrated from Sweden and Norway, she was born in Michigan in 1883 or 1884, and she married Edward about 1904. Their children were born in Michigan: George in 1905, Grace in 1906, and Lloyd in November of 1908. Edward O. Brault's first venture into the photographic business was the partnership of Nequette & Brault, but he remained a Manistique photographer through 1931 and probably much longer. "Photo by Nequette, Oct., 1910" was lettered on the negative of a post card photograph of a Manistique church.

William may have been born in Canada to English parents in 1856 or early in 1857. If so, in 1880 he was one of nine laborers on a farm in Vernon Township of Isabella County, Michigan. Whether or not George S. Van Stone had photographic business experience prior to his partnership with William has not been established, but he continued in the business independently at Ironwood for several years following the partnership. William "returned" to Iron Mountain in the middle of May in 1893 to establish the gallery at 203 East Ludington Street. Florence is less than fifteen miles from Iron Mountain.

His father came from Vermont and Herbert was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in February of 1844, eldest of the three children of Justus and Artemesia Newcomb. Most of the census records were for Hebert Newcomb. Sarah was born in Canada about 1853, she married Herbert about 1869, and their daughter Sarah was born late in 1870 or early in 1871. Something happened to the elder Sarah. Margaret Reader was born in Michigan to parents from Pennsylvania in November of 1854. She married Herbert in 1872 or early in 1873, and she was caring for his daughter Sarah in 1880. Margaret gave birth to three children in Michigan: Mary in July of 1885, Warren in December of 1891, and Laverne in October of 1895. "From H. J. Herbert was born at Flint to English parents on November 18, 1865, third of the four children of Thomas and Mary Newcombe. Something happened to his mother, and by 1880 his father was married to another English lady named Eliza. The Newcombe Art Studio was "... Established in the spring of 1888, with a capital of $1,200... (on) the third floor of a fine brick building, 22 x 70,... Herbert superimposed small portraits of Harrison and Morton upon a Flint street scene in the cabinet format, probably during the political campaign of 1888. Her father emigrated from England and Agnes was born at Flint on December 3, 1868. She married Herbert about 1889, and they never had children. Herbert employed Clara Zimmerman as a retoucher in 1892, and in the fall of 1898 hired Frank H. Nix to take charge of the gallery. He advertised in 1899: "... Our specialty, Everything Pertaining to Photography. Your Patronage Solicited. Over Genesee County Savings Bank, Cor. Kearsley and Saginaw Sts...." Herbert and Agnes visited Europe in 1929. They returned to the United States on S. S. Statendam, leaving Southampton, England, on September 27, and arriving in New York on October 5. Herbert took a Caribbean cruise by himself in 1939 on S. S. Toloa. The ship left New Orleans on January 7 and arrived back there on January 23 after stops at Cristobal in the Canal Zone, Puerto Limon in Costa Rica, and Havana in Cuba.

Jennie was born in Ohio to a mother from Pennsylvania in August of 1859, second of the five children of Hiram F. and Lidia Woods. William E. Newkirk was born in New York State, and he married Jennie in the early 1880s. Their children were born in Michigan: Bessie in August of 1884, Guy in August of 1886, Ralph in January of 1888, Edwin (later Edmund) in December of 1889, and Lillis in June of 1891. William was a lumber inspector who died late in 1897 or early in 1898 leaving Jennie a widow with five children. She acquired the Electro Photo Company from Edward J. McDermand in 1898, and then employed Charles Simon as a photographer. Jennie was working as a private nurse in 1910, when she still was providing a home for her three youngest children.

Henry was born in Michigan to a mother from New York on May 5, 1873. Her father came from Vermont, Agnes was born in Indiana to a mother from Virginia in 1874, and she married Henry in 1900. Their daughter Avis was born in Iowa in 1901. Their other two girls were born in Michigan: Ruby in 1907, and Elizabeth in 1910. Some studio portraits in the post card format blind stamped "Newman, Lansing, Mich." were postmarked in 1908. Percy G. Hunter was proprietor of the Newman Studio in 1913. Henry was medium sized with brown eyes and dark hair in 1918. During a celebration in 1934, Henry displayed the skeletal remains of Okemos, chief of the Ottawa Indians in central Michigan, and other pioneer souvenirs at his studio. He had dug up the skull and other bones in 1884, but only after a thorough examination by dental and other experts between 1930 and 1934 had he become convinced that they were the remains of Chief Okemos. The most convincing characteristic was a groove in the skull the width and depth of two fingers, caused by a wound received at the Battle of Sandusky in 1813, which marked Okemos until his death in 1858.

Clara was born in the state of New York in January of 1846, and she married Lewis about 1872. Their children were born in Michigan: Charles in April of 1874, and Grace a year later. The Union View Company was on the west side of Townsend Street south of Lenawee Street in Lansing, and had at least nine employees. In 1880 one photographer and six artists, all men between 18 and 26 years old, were boarding with the Newman family. The Union View & Copying Company and the Union View Company of Rochester were both mass producers of inexpensive stereoscopic views, as was their successor, Woodward & Albee. Lewis moved to Texas late in 1883 or early in 1884. Charles R. Newman became a photographer, and in 1900 he was working with his father at Washington, Indiana.

Lawrence was born in New York State to natives of New York in June of 1840, tenth of the eleven children of Marshal and Prudence Newton. Maria was born in the state of New York about 1840, and she married Lawrence about 1866. Their son Frank was born in New York in September of 1868. Something happened to Maria, and Lawrence married again about 1876. His bride was Jennie, who was born in New York to natives of New York in October of 1855. Their daughters were born in Illinois: Lillian (later Jennie) in December of 1879, and Mary in January of 1881. Mrs. Jennie E. Newton was living in Portland as a widow in 1920, when she was providing a home for her daughter Mary, who was working as a stenographer. The household also included Jennie's widowed son-in-law, Frank W. Catlow, and her granddaughter Elizabeth Catlow.

William was born in Ohio in June of 1878, the younger son of Charles and Laura E. Newton. His brother Charles was four years older. Hattie was born in Michigan in August of 1876, and she married Will in 1897 or 1898. The opening of Will's gallery in Freeport was reported early in 1899. One of his cabinet photographs depicted two women with a horse and buggy on a snow-covered street. One W. E. Newton had a photographic studio from 1903 to 1906 at 5 South Main Street in Oberlin, Ohio. William may have been farming in 1920 in Dorsey Township of Meagher County, Montana. The farmer had a wife named Plesy who was born in Montana about 1885 to a father from Pennsylvania and a mother from Utah. William's wife and assistant photographer in 1930 was Lillian, who was born in California to Irish parents in 1893 or early in 1894.

Allison was born to parents from New York in January of 1849 in Eaton County, Michigan, the only child of Hiram B. and Lemira L. (Cheney) Nichols. Something happened to his mother and his father married Lottie, who was born in New York about 1838. She gave birth to Nora in November of 1859, to Llewellyn about 1865, and to Lafayette about 1869. Allison was enumerated twice for the 1870 census: on July 5 on the farm with his family, and on July 14 in Lansing where he was lodging in a hotel. He learned photography in the Charlotte gallery of his uncle, Alonzo M. Cheney. "A. M. Cheney. A. H. Nichols. From the Ground Floor Gallery, South of the Postoffice, Charlotte, Mich." was printed in three different ways on card photograph mounts. Clara was born in Ohio to a mother from New York in June of 1850, fourth of the five children of Augustus and Clara Sheffield. She married Allison at Findlay about 1876, and their children were born at Findlay: Lynn in March of 1881, and Carrie in August of 1887. Clara was enumerated in 1880 as a portrait painter. The Findlay gallery operated as Nichols & Ketchum for a while in 1892.

Daniel was born in New York State in 1812 or early in 1813. He advertised in 1851 and 1852: "Daguerreotypes only one dollar.... I am prepared to get up as good pictures as can be got up in Detroit, or elsewhere, for which I charge the unprecedented price of One Dollar only. Stock and chemicals always on hand, and orders from the country promptly filled...." In 1853 he filled up new rooms in Detroit, and was a "... DAGUERREAN ARTIST. Portraits not to be excelled, at ONE DOLLAR AND UPWARDS...." His rooms in 1854 were over S. D. Elwood & Company's bookstore next to Firemen's Hall. The entrance to his gallery in the Waterman Block was on Larned Street. He employed Henry D. Pearce in 1855, DeWitt C. Nichols in 1856, and Isaac T. Millis in 1856 and 1857 as daguerrean artists. One of Daniel's advertisements in 1857 was: "If you want the best AMBROTYPES taken in the city, go to NICHOLS' Daguerreian Gallery,... Get them for $1." It was noted in 1858 that "... Nichols has some fine photographs of the Chatham firemen.... One picture was taken when the company was at work." Daniel first occupied rooms in the new Merrill Block at the corner of Larned Street. Isaac Millis succeeded him there when Daniel moved to the northeast corner of Woodward and Jefferson Avenues. His gallery was said to be over Preston's banking office in 1860, when he was lodging by himself in a large hotel. Daniel enlisted in the 24th Michigan Infantry as a Principal Musician and drum major on August 15, 1862, and was mustered into service the same day. Though he enlisted for three years, Daniel was discharged with other non-commissioned staff on November 4, 1862, at Purcellville, Virginia. His widow, Mrs. Lydia Nichols, was proprietor of the boarding house in 1878, and resided in Detroit until her death at the age of 64 on November 4, 1892.

George was 19 years old when he enlisted at Hudson in Company D of the Eleventh Michigan Cavalry on September 1, 1863. The regiment was mustered into service on December 10 at Kalamazoo and started for Kentucky on December 17, 1863. They were based at Lexington from December 22 until April of 1864, scouting with some skirmishes, with a reconnaissance to Pound Gap and an engagement with the rebels at West Liberty. In April they moved to Louisa, Kentucky, and began driving the guerillas out of eastern Kentucky. With their brigade they pursued Morgan, driving him on June 9 from Mount Sterling and on June 12 from Cynthiana, Kentucky, into the mountains. On August 9, 1864, George was commissioned Second Lieutenant of Company D of the Fifth U. S. Colored Cavalry.

His father came from Ohio and Albert was born in Illinois to a mother from Vermont on October 22, 1864, fourth of the five children of Aaron R. and Mary A. Nicholson. When he returned with his parents from Lincoln, Illinois, on October 21, 1885, Albert resumed his position in Lawson's gallery. Nicholson & Slaght both worked for Alexander J. Lawson prior to purchasing the Alpena gallery from him late in 1885. They advertised as "... Portrait and Landscape PHOTOGRAPHERS. Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged. Crayon and India Ink Pictures a Specialty...." They produced a series of twenty-four 5 by 8 inch "Views of Alpena, Mich., and Vicinity." Fifteen of these show various lumbering operations, while others are views in Alpena and on Thunder Bay Island. A framed life sized portrait of a young lady by Albert stood in the drug store show window and was described by a local newspaper as "One of the most perfect models of crayon painting" and as a magnificent picture. Josie (later Josephine) Lalonde was born in Michigan to Canadian parents on March 10, 1868, fourth of the six children of Ephraim and Julia (Manville) Lalonde. She married Albert about 1887, and their daughter Alma was born in Michigan in May of 1890. "Nick & Van" was printed on some Nicholson & Van Deventer cabinet mounts. A ridiculously flattering article about Albert in 1891 mentioned that his gallery was "... located at the corner of Second and Chisholm Streets.... his productions of either animal, still life, portrait, landscape or building, are absolutely perfect in every particular.... He is assisted by Mr. Walter B. Kellogg...." On some cabinet mounts, "Miller, Successor." was added to the "NICHOLSON, Alpena, Mich." which was originally printed below the image. Josephine gave birth to Walter in Illinois in October of 1893, to Howell (later Howard) in Wisconsin in October of 1896, and to Edward and Lawrence in Illinois between 1900 and 1906. Albert was employing his younger brother Edward as a photographer at Oshkosh in 1900. The opening of Albert's new studio at Lincoln, where he succeeded E. N. Kerr, was reported in the summer of 1901. Josephine died at Santa Barbara on January 20, 1947, and Albert lived on there until May 14, 1955.

Frank was born in New York to natives of New York in April of 1855, second of the three sons of John and Mary Nicholson. He was called Franklin as a youth, and in 1870 his older brother Frederick was enumerated as a photographer. Elizabeth was born in Canada to English parents in December of 1855, and she married Frank about 1877. Lena, the only one of their six children that lived to maturity, was born in Michigan in July of 1882. Frank's application was filed on February 15, 1901, and Patent Number 698,999 issued April 29, 1902, covering his Shade for Photographic Lenses. Frank probably was the proprietor of the Jackson Lens Shade Company, which manufactured and marketed Nicholson's Adjustable Lens Shade. The professional photographers E. Stewart Tray and Charles H. Allen were their neighbors at Jackson in 1910, when Frank and Elizabeth were providing a home for their daughter, their son-in-law, and their granddaughter. By 1920 Elizabeth was a widow living with Lena and her husband, Andrew Campbell, and their daughters Dorothy and Frances.

Leon was born at Manistique to parents from Wisconsin on September 5, 1894, fifth of the six children of George and Elizabeth C. Nicholson. He became a tall slender man with blue eyes and brown hair. His father and his older brother George were executives of the White Marble Lime Company. Post card photographs were embossed: "LEON G. NICHOLSON, MANISTIQUE, MICH." Leon's subjects included five men in front of an industrial building, one of them straddling a motorcycle, two views of an adult baseball team at the ball park, and three uniformed postmen in two different poses. Her father came from New York State and Ruby was born in Illinois in 1892 or early in 1893. She married Leon about 1923, and in 1930 they had no children. Leon died at Manistique in January of 1969.

His father came from New York and Lester was born in Michigan in March of 1862, the son of Norman G. and Emma Louisa (Bartlett) Nichoson. Frank E. Anderson had a little professional photographic experience prior to his partnership with Lester in 1888. Some patrons of Nichoson & Anderson were African-American. Gertrude was born in Ohio to natives of Ohio in November of 1872, first of the six children of Peter F. and Lydia J. Schneider. She married Lester about 1889, and their daughter Eular was born in Michigan in July of 1890. The rest of their children were born in Ohio: Norman in January of 1892, Albert in December of 1893, Laura in June of 1898, and Roland in 1900 or early in 1901. Lester's partner in Toledo was either Clarence E. Griffeth or Stephen W. Griffeth. "2 for 10 Cts. Nichoson's, 113 SUMMIT ST., TOLEDO, O." was stamped on the back of 3¼ by 2 inch plain mounts. Lester died in 1910, and Gertrude continued the Toledo photographic business through 1920. She was employing her daughter Eular and her son Norman as photographers in 1910.

Nick & Van

Alpena (Nicholson & Van Deventer) PHOTOGRAPHERS in the Culligan Block on Second st ..... 1888-1891 m t
 A local newspaper stated early in 1889 that “.... Nick and Van’s parlors to their photograph gallery in the Culligan Block are now the most beautifully finished of any that have ever been in Alpena. The walls and ceiling are frescoed in a variety of harmonizing colors; and added to this ornamental work, the rooms are embellished with display frames containing samples of their artistic work that cannot be excelled in the state. But the most important feature of this new arrangement is the ladies’ toilet room with a complete outfit of toilet paraphernalia, including powders, curling irons, cosmetics, brushes, combs, etc., etc., where ladies need not be subjected to the gaze of gaping bystanders while arranging their toilet and bangs, preparatory to having their pictures taken ....” They advertised six months later: “NICK & VAN ... Extend a cordial invitation to you to call at their Studio and examine the new Novelties in Photographic Art, such as YOUR PORTRAIT PHOTOGRAPHED ON SILK, Satin and Linen. Also Fancy Cabinet
 Designs, Crayons, Bromides. - Copies of Old Pictures a Specialty. - Your Portrait on a Silk Handkerchief, Hat Crown, Banner, Etc., would make a very Handsome Christmas or Birthday Present. We are now also prepared to Photograph the Interior of Your Houses as well as the Exterior. - Call and Get Prices and Examine Work....” This appeared a few weeks after that: “Have your ‘phiz’ photographed on silk at Nick & Van’s. Silk will stand a heavier strain than card board.” In refuting a rumor that they intended to sell the gallery, one of them said: “Alpena is good enough for us and we intend to remain here, and furthermore we intend to make some improvements in our gallery during the spring and we are now figuring on opening a branch gallery at Rogers City and also one at Atlanta, which will be in charge of competent men and under our direct supervision.... The people of Alpena and vicinity know us now and our work has a good name throughout this entire scope of country, and we propose to remain here and keep up our reputation by doing nothing but first class work at reasonable prices.” The paper reported a month later that “Nick and Van ... have just received a new out-fit of backgrounds and sittings for their gallery. These sittings are of the latest design and of the most metropolitan style. These gentlemen now have one of the most convenient and handsomely fitted galleries in Northern Michigan.... They ... can give you anything from the small card to the life size crayon. They make a specialty of enlarging pictures and also of their Bromide and Crayon work.”

John was born in Scotland in February of 1848, and he immigrated in 1863. Tish (later Anna L.) was born in Wisconsin in March of 1850, and she married John about 1868. Their daughter Mary was born in Illinois in July of 1869. Their sons were born in Wisconsin: Charles in October of 1871, and Will in December of 1881. John was living alone at Keithsburg in 1880. Sherman D. Joy had been a Lake Odessa photographer for four years when he formed the partnership with John, and he continued in the photographic business in various southwestern Michigan towns through 1927. Besides the usual studio portraits, the Nicol Brothers used the cabinet format from Lake Odessa for a view of a large masonry building being demolished, and from Sunfield to depict a lady standing proudly by her bicycle. John was a naturalized citizen of the United States by 1900, when he was employing his son Charles as a photographer.

Rocco was born at Pirana Del Greci in Italy on April 3, 1889, and he immigrated to America in 1901. "MAEN ST., FOUNTAIN, MICH" was rather crudely lettered, and "By R. Nicosia" was written in script on the negative of a post card photograph. Rocco was a stout single man with black eyes and hair in 1917, when he was supporting his father and mother. Her father came from Illinois and Eva J. Dodge was born in Oklahoma to a mother from Michigan in 1892. Something happened to her father, and her mother (who's maiden name was Mary E. Bogue) married Martin H. Foster about 1901. Eva soon had a half-brother named Glen. Rocco married Eva about 1917 and their children were born in Michigan: Maurice in 1919 or early in 1920, Helen in 1924 or early in 1925, and Frances in December of 1926. Charles was born in Michigan to German parents in August of 1868, first of the five children of George and Sophia Niendorf. Jennie was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan in August of 1873, and she married Charles about 1889. Their children were born in Colon: Lawrence in December of 1890, Charles in 1901, and Jeanie (later Jennie) in 1912. The business name was Charles Niendorf & Son from 1910 through 1921. A post card photograph of the Colon high school baseball team of 1919 was blind stamped: "C. NIENDORF & SON, PHOTO." Lawrence H. Niendorf was his father's partner, and he started publishing post card photographs in 1912. Mrs. Jennie E. Niendorf was working in 1930 as a sales lady in her husband's drug store.

Lawrence was born at Colon on December 15, 1890, eldest of the three children of Charles and Jennie E. Niendorf. He became a medium sized man with brown eyes and hair. The drug and other businesses were conducted as Charles Niendorf & Son from 1910 through 1921. "L H N" and "COLON CHAUTAUQUA 1912" were lettered on the negative of a postal photograph of many people in front of a large tent. "LAKEVIEW HOTEL BLAZE, JULY 30, '12, COLON, MICH." was lettered on the negative of another photograph which Lawrence sent to a photographic journal. The magazine reproduced the photo with the comment: "... This picture is very interesting because of the rarity of the opportunity of obtaining a photograph of a serious fire without being hampered by spectators or the fire department. It is a first-class record, and should have brought you in many dollars as a local postcard. We cannot understand why, when you had got a good thing, you wanted to spoil it by writing numbers, initials, and titles all over it. These are not beautiful nor well lettered, and seriously detract from the value of the negative." Lawrence obtained a series of at least eight photographs of this fire, from its beginning in the stable behind the hotel to the smoldering skeletons of both buildings. Two months later the same magazine reproduced a photo by Lawrence of a caged lion he titled "A Day-Dreamer," along with the admonition that the bars in front of a caged animal should never appear in a photograph. Gertrude was born in Berlin, Germany, on June 16, 1890, and she was brought to America in 1892. She married Lawrence in 1911, and their daughter Dorothy was born in Michigan in 1912. Their son Charles was born in Illinois in 1916, and their daughter Virginia was born in Michigan in May of 1917. Lawrence had heart trouble described as slight in 1917. "C. R. CHILDS, 5707 SOUTH BLVD., CHICAGO, PUBLISHER OF POST CARDS, BOOKLETS, ETC." was printed on the post card back of a photograph which was postmarked in May of 1918 and had "L H N" and "NORTH SIDE STATE ST., COLON, MICH." lettered on its negative. A post card photograph of the Colon high school baseball team of 1919 was blind stamped: "C. NIENDORF & SON, PHOTO." Lawrence was said to be with the United States Army in 1941. Gertrude was living in East Lansing and seems to have been a widow prior to her death in November of 1971.

Frank was born in New York State to natives of New York in August of 1854, first of the five sons of Asa and Alvira Nims. He advertised in 1878: "FRANK A. NIMS, Late of New York City, Has refitted and refurnished the Dansville Studio, and is prepared to make ALL OF THE LATEST STYLES OF PICTURES. Copying from Card to Life Size, and finished in Crayon, Ink, Oil, or Water Colors. VIEWING A SPECIALTY. F. A. Nims, Photo Artist, Dansville, Mich." His card photographs included an advertisement for a Danville clothier which combined a photo of his head wearing a dapper hat with the cartoon body of an inept hunter. In 1880 Frank was helping Alice Thurlow, the widow of photographer James Thurlow, and her daughter Anna maintain the picture gallery until it could be sold. At the annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at New York in August of 1881, Frank exhibited stereoscopic and small single views of interesting and wild scenes in the far west and was identified as a Colorado landscape photographer. The stereo views which he produced from Colorado Springs included some of northern Mexico. Franklin A. Nims was the photographer with the Brown-Stanton Expedition down the Canyon of the Colorado in 1889 and 1890. His diary of this trip was edited by Dwight L. Smith for publication in 1967 by the Stagecoach Press of Santa Fe, New Mexico, as The Photographer and the River. His article "Combination Dark-Room and Camera for Process Workers" appeared in a photographic journal in March of 1899. Her father emigrated from England and Margaret (later Lillian) was born in Pennsylvania to a Canadian mother in December of 1870. She married Franklin about 1893 and their children were born in Colorado: Valiant in December of 1894, and Eleanor in 1903. Lillian and Franklin were providing a home for both of their children in 1920, but by 1930 Franklin was a widower boarding with the family of his brother-in-law.

His father came from Michigan and Arthur was born in Indiana on August 10, 1885, the only child of Charles Henry Niver and Mallie (Westfall) Niver. His firm documented in stereoscopic views the damage around Eagle Lake in Cass County from the tornado of March 25, 1901. They also recorded a mock duel by a camp fire involving Mr. C. H. Niver on August 12, 1903, at Stony Point, which probably was in Indiana. Another series of views dated November 23 through November 28, 1904, depicted logging, hunting, rural homes and scenery in Oceana County, Michigan. "A. L. NIVER and Company., VIEWS TO ORDER." was lettered by hand on the back of some of these views. The company is known to have photographed a circus parade at Elkhart, Indiana. Hazel M. Webster was born in Michigan to parents from Indiana in September of 1892, eldest of the three or more children of Henry and Sadie M. Webster. She married Arthur at Elkhart on April 14, 1908, and their daughter Willetta was born in Michigan in 1908 or early in 1909. By 1918 Arthur was back living with his parents in Elkhart.

Frank was born March 29, 1854, in Fulton County, New York, to Frederick and Hattie (Heidner) Nix, both natives of Prussia. He worked on the family farm at West Bend, Wisconsin, until he joined his elder brother, Theron, at Manistee in 1870. He married 20-year-old Sarah Frances Baker at Cadillac on November 7, 1873. Their children were: Edwin, born November 28, 1874; Harry E., born October 2, 1876; Mabel A., born June 6, 1880, Earl W., born in July of 1888, and Roy F., born in January of 1890. The streets were still full of stumps when they came to Reed City in 1876, where Frank put up a rough board shanty 12 feet wide and 20 feet deep which he used as a gallery. In the fall of 1876 he built a dwelling and gallery combined on Slosson Avenue. In 1881 he opened a larger gallery in the Hayes Block on the south side of Upton Avenue west of the railroad track. "COPYING AND ENLARGING To Any Size.... And finished in India Ink, Crayon, Pastel, Water Colors, etc." was printed on some of Frank's Reed City card photograph mounts. He sold a panoramic view of Reed City made by combining five views into one for $3.00, which the local newspaper evaluated as very cheap considering the amount of labor involved, and encouraged every local business to buy one as good advertising for the town. He attended the fourth annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Milwaukee in August of 1883. By 1884, he had built his own handsome residence at a cost of $2500, owned other property in Reed City, and was a member of the Patriarchal Circle, the Odd Fellows and the Methodist Episcopal Church, where he had instituted a notable Sunday School. His 1884 partnership with Frank was Eugene H. DeVogt's first venture into photographic business, but he remained, off and on, a Clare photographer until 1909. On April 16, 1885, Frank began advertising his Albion gallery in the Dalrymple Block, one door south of the Opera House Block: "...we have come to stay with you, and are ready to execute anything in the line of PHOTOGRAPHY, at reasonable prices. We employ the most rapid process known, thereby securing those life-like expressions so desirable in a portrait. We shall endeavor to keep Abreast With the Times and Styles in our art. A beautiful line of Gold, Walnut and Composition FRAMES kept in stock. A specialty made of GROUPS and LARGE WORK...." Many of his Albion cabinet mounts were imprinted: "... SPECIALTY; Fine Art Portraiture in all Sizes and Styles." Frank apparently was ordained a Methodist minister while they were living in the second floor gallery at Albion. They became almost nomadic and, as Harry came of age, seemed to serve the religious and photographic needs of more than one community at a time. "F. H. Nix & Son, Luther and Le Roy." was printed on some cabinet mounts. "F. H. NIX & SON, PHOTOGRAPHERS, CLARE, MICH. FRAMES, KODAKS AND AMATEUR SUPPLIES, CRAYON, PASTEL and Water Color Work." was stamped on the back of 10 by 12 inch photograph mounts. The public admiration which F. H. Nix & Son had earned in the short time they had been in Owosso was reported in April of 1898. Two months later they had sold the Owosso gallery to Arthur J. Sutton, who took possession in July. That Frank was taking charge of the business of Herbert G. Newcombe in Flint was announced in October, and Frank's leasing of the Merrill gallery at Ovid was reported in November of 1898. By 1910 Sarah was a widow conducting a dress making business from her home in Ovid.

Harry was born in Michigan on October 2, 1876, probably at Reed City. He was the second son of Frank H. and Sarah Frances (Baker) Nix. Harry learned photography from his father and was made a partner in the photographic business before his sixteenth birthday. Nix & Son were portrait and landscape photographers at Niles. Florence S. Zimmerman was born in Michigan to parents from New York in August of 1877, and she married Harry about 1900. Their daughter Dorothy was born in Michigan in 1904. Harry succeeded E. L. Shaw at Oskaloosa, continuing the business in the freshly painted and papered rooms previously occupied by Shaw. He succeeded Rollin H. Stocum in Ionia, and advertised in 1904: "We Enlarge Pictures in Every Style. See Our Line of Gold Frames. NIX'S STUDIO FOR PHOTOS. Right Prices. Pleasing Work. Courteous Treatment. All Work Guaranteed Satisfactory...." He sold the Ionia studio to Edward D. Armitage in April of 1906. "NIX, Copyright 1911." was incised into the negative of a Big Rapids post card photograph of the auditorium at Ferris Institute filled with seated students. Harry served as secretary and treasurer of the Professional Photographers Society of Michigan from 1910 until 1914. Florence was a widow living at Hamden, Connecticut, prior to her death on February 16, 1951.

Theron was born on May 1, 1848, in Bleeker Township of Fulton County, New York, to Frederick and Etta (Heidner) Nix, both natives of Prussia. He was raised on the family farm near West Bend, Wisconsin, and attended school only during the winter. He had a variety of jobs in Milwaukee and Manistee. Theron moved to Evart in July of 1879 and purchased the photography business of Eli Wightman. Cynthia M. Bauslaugh was born in Brantford Township, Ontario, about 1856, the daughter of Henry and Maria C. Bauslaugh. Her family was living in Paris, Ontario, when she married Theron there on May 23, 1883. She gave birth to their daughter Matie on March 8, 1884. By this time Theron had a prosperous business and owned their residence on Oak Street in Evart. He usually was identified as Theodore F. Nix, and he was boarding by himself in a Fife Lake Hotel in 1900. He was boarding with a widow and her son in 1920, when he was enumerated as single.

Albert was born at Grand Rapids about 1861, and he moved to Detroit in 1879. He married Marie Hewitt in 1886. Noble and Company was managed and probably founded by Albert's father, and dealt in plaster, lime, cement, hair and fire brick. Albert was a bookkeeper or clerk with the company from 1882 through 1889, and was assistant manager from 1890 until 1899. Upon the death of the senior Albert D. Noble in September of 1899, the younger Albert became manager of Noble & Company. He was manager of the Kelley Island Lime & Transport Company in 1906, and became president of Noble & Company in 1907. He moved to Orchard Lake in 1908. Albert died in April of 1941 at the age of 80. Burial was in Pine Lake Cemetery.

Alonzo was born in New York State to natives of New York in 1817 or early in 1818. Her father came from New Hampshire and Elizabeth was born in New York to a mother from Rhode Island about 1821. She married Alonzo about 1840 and their children were born in Michigan: Sylvester about 1842, Isadora about 1846, and Gertrude about 1862. A high and spacious traveling daguerreian gallery with a sky-light was built for A. M. Noble at a cost of over $200 in the shop of R. Winans, and was painted by Dean & Godfrey in July of 1851. Noble took hundreds of pictures in Ann Arbor before starting on a tour of the interior villages to the west in September, and was characterized as a skilled operator with an excellent apparatus. Please see the entry for John M. Scott for an example of local advertising by Scott, Noble & Company. Edward W. Eldridge had little or no photographic experience prior to his partnership with Alonzo. Alonzo and Elizabeth were providing a home in 1880 for their daughter Gertrude, as well as for the seven-year-old son and the twelve-year-old daughter of their daughter Isadora.

Thomas was born in July of 1866 at Bolton, Ontario, fifth of the six children of Christopher and Mary Noble. By 1871 his father was a widower raising the six kids on his own. Christopher soon married Ann Johnston, and they had added three more children to the family by 1878. Pauline was born in 1869 in England, the daughter of William and Frances Hartley, who brought her to Canada in 1871. She married Thomas at Toronto on June 6, 1888, and their daughter Lily was born in May of 1889. Within a year they moved to Michigan, where their son Frederick was born in 1902 and their daughter Pauline was born in 1904. "NOBLE, Grand Art Studio, 21 Canal St., Grand Rapids, Mich." was blind stamped into a gray cabinet mount below a photo of a horse standing in a field near a house and farm buildings. Photographers that Tom employed included his brother Christopher B. Noble from 1892 to 1895; his wife Pauline Noble in 1893; John Marsman from 1896 to 1898; Frank P. Towse, Junior, in 1897; Alvah R. Seeley in 1897 and 1898; Malcolm C. Hopper from 1897 to 1900; John DeVries in 1900; John Reingholtz from 1901 to 1905, in 1909, and from 1918 to 1922; Carl H. Gridley in 1912; and Charles I. Harshberger in 1925. He also employed Oscar C. Haight as a photo printer in 1901 and from 1905 to 1909, and as a photographer in 1903, 1904 and 1910. Tom was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905, and by 1910 he was a naturalized citizen of the United States. In October of 1913 he displayed a composite photograph produced from the individual likenesses of 1800 members of the Grand Rapids lodge of Elks that measured seven by six feet. This was believed to be the largest picture ever turned out by a Michigan photographer, but back in 1857 Moses Sutton was exhibiting photographs in eight by six foot frames. A theater program carried his ad in 1920: "NOBLE PHOTOS Are the Best. 'PHOTOLITE SUNSHINE' For Cloudy Days and Evening Appointments. The Holiday Season is About Here - Avoid the Rush! Open Daily, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. 83 Monroe, Elevator, 5th Floor." On the left in the ad was a portrait labeled TOM, and on the right was the same portrait reversed and labeled FRED. These photos were typical of his flair for fun, and were used in his newspaper advertising for years. He chuckled when customers asked for Fred at the studio, and any complaints they had were blamed on Fred. When being introduced to a person for the second time, he would deny the first meeting and insist that it must have been Fred that was met earlier. He was a friend of everyone from the building porter to the bank president and had a daily wisecrack or story for each of them. He was said to have the largest collection of negatives in Grand Rapids, including many fraternal and church groups and portraits of men, which were his specialty. "Michigan Grand Lodge F & A M, 81st Annual Meeting, Grand Rapids, Mich. May 1925. - Noble Studio, Grand Rapids." was lettered on the negative of an 8 by 42 inch panorama. His son, Frederick C. Noble, worked for Tom as a photographer from 1925 through 1927, and had his own studio on the second floor at 334 Monroe Avenue from 1928 to 1931, specializing in photographs of children. Tom had been in ill health for a while when Frederick became his father's business partner just a week before Tom's death. On the morning of February 10, 1932, Tom kidded with the elevator operator as he was carried up to his studio in the five-story Peck Building. However, he did not stop at his office, but went directly to the roof. He surprised a friend who noticed him there by ignoring his wave of greeting. His impact with the roof of a one story structure behind the Peck Building was heard, and there they found his body with a crushed skull and many broken bones. There was no inquest, and interment was in Graceland mausoleum. Tom was survived by his wife, Mrs. Pauline H. Noble, his son, two daughters and two grand daughters. Frederick was managing the Noble Studios for his mother later in 1932.

His father came from Massachusetts and William was born in Michigan about 1826, the son of Israel and Sarah Noble. Israel was a light house keeper in 1850, when William was living with his parents. Her father came from New York and Mary was born in Ohio in 1832 or 1833. She married William about 1859 and their children were born in Michigan: George about 1861, Hattie in the summer of 1863, Julia about 1872, Ruth about 1873, and Frederick about 1875. William's earliest cartes de visite had "W. H. Noble" stenciled over a Huntington & Jones imprint. From the Eagle Block he advertised "Ambrotypes, Ferrotypes, Tintypes, and Photographs Executed in a most artistic manner. All work warranted to give satisfaction. Call and examine specimens." Three blacksmiths brought their anvil and hammers into the gallery over the Citizens' National Bank and posed with them for a card photograph. "From W. H. Noble's Gallery, Flint, Mich." was printed below the opening in the carte de visite sized paper sleeves of high quality tintypes. In 1876 William was giving "... Special attention ... to enlarging Ambrotypes or old Pictures to any size desired, and colored in India Ink, Water and Oil Colors in a superior manner. Office over Citizens' National Bank, Flint, Mich." He produced stereoscopic views of Flint.

Amzie was born in Harrison County, Indiana, to parents from Indiana on June 22, 1890, and he became a tall slim man with gray eyes and light hair. Her father emigrated from Canada and Florence was born in Michigan in 1887. She married Amzie about 1910 and their children were born in Michigan: Edward on February 9, 1911, and Marie in 1912. By 1930 Amzie was divorced and living with his mother, now the real estate broker Emma F. Luce. His son Edward A. Noon had a photograph studio in Flint at 1513 Root Street in 1927 and from 1932 to 1934. Amzie still was living in Flint prior to his death in June of 1973.

Frank was born in England in March of 1856, the son of William and Lucy Norris. He immigrated to Canada with his parents when he was two years old, and his three sisters and two brothers were born in Ontario. Her father emigrated from Ireland and Jemima was born at Owen Sound, Ontario, to an English mother in January of 1860, the daughter of Jessie and Annie Roe. She married Frank at Fordwich, Ontario, on November 3, 1879. Their first children were born in New York: Earle in December of 1881, and Lucilla in June of 1884. Their daughter Jessamia was born in Canada in December of 1886, and their son Ferdinand was born in Michigan in November of 1889. Frank was listed as one of the 32 manufacturers of dry photographic plates in the United States in January of 1884. He sent a series of views showing progress of the work of building the great cantilever bridge over the Niagara River to a photographic magazine. G. E. Whiten engaged Mr. F. Norris, from the States, as head operator and retoucher in July of 1885. Norris came highly recommended as a first class photographer, and was prepared to take photos of children and adults in about one second by the new process in any size from the smallest to 8 by 10. Frank exhibited several 20 by 24 crayon portraits of his own make in the gallery. Jemima was keeping house in Ferndale, Michigan, for a much younger man in 1920, while dealing in real estate on her own account. At this time Frank was living in East Lansing with the family of his son Earle, but by 1930 he was a widower living by himself. 6

John was born in Ohio to a mother from New York in February of 1844, first of the three children of Aaron and Margaret Norris and their only son. He enlisted at Jackson as a private in Company H of the Twelfth Michigan Infantry on June 8, 1865, and was mustered into the army on the same day. On June 8 he was admitted to a hospital at De Vall's Bluff, Arkansas, where he was treated for remittent fever until his discharge from the army on June 20, 1865. He first consulted an Eaton Rapids doctor about his incapacitating asthma in June of 1868. He and 29 year old Miss Sophronia Smith were married at Benton on December 29, 1868. They apparently never had any children of their own, though they often were boarding school-age children of others. John's application for an Invalid Pension on October 2, 1875, was witnessed by the Charlotte photographers William S. Trask and Abel J. Whalen. Following his brief military service, John's entire life seems to have been spent in Eaton County except for a period between 1884 and 1891 when he went west to relieve his asthma. His health had not improved when he returned. John was receiving a pension of $17.00 per month at the time of his death from asthma on March 15, 1902, following two weeks of critical illness. Interment was in the City Cemetery at Eaton Rapids. Sophronia lived until February 8, 1925, and spent her last years in the Michigan Soldiers Home at Grand Rapids.

Mark was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan on March 15, 1882, the only child of Spencer and Sarah K. (Winer) Norris. He became a tall stout man with brown eyes and black hair. "Main St. East - DeWitt Norris" was lettered on the negative of a post card photograph mailed from DeWitt in December of 1907. Someone else named Norris may have produced the card, but Mark was by far the most likely candidate identified. Elizabeth (sometimes Lizzie) was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan in 1884, and she married Mark about 1907. Their son Gayle was born at DeWitt in 1911. Their household in 1920 included Spencer Norris, Mark's father, who was working as a salesman in the hardware store.

Her maiden name was Zeolide B. Morris, and she was born in Michigan in 1820. She married 26-year-old Oscar F. North in Oakland County on August 2, 1837. Oscar was a Methodist circuit-riding preacher responsible for the Saginaw district. A modest young man, he did not seem to be well suited for a wild lumbering region, but he did very worthy work in the Saginaw Valley for a number of years. Their children were born in Michigan: Jane (later Jennie) on November 22, 1838, William about 1841, Caroline about 1844, Albert about 1845, and Kittie in 1860. The Norths settled at Pontiac in 1847, where Oscar was a merchant for a while and then a judge of probate from 1857 until his death on August 2, 1860. His burial was in Oak Hill Cemetery. Zeolide and her daughter Kittie were enumerated twice for the census of 1870: on August 12 on their own at Spring Lake, and on August 23 living with James and Mary A. Hendrickson in Pontiac. She and Kittie were boarding at Pontiac in 1880 with a divorcee and her son.

Though the Ann Arbor daguerreotypist was identified only by initials, in 1848 and 1849 William's nephew, Walter Crane North, was a teenaged clerk at a book store in Brooklyn, New York, so it probably was William in Ann Arbor. He was awarded a Premium for the second best daguerreotypes exhibited at the first annual Michigan State Fair, held at Detroit in September of 1849, and received Special Notice for his exhibit at the fourth annual Michigan State Fair at Detroit in September of 1852. William was born in New York State to natives of New York about 1817. Anna Mahan was born in Ohio to natives of Ohio in 1830, and she married William about 1849. Their children were born in Ohio: Kittie on February 10, 1851, William in March of 1853, George in July of 1856, Paul in October of 1859, Mary about 1865, and Charles in August of 1870.

His parents came from Connecticut or New York and Lester was born in Illinois in February of 1842. He was living in 1850 on the farm of Shubael and Huldah Swift, who may have been his maternal grandparents. In 1860 Lester was boarding on the farm where he worked. He claimed to be 20 years old when he enlisted as a private in Company D of the 13th Illinois Cavalry on January 13, 1862. He contracted chronic diarrhea from exposure and the army diet, and by August was in a hospital at Helena, Arkansas. He was transferred to a hospital at Keokuk, Iowa, where he was treated until April of 1863. He was then convalescent for several weeks before he returned to his regiment on June 1, 1863. By this time he had been transferred to Company C. He earned a promotion to sergeant. He was transferred to Company E shortly before his three years of service expired, and he was honorably discharged at Little Rock, Arkansas, on January 20, 1865. He and 23-year-old Miss Eliza Jennie Robinson of Breedsville were married at Bloomingdale on June 19, 1870. Jennie gave birth to Vassar on April 24, 1876. Accessories and backdrops which appear in some tintypes are identical to those in card photographs from Bangor by L. L. Northup. Lester was a member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1881. The local newspaper noted that Lett Northup manufactured 480 photographs during the second week of June in 1885. When he applied for an Invalid Pension in January of 1890, Lester was six feet tall with a fair complexion, auburn hair and dark blue eyes. The Northup & Son studio was at 419 Phoenix Street in 1902. Lester and Vassar claimed to be "BEST IN THE CITY. Platino Embossed Pictures a Specialty. All Work Guaranteed." Lester was receiving a pension of $10.00 per month when he died at Everett on May 15, 1905. Jennie's monthly Widow's Pension was $8.00 until her death in the fall of 1907.

Clara was born in Michigan to parents from New York in November of 1855, the younger daughter of John E. and 1
Mary Elizabeth (Bigelow) Norton. This just happens to be the same John E. Norton that is mentioned directly above. 2 1 Clara's sister Ida was born about 1854, and she became a librarian. About 1883 Clara married a man from New York 1 named Shaver, and she gave birth in Minnesota to three daughters: Ina in November of 1884, Helen in January of 1
1887, and Clare in April of 1889. Something happened to Mr. Shaver, and in 1899 Clara married William C. Weld. 1
William and Clara were providing a home in 1900 and in 1910 for her three daughters as well as for her mother. By 1
1920 only Helen remained at home with them. By 1930 Clara was a widow living with the family of her daughter 1

Sequester was born in New York State in 1837 or 1838. He and 20-year-old Miss Harriet E. Ford were married at Adrian on August 26, 1858. Their son Frank was born in Michigan in 1860. Sequester enlisted at Adrian in Company B of the 18th Michigan Infantry on July 23, 1862, and was mustered into the army as a sergeant on August 26. During a march in October of 1862 from Covington to Lexington, Kentucky, Sequester sustained an injury to the center of his chest which was severe enough to put him in the hospital for a month or more early in 1863. He was promoted to First Sergeant, and then on August 16, 1864, to Second Lieutenant. He was mustered as Second Lieutenant of Company G on October 21, 1864. He was honorably discharged from the army at Nashville, Tennessee, on June 26, 1865. Frank P. Ford was Sequester's partner in 1866 in rooms formerly occupied by photographer Julius A. Foster over Stone & Company's Bank. Norton & Ford cartes de visite included a view of the "Sultana" loaded with Union soldiers on the Mississippi River. One S. R. Norton carte de visite was a view of the Adrian Masonic Temple. Harriet gave birth in Michigan to Clarence in February of 1867, and to Carlton on October 12, 1870. Sequester applied in January of 1881 for a pension based upon his Civil War service and injury, and his application was approved by the end of the year. In March of 1883 Sequester applied for an increase in his pension from $4.00 to $6.00 per month. He died at Adrian on January 12, 1886, from heart and lung problems related to his 1862 injury. Harriet was receiving a widow's pension of $50.00 per month when she died at Adrian on May 26, 1929. More than one hundred of Sequester's Civil War letters are in the Burton Historical Collection.

His father came from Connecticut and Arthur was born in Ohio in May of 1847, second of the seven children of Abram and Elizabeth (later Lizzie) C. Nott. He seems to have enlisted as a private in Company E of the 147th Pennsylvania Infantry on January 1, 1864. Arthur served until the war ended, and he was mustered out of the army on July 15, 1865, at Washington, D. C. Elizabeth Ullom was born in Ohio to parents from Pennsylvania in May of 1846, fourth of the ten children of Harrison and Mary (Waters) Ullom. She married Arthur about 1870, and their son Walter was born in Ohio in 1871 or early in 1872. Their daughter Ruth was born in Iowa in January of 1879. Arthur and Lizzie were together in 1920 in the Illinois Sailors and Soldiers Home near Quincy, Illinois.

- A national periodical stated in the fall of 1899 that "The Novelty Photo Company of Jackson, Mich., has done itself proud by sending a choice collection of pictures in various tints. Some of these executions deserve a medal as fine as any of the associations offer. Some of the mounts are worthy of the beautiful execution. Two months later the magazine reproduced two portraits of a young woman from 5 ½ by 4 ¼ negatives by the Novelty Photo Company. The company advertised nationally at the beginning of 1900: "WANTED - Competent all-around man; state salary and send samples of work...." They advertised again early in 1902: "WANTED - A first-class all-around man; good salary to right party. Send sample of work...." After 1903, Arthur E. His father emigrated from England and Alonzo was born to a mother from New York in Michigan's Monroe County on January 3, 1859, the son of Henry and Jane E. (Stebbins) Novess. He had at least three older brothers and a younger sister. Alonzo took up photography immediately following his graduation from high school at Ann Arbor. According to The International Magazine, by 1892 he had established "... a high reputation among theatrical folks for the artistic quality of his work.... The illustrations of Mt. Clemens, its residences and its citizens, in this magazine, are entirely his work." Alonzo was awarded a diploma for a meritorious exhibit at the 1894 convention of the Photographers' Association of America in St. Louis, Missouri. The note from the secretary of the association which notified him of the award was reproduced in his advertising for several years. Alonzo employed Emerson Wentworth in 1896 and Austin F. Mann in 1899 as photographers. The second annual meeting of the Michigan Photographers' Association was held at Detroit in February of 1897, and there Alonzo was awarded the second prize in Class H, Interiors, for his exhibit of six photos, seven inches and over; and the third prize in Class B for his display of twelve pictures, Paris Panels to thirteen inches. He advertised in 1898: "CAPITAL is the Important item of business success. A photographer's capital is the confidence of his patrons. This confidence is gained and retained by permanent and artistic photographs. You are invited to inspect work and prices..." Alonzo's appointment as secretary of the Photographers' Association of Michigan was reported early in 1900. At this time he was single and his living quarters were in his Gratiot Avenue studio. His motto in 1901 was: "NOT HOW CHEAP, BUT HOW WELL,... Let us show you the Latest and Best Novelties in the Business. Making Photos Our Business. NOVESS STUDIO." Alonzo applied on August 11, 1906, for a patent on a Photographer's Light-Regulator consisting of an inclined rectangular wire frame projecting from a supporting base over which fabric curtains can be moved together or separated to control the light on a photographic subject. Patent Number 853,467 was granted to him on May 14, 1907. He applied on August 8, 1907, for a patent on another Photographer's Light-Regulator consisting of one or more roller curtains suspended from cross bars on a standard fixed to a base. Patent Number 882,838 was granted to him on March 24, 1908. Alonzo was living in California with his sister Amelia and her husband in 1920. He died in 1922 and was buried at San Diego in Greenwood Memorial Park.

George was born at Lapeer, Michigan, on March 17, 1891, third of the four children of Franklin W. and Nettie E. (Pierson) Nowlin. The post card back of a photograph of a string of flat cars loaded with logs was postmarked at Hadley on August 18, 1914, and was addressed to Mr. Frank Nowlin, Gaylord, Michigan. The message was: "Dear Father: How do you like the new gloss finish cards I have now? Am using these for portrait pictures now. George." He became an average sized man with dark blue eyes and light hair, and he was quite bald by 1917. George still was single in 1920, when he was living with his widowed mother. He was boarding in 1930 on the farm of Louis F. and Elsa C. Haas. George died in Michigan in January of 1963.

His father came from New York and Clark was born in Michigan to a mother from Massachusetts in the summer of 1842, third of the six or more children of Austin and Catherine Nye. He was a brother of the Simmons S. Nye profiled below. His wife, Mary, was born in New York eight years later. Clark succeeded Lyman J. Trumbull in Jackson, and produced tintypes during his early years at Hudson, where at one time his gallery was in Hall's Block. In the early 1870s his Albion gallery was first over the dental office of Dr. Swift, and then over that of Dr. Tremper. When he returned to Hudson he succeeded photographer E. D. Peirson. On some card photo mounts from Hudson, "W. W. Dewey" was crossed out, and "C. O. Nye" was written above it. "$1.00 SAVED!..." or "MONEY SAVED By having your Photos taken by NYE; Gallery opposite Comstock House, (second floor), Hudson, Mich." was printed on many of Clark's card photograph mounts.

His father came from New York and Simmons was born in Michigan to a mother from Massachusetts about 1844, fourth of the six or more children of Austin and Catherine Nye. He was a brother of the Clark O. Nye profiled above. Simmons was five feet five inches tall with a dark complexion, black hair and dark eyes when he enlisted at Hudson as a private in Company F of the Fourth Michigan Volunteer Infantry on September 10, 1861. During McClellan's Peninsular Campaign of 1862, the Fourth was engaged with the enemy in Virginia at New Bridge on May 24, at Hanover Court House on May 27, at Mechanicsville on June 26, at Gaines' Mill on June 27, at Savage Station on June 29, at Turkey Bend on June 30, at Malvern Hill on July 1 and at Harrison's Landing on July 2. During the Pope Campaign they fought on August 29 at Gainesville and on August 30 at Bull Run or Manassas, Virginia, on September 17 at Antietam, Maryland, and on September 20, 1862, at Shepardstown Ford, Virginia. Simmons was incapacitated by cardiac disease for two months prior to his honorable discharge for disability at Fort Monroe, Virginia, on November 23, 1862. Roxa (sometimes Roxy) M. Britton was born in Pittsford Township of Hillsdale County, Michigan, on October 10, 1844, third of the seven children of Richard R. and Ellen Britton. She married Simmons in Pittsford Township on July 11, 1864, and they never had children. Both Simmons and Clark O. Nye were assessed as Albion photographers in 1865, Simmons up until May and Clark starting in July. Simmons was assessed in December of 1865 as a photographer at Hudson, and he died there on December 31, 1869. About 1872, Roxa married Ezekiel M. Cole, a widower with three children. She gave birth in Michigan to Leonora in May of 1874, and to Anne in March of 1888. By 1900 Roxa was again a widow, and she married Leander P. Dillon at Ypsilanti on April 4, 1901. Leander died on June 26, 1906. On October 10, 1916, Roxa applied for a pension based upon the Civil War service of her former husband Simmons S. Nye. Her application was approved, and she received a pension until her death at Ypsilanti on August 21, 1932.

Willis was born in Wisconsin to parents from Maine in 1851. He was living with the family of William and Jane Whiteside on their farm in 1860, and two young neighboring farm families were headed by Maine natives Mellen Nye and Sewell Nye. Myra was born in Ohio to a mother from Connecticut in 1851, and she married Willis in the late 1870s. Their son Willis was born in Colorado in April of 1880, and their daughter Edith was born in Illinois in 1882. The Grand Central Gallery was at 41 and 43 Monroe Avenue in 1878, and advertised photographs colored in every style of the art. He was listed as Willis N. Nye from 1885 through 1888. In writing of photographer Joseph E. Watson in 1899, a photo journal mentioned: "His first operator, if we remember aright, was Mr. W. A. Nye, the popular demonstrator, who, at present, has charge of the Eastern field for the Hammer Plate...."

James was born in the Corktown area of Detroit to Irish parents on March 17, 1870, one of ten children and youngest of the six sons of John and Elizabeth Oakman. His public school education was augmented with a course at Detroit's Spencerian Business College. He aspired to be a professional photographer when he went to work for Arthur & Philbric at $1.50 per week. He developed proficiency as a retoucher to the point that he "could retouch a negative with less lead than any man in the business" and his salary was doubled. He continued his photographic career at Chicago until he found that his earnings were to be gauged on a production scale, then lived in Chicago for a few years while he traveled in Michigan for an insurance company. Kate Smith was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan in July of 1872, and she married James about 1898. Kate gave birth to Dorothy in May of 1900 and then died several years later. Bertha Neuman was born in Michigan to German parents in August of 1882, and she married James about 1911. Their daughter Helen was born in February of 1913, and then Bertha was ill for seven months prior to her death in October of 1914. Dorothy was in a Monroe convent at this time. James was advised that his middle name had more vote-getting potential than his first, so he became "Milt" Oakman to one and all, though he was usually listed as J. Milton Oakman until 1919, and then as Milton Oakman. He knew the most people in Wayne County by their first names, was one of the best dressed men in Detroit, and was a life-long Republican. As County Auditor Milton instituted departmental budgets. As Sheriff he inaugurated open air recreation for minor prisoners, gave consideration, counseling and aid to deserving parolees, and advocated that the inside work of the county jail be removed from politics. He was the only person that ever held successively the three major Wayne County offices of Auditor, Sheriff and Clerk. By 1917 he had arrived as boss of all things Republican in Wayne County, and his enormous influence in the city, county and state was conceded even by his political enemies. Mrs. Eugenie L. Drew became his third wife at Cleveland on August 20, 1917, but was granted an uncontested divorce three years later. When his political influence waned, Milt entered the real estate firm of his older brother, the Robert Oakman Realty Company. He was elected vice president of the company in February of 1924, and he had made a fortune before the depression brought the boom times to an end. He visited Europe twice, returning from the Netherlands in May of 1926 and from England in August of 1927. Milt also left New York in January of 1930 for a month or more in the West Indies. Friends talked him into entering a congressional primary in 1932, and his last political fling ended when he came in second of a field of eighteen. For the next few years he lived in partial retirement with his daughter Dorothy. He was ill for five months and in Harper Hospital for three months before his death on December 10, 1937. His obituaries began on the front pages of both the Free Press and the News on the following day. After an Episcopal service, burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Delia was born in Michigan to Irish parents in the spring of 1869, youngest of the six children of Patrick and Bridget O'Brien. She was called Bridget as a child, and she married Charles William Hake about 1894. Charles was born in Grand Rapids to German parents on December 18, 1859, second of the thirteen children of John William Hake and Anna Maria (Schittler) Hake. Delia gave birth in Michigan to Frances (later Cecelia) on October 16, 1897, to William on February 11, 1899, to Claude on August 23, 1900, to Virginia in 1902, and to Leo (later Lee) on July 5, 1903. Charles was an agent for the Hake Manufacturing Company in 1910, and he had clerical jobs in Detroit. Delia died on June 14, 1937, and Charles lived until December 6, 1939.

Charles was born in Michigan to parents from New York in July of 1846, second of the four children of Cornelius and Julia A. Ockford. In 1870 his apparently widowed mother was providing a home at Ann Arbor for his three siblings, while Charles was boarding in New London with the family of the young woman he was soon to marry. Her father came from New Jersey and Sarah was born in Connecticut about 1844, the daughter of Barzilla and Harriet Bills. She married Charles about 1872, and their children were born in Connecticut: Charles in January of 1874, and Marion (later Bessie) in February of 1880. Elizabeth was born in Germany in October of 1858, and she immigrated about 1871. Henry O'Connor was born in Michigan to Irish parents in March of 1861, and he held various railroad jobs in Detroit from 1890 until 1917. Henry and Elizabeth married about 1888, and their children were born in Detroit: Lucy (later Lulu or Lula) in May of 1890, Irene in June of 1891, Teresa in February of 1894, and Henry (later Harry) in February of 1896. "Mrs. H. O'Connor, 691 Dix Ave., Detroit." was blind stamped into the 6 by 8 inch mounts of 3 ½ by 5 oval photos, including one of ten rather cheerful young men. In some directories of the early 1900s and in the 1910 census report, Elizabeth was called Lucy. From 1918 on, she was identified as Henry's widow.

All of Eugene's grandparents emigrated from Ireland. His father came from Rhode Island and Eugene was born in Massachusetts in January of 1884, the only child of Charles and Mary O'Connor. His father also was enumerated as an artist in 1900. Inez was born in Alabama or Tennessee to parents from Alabama on December 14, 1883, and she married Eugene about 1907. She was handling the office work of Eugene's Chattanooga studio in 1910, and their daughter Eugenia was born in 1911 or early in 1912. Inez established the O'Connor Studio in 1924 and was identified as Eugene's widow in 1926. The studio moved from Washington Boulevard to the J. L. Hudson department store, was incorporated by 1929, and was the O'Connor Studio & Associates in 1931 and 1932. Inez was providing a home in 1930 for her daughter Eugenia and for her 21-year-old foster child, Margaret Deering. She was employed in 1934 and 1935 as a photographer by the J. L. Hudson Company. Inez was issued a Social Security number in Florida in 1952, and she died in Michigan in December of 1964.

Edward was born in Michigan to Irish parents in November of 1856, fourth of the nine children of James and Johannah O'Leary. In Toledo, Edward gave special attention to children and groups. Anna was born in Wisconsin to Irish parents in March of 1864, and she married Edward in the spring of 1893. Only "E. J. O'Leary, Cottage Gallery" was printed on some cabinet mounts which probably were from Flint. Edward advertised as a portrait and commercial photographer in 1897, and was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905. Edward and Anna had no children in 1910, but by 1920 they seem to have adopted Rose who was born in Michigan in 1907. By 1930 Anna was a widow living in Holland by herself.

Charles was born at Hambden, Ohio, on May 5, 1857, second of the six children of Franklin and Mary R. (Cadwell) Olin. The family moved to a farm in Benton Township of Eaton County, Michigan, in 1865. Charlie left the farm when he was 24 years old to learn and work at photography. He returned to work on the farm for a while several times before settling into the photography business, which he conducted at Galesburg and Lansing as well as Potterville, Scotts and Cassopolis. He led the Olin Cornet Band at Galesburg, and at Grand Ledge organized a cornet band of young ladies. The North Lansing photographers were identified as Olius & Brown. Charles produced stereoscopic views of Potterville, and provided photographic services to nearby Dimondale. "Chas. Olin" was penned on the back of a stereograph of the capitol building in Lansing. "Chas. Olin, Photographer." was stamped on cabinet mounts below individual photographic portraits of new wooden tables, cabinets or commodes, and sets of head and foot boards for beds. These were photographed so as to bring out the grain of the oak and other details. One of his Cassopolis cabinet photographs was of a cat sitting in a bowl. Miss Alma C. Einbeck was born in Wisconsin to German parents in 1873, third of the five known children of Edward and Kathinka Einbeck. She was enumerated as an Ashley photographer in 1900, when she probably was working for Charles. They were sharing a Potterville residence in 1910, when she was enumerated as his companion and as a retail milliner on her own account. Alma and Charles were married on April 12, 1915. Charles died in 1953 and Alma died in 1964. Both lie in the Benton Township Cemetery at Potterville.

| His father emigrated from England and Solomon was born at Stony Run, Michigan, to a mother from New York on October 27, 1844, eighth of the ten children of George and Keziah (Tobey) Oliver. He usually was enumerated as Jerome Oliver. Jerome claimed to be nineteen years old when he enlisted at East Saginaw as a private in Company A of the Second Michigan Cavalry on September 2, 1861. He was mustered into the army on October 2, 1861. The Regiment took part in the siege of Island Number Ten in March and April of 1862, in the siege of Corinth, Mississippi, in May, and under Colonel Phil H. Sheridan in one of the most brilliant minor engagements of the war in June of 1862 at Boonville, Mississippi. This battle earned Sheridan a promotion to Brigadier General. The Second Cavalry was a part of General Buell's army when the move was made on October 8 upon Perryville, Kentucky, and it achieved an enviable reputation in a stubborn fight with the enemy, driving him in confusion from the field. During this engagement Jerome was wounded so badly that he was discharged from the army at Louisville, Kentucky, on December 17, 1862. Marilla was born in Michigan to parents from New York in 1837 or early in 1838. About 1859 she married Lafayette Mead, who lost his life in the Civil War. Marilla married Jerome about 1874, and their son George was born in Michigan in 1875 or early in 1876. Some of Jerome's card portraits were rather realistically tinted. Marilla and Jerome were divorced on June 9, 1887. Fannie Susan Glover was born in November of 1859 at East Saginaw, Michigan, last of the five children of Oliver Lawrence Glover and Susan (Bow) Glover. One of her brothers was the photographer Alfred H. Glover. Fannie married Jerome at Council Bluffs, Iowa, on September 14, 1887. Their son Welcome was born in Detroit, Michigan, on November 9, 1889. |           | 1 33 11 2222222 11 21 t33m 31 3 |

- Jacob was born Joakke Annanulli at Tomujoki, Finland, on November 10, 1882. He left Liverpool, England, on S. S. Scythia and arrived at Boston, Massachusetts, on September 27, 1897. Jacob became a five foot five and a half inch man with blue eyes and light hair. Anna was born at Simojoki, Finland, on February 18, 1882, and she immigrated in 1897. She married Jacob at Grand Marais, Michigan, on August 9, 1900. Three of their children were born at Ironwood: George on February 19, 1902, Pearl (later Alice) on July 1, 1905, and Annie (later Violet) on August 7, 1907. Jacob's studio was among the earliest Finnish businesses in Ironwood. Many of the photographs of Ironwood and of Hurley, Wisconsin, that were reproduced in The Gogebic Range about 1903 were taken by J. Olli. In addition to her children, Anna was providing in 1910 for seven roomers and Jacob's 79-year-old widowed father, Leander Olli. Anna gave birth to Frank at Aberdeen, Washington, on January 7, 1912. All records dated 1918 and later were for Jacob Ollie, who was a widower by 1930. Though some earlier records indicated that Jacob had been naturalized, he applied formally for United States citizenship on July 2, 1935. According to Washington State records, Jacob died in Alabama on March 31, 1951. 4 4 4 2 4 4 5 1 1 2 2 4 3 6 6

Nikolai was born in Finland on September 25, 1879, and became short and stout with blue eyes and brown hair. He immigrated in 1901, and by 1918 was a naturalized citizen of the United States. He photographed some of the Michigan State Troops sent to the Copper Country during the 1913 strike, and embossed the resulting post card prints "NIKOLAI OLLI, COMMERCIAL PHOTOGRAPHER." Other postal photographs, including studio portraits, were embossed "NIKOLAI OLLI, MOHAWK, MICH." Maria (later Mary) was born in Finland in 1884, crossed the ocean in 1913, and married Nikolai about 1917. She and Nikolai had no children in 1930. 27-year-old Nicholas Olli traveled from Montreal, Canada, on S. S. Victorian to Liverpool, England, arriving on August 24, 1907, and was ticketed through to Helsingfors, Finland. One Nikolai Olli born in Finland about 1879 immigrated in 1901 and was in 1910 a coal miner in the Black Diamond Precinct of Washington. He was married to a 33-year-old Finnish lady named Katie, and their daughters Marie and Lilly were born in Washington between 1907 and March of 1909.

His sister Bernice died in 1877, and his sister Pearl was born in March of 1888. Helen was born in Indiana to parents from New York about 1876, and she married Clayton about 1904. She also was enumerated as a photographer in 1905. Their sons were born in Minnesota: Gordon in 1905 and Clayton in November of 1914. The senior Clayton was a tall man with blue eyes, and by 1918 his hair was grey. He was enumerated twice for the 1920 census report: on January 19 at the lumber camp, and on February 10 in Marquette. Clayton was 85 years old when he died at Oshkosh, Wisconsin, on June 3, 1961.

Her father came from Pennsylvania and she was born Roselle or Rosella Kirk in Indiana to a mother from New Jersey in 1853 or early in 1854. She was fifth of the six children of Louis (or Lewis) F. and Julia A. Kirk. Her father farmed in Indiana and became a hardware merchant at Sturgis. Herbert Olmstead was born in New York about 1844, and he married Rose about 1876. Their children were born in Michigan: Julia in August of 1877, and Herbert in 1878 or early in 1879. Rose was a widow by 1920, when she was living with the family of her daughter and her husband, who was a patent attorney. She still was living with Julia and her family in 1930. John was born in Michigan in 1842 or early in 1843, fourth of the seven children of Gamaliel Palmer Olmsted and Lydia (Burnett) Olmsted. He probably belonged to the Coldwater Cadets, one of the militia companies recruited to form the First Michigan Infantry. John was enrolled for three months as a private in Company C of the First Michigan Infantry at Fort Wayne in Detroit on May 1, 1861. He received some training with his comrades in the regiment, and they were fully uniformed and armed when they left Detroit by boat for Cleveland on May 13. They traveled from Cleveland by rail to arrive on May 16 at Washington, the first regiment from a western state to reach the capital. The regiment assisted on May 24 in the capture of Alexandria, Virginia. It fought courageously and won distinction on July 21 at the Battle of Bull Run, where 117 men of the First including their colonel were killed, wounded or captured. When the three-month term of service expired the regiment returned to Detroit, where John was mustered out of the army with his company on August 7, 1861. His partner in 1866 probably was his 18-year-old brother William, though it could have been his 16-year-old brother Frank. John's wife and daughter were born in Pennsylvania: Belle in 1852 or 1853, and Bertha about 1869. "J. A. Olmsted, Photographer, Byron" was penciled in script on the back of some cartes de visite. "Photographed by J. A. Olmsted, Small Pictures Enlarged to any size at the Fine Art Gallery, Byron, Mich." was stamped on the back of other photographs and on the paper sleeves of tintypes. "... Additional copies can be obtained from this Negative when desired. Frames, Cases, and Mouldings." was printed on some of John's later card mounts, including a few with "GO TO J. A. OLMSTED" photographically printed with the portrait. Assessors and directories sometimes spelled the name Olmstead. John applied for a Veteran's Pension on October 6, 1891, stating that rheumatism, heart disease and lung disease were preventing him from earning a living. Apparently the pension never was authorized.

| Some records were for Paul S. Olmstead, but his signature was Paul S. Olmsted. Paul was born at Midland, Michigan, to a mother from New York on July 21, 1888. He was the only child of Frank Herbert Olmsted and Ada Belle (Robinson) Olmsted, but by 1910 his parents had adopted Maude Bougham who was born in Michigan about 1895. Paul became a stout man with blue eyes and light hair. Her father emigrated from Canada and Della was born in Michigan in 1892. She married Paul about 1913 and their children were born in Michigan: Laura in June of 1915, and Frank in 1916. Paul expected in 1917 that trouble with a dislocated knee might keep him from being drafted. Something happened to Della and the children, and Paul married again. Edna was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan on February 17, 1900, and she married Paul about 1921. Their son Sherman was born in 1922 or early in 1923. Edna seems to have been a widow when she died in Detroit in October of 1966. | 1 22 33 12 11 214 11 4 |   |

| Clyde was born at Lapeer, Michigan, on August 30, 1880, to Charles F. and Belle (Raymond) Olney, both natives of Michigan. His paternal grandparents were from Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, and his maternal grandparents were Canadian. His two sisters were born in Michigan in December of 1882 and in January of 1889. His father was a Columbiaville machinist and foundryman from 1886 to 1911. Clyde became a tall slender man with grey eyes and brown hair. He was enumerated for the 1900 census in Columbiaville on June Fourth, and again in Detroit one week later. "Clyde Olney, Columbiaville, Mich." was stamped below the photographs on the 5½ by 6½ and 5 by 5 inch mounts of views of Columbiaville from the woolen mill tower, street scenes and opera house interior views, as well as a photo of the Columbiaville band on an 8 by 10 inch mount. Clyde is pictured in the band with Albert M. (Allie) Vermilya, nephew of the photographer Albert L. Vermilya, who probably took the picture. Albert L. Vermilya and Clyde used identical commercial mounts and stamps with the same font to identify their work, so it seems that Albert was encouraging the younger man in his photographic efforts. Augusta M. Spaulding was born in Wisconsin on November 22, 1880, she married Clyde about 1905, and their daughter Mary was born in Illinois on January 12, 1908. Mary became a doctor and never married. Augusta died in California's San Joaquin County on January 7, 1942. Clyde died at Concord in Contra Costa County, California, on December 22, 1966. | 4 111 mm 22 11 tt1 ttt 51 41 55 |   |

His father came from Ohio and Clarence was born in Steuben County, Indiana, to a mother from New York on December 28, 1867, the elder son of Thomas S. and Lucinda (Corey) Osborn. His brother Ambrose was born in Indiana in March of 1870, and they grew up on the family farms. Though Edwin Drawbaugh was less than a year older than Clarence, he had been a professional photographer at Union City and Coldwater for five years prior to forming their partnership. Nellie S. Bower was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan on July 2, 1867, first of the two children of William Wallace Bower and Abigail A. (Hughes) Bower. She married Clarence on March 29, 1891, and their children were born at Coldwater: Lorene on December 9, 1892, Guy in July of 1899, Phyllis on February 28, 1903, and Neil on December 29, 1906. Guy died as an infant. Clarence identified himself in 1894 as the "Leading Photographer; the best of work guaranteed;... Remember that OSBORN makes better photographs for less money than any other Gallery in Branch County. Special pains taken with children..." The second annual meeting of the Michigan Photographers' Association was held in February of 1897 at Detroit, where Clarence was awarded the first prize in Class D for his exhibit of twelve cabinet photographs. He sent duplicates of his prize-winning prints to the editor of a photographic journal, who reproduced one of them in the periodical. Clarence sent the editor "... another excellent lot of examples of his work, some of which we reproduce in this issue." The frontispiece for the following issue was made from a negative by Clarence. In 1902 he advertised "OSBORN'S PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY, Where you can get photos that are up to date. And can also buy Cameras, Plates, Developers, in fact, anything that is used in making a first class Photograph. Developing and finishing for amateurs." His local ads from 1902 to 1915 included an emblem of the Photographers Association of Michigan. He was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905, and he was selling photographic supplies a year later. From 1909 through 1919 it was "OSBORN'S - The Best Equipped Photographic Studio in Southern Michigan. Eastman Kodaks and Kodak Supplies always in stock. Printing and Finishing for amateurs solicited..." His wife Nellie was proprietor of a Coldwater dress shop from 1919 through 1924. His 1922 advertising mentioned that Clarence had been awarded three First Prizes by the Photographers' Association of Michigan. Nellie died at Coldwater on January 14, 1940, and Clarence died there on October 23, 1950.

Fred was born in Michigan to parents from New York in September of 1867, first of the three children of Ephraim and Mary E. (Bartholomew) Osborn. His brother Wallace was born in March of 1870, and his sister Nellie was born in March of 1876. Fred apparently retained partial ownership when he transferred the Alma studio to Jesse Christensen, for it was reported in March of 1897 that "Mr. Christianson bought out the interest of Mr. F. E. Osborn in his Alma, Michigan, gallery." Sarah L. Moore was born in England in November of 1870. She immigrated in 1898, and she soon was married to Fred. Their son Randall was born in Ohio on August 5, 1899. Fred advertised locally in 1901: "Fine Work a Specialty. Careful Attention Given to Outdoor Work." Fred's sale of his Marshall gallery to Joseph L. Hamilton was reported in the fall of 1902. He and Sarah still were providing a home for Randall in 1930. Fred died at Battle Creek in 1959, and Sarah died there in 1961.

Her father emigrated from Holland and Harriet A. Van Riper was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in June of 1844, last of the three known children of Hassell and Marium Van Riper. She and Sanford Osborn were married on April 21, 1859, at the home of her parents in Moscow Township of Hillsdale County, Michigan, and they still were living with her parents in August of 1860. Sanford was 24 years old when he enlisted at Jackson as a private in Company E of the Third Michigan Cavalry on September 1, 1862. The regiment served in northern Mississippi and Tennessee during the winter, and in July of 1863 took part in a severe engagement near Jackson, Tennessee. Sanford was prostrated by sunstroke, and was taken to the regimental hospital in an ambulance. His hair fell out so that he was entirely bald, his face and hands were swollen and covered with sores, and he was in the hospital for a long time. When he returned to light duty, he was still subject to spells of fainting and dizziness. While the regiment was driving bands of guerillas from the region in November and December of 1863, he was left in camp at Corinth, Mississippi. With many others in the regiment, Sanford re-enlisted at La Grange, Tennessee, on January 20, 1864. Following veteran furloughs, the Third was ordered to St. Louis, Missouri, and in May of 1864 to Little Rock, Arkansas, to drive out the Confederates under General Shelby. From November of 1864 until February of 1865 the headquarters of the regiment was at Brownsville Station, Arkansas. In March it moved south to operate against Mobile, Alabama. After the fall of that city, the Third marched across Alabama and Mississippi to Baton Rouge, Louisiana. There Sanford was honorably discharged and mustered out of the army with his detachment on June 2, 1865. Harriet gave birth to Millie A. Osborn on September 4, 1865. Some of Harriet's cartes de visite from Manchester carried no revenue stamps. Harriet gave birth to William S. Osborn on May 23, 1870. Sanford Osborn died in Otto Township of Oceana County, Michigan, on March 15, 1873. Harriet never re-married, and she was providing a home for both of her children in 1880. For some reason, she did not apply for a Widow's Pension until January 17, 1889. Her daughter Millie died on April 15, 1891. Her son William lived in Delray, and she spent at least some of the 1890s in his home. Harriet was receiving a pension of $8.00 per month at the time of her death on May 12, 1901.

His father came from Pennsylvania and Thomas was born in November of 1845 at Newark, Ohio, seventh of the nine children of Joshua and Harriet Osborn. Lucinda was born in September of 1844 at Saint Lawrence, New York, fourth of the nine children of Ambrose and Eliza Corey. She married Thomas about 1866, and their son Clarence (who is profiled above) was born in Indiana in December of 1867. Their son Ambrose was born in Indiana in March of 1869. They also had two children born in Michigan: Lewis in January of 1882, and Viva in April of 1886. Thomas probably was working in his son's studio in 1900 and 1910. Lucinda died at Coldwater on February 13, 1920, and Thomas died there on December 14, 1922.

Osborn purchased a No. 3 Waterbury lens to make 8 by 10 inch landscape negatives. He modified an old portrait camera by replacing the bellows with a cone long enough to get a distant object in focus, then found that the lens would not cover his 8 by 10 plate. He was told that the lens was not at fault, but that he should enlarge the opening at the front of his camera and then open up the cone to match it.

Vincent was born at Nowe Grabie in the Polish region of Germany on January 21, 1865, and he became a five foot seven inch man with blue eyes and dark brown hair. Stanislaw (later Anastasia and then Stella) was born in the Polish region of Germany twenty years later. She married Vincent about 1904 and they immigrated in April of 1906. For some reason Vincent returned to Europe and came back from Bremen to New York on S. S. Kronprinz Wilhelm in August of 1906. Their children were born in Michigan: Konstantia (later Constance) in 1907, Kasimer (later Casimer) in January of 1909, and John in 1911. Vincent was naturalized a citizen of the United States at Detroit on September 28, 1916. Stella had five younger brothers in the Polish army during World War I, and when she heard that all of them had been killed she became mentally unbalanced. It later was reported that two of her brothers had survived. Vincent applied in March of 1920 for a passport for himself and his family in hopes that seeing her brothers and some old friends would restore Stella's health. When he was informed that the Department of State deemed it inadvisable for his family to accompany him due to the unusual conditions in Poland at the time, he replied with his reasons for taking Stella. The passport was issued as requested on April 8, 1920.

Her father came from Rhode Island and Carrie L. Seger (also Sager and Segar) was born at Township, New York, on June 5, 1861. She and her five-year-old brother Colonel were living in 1870 with their mother, Mary A. Sager. Carrie was living in 1880 with the family of her aunt, Mrs. Augusta Jackson. She married the photographer George A. Ostergren at Sedgwick, Kansas, on September 24, 1884, and their daughter Glenna Marie was born at Wichita, Kansas, on June 22, 1887. Carrie was a widow by 1900, when she was a neighbor in Morley of the former photographer Dexter M. Hulsart. She married George Warner at Union City, Indiana, on March 12, 1909. George was born in Maryland about 1842, and by 1920 Carrie was again a widow living with the family of her daughter Glenna, now Mrs. James O. Bailey. Carrie died at Vandalia, Ohio, on March 5, 1933, and burial was in Union City Cemetery in Indiana.

Samuel was born in Arkansas to a mother from Louisiana in 1855 or early in 1856, last in a family of six or more children. He was living in 1860 with his mother, Lucinda, and in 1870 with the family of his sister Evaline, now Mrs. Thomas Mumford. Samuel and all members of his family were enumerated as mulatto in 1860 and 1870. He was enumerated as white in 1880, when he was living next door to and probably working for John W. Barge, who was a Cleveland photographer from 1872 until 1889.

Milton was born in Ohio to a mother from Pennsylvania in April of 1861, third of the five children of John and Ann Oswalt. He was called Edward as a child, Milton in the 1880s and 1890s, and M. Edward Oswalt by 1900. Milton was managing the family farm for his mother in 1880, when she was enumerated as a widow. He soon married, and his son Earl was born in Ohio in May of 1884. The Fostoria and Tuscaloosa listings were for M. E. Oswalt. "OSWALT, Successor to Hanselman, Manistee." was printed on cabinet mounts. Milton apparently sold the Manistee gallery back to Jacob Hanselman within a year after buying it from him. Something happened to his first wife, and Milton married again. Mabel was born in Ohio in April of 1874, and she married Milton about 1892. They were living in the Dewey Heights suburb of Nashville in 1900, when they were providing a home for Milton's son Earl.

Nicholas was born in the Netherlands on April 4, 1875. He was brought to the United States in 1882 and became a citizen, probably when his father was naturalized. Luna was born in the Netherlands in October of 1869, and she married Nicholas about 1899. This marriage did not last. Her father came from Louisiana and Mabel was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in 1883 or 1884. She married Nicholas about 1905, and their sons were born in Michigan: Nicholas (later James N.) in 1906, and Dean in May of 1909. The family was traveling continually and had no permanent home in 1918, when Nicholas was partially blind in his right eye. He was called Nick in 1920. Mabel was enumerated as married but was living by herself at Farmville in 1930. Nicholas died in Onslow County, North Carolina, on November 27, 1943. 1 3

His father emigrated from the Bohemian region of Austria and Frank was born in Pierce Township, Wisconsin, on August 15, 1876, first of the ten children of Joseph and Elizabeth (Lastofka) Ouradnik. He became a stout man with brown eyes and dark brown hair. Mary Rose Herda was born in Wisconsin to a Bohemian mother in April of 1879, and she married Frank about 1899. That Frank and Mary had moved to Escanaba where he had leased a gallery was reported early in 1901. Mary gave birth to Wilbert in Wisconsin in 1901. The name of the Marinette photographer was spelled Ouardnik. The Ouradniks moved to Minnesota in 1902 or 1903. “Photograph by F. W. Ouradnik, Ann Arbor, Michigan” was stamped on the back of an undated 4 by 6¾ inch photo of the stage of the Lydia Mendelssohn Theatre filled with actors in a medieval play. Frank died on January 12, 1919, and burial was in Forest Hill Cemetery at Owatonna. Mary and her son were living in 1920 at Owatoona, where Wilbert had become proprietor of the photograph studio.

Roy was born at Chicago, Illinois, to parents from New York on November 14, 1882, the only child of Edgar M. and Ella A. Overbaugh. He became a slender five foot eight inch man with blue-gray eyes and brown hair. Orville Morris lived at Evanston, Illinois, while Roy managed the Flint studio for him at 501 South Saginaw Street. Roy and his father seem to have been photographic partners in 1910. Marjorie was born at Santa Barbara, California, to natives of California on December 24, 1894, second of the three children of Arthur E. and Daisy M. Greenwell. She was their only daughter, and she was called Margaret as a child. Marjorie and Roy were married in Santa Barbara on May 20, 1916, and they never had children. During the 1920s, they spent much time in Europe. They sailed from New York to Southampton, England, on S. S. Berengaria in July of 1921 to visit Great Britain and France as tourists and on personal business. They returned to New York from Cherbourg, France, on S. S. Olympic in February of 1922. They traveled to Italy in November of 1922 and returned to New York from Naples on S. S. Conte Rosso in June of 1923. They sailed from New York to Europe on S. S. Paris in August of 1923, and then returned in June of 1924 on S. S. Leviathan from Cherbourg. They chose S. S. Olympic again in September of 1925 to travel first class from New York to Southampton. They returned to New York in January of 1926 on S. S. Conte Biacamano from Genoa, Italy. They crossed the Atlantic to Southampton again in March of 1926 on S. S. Aquitania. Roy and Marjorie may not have remained in Europe for nearly three years, but they did sail from Southampton to New York on S. S. Republic in February of 1929. Roy died in Los Angeles County, California, on February 6, 1966.

His father came from Ohio and John was born in Indiana in September of 1865, second of the three children of Simeon and Elmira Overholt. He grew up on the family farm and then in Wadsworth, where his father was a blacksmith. By 1880 he had a stepmother named Sybil and a six-year-old stepsister. Grace (later Irene) was born in Michigan to a mother from Ohio in February of 1870, and she married John in 1891 or early in 1892. Their children were born in Michigan: Earl in August of 1894, and Pearl in June of 1908. John was said to have accumulated ten years of experience in photography by 1894. Both his studio and his home were on Sophia Street in 1897. The Overholts were living next door to the family of photographer Moses B. Morrell in 1900.

His father came from Connecticut and Mark was born at Franklin, Pennsylvania, to a mother from New York on March 10, 1839, second of the seven children of William and Julia M. Owens. Charlotte (later Lottie) was born in New York to natives of New York on June 22, 1858, third of the five children of George and Harriet (Boardman) Sanford. She married Mark on March 7, 1879, and their daughters were born in Michigan: Helen in November of 1879, Clara on September 8, 1883, and Florence on February 15, 1886. Mark employed Abraham DeWindt and Otto H. Miehle as photographers in 1879, and William T. Dyer as a photographer in 1880. He attended the inaugural convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Chicago in 1880, and was on the initial list of PA of A members published in May of 1881. He served as vice president of the PA of A for Michigan in 1882-83. In the gazetteer for 1883, the Battle Creek galleries of Theron Crispell and Mark W. Owens were both listed at 7 North Jefferson Street. "OWENS, Battle Creek, Mich., Crispell, Operator." was printed on some card and cabinet photograph mounts. Mark commuted in 1883 from Grand Rapids to his Battle Creek gallery, which was staffed by artist Miss Capitola Lewey and photographer Lincoln Ford. He attended the fourth annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Milwaukee in August of 1883. Early in 1886 it was reported that "M. W. Owens, late of Grand Rapids, Michigan, has opened a fine studio in Muscatine, Iowa." That he would soon occupy his new commercial gallery on Front Street in Grand Rapids was announced in August of 1892. He managed to pose a parrot with two small dogs in this gallery. Charles Simon worked for Mark as a photographer in 1896, and Helen D. Owens was her father's clerk in 1896 and 1897.

| Alexander was born to Joseph and Harriet Oakley about 1837 in Michigan. One Alexander Oakley was born at Bloomington, Michigan, and was a five foot seven inch laborer with blue eyes and light hair who claimed to be eighteen years old when he enlisted for five years in Company H of the United States Seventh Infantry on November 20, 1854. He deserted from the army on November 1, 1855. Alexander sold photographs from Caro for $2.50 per dozen, or for $1.50 per half dozen. The imprint on Vassar photo mounts was for A. F. Oakley. During the 1870s one A. L. Oakley produced stereo views from Tiffin, Ohio. Alexander was married at the time of his death at Vassar from consumption of the lungs on August 15, 1875. |         | 2 3333 tt 44 22 |

| James was born in the Corktown area of Detroit to Irish parents on March 17, 1870, one of ten children and youngest of the six sons of John and Elizabeth Oakman. His public school education was augmented with a course at Detroit's Spencerian Business College. He aspired to be a professional photographer when he went to work for Arthur & Philbric at $1.50 per week. He developed proficiency as a retoucher to the point that he "could retouch a negative with less lead than any man in the business" and his salary was doubled. He continued his photographic career at Chicago until he found that his earnings were to be gauged on a production scale, then lived in Chicago for a few years while he traveled in Michigan for an insurance company. Kate Smith was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan in July of 1872, and she married James about 1898. Kate gave birth to Dorothy in May of 1900 and then died several years later. Bertha Neuman was born in Michigan to German parents in August of 1882, and she married James about 1911. Their daughter Helen was born in February of 1913, and then Bertha was ill for seven months prior to her death in October of 1914. Dorothy was in a Monroe convent at this time. James was advised that his middle name had more vote-getting potential than his first, so he became "Milt" Oakman to one and all, though he was usually listed as J. Milton Oakman until 1919, and then as Milton Oakman. He knew the most people in Wayne County by their first names, was one of the best dressed men in Detroit, and was a life-long Republican. As County Auditor Milton instituted departmental budgets. As Sheriff he inaugurated open air recreation for minor prisoners, gave consideration, counseling and aid to deserving parolees, and advocated that the inside work of the county jail be removed from politics. He was the only person that ever held successively the three major Wayne County offices of Auditor, Sheriff and Clerk. By 1917 he had arrived as boss of all things Republican in Wayne County, and his enormous influence in the city, county and state was conceded even by his political enemies. Mrs. Eugenie L. Drew became his third wife at Cleveland on August 20, 1917, but was granted an uncontested divorce three years later. When his political influence waned, Milt entered the real estate firm of his older brother, the Robert Oakman Realty Company. He was elected vice president of the company in February of 1924, and he had made a fortune before the depression brought the boom times to an end. He visited Europe twice, returning from the Netherlands in May of 1926 and from England in August of 1927. Milt also left New York in January of 1930 for a month or more in the West Indies. Friends talked him into entering a congressional primary in 1932, and his last political fling ended when he came in second of a field of eighteen. For the next few years he lived in partial retirement with his daughter Dorothy. He was ill for five months and in Harper Hospital for three months before his death on December 10, 1937. His obituaries began on the front pages of both the Free Press and the News on the following day. After an Episcopal service, burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery. |           | 3 23 22 3333 11 411 44 33 dd 33 22 33333 55 3366 3333 |

| Elizabeth was born in Germany in October of 1858, and she immigrated about 1871. Henry O'Connor was born in Michigan to Irish parents in March of 1861, and he held various railroad jobs in Detroit from 1890 until 1917. Henry and Elizabeth married about 1888, and their children were born in Detroit: Lucy (later Lulu or Lula) in May of 1890, Irene in June of 1891, Teresa in February of 1894, and Henry (later Harry) in February of 1896. "Mrs. H. O'Connor, 691 Dix Ave., Detroit." was blind stamped into the 6 by 8 inch mounts of 3 1/2 by 5 oval photos, including one of ten rather cheerful young men. In some directories of the early 1900s and in the 1910 census report, Elizabeth was called Lucy. From 1918 on, she was identified as Henry's widow. |           |     |

All of Eugene's grandparents emigrated from Ireland. His father came from Rhode Island and Eugene was born in Massachusetts in January of 1884, the only child of Charles and Mary O'Connor. His father also was enumerated as an artist in 1900. Inez was born in Alabama or Tennessee to parents from Alabama on December 14, 1883, and she married Eugene about 1907. She was handling the office work of Eugene's Chattanooga studio in 1910, and their daughter Eugenia was born in 1911 or early in 1912. Inez established the O'Connor Studio in 1924 and was identified as Eugene's widow in 1926. The studio moved from Washington Boulevard to the J. L. Hudson department store, was incorporated by 1929, and was the O'Connor Studio & Associates in 1931 and 1932. Inez was providing a home in 1930 for her daughter Eugenia and for her 21-year-old foster child, Margaret Deering. She was employed in 1934 and 1935 as a photographer by the J. L. Hudson Company. Inez was issued a Social Security number in Florida in 1952, and she died in Michigan in December of 1964.

Ohio-Michigan Photographer's Association

This organization was formed early in 1900 with C. M. Hayes of Detroit as president, J. F. Rentschler of Ann Arbor as vice president for Michigan, C. S. Bateman of Norwalk as vice president for Ohio, A. L. Bowersox of Dayton as secretary and W. L. Smith of St. Mary's, Ohio, as treasurer. The association held its first convention at the Hotel Victory on Put-In-Bay Island in Lake Erie on August 21, 22 and 23, 1900. First prize in the Open Class was $50.00 in gold; second prize was a gold medal and third prize was a silver medal. Gold, silver and bronze medals were also offered in the Genre Class, the Figure Class, the Bust Portrait Class, the Cabinet Class, the Miniature Class and the View Class, with a Grand Prize of a silver loving cup. Similar summer conventions were held at Cleveland in 1902, at Saginaw in 1903, and then in May at Saginaw in 1904, in March at Toledo in 1905, at Detroit in 1906, and back in Toledo in 1909. The 1914 convention was held "as usual" at Cedar Point on Lake Erie in August. Conventions were not held in 1901, 1907 and 1908 when the Photographers' Association of America met at Detroit, at Dayton and again at Detroit. Elected president were C. S. Bateman of Norwalk in 1901, A. L. Bowersox of Cleveland in 1902 and C. L. Lewis of Toledo in 1903. Elected vice president for Michigan were C. A. Beckman of Saginaw in 1902, G. H. Fowler of Charlotte in 1906, and J. H. Brubaker of Grand Rapids in 1913. F. S. Clark of Detroit was elected secretary in 1901. Michigan photographers elected treasurer included A. G. McMichael of Detroit in 1902, D. D. Spellman of Detroit in 1903 and Thomas Palethorpe of Greenville in 1906.

Edward was born in Michigan to Irish parents in November of 1856, fourth of the nine children of James and Johannah O'Leary. In Toledo, Edward gave special attention to children and groups. Anna was born in Wisconsin to Irish parents in March of 1864, and she married Edward in the spring of 1893. Only "E. J. O'Leary, Cottage Gallery" was printed on some cabinet mounts which probably were from Flint. Edward advertised as a portrait and commercial photographer in 1897, and was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905. Edward and Anna had no children in 1910, but by 1920 they seem to have adopted Rose who was born in Michigan in 1907. By 1930 Anna was a widow living in Holland by herself.

Charles was born at Hambden, Ohio, on May 5, 1857, second of the six children of Franklin and Mary R. (Cadwell) Olin. The family moved to a farm in Benton Township of Eaton County, Michigan, in 1865. Charlie left the farm when he was 24 years old to learn and work at photography. He returned to work on the farm for a while several times before settling into the photography business, which he conducted at Galesburg and Lansing as well as Potterville, Scotts and Cassopolis. He led the Olin Cornet Band at Galesburg, and at Grand Ledge organized a cornet band of young ladies. The North Lansing photographers were identified as Olius & Brown. Charles produced stereoscopic views of Potterville, and provided photographic services to nearby Dimondale. "Chas. Olin" was penned on the back of a stereograph of the capitol building in Lansing. "Chas. Olin, Photographer." was stamped on cabinet mounts below individual photographic portraits of new wooden tables, cabinets or commodes, and sets of head and foot boards for beds. These were photographed so as to bring out the grain of the oak and other details. One of his Cassopolis cabinet photographs was of a cat sitting in a bowl. Miss Alma C. Einbeck was born in Wisconsin to German parents in 1873, third of the five known children of Edward and Kathinka Einbeck. She was enumerated as an Ashley photographer in 1900, when she probably was working for Charles. They were sharing a Potterville residence in 1910, when she was enumerated as his companion and as a retail milliner on her own account. Alma and Charles were married on April 12, 1915. Charles died in 1953 and Alma died in 1964. Both lie in the Benton Township Cemetery at Potterville.

| His father emigrated from England and Solomon was born at Stony Run, Michigan, to a mother from New York on October 27, 1844, eighth of the ten children of George and Keziah (Tobey) Oliver. He usually was enumerated as Jerome Oliver. Jerome claimed to be nineteen years old when he enlisted at East Saginaw as a private in Company A of the Second Michigan Cavalry on September 2, 1861. He was mustered into the army on October 2, 1861. The Regiment took part in the siege of Island Number Ten in March and April of 1862, in the siege of Corinth, Mississippi, in May, and under Colonel Phil H. Sheridan in one of the most brilliant minor engagements of the war in June of 1862 at Boonville, Mississippi. This battle earned Sheridan a promotion to Brigadier General. The Second Cavalry was a part of General Buell’s army when the move was made on October 8 upon Perryville, Kentucky, and it achieved an enviable reputation in a stubborn fight with the enemy, driving him in confusion from the field. During this engagement Jerome was wounded so badly that he was discharged from the army at Louisville, Kentucky, on December 17, 1862. Marilla was born in Michigan to parents from New York in 1837 or early in 1838. About 1859 she married Lafayette Mead, who lost his life in the Civil War. Marilla married Jerome about 1874, and their son George was born in Michigan in 1875 or early in 1876. Some of Jerome’s card portraits were rather realistically tinted. Marilla and Jerome were divorced on June 9, 1887. Fannie Susan Glover was born in November of 1859 at East Saginaw, Michigan, last of the five children of Oliver Lawrence Glover and Susan (Bow) Glover. One of her brothers was the photographer Alfred H. Glover. Fannie married Jerome at Council Bluffs, Iowa, on September 14, 1887. Their son Welcome was born in Detroit, Michigan, on November 9, 1889. |           | 1 33 11 2222222 11 21 t33m 31 3 |

- Jacob was born Joakke Annanulli at Tomujoki, Finland, on November 10, 1882. He left Liverpool, England, on S. S. Scythia and arrived at Boston, Massachusetts, on September 27, 1897. Jacob became a five foot five and a half inch man with blue eyes and light hair. Anna was born at Simojoki, Finland, on February 18, 1882, and she immigrated in 1897. She married Jacob at Grand Marais, Michigan, on August 9, 1900. Three of their children were born at Ironwood: George on February 19, 1902, Pearl (later Alice) on July 1, 1905, and Annie (later Violet) on August 7, 1907. Jacob's studio was among the earliest Finnish businesses in Ironwood. Many of the photographs of Ironwood and of Hurley, Wisconsin, that were reproduced in The Gogebic Range about 1903 were taken by J. Olli. In addition to her children, Anna was providing in 1910 for seven roomers and Jacob's 79-year-old widowed father, Leander Olli. Anna gave birth to Frank at Aberdeen, Washington, on January 7, 1912. All records dated 1918 and later were for Jacob Ollie, who was a widower by 1930. Though some earlier records indicated that Jacob had been naturalized, he applied formally for United States citizenship on July 2, 1935. Nikolai was born in Finland on September 25, 1879, and became short and stout with blue eyes and brown hair. He immigrated in 1901, and by 1918 was a naturalized citizen of the United States. He photographed some of the Michigan State Troops sent to the Copper Country during the 1913 strike, and embossed the resulting post card prints "NIKOLAI OLLI, COMMERCIAL PHOTOGRAPHER." Other postal photographs, including studio portraits, were embossed "NIKOLAI OLLI, MOHAWK, MICH." Maria (later Mary) was born in Finland in 1884, crossed the ocean in 1913, and married Nikolai about 1917. She and Nikolai had no children in 1930. 27-year-old Nicholas Olli traveled from Montreal, Canada, on S. S. Victorian to Liverpool, England, arriving on August 24, 1907, and was ticketed through to Helsingfors, Finland. One Nikolai Olli born in Finland about 1879 immigrated in 1901 and was in 1910 a coal miner in the Black Diamond Precinct of Washington. He was married to a 33-year-old Finnish lady named Katie, and their daughters Marie and Lilly were born in Washington between 1907 and March of 1909.

His sister Bernice died in 1877, and his sister Pearl was born in March of 1888. Helen was born in Indiana to parents from New York about 1876, and she married Clayton about 1904. She also was enumerated as a photographer in 1905. Their sons were born in Minnesota: Gordon in 1905 and Clayton in November of 1914. The senior Clayton was a tall man with blue eyes, and by 1918 his hair was grey. He was enumerated twice for the 1920 census report: on January 19 at the lumber camp, and on February 10 in Marquette. Clayton was 85 years old when he died at Oshkosh, Wisconsin, on June 3, 1961.

Her father came from Pennsylvania and she was born Roselle or Rosella Kirk in Indiana to a mother from New Jersey in 1853 or early in 1854. She was fifth of the six children of Louis (or Lewis) F. and Julia A. Kirk. Her father farmed in Indiana and became a hardware merchant at Sturgis. Herbert Olmstead was born in New York about 1844, and he married Rose about 1876. Their children were born in Michigan: Julia in August of 1877, and Herbert in 1878 or early in 1879. Rose was a widow by 1920, when she was living with the family of her daughter and her husband, who was a patent attorney. She still was living with Julia and her family in 1930. John was born in Michigan in 1842 or early in 1843, fourth of the seven children of Gamaliel Palmer Olmsted and Lydia (Burnett) Olmsted. He probably belonged to the Coldwater Cadets, one of the militia companies recruited to form the First Michigan Infantry. John was enrolled for three months as a private in Company C of the First Michigan Infantry at Fort Wayne in Detroit on May 1, 1861. He received some training with his comrades in the regiment, and they were fully uniformed and armed when they left Detroit by boat for Cleveland on May 13. They traveled from Cleveland by rail to arrive on May 16 at Washington, the first regiment from a western state to reach the capital. The regiment assisted on May 24 in the capture of Alexandria, Virginia. It fought courageously and won distinction on July 21 at the Battle of Bull Run, where 117 men of the First including their colonel were killed, wounded or captured. When the three-month term of service expired the regiment returned to Detroit, where John was mustered out of the army with his company on August 7, 1861. His partner in 1866 probably was his 18-year-old brother William, though it could have been his 16-year-old brother Frank. John's wife and daughter were born in Pennsylvania: Belle in 1852 or 1853, and Bertha about 1869. "J. A. Olmsted, Photographer, Byron" was penciled in script on the back of some cartes de visite. "Photographed by J. A. Olmsted, Small Pictures Enlarged to any size at the Fine Art Gallery, Byron, Mich." was stamped on the back of other photographs and on the paper sleeves of tintypes. "... Additional copies can be obtained from this Negative when desired. Frames, Cases, and Mouldings." was printed on some of John's later card mounts, including a few with "GO TO J. A. OLMSTED" photographically printed with the portrait. Assessors and directories sometimes spelled the name Olmstead. John applied for a Veteran's Pension on October 6, 1891, stating that rheumatism, heart disease and lung disease were preventing him from earning a living. Apparently the pension never was authorized.

| Some records were for Paul S. Olmstead, but his signature was Paul S. Olmsted. Paul was born at Midland, Michigan, to a mother from New York on July 21, 1888. He was the only child of Frank Herbert Olmsted and Ada Belle (Robinson) Olmsted, but by 1910 his parents had adopted Maude Bougham who was born in Michigan about 1895. Paul became a stout man with blue eyes and light hair. Her father emigrated from Canada and Della was born in Michigan in 1892. She married Paul about 1913 and their children were born in Michigan: Laura in June of 1915, and Frank in 1916. Paul expected in 1917 that trouble with a dislocated knee might keep him from being drafted. Something happened to Della and the children, and Paul married again. Edna was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan on February 17, 1900, and she married Paul about 1921. Their son Sherman was born in 1922 or early in 1923. Edna seems to have been a widow when she died in Detroit in October of 1966. | 1 22 33 12 11 214 11 4 |   |

| Clyde was born at Lapeer, Michigan, on August 30, 1880, to Charles F. and Belle (Raymond) Olney, both natives of Michigan. His paternal grandparents were from Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, and his maternal grandparents were Canadian. His two sisters were born in Michigan in December of 1882 and in January of 1889. His father was a Columbiaville machinist and foundryman from 1886 to 1911. Clyde became a tall slender man with grey eyes and brown hair. He was enumerated for the 1900 census in Columbiaville on June Fourth, and again in Detroit one week later. "Clyde Olney, Columbiaville, Mich." was stamped below the photographs on the 5½ by 6½ and 5 by 5 inch mounts of views of Columbiaville from the woolen mill tower, street scenes and opera house interior views, as well as a photo of the Columbiaville band on an 8 by 10 inch mount. Clyde is pictured in the band with Albert M. (Allie) Vermilya, nephew of the photographer Albert L. Vermilya, who probably took the picture. Albert L. Vermilya and Clyde used identical commercial mounts and stamps with the same font to identify their work, so it seems that Albert was encouraging the younger man in his photographic efforts. Augusta M. Spaulding was born in Wisconsin on November 22, 1880, she married Clyde about 1905, and their daughter Mary was born in Illinois on January 12, 1908. Mary became a doctor and never married. Augusta died in California's San Joaquin County on January 7, 1942. Clyde died at Concord in Contra Costa County, California, on December 22, 1966. | 4 111 mm 22 11 tt1 ttt 51 41 55 |   |

His father came from Ohio and Clarence was born in Steuben County, Indiana, to a mother from New York on December 28, 1867, the elder son of Thomas S. and Lucinda (Corey) Osborn. His brother Ambrose was born in Indiana in March of 1870, and they grew up on the family farms. Though Edwin Drawbaugh was less than a year older than Clarence, he had been a professional photographer at Union City and Coldwater for five years prior to forming their partnership. Nellie S. Bower was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan on July 2, 1867, first of the two children of William Wallace Bower and Abigail A. (Hughes) Bower. She married Clarence on March 29, 1891, and their children were born at Coldwater: Lorene on December 9, 1892, Guy in July of 1899, Phyllis on February 28, 1903, and Neil on December 29, 1906. Guy died as an infant. Clarence identified himself in 1894 as the "Leading Photographer; the best of work guaranteed;... Remember that OSBORN makes better photographs for less money than any other Gallery in Branch County. Special pains taken with children..." The second annual meeting of the Michigan Photographers' Association was held in February of 1897 at Detroit, where Clarence was awarded the first prize in Class D for his exhibit of twelve cabinet photographs. He sent duplicates of his prize-winning prints to the editor of a photographic journal, who reproduced one of them in the periodical. Clarence sent the editor "... another excellent lot of examples of his work, some of which we reproduce in this issue." The frontispiece for the following issue was made from a negative by Clarence. In 1902 he advertised "OSBORN'S PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY, Where you can get photos that are up to date. And can also buy Cameras, Plates, Developers, in fact, anything that is used in making a first class Photograph. Developing and finishing for amateurs." His local ads from 1902 to 1915 included an emblem of the Photographers Association of Michigan. He was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905, and he was selling photographic supplies a year later. From 1909 through 1919 it was "OSBORN'S - The Best Equipped Photographic Studio in Southern Michigan. Eastman Kodaks and Kodak Supplies always in stock. Printing and Finishing for amateurs solicited..." His wife Nellie was proprietor of a Coldwater dress shop from 1919 through 1924. His 1922 advertising mentioned that Clarence had been awarded three First Prizes by the Photographers' Association of Michigan. Nellie died at Coldwater on January 14, 1940, and Clarence died there on October 23, 1950.

Fred was born in Michigan to parents from New York in September of 1867, first of the three children of Ephraim and Mary E. (Bartholomew) Osborn. His brother Wallace was born in March of 1870, and his sister Nellie was born in March of 1876. Fred apparently retained partial ownership when he transferred the Alma studio to Jesse Christensen, for it was reported in March of 1897 that "Mr. Christianson bought out the interest of Mr. F. E. Osborn in his Alma, Michigan, gallery." Sarah L. Moore was born in England in November of 1870. She immigrated in 1898, and she soon was married to Fred. Their son Randall was born in Ohio on August 5, 1899. Fred advertised locally in 1901: "Fine Work a Specialty. Careful Attention Given to Outdoor Work." Fred's sale of his Marshall gallery to Joseph L. Hamilton was reported in the fall of 1902. He and Sarah still were providing a home for Randall in 1930. Fred died at Battle Creek in 1959, and Sarah died there in 1961.

Her father emigrated from Holland and Harriet A. Van Riper was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in June of 1844, last of the three known children of Hassell and Marium Van Riper. She and Sanford Osborn were married on April 21, 1859, at the home of her parents in Moscow Township of Hillsdale County, Michigan, and they still were living with her parents in August of 1860. Sanford was 24 years old when he enlisted at Jackson as a private in Company E of the Third Michigan Cavalry on September 1, 1862. The regiment served in northern Mississippi and Tennessee during the winter, and in July of 1863 took part in a severe engagement near Jackson, Tennessee. Sanford was prostrated by sunstroke, and was taken to the regimental hospital in an ambulance. His hair fell out so that he was entirely bald, his face and hands were swollen and covered with sores, and he was in the hospital for a long time. When he returned to light duty, he was still subject to spells of fainting and dizziness. While the regiment was driving bands of guerillas from the region in November and December of 1863, he was left in camp at Corinth, Mississippi. With many others in the regiment, Sanford re-enlisted at La Grange, Tennessee, on January 20, 1864. Following veteran furloughs, the Third was ordered to St. Louis, Missouri, and in May of 1864 to Little Rock, Arkansas, to drive out the Confederates under General Shelby. From November of 1864 until February of 1865 the headquarters of the regiment was at Brownsville Station, Arkansas. In March it moved south to operate against Mobile, Alabama. After the fall of that city, the Third marched across Alabama and Mississippi to Baton Rouge, Louisiana. There Sanford was honorably discharged and mustered out of the army with his detachment on June 2, 1865. Harriet gave birth to Millie A. Osborn on September 4, 1865. Some of Harriet's cartes de visite from Manchester carried no revenue stamps. Harriet gave birth to William S. Osborn on May 23, 1870. Sanford Osborn died in Otto Township of Oceana County, Michigan, on March 15, 1873. Harriet never re-married, and she was providing a home for both of her children in 1880. For some reason, she did not apply for a Widow's Pension until January 17, 1889. Her daughter Millie died on April 15, 1891. Her son William lived in Delray, and she spent at least some of the 1890s in his home. Harriet was receiving a pension of $8.00 per month at the time of her death on May 12, 1901.

His father came from Pennsylvania and Thomas was born in November of 1845 at Newark, Ohio, seventh of the nine children of Joshua and Harriet Osborn. Lucinda was born in September of 1844 at Saint Lawrence, New York, fourth of the nine children of Ambrose and Eliza Corey. She married Thomas about 1866, and their son Clarence (who is profiled above) was born in Indiana in December of 1867. Their son Ambrose was born in Indiana in March of 1869. They also had two children born in Michigan: Lewis in January of 1882, and Viva in April of 1886. Thomas probably was working in his son's studio in 1900 and 1910. Lucinda died at Coldwater on February 13, 1920, and Thomas died there on December 14, 1922.

Osborn purchased a No. 3 Waterbury lens to make 8 by 10 inch landscape negatives. He modified an old portrait camera by replacing the bellows with a cone long enough to get a distant object in focus, then found that the lens would not cover his 8 by 10 plate. He was told that the lens was not at fault, but that he should enlarge the opening at the front of his camera and then open up the cone to match it.

Vincent was born at Nowe Grabie in the Polish region of Germany on January 21, 1865, and he became a five foot seven inch man with blue eyes and dark brown hair. Stanislaw (later Anastasia and then Stella) was born in the Polish region of Germany twenty years later. She married Vincent about 1904 and they immigrated in April of 1906. For some reason Vincent returned to Europe and came back from Bremen to New York on S. S. Kronprinz Wilhelm in August of 1906. Their children were born in Michigan: Konstantia (later Constance) in 1907, Kasimer (later Casimer) in January of 1909, and John in 1911. Vincent was naturalized a citizen of the United States at Detroit on September 28, 1916. Stella had five younger brothers in the Polish army during World War I, and when she heard that all of them had been killed she became mentally unbalanced. It later was reported that two of her brothers had survived. Vincent applied in March of 1920 for a passport for himself and his family in hopes that seeing her brothers and some old friends would restore Stella's health. When he was informed that the Department of State deemed it inadvisable for his family to accompany him due to the unusual conditions in Poland at the time, he replied with his reasons for taking Stella. The passport was issued as requested on April 8, 1920.

Her father came from Rhode Island and Carrie L. Seger (also Sager and Segar) was born at Township, New York, on June 5, 1861. She and her five-year-old brother Colonel were living in 1870 with their mother, Mary A. Sager. Carrie was living in 1880 with the family of her aunt, Mrs. Augusta Jackson. She married the photographer George A. Ostergren at Sedgwick, Kansas, on September 24, 1884, and their daughter Glenna Marie was born at Wichita, Kansas, on June 22, 1887. Carrie was a widow by 1900, when she was a neighbor in Morley of the former photographer Dexter M. Hulsart. She married George Warner at Union City, Indiana, on March 12, 1909. George was born in Maryland about 1842, and by 1920 Carrie was again a widow living with the family of her daughter Glenna, now Mrs. James O. Bailey. Carrie died at Vandalia, Ohio, on March 5, 1933, and burial was in Union City Cemetery in Indiana.

Samuel was born in Arkansas to a mother from Louisiana in 1855 or early in 1856, last in a family of six or more children. He was living in 1860 with his mother, Lucinda, and in 1870 with the family of his sister Evaline, now Mrs. Thomas Mumford. Samuel and all members of his family were enumerated as mulatto in 1860 and 1870. He was enumerated as white in 1880, when he was living next door to and probably working for John W. Barge, who was a Cleveland photographer from 1872 until 1889.

Milton was born in Ohio to a mother from Pennsylvania in April of 1861, third of the five children of John and Ann Oswalt. He was called Edward as a child, Milton in the 1880s and 1890s, and M. Edward Oswalt by 1900. Milton was managing the family farm for his mother in 1880, when she was enumerated as a widow. He soon married, and his son Earl was born in Ohio in May of 1884. The Fostoria and Tuscaloosa listings were for M. E. Oswalt. "OSWALT, Successor to Hanselman, Manistee." was printed on cabinet mounts. Milton apparently sold the Manistee gallery back to Jacob Hanselman within a year after buying it from him. Something happened to his first wife, and Milton married again. Mabel was born in Ohio in April of 1874, and she married Milton about 1892. They were living in the Dewey Heights suburb of Nashville in 1900, when they were providing a home for Milton's son Earl.

Nicholas was born in the Netherlands on April 4, 1875. He was brought to the United States in 1882 and became a citizen, probably when his father was naturalized. Luna was born in the Netherlands in October of 1869, and she married Nicholas about 1899. This marriage did not last. Her father came from Louisiana and Mabel was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in 1883 or 1884. She married Nicholas about 1905, and their sons were born in Michigan: Nicholas (later James N.) in 1906, and Dean in May of 1909. The family was traveling continually and had no permanent home in 1918, when Nicholas was partially blind in his right eye. He was called Nick in 1920. Mabel was enumerated as married but was living by herself at Farmville in 1930. Nicholas died in Onslow County, North Carolina, on November 27, 1943. 1 3

His father emigrated from the Bohemian region of Austria and Frank was born in Pierce Township, Wisconsin, on August 15, 1876, first of the ten children of Joseph and Elizabeth (Lastofka) Ouradnik. He became a stout man with brown eyes and dark brown hair. Mary Rose Herda was born in Wisconsin to a Bohemian mother in April of 1879, and she married Frank about 1899. That Frank and Mary had moved to Escanaba where he had leased a gallery was reported early in 1901. Mary gave birth to Wilbert in Wisconsin in 1901. The name of the Marinette photographer was spelled Ouardnik. The Ouradniks moved to Minnesota in 1902 or 1903. “Photograph by F. W. Ouradnik, Ann Arbor, Michigan” was stamped on the back of an undated 4 by 6¾ inch photo of the stage of the Lydia Mendelssohn Theatre filled with actors in a medieval play. Frank died on January 12, 1919, and burial was in Forest Hill Cemetery at Owatonna. Mary and her son were living in 1920 at Owatonna, where Wilbert had become proprietor of the photograph studio.

Roy was born at Chicago, Illinois, to parents from New York on November 14, 1882, the only child of Edgar M. and Ella A. Overbaugh. He became a slender five foot eight inch man with blue-gray eyes and brown hair. Orville Morris lived at Evanston, Illinois, while Roy managed the Flint studio for him at 501 South Saginaw Street. Roy and his father seem to have been photographic partners in 1910. Marjorie was born at Santa Barbara, California, to natives of California on December 24, 1894, second of the three children of Arthur E. and Daisy M. Greenwell. She was their only daughter, and she was called Margaret as a child. Marjorie and Roy were married in Santa Barbara on May 20, 1916, and they never had children. During the 1920s, they spent much time in Europe. They sailed from New York to Southampton, England, on S. S. Berengaria in July of 1921 to visit Great Britain and France as tourists and on personal business. They returned to New York from Cherbourg, France, on S. S. Olympic in February of 1922. They traveled to Italy in November of 1922 and returned to New York from Naples on S. S. Conte Rosso in June of 1923. They sailed from New York to Europe on S. S. Paris in August of 1923, and then returned in June of 1924 on S. S. Leviathan from Cherbourg. They chose S. S. Olympic again in September of 1925 to travel first class from New York to Southampton. They returned to New York in January of 1926 on S. S. Conte Biacamano from Genoa, Italy. They crossed the Atlantic to Southampton again in March of 1926 on S. S. Aquitania. Roy and Marjorie may not have remained in Europe for nearly three years, but they did sail from Southampton to New York on S. S. Republic in February of 1929. Roy died in Los Angeles County, California, on February 6, 1966.

His father came from Ohio and John was born in Indiana in September of 1865, second of the three children of Simeon and Elmira Overholt. He grew up on the family farm and then in Wadsworth, where his father was a blacksmith. By 1880 he had a stepmother named Sybil and a six-year-old stepsister. Grace (later Irene) was born in Michigan to a mother from Ohio in February of 1870, and she married John in 1891 or early in 1892. Their children were born in Michigan: Earl in August of 1894, and Pearl in June of 1908. John was said to have accumulated ten years of experience in photography by 1894. Both his studio and his home were on Sophia Street in 1897. The Overholts were living next door to the family of photographer Moses B. Morrell in 1900.

Her father came from Pennsylvania and Helen was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in November of 1879, first of the three daughters of Mark W. and Charlotte (Sanford) Owens. Hubert L. Harper was born in New York State to natives of New York in June of 1864. He and his twin brother Hobert were fifth and sixth of the seven children of Benjamin and Clarissa Harper. Hubert married Helen in 1899 and their sons were born in Michigan: Van in May of 1900, Robert in 1901, and Owen in 1903. Hubert was a window trimmer for a clothing company in 1900 and 1910, and an inspector for automatic piano company in 1920. Helen conducted a dress making business from her home in 1910 and 1920, and was a widow providing for five lodgers in 1930.

His father came from Connecticut and Mark was born at Franklin, Pennsylvania, to a mother from New York on March 10, 1839, second of the seven children of William and Julia M. Owens. Charlotte (later Lottie) was born in New York to natives of New York on June 22, 1858, third of the five children of George and Harriet (Boardman) Sanford. She married Mark on March 7, 1879, and their daughters were born in Michigan: Helen in November of 1879, Clara on September 8, 1883, and Florence on February 15, 1886. Mark employed Abraham DeWindt and Otto H. Miehle as photographers in 1879, and William T. Dyer as a photographer in 1880. He attended the inaugural convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Chicago in 1880, and was on the initial list of PA of A members published in May of 1881. He served as vice president of the PA of A for Michigan in 1882-83. In the gazetteer for 1883, the Battle Creek galleries of Theron Crispell and Mark W. Owens were both listed at 7 North Jefferson Street. "OWENS, Battle Creek, Mich., Crispell, Operator." was printed on some card and cabinet photograph mounts. Mark commuted in 1883 from Grand Rapids to his Battle Creek gallery, which was staffed by artist Miss Capitola Lewey and photographer Lincoln Ford. He attended the fourth annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Milwaukee in August of 1883. Early in 1886 it was reported that "M. W. Owens, late of Grand Rapids, Michigan, has opened a fine studio in Muscatine, Iowa." That he would soon occupy his new commercial gallery on Front Street in Grand Rapids was announced in August of 1892. He managed to pose a parrot with two small dogs in this gallery. Charles Simon worked for Mark as a photographer in 1896, and Helen D. Owens was her father's clerk in 1896 and 1897.

Ambrose was born in Ann Arbor in December of 1870, the son of Theodore and Helen Pack. He went to New Haven, Connecticut, in April of 1894 to take charge of Herbert Randall's gallery there. Roba was born in Michigan in October of 1870, and she married Ambrose when they were each 23 years old. Their children were born here: Philip in May of 1896, Marian in October of 1898, and Roger in 1907. Herbert Randall had been an Ann Arbor photographer since 1885, but in 1894 he began giving much of his attention to his gallery at New Haven, Connecticut. He established a residence in New Haven in 1897, but maintained his home in Ann Arbor until 1911. About 1897 a book devoted one page each to the work of 85 of the better-known photographers of the United States and Canada. Ambrose was included with these comments: "This young man has kept himself well hidden; his retiring nature has deprived the public of many a treat; but work will tell, and he is bound to be heard from, being very artistic and devoted to his business. He has been operator for Mr. Randall for some years." Randall & Pack advertised "HIGH CLASS Portraiture and Groups by PHOTOGRAPHY" in 1909, 1911 and 1913, and "Portraits, Fraternity Groups. Painstaking, artistic grouping – plus technical quality" in 1917. Ambrose lived until 1957. 3 1

Cullen was born at Cummington, Massachusetts, on October 2, 1840, and was the second son of Royal L. and Mercy C. (Hersey) Packard. He attended the local schools until he was twelve, clerked in a store for a few years, and then studied and practiced dentistry until he entered the army. He enlisted in Company H of the Tenth Massachusetts Infantry on August 14, 1862, and with his regiment was assigned to the Army of the Potomac. He was soon appointed Adjutant's Clerk, a position he held until his discharge at Springfield, Massachusetts, on June 1, 1864. He came west to Kalamazoo about a year later. Packard & Douglas were assessed in May, June and July of 1867, while C. C. Packard was first assessed in August of the same year. The NPA monogram which was featured on card photograph mounts from 103 Main Street, and was even more prominent on some that look earlier, attested to his membership in the National Photographic Association. Some of these mounts carried photographs of a parlor organ manufactured in Kalamazoo by Deloss Phillips, and others carried portraits of Zula Zingara, a Circassian lady with an Afro hair style. Cullen and Miss Mary H. Caryl of Kalamazoo were married on November 14, 1872 and later had two children: Belle C. and William C. Packard. An 1876 advertisement stated that Packard's Photographic Art Gallery was established in 1865, and "Superior Photographs of Large Size a Specialty. Old daguerreotypes and photographs copied and enlarged to ANY size, and colored in oil or water colors and India ink. All work warranted. A splendid assortment of Black Walnut and other Frames constantly on hand." Cullen was granted Patent Number 316,564 covering a Photographic Shutter on April 28, 1885. Within a year he was manufacturing, advertising and distributing shutters based upon this patent. The pneumatically operated shutter could be purchased from dealers at the price of $4.00, or orders by mail were promptly filled from the gallery address, which varied from 118 East Main Street in advertisements to 120 East Main Street in directories and 122 Main Street on photograph mounts. By the time his second Photographic Shutter patent, Number 451,880, issued on May 5, 1891, he had acquired an interest in the brass foundry and machine shop of Lacelle J. Strait on Portage Street, and was disposing of his photograph gallery. He was succeeded as a photographer by William F. Kidney, followed shortly by Henry A. Brown. The factory at 127 Portage Street covered 10,000 square feet, and in 1892 employed between twenty and thirty men. By the fall of 1894 the Packard shutter patents had been acquired by E. & H. T. Anthony, and were upheld in a suit against the shutter manufacturer George F. Green. Photographic Shutter patent Number 549,681 was granted to Cullen on November 12, 1895. When he applied for a Veterans Pension in March of 1896, Cullen was five feet ten inches tall with a dark complexion, black hair and blue eyes, and was afflicted with rheumatism, heart disease, catarrh and piles. Early in 1898 he and Leonard Jackson were operating a successful "Penny Gallery" on Main Street with Henry G. Dornbush as an employee. Business disappointments led to despondency, and Cullen committed suicide by shooting himself at his Kalamazoo home on May 31, 1898. The gallery continued operations for a year or so in the name of his widow, Mrs. Mary H. Packard.

Mary H. Caryl was born in July of 1846 at Chelmsford, Massachusetts, and was 26 years old when she married Cullen C. Packard at Kalamazoo on November 14, 1872. Their daughter Belle was born in July of 1877. Their son William was born August 7, 1884, and so was only thirteen when his father died. The Penny Photograph Gallery was established by Leonard Jackson and Mary's husband, Cullen C. Packard, shortly before his death in the spring of 1898. Tintypes with a 1½ inch circular rim and labeled: "PACKARD'S Pocket Gems, KALAMAZOO" may have been produced by the Penny Photograph Gallery. Cullen had been manufacturing photo shutters since 1886. Mary and her children were sharing their home in 1900 with her mother and sister, Mrs. Abigail and Miss Elizabeth Caryl. Elizabeth still was with Mary in 1910, along with three female lodgers and one male lodger. Mary lived until May 6, 1916.

His paternal grandparents came from Massachusetts and his father, James M. Paddack, was born in Michigan about 1839. His mother, Annie, was born in New York three years earlier. Charles was born in Michigan in August of 1862, had three sisters born here between 1867 and 1877, and was working with his carpenter and joiner father in 1880. Julia was born in New York to a Canadian mother in March of 1863, and she married Charles about 1884. Their children were born in Michigan: Charles Alvin in December of 1888, Margarite in August of 1897, and Ruth in 1903 or early in 1904. Charles advertised in 1886: "... Children and Family Groups a Specialty. Copying and Enlarging done to order. Orders by Mail Promptly Attended to. First-Class Work. Low Prices." One of his cabinet photographs was a view of Grand River Street in Howell. His purchase of the Howell gallery of Mark Brown and his occupation of the premises were reported in the spring of 1899. All three of their children were at home with Charles and Julia in 1910, but something happened in the next decade. By 1920 Charles was married to Ethel, who was born in Michigan in 1873 and brought along her two teen-aged daughters. In 1930 Charles and Ethel were providing a home for her younger daughter Dorothea and for the husband of one of his daughters.

He was listed in Detroit as Chauncey, Chauncey J., J. Chauncey and John C., usually followed with the designation (col'd). His father came from Virginia and John was born to a mother from Ohio in June of 1868 at St. Thomas in Elgin County, Ontario, last of the four sons of Edward and Elizabeth (usually Eliza) Page. His father was thirty years older than his mother, who by 1871 was a widow supporting her family as a wash woman. John immigrated in 1886 with his mother. Mary was born in Indiana to a Canadian mother in September of 1878, and she was enumerated as black. She married John about 1895 and their children were born in Michigan: Iris in May of 1897, Mary in June of 1899, the twins Hazel and Helen about 1901, John in 1903 or early in 1904, and Lillian in April of 1909. John and Mary were providing a home for his mother in 1900, when both Mary and Eliza were working as wash women. John became a naturalized citizen of the United States in the first decade of the Twentieth Century. He was working in 1910 in a photographic studio, probably in Detroit.

Her father came from Rhode Island and Hannah Louise Hammond was born in New York to a mother from Massachusetts on November 28, 1832, the only daughter and third of the four children of David C. and Permelia (Whitman) Hammond. Her brother Edward was born in October of 1840 and died in Virginia on June 27, 1862, during the Civil War. Hannah married Abraham Barber Paine in Springport Township of Jackson County, Michigan, on September 9, 1852. Abraham was born in the state of New York on September 9, 1828, first of the five children of Ichabod Sparrow Paine and Hannah "Mary" (Barber) Paine. He was a Dansville hardware merchant from 1866 until 1870, a Springport merchant in 1880, and a Vermontville resident in 1900. Their children were born in Michigan: Romeyn on November 13, 1853, Frank on May 31, 1856, Rosa on June 4, 1858, and Edward on March 6, 1865. Edward lived for only seven months. Hannah died at Big Rapids, Michigan, on August 6, 1901, and Abraham died at Vermontville on September 21, 1903.

John was born in May of 1844 to parents from New York on a farm near Rome in Lenawee County, Michigan, fifth of the eight children of Daniel and Eliza (Peck) Paine. A brother who had enlisted during the Civil War was taken sick in camp. John, who had been rejected, went south and substituted for his brother, answering to roll call and doing his duties, seeing the war as he had wanted to all the time. John came home but two of his brothers died in the war. He started business in Jackson in a small room with three dollars worth of stock and no chair or head-rest. For the first three years he made a specialty of ferrotypes. "Ask for PAINE'S Photograph Gallery, 149 Main Street, east of Postoffice, JACKSON, MICH." was printed in red within a decorative ¾ by 1 inch border on small labels pasted to the back of some of his early cartes de visite. In 1870 he seems to have been married to Martha Paine, born in New York 26 years earlier. "From the PREMIUM GALLERY, 221 Main Street, JACKSON, MICHIGAN, West end of Empire Block, one door east of First National Bank. ALL STYLES OF GEMS. JOHN W. PAINE, Proprietor. Old Pictures enlarged and finished in India Ink. Negatives preserved and duplicates can be had at any time." was printed on his card mounts about 1873. He began to feature large portrait work in crayon and India ink in 1877, using competent agents to obtain orders for pictures of this class in several states. He and Mrs. Beatrice (Weaver) Jenkins were married at Jackson in May of 1879, and were raising Arthur who was born in Indiana in 1865 or 1866. John produced stereo views of Jackson and vicinity from 215 Main Street and from 118 Main street, and both stereographs and card photographs from "... 116, 118 and 120 Main St., W. North Side over Weeks & Co's Drug Store." His card and cabinet imprints included the phrases: "I keep a fine assortment of frames and mattings for photos..." and "INSTANTANEOUS Photography by Paine..." A national magazine mentioned late in 1894 that "Col. J. W. Paine of Jackson, Michigan, has purchased the I. V. Cookingham Studio, oldest in the city, and has consolidated the two ..." The Cookingham Studio was at 124 West Main Street. A photographic journal reproduced four full page photographs by John early in 1899, including a self portrait entitled "The Colonel." This title was his rank in the Knights of Pythias, of which he was a fifty-year member. He advertised nationally late in 1901: "FOR SALE - The old established studio of J. W. Paine, Jackson, Mich. Write for full particulars. The Col. has other business which will require all his time. A bargain. Address J. W. Paine, 124 Main W., Jackson, Mich." Some of his Jackson employees were retoucher Mrs. Dell Jenkins in 1878 and 1879, photographer Frank Muir in 1884, retoucher Mrs. Nettie Brown in 1885 and 1886, retoucher Miss Nettie Johnson in 1887, artist Ella Cowherd from 1888 to 1892, retoucher Mrs. Adell Boyce in 1891 and 1892, retoucher Emily Wright in 1893 and 1894, retoucher Florence Tremelling in 1896, and retoucher Minnie L. Randolph from 1898 to 1901. The opening of John's new art studio at Owosso was reported in the fall of 1902. This advertisement which appeared nationally early in 1903 was probably his: "FOR SALE - Up-to-date studio in growing manufacturing city of 10,000; cabinets $3.50 to $6.00; best location; north light; rent $15.00 per month. If you mean business, address Box 74, Owosso, Mich." John's sale of the Owosso gallery to J. Edgar Waters of Chicago was reported in July of 1903. His return to business in Jackson, and the remodeling of his Jackson studio to a state of perfection, was announced in the fall of 1903. Between 1904 and 1913 Jackson directories located his studio at 154 West Main Street just as consistently as the gazetteers placed it at 156 West Main Street. His wife Beatrice died between 1900 and 1910, and by 1920 John was married to Irene who was born in Ohio about 1880 and was providing for five male lodgers. An automobile accident in 1918 precipitated his retirement, though John continued to do some photography from his home. When interviewed early in 1920, Colonel Paine expected to open another photograph gallery as soon as a suitable location could be found. He became ill while visiting a niece at Charlotte in 1924, and died of a heart attack in an Eaton Rapids hospital.

- Lester was born in New York State to natives of New York in October of 1861, and his sister Birdie was born there three years later. They were living in 1880 with their mother, Mrs. Jessie (later Louise) Paisley, at New Straightsville where the photographer was enumerated on June 16 as Lester Paisley. He was enumerated as Frank L. Paisley one week later boarding with a family at Albany, 25 miles south of Straightsville. "F. L. Paisley, Artist, Hamden Junction, O." was printed on the back of stereo views, including one of the depot at Gaylord, Michigan. Lester signed the backs of other stereo mounts without printing in very large script. "F. L. Paisley, Artist, Grayling, Mich." is on a view of the railroad depot and eating house in Grayling, and "The Ausable River, Lester F. Paisley, Artist" is on a view of men with peaveys on logs in the river. Her father emigrated from France and Elizabeth (sometimes Lizzie) was born in Ohio in June of 1871. She married Frank about 1886 and their children were born in West Virginia: Leroy (later Roy) in October of 1888, and Lalia (later Lula) in September of 1893. Frank and Roy were conducting a photographic business from their home in 1910. Roy had married recently, and his wife and Frank's mother were maintaining the household, while Elizabeth and Lula were not to be found. Detroit (Moore & Palmer) DAGUERREOTYPISTS in the Phoenix Block on Jefferson av ..... 1848-1849 1
They advertised their General Daguerrean Depot in 1848: "This well known establishment has opened under new 1 advantages, which will result in the entire satisfaction of all who may favor it with a visit. - As the price of a 1
Daguerrean portrait is now so low that none (but the miser) need be without the likeness of an honored parent or 1 beloved child. We hope, therefore, that none will put off that for the morrow which can be and should be done today. - 1 DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS! as procrastination is the thief of time! How suddenly DEATH'S messenger enters the 1 family circle and snatches a beloved one from the fond embrace; and hurries it to the world of spirits. Then how 1 consoling it would be to the surviving friends to have a perfect likeness of the departed one, to cast upon it a lingering 1 remembered look, as we are carried down time's distant course. - Persons having painted portraits can by this process 1 have them copied in the most minute and perfect style, thereby enabling each member of a family to be in possession 1 of the likeness of a beloved or deceased friend. - All things are ready - come and see. Instructions in the art carefully 1 given, and the best of apparatus, chemicals and stock furnished to order. - - Jul 12 dtf" Orlando D. Moore occupied 1 d this gallery into the early 1850s. d

His parents came from Connecticut and Russell was born in 1818 in Madison County, New York, last of the four children of Joseph and Abigail (Wheeler) Palmer. He started painting in 1839, and spent the winter of 1841 in New York City. He married Julia A. House in New York State in 1848, and their children were born there in Lenox Township of Madison County: Angelo in 1850, Mary in 1852, and Joseph in 1854. By 1856 he and his family had followed his two brothers to southeastern Jackson County, Michigan. At the State Agricultural Fair held at Detroit in the fall of 1858, Russell was awarded a diploma and a premium of $5.00 for the best cattle drawing exhibited. He painted in oil on canvas and produced pencil miniatures around Marshall, Tecumseh, Clinton and Dexter. His children were in their early teens when his wife Julia died in 1865. Russell's earlier cartes de visite from Brooklyn include one of Herbert, Lewis G. and Walter Palmer, ranging in age from one to about seven. Alexander C. Scott was his partner in 1868, and then worked for Russell as a photographer in 1871. Several different printings used the same words on the back of cartes de visite: "R. D. PALMER, PHOTOGRAPHER and Portrait Painter, Huron Street, East of Cook's Hotel, Ann Arbor, Mich. - Call and see Porcelain Pictures. - Negatives preserved. Copies enlarged in India Ink or Oil." This back mark was used on a photograph of an engraving of the University of Michigan campus and on photographic portraits of university professors Boise, Curtis, Frieze and Olney as well as many unidentified men, women and children. Some of the portraits were carefully tinted. Diana Twist Betsinger was born in July of 1828 in Lenox Township, New York, the daughter of Peter P. and Catherine (Forbes) Betsinger. She married Russell at Brooklyn, Michigan, on September 8, 1870. By this time his son Angelo had become a photographer. In 1880 all three of his children still were living with Russell and Diana. He lived until 1895, and Diana lived until 1914. Russell and both of his wives were buried in a family plot at the Norvell Cemetery in Jackson County, Michigan.

William was born to English parents at London, Ontario, on March 25, 1872, last of the two or more children of William and Emma Susannah (Freeland) Palmer. His sister Kate was born in England about 1865. William immigrated with his parents in 1879, and he became a citizen of the United States when his father was naturalized in 1889. Her father came from Vermont and Rosalind was born in Michigan in August of 1860. She married William in the spring of 1894, and they never had children of their own. Vesta was born in 1906, and she was adopted by William and Rosalind some time between 1910 and 1920. William was a widower by 1930, when he was lodging alone with a family. Morris H. Porter had been a Kalamazoo photographer for fifteen years prior to taking on Charles as a partner. Harvey C. Warrant had some photographic experience before he and Charles became partners. Palmiter & Warrant advertised in 1883 as artists in ink, crayon and colors, who did solar printing for the trade in their rooms over the First National Bank. This was the address used on most of their cabinet mounts. Charles remained in the studio at 101 West Main Street through 1887.

East Jordan PHOTOGRAPHER ..... 1898-1907 m 1
East Jordan housewife ..... 1910,1920 1
East Jordan proprietor of a jewelry store ..... 1930 1

Martha (sometimes Mattie) was born in Michigan to parents from New York in November of 1872, third of the five children of photographer William Boswell and his wife Fannie. She took over the East Jordan gallery from her father about 1893, and she operated it as Martha Boswell until she married the East Jordan jeweler William E. Palmiter in the spring of 1898. Their son Mark was born at East Jordan in 1902 or early in 1903. In addition to cabinet portraits, as Mrs. Martha Palmiter she made crisp 6 by 8 inch photographs on 8 by 10 mounts of a creamery in East Jordan and of a boat in the harbor. Martha's younger brother, William T. Boswell, took over the gallery in 1907 while she raised the child of a sister-in-law who had died giving birth. He operated it until his death in 1919. Esther was born in December of 1918, and within a year she had been adopted by Martha and William.

His father emigrated from England and James was born in Wisconsin in 1873, third of the eleven children of Henry and Marilla A. (Turner) Parfitt. He grew up on the family farm and became a short man with gray eyes and brown hair. Rena June Sackett was born in Wisconsin to parents from Pennsylvania in 1876, fourth of the eight children of Charles M. and Fleeta Arvilla (Stout) Sackett. She married James about 1894, and they never had children. "PHOTO BY PARFITT" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs along with captions like "BUCKINGHAM'S COTTAGE AT LAC VIEUX DESERT RESORT, STATE LINE, MICH." and "'THE POCONO' AT LAC VIEUX DESERT RESORT, STATE LINE, MICH." and "AT BLACK OAK RESORT, STATE LINE, MICH." and "AT BOND FALLS, NORTHERN MICHIGAN." Some of the cards were mailed between August of 1913 and August of 1916. None of these cards carried a first name, but James seems to have been the only photographer named Parfitt in the vicinity. Eagle River is about eighteen miles south of State Line. Tigerton is much farther south, but James must have been familiar with the area before he moved to Eagle River. Both James and Rena were enumerated in 1920 as photographers with their own shop.

Lillian was born in Michigan to parents from Indiana on October 24, 1876, second of the four children of Aaron Wood Parham and Evaline (Sanderson) Parham. The Marshall E. Parham profiled below was her elder brother. Lillian lived 49 years before she married. Marion W. Sanderson was born in Michigan to parents from Ohio in February of 1873. He and his twin sister May were third and fourth of the five children of George W. and Calista Sanderson. Marion married a lady named Mahala about 1896, and between August of 1897 and February of 1917 they had eight children. Something happened to Mahala after 1920, and Lillian married Marion about 1926. Marion's 15 and 13-year-old daughters and his 21-year-old son still were living at home in 1930. Lillian died in Quincy Township on October 16, 1954.

Marshall was born in Michigan to parents from Indiana on March 8, 1874, first of the four children of Aaron Wood Parham and Evaline (Sanderson) Parham. He was a brother of the Lillian Parham profiled above. Marshall grew up on the family farm, and he became a short man with blue eyes and brown hair. Brownie M. Slingerland was born in Pennsylvania to parents from New York in June of 1884, Second of the four children of Albert A. and Mary A. (Lovejoy) Slingerland. She married Marshall about 1907, and their children were born in Michigan: Eva on November 10, 1908, and Gordon on April 28, 1910. Marshall was a prolific producer of post card photographs. Most of his postal views were of the major towns and resorts in the eastern half of St. Joseph County: Burr Oak, Centreville, Mendon, Sturgis and Klinger Lake. He also made views of Marble Lake, 35 miles to the east, and of Roaring Brook, 250 miles north. He published many postal views of the street fair and parade celebrating the completion of the Sturgis Dam in October of 1911, and ten or more of the smoldering ruins in Mendon during and after the fire of October 6, 1916. A label with "From The Parham Studio, Photos, Art Goods & Artistic Picture Framing, STURGIS, MICH." was adhered inside the back cover of an album containing fourteen 4½ by 6½ photographs of various manufacturing operations in a baby buggy factory. He advertised in 1915: "The Happy Days of Childhood are all too brief. You should begin now to keep a record in Pictures of the childhood of your little ones. Let us make PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE CHILDREN regularly for you. The artistic pictures will be enjoyed more and more as you lose your babies in the men and women of the future. Our Portraits of the older people are always satisfactory. PARHAM'S STUDIO, 127 East Chicago St." The Parham Studio was still at 127 East Chicago Street with Julius Schuermann as successor and proprietor in 1922 and 1924. Julius was listed as a Sturgis photographer in his own name in 1925, and the Parham Studio was open in Sturgis from 1926 through 1931 with no proprietor specified. The address was 127 East Chicago Road in 1930. Marshall and his wife both died in Michigan: he in Washtenaw County, and Brownie up in Wexford County.

His father emigrated from Canada and Carroll was born in Michigan to a mother from Ohio in January of 1859, fourth of the six children of Luke and Lucinda Parker. He grew up on the family farm. Carroll married a lady from Michigan who gave birth to their son Budge in February of 1883 and to their daughter Delta in August of 1885. Her father came from Connecticut and Clara was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in March of 1863, the only child of Lambert and Lydia Bunnell. She married a German man named Byers, and she gave birth to Emma in August of 1885 and to Mabel in July of 1889. Something happened to Carroll's first wife and to Clara's first husband, and they married about 1899. They later adopted two daughters. Clara also was enumerated as a proprietor of their general store in 1900, and she was the sole proprietor of the Gould City store in 1910, 1920 and 1930. Both Carroll and Clara were enumerated as widowed in 1930.

His father emigrated from Canada and Charles was born in New York State in 1856 or 1857, second of the four children of Nelson W. and Mary Parker. He was their only son, and he was single in 1880. Wheeler & Parker produced tintypes in 3 ¼ by 4 ¾ paper sleeves and cabinet photographs of Bay City business frontage, and claimed to do "The Best Work in the City at the Lowest Prices. All Work Guaranteed First-Class..." Charles attended the second annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at New York City in August of 1881. At about this time he produced card photographs of a painting of the side wheeler steamship Dove of the Saginaw & Alpena Line. All of the Bay City addresses listed above seem to have referred to the same location. On some of his card mounts Charles stated: "I chain the Light to Serve Me." In 1884 his price for cabinet photos was $3.00 per dozen, and for card photographs was $2.00 per dozen. In his New York Photograph Gallery at Ottawa, Charles employed Sherwood Walker as a retoucher in 1891 and James Neville as a photo printer or assistant from 1892 until 1897. He served as an auditor and judge at the 1895 convention in Toronto of the Photographers' Association of Canada.

Louis (sometimes Lewis) was born at Aylmer, Ontario, on February 7, 1876, last of the five children of Sidney and Rosalie (Shamel) Parker. He became a stout man with brown eyes and hair. Janet Mary (usually Jennie) Coutts was born at Tillsonburg, Ontario, on May 11, 1874, the daughter of James and Mary Coutts. She married Louis at Norfolk, Ontario, on February 2, 1901, and they don't seem to have had any children. Something happened to Jennie, and about 1915 Louis and a lady named Anna were married. Anna was born in Michigan in 1880 to Dutch parents, and she gave birth to Raymond in July of 1917. By 1918 Louis had declared his intention of qualifying for United States citizenship, and by 1930 he was a naturalized citizen. His second marriage did not last, and about 1925 he married Elizabeth. She was born in Ohio to a German father and a French mother about 1878.

Theodore was born in New York State to natives of New York in January of 1844, eldest of the three known children of Permelia and William Wellington Parker. He married about 1868. His wife, Mrs. Florence Addie Parker, was born in Michigan to parents from New York in February of 1848. Their son William was born in New York about 1869 and did not live to maturity. Theodore and his father were partners in the grocery business in 1870. Florence gave birth in Michigan to Truman in October of 1873, and to Alice about a year later. Indianapolis, Indiana, had a photographer named T. C. Parker in Room 9 of the Vajens Exchange Block in 1887. One of Theodore's cabinet photographs from Lawrence showed a wagon load of fifteen men posed in front of the Engine House, holding up a sign reading: "INFANT CLASS."

Waldo was born to natives of Michigan at Owosso, Michigan, on October 16, 1877, first of the two or more children of William and Sarah Parker. His sister Ruba was born a year later. Her father came from Ohio and Pearl E. Ellis was born in Michigan to an English mother in April of 1886, fourth of the six children of Edwin D. and Elizabeth Ellis. She and Waldo were married about 1905, and their sons were born in Oregon: Edward in December of 1908, and Delbert in 1913. E. G. Lantz was a principal of the Parker-Lantz Studio. In April of 1912 Waldo advertised: "NOT FOR SALE For a song, but will sell out at a fair price, studio located in live Northwest town of about 18,000; annual business about $3,000.00; fitted complete to 20x24;... north light, good location, moderate rent; if interested in paying more than $2,000.00 for a good business, address W. H. Parker,..." In 1913 Waldo "... made some fine circuit pictures at the Oregon State Fair and was awarded many blue ribbons for his work." Something happened to Pearl and in 1920 Waldo was living alone at Salem, while his sons were living as wards of Charles W. and Amanda Goodsman at Portland, Oregon. Nellie was born in Wisconsin to natives of Wisconsin about 1887, first of the two daughters of Chester W. and Carrie Amelia (Dykens) Sly. Her first marriage was to Ralph Leslie Mason and their children were born in Minnesota: Beatrice on May 22, 1907, and Donald on January 14, 1911. Ralph died in Minnesota on July 20, 1919. Nellie married Waldo and was identified as his wife in 1930 and again in 1942, when Waldo was temporarily unemployed due to illness. Waldo died in Santa Cruz County, California, on October 23, 1962, and Nellie died at West Lafayette, Indiana, on November 23, 1973.

Thomas was born in England in April of 1840, and he immigrated about 1860. Elizabeth was born in Michigan to parents from New York in June of 1845, first of the three known children of Byron and Anna Blackburn. She married Thomas about 1868. Their daughter Anna was born in Michigan about 1875, and did not live to maturity. The name of the village was changed from Belden to Willow in 1892. Asahel was born at Mendon, New York, on August 11, 1816, eighth of the nine children of Abel and Mary (Burroughs) Parkhurst. His mother was born on the Atlantic Ocean while her parents were traveling from England to America. Hannah was born in New York to natives of New York about 1821, and she married Asahel about 1840. Their children were born in Michigan: Charles about 1842, and Ellen (later Nelly) about 1850. Asahel advertised his Ann Arbor Side and Sky-Light Daguerrean Gallery early in May of 1852, and again in verse early in June. A most unusual example of his work has survived. The special case within which it is framed probably is not contemporary with the images, but the 10 by 8 inch bronze mat certainly is. Under ten oval openings for the portrait daguerreotypes is engraved: "Armstrong - Prof. Agnew - W. L. Bean - Trowbridge - Roberts - S. A. Bean - Bigelow - Dunning - Otis - Shaw" and under the one rectangular opening is engraved "M. S. University." At the lower edge of the mat is engraved: "July 24, 1852. - A. W. Parkhurst, Artist." Reverend John Holmes Agnew was Professor of Greek and Latin in the University of Michigan, and the others are nine of the eleven who graduated from the University in 1852. The ten portraits have suffered varying degrees of damage and/or deterioration, but show the individuals. The view of the campus seems to be blank. This letter was published in a local newspaper in July of 1852: "MR. EDITOR:- At a late meeting of the senior class of Mich. University, the following, among other resolutions, was adopted. You will confer a favor upon the Class by publishing the same. Resolved, That the thanks of the Class be tendered to A. W. Parkhurst, daguerrean artist of this city, for the successful efforts he has made to furnish its satisfactory and elegant portraiture. H. D. DUNNING, Sect'y MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY, July 22, 1852." Parkhurst was the only exhibitor of daguerreotypes at the Washtenaw County Fairs held at Dexter in 1854 and at Ann Arbor in 1855. His son Charles was a partner in Asahel's hardware business in 1870. Something happened to Hannah, and Asahel married a lady names Lucy about 1885. Her father emigrated from Scotland and Lucy was born in New York to an English mother in October of 1833. Asahel died at Mason in 1903.

Martin was born in New York State to natives of New York about 1840, the younger son of Linus S. and Julia A. (Jones) Parmelee. His father is profiled above. Her father came from Vermont and Augusta was born in Michigan in 1841 or early in 1842. She married Martin about 1860 and their daughters were born at Reading: Clara about 1862, Edith in the summer of 1868, and Ethel in 1869 or early in 1870. Most directories spelled the name Parmalee, but on a variety of photo mounts it is consistently spelled as shown above. Cartes de visite are found with and without revenue stamps both by Parmelee & Campbell and by Parmelee & Barton. In 1874 the Parmelee gallery was "Headquarters for Photographs, and all kinds of Sun Pictures, over Parmelee Store, M. H. Parmelee, Proprietor; George Terpening, Operator." The Parmelee store was where L. S. & M. H. Parmelee dealt in watches, clocks, jewelry, boots, shoes and/or rubber goods from 1872 through 1877, often listed as partners, but sometimes separately. Augusta was a widow by 1880, when she was providing a home in Reading for Clara and Ethel while Edith was living nearby with her paternal grandparents.

Ada was born at Hubbardston, Michigan, to parents from Ohio on March 9, 1874, second of the five children of Milo E. and Adeline (Proctor) Day. His father came from Ohio and Ora Cyrus Parr was born at Dewitt, Michigan, on April 15, 1876, first of the two sons of Cyrus G. and Alice M. Parr. Ora and Ada were married at Hubbardston on November 27, 1901. Ada gave birth to Meryl Donald Parr at Hubbardston on January 31, 1904. "Photo by Mrs. Ada Parr, Hubbardston, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of photographs, and "MRS ADA PARR" was stamped on the backs of other post card photos. "HUBBARDSTON, MICH" was scribed into at least one of her negatives, but most of her Hubbardston views were printed without captions. They included business street scenes, water rushing over the dam, the saw and planing mill, some of the mill workers, a church, a group of smiling women, a hunter with his dog, and the bridge. Script captions were written on some of her other negatives, such as: "M. E. Church, Middleton, Mich." and "West Side, Middleton, Mich." on a business street scene. A number of her cards were mailed between August of 1910 and October of 1912. Ora was working for a paint company as a painter and decorator in 1930, when Ada maintained an early bed and breakfast for tourists.

His father came from New York and Clair was born in Michigan in 1876 or early in 1877, last of the two children of Marcus F. and Nettie (Davis) Parrish. His sister Maud was eight years older. Something happened to Nettie, so Maud and Clair were living in 1880 on the farm of their maternal grandparents, Lewis R. and Nancy A. Davis. Their father's marriage to a lady from New Jersey named Lavina in the spring of 1882 enabled him to provide a home for his children. Clare was living with Marcus and Lavina at Detroit in 1893. His father came from New York and John was born in Michigan to a mother from Indiana on March 22, 1858, last of the two children of Josiah N. and Elizabeth Parrish. His sister Ada was two years older. John's first marriage did not last. Minnie was born in Michigan to English parents in March of 1870, and she married John in 1897 or early in 1898. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Lucille in April of 1899, and Mildred two years later. John advertised in a high school publication as the "HUSTLING PHOTOGRAPHER. Crayons, Pastels, Water Colors. India Ink, Oil and Sepia Paintings...." During the summer of 1900 the local newspaper noted John's business trip to Detroit and his visit to Whiteville with his wife and baby, as well as carrying this advertisement: "I take pleasure in stating that on account of my rapidly increasing business I have secured the services of Mr. W. V. Rippey of Detroit, who is a first class operator and will introduce new styles of photography. Carbons and platimolyphs, latest styles in photo mountings, etc. Call and see us. Very respectfully, J. O. Parrish, Hustling photographer and frame maker...." He took a two week vacation in July of 1901, but his gallery remained open for the delivery of finished work. The opening of Parrish's School of Photography was announced early in October of 1901. Operating, retouching or printing could be learned in a few weeks, preparing the student to enter an established studio at a good salary. By learning all three skills the person would be prepared to enter the business on their own account. It was noted that photography was a pleasant and agreeable business as well suited to ladies as to gentlemen. As an illustration of the demand for skilled workers, William V. Rippey had been employed by Mr. Parrish at a salary of $15.00 per week for retouching alone until he went into business for himself, and a replacement had yet to be found. Eugene F. Collins lost his gallery on Broadway in Mount Pleasant by fire on October 10, 1901, and was working in the Parrish gallery a week later. J. O. Parrish announced in December that he was "... now fully equipped and ready to produce the New Style Portrait, the one which carried off the laurels at the National Photographic Convention. Absolutely, unquestionably the finest and most artistic photo portraits ever produced.... Twelve Artist's Proofs make twelve Christmas Presents. You are invited to inspect our beautiful specimens...." In announcing the sale of the Mount Pleasant studio to Eugene F. Collins early in 1902, Parrish mentioned his own thirty years under a skylight, and characterized Collins as an artist of unusual ability who was head and shoulders above any local photographer in lighting, posing and neatness of finish. He planned to remain with Collins for a few weeks before leaving Mount Pleasant. Mrs. Parrish and the children stayed for a while at Battle Creek while her husband went west with several other men to homestead white pine lands in Idaho. John established a 17 acre Cuban orange grove one mile from San Christobal and 60 miles west of Havana. The venture was profitable and the climate was delightful, but there was no society for his family and no fit schools for their children. Minnie gave birth to their son Leon in Cuba in 1906. John visited Mount Pleasant in August of 1904 and again in July of 1907 after relocating his family to Battle Creek where the children would attend school. Minnie Mace Parrish died in 1939 in Polk County, Florida, and John died at the home of his daughter in Auburndale, Florida, on March 26, 1942.

His father came from New York and Charles was born at Greenville, Michigan, on January 7, 1874, first of the four sons of Howard H. and Aurora M. Parsons. His two brothers that survived were born in August of 1890 and March of 1892. In 1908 Charles advertised as a "Photographer, Portraiture and Special Photographic Designs for Advertisers." He placed a two page ad in the 1909 directory, with pictures of manufactured products, a horse drawn moving van and an automobile on one page captioned: "Commercial Photographs of All Kinds," and pictures of children and young women using consumer products on the second page captioned: "Life Studies - Photographs for Advertisers ... Attractive girls and children wanted." Another of his advertisements was: "A PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAIT should possess the greatest amount of artistic merit - and at the same time be a speaking likeness of the subject. I aim for this result at the lowest prices consistent with high grade work. Why not have your photograph made now, instead of just a few weeks before the holidays. Sepia Platinums from $2.50 to $40 per Doz. A Beautiful Cabinet at $5.00. CHARLES B. PARSONS, 22 Witherell Street, Phone Main 6385." A 9 ¼ by 8 ¼ inch booklet was entitled: "Photographs of The DETROIT ELECTRIC, The Electric that Satisfies. Made by The Anderson Carriage Company, Detroit." Each of the seven 9 by 7 sepia photographs in the booklet was backed with canvas. Six of them showed pairs of attractive young women with various electric vehicles on prosperous residential streets. The seventh featured a Detroit Electric coupe with fire department markings and a chief at the wheel in front of a Detroit fire station. "Photograph by CHARLES B. PARSONS, Detroit, From Negative No. _____," was stamped on the back of each photograph. Negative numbers on the first six photos ranged between 1001 and 1009, and the negative for the seventh print was numbered 2005. In New York City, Charles was a publisher of Cement Age, a major trade journal. He obtained a passport in June of 1920 with the intent of visiting Cuba, Haiti, Puerto Rico, Santo Domingo, Panama, Guatemala, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Honduras, Columbia, Ecuador and Venezuela within the next six months. At this time he was five feet eight inches tall with blue eyes and gray hair. Charles was struck by an automobile near his parents' home while visiting Detroit and died at their home from his injuries four days later on February 19, 1927. He was 54 years old and unmarried. Burial was in Woodmere Cemetery.

She was born Mary Ella Jacobs at Guilford, Vermont, to natives of Vermont on January 20, 1838, first of the five children of Daniel and Lucretia (Melendy) Jacobs. She married John at Guilford on April 27, 1859. Willard Jacobs, her only brother, was living with Mary and John in 1860. Willard enlisted on August 9, 1862, in Company K of the Twentieth Wisconsin Infantry, and was killed on December 7, 1862, during the Battle of Prairie Grove, Arkansas. Mary gave birth in Ohio to Dayton in 1861, and to Frank in February of 1865. She gave birth in Michigan to Viola in 1867, and to Ina in 1869. Her youngest son died as an infant in 1871. After John's death in 1871, Mary hired an assistant to do the work in the operating room and did the printing and finishing herself. Her business increased and was quite successful. Her many photographs included views of the buildings and portraits of the faculty of the Michigan State Normal School, group and single portraits of Normal students, and portraits of residents of Ypsilanti and the surrounding countryside. Mary was employing George Davis as a photographer in 1883. Her son Frank was a Richmond, Indiana, photographer in 1900 and in 1910. Mary died on May 27, 1918.

Her father came from New Hampshire and Mary was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in December of 1846, a daughter of Grand Rapids daguerreotypist Lorenzo Buell and his wife Margaret. She married Lyman about 1868, and they never had children. Lyman and Mary were providing a home in 1870 and in 1880 for her parents and for his mother, Mrs. Caroline H. Patten. The label of L. E. Patten and the stamp of Patten & Hinsdale were applied to a variety of domestic and foreign stereo views, some pirated but others by such experts as Anthony and William England. The Lyman E. Patten that served in the Twelfth Illinois Cavalry during the Civil War was not the Grand Rapids merchant. 1 t

Richard was born in Pennsylvania to natives of Pennsylvania on February 1, 1835, first of the three sons of Alexander Y. and Susan Patton. He became five feet eleven inches tall with a dark complexion, brown eyes and dark hair. His first wife, Mary, was born in Michigan in 1841 or early in 1842. Richard enlisted at New Holland as a private in Company F of the Ninetieth Ohio Infantry on August 26, 1862. During November and December of 1862 he was detached from his regiment to serve at the headquarters of General Crittenden. He injured a leg in a fall from a horse at the Battle of Stone Mountain at the end of December in 1862. Richard was promoted to sergeant on February 11, 1863, and served as a hospital steward until October of 1864 at Murfreesboro, Tennessee. Due to rheumatism he was transferred to Company D in the Second Regiment of the Veteran Relief Corps, and he served with this unit until he was mustered out of the army at Detroit on July 5, 1865. Mary died in 1870, and Richard soon married for the second time. Julia was born in New York State to English parents in December of 1850. She married Richard about 1871, and she never gave birth. Their son, Loran S. Patton, was born in Pennsylvania to natives of Pennsylvania about 1860 and evidently was adopted. Richard first applied for an invalid pension in June of 1880, when Loran also was a Corunna dentist. By 1905 Richard was completely unable to earn a living, and by 1915 both Julia and Loran were dead. Richard was lodging with an Arkansas City couple in 1920, and he died at Arkansas City on June 16, 1922.

He was born Reimund Holzhey, and came to public attention as "Black Bart" Holzhey, the last stagecoach robber east of the Mississippi. Two bankers were wounded during the robbery at Lake Gogebic on August 26, 1889, and one of them later died. A $5000 reward was placed on Holzhey, dead or alive. It was learned that he had committed at least two train robberies, and the Pinkerton Detective Agency joined the massive manhunt. Holzhey was captured at Republic on August 31, 1889, tried and sentenced to two life terms in Marquette Prison. During a blank spell he went berserk, held one prisoner hostage and threatened another with a knife. The knife was shot out of his right hand, leaving him with only a thumb. Sent to Ionia for observation, he was found to have pressure on his brain due to a boyhood accident. After an operation he became mild-mannered, worked in the prison library and edited the prison newspaper. Through the influence of a member of the Huron Mountain Club, one of his sentences was commuted, good conduct time was granted for the other, and he was released from prison in 1914. He changed his name to Carl Paul because of his former notoriety and worked in obscurity at the Huron Mountain Club for a couple of years. He tried conducting a photography business in Marquette, but his true identity leaked out and he went back to the Huron Mountain Club, where he was employed as a photographer. He had several cameras and took some beautiful pictures around the Club and the Salmon Trout River. Carl later became a fishing guide at Mountain Lake Camp and then was employed as a guard on Cedar Creek and afterwards for several years on the Salmon Trout River. His hat was always too big and came down over his rather large ears. He had a mustache, and in the woods always carried an axe with which he was very proficient. He was a good paddler, but could not row. He talked of "volffs" and "schwamps" in picturesque broken English, had a keen sense of humor and loved to tell stories from the classical books that he had read in prison. Some members of the Club never learned to trust Carl, but others became very fond of him. He moved to Florida following the stock market crash of 1929, and for many years returned to the Huron Mountain Club every summer. Carl committed suicide on September 24, 1952. Please see also the entry for Reimund Holzhey.

Oscar was born in the German state of Thuringia on April 23, 1856, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Frederick Pausch. His father died in 1858, and Oscar came to America in 1872. In 1877 he worked in the Columbus gallery of Elliot & Armstead, and he was naturalized a citizen of the United States at Columbus on March 13, 1878. He was enumerated in boarding houses in both Fort Wayne and East Saginaw by the 1880 Federal Census. Adea was born in Ohio to Welch parents in July of 1855, and she married Oscar about 1881. Their children were born in Ohio: Olga in February of 1885, Oliver in June of 1887, and Virgil in October of 1888. From January until April of 1885 Oscar advertised nationally: "FOR SALE - My gallery, one of the best fitted in Ohio, and doing a good business, either complete or to suit purchaser. Reason for selling, health and family affairs. Full information to parties meaning business. O. M. PAUSCH, Newark, Ohio." An article by Oscar on the photographic reproduction of large intricate line drawings was published in the fall of 1885 by a national journal, which one week later carried this advertisement: "WANTED - A young lady who is a good retoucher and can attend reception room. Address with photo of self, samples of work (to be returned) and terms. O. M. Pausch, Newark, O." Patent Number 328,512 covering a Photographic Plate Holder was granted to Oscar on October 20, 1885. He succeeded Daniel Angell in Saginaw and employed Hugo A. Beckmann as a photographer in 1890, advertising as a photographer and portrait artist who specialized in enlarging photos. This notice appeared in the summer of 1891: "STOLEN - From O. M. Pausch, East Saginaw, Michigan, one 6 ½ x 8 ½ R. R. Dallmeyer lens, No. 17,856, one Philadelphia Sterro Box, No. 22 on front, supplied with a Green shutter and Blair tripod. $25 reward for recovery of goods or information leading thereto..." When the Martin Zucker furniture shop was built at Frankenmuth in 1891, the second floor was purposely arranged with a northern skylight and a darkroom to accommodate a photograph gallery. It is only conjecture that Oscar was the original occupant, but he was definitely using the studio as a branch of his Saginaw business in 1895 when he supplied the photographs for a booklet commemorating Frankenmuth's 50th Anniversary. His elegant display of portrait photographs at the Photographers' Association of America convention was mentioned by a periodical in August of 1894. This advertisement was carried by the same magazine from June through December of 1895: "FOR SALE - My full time being demanded by my photo engraving department, I will sell my portrait business. Best and largest gallery in the city. Printed invoices on application. O. M. Pausch, Saginaw, E. S., Mich." He advertised locally in 1897: "... PHOTO ENGRAVING; Half-Tone on copper, Line-Work on zinc, Wood Engraving, Designing, &c. Lowest prices consistent with first class work." Alfred W. Eymer took possession of the Pausch Studio in Saginaw some time before November of 1897. Oscar advertised nationally in March of 1898: "Wanted to exchange - A fine new double-swing 8 x 10 portrait camera; also lever camera stand, suitable for camera 16 x 20 to 20 x 24; for a first-class 14 x 17 view camera, holders and tripod..." The same issue and three subsequent ones carried "My own ad - ... Fine engravings in Half-Tone and Line. Wood Engravings, Electrotyping, &c. Lowest Prices and as Good Work as produced anywhere. Photographers can make a good commission by taking orders for engraving. Correspondence solicited." His son Virgil worked in Oscar's photo engraving business in 1910, and still was a photo engraver in 1920. Oscar visited France and Switzerland by himself on his way to visit his sister in the Bavarian region of Germany in the spring of 1920. He left Rotterdam, Holland, May 21 on S. S. Rotterdam, and arrived at New York on May 30, 1920. Something happened to Adea, and by 1930 Oscar was married to a piano teacher named Eva who was born in the Netherlands about 1885.

Frank was born in New York to parents from Ohio in May of 1853. Her father emigrated from Canada and Frances was born in Michigan to a mother from Vermont in July of 1853. She married Frank about 1878, and she also was a Grand Rapids school teacher in 1883. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Gertrude in January of 1880, Ruby in September of 1882, Frances in September of 1888, and Marguerite in February of 1894. "Views of Macatawa Park, Holland, Mich. - Published by F. E. PAYNE, Landscape Photographer, Grand Rapids, Mich." was printed on the backs of stereo views. On the reverse of similar views was printed: "Views of Macatawa Park - by - F. E. Payne, Elroy, Wis." and "Views of Ottawa Beach - by - F. E. Payne, Elroy, Wis." and "MACATAWA PARK and OTTAWA BEACH RESORTS - by - F. E. PAYNE, Elroy, Wis." Frank came in 1889 from Elroy to Muskegon, where he gave special attention to cabinet photography, enlarging and view work, and employed two competent assistants. He advertised from his Star Gallery in Muskegon in 1891: "DID YOU EVER Get Your Photo Taken at Night? PAYNE WILL Make It At Your Own Home.... PAYNE Makes the Finest Views and Portraits.... Payne's Popular Photo Gallery." Frank left Muskegon for a while but was back in business at 51 West Western Avenue before December of 1892, emphasizing large portrait work and the taking of views. Engravings of the water works, the club house, the Hackley Library, several churches, private residences, interiors and portraits in City of Muskegon were made from his photographs, as were a number of illustrations in Advantages and Surroundings of Muskegon Mich. He used small sans serif lettering on the negatives of postal photographs such as: "NO. 43A, MAIN STREET, PAYNE, COOPERSVILLE" and "HIGH SCHOOL, PAYNE, COOPERSVILLE." Some cards like this were postmarked in 1907. Frances was a widow by 1910, when she was a fancy goods saleslady boarding in a hotel at Toledo, Ohio. She was a department store saleslady lodging in a Grand Rapids hotel in 1920.

His father came from New York and Herbert was born in November of 1869 in Elgin County, Ontario, the only child of Moses A. and Esther Maria Payne. Martha was born in April of 1872 at St. Thomas, Ontario, fifth of the seven children of David H. and Catherine (sometimes Kate) Lowry. She married Herbert at St. Thomas on September 12, 1888. Their daughters were born at St. Thomas: Esther on April 14, 1893, and Viola on April 29, 1897. They moved to Detroit in 1898. Herbert was enumerated as a diamond setter in 1900, and he became a naturalized citizen of the United States in 1914. As well as selling Kodaks and high grade photo supplies in 1914, Herbert did developing and printing and furnished bromide enlargements. By 1916 he was also selling confections and stationery. His daughter Viola was married about 1916 to Phillip Kluge, who is profiled above. Phillip's brothers Frank and John were Detroit photographers and photo finishers from 1920 until 1947.

| Malinda (often Melinda) was born to an English mother in Dummer Township of Peterborough County, Ontario, on October 28, 1877, last of the six children of John and Louisa Ann (Snelgrove) Payne. She came with her family in 1881 to Michigan, where she grew up on her father's farm. Frank Earl Ash was born in Michigan to parents from Iowa on April 25, 1876, last of the three children of Allen and Sylvia Ash. He married Malinda about 1903, and their children were born in Michigan: Beatrice in 1904, Donald in 1906, Milo in 1910, and Clara in 1914. Malinda also gave birth to two girls that did not survive: Iva in July of 1909, and Ila in July of 1918. | His father came from Quebec and Steven was born to a mother from Ohio in Ashland Township of Newaygo County on March 12, 1874, eldest of the seven children of William J. and Melsena (Doremire) Peacock. Irena was born about 1884 to a German mother at Edmore, Michigan, the daughter of Stephen E. and Mary E. (Ramlow) Howard. She married Steve at Onaway, Michigan, on March 30, 1902. Their children were born in Michigan: Edwin in 1904, Sadie in 1905, William in 1907, Steven in October of 1909, Irena in 1914, Loyd in 1916, Ada about 1921, and Lillie about 1924. Steve seems to have copied post card photographs originally produced by John R. Johnson of Cheboygan. On one negative, he changed Johnson's "303" into "1908" and added "DAM" to Johnson's "SCENE AT TOWER, MICH" To the same view, he added "D. M. RY. BRIDGE" at the upper left and "S.W.P. PHO." at the lower right. About 1913, "S. W. PEACOCK, PHOTOGRAPHER, VIEWER" was stamped on the post card backs of photos of logging operations along the Lake Michigan & Superior Railroad between Pike Lake on the Soo Line in Mackinac County and Seney on the DSS&A in Schoolcraft County. Steve probably produced these views while living in Newberry. By 1930 Irena was married to Victor Little, and she had brought along her four youngest children. Steven died in April of 1934, and burial was in Maple Grove Cemetery at Munising, Michigan. |         |   |

Her father, Ezra Pearson, came from Ohio and was living in Calvin Township when he was drafted into the Union Army. He was enrolled as a private on October 22, 1864, and served in Company C of the Fifteenth Michigan Infantry until he was mustered out of the army at Little Rock, Arkansas, on August 13, 1865. Sarah E. Pearson, Ezra's wife, came from Virginia and had given birth to a daughter and two sons before her husband went to war. She gave birth to Lula in Michigan in July of 1865 and had no further children. Lula advertised in 1899: "Cass County's Popular 'LADY ARTIST' For Best and Most Satisfactory Work. Never fails to CATCH THE BABIES. Come once and you will come again." On the face of a post card beside a photograph of the Cass County Court House was printed "UP - TO - DATE PHOTOGRAPHY at My Studio or at Your Home. Outdoor Views, Interiors, Etc. Enlarging in all the popular styles, LULA PEARSON, ARTIST, Cassopolis, Mich." She was single and living by herself in 1900, in 1910, and in 1920. Ernest (often Earnest) was born in Michigan to parents from Maine on April 28, 1873, and he became a medium sized man with gray eyes and light brown hair. Mary was born in Michigan in June of 1877, and she married Ernest about 1898. Ernest took four photographs in 1890 from the cupola of the Upright home at the northwest corner of State Street and Hurlbut Avenue in Charlevoix. Taken looking northwest, north, northeast and east-northeast, they make up a panoramic overview of the town. "E. PEASLEE, PHOTOS & VIEWS, Walloon Lake, Mich." was stamped on the back of stereographs, and Ernest was a "Maker of time and instantaneous views." Ernest and Mary never had children of their own, but by 1910 they had adopted two girls who were born in Michigan: Bessie in 1897, and Della in 1900. Ernest's farm in Hayes Township was served by Charlevoix RFD Route #3.

His father came from Massachusetts and Orson was born to a mother from New York on August 31, 1875, first of the two children of Alfonso T. and Helen Peck. He and his sister Ida moved to Traverse City with their parents when he was thirteen. His father was a conductor on the Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad. Orson played hooky much of the time, and got little more than a grade school education. He became tall and slender with blue eyes and light hair, and he soon decided that he did not want to work on the railroad or do any sort of manual labor. Orson taught himself photography and produced many stereo views of the Traverse Region that may have been 19th Century work. Views copyrighted by him in 1904 and 1905 were reproduced in a 3 ¼ by 4 ¼ folder printed by Tom Jones of Cincinnati, Ohio, and "... Published For ORSON W. PECK, Photo's, Traverse City, Mich." He copyrighted a 4 ½ by 7 inch photograph of "Front Street, Looking West" in 1906. His post card photographs included scenic views for sale to tourists and pictures of the homes of local residents. "ORSON W. PECK, Landscape & Commercial Photographer. Freak Photos made to order. Residences & Interiors; Groups & Flashlight Work; Scenes in Water Colors; Photos Copied & Enlarged. Publisher and Jobber of Post Cards etc. Traverse City, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of some photos, including one of a man sitting calmly beside a large lion. His "freak photos" included a Traverse City street scene with a streetcar dubbed in and a "new" railroad depot that never was built. Almost half a million copies were sold of his post card of the birches at Silver Lake. Orson lived with his parents until about 1913 when he married Rose, who was born in North Carolina to natives of North Carolina in 1884. Orson was enumerated in 1920 as a jobber of souvenirs with the help of his wife. He was divorced and living alone by 1930, when he was enumerated as a photographer doing Kodak work. A woman that worked for Orson in the 1930s described him as a perfectionist that would spend hours getting the quality he wanted in a particular shot.

His father came from Pennsylvania and Sebastian was born in Wayne Township of Wood County, Ohio, on May 1, 1847, last of the three children of Adam and Rebecca (later Elizabeth) Peckinpugh. He was their only son, and he had ten older Peckinpugh half-siblings. On February 29, 1864, Sebastian enlisted as a private in Company E of the Third Ohio Cavalry. He served through the rest of the Civil War with this company until he was mustered out of the army at Camp Dennison in Ohio on July 27, 1865. Her father came from Pennsylvania and Mary Jane was born in Ohio to a mother from Virginia in January of 1848, last of the four children and the only daughter of John and Margaret Thompson. She married Sebastian about 1865, and their sons were born in Ohio: Robert on October 6, 1867, and Harbelia on April 6, 1870. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Fannie on January 20, 1872, and Rena (sometimes Susanna or Rennie) on April 14, 1874. The engraving on a stereoscopic negative of a residence was processed on November 25, 1879, the same day that Patent Number 221,997 covering the process was granted to Mortimer H. Bachman and Sebastian. With George Jeffery White on September 25, 1883, Sebastian applied for a patent on a Photographic Plate Holder and Case, and on April 8, 1884, Patent Number 296,443 was issued to them covering this invention. George M. Otto and Sebastian filed a patent application on a Photographic Camera on May 20, 1895, which issued as Patent Number 552,259 on December 31, 1895. Sebastian died at Green Bay on April 21, 1900, and Mary Jane died there on March 9, 1906.

Lewis was born to parents from Connecticut on May 2, 1835, in Sandstone Township of Jackson County, Michigan, 1 2 last of the two children of Henry M. and Caroline (Crittenden) Pelton. His sister Sarah was born in 1829. Julia Bethiah 4 2
Harrington was born in Genesee County, New York, on July 20, 1836, second of the six children of Peter and Lucretia 2 4
Harrington. She grew up in Sandstone Township and married Lewis there on March 5, 1855. Their only child, 2
Caroline (usually Carrie) L. Pelton, was born in Sandstone Township on March 1, 1856. Lewis enlisted at Jackson or 1 2
Lansing in the Eighth Michigan Infantry on August 26, 1861, and was mustered into the army as a private in Company 2 3
E of this regiment on September 23, 1861. The Eighth left Detroit four days later and arrived in Washington on 2 3
September 30, where it was assigned to the "Expeditionary Corps" of General T. W. Sherman for service along the 3 Atlantic coast of South Carolina. Lewis was promoted to corporal. On April 16, 1862, the Eighth lost heavily in killed 3 and wounded in a severe engagement on Wilmington Island. On June 16 at Secessionville on James Island the 3 regiment distinguished itself by a bayonet charge upon the enemy's works under artillery fire. The Confederate fire 3 was so destructive that the party was obliged to withdraw with a loss of 13 dead, 98 wounded, 35 prisoners and 36 3 missing. Lewis was wounded by a musket ball which passed through his right arm from the top of his wrist to the 3 2 underside of his fore arm. He was treated by the regimental surgeon and sent two days later to the United States 2 General Hospital at Hilton Head, South Carolina. By June 30 he was in the New York City Hospital from which he 2 was discharged for disability on October 20, 1862. Lewis lost the ulnar artery and much muscle so that his right fore 2 arm was one and a half inches smaller than his left and his circulation was impaired. He was unable to hold a tool such 2 as a hammer, had no use of the hand in feeding or dressing himself and was able to write only with difficulty. He 2 applied for an Invalid Pension on April 14, 1863. Carrie still was living with her parents in 1880. Lewis died at 2 1
Jackson on July 18, 1918. Julia's application for a Widow's Pension mentioned that she had been totally blind for 2 more than 20 years. 2

William was born in London, England, on June 29, 1818. He was apprenticed to a coach maker as a boy, and then worked as a coach maker in London. Elizabeth West was born in 1813 in London, and she married William there on May 29, 1838. Two of their children were born in London: Anna on March 16, 1843, and George on September 24, 1845. The family left England on S. S. Prince Albert and arrived at New York City on October 25, 1847. Elizabeth gave birth in New York to three more children: William on February 16, 1848. Mary Jane on May 29, 1850, and Alice Ada on November 29, 1852. The senior William was naturalized a citizen of the United States at New York on October 8, 1860. He was enumerated as a carriage maker in 1850 and as a coach maker in 1860, and did similar work at Janesville and Albion prior to settling in Homer. Elizabeth died at Homer on March 29, 1880. Josephine Edith Doolittle was born in Illinois in 1848, first of the two children of Thompson and Nancy (Kidder) Doolittle. She married William at Homer on June 22, 1881, and gave birth to May Peppet at Homer on April 4, 1885. William did a very good photographic business at Homer. The street scenes and many of the portraits in Homer and Its Pioneers were engraved from his photographs. "From W. PEPPET'S Art Gallery, Homer, Mich." was stamped on the paper sleeves of some of his tintypes, as well as on the back of most of his card and cabinet mounts. William died at Homer on May 28, 1893, about one month shy of his 75th birthday.

Bessie was born in Michigan to parents from Indiana in September of 1879. Marcus Bacon was born in Michigan in November of 1874, and he married Bessie about 1898. Their son Vernie was born in January of 1900 but did not survive, and their son Clifford was born about 1902. Something happened to Marcus, and about 1906 Bessie married the photographer Frank P. Perkins, who is profiled below. She brought along her son Clifford, and she was working in Frank's studio in 1910. Bessie was a widow by 1930, when she was living with the family of her son Clifford. Her step-son Henry Perkins was a member of this household.

Frankie Roy Perkins was born at Imlay City, Michigan, on December 27, 1886, last of the three sons of George T. and Erminnie Perkins. His parents were natives of Michigan with Canadian ancestors, and his father was a house painter and paper hanger. Roy became a medium sized man with brown eyes and brown hair. Lelah was born in Michigan to Canadian parents about 1890, and she married Roy in 1907 or early in 1908. They were living with Roy's parents in 1910, and over Roy's studio in 1917, when they thought that Roy's chronic heart trouble might keep him from being drafted. Roy was a widower and back living with his parents in 1920.

Thomas was born in Massachusetts to natives of Massachusetts in December of 1848. Sarah was born in Ohio to English parents late in 1844 or early in 1845, and she was a relatively wealthy woman when she married Thomas. They were living in 1870 with the family of the photographer Joseph H. Tompkins. They had their own home by 1880, but no children. Thomas attended the annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Milwaukee in August of 1883. T. B. Perkins & Company utilized the card, cabinet, 8 ¼ by 4 inch panel and stereograph formats in mounting their photographs. They employed William H. James as a photographer in 1883. Miss Nellie F. Todd was employed as a crayon artist in 1882 and 1883, and was a principal of T. B. Perkins & Company in 1886 and 1887. Frances Fritz worked for the company at Grand Rapids as a photo printer in 1886. "From the Photographic Studio of T. B. PERKINS and Co., Grand Rapids and Petoskey, Mich. This Negative Carefully Preserved for Future Orders. We also make large portraits from any picture in India Ink, Water Colors, Crayon, Pastel, Oil and Bromide. We guarantee satisfaction in every case, and at low prices." was printed on cabinet mounts of this era. Something happened to Sarah, and in the spring of 1888 Thomas married Miss Nellie F. Todd, his former employee and business partner. Their daughter Madge was born in September of 1890. N. Fred Avery was a partner in Avery & Perkins, and was a principal of Perkins & Richmond only in 1890. Thomas advertised nationally during the summer of 1890: "FOR SALE - The best located gallery in a city of 80,000 inhabitants; fitted in first-class style; large trade and best patrons; only ground floor gallery in the city; good reasons for selling. Address: Perkins, Richmond & Co., Grand Rapids, Mich." Perkins & Alva B. Richmond started out selling bicycles and tricycles as well as photographers' supplies. They substituted typewriters for tricycles in 1892, added picture frames and mouldings in 1893, and finally added sporting and artist's goods in 1895, when they had branches in Ionia and Lowell. Thomas was granted Patent Number 581,831 on May 4, 1897, for improvements to a Photographic Printing Frame. Thomas and Nellie were providing a home for her mother in 1900 and in 1920, and Nellie was a widow by 1930.

John was born in Ontario to natives of Ontario of Irish descent in August of 1861, third of the seven or more children of John and Sarah Jane (Harkness) Perrin. Rachel was born in Ontario to a Scotch father and a Canadian mother on September 17, 1863, the daughter of William and Isabella (McLeod) McKenzie. She married John in Kincardine Township, Ontario, on December 26, 1883, and they immigrated to Michigan in 1885. Louis, their only child, was born in Michigan in April of 1886. John had his first papers by 1900, and was a naturalized citizen of the United States by 1910. Louis became an electrical engineer and remained single. He was working in construction in 1920 and for the city of San Francisco in 1930, when he was providing a home for his mother. Though Rachel was enumerated as married, she probably was a widow by 1930. She died in San Francisco on April 12, 1942.

Charles was born at Marshall, Michigan, to parents from New York on July 31, 1857, second of the three sons of Rival Tyler Perry and Rebecca (Lyday) Perry that lived to maturity. He was called Bentley as a child. "Chas. B. Perry, PHOTOGRAPHER, Mendon, Mich." was printed on the back of a card photograph of a young man with his cornet, his violin and his camera, presumed to be one of the Perry Brothers. Orin Perry was the other brother. Charles was single and living by himself in June of 1880, but was married before the following winter was over. His bride was Marie Jennie Stroup, who was born in Indiana in June of 1862, first of the three children of Thomas S. and Ann Stroup. She usually was called Jennie, and she gave birth to Orlando in Mendon on December 1, 1881, to Lila in July of 1883, and to Rual in June of 1887. Jennie was a widow by 1900, when she was working in a corset factory and providing a home in Kalamazoo for her three children.

Edgar was born in New York State to natives of New York in the summer of 1830. Her father came from Vermont and Louisa was born in New York in 1836 or early in 1837. She married Edgar about 1855, and their children were born in New York: Ella in the summer of 1857, and Frank in April of 1860. With Moses Sutton of Detroit, Morris H. Porter & Perry made up the Michigan Committee for Collecting Funds for Furthering the Objects of the first National Photographic Association convention to be held at New York in April of 1868. Perry & Douglass occupied the same rooms which Schuyler C. Baldwin had used as his gallery a year earlier, and advertised: "... All kinds of Portraiture known to the Art produced at this gallery, and satisfaction assured. Careful attention given to children...." Some cartes de visite were identified only with "E. H. Perry, P. O. Drawer 159, Kalamazoo, Mich." penciled on their backs. Baldwin H. VanDeVoort was with Edgar as a photographer in 1871. "PERRY'S GALLERY, Kalamazoo, Mich., W. S. White, Operator." was printed on some later card photograph mounts. In March of 1876, Edgar succeeded Sheldon C. Wright in Battle Creek and began making "...everything pertaining to photographic portraiture in the finest work of the art. - Don't send your old and highly prized pictures away for enlarged copies when any good home photographer can do it for you just as well, and guarantee entire satisfaction." One of Edgar's Battle Creek cabinet photographs was of a scale model hose cart atop a cake presented to Union Hose Company Number 1, and he probably produced the accompanying stereo view of a wreath of wax flowers presented to the Hose Company in July of 1876. Beginning in 1882, Ebbie O. Schumaker worked for Edgar as a retoucher for a year and a half. "PERRY & SON'S Point Place Photographic Studio, Opposite M. E. Church, Battle Creek, Mich. Ground Floor Gallery." was printed on the back of cabinet mounts along with a woodcut of the building which was erected in 1886. Edgar died at his Battle Creek home on October 19, 1887. "Those who knew him best appreciated his genial ways and upright, honest life." The studio of his son, Frank E. Perry, was in the same Point Place building until 1897.

Frank was the son of Edgar H. and Louisa Perry, and was born in New York State in April of 1860. He was called Franklin as a child, and he was known as Battle Creek's foremost male singer in 1883. His father had operated the gallery at 3 West Main Street for several years before Frank became his partner about 1884. This advertisement was published in 1889: "F. E. PERRY'S Ground-Floor PHOTO-STUDIO. Satisfaction guaranteed in all Photographic Work. A specialty made of Copying and Enlarging, and of the photographing of groups. THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS VIEW OUTFIT IN THE CITY For the photographing of Residences, Landscapes, Machinery, etc., and for making instantaneous pictures of houses, etc. Point Place, Opposite M. E. To have a Photographer do your Copying and Enlarging in Crayon, India Ink, &c. - We are turning out fine work in that line, and are sure we can suit you. NOW! Is a good time to sit for that CABINET PHOTO." May E. Kipp worked for Frank in 1893, and was his photo printer in 1897. Louie A. Jones was Frank's partner from 1892 until 1894. Bradley was born in New York State to natives of New York in 1864 or early in 1865, the only child of Whittington and Felinda A. Perry. He always lived at their farm home except for a few months which he spent in East Tawas with a photograph car. His purchase of the gallery of Arthur N. Graham was announced in May of 1893 along with his intention of continuing business at the old car. The report of Bradley's death early in 1897 mentioned that he was about thirty years old and had never married. He had been in poor health for seven years, and his condition was complicated by an abscess during the last months of his life. The funeral was held from the Methodist church in Tawas City.

Lena had been a St. Clair County resident since 1901 when her husband's accidental death in 1912 left her with a young daughter and a photographic business to manage. She advertised in 1913 as a "Marine Photographer. Established 1900. Largest Collection of Marine Photographs in America." She used the same ad for the next four years revised to: "... Largest Collection of Vessel Photographs in America." The studio was located at 201 South Water Street in 1916. Negatives continued to be exposed for additional post card photograph subjects during her tenure as head of the Pesha Art Company. By the fall of 1918, Mr. & Mrs. D. C. Miller were proprietors of the Pesha Art Company, offering portraits, local views and enlargements. By 1922, Durell J. Louis was born on August 11, 1868, near Shetland in Euphemia Township of Lambton County, Ontario, first of the four children of James and Elizabeth Pesha. He grew up on the family farm. About 1892 Louis married Lena, who is profiled above. Their daughter Lorraine was born in March of 1900. Louis opened the portrait gallery at Oil Springs early in 1899, and within months had branch galleries at Alvinston and Brigden. By 1901 he had sold the portrait galleries in Ontario and had established the studio at Marine City. He did some portrait work at Marine City, but soon began to emphasize post card photographs of Great Lakes steam ships, street scenes and other interesting views of cities and towns. He produced postal views of towns in at least 32 of Michigan's 83 counties and in southwestern Ontario, particularly in Essex, Kent and Lambton Counties, a few views of northern Ohio and of Niagara Falls in both New York and Ontario, and at least one view of Wisconsin and one of Duluth, Minnesota. Marine City was in St. Clair County, and Louis concentrated his photography there and in Sanilac and Huron Counties to the north in Michigan's thumb as well as southwest of Marine City in the populous counties of Macomb, Oakland, Washtenaw and Wayne. "A GOOD CHRISTMAS GIFT. May we be permitted to suggest that good portraits are most happy reminders to relatives and friends at Christmas time. The good portrait carries with it a world of good thoughts. It is the always welcome and highly prized gift. We want to assure you that we are prepared to give you the best work in the latest approved designs, and that your early order for portraits will insure you the perfection of careful attention to detail. Respectfully THE PESHA ART CO. Open Every Day Except Saturday Marine City, Mich." was printed on the post card back of a photograph of the knitting mills at Port Huron. Louis was in Detroit with his camera for events such as the national Elks Convention in July of 1910 and the Cadillaqua festival in July of 1912. Outside of his local area he concentrated upon major towns accessible by rail, and usually stayed within one hundred miles of Marine City, venturing as far west as Ionia and Kalamazoo and northwest as far as Wexford County. Isolated exceptions were a few towns in the copper and iron mining regions of the Upper Peninsula and Boyne City in Charlevoix County. He advertised in 1909: "L. PESHA, MARINE PHOTOGRAPHER. Largest Collection of Marine views in America. All vessels photographed while at full speed. All Lake Vessels in transit through Lake St. Clair pass within 200 feet of my studio. Pesha's Photo Post Cards 5,000 Subjects. Samples to Dealers - Free...." At this time 500 of his negatives were of the largest lake steamers, and he was classified as a Marine Photographer, a Commercial Photographer, a Post Card Photographer and a View Photographer. One of the messages printed on the backs of his post cards was: "A PHOTOGRAPH MOUNTED 16 BY 20 LIKE THIS PHOTO 1.00 POSTPAID...." Both his enlargements and his post cards seem to have been printed from 5 by 7 inch negatives. His work included some exaggerations, mostly made by adding something like an aeroplane, a bird, a boat or a huge ear of corn to an ordinary scene. He produced post card photographs for Marine City merchants advertising homes, buggies, watering troughs, burial vaults and his own business. The signs on the side of his studio read: "Picture Framing - Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged. Roll Films, Dry Plates, Developing Powders and Printing Paper For Sale Here. Picture Post Cards Made Here." In the autumn of 1912 a steamboat lost its steering and ran aground, seriously damaging the Pesha studio. A little later Louis started on an automobile tour of Canada with his wife and their little daughter. On October 1, 1912, while visiting his father near Shetland, Ontario, Louis pulled the wrong lever of his steam automobile, which backed over a 15 foot embankment and overturned, crushing his skull. No one else was seriously injured. The funeral was held at Innwood, and burial was in Shetland Cemetery. The photographic business was continued by his widow.

His father came from New York and James was born in Michigan to a Canadian mother in September of 1869, fourth of the five children of Charles and Betsey Peters. He grew up on the family farm. Clarissa Ann Maskell was born in Michigan to Canadian parents on October 5, 1871, second of the six children of James and Jane (McNaughton) Maskell. She was known as Anna, and she married James on October 18, 1892. Anna gave birth in Michigan to Ina in April of 1894, to Lula in July of 1895, to Lida in September of 1896, to Cecile in February of 1898, and to Gladys in September of 1899. Lula May, the second oldest daughter, died on December 24, 1900, by her clothes catching on fire. A sixth daughter was stillborn on December 14, 1904. Early in 1906 Anna gave birth to twins, Mary and George. Anna died from hepatitis with gall stones on February 16, 1906, and was buried near two of her daughters in Pinecrest Cemetery. "J. F. PETERS" was stamped on the back of the 9 by 12 inch mount of a 6½ by 8½ photograph of a railroad water tank under construction. "D & M TANK, AU SABLE" was stamped along the lower border of the photograph. "Peters Photog" was lettered on the negatives of three 6 ½ by 8 ½ inch prints identified as "Cole Creek, Au Sable, Mich" and "Banks of the Dead Au Sable" and "A.S. & N.W. R.R., Moon Light View." A fake moon was added to each of the negatives which were printed to simulate nocturnal scenes. "ONAWAY CITY, 1906, PETERS, PHOT." was lettered on the negative of a post card photograph of a business street with very little vehicular or pedestrian traffic. "TOM MALE CAMP MICH FEB 22th 1910, PETERS PHOTOGRAPHER ONAWAY" was printed on the face of a postal photograph. By 1910 Peters was using his middle name, Fred, and with his daughters Ina and Lida was lodging in the boarding house of an Onaway widow. The twins were living with their maternal grandmother in Sanilac County, Michigan.

George was born in the Thuringian region of Germany in December of 1844, and he came to Detroit in 1857. Emma Von der Heide was born in Michigan to German parents in November of 1855, and she married George about 1872. 1
Their children were born in Detroit: Oscar in August of 1873, Lizzie in August of 1877, George in May of 1880, the twins Charles and Eddie in February of 1882, Walter in February of 1886, Emma in October of 1889, and Jennie in April of 1898. From 1883 until 1894, George's business occupied a three story building on Gratiot Avenue. In 1893, the ground floor was devoted to offices as well as to retail and wholesale salesrooms for pictures, picture frames and mouldings. The photographic reception and operating rooms were on the second floor. George was said to give an easy, natural and life-like pose to the sitter, though his cabinet portraits are quite similar to those of his contemporaries. Crayon, India Ink and pastel portraits were a leading specialty, and he guaranteed the finest work at popular prices. Some of his employees were: Lizzie Petersen, clerk in 1893; Charles W. Quatermass, photographer in 1894; Oscar N. Petersen, photo operator in 1894 and photographer in 1895; and William A. Carson, photographer in 1895. Mrs. Emma Petersen was listed in Detroit directories for 1904 and 1905, and as George's widow in 1906. d

Gustaf Adolph Peterson was born in Sweden on May 28, 1877, crossed the ocean in 1882, and became a naturalized citizen of the United States in 1907. By this time he was a medium sized man with blue eyes and dark brown hair. Mary was born in Michigan to Swedish parents in 1885, and she married Adolph about 1908. She gave birth to Leslie in November of 1911, and to Evelyn in February of 1918. "Photo by Adolph Peterson, Ingalls, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of photographs of Rapids Dam under construction and of Ingalls. Similar photographs of Gwinn postmarked between 1918 and 1931 had "© A. Peterson" or "© A.P." scribed into the negative. "Foster City School 1916 By PETER..." was lettered on the negative of a post card photograph that was printed so the name was running off the card, which probably was Adolph's work.

| Leon was born at Fowlerville, Michigan, to natives of Michigan on February 20, 1873, first of the four children of Milo D. and Betsey A. (Niles) Pharis. He became a medium sized man with blue eyes and brown hair, and was called Lee for a while. "Pharis, art." and titles were written in gold script on the face of post card photographs of Rose City scenes. Mrs. Leon Pharis was a Rose City dressmaker in 1906. "LEON PHARIS, YALE, MICH." was printed on the post card backs of views of Yale with 1907 postmarks. "LEON PHARIS, PHOTOGRAPHER, OAK GROVE, MICH." was printed on the post card backs of other views, including several of Laingsburg postmarked in 1907. "PHARIS PHOTO" was lettered on the negatives of postal photographs of Cohoctah, four miles north of Oak Grove, and of the business streets and other popular aspects of many towns in Saginaw County and in Michigan's thumb. Many of these cards were postmarked between 1908 and 1917. In May of 1910, Leon was enumerated as a single traveling photographer boarding in a Pinnebog hotel. The message on a postal photo mailed in September of 1910 included: "... I just bought a gallery here.... Leon Pharis, Millington, Mich." Post card photographs of Millington scenes were printed from negatives lettered "PHARIS PHOTO" and cards recording events in Chesaning and St. Charles were similarly marked. "PHARIS &amp; HOPPER PHOTO" or "P &amp; H PHOTO" or "P &amp; H PHOTOS" was lettered on the negatives of postal views of New Lothrop, some postmarked in 1914 and 1916. Leon's partner in Pharis &amp; Hopper undoubtedly was Miss Alice Hopper, who became his wife on September 10, 1914, and then his partner in Pharis &amp; Pharis. He was enumerated as the proprietor of the photo gallery on January 12, 1920, when Alice was enumerated as his partner in the gallery. Leon died from encephalitis on January 27, 1920. |           |     |

Lavina was born in Maine to natives of Maine in 1845, eighth or ninth of the ten children of Jesse L. and Louisa J. (Cochran) Philbrick. She and her twin brother Samuel and her sister Helen (who is profiled above) grew up on the family farm in Waterville Township of Le Sueur County, Minnesota. Lavina never married, and except in Michigan she was always called Lavina C. Philbrick. James Arthur and Ina C. Philbric were identified as proprietors of the Arthur & Philbric gallery in Grand Rapids in 1890 and 1891. Before and after those years the gallery was operated as a branch of the Detroit business with a local manager. Lavina was living in 1895 with her brother Sam, who was now the proprietor of the Waterville Township farm. By 1910 Sam had moved to California, where he died in 1911, and Lavina was the Waterville Township farmer. She lived in Waterville and had employees to work the farm. Lavina died in Nicolet County, Minnesota, on May 13, 1936.

Silas was born in New York State to natives of New York on May 26, 1845, second of the six children of Silas and Patty (Thompson) Philly. He was an older brother of the Charles E. Philly profiled above. Her father emigrated from Canada and Thirza was born in Michigan to a mother from Vermont in 1853 or early in 1854, third of the four children of Nathan and Angelina Chadburn. She married Silas about 1875, and their son Fred was born in May of 1877. Something happened to Thirza, and Silas married again. Lizzie was born in New York to parents from Vermont in October of 1845, she married Silas in 1886 or 1887, and they never had children. Silas appended a "Junior" to his name at Otsego and Wayland, but not at Kalamazoo. His expectation of moving from Wayland to Kalamazoo early in 1892 was announced in November of 1891, but this move evidently was put off for a couple of years. "Philly, 303 East Main Street, Kalamazoo, Mich." was printed on the mount of a cabinet photograph of two well dressed men in a buggy drawn by white horses in front of a building with a sign: "Warm Meals, 25¢." Elmer E. Evans had eight years of professional photographic experience prior to his partnership with Silas, and he continued his photographic career at Muskegon for a couple of years before he moved to a farm in North Dakota. Silas was a widower living by himself in 1920.

Adelbert also was known as Dalbert, and was born in New York State to natives of New York in the summer of 1844, the elder son of Elkanah B. and Susan Phillips. He and Aloyd grew up on the family farm and succeeded photographer Charles W. Leonard in Pontiac. Quatermass & Phillips made both photographs and gems. What was actually printed on some cartes de visite was "Phillips & Quartermus." This partnership was the first photographic venture of William M. Quatermass, who continued a photographic career in Michigan until his death in 1905. Artel was born in New York State to natives of New York in 1844 or early in 1845, and she married Adelbert about 1875. Their son Adelbert was born in New York State in 1876 or early in 1877.

His father was born in Massachusetts and Chauncey was born in Michigan to a Canadian mother in November of 1841, first of the three sons of Dean and Harriet Phillips. Something happened to his father. By 1855 his mother was married to another farmer named William Bradley, and Chauncey had acquired three step-sisters. Delilah was born in Michigan to parents from New York in March of 1852, first of the three children of Charles W. and L. A. Carr. Something happened to her mother after 1860, and Delilah soon had a step-mother named Harriet, a step-brother and a step-sister. By 1870 Chauncey and Delilah were married, and they never had children. Delilah was a widow by 1930, when she was living with the family of her sister Julia, now Mrs. Samuel W. Taylor.

- Clio was born in Michigan to a mother from Kentucky on February 4, 1880, the younger son of Bradley J. (sometimes J. Bradley) and Mary E. Phillips. His brother Fred died before reaching maturity. Clio grew up on the family farm, and he became a slender man with gray eyes and black hair. Her father came from Indiana and Ada was born in Michigan to a mother from Ohio in October of 1880, one of the five children of Morris P. and Anna A. Severance. Her father served in Company F of the Fourth Michigan Infantry from June of 1861 until October of 1862. Ada married Clio late in 1899 or early in 1900. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Mary about 1901, and Helen in 1904. One of Clio's early photographs was on a 4½ by 5½ inch brown mount and pictured the telegraph operator at the depot in Munson, Michigan. "Phillips" in script, with "PITTSFORD, MICH." in much smaller block letters, was blind stamped into post card photographs of Pittsford streets, businesses and the depot; some postmarked in 1908. Ada and her daughters were living on the farm of Clio's parents in Jefferson Township of Hillsdale County in 1910, when her parents were living nearby. Clio was commuting about ten miles in 1918 to his office in Hillsdale from his home at Pittsford. Her widowed mother was providing a home in Pittsford Township for Ada and her daughter Helen in 1920. Ada seems to have obtained a divorce, for Clio married a lady named Emeline about 1926. Her father came from Ohio and Emeline was born in Michigan about 1881. She had not been married previously. Ada may have been supervisor in 1930 of the nurses home at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor.

His parents emigrated from England and Solomon was born in Michigan in February of 1858, the son of Mathew and Elizabeth Phillipson. He grew up on the family farms, and was identified as Westbrook in the census reports for 1860, 1870, 1880 and 1900. He married Mary Howenstine in 1881 or 1882, and their two sons and a daughter were born between December of 1883 and February of 1887. "S. W. Phillipson, PORTRAIT and LANDSCAPE Photographer. P. O. Address, Lambertville, Mich." was stamped on the back of some cabinet mounts, and the same stamp was applied to other mounts with Dundee substituted for Lambertville. "S. W. Phillipson, Dundee and Milan, Mich." or "... Gees Block, Dundee and Carleton, Mich." or "... Dundee, Milan and Carleton, Mich." was printed on others below the images which included dead infants and funereal floral arrangements. His Blissfield gallery was on Adrian Street in 1897. "S. W. Phillipson, Blissfield, Mich." was printed on a 12 by 10 inch mount below a 9 ½ by 7 ¾ photograph of floral arrangements surrounding a framed portrait of a bearded man above a "Ruhe in Frieden" (Rest in Peace) plaque. "S. W. PHILLIPSON, Blissfield, Mich." was printed in red on a 10 by 12 inch mount below an outdoor photo of 34 people in four generations of a family. By 1910 Mary was a widow, and she seems to have carried on the photography business in her husband's name for a couple of years.

His father came from New York and Theodore was born in Owosso, Michigan, to a mother from Ohio on December 8, 1850, first of the seven children of William and Lydia Mary (Utter) Phinisey. Permelia was born to a mother from Ohio about 1849 in Greene County, Pennsylvania, fifth of the eight children of Joseph and Silvah Sidney McCurdy. She married Theodore at St. Louis, Michigan, on November 11, 1874. Permelia gave birth in Michigan to their son Francis on October 21, 1875, and to their daughter Grace in October of 1882. Theodore succeeded Mark Brown in Howell, and referred to the business as Brown's Gallery for a while. William R. Phinisey was the other Phinisey Brother in Monroe. That Phinisey & Neate were Monroe photographers was inferred from cabinet photographs with no location specified which were found among photographs from Toledo and Norwalk, Ohio, as well as from Monroe. Permelia died at Monroe on December 10, 1885. Eva Estelle Chambers was born in Michigan to Canadian parents on May 16, 1876, last of the four children of Abraham and Anna (Winegarden) Chambers. She married Theodore at Coleman on December 23, 1893, and she gave birth in Isabella County to Ora and Ova Beryl Phinisey on April 3, 1896. Ora lived only until 1899. His half-sister Grace was living in 1900 at McBain with the family of her uncle George McCurdy. Eva gave birth at South Frankfort to Arthur Guy Phinisey on January 16, 1901. Theodore died at South Frankfort from chronic Bright's Disease (of the kidneys) on February 14, 1911. Eva married Leonard F. Moody in 1913 and lived until 1944.

His father came from New York and William was born in Michigan (probably at Greenville) to a mother from Ohio about 1861, fourth of the seven children of William and Lydia Mary (Utter) Phinisey. The elder William Phinisey enlisted at Grand Rapids as a private in Company E of the Sixth Michigan Cavalry on February 29, 1864. He served with this company until the end of the war, and was mustered out of the Union Army at Detroit on May 15, 1865. Theodore W. Phinisey had a couple of years of professional photographic experience before William joined him at Monroe in 1886. William died from consumption (now called tuberculosis) at Clare on May 1, 1887.

His father emigrated from England and Edward was born about 1847 to a mother from Quebec at Wingham, Ontario, 1 7 second of the eight or more children of George and Margaret (Simpson) Phippen. Jane L. Gibson was born in Scotland 2 7 in 1849 or 1850, the daughter of George and Margaret Gibson. She married Edward at Perth, Ontario, on July 16, 3
1868. Jane gave birth to John in Ontario in 1871 or early in 1872, and then to William in Michigan three years later. 3 2

His father emigrated from England and Charles was born in Michigan to a mother from Vermont or New Hampshire 1 in June of 1851, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Phipps. “C. D. PHIPPS WILL Remain AT ORION, A Few DAYS.” 1 t
Was stamped on the backs of the paper sleeves of tintypes. Ella L. Gillick was born in Michigan to parents from New t 1 York in the summer of 1852, first of the five known children of Thomas and Adeline Gillick. She married Charles 1 about 1875, and their sons were born in Michigan: Charley in 1877 or 1878, and Edward in July of 1881. The NPA 1 t monogram printed on his Milford card photograph mounts indicated that Charles was a member of the National t Photographic Association. A photographic journal mentioned early in 1894 that “Mr. Phipps, Owosso, Michigan, t 5 sends a beautiful specimen of his work on G. B. paper. The softness of the shadows is remarkable.” He produced 5 6 stereoscopic views of Owosso, and his Owosso cabinet photographs included outdoor scenes and the portrait of a 6 t publisher of The Evening Argus vignettted against the front page of the last paper printed under his ownership, t February 25, 1895. Charles was a widower by 1900. “Bridge and Pumping Station, Fenton, Mich. Copyrighted 1907 t 1 by C. D. Phipps” was printed on the negative of a post card photograph. Charles patented an adjustable foot for t p supporting a ladder on uneven ground in 1903 and 1908, and used a postal photograph to promote the device. The sale p t by Charles of the Fenton studio to Harmon Judson was reported in June of 1908. 5

His father emigrated from England, and Edward was born in Vermont in November of 1835. Her father came from Vermont and Ellen H. Freeman was born in New York to a mother from Connecticut in April of 1833, second of the six children of Henry H. and Hannah M. Freeman. She married Edward about 1860, and they never had children. They provided a home for Ellen's sister Julia and her mother in 1870 and 1880. On some of both Phipps Brothers and J. H. Phipps & Brother cartes de visite, Pontiac was crossed out and Fenton was penciled in. These and all three Fentonville variants were sold with two cent revenue stamps and the offer: "If desired new prints can be had from this Negative at any time. Card Pictures made from old Daguerreotypes or Ambrotypes in plain or vignette style or enlarged to 8 x 10 inches." The number of different card and tintype mounts from his Milford gallery, and their stylistic variations, indicate that Edward was photographing there throughout the 1870s. He and his partner in Milford also manufactured sash, doors and blinds in 1876. Phipps, Lowell & Company operated the planing mill and made buggy bodies in 1878 and were builders in 1880. Three United States patents were granted to Edward in 1883; 273,763 on March 13 for a Knob Attachment, 284,893 on September 11 for a Door Knob Attachment, and 289,305 on November 27 for another Knob Attachment. From 1882 through 1885 he was president of the Milford Door Knob Company which manufactured Phipps patent door knobs. The Milford Door Knob Company was operating in 1889 without Edward as an officer of the company. Edward also invented a horse rake and buggy body springs, and was granted five patents for railroad car doors: 411,298 on September 17, 1889; 411,677 on September 24, 1889; 420,465 on February 4, 1890, and 433,212 and 433,256 on July 29, 1890. Julia Ann Freeman continued to reside with Edward and Ellen through 1900, and with the widowed Edward in 1910. She had been a school teacher in 1870, and an artist in water colors in 1900 and 1910. She was working as a dress maker in 1920 from her home, which she was sharing with Edward. 4

His father emigrated from England and Joseph was born in the state of New York in September of 1837. He was awarded $1.00 for the second best photograph exhibited at the 17th annual Oakland County Fair, which was held at Pontiac early in October of 1865. Phipps Brothers cartes de visite from Pontiac, Fenton and Fentonville, J. H. Phipps & Brother cartes from the same places, and E. L. Phipps & Brother cartes from Fentonville are all found with two cent revenue stamps and the message: "... If desired new Prints can be had from this Negative at any time. Card Pictures made from old Daguerreotypes or Ambrotypes in plain or vignette style or enlarged to 8 x 10 inches." This was printed on the paster holding tintypes into their paper frames: "J. H. PHIPPS' Photographic Gallery, Fenton, Mich. Photographs, Ferrotypes, Ambrotypes, Porcelain Pictures, Gems, &c., taken in the best style of the art. Frames and cases of all kinds." Joseph joined the National Photographic Association in its second year, between July of 1869 and June of 1870, and incorporated the NPA monogram into some of his 1870s card imprints. During this period stereo views of foreign scenery were "Published by J. H. Phipps, Photographer, Fenton, Mich." Fanny was born in Michigan to parents from New York in December of 1854, the elder daughter of William P. and Esther A. Guest. She married Joseph about 1874, and their daughter Edith was born at Fenton in January of 1876. Joseph attended the fourth annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America in August of 1883, and he later sent a view of the Milwaukee Exhibition Building, the site of this convention, to the editor of The Photographic Times along with some portraits. Joseph employed Charles D. Phipps as a photographer in 1888. He had been identified as Harvey Phipps at White Lake in 1862, and he was enumerated as Harvey Phipps at Fenton in 1900. Fanny still was keeping house for Joseph in 1920.

This description was published about 1895: "... A photochrom is a photograph in the colors of nature, and the 'colorphotographs' or 'photochroms' of the Photochrom Company combine the exactness of a photograph with the richness of colors in a painting. They are precisely what they are claimed to be, photographs in colors, not chromo-lithographs and not color prints. By the apparatus and the process used by this company it is possible to make use of instantaneous photography in the taking of photographs in colors, and it is also possible to put them on the market at such low prices as to assure the commercial success of the enterprise. The collection of photochroms issued by this company comprises many thousands of views of places and objects of every part of the world, including the scenery of Germany, England, Austria, the Tyrol, Italy, France, Switzerland and other European countries, a very interesting series of Egypt, Palestine and India, and most superb views of American scenery. The prices range from 25 cents to thirty dollars, according to the size and finish, and a catalogue and price list will be sent post-paid on application. The durability of photochroms is guaranteed by the Photochrom Company to be equal to that of a first-class photograph.
The office and salesrooms are located at Nos. 919-920 Hammond Building, where all the many views in the great collection issued by the company are on exhibition and inspection is cordially invited. The company is now building a great factory at Wyandotte, Mich., which will comprise three floors, each 175 by 50 feet in dimensions, for the demand for its views is so great as to render necessary greatly increased facilities for production. The officers of the Photochrom Company are as follows: H. W. Avery, President; E. H. Husher, Vice-President and Manager; Rudolph A.
Demme, Secretary and Treasurer." Edwin H. Husher managed the Photochrom Company until 1897. William A.
Livingstone was Secretary and Treasurer of the company from 1897 through 1905, and Henry A. Cleland was president from 1908 through 1905. Cleland and Livingstone simultaneously held similar positions with the Detroit Photographic Company. and more information on the evolution of the companies, their post card business and the photochrom process is included in the entry for that company. William H. Jackson was listed as superintendent of the Photochrom Company in 1915, 1916 and 1919. Only an experimental issue of post cards in 1898 carried the Photochrom name. d 3

Novelty Gallery which has located here for a short time, has made a remarkable record in some of our neighboring 1 cities, eclipsing anything ever heard of before in the number of sittings made and pictures turned out in the same space 1 of time. The figures are interesting: Big Rapids, 11 days, 14,300 pictures; Cadillac, 16 days, 21,000 pictures; Reed 1 City, 16 days, 14,000; Clare, 5 days, 4,500 pictures. Thinking people will appreciate the fact that the above record 1 could not have been made in neighboring towns had not their business methods been strictly honorable. Rooms in 1

John was born in Germany on June 24, 1879, first of the seven children of Charley and Augusta Pick. He immigrated with his family in 1891, and became a United States citizen when his father was naturalized before John was an adult. He boarded over the saloon at 580 East Milwaukee Avenue from 1903 until 1918, except for 1906 and 1915 when he was identified as a laborer living on Wesson Avenue. Some of the listings were for John L. Pick or John J. Pick. “JOHN PICK, 580 Milwaukee Ave. E., Detroit, Mich.” was stamped on the back of a 9 by 6 inch commercial mount carrying a photograph of two couples and a little girl standing beside their home. John was tall with brown eyes and gray hair in 1918. Minnie was born in Germany in 1878 or 1879, immigrated in 1882, married first around 1896, and seems to have charmed John into his first marriage about 1929.

Arthur was born in Michigan to a mother from Ohio in February of 1870, second of the three sons of William Lewis Pierce and Mary R. (Lee) Pierce. He grew up on the family farms, and he was called Henry as a child. Susie was born in Michigan to English parents in September of 1872, she married Arthur in 1893, and their daughter Mary was born here in September of 1894. "A. Pierce, Petersburg, Mich." was printed or "A. H. PIERCE, PHOTOGRAPHER, PETERSBURG, MICH." was stamped on the post card backs with 1907 or 1908 postmarks of photographs of Petersburg and Deerfield. "Here You Are! Come to my Gallery at Deerfield (open Fridays and Saturdays) and I will please you with first-class work. Bring this card with you and I will give you one sitting absolutely free. Prompt work, reasonable prices. A. PIERCE, Photographer, Petersburg, Mich." was printed on the post card back of a photo of the Deerfield railroad depot. Pierce and Arthur R. Van De Venter produced post card photographs of Allen's Cove and Temperance. Erie was in Monroe County three miles from Lake Erie, and this Lakeside was a resort area on the lake shore opposite Erie. It never had a post office, and I have not found this Lakeside on a map. "A. H. Pierce, Photographer, Petersburg, Mich." was stamped in small letters on the back of postal photos of Petersburg scenes in the 1911-12 era. Views of dredging operations on the Macon River in Monroe County and scenes in Petersburg and Colon carried the script blind stamp "A. H. Pierce, Colon, Mich." and were postmarked in 1914. Post card photographs of Colon were produced by Pierce & Rhodes, photographers of Colon and Athens. "A. H. Pierce, Photographer, Bronson, Mich." was stamped on the face of postal photos, including one of a barn that had lost its roof and parts of its walls to a wind storm. Studio portraits on post card stock were blind stamped: "A. H. Pierce, New Way Studio, Coldwater, Mich." Arthur still was married in 1920, when he was living by himself in Coldwater.

His father came from New Hampshire and Benjamin was born in New York State in January of 1834, second of the five children of Solomon and Hannah Pierce. He grew up on the family farm, and he came to Grand Rapids in 1852 with his parents. Clara was born in Michigan to parents from New York in 1836 or 1837, and she married Benjamin about 1863. Their daughter Mary (later Mamie) was born in Grand Rapids in 1865 or early in 1866. Benjamin and his brother Henry pioneered the wholesale manufacture of ice cream before 1870. He was a widower by 1900, when he was living with Henry's family. Marie was born in New York to parents from New Jersey in 1846 or early in 1847, and she married Benjamin about 1903. He retired from the ice cream business only a couple of years before his death, while his brother Henry continued the enterprise. Benjamin endured a long illness prior to his death at his Grand Rapids home on April 25, 1915. He had lived 81 years, and was survived by his widow, his daughter, a sister and two brothers.

David was born in Massachusetts or Connecticut to natives of the United States in the summer of 1819. Alice was born in Ireland in 1814 or early in 1815. She immigrated to America, and by 1850 she was married to David. They never had any children. David was a co-founder of the Detroit Baseball Club in 1859, and also was one of the players. "D. Pierce, Artist." within a leaf design was stenciled onto the back of cartes de visite. The gallery at the southeast corner of Michigan Avenue and Wayne Street was occupied by Thomas L. Parker in 1867, Robert B. Hudson in 1868, and F. H. Doran in 1869. Alice still was keeping house for David in 1880.

His father came from Illinois and Harry was born in Michigan on June 7, 1879, the only child of Orlando M. and Nellie (Evan) Pierce. He was listed in Detroit directories as H. Lynn Pierce through 1907, but as Harry L. Pierce in 1910 and later directories, and in most census reports. Harrie L. Pierce was the way he signed his draft registration, and was the way he was listed in the 1908 Detroit directory and the 1910 census report. Mabel O. Smith was born to a mother from Iowa at London, Ontario, on January 29, 1883, the only child of Charles William Smith and Paulina Anne (Graham) Smith. She moved to Detroit with her parents in 1890, but returned to Essex, Ontario, to marry Harry on November 8, 1904. David Radford Blyth brought no previous professional photographic experience to his partnership with Harry in the Miami Studio, though he returned to the field for a couple of years in 1916 with another Detroit studio. Harry was divorced by 1910, when he was back living with his parents. Her father emigrated from England and Nettie was born in Canada in 1877. She came to the United States in 1893, and she married Harry about 1910. Their daughters were born in Detroit: Virginia in 1911, and Dorothy in 1913. Nettie was a widow by 1930, when she was providing a home in Detroit for her daughters. Virginia was working as a stenographer, and Dorothy was working as a grocery clerk.

His father came from Vermont and Henry was born in Canada about 1828, second of the three sons of Ephraim and Louisa Pierce. His middle initial was K in some records. By 1850 his father was a widower who worked as a carpenter. Her father came from Vermont and Melinda J. Armstrong was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in 1840 or early in 1841, first of the four children of James B. and Harriett W. Armstrong. She married Henry in 1857 or early in 1858, and their son Henry E. Pierce was born in Michigan about 1859. Something happened to Melinda, and Henry married again. Heziah London was born in Canada to Canadian parents in 1842, the daughter of Jeremiah and Phoebe (Cutler) London. She immigrated and married Henry in 1865, when she began caring for his son. She gave birth to Charles in Missouri about 1867, to Frank in Missouri about 1871, and to Harriet in Michigan about 1875. Heziah died at Lexington and Henry married her sister Keziah London on February 26, 1879. Keziah was born in Canada in October of 1845 and was a widow by 1900, when she was living by herself in Lexington. She married Hiram Morrison in October of 1900, and she died at Lexington in 1912.

His father emigrated from England and Frank was born in Michigan to a mother from New York on October 12, 1874, first of the five children of Edward and Lyda Pilbeam. The Fred C. Pilbeam profiled below was his youngest brother. Agnes was born in Michigan to Irish parents in February of 1877, and she married Frank about 1899. Their daughter Dorothy was born at Ypsilanti in 1901. The Mount Clemens listing was for Frank Pillbeam. Two similar imprints read: "PILBEAM'S STUDIO, Ypsilanti and Saline." The Grand Ledge photographer about 1905 was identified only as Pilbeam. In 1917, Frank and his wife owned their home in Middleville. The name was sometimes listed as Pilbean. "'Oh You Beautiful Snow' MIDDLEVILLE, MICH., FEB. 22nd, '12 - Photo by PILBEAM, Middleville, Mich." was press printed on the face of a post card street scene. "M. C. Wreck, Middleville, Mich., Tuesday, March 11th, 1913" and "St. James Hotel Fire, Middleville, Mich., Sunday Morning, March 16th, 1913" were similarly printed on two series of post card views with no identification of the photographer. By 1918 Frank was a stout man with gray eyes and brown hair.

John was born in the German state of Prussia in March of 1830, immigrated to the United States in 1854 and later became a naturalized citizen. He married first about 1870 and had two sons born in Michigan: Joseph about 1871, and Philip in January of 1874. Something happened to his first wife. Mary, later known as Margaret, was born in the Prussian region of Germany in March of 1856, and she immigrated about 1876. She married John about 1877, and their children were born in Michigan: Susan in July of 1878, Peter in May of 1880, Edward in February of 1882, Margaret in June of 1883, and Elizabeth in September of 1889. "Pinten & Bros., Photographers, Hancock and Calumet, Mich. Negatives Preserved. Copies can always be had. Also Mouldings and Picture Frames of all sizes." was printed on the back of some card photograph mounts. William Pinten, born in Prussia about 1834, was a Hancock Township laborer in 1870, and may have been associated with Joseph and John about 1876. Pierre Pinten, born in Prussia about 1839, was a mining laborer at Minesota Mine in 1860, and is less likely than William to have been involved with Pinten & Brothers.

Joseph and his wife were born in the German state of Prussia, He in October of 1831 and Anna in December of 1835. They were pioneer residents of Rockland, and their son John was born in Michigan in May of 1863. Their younger son, Joseph Gabriel Pinten, was born in Rockland on October 3, 1867, and entered a seminary when he was fourteen. He went to Rome, Italy, in 1885 to study theology, and was ordained a priest on November 1, 1890, when he was appointed to the parish at Detour, Michigan. He was later moved to Iron Mountain, and in 1898 to L'Anse. In 1899 he was appointed rector of St. Peters Cathedral at Marquette. On December 3, 1921, he was appointed the third bishop of Superior. On June 25, 1926, he was appointed bishop of Grand Rapids.

Clarence was born in Darke County, Ohio, to natives of Ohio on March 20, 1879, the only child of Ross and Everella L. Pitman. He became a five foot nine inch man with grey eyes and light brown hair. Maud (sometimes Maude) Gail Humphrey was born at South Whitley, Indiana, on June 23, 1881, and she married Clarence in Allen County, Indiana, on March 12, 1900. Their sons were born in Michigan: Delbert in 1902, and Clarence in August of 1916. "PITMAN & BEEBE" was lettered on the negatives of a series of post card photographs of the washout at Alden on August 25, 1910. "B. & P." was lettered on the negatives of Alden street scenes. Edward L. Beebe was a Kalkaska photographer for six years prior to his partnership with Clarence, and for seven years following the partnership. Clarence covered his R.F.D. mail route on a motorcycle. He rode the motorcycle from Rapid City over to Kalkaska on December 12, 1911, to get it overhauled for use in the next season. "PITMAN" was lettered on the negatives of postal photos (many postmarked in 1911 and 1912) of Antrim County farm scenes, logs on the Elk River and an ore ship unloading at Elk Rapids, a tent camp and the bridge on the Torch River, several views of a wreck on the Pere Marquette Railroad at Clay Siding on April 15, 1912, bird's-eye and closer views of Persons Harbor, and many views of Rapid City. These include summer and winter street scenes, a series on road building, and fishermen below the dam on the Rapid River. Maud still was keeping house in 1930 for Clarence, who died at Cambridge City on July 28, 1960.

His father emigrated from England and Francis was born at Rochester, New York, on January 20, 1848, second of the four children of William and Diantha Pitts. His sister Julia was four years older, his sister Sarah was born in May of 1850, and his brother James was born in October of 1851. Francis was living in 1860 on the farm of Alvin and Sarah Groly along with their four daughters. In 1861 he moved to Ottawa County, Michigan. He was a farmer 5 feet 3½ inches tall with a light complexion, blue eyes and light hair when he was enrolled at Grand Rapids as a private in Company M of the Tenth Michigan Cavalry on February 15, 1865. He joined the regiment on March 16 at Knoxville, Tennessee. He was honorably discharged and mustered out of the army with his company at Memphis, Tennessee, on November 11, 1865. The date of his move from Claybanks to Berlin is not clear. Sarah Ellen Smith was born in Iowa to parents from New York on July 2, 1853, and she married Francis at Alpine in Kent County on August 5, 1871. Their daughter Clara was born on February 22, 1874, and they moved to Shelby in 1878. For a few years they actually were living in the village of Barnett, which was renamed Shelby in 1885. Francis continued to reside at Shelby while engaging in the Whitehall business with his brother James D. Pitts and Alverton H. Towne. He was a delegate in 1888 to the Michigan State Association of the Knights of Labor. He was five feet five inches tall and weighed 135 pounds late in 1892, when his application for an Invalid Pension was based upon chronic gastritis and heart disease which totally disabled him from manual labor, and he began receiving a pension of $8.00 per month. This was increased in 1910 to $12.00, in 1912 to $13.50, and in later years to $15.50, $19.00 and $22.50. Francis was enumerated as a day laborer in 1900, and as a laborer in a basket factory in 1920. Sarah became a widow when Francis died on or shortly before July 2, 1930.

James was born at Auburn, New York, on October 7, 1851, last of the four children of William and Diantha Pitts. He settled in Shelby in 1878, and in 1880 was living there with the family of his brother Francis A. Pitts. His brother Francis and Alverton H. Towne were his associates at Whitehall. Alverton H. Towne continued as a photographer at Whitehall until 1894, and then at Shelby until 1899. "Pitts & Moody, PHOTOGRAPHERS, Negatives Preserved for Future Orders. Shelby, Michigan." was printed on the back of 8 by 10 inch mounts of photographs of logging with a steam skidder, of a modest harbor, of a small town lumber mill and of men working on its mill pond. John H. Moody continued as a Shelby photographer until 1895. James still was single in 1910.

Daniel was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan in November of 1867, the son of William S. and Achsah Pixley. In 1880 he and his younger brother William were living on a farm in Henrietta Township of Jackson County with their mother and her second husband, William H. Whallon. Zella was born in Michigan to parents from New York in September of 1864, and she married Daniel about 1889. Their sons were born in Michigan: Howard on January 3, 1890, Burr on February 20, 1891, Harry on October 26, 1894, and Lloyd on September 4, 1896. "D. B. Frank was born at Janesville, Wisconsin, to parents from New York on July 22, 1852, second of the five children of Benjamin F. and Jane E. Pixley. The work of J. J. Hughson & F. L. Pixley in the preparation of their St. Joseph gallery for its formal opening on February 11, 1888, was reported during the preceding month. The gallery was comprised of dressing, reception, operating and finishing rooms all newly painted and papered, partially carpeted, and furnished attractively and comfortably. The proprietors were experienced men starting with a good supply of artists' materials and pleasing scenic effects, and with the intention of making every effort to merit patronage. By November they had taken a nice large photograph of W. T. Sherman Camp Number 57 of the Sons of Veterans. Joseph J. Hughson entered the photographic business at Dowagiac in 1886, and he continued in the business at Saint Joseph until 1893. Her father came from Ohio and Marie was born in Indiana to a mother from Massachusetts in May of 1862. She married Frank in the spring of 1890, and their daughter Genette was born in Michigan in May of 1896. Frank died in 1922, and was interred in Lakeview City Mausoleum at Saint Joseph. Marie was living alone at Dowagiac in 1930.

His father came from Connecticut and Clayton was born at Oberlin, Ohio, to a mother from Ohio on July 16, 1862, third of the four children of the photographer Alfred Cowles Platt and his wife Eleanor Harriet (Page) Platt. His sisters Eva and Ella were four and three years older. His mother died in March of 1864 one month after giving birth to Harriet, who lived only fifteen months. His father married a lady from New York named Leonora, and Clayton's half-sister Regina was added to the family about 1868. His half-brother Fred was born about 1872. By 1865 Alfred had moved his photographic business to Sandusky, where Clayton succeeded him two decades later. Florence Gray Palmer was born in New York State to an English mother on August 14, 1863, first of the four children of Charles and Anna J. Palmer. She married Clayton in 1883, and their daughters were born in Ohio: Winifred in October of 1884, and Lucile in June of 1890. His father emigrated from Canada and Wilbert was born in Michigan on March 1, 1881, eldest of the four children of Isaac H. and Matilda Platt. He became a medium sized man with blue eyes and brown hair. Phelpston, Ontario, had a photographer in 1906 named William A. Platt, which was the same as the listing in the gazetteer for 1909. Wilbert married a young lady named Della about 1904. They were living at 781 Baldwin Avenue in 1918, but by 1920 Wilbert was a widower. The change in address from 1519 to 6553 Woodward Avenue during 1920 was due to universal revisions in the Detroit numbering system, rather than to relocation. Margaret was born in New York to Irish parents on April 21, 1892, second of the four children of Edward and Mary (McMurrey) Cunningham. She married Wilbert about 1920 and their daughters were born in Michigan: Marian in 1921, and Elizabeth in 1922. Wilbert seems to have died prior to 1940, but Margaret (later Margarite) lived in Los Angeles until February 20, 1982.

Harvey was born at Ecorse, Michigan, to French Canadian parents on March 24, 1882, the son of Arthur J. Plourde and his first wife. His sister Ida was born in Michigan in September of 1880. Something happened to Harvey's mother, and about 1888 his father married Elizabeth Dumontier, who was born in French Canada in September of 1853. Elizabeth gave birth to Arthur in June of 1889. Harvey became a short man with blue eyes and brown hair. Harry O. Chapman's partnership with Harvey was his only venture into professional photography. Her father emigrated from Germany and Mabel was born in Michigan in 1886. She married Harvey in 1909, their children were born in Michigan, and probably in River Rouge. Sons Neal and Merle were born early in 1912 and about 1924. Daughters Luciana, Marceline and Marilyn were born early in 1913, in 1915 and about 1927. Every pertinent census and the 1918 draft registration found Harvey and his family living in River Rouge.

- George was born at Bryan, Ohio, to natives of Ohio in September of 1859, first of the six children of Alfred and Huldah (Stamer) Plummer. His mother died, probably shortly after giving birth to twin girls about 1871, and his father soon married Jane Cheesman. George's half-brother Harry was born about 1877. Alice O. Snyder was born at Bellville, Ohio, to parents from Pennsylvania about 1864, eldest of the six children of John V. and Sarah C. Snyder. She married George at Grand Rapids on December 19, 1883. Their children were born in Grand Rapids: Florence in 1885, and Edward in 1900. Alice died in Grand Rapids in 1901. Cora Ann Hodskey was born at Holly, Michigan, to parents from New York in 1869, last of the two children of Daniel and Amelia Hodskey. Her first marriage was to Frederick N. Prince at Windsor, Ontario, on January 25, 1896. She married George at Grand Rapids on September 21, 1904. By 1910 George was again a widower. He and his son were living in 1910, 1920 and 1930 with the family of George's daughter Florence and her husband, Teaze Schalk. 2 1

His parents emigrated from Ireland and Oliver was born in Michigan in October of 1864, first of the eight children of Patrick and Anna S. Plunkett. George W. Barker had been a professional photographer for 35 years prior to his partnership with Oliver, and he continued as a Pewamo photographer until 1891. Oliver purchased an interest in the Mount Pleasant gallery of Joseph B. Lone early in July of 1889, and they sold the gallery to Loren S. Morey in September of 1890. Oliver opened his first gallery at St. Johns the following month. In the fall of 1892 his new gallery was located in the Steel Block over Chapin & Company's dry goods store, and he was advertising the "Finest Artistic Work, Copying and Enlarging, Picture Frames and Mats." He was described as both "... a thorough master of the chemical and mechanical manipulations and an artist quick to discern possibilities in posing..." One of his cabinet photographs had a two inch diameter portrait of a bearded man surrounded by a geometric border and then by myriad cuts of beer mugs, whiskey bottles, other bottles and glasses, pool tables, cigars, a ram holding a glass of beer and a waitress with many beer mugs. His advertisements in 1896 claimed that "PLUNKETT'S ELECTRIC STUDIO, NO. 31 CLINTON AVE., Is the Largest, Best Equipped, and has the only up-to-date light - a steep north one - in the County. The Photograph from this Gallery is as far ahead of the usual work you see, as electricity is ahead of the old fashioned stage coach. The Studio is lighted by electricity, has an electric Showcase on the street, and Harry's Electric Retouching Machine is used exclusively in retouching." Oliver was an agent for Rambler and Clipper bicycles in 1898, and sold bicycles, picture frames, gramophones and sporting goods from 1900 through 1903. Her father emigrated from Canada and Caroline was born in Michigan in 1880. She married Oliver about 1903, and their children were born in Michigan: Frederick in 1904, Helen in 1907, Alice in September of 1908, Alexander in April of 1917, and Oliver in May of 1919. Oliver advertised in 1905: "PLUNKETT'S STUDIO, the Largest and Best in Clinton Co. Copying and Enlarging in any style Water Color, Crayon or India Ink. Photo Pillow Tops with Plain and Fancy Borders. Babies' Pictures taken on Cloudy Days. Free Lavatory and Dressing Room for women with children and ladies wishing to arrange their toilet. - PICTURE FRAMING. A full line of the latest styles in Mouldings to select from. An up to date line of Room Mouldings from 2 to 5c per foot. - EDISON PHONOGRAPHS AND RECORDS FOR ALL TALKING MACHINES. - O. G. PLUNKETT, FINE PHOTOGRAPHS, 51 Clinton Avenue, St. Johns, Michigan." The Maple Rapids studio was a branch of the St. Johns business. Oliver was enumerated in 1910 as the proprietor of a Saint Johns department store. He seems to have established a residence in Detroit by 1913.

Frederick was born in the Mecklenburg region of Germany about 1827. He may have sailed from London to New York on S. S. Yorktown, arriving on January 8, 1853. Henrietta was born in Germany in December of 1847, and she immigrated in 1864. She soon married Frederick, and most of their children were born in Michigan: Ida in the summer of 1866, Martha in August of 1869, Norma in 1870 or early in 1871, Bruno (later Frederick) in September of 1874, and Hugo in March of 1877. Information about the Pohl Brothers photographic business is included in the entry for Charles J. F. Pohl. Frederick and Henrietta moved to Windsor, Ontario, and their daughter Charlotte was born there in January of 1885. Frederick commuted across the Detroit River to work in Detroit until his death about 1888. Henrietta had returned to Detroit by 1889, and she lived there until her death on October 10, 1904.

His paternal grandparents emigrated from France to Canada. Joseph was first of the four children of Honore (later John) H. and Philomena E. (Toutant) Poisson. He was born on September 22, 1864, at Three Rivers, Ontario, and was ten years old when his parents brought him to Grand Rapids. He returned to Canada for his education, and graduated from St. Joseph's College in Three Rivers, Ontario. Miss Louise M. Bruneau was born in Michigan to Canadian parents in May of 1872, and she was living at Grand Haven when she married Joseph on March 5, 1889. Their children were born in Michigan: Lillian in January of 1890, Marie in June of 1894, Beatrice in September of 1897, Rose (later Margrite) in February of 1899, Joseph in 1900, and Jerome in 1906. As a young man Joseph worked with his father, Captain John H. Poisson, operating the first steam pleasure boats on Reed's Lake. He later purchased one of the boats, the Hazel A., which he operated for a number of years. About this time he opened at Reed's Lake what has been called the first tintype gallery in Grand Rapids. He and Charles Poisson conducted the Poisson Brothers boat livery at Reed's Lake between 1902 and 1907. Joseph brought the first motorcycles to Grand Rapids, and operated an Indian Motorcycle agency in conjunction with his Division Street photograph studio. He sold the city the first motorcycles ever used by the Grand Rapids police department. He later concentrated upon the motorcycle trade and motorcycle racing, garnering numerous prizes for his feats on cycles. Poisson's Theatre existed from 1916 until 1927, at times managed by others, and Joseph also was proprietor of the Royal Theatre from 1922 through 1924. He retired in 1925, and was 70 years old when he died at his Grand Rapids home from an apoplectic stroke on May 21, 1935. He left his wife, two sons and four daughters, and was interred in Graceland mausoleum. Louise lived until January 16, 1947.

Faustino was born in February of 1857 near Florence, Italy, and he came to the United States in 1881. Within a year he was married to Louisa Damm and their children were born in Detroit: Clorinda in December of 1882, Lillian in July of 1884, and Oscar in May of 1892. During the 1890s he and Louisa were the proprietors of Poli's Cafe, which was a famous rendezvous for theatrical celebrities. "F. G. Poli, Detroit, Maker of Pictures" was printed on 10 ¾ by 5 ½ inch buff mounts which carried an oval photograph and a small calendar for the year 1906. Some of his photo mount imprints included a facsimile of the gold medal which was awarded for the photographs he exhibited at the 1906 Esposizione Internazionale in Milan, Italy. Faustino sailed from Genoa, Italy, on S. S. Principe di Piemonte on November 3 and arrived at New York City on November 20, 1907. The Poli's daughter Lillian became a well known singer and actress in musical comedies and light opera. When Faustino died on May 31, 1910, his widow took his place as proprietor of the Poli Studio.

Often identified as Louise, she was a member of one of Detroit's earliest families. Louisa was born in Detroit in February of 1863, fourth of the five children of Louis and Caroline Damm. She married Faustino about 1881 and their children were born in Detroit: Clorinda in December of 1882, Lillian in July of 1884, and Oscar in May of 1892. She and Faustino managed the popular Poli's Cafe through the 1890s, and she undoubtedly participated in the operations of the Poli Studio in the early 1900s. Post card photographs of individuals and of groups of up to fifty people were made with Poli Studio imprints from 234 Randolph Street, 40 Broadway and 1334 Broadway. Oscar A. Poli worked for his mother in the Poli Studio for more than a decade, and became the proprietor by 1927. He and his sisters, musical actress Lillian (Mrs. John MacCulloch) and Clorinda, survived Louisa when she died at 67 years of age on February 15, 1931.

His father was born in England, his mother was born into an Irish family in Scotland, and Charles was born at Cayuga, Ontario, on January 16, 1861. He was one of the sons of William and Helen Pomeroy. His three older brothers were born in New Brunswick between 1846 and 1854. His three younger brothers were born in Michigan between 1865 and 1875, and the eldest did not live to maturity. Charles' family immigrated, arriving in Michigan on April 10, 1862. He later became a five foot eleven inch man weighing 135 pounds with a fair complexion, brown hair and blue eyes. Her father came from New York and Lillia (usually Lillie) was born in Canada to a Canadian mother on November 8, 1862, first of the two daughters of Dr. Hiram and Frances (Vernon) Hayward. She immigrated with her family about 1865, and she married Charles in Worth Township on August 29, 1890. Their sons were born in Michigan: Vernon (later Carlton) in February of 1893, Ivan in December of 1899, and John (later Howard) in 1902. Ivan died prior to 1910. "POMEROY, Sanilac Centre, Mich." was printed on some cabinet mounts. Sanilac Center was called Sandusky before 1889 and after 1905. Some records indicate that Charles became a United States citizen prior to 1880, but he formally declared his intention of becoming a citizen at Blaine on August 25, 1916, and was naturalized by 1930. Charles was lodging with a Blaine family in 1920, when Lillian was working as a department store saleswoman and with her son Howard was boarding with a Los Angeles widow. Lillie and Howard were living on the ranch with Charles in 1930. Charles seems to have died before 1941, and Lillia died in Los Angeles County on January 5, 1943.

| Portable houses were advertised as photographic galleries which could be taken apart, transported, and then reassembled at a different location. William D. Pugh was manager of both this company and the Grand Rapids Portable House Company at the same address in 1891 and 1892. He was proprietor of the Portable House Company from 1894 through 1897. A national photographic journal noted during the summer of 1894 that "The Portable Studios manufactured by the Portable House Company, Grand Rapids, Mich., are excellently adapted for use as summer galleries, being made of wood throughout, convenient, and reasonable in price.... a reliable manufacturer of portable studios for summer resorts and other purposes....this firm ... has furnished a number of all-wood galleries to photographers, which have given satisfaction." The company advertised nationally: "... We manufacture Portable Houses of all sizes, and make a Specialty of ART STUDIOS, which are the Lightest, the Strongest, the Most Practical Business Buildings that can be devised..." and: "PORTABLE ART STUDIOS. Light, substantial, and practical business buildings. Cash, or on time. ALL WOOD. Address, W. D. Pugh, Portable House Company., Grand Rapids, Mich." Other photographic periodicals carried similar ads in 1895 and 1896. | 1 23 gg1111 222 113 4 |     |

- Harry and his twin sister Lenora were born in Michigan to parents from Massachusetts in June of 1872, second and third of the three children of Morris H. and Mary R. Porter. He succeeded his father as the photographer in Allegan, and his cabinet mounts were clearly marked: "HARRY M. PORTER, Allegan, Michigan." The MHP monogram on some 1890s cabinet mounts could be interpreted as HMP, but Morris had been using the same monogram for many years so such photographs can be attributed to him with confidence. Harry was single in 1900, and was living with his parents along with his twin sister who became a school teacher and then a librarian.

Morris was born in Massachusetts to natives of Massachusetts in April of 1839, first of the three children of Milton and Lodoiska (later Clara) (Hume) Porter. His brother Ralph was born about 1848, and his sister Julia was born about 1852. Mary was born in Massachusetts to natives of Massachusetts in October of 1843, and she married Morris at Kalamazoo in 1863. Their children were born in Michigan: Gertrude (later Mary) in 1864 or early in 1865, and the twins Harry and Nora (later Lenora) in June of 1872. Morris' partner in Decatur was George B. Boughton, who remained a Decatur photographer until 1869. The name of the town was spelled "Calamazoo" on some cartes de visite by Morris, including one of a small child lolling against a large dog. Porter & Seymour were awarded a premium for the Best Collection of Photographs exhibited at the 16th Annual Michigan State Fair, held at Kalamazoo in September of 1864. Porter & Packard produced Kalamazoo street scenes on cartes de visite. Cullen C. Packard was just out of the Union Army when he became the partner of Morris, and he still was a Kalamazoo photographer in 1891. With Moses Sutton of Detroit, Porter and Edgar H. Perry made up the Michigan Committee for Collecting Funds for Furthering the Objects of the first convention of the National Photographic Association, which was held at New York in April of 1868. "M. H. PORTER, Photographer, 118 Main St., Kalamazoo." was stamped on the paper sleeves of tintypes. Morris' partners about 1880 were Adolphus Van Sickle, who was a professional photographer from 1867 through 1895, and Charles Palmiter, who with another partner remained a Kalamazoo photographer until 1885. In the spring of 1883 Morris' Allegan gallery was over Dryden & Sons hardware store, and he offered to copy and enlarge pictures and to finish them in ink, oil or water colors. Morris attended the convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Milwaukee in August of 1883. He produced both stereo views and photographs on 5¼ by 8½ inch mounts of the ruins left by the great fire in Allegan on March 12, 1884. He used more 5¼ by 8½ inch mounts for pictures of Allegan's business section decorated for a G.A.R. reunion. In 1887 his gallery was reached through the first door west of Dryden & Sons, but his Ground Floor Studio adjoining city hall was noted on later cabinet mounts. His cabinet photographs included several portraits of dogs, alone and with their owners, a little girl washing clothes in the back yard, and interesting groups of people. Morris was succeeded in Allegan by his son, Harry M. Porter.

His father came from New York and William was born at Atlanta, Georgia, to a mother from Massachusetts on September 24, 1881, last of the four children of Levi W. and Fannie R. Post. He became tall and slender with brown eyes and black hair. Her father came from New York and Mary Ellis (usually Ellis) Sinclair was born in Michigan to a mother from Vermont on March 22, 1881, last of the three children of Percy Shelly Sinclair and Caroline E. (Butler) Sinclair. Her twin brothers were born in 1877. Ellis married William about 1909, and their sons were born in Detroit: William in 1910, and John in 1921 or early in 1922. The elder William's first photographic studio was in the home of his parents. Levi died a year later, and in 1919 William was identified as the owner of the home. By this time his hair was turning gray and his eyesight was poor. The change of address during 1920 was due to universal revisions to the Detroit numbering system, and not to relocation. For many years William was a vestryman at the Epiphany Episcopal Church. He was the first president of Master Photo Finishers. He was ill for three weeks prior to his death at his Detroit home on June 6, 1942. William was survived by his wife and sons as well as by two brothers. Ellis lived on in Detroit until 1975.

Burton was born on September 7, 1893, up on Georgian Bay at Meaford in Grey County, Ontario, fourth of the nine children of Andrew Franklin Post and Edith Ann (Cross) Post. His surname was consistently spelled Post in Ontario, and just as consistently spelled Poste in the United States. Burton grew up on the family farm and became an average sized man with brown eyes and hair. Gladys Mae Biddlecomb was born in Michigan on October 26, 1893, the only child of Port Huron photographer William G. Biddlecomb and his wife, Eliza (Hopkins) Biddlecomb. She married Burton about 1916, and they never had children. Burton crossed the Saint Clair River to Port Huron on April 30, 1917, and went down to work at Detroit. Most Detroit addresses changed during 1920. Burton was a naturalized citizen of the United States by 1930, when E. F. Schwalm was proprietor of the Poste Gift Shop. Burton obtained his Social Security number in Florida in 1955, and Gladys obtained hers in California in 1966. He died in San Diego County on April 28, 1970. Gladys continued to reside in Escondido until her death on October 12, 1984.

One Emil Pott was a photographer about 1885 at Wright's Grove, Illinois. This Emil was born in Germany about 1856. He sailed from Hamburg, Germany, on S. S. Thuringia with his mother Anna and his sister Bertha, and they arrived at New York City on November 2, 1871. They then seem to have come directly to Illinois. Emil was naturalized a citizen of the United States by the Superior Court of Cook County, Illinois, on November 5, 1877. Adolph Pott lived with or next door to Emil in 1890 and in 1892. Emil's South Haven residence was at 824 Phoenix Street in 1898.

His father emigrated from Ireland and Charles was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in September of 1860, the only son of Robert and Julia Ann (Henderson) Potter. He had a half-sister and a half-brother from the earlier marriage of his mother. His sister Laura Elizabeth (Libbie) Potter was born in Chesaning in 1865, the same year in which their father was killed there. His mother married Abram Smith in 1872, and Charles soon had another half-brother. Her father emigrated from Canada and Flora was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in January of 1870, the only child of James and Frances Bearce. She married Charles about 1887, and their sons were born in Michigan: Earl in November of 1888, and Dale (later James) in 1912. Charles' cabinet photos were from Breckenridge, from Merrill, and from "... Breckenridge and Merrill, Michigan." On some of the Breckenridge mounts, "1897" or "1898" was printed. Both his wife and his elder son were involved in Charles' photographic business by 1910, and both of them went on to photographic careers of their own. Note that it was Charles Poller who was listed as a New Lothrop photographer in the gazetteers for 1911 and 1913. Charles died before 1920, probably in 1913 or 1914. t 1

Poundstone, Caesar

Benton Harbor assistant to photographer John N. Poundstone ..... 1902-1906 1

“Caesar, a thoroughbred English setter belonging to J. N. Poundstone, Benton Harbor, Mich., helps his master take pictures and may therefore be called the only dog photographer in the United States. He is known to all the kids in the vicinity of the Poundstone suburban home as ‘Caesar Poundstone.’ He is their friend and submits uncomplainingly to all sorts of indignities and rough caresses from childish hands, but will not tolerate undue familiarity by strange adults.... Photographing children is Mr. Poundstone’s specialty. One day several years ago his subject was a particularly troublesome two year old boy. The photographer shook the feather duster in the kid’s face, rang his bell, told him a little bird would fly out, whistled, sang, danced clogs and talked baby talk till almost exhausted, but without result. The kid was obdurate. He had made up his two-year-old infantile mind that he didn’t care to have his picture taken. Caesar, who accompanies his master to his studio daily, lay in an adjoining room... When Poundstone had almost given up in disgust Caesar appeared at the door and looked first at the child and then at the master as if to say, ‘Let me try.’ ‘Why didn’t I think of that before?’ ejaculated Poundstone. ‘Come on, Caesar, and see what you can do.’ The dog trotted up to the child, attracted his interest immediately, and then without a word from his master, mounted a stool near the camera and ‘sat up,’ violently wagging his tail and softly barking to hold the boy’s attention. Snap went the shutter! And the finished picture showed a good natured child with a ‘cute’ expression. Naturally, the mother was delighted and business in juvenile photos received a decided stimulus. Caesar’s fame spread abroad and he became known as ‘Poundstone’s assistant.’ The dog has witnessed so many sittings that he seems to take an interest in having his own picture made. He understands the importance of looking pleasant and the necessity of sitting still. When the finished result is shown to him he gazes as proudly at it as a human might. Caesar can also carry on an intelligent conversation. At least, he can understand and answer questions. He answers in the affirmative by making a guttural sound curiously resembling the human ‘um-huh.’ His negative is a doleful groan. He is an expert aquatic performer and is a familiar figure to the hundreds of resorters who throng the beach in summer....” 1

His father came from Pennsylvania and John was born in Indiana in May of 1862, seventh of the nine children of Elisha J. and Sarah A. Poundstone. Henry E. Bradley had been a professional photographer since 1868 prior to forming his partnership with John N. Poundstone. John sent some cabinet photographs to a photographic journal in the summer of 1895 which were pronounced to be carefully posed and lighted. Her father came from Missouri and Mary Bell (often Mellie) Waggener was born in Indiana in November of 1862, fifth of the seven children of James Newton Waggener and Caroline Taylor (Hendricks) Waggener. She married John in 1898, and they never had children. John was selling good photographs of "Maude" the Company I dog in September of 1898. Among the photographs put into his showcase at the corner of Pipestone and Bluff Streets in May of 1899 was one of Miss Edith Tutton in her night robe with a lighted candle in her hand. The picture was taken by candle light and showed in a clever and unique manner the progress made in this art. The cabinet photos that he exhibited at the annual Photographers' Association of America convention at Celeron on Chautauqua Lake in New York State during the summer of 1899 were judged to be above average. John published this poem in July of 1899:

"The Wonderful Man.

Bald-headed people, don't despair, / Cross-eyed folks, don't cry.
 There's a man in town who can grow your hair / And straighten up your eye.
 If you have blotches, freckles or tan, / Or a nose like an eagle's beak
 You had better visit this wonderful man / Who can make a fairy out of a freak.
 No matter how handsome or sweet you may be / This man your looks can improve
 And he only charges a very small fee / Considering the work that he does.
 Some folks say that it can't be done / But I repeat that it can.
 To avoid the rush you had better run / To Poundstone the photograph man,

Who has just returned from the national convention of photographers of America with the latest ideas in fine photography." Four months later he was exhibiting a fine panel picture of Miss Dora Schairer, the queen of the carnival, and three cabinet pictures on one 11 by 17 inch card, a novelty which the reporter thought would make a very acceptable Christmas present. John produced several 7 ½ by 9 ½ inch photographs of the wagon filled streets of Benton Harbor early in the morning of September 5, 1905, when he was still an active member of the Photographers' Association of America. One of these views was reproduced on 1¼ inch diameter pin back buttons with "PEACH SCENE, BENTON HARBOR, MICH." printed in the sky and "POUNDSTONE STUDIO" printed at the lower edge. Red ribbons suspended from the buttons identified I.O.O.F. representatives meeting at Benton Harbor on October 17, 18 and 19. John died at Greenwood, Indiana, on July 26, 1922. In commenting in 1929 upon the changes along Wall Street in the past decade, the local newspaper noted that "the home that John Poundstone once occupied, high on top of the hill and up to which a long flight of wooden stairs led, has been razed," and "the little brick studio building that Poundstone built on Wall Street was razed when the street was widened" in 1924. "The White Block was erected along about 1897. The late Dr. S. M. White, its builder, occupied the block with his dental offices for a number of years and the late John Poundstone, photographer here for a long time, also had his studio in the building." The White Block was being torn down in 1929. Mellie lived on in Benton Harbor until her death on January 28, 1949.

granted to J. Albert of Munich in 1869 and 1871 and assigned to Edward Bierstadt of New York, and on Patent Number 208,114 granted to J. B. Obernetter of Munich on September 17, 1878, which was assigned to B. F. Powelson and Adolph Mueller of Detroit, and to W. A. Cooper and W. E. Lindop of St. Thomas, Ontario. Benjamin applied for a passport in March of 1878 with the intent of traveling abroad, probably with regard to these patents. At this time he was five feet nine and a half inches tall with dark hazel eyes, a ruddy complexion and hair that was rather gray. The Artotype Company was established at New York in the fall of 1878 to license the process and Bierstadt was its principal operator and instructor for several years. Powelson & Millard retained George H. Ribble and employed photographer James L. Ruddon, photo printer John C. Berger and clerk Miss Carrie L. Chalmers. They advertised in 1880: "POWELSON & MILLARD, (Successors to B. F. Powelson,) ARTISTIC HOTOGRAPHERS, 224 and 226 Woodward Ave.... Photos - from $2.00 to $3.00 per doz. Cabinets - from $5.00 to $8.00 per doz. Panels - from $5.00 to $10.00 per doz. Life Size Portraits in Crayon, India Ink, Oil and Water Colors, $25 to $100. Negatives preserved." Charles A. Millard succeeded their partnership before the year was over, and for a little while called his business the Powelson Gallery. Benjamin used advertising cards at Buffalo with colorfully lithographed baskets of flowers and the words "... Formerly of Detroit." He was granted Patent Number 256,592 on April 18, 1882, for a Photographic Silver Bath Heater. Benjamin died at Buffalo on July 9, 1885, and was buried at Ithaca, New York.

 Burton was born in Iowa on February 11, 1883, first of the four sons of Thomas F. and Rena N. Power. He became a tall man with gray eyes and dark brown hair. "PHOTO BY B. F. POWER" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs along with captions such as "27-2. LOOKING NORTH - STATE ST. GOBLEVILLE, MICH. Pub by L. W. Terry" and "STATE ST. LOOKING SOUTH, JULY 4th 08" and "ELECTRICAL LIGHT PLANT, PAW PAW, MICH." Gobleville (now Gobles) is two miles north and Paw Paw is two miles south of Waverly Township. Burton married a woman from Michigan about 1915, and their son George was born in Indiana in April of 1917. Burton's wife seems to have died soon after the birth of their son. His parents were farming in Decatur Township in 1918, but by 1920 his father had retired and Burton had taken responsibility for the family farm. The farm household included his son, his youngest brother, and his parents 1 2

- Frederick was born in Michigan to parents from New York in September of 1867, last of the three sons of Horace and Anna Powers. His brothers were fourteen and eighteen years older. Quincy is three miles south of Butler Township. One Quincy cabinet photograph by Fred was of a young lady standing by a dental drill with a hair ornament, necklace and bracelets of teeth, a belt of dental tools with more dental paraphernalia suspended from it, and with her hand on a bottle of chloroform standing on a table between a book on dentistry and a couple of other bottles. Gertrude was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in January of 1869. She married Fred about 1889, and they never had children. Gertrude still was living in Quincy in 1910, when Frederick was rooming in Mishawaka near his clothing store. Gertrude was a widow by 1920, when she was proprietress of a clothing store in Warsaw, Indiana.

Henry's father was born in Mecklenburg, his mother was born in Holstein, and they emigrated from those German regions when they were young. Henry was born in Indiana in August of 1869, last of the two sons of Charles and Anna Prange. His brother Louis was a couple of years older. Her father emigrated from England and Elizabeth was born in New York to a Canadian mother about 1882. She married Henry about 1903, and their sons born in Kalamazoo: Horace on November 6, 1905, Henry on May 16, 1913, and Harold in September of 1917. Numbers were penned and captions were typed on the back of stereo mounts. Some examples were: "54 Union R.R. Station. H. T. Prange." and "74 East Main St. H. T. Prange." and "76 Bronson Park. H. T. James was born in the French region of Canada to English parents in March of 1823, second of the eight children of William Gregory Prater and Rachel (Salt) Prater. He emigrated with his family in 1925, and he later became a naturalized citizen of the United States. Ruby was born in New York State in December of 1820, and she married James in 1844 or early in 1845. Their daughter Caroline was born in Michigan about 1846, but she apparently did not live to maturity. James produced stereo views and tintypes at Paw Paw, where his Excelsior Gallery was over Butler's Grocery. A narrow-gauge railroad was completed in September of 1877 between Paw Paw and Lawrence, and during a celebration on October 12, James took pictures of the train before it left Paw Paw and upon its arrival at Lawrence. He advertised in 1878: "PHOTOGRAPHER, Copying and Enlarging in India Ink, Oil and Water Colors."

Emily was born in Michigan to parents from New York on February 17, 1842, third of the ten children of Edwin and Asenath (Newton) Haff. Her parents still were farming in Sterling Township in 1860. Emory A. Pratt was born in 1838 to parents from Vermont at Eden in Erie County, New York, second of the three children of Royal Arial Pratt and Harriet (Hobson) Pratt. He was working in 1860 as a clerk in Macomb County north of the Haff farm, and in 1863 and 1864 he was assessed as a retail dealer at Laingsburg northeast of Lansing. He and Emily were married in Lansing on September 27, 1865, with the photographer Luman F. Heath as a witness. Their daughter Hattie was born at Lansing on January 23, 1869. There was a minor fire in Emily's Michigan Avenue gallery on November 27, 1892. Emory died about 1896. Hattie and her husband, Jerome B. McSherer, were living with Emily in 1910. Hattie was a widow and a dish washer at a restaurant in 1920, when she and two young waitresses from the restaurant were rooming with Emily. Emily was 85 years old at the time of her death on April 4, 1927.

James was born in Massachusetts to natives of Massachusetts in November of 1862. He married Blanche about 1887, their son Waldo was born in Indiana in 1889, and their daughter Marian was born in Michigan in 1895. In August of 1903 James attended the annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Indianapolis on behalf of the American Photo Supply and Manufacturing Company. Postmarked from 1907 to 1912, postal photographs with "PRATT" or PRATT PHOTO" lettered on their negatives were made of more than 35 towns in the Michigan counties of Alcona, Allegan, Alpena, Berrien, Branch, Calhoun, Cass, Eaton, Hillsdale, Ingham, Ionia, Isabella, Kalamazoo, Kent, Mecosta, Montcalm, Oakland, Ottawa, St. Joseph, Tuscola and Van Buren. "From PRATT PHOTO PUBLISHING CO., Photo Specialties and Post Cards, THREE RIVERS, MICH. The Best Little City in the State." was stamped on the face of a sample post card photograph. During the early 1920s the Harvey Photo Shop was at 206 Abbott Avenue, which actually was in East Lansing. "HARVEY PHOTO SHOP" was lettered on the negatives of postal photographs, including a composite of the Michigan Agricultural College football players and coaches. "H.P.S." was lettered on the negative of the new Home Economics Building dated 1924.

One Oscar C. Pratt was born in Ohio to parents from New York about 1840, first of the three sons of Daniel J. and Almira Pratt. He enlisted in the Union Army on September 9, 1861, and was mustered into Battery C of the First Ohio Light Artillery as a private on October 8, 1861. Oscar had been promoted to sergeant by May 22, 1862, when he was discharged to accept promotion. He was commissioned First Lieutenant of Company A in the Fiftieth Ohio Infantry on the same day. Oscar was promoted to Captain on October 16, 1862, and he resigned from the army on May 15, 1863. Another O. C. Pratt was born in Ohio about 1844. He was enumerated as a "pottfogger" at Ishpeming in July of 1870, when he had a 23-year-old wife named Caroline born in Ohio and a three-year-old son named George born in Michigan.

George was born on January 21, 1894, at Balsam in Iron County, Michigan. He was the second son of George and Emily Premo, and he had two older half-sisters, four younger brothers and three younger sisters. He became a tall slim man with gray eyes and dark brown hair. About 1915, he formed a photographic partnership with Frank Wirtanen. Their business was conducted for several years from a small building behind the Finnish Temperance Hall. He was known as George Premo, Junior, and signed papers this way in 1917. He was a veteran of World War I, and he still was living with his parents in 1920. George was lodging in Chicago with another electrical engineer in 1930, and he was living in the Chicago suburb of Barrington in 1942. Apparently he never married. George died at Fremont in Newaygo County, Michigan, on March 30, 1976.

His father came from New York and Hubert was born in Michigan to a mother from Ohio or Vermont in April of 1857, the son of James and Lucy E. Preston. Clotilda was born in Indiana to parents from Pennsylvania in August of 1857, and she married Hubert about 1878. Their sons were born in Michigan: Arthur in July of 1880, and Ray in June of 1889. A rubber stamp with a decorative border around "H. S. Preston, PHOTOGRAPHER, _____, Satisfaction Guaranteed." was used on the back of both card and cabinet photograph mounts. It had a blank spot above the line in which "Scotts, - - Mich." or "_____, - - Mich." or "Crystal, Mich." was stamped, or "Crystal, Mich." was written. Clotilda still was keeping house for Hubert in 1910.

His father emigrated from England and George was born at Ann Arbor to a mother from New Jersey on July 1, 1880, last of the five children of Joseph G. and Sarah H. (Kimble) Price. He was living with his parents in the 1890s, and he became five feet eight inches tall with hazel eyes and brown hair. Bessie Evelyn Dean was born at Lodi, California, on August 11, 1884, second of the four children of Thomas Lee Dean and Olive Orpha (Tallmadge) Dean. She married George on February 9, 1902. George was in the army for 21 months, serving as a First Class Private in the Hospital Corps, and then became a photographer for National Geographic. Bessie gave birth to Dorothy Evelyn Price in Alameda, California, on December 28, 1903. Bessie and Dorothy were with George at Guatemala City in December of 1908 when he applied for a passport to enable them to continue traveling. By this time George was wearing a moustache. Apparently Bessie and George divorced, for on November 18, 1911, Bessie married Enos Marion Higginbotham, who soon adopted Dorothy. The American Consul at Barranquilla registered George for the draft, noting a home address in Grand Rapids and that in addition to his photography, George was an agent for various American manufacturers and publishers.

Joseph was born in England in July of 1837, the only son of Simon and Caroline Price. His parents brought him along when they immigrated in 1838, and his sister Mary was born in Michigan a year later. Sarah was born in New Jersey to natives of New Jersey on October 17, 1837, second of the seven children of Job R. and Lydia A. Kimble. She married Joseph about 1860, and their children were born in Michigan: Harry in the summer of 1866, Myrtella (later Myrtle) in May of 1869, Herbert in August of 1872, William in March of 1873, and George in July of 1880. "JOS. G. PRICE, 163 Dean St., Grand Rapids, Mich." was stamped on the back of the 8 by 10 inch mount of a photo of a family fishing party. Joseph lived at 163 Dean Street from 1895 until 1902. His paternal grandparents emigrated from England and Robert was born in Ontario to an Irish mother in July of 1866, third of the four children of John and Mary Price. He was brought to the United States as a small child, and later became a naturalized citizen. Her father came from New York and Myrtle was born in Indiana to an English mother in September of 1871, last of the eight children of John and Polly (sometimes Mary) Wright. She married Robert about 1894 and their children were born in Michigan: Florence in August of 1896, Lou in October of 1898, and John (later Jack) in 1900. Henry W. Smith is not known to have engaged in professional photography before or after his partnership with Robert. A former employee, William A. Judd, was suspected in the fall of 1900 of the theft from Smith & Price of a valuable lens. He was arrested in Gaylord and admitted the crime. His confession included the location of the lens, which was returned to the photographers. A waltz composed by a Traverse City man was forwarded to a Chicago music publisher along with photograph work produced by Smith & Price for the cover design. Robert was a member in 1905 of the Photographers' Association of America. Smith & Price advertised in 1908: "We make everything of the finest in PHOTOGRAPHS. Our name on your photos is a guarantee of pose, tone, quality, finish and price. SMITH & PRICE, ..." The sons of Robert and Myrtle still were living with their parents in 1920 when they were working as clerks: Lou in a bank and Jack in an insurance office.

His father came from Connecticut, and Charles was born in Ohio in January of 1853. Frankey was born in New York State to a mother from Vermont in 1850 or early in 1851. She was married to Charles by 1880, and she died prior to June of 1900. No record of any children has been found. Card imprints place Charles' Decatur gallery in Poore's Block or Poor's Block, and three of seven spell the name Pritchard, as it was spelled in many of the Decatur gazetteer listings. In Benton Harbor, directory listings and cabinet mounts consistently spell it Prichard, and Charles produced one of finest cabinet photographs of two dogs that I have seen. Some of his Benton Harbor patrons were African American. The partially decomposed body of a man was retrieved from the Paw Paw River. During the 1899 trial of the person accused of murdering this man, Charles testified on October 31 that he had taken a photograph of the dead man's face. On a happier note, in December he finished a fine photograph of the 1899 Benton Harbor High School football team including fourteen players, the coach and the mascot. Charles was living by himself in 1900, 1920 and 1930.

Charles was born on the family farm in Washington Township of Macomb County on March 21, 1867, the only child of Luther and Harriet L. (Sterling) Procter. He attended the public schools of Romeo, graduating in 1886, and took a business course at the Detroit Business College. He assisted on the home farm for many years, "and for some time was a very enthusiastic photographer, many of his fine photographs being now in the hands of his friends and family." Charles became six feet one half inch tall with light hair and eyes that were green or gray. By 1900 he was wearing a sandy colored moustache. Charles applied for a passport in February of 1900 so as to attend the International Exposition at Paris, France, as an assistant to Dr. Bean, who was responsible for the United States Forestry Exhibit. After the Exposition closed he spent some time abroad. Charles visited Silver City, New Mexico, for his health in December of 1903, but the change of climate did not help. He died there on March 17, 1904, in the presence of his father, his aunt, and his fiancé, Miss Mary A. Brewer. His remains were returned to Romeo for burial. 2 1 2 2 2 3 3 2 2 2

Adonijah was born in Vermont to natives of Vermont in 1819 or early in 1820. Her father came from New Jersey and Mary Cox was born in New York to a mother from Vermont in 1823. She married Adonijah and their children were born in Michigan: Ella in the summer of 1854, and Charles late in 1858 or in 1859. Charles died as a child. Adonijah advertised in Pontiac: "PHOTOGRAPHIC LIKENESSES. A. H. PROCTOR is now prepared to take COLORED DAGUERREOTYPE MINIATURES, of superior strength, distinctness of features, and beauty of expression. It is needless to say that these pictures are perfectly accurate from necessity, being produced by the unerring operations of Physical Laws. THE ADDITION OF COLOR TO THIS BEAUTIFUL ART, seems to have rendered it all that its most sanguine admirers could desire. Miniatures taken in every variety of style, single or in groups to suit cutomers. Prices vary from two to three dollars. Visitors received from 9 o'clock A. M. to 4 P. M. ELECTRIC GALVANIC GILDING done on short notice...." His first rooms in Grand Rapids were opened in October of 1848. He moved to Irving Hall in April of 1851, and again to Faneuil Hall two months later. The partnership with Lorenzo Buell began in June of 1852 and utilized rooms in the same Faneuil Hall. Adonijah was elected Marshall of the Eaton County Agricultural Society in 1859, and was chosen to judge horses at the Eaton County Fair in 1858, 1862, 1863 and 1864. He was authorized to raise a cavalry company in 1862, but ended up in the infantry two years later. He was 44 years old when he enlisted as a sergeant in Company K of the 28th Michigan Volunteer Infantry at Vermontville on September 24, 1864. The regiment left Kalamazoo on October 26 for Louisville, and was there assigned to escort a wagon train from Camp Nelson, Kentucky, to Nashville, Tennessee. Arriving on December 5, the 28th took a gallant part in the Battle of Nashville from December 12 to 16, 1864, repulsing the Confederates who were defeated with great losses and driven from the state. The regiment was ordered to Alexandria, Virginia, and then by sea to Morehead City, North Carolina. At Wise's Forks, North Carolina, the 28th was engaged on March 8, 9 and 10, 1865, the enemy making repeated assaults on the Union lines but always being thrown back. Seven men of the regiment were killed and thirteen were wounded during this fighting. After the Confederate surrender, the 28th was on duty at various places in North Carolina. Adonijah wrote letters to the home town newspaper, was commissioned Second Lieutenant on November 12, 1865, and was mustered out of service with the regiment at Raleigh, North Carolina, on June 5, 1866. The 28th returned immediately to Detroit, where the men were paid and disbanded on June 8, 1866. No Veterans Pension Record was found for Adonijah.

His father came from New Jersey and Peter was born in the state of New York on April 3, 1828, fifth of the ten children of Boyse E. and Jane (Hulse) Pruden. He worked in Michigan as a carpenter in Ionia, Clinton and Jackson Counties prior to the war. Catherine Jane Perry was born in Michigan to parents from Rhode Island late in 1835 or in 1836, third of the six children of William and Mary Perry. She married Peter at Lyons, Michigan, on January 1, 1851. Catherine gave birth to Alice S. Pruden on November 7, 1851, and to Jenny A. Pruden on October 31, 1863. Peter was 36 years old when he enlisted at St. Johns in Company L of the First Michigan Engineers and Mechanics on December 12, 1863. He joined the regiment while they were constructing the railroad from Nashville to the Tennessee River, erecting block houses on the railroad from Nashville to Chattanooga, and putting up storehouses and ordnance buildings at Bridgeport and Chattanooga. Companies L and M completed the defenses of Stevenson, Alabama, and then moved to Tennessee. Peter was promoted to Sergeant on August 1, 1864. While the rest of the regiment accompanied Sherman's march to the sea, companies L and M were building block houses and guarding railroads with the Army of the Cumberland and were frequently attacked by the enemy. On March 1, 1865, they proceeded by rail to New York and by steamer to Beaufort, South Carolina, and joined the regiment at Goldsboro, North Carolina. After the Grand Review in Washington on May 24 the regiment was sent to Nashville, where they worked on the defenses until they were mustered out of the army on September 22. At Jackson, Michigan, on October 1, 1865, they were paid off and disbanded. Peter was assessed as a St. Johns photographer in May of 1866. Advertisements for photographer W. H. Houghtaling were replaced on October 26, 1866, by advertisements for Pruden's Gallery at St. Johns. These ran through November 23, and then were replaced in turn by ads for Pruden & George W. Barker on November 30, 1866. Prudenville is in Denton Township and its post office was called Edna from January of 1876 to January of 1886, and Peter sometimes gave one or the other of these names as his place of residence. When he applied for an Invalid Pension in March of 1884 he was 56 years old and five feet five inches tall with a light complexion, brown hair and blue eyes and was afflicted with piles, dyspepsia and rheumatism attributed to exposure during his service in the army. Heart trouble later added to his medical problems and he became more and more incapacitated. Both of his daughters were married, and his wife died about 1896. Ellen was born in England in February of 1847, the daughter of Thomas and Eleanor (Nye) Gilbert, and she immigrated in 1871. Ellen was single and living with her widowed brother Albert prior to her marriage to Peter at West Bay City on December 15, 1900. Peter was divorced by the time he died of senility on November 9, 1912. Burial was in Oak Ridge Cemetery.

Walter was born in Poland in 1896 or very early in 1897, and he immigrated in 1913. Walter Ballaun had a little professional photographic experience before associating with Walter Prusinski, and he remained a Detroit photographer until 1926. The address change of the studio during 1920 was due to numbering system revisions, and not to relocation. Walter had declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States and received his First Papers by 1920, when he was living in Hamtramck with the family of his brother Kazemir. Kazemir was eleven years older than Walter, and he had emigrated from Poland in 1910. One Walter Prusinski, born in Poland about 1896, left Gothenburg, Sweden, on the ship Gripsholm on October 22, 1948. He traveled by himself and arrived at New York on November First, en route to his home at 12505 Wilshire Road in Detroit.

John's surname was also spelled Prystach and Prystasch. He was born in the Ukrainian region of Hungary, either about 1895 or on April 9, 1900, and he was brought to the United States as a young child. He became a slender man with brown eyes and dark hair. John identified Elizabeth Prystash of Detroit as his nearest relative in 1918, when he was boarding with, and probably working for, photographer William E. Oliver. In 1920 John was enumerated as the partner of William E. Oliver.

Harry (John Henry Pulling) was eldest of the seven children of John P. and Rachel Pulling, and he was born in London, England, on August 11, 1889. His family went from their home in London to Liverpool, where they boarded S. S. Oceanic. They left Liverpool on August 12 and arrived at New York City on August 20, 1903, en route to the Jackson home of Harry's uncle, Fred Pulling. Harry's youngest sister and brother were born in Michigan between 1903 and 1905. "W & P" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs of Concord, Munith, Pinckney, Springport and Stockbridge. Some of the cards were mailed in 1909, 1910 and 1911. Harry's associate in 1909, Henry T. Whitmore, is not known to have had any professional photographic experience prior to or subsequent to their partnership. Her father came from Indiana and Doris was born in Ohio in 1895. She married Harry about 1917, and their daughter Martha was born in Ohio a year or two later. Harry died at Jackson in March of 1974. Except for 1909 and 1974, Harry usually was identified as John H. Pulling in the available records.

Adelbert was born in Michigan to parents from New York in September of 1856, fourth of the five children of Norman and Mary A. Pulver. Christine E. (sometimes Elizabeth C.) was born in Canada to Canadian parents in April of 1858, and she married Adelbert about 1887. They raised three children including James, born in Minnesota in December of 1882, and Beatrice, born in Michigan in June of 1892. Adelbert was identified in 1900 and 1930 as H. A. Pulver, and in 1920 as Harry Pulver. He was not to be found in 1910, when Elizabeth was living on a Lincoln Township farm with her daughter and Beatrice's husband, Lawrence Morris.

John was born in England to English parents on August 8, 1876. He may have been last of the three children of John and Catherine (Watkins) Pumford. His family immigrated in the 1880s, and John later became a citizen of the United States, probably as a minor when his father was naturalized. He became a tall man with gray eyes and dark hair, and as a young man he was called Jack. Her father emigrated from Canada and Christine was born in Michigan to an English mother in March of 1872. When she married John about 1895, she brought along her seven-year-old son Arthur. Christine gave birth to Floyd in 1903. John emphasized view work in 1906. Something happened to Christine in the 1920s, and by 1930 John had married Mrs. Lucy E. Thompson. Lucy was born in Pennsylvania in 1876, and her daughter Harriet was born in Michigan in 1915. Harriet was identified as John's step-daughter in 1930.

Miner was born at Sparta on November 22, 1888, the only child of Charles B. and Luella M. Purdy. He became a medium sized man with brown eyes and black hair, and he was enumerated without an occupation in 1910. Lola M. Norton was born at Sparta in December of 1889, one of the two daughters of George C. and Carrie E. (Smith) Norton. Her sister Ethel was born at Sparta on April 8, 1884. Lola married Miner at Sparta on June 29, 1911. Their children were born at Sparta: Hanley in 1912, Kathryn in 1914, Leona in February of 1916, and Luella in July of 1925. According to one 1930 source, Miner was working as a commercial salesman for a canning factory while Lola was proprietor of the photograph studio. "Purdy's Photo & Radio Shop" was advertised in 1933: "High Grade Photos – commercial and portrait, tinting, expert kodak finishing, kodaks, films. Radios, tubes and radio service. William was born on May 8, 1888, at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, fourth of the six children of George Tybout Purves and Rebekah Bird (Sellers) Purves. He was their elder son, and he was raised at Princeton, New Jersey, where his father was a professor of theology. William became a tall man with grey eyes and black hair, and he followed an arts course at Princeton University with an engineering term at Cornell. He began as a mechanic at the EMF Tudhope plant at Orillia, but was soon promoted to service manager. Mary Roberta Wade was born in Ontario on October 17, 1884, last of the four known children of Robert and Susan Katherine (Mercer) Wade. She married William at Orillia on December 12, 1912, and their son William was born in New York State in June of 1918. William joined the Ford Motor Company service department in 1913 and held a variety of jobs there. From 1914 through 1916 he was identified as an investigator. When the war came, William was given leave of absence to become one of five members of the government executive committee which oversaw gas mask production in the nation. Soon after he rejoined the Ford Motor Company, he succeeded Ambrose B. Jewett as head of the Photographic Department. When William went to Marysville with the Wills-Saint Clair Company, he was succeeded as department head by Clinton R. Frede. He was enumerated in 1920 as a machinist in an auto factory while living in Detroit. William returned to Highland Park as general sales manager of the Gray Motor Car Company. He affiliated with the Dodge Brothers field organization in 1924, and stayed with this company through three management regimes for the rest of his career. William was promoted to general sales manager early in April of 1938, and died in his sleep on May 8, 1938, on a train bound for a Los Angeles sales convention.

John was born at Clarendon, Michigan, on April 14, 1843, to Jacob and Eunice (Pierce) Putman, who were natives of New York. He was an 18-year-old farmer that stood 5 feet 9 inches tall with a light complexion, black eyes and brown hair when he enlisted as Henry Putman on September 12, 1861, at Tekonsha as a private in Company E of the First Michigan Volunteer Infantry. He was mustered into the service two days later, and was wounded in action by gun fire about September 1, 1862. On account of these wounds, he was discharged on a Surgeon's Certificate of Disability at Philadelphia on December 18, 1862. One year later at Greenbush he enlisted in Company I of the 27th Michigan Infantry on December 28, 1863, and was mustered as a private on the following day at Ovid. About the time Company I joined the regiment at Mossy Creek, two companies of sharpshooters were attached to the 27th, and then by request the entire regiment was rearmed with Spencer magazine rifles. They joined the Army of the Potomac on April 29, 1864, crossed the Rapidan River in Virginia on May 6 and immediately engaged in the battle of the Wilderness. During the battle of Spottsylvania on May 10, 11 and 12 they had 27 men killed, 12 missing and 148 wounded, including John by gun shot on the 12th. The second finger of his left hand was amputated two days later. By September 5, 1864, he had been promoted to corporal and was beginning a second furlough. By order of Major General Hooker on account of his wounds, John was honorably discharged at Detroit on January 31, 1865, and proceeded to make his living as a blacksmith and a farmer. Emma was born in Scio Township of Washtenaw County, Michigan, on May 17, 1845, tenth of the twelve children of Eli and Harriet (Doane) Granger. She married John in Washtenaw County on January 1, 1866. Their children were born in Michigan: Ella on October 30, 1870, Alvah on April 27, 1872, Cora on January 18, 1875, Clara about 1877, and Rosa on February 23, 1880. Early in 1882 John erected a blacksmith shop on his place a mile and a quarter west of Woodin's Mill in Sherman Township of Isabella County and was open for business. A couple of months later he was afflicted with the fits to which he had been subject for several years. His wife Emma died in Sherman Township on September 7, 1882, leaving him with four daughters and a son between two and thirteen years old. John married 27-year-old Hattie E. (Williams) Wilsey at Milford on December 25, 1882. Hattie had been widowed by a falling tree eighteen months earlier. Their daughter Flora was born on October 10, 1886, and their son Ezra was born on January 10, 1891. John's intention of moving to Clinton County to carry on the business of photographing scenery was reported in October of 1887. He was still living at St. Johns in Clinton County in March of 1898 when his daughter Cora died of consumption near Horr. Later in that year he bought seven acres south of Horr on which to build a blacksmith shop and a residence, and by June of 1899 had the material on the ground to build the house. His mother and daughter visited him from Clinton County during the summer of 1900 and by the end of the year he had opened a grocery store. His son Alvah came visiting from Detroit during the summer of 1901. A regional newspaper announced in May of 1904 that "Horr now has an art gallery. Call on J. H. Putman and see what he can do." and in July noted that "J. H. Putman is doing a good business taking pictures. His work is all right." On some post card photographs, "J. H. Putman, Phograffer" was written in ink below a vignettted portrait. "John H. Putman, Weidman, Mich." was stamped on the face of others, including rural scenes. In the summer of 1908 the newspaper noted under Weidman News that "J. H. Putman has his photo car here again and is doing a good lively business." John lived almost 72 years before his death from cerebral apoplexy in his home at Horr in Sherman Township of Isabella County on February 26, 1915. Hattie died of heart disease at Ezra's home in Sherman Township on April 1, 1926. Interment was in Forest Hill Cemetery next to John.

Ralph was born in Kalamazoo County, Michigan, to natives of Michigan on January 28, 1881, first of the three children of Andrew Jefferson Putney and Eleanora Amanda (Bryant) Putney. His mother often was called Ellen or Ella, and his sisters were born ten and eighteen years later. Ralph became a slender man with blue eyes and brown hair. A photographic journal noted late in 1908 that a "... man who is receiving well-deserved attention for his enterprise is Mr. Putney, photographer of Grand Rapids, Mich. He is a regular convention man." A very professional post card photo of the Madison Square Bank, down the street from Ralph at 714 Madison Avenue, showed the exterior on the left and the interior on the right with "Photo by Putney" printed on a plate at the bottom right as part of the negative. Elsie J. Carlson, the daughter of Charles F. and Charlotte Augusta (Samuelson) Carlson, married Ralph between 1910 and 1913. She gave birth to Homer in 1914, and to Ruth in October of 1918. By 1920 Ralph was a widower, and his mother had come to his home to care for the children. Ralph was listed as a widower when he left Tahiti's port of Papeete on the ship R. M. S. Tahiti on October 21 and arrived at San Francisco on October 31, 1924. May was born in Illinois to Swedish parents in 1882 or early in 1883, and by 1930 she was married to Ralph and helping to raise Homer and Ruth. Ralph died in San Diego County on July 25, 1949.

All of his grandparents emigrated from the Netherlands and Henry was born at Holland to Michigan parents on March 31, 1888, first of the four children of Ralph and Nellie P. Pyle. He was identified as Henry Pyl in the 1910 census report, in the Kalamazoo directories, and in the gazetteer, but all other available records were for Henry Pyle. He grew up on the family farm and became a tall man with blue eyes and dark brown hair. Studio portraits in the post card format were embossed: "PYL STUDIO, KALAMAZOO, MICH." Her father emigrated from Germany and Edith was born in Michigan on December 21, 1889. She married Henry in 1915 and their children were born in Kalamazoo: Evelyn in February of 1916, Lawrence in October of 1918, and Raymond in May of 1926. Edith's residence was in Galesburg at the time of her death in March of 1981.

Harley was the elder child of Henry J. and Ada M. (Fox) Qua, and was born in Waverly Township of Van Buren County, Michigan, on August 13, 1871. His sister Nettie was born in March of 1877. Anne Belle McKay was born in Van Buren County on July 18, 1873, first of the three children of Andrew M. and Narcissa E. (Mason) McKay. She married Harley in Otsego County on September 26, 1894, and their daughter Pauline was born in June of 1895. Anne and Harley divorced, and in 1900 Pauline was living at Muskegon Heights with her maternal grandparents. Anne married John W. Taylor at Grand Rapids on July 2, 1903. Viola Elizabeth Parrish was born in Tuscola County, Michigan, to parents from New York on July 13, 1878, last of the three daughters of Jeremiah and Martha A. (Althouse) Parrish. She married Harley at Flint, Michigan, on September 17, 1899, and they never had children. Henry J. Qua, late in his life, identified his son as Harold Henry Qua, and their surname was sometimes spelled Quay or Quaw. His father came from New York and Harold H. Quay was born in Michigan about 1872. He was the proprietor in 1910 of a barber shop at Sandusky, Ohio. Sarah was born in Pennsylvania and she had married Harold about 1908. Their daughter Evelyn was born in Ohio in December of 1909. By 1920 Harold was an inmate of the Michigan State Prison at Jackson, where he worked as a barber. Sarah and Evelyn were living in Gaylord, where Sarah was housekeeper for a single man and his father.

Henry was born to an Irish mother in Lisbon Township of St. Lawrence County, New York, on July 12, 1846, second of the four children of Samuel and Margaret Qua. He was a five foot six inch farmer with a fair complexion, blue eyes and brown hair when he enlisted at Ogdensburg as a private in Company L of the 26th New York Cavalry on February 9, 1865. This unit was also called the First Regiment of New York Volunteer Frontier Cavalry. He was mustered out of the service and honorably discharged at Ogdensburg on July 1, 1865. Ada Martha Fox was born in 1852 in Waverly Township of Van Buren County, Michigan, sixth of the eight children of James L. and Martha (Newell) Fox. She married Henry in Waverly Township on September 29, 1870, and their children were born in Michigan: Harley in August of 1871, and Nettie in March of 1877. Henry was associated with his brother Samuel E. Qua from 1884 to 1889, and with his son Harley H. Qua from 1890 until 1899. He was receiving a pension of $30.00 per month when he died at Flint on April 22, 1919. Ada applied for a Widow's Pension and was getting $40.00 per month when she died at Denver, Colorado, on August 18, 1929.

Fred was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan in June of 1871. Susan (sometimes Susie or Susanna) was born in Canada to an Irish mother in February of 1871, one of the seven children of John and Susanna Galbraith. She married Fred in 1891. Their daughter Veda was born in Detroit in April of 1894. For the Story of the Detroit Police Department, the 52nd Annual Report and much more extensive than most annual reports of the department, Fred wrote a description of the Criminal Identification Bureau, of which he had been in charge since early in 1910. The following table was constructed from this and a few earlier reports:

| Year ending June 30                 | 1901 | 1903 | 1905 | 1907 | 1915 | 1917  |
|-------------------------------------|------|------|------|------|------|-------|
| Photos received from other cities   | 260  | 230  | 139  | 98   | 1545 | 1036  |
| Criminals photographed here         | 102  | 180  | 89   | 152  | 2055 | 1657  |
| Detroit photos in home gallery      | 2691 | 3030 | 3266 | 3544 |      | 10000 |
| Photos from other cities in gallery | 1621 | 2009 | 2200 | 2385 |      | 20000 |

All criminals photographed by the Detroit department during this period were also measured by the Bertillion System. During the year ending June 30, 1907, 101 photographs were sent to the Bureau of Identification in Washington, and 150 photographs were sent to other cities. It was reported in 1909 and again in 1910 that one patrolman was assigned as the Bertillion operator and photographer, and that Detective Sergeants Fred S. Quackenbush and Thomas B. Lamb were the City Photographer Staff in the Corporation Counsel's Office. Fred visited New York and Chicago to see identification systems, then revised the Detroit system to such excellence that he received a commendation from Washington. Detroit had the most complete police photographing equipment in the country, including a good daylight arrangement and the best electric lights available for night work. In 1917 the Criminal Identification Bureau was staffed by Fred and a detective sergeant who alternated on day and night eight hour shifts. Both were proficient at photographing criminals, at taking Bertillion measurements of their heads, and at taking fingerprints. During the previous year the bureau had spent $372.32 on photographic supplies and repairs, had exposed 1657 negatives and made 8284 photographic prints, and had sent 2391 photos to other cities. The gallery established in 1892 contained 30,000 photographs. The Henry System of fingerprint classification had been installed in 1911, 2791 prints had been taken and filed during the past year, and 545 criminals had been identified by their fingerprints. 341 criminals had been identified by Bertillion, which included photographs. In addition to standardized identification photographs, Fred and his sergeant photographed fingerprints and other evidence at crime scenes. Fred's daughter Veda married Carrol C. Collins and gave birth to Susan in July of 1918. In April of 1930 Susan Collins was living in McAllen with her grandparents, Fred and Susan Quackenbush. Fred lost his wife Susan on January 26, 1941, shortly before they would have observed their golden anniversary. When Fred died on September 21, 1944, he left a widow named Olive. Burial was in Detroit's Grand Lawn Cemetery.

Jay was the son of Luther Q. and M. Effie (Wemple) Quackenbush, and was born in Montgomery County, New York, on December 29, 1827. He worked for a while at a clothing store in New York City, and was in his twenties when he moved west to Owosso. Here he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1858. He and Miss Sarah J. Wait were married at Pontiac, Michigan, on December 22, 1859. When the Civil War broke out he organized a company of soldiers and was chosen as captain. He entered the service as Captain of Company I of the Eighth Michigan Volunteer Infantry at Owosso on September 5, 1861. The regiment left Detroit on September 27, arrived in Washington on September 30, 1861, and was there assigned to the "Expeditionary Corps" under General T. W. Sherman. The Eighth saw service along the Atlantic coast at Hilton Head and Beaufort, South Carolina, and at Coosaw River and Tybee Island, Georgia. Jay became so lamed by rheumatism and lumbago that he could walk only with the aid of a cane. Since he was unable to perform his military duties, he resigned and was honorably discharged on March 3, 1862. Sarah presented him with a son, Louis B. Quackenbush, on February 4, 1864, and with a daughter, Gladys May Quackenbush, on August 7, 1865. He made the trip around Cape Horn to California in a sailing vessel in 1868, then returned to Owosso to bring his family and goods to San Diego. He lost all of his property to the big fire which completely destroyed Vancouver in 1887. With plenty of hard work he built a business in Washington, and erected the first business block on Holly Street before all the stumps and logs had been cleared from in front of the building and it was still surrounded by woods. He was a staunch supporter of civic improvements in Whatcom, New Whatcom and Bellingham. Though he was afflicted with the rheumatism and lumbago most of his adult life, he doctored himself and did not apply for a Veterans Invalid Pension until 1899, when he was 5 feet 7 inches tall with a fair complexion, gray hair and blue eyes. About 1902 he contracted the grip or a very severe cold and never fully recovered, though he began spending his winters in California. He visited his sister in Owosso in 1905. His wife, daughter and son were with him at Bellingham on May 28, 1906, when he died from stomach cancer. Sarah received a Widows Pension until her death in a Bellingham hospital on January 1, 1929.

Albert was born in Canada to German parents on September 6, 1874, and he became an average sized man with blue eyes and light hair. Many of the early gazetteer listings were for Arthur Quade. Ada was born in Iowa to German parents about 1875, and she married Albert in 1909 or early in 1910. Albert was naturalized a citizen of the United States in 1913. The titles of some of Albert's post card photographs were printed along the lower margin of the negatives in small type, and they ended "... PHOTO BY A.Q." or "... Quade." Some of his Iron Mountain views were postmarked in 1912 and 1914. "COPPER COUNTRY FLYER, C.M. & ST.P., TAKEN AT NIGHT. COPYRIGHT 1918 BY A.QUADE." was lettered on one of his post card negatives. Another style of postal photograph had a white band below the image in which the title was lettered in black capitals. These titles ended: "... PHOTO BY A.QUADE 212 E A ST." Ada gave birth at Iron Mountain to Stanley in 1914, to Harriet in March of 1916, and to John in 1922 or early in 1923. Albert died at Iron Mountain on September 4, 1937.

William was born in Michigan to parents from New York on February 13, 1842, fifth of the ten children of wagon maker and building mover Robert A. Quatermass and Mrs. Eunice (Culver) Quatermass. Julia Hellen Sprague was born at Chenango, New York, on August 5, 1845, the daughter of Albert J. and Julia F. (Allen) Sprague. She often was called Helen, and she married William in Oakland County on October 16, 1865. Their sons were born in Michigan: Charles in August of 1866, Albert a year later, Wilbur about 1875, and Walter in April of 1877. What actually was printed on some cartes de visite was "Phillips & Quatermass." Quatermass & Scott were proprietors of the New York Gallery. Later, from the New York Gallery over the Bill Poster office in Pontiac, William enlarged old pictures and preserved his negatives. During the Christmas season of 1873 he promised "... all those who ... get a dozen Marble Finished Burnished Pictures, he will present them with a large four by four picture, free of charge." He employed Charles M. Culver (note that the maiden name of William's mother was Culver) and James Hawxhurst as photographers in 1878 at Grand Rapids, and was succeeded there by John F. Davis. William was enumerated twice in the census of 1880: on June 10 at Pontiac with his wife and their sons, and on June 19 at Three Rivers, where he and his sister Hattie were living with the family of their sister Hellen and her husband, Frank Miller. "M. QUATERMASS, Photographer, 147 SAGINAW STREET, PONTIAC." was printed on the mounts of some photographs made by William. He succeeded his son Charles as the partner of Eugene M. Haight in Port Huron. In April of 1899, William was considering a branch gallery at Melbourne, Ontario. A month later Mrs. Bella Quatermass had brought cabinet card mounts of the very latest styles to Alvinston from London, Ontario. William sold his Alvinston negatives and tackle to Louis Pasha for $50.00 on May 4, and agreed not to do business in the area after May 31, 1899. The opening of his gallery at Farmington was reported in the spring of 1902. He died at Gaylord on February 6, 1905, and his body was returned to Pontiac for burial in Oak Hill Cemetery.

His father came from New York and Charles was born in Michigan to a mother from Pennsylvania on November 2, 1874, last of the six children of James and Mary Ann Quay. He was single in 1900, when he and fifty others were rooming in a large Detroit boarding house. Her father emigrated from England and Lillian Florence Phillips was born in Michigan to a Canadian mother in 1874, first of the four known daughters of James M. and Mary C. (Menzie) Phillips. She married Charles about 1901, and their daughters were born in Detroit: Dorothy in 1904, and Mary in 1905. Charles was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905. He was tall, stout and bald with blue eyes in 1918. Quay & Falkner were successors to John F. Jones. The change in address from 1379 to 7023 Jefferson Avenue during 1920 was due to revisions in the Detroit numbering system, and not to relocation. When the Commercial Photographers Association of Detroit was formed in January of 1921, Charles was one of the 23 charter members. Quay & Murray were listed as commercial photographers from 1929 through 1932. Charles' daughter Mary was their receptionist in 1930. Charles and Lillian were providing a home for his widowed mother in 1910, 1920 and 1930. Charles died at Carsonville in March of 1966.

Otsego PHOTOGRAPHER ..... 1880-1881 m

His parents emigrated from England's Isle of Man and Minott was born in October of 1860 at Mexico in Oswego County, New York, third of the seven children of Thomas and Mary Quayle. His father was a sailor, and by 1880 a lake captain. Minott produced stereoscopic views of Grand Haven, including a bird's-eye view from across the river and a close view of the swing bridge between Spring Lake and Grand Haven. "Minott W. Quayle, ARTIST, ...." was stamped on the back of some of these stereographs, and "Otsego" seems to have been obliterated from the stamped message. Minott was single and still residing with his widowed father at the time of his death from consumption in Ottawa County on December 10, 1881. t 1 2

Quayle, William Alfred

William was born at Parkville, Missouri, on June 25, 1860, to parents from the Isle of Man who were traveling across the state at the time. His mother died while his father was working as a miner in Colorado, and William later found a home with a Kansas farmer. He graduated from Baker University at Baldwin, Kansas, and was licensed to preach. From his pastorate at Osage City, Kansas, he was called to the faculty of Baldwin University. After a few years of teaching, he was elected president of his alma mater and became a renowned orator. He resigned as president to become pastor of a large church in Kansas City, and moved on to other large churches at Indianapolis, back in Kansas City and then Chicago. He became a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1908 and served until he retired due to ill health in 1924. He had a summer residence at Epworth near Ludington, Michigan, and in 1914 published Beside Lake Beautiful. This book was illustrated with 18 photographs by Bishop Quayle, 13 by Ludington druggist Charles J. Hansen and one by the professional photographer Lowrel F. Swarthout. William died on March 9, 1925. t 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 2 2 1

Floyd was born in Indiana to natives of Indiana on November 2, 1877, The son of Albert J. and Louella Quick. He became a tall slim man with gray eyes and black hair. He and his brother Stebbins were boarding in 1900 with an Indianapolis widow. Claudia B. Barnes was born in Michigan to an English mother in July of 1879. She was the niece of George and Lizzie Naylor, and she was living with them at Indianapolis in 1900. Claudia married Floyd at Indianapolis on November 5, 1901. The marriage did not last, for in 1900 Floyd was enumerated as single. 573 Trumbull Avenue was at the corner of Grand River Avenue. The American Commercial Photo Company advertised in 1913: "... Catalogue Illustrating, General Commercial Photographs, Enlarging, Flashlights, Machinery, Automobiles, Furniture, and Lantern Slides (interior and exterior views)." Floyd was at times identified as the manager and at other times as the owner of the company. "American Commercial Photo Co., 48-54 State Street, Detroit, Mich." was printed on the negatives or stamped on the backs of post card photographs of the War Mobilization parade in September of 1917 and of the huge ice fountain on Washington Boulevard in February of 1918. "Copyrighted by American Commercial Photo Co., Detroit, Mich." was printed on or with negatives of postal photos of crowds around the replica Statue of Liberty during the Detroit Liberty Loan drive in October of 1918. Many of these cards were sold by the L. Black Company of Detroit. The American Commercial Photo Company stayed in the same location during 1920, while the address changed along with most others in Detroit. In February of 1921, Floyd became a charter member of the Commercial Photographers' Association of Detroit. The structure at 25 Parsons Street was known as the Chalmers Building.

Roy was born in Columbus Township of Saint Clair County to natives of Michigan on October 8, 1884, the only child of William H. and Satilla (Benedict) Quick. He became a tall stout man with blue eyes and dark hair. Roy's photographic subject matter and his subsequent career indicate that he attended the Michigan State Normal College at Ypsilanti. "R. Quick, Photo" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs along with captions like "Main St. Smiths Creek" and "HURON RIVER, Ypsilanti" and "Starkweather Hall M S N C." Some of his cards were mailed by others from Ypsilanti between 1907 and 1909, and others were mailed by Roy from Smiths Creek in October of 1907 and from Richmond in August of 1909. Her father came from New York and Mildred was born in Wisconsin to a mother from New Hampshire in 1891. She married Roy about 1915 and their children were born in Wisconsin: William in April of 1916, James in June of 1918, Robert in December of 1919, and Elizabeth about 1924. His parents emigrated from Ireland and William was born in Detroit on July 19, 1854, second of the four children of Patrick and Johanna Quirk. He and his sisters Eliza (later Lucy) and Ellen and their brother John were living with their widowed mother in 1880. Her father emigrated from Ireland and Alice was born in Ohio to a Scotch mother in December of 1863. She married William in 1888, and their daughter Kathleen was born in Detroit in July of 1889. William worked for the Department of Public Works for many years. He was enumerated as a foreman of street cleaners in 1900, and as a school janitor in 1920 when he was working for the Board of Education. William died in Detroit on April 11, 1944.

His father emigrated from the French island of Corsica in the Mediterranean and Wylie was born in California to a mother from Louisiana in February of 1872. Her father emigrated from Germany and Nellie was born in Michigan to a mother from Ohio in May of 1875, the only child of Michael J. and Mary M. Henck. She married Wylie about 1895, and their son Maurice was born in Michigan in December of 1897. After Henry J. Christmas left Lansing, he evidently opened a gallery at Three Rivers in 1894, but soon sold the Three Rivers gallery to Wylie and moved on to Hastings. Wylie's advertisement in 1895 was: "The Christmas Studio, Wylie A. Quirk, proprietor. The Finest Equipped Establishment in Southern Michigan. Complete in Every Respect. Three Rivers, Michigan." Wylie and his family lived four doors from Three Rivers druggist Clarence A. Fellows in 1900. This was written on the face of a post card photograph dated May 24, 1906: "Photographic Postal Cards of the beautiful homes in Three Rivers. Doz. lots only, 50 cts per doz. Leave your order with C. A. Fellows, Photographic Department." Wylie may have stayed in Three Rivers for a few years as the Photographic Department of Clarence Fellows' drug store.

"By Radium Photo Service" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs of the wreckage left by the Muskegon street car riot of August 5, 1919. "Photo by Radium Photo Service" was lettered on the negatives of postal photos of the oil fields near Muskegon. Charles J. Cihak was the founder of the Radium Photo Service, and maintained an active interest until his death in 1969. They offered commercial photo finishing and supplies in 1921. Without changing location, 88 West Western Avenue became 320 Western Avenue in 1926. Louis A. Cihak became the proprietor briefly about 1930. "RADIUM PHOTO" was lettered on the negatives of postal photos of the parade celebrating Muskegon's centennial on July 17, 1937. Their nearly 3000 square feet of floor space was remodeled in 1950, with new show cases and flooring, fluorescent lighting and an automatic developing system complete with infra-red drying facilities. The business had ten veteran employees at this time. The founder's son Charles took over the management of the Radium Photo Service in the 1960s. 1

John was born at Branderoda in the Prussian region of Germany on October 10, 1829, the son of J. Frederick and Hannah (Viewagen) Raider. He started school when he was five, became a thorough student, and did best at mathematics, history and penmanship. At eight he began acting as the accountant for his father's carpentry business. He also studied surveying and civil engineering and music, first for the violin and later for the flute, and played in a locally popular band for three years. With his father, he landed at New York on October 5, 1843, and located on a small farm in Chautauqua County, New York. Two years later John hired out to a farmer in the same county, and he continued to attend school when the farm work permitted for more than two years. After peddling goods for a few months when he was eighteen, he became a maker of shingles and wooden bowls. Lucinda Jackson was born at Barcelona, New York, on April 22, 1829, and she married John on August 10, 1848. Their son Leonard was born in New York State in May of 1849 and died in 1873. Two of their children were born in Ohio: George in July of 1851, and Kate or Katy in 1853. Their son Frederick was born in Pennsylvania in 1855, and their daughter Jessie was born at Newaygo in January of 1863. In 1850 John purchased an interest in a small furniture factory, and began to acquire much practical manufacturing knowledge. He next established a factory for grinding and polishing edged tools at Hinckley, Ohio. In 1854 he went to Pennsylvania, where he taught two terms of penmanship and opened a furniture factory. His next moves were in 1855 to forty acres in Ensley Township of Newaygo County, Michigan, and in the spring of the following year, into Newaygo. Here he taught penmanship and manufactured furniture until he went broke in the financial panic of 1857. A year later he began manufacturing furniture with capital of two dollars, and he prospered. He organized a savings bank in 1859 and operated it until 1871, when he closed it because of taxes. John lost the use of his right arm about 1861, and began repairing watches. He purchased the only drug store in Newaygo in August of 1865. His first wife died on February 5, 1866, and John's second marriage was to Rinda M. Glazier of Jackson County, Michigan, on February 18, 1867. Rinda was born in New York to parents from Massachusetts about 1835, and she gave birth to their son Lynn at Newaygo in 1875. John continued and had substantial success in the drug business, and augmented it as a news dealer in 1872, with books and stationery from 1878 through 1883, with groceries, jewelry, books and insurance from 1886 through 1889, with books, stationery, watches, clocks and jewelry from 1890 to 1895, and he added wallpaper in 1894. Her father came from Connecticut and Emma was born in New York State to a mother from Vermont in February of 1837. She became John's third wife about 1886, and she was enumerated with him in 1900 and 1910. John died on November 26, 1914.

William was born in England between 1845 and 1848, the son of Henry and Hannah (Russ) Rampton. He may have been brought to Canada in 1850. Dwight I. Corwin had been a Vicksburg photographer in 1872 and, following his partnership with William, he continued as a Vicksburg photographer until 1883. Mary was born in Michigan to parents from New York in 1854 or early in 1855, and she married William about 1876. Their daughter Murtie was born in Michigan in 1877 or early in 1878. William may have been in business in 1906 at Calgary, Alberta, with C. Westley Price as a partner. He was in the real estate business when he and Mary took the ferry from Detroit to Windsor, Ontario, on July 3, 1914, carrying assets of $10,000. William was survived by Mary when he died at Windsor of valvular heart disease on October 3, 1918. Burial was in Bronson, Michigan.

| He was born William Arthur Ramshaw to natives of Ontario on August 17, 1886, at Erin, Ontario, first of the three children of Hall D. and Sarah E. (Kelly) Ramshaw. He was called Arty as a child, and he crossed the border with his family in 1903. By 1917 he was a medium sized single man with blue eyes, light hair and broken arches, who had yet to apply for American citizenship. Mamie Legarie was born at Saginaw, Michigan, to Canadian parents on April 20, 1886. She and Arthur were married at Saginaw on July 21, 1918, and they never had children. After 1921 in local directories, and after 1925 in the gazetteers, most listings were for William A. Ramshaw, but in 1928 it was for W. Arthur Ramshaw. By 1930 he was a naturalized citizen of the United States. Arthur died in Saginaw on August 19, 1960, and Mamie lived on at Saginaw until her death on September 15, 1971. George was born to natives of Ontario on September 6, 1901, at Acton, Ontario, last of the three children of Hall D. and Sarah E. (Kelly) Ramshaw. He came to Detroit with his parents in 1903. Margaret was born in Michigan to English parents on January 29, 1902, the younger daughter of Nathaniel and Margaret (Rearden) Woods. She married George in Detroit on November 17, 1923. Their children were born in Detroit: George on October 4, 1925, and Constance on July 19, 1932. George and his father founded Ramshaw Photo Service in 1937, and George continued that business at 8973 Birwood Avenue through the 1940s. They developed and printed film for many Detroit drug stores, and were the first in Detroit to establish 24-hour service. Margaret died at Northville in June of 1968, and George died in Redford on November 20, 1977.

He was born Daniel Houlroyd Ramshaw to English parents at Nassageweya, Ontario, on November 5, 1866, tenth of the eleven children of Wilson and Sarah Ann (Easton) Ramshaw. He was called Daniel as a young man, and he was known later as Hall or Hal and often as Holley or Holly. Sarah E. Kelly was born at Chiquacousy, Ontario, to natives of Ontario on July 22, 1863, first of the four children of William and Mary (Little) Kelly. She married Hall at Rockwood, Ontario, on October 24, 1885. Their children were born in Ontario: William Arthur Ramshaw at Erin on August 17, 1886, Ada Mildred Ramshaw at Acton on September 23, 1891, and George Easton Ramshaw at Acton on September 6, 1901. Hall and his family immigrated to Detroit in 1903. Both boys, Arthur and George, followed their father into the photographic business. In 1908 Hall offered "Photographs, Commercial Photographing and Photo Enlarging, Outside Viewing." Studio portraits on post card stock were debossed "H. RAMSHAW, 80 GRATIOT, DETROIT." at the lower right corner. In 1914 Hall was operating studios simultaneously on Gratiot Avenue and Woodward Avenue. He applied for United States citizenship before 1920, and was naturalized by 1930. Hall and his son George founded Ramshaw Photo Service in 1937, and George continued that business at 8973 Birwood Avenue through the 1940s. They developed and printed film for many Detroit drug stores, and were the first in Detroit to establish 24-hour service. Hall became ill on a visit to London, Ontario, and died in a hospital there on May 26, 1945. He was predeceased by his wife, but survived by his daughter and both sons.

| Corydon was born on July 30, 1841, at Hamilton, Ontario. He moved to Detroit in 1856 with his parents, James J. and Caroline M. Randall. He apparently took up photography before his father opened a gallery, for Corydon "... commenced business for himself in this line in 1857 when but sixteen years of age, and has since that time devoted his time and attention to the study and development of the art in all its phases and departments..." After the death of his first wife, Mrs. Ella Rose Randall, he married Mrs. Anna S. Christian Leggett on May 9, 1874. He and Anna later had five children. He exhibited at the 1874 Michigan State Fair in East Saginaw, and had special card photograph mounts printed for the "Class of '76, U. of M..." He was advertising at that time: "We Charge More than any Photographic Establishment in the City, and always expect to. Why?" Corydon displayed photographs and crayons as one of the 140 photographers who participated in Class 430 at the Centennial International Exhibition in Philadelphia. A 242 by 77 foot Photographic Exhibition Building housed these exhibits plus 54 others in three more classes, including carbon prints, photo-lithographs and photographic apparatus. In 1878, he was selling Randall's Circassian Cream Wash (for removing freckles, tan and moth patches) from his gallery and through several wholesale druggists. The business office and reception room of the gallery was "... located on the first floor with elegant show windows for the display of the beautiful pictures here produced. The reception parlor and operating rooms are on the second floor, covering an area of 30 x 100... the walls of the parlor are adorned with the choicest specimens of the photographic art. The entire third floor is devoted to the uses of the printing, finishing and negative departments... Mr. Randall has long made a specialty of theatrical work, and as all negatives are carefully preserved orders are constantly being received from all sections of the Union. He has recently perfected arrangements with Mr. Jex Bardwell ... to combine with his regular business the new patent collotype process for printing every description of photographic work in permanent colors..." The gallery address was sometimes listed as 220 and 222 Woodward Avenue in Detroit directories and in advertisements in local newspapers from Adrian, Ann Arbor and Pontiac to Allegan and Cheboygan offering a "... Great reduction in prices. Cards - $2.00 per dozen. Cabinets - $5.00 per dozen. Panels - $6.00 per dozen." In the fall of 1880 he advertised that his prices were reduced to one-half of former rates. Corydon belonged to the Photographers' Association of America in 1881, and about this time he was advertising "RANDALL'S PORTRAITS, Most Artistic Work in the West at prices people can afford to pay. Largest and newest assortment of backgrounds and accessories. INSTANTANEOUS 'GELATINE' WORK For Babies' Pictures. Best Card Photographs - $2.50 per doz. Best Cabinets - $6.00 per doz..." Corydon seems to have been one of the first two photographers in the United States to take portraits using electric arc light. A small convex mirror between the arc and the sitter reflected the light into a concave white bowl five feet in diameter which reflected a bright but soft light onto the sitter, and produced a good negative in fifteen to twenty seconds. His gallery was filled with sitters and curious patrons until eleven in the evening. He announced in December of 1882 that "Randall's New Photographic Establishment is now ready for use, corner Williams St. and Madison Ave., opposite East Grand Circus Park. Make appointments at either the new or the old place..." Reduced rates were offered for clubs of ten or more. As well as having the largest photographic studio west of New York, Corydon in 1884 opened an artists' material and picture gallery in connection with Dilloway & Hanna. Randall's Art Store carried artists' supplies, etchings and engravings, and did artistic framing. An exhibition of fine oil and water color paintings was always free. The Pontiac branch was opened for business six days a week late in October of 1885. After Christmas it was open only Fridays and Saturdays for several months, and offered "... Best Photograph CABINETS AT $2 A DOZEN..." Charles W. Earle was Corydon's partner in 1890. The Randall Studio Building was located at 106 Miami Avenue, and after 1890 Corydon commuted to it from his home in Drayton Plains. Some of his employees were: retoucher Robert J. Breen in 1876; photo operator Charles S. Gies in 1876; photo printer Charles R. Baker from 1876 to 1878 and in 1882; photographers Russell M. Cressey and John H. Owen in 1879; clerk Miss Anna S. From 70,000 Randall negatives, Clarence M. Burton acquired many views of Detroit and portraits of well known Detroit and Michigan politicians, lawyers, clergymen, business men and theatrical personalities. Corydon decided that he was not keeping up with advances in photography and closed his gallery in 1895. Most of his time after that was spent thirty miles northwest of Detroit on his farm at Drayton Plains. His first stroke occurred in March of 1908, and a third stroke on August 31, 1908, was fatal. Burial was in Detroit's Elmwood Cemetery, and by 1910 his widow had returned to live in Detroit. There are 92 Randall scrapbooks in the Burton Historical Collection, mostly filled with newspaper clippings about the family, their friends and events of interest to them, but containing many photographs of the Randalls and of persons notable and notorious.

Fred was born on May 17, 1843, in Litchfield Township of Herkimer County, New York, the younger son of Horatio and Clarissa Randall. He always went by his middle name until he went into the army. A carte de visite by L. A. Merrill of Grand Rapids showed Fred dressed in a gaudily patterned robe or smock, leaning upon a studio camera and holding the lens cap. He may have worked for Merrill, or he could have had his own studio. At this time he was six feet tall with a ruddy complexion, blue eyes and dark hair. Fred enlisted in Company F of the Third Michigan Volunteer Infantry Regiment on August 9, 1864, and was promoted to sergeant on August 20, 1864. Her father came from Vermont and Sarah A. Mills was born in Ohio to a mother from New York about 1844, second of the ten children of Hezekiah and Sally Mills. Fred married Sarah on October 12 at Grand Rapids, and left there for Nashville with his reorganized regiment on October 20, 1864. Fred served as a commissary sergeant. During November they were stationed at Decatur, Alabama, and then engaged in picket and scouting duty around Murfreesboro, Tennessee. The regiment was in Huntsville, Alabama, from January 16 until March 16, 1865, when they were ordered to New Market, Tennessee. From here and from camps at Bull's Gap and Jonesboro they protected the loyal people of the area from the bands of guerillas which infested that portion of Tennessee. After Lee's surrender, the Third went by rail and ship and foot to San Antonio, Texas, where they arrived on November 6, 1865, after a fourteen days march. Here they did provost duty until May of 1866 when they were moved to Victoria, Texas, and mustered out of service on the 25th. The Third returned to Michigan and was paid and disbanded at Detroit on June 10, 1866. Back in Grand Rapids, Fred worked mostly for an implement manufacturer, but was with an iron works and then with a manufacturer of brick and tile for some time. Sarah gave birth in Grand Rapids to three children: Erwin was born about 1868 and died as a child, Roy was born on October 26, 1873, and Gertrude was born on February 24, 1878. Sarah died on May 29, 1892. Fred based his claim for a veteran's pension in 1897 upon total deafness in his left ear, impaired vision and bowel complaints. He was living in 1900 with the family of his son Roy, and he later lived for several years in Hastings with the family of his daughter Gertrude before he was admitted to the Soldiers Home in 1911. His final illness, called manic-depressive insanity, lasted from early February until his death on March 2, 1915. Burial was at Fulton Street Cemetery in Grand Rapids.

| Herbert was born in Plympton Township of Plymouth County, Massachusetts, on September 1, 1850, second of the three sons of Thomas L. and Hannah Randall. Anna was born in Michigan to parents from New York in 1855 or early in 1856, and by 1880 she was married to Herbert. This marriage lasted less than fifteen years. Early in 1885 Randall & Burnham refitted the gallery known as the Revenaugh Studio. Herbert's branch gallery at Eaton Rapids succeeded Abram P. Ball, and was in turn taken over by Roehm & Montgomery around the end of 1891. By the summer of 1886 Herbert's business had so increased that he rented the large store just west of him on East Huron Street and cut through an archway to create one of the finest art stores in the state. At the convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Chicago in August of 1887, Herbert displayed excellent large work mounted on oversize mats with broad white margins, and was awarded a silver medal as second prize in the category of composition or genre pictures. At the PA of A convention at Boston in August of 1889, he had some of the best cabinet pictures exhibited as well as some fine work in large heads, and was said to come to the front with an excellent display. At the Buffalo convention of the PA of A in the summer of 1891, he exhibited in the genre class "... a number of subjects of interest showing a great deal of hard work and earnest thought. One, a group of children perched on a fence, being particularly good in posing and arrangement, and, in fact, in treatment throughout. Mr. Randall's larger work was strong and well handled, and some of his studies of the antique, notably 'Grecian Muse' were highly commendable. 'The Choir' is another which called for many encomiums." For his genre pictures Herbert was awarded at this convention the first prize in Class A, a marble bust valued at $125. In June of 1892 he was awarded a prize of $25.00 by Wilson's Photographic Magazine for the best picture illustrating "An Enticing Offer." His entry was of a young lady sitting in a hammock, her looks indicating that there was room for two. In 1893 he was dealing in millinery, art goods, artists' materials and picture frames as well as photography from 30 East Huron Street. He advertised as the "Official Photographer to the Senior Law Class of the Law Department, U of M" in 1894. Charles F. Bowman was a principal of H. Randall & Company at New Haven in 1895, while Vincent L. Crittenden was employed in the Ann Arbor gallery as an operator in 1896 and as a photo printer from 1897 until 1900. In 1896 Herbert's views about the best colors for mounts, larger mounts for cabinet photos, showcase backgrounds and contents, effective advertising, photographing babies, Sunday work and the value of photographic journals were published. Alice E. Sawtelle was born in California to parents from Maine in November of 1865, second of the three known children of Henry A. and Elizabeth S. Sawtelle. She married Herbert about 1896. The second annual meeting of the Michigan Photographers' Association was held at Detroit in February of 1897, and there Herbert was awarded the second prize in Class A for his exhibit of six portraits, 13 inches or over. About this time a book entitled Photographs devoted one page each to the work of 85 American and Canadian photographers. Page 12 reproduced photographs by Herbert Randall, including a self portrait. Page 37 featured more photos with the Randall imprint, but they were the work of Ambrose C. Pack, the "... operator for Mr. Randall for some years." From 1899 to 1903 Randall's Ann Arbor advertising offered "Fine Portraits, Rembrants, Photo Supplies." Herbert roomed at New Haven through 1896, and had homes at both Ann Arbor and New Haven from 1897 through 1900. He purchased and refitted the Lloyd Gallery at Hartford, and opened it early in 1900 with a public exhibition of portraiture. He established a residence at Hartford in 1902, but kept his home in Ann Arbor until 1911, when he left the management of the Ann Arbor studio to Ambrose Pack. I. Bent was employed as an operator in the Ann Arbor studio in 1902 and 1903. From New Haven Herbert published in 1902 "The Randall Reproductions of the Jarvis Collection of Italian Paintings Owned by the School of Arts, Yale University" including 115 examples. "Randall - Hartford, New Haven, Ann Arbor" was printed on the folder of a portrait dated in December of 1904, though Henry B. Pettes was proprietor of the Randall Studio in New Haven by that time. Herbert advertised at Hartford in 1905 and 1906 as a "Maker of Portraits ... 24 Awards from 24 Exhibits in the U.S. and Canada." In 1907 the advertisement | 111 22 tt 444 22 555 66 555 66 77 444 mm 44 33 aa 888 111 669999 43 a3 00 3aa 00 tt 333 |     | changed to: “High Grade Portraiture, Group Work a Specialty, Copying and View-work, 27 Awards from 27 Exhibits - There’s no room but at the top.” The Ann Arbor studio was considered to be a branch of the Hartford business from 1906 to 1908. Harry G. Blackmore became a principal of the Randall Studio at Hartford in 1909. In 1910 the Randall Studio advertisement included a portrait of Mr. Blackmore and noted that the “... Delamater, Akers, Bundy-Newell, Stuart, Lucas, Lloyd and Randall negatives owned by us. Duplicates can be obtained. We make a specialty of copying daguerreotypes and paintings.” Herbert was a widower by 1910. He applied for a passport in June of 1911, characterizing himself as an art publisher who was five feet seven inches tall with a fair complexion, blue eyes, and light hair mixed with gray. Herbert was president of the Art Club at Hartford in 1912, when the Randall Studio specialized in portraits of children. A different photograph of Blackmore was used in the Randall Studio ads starting in 1914. Gottfried C. Maedel was proprietor of the Randall Studio at 121 East Washington Street in Ann Arbor from 1918 to 1924. Will Armstrong was proprietor of the Randall-Maedel Studio in Ann Arbor from 1926 until 1931.

James was born in Detroit on December 15, 1848, a son of James J. and Caroline M. Randall. He was only 16 years old when he was complimented by Governor Brownlow with a commission as Major of the Sixth Tennessee Volunteer Infantry. He began studying law in the office of Larned & Hebden, and was admitted to the bar in February of 1869. After he was elected to the legislature in 1889, he obtained an act authorizing Detroit to borrow $500,000 for paving Grand Boulevard, and another act bringing Belle Isle Park, the smaller parks of the city and Grand Boulevard under a single board, to which he was appointed at the end of his legislative term. The section of the Boulevard just east of Woodward was formally dedicated in August of 1891, but the rest developed slowly until the automobile made the vision of James and a few others a reality. He was known familiarly as “Boulevard” Randall for the rest of his life. James promoted street railways in Detroit and Windsor, and newspapers in Buffalo and Kansas City. In politics he assisted President Cleveland so effectively that he was offered the governorship of the New Mexico Territory. James purchased Bois Blanc Island and built a home on its east end, and was opposed to the new Livingstone Channel. He died in Detroit on January 29, 1911.

James was born on September 3, 1814, into an old family in Hartford, Connecticut, and was married in New York in 1834. He lived in Canada between 1837 and 1856, where he was associated with a large hardware firm and at one time was in the patent medicine business with a Dr. Carnot. During the 1860s, he sold Randall's Circassian Cream Wash for removing freckles and for all diseases of the skin as an adjunct to his photography. He advertised in 1860: "Randall's Gallery, PHOTOGRAPHS, AMBROTYPES, Melaineotypes, Portraits on Leather, Oil Cloth, &c., In the Best possible Style, and at the Lowest Prices, For Cash or Trade. Fisher's Block, Nearly opp. Russell House, Detroit. Satisfaction guaranteed or no charge." There was a shortage of pennies in 1863, so many merchants filled a need by having penny sized copper tokens coined which carried their name. One example had "RANDAL'S PHOTOGRAPHIC GALLERY, FISHERS BLOCK, DETROIT" on one side, with an Indian encircled by thirteen stars above "1863" on the other. His gallery location in the Fisher Block was variously described as on the Campus Martius in 1861; Rooms 8, 12, 13 & 14 of the Fisher Block in 1862; Room 12 in 1863; Rooms 12 & 14 from 1864 to 1866; 19 ½ in 1868; 119 ½ Woodward Avenue in 1869; 133 Woodward and Rooms 12, 13 & 14 in 1870. James published cartes de visite of a model of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument in 1867, photographed furniture, and photo copied a painting of the Walk-in-the-Water in 1871. He joined the National Photographic Association before June of 1870. Some of his employees were: his son Corydon as an artist, operator or photographic artist from 1861 until 1867; his son James in 1861 and as a photographic artist in 1863 and 1866; William Roddy as a photo operator in 1864; Thomas D. Bowring as a photo operator in 1864 and 1865; Walter Lamontagne as an artist in 1866; and Libbie L. Kern as a photo printer in 1866 and 1868. James was a paralyzed invalid attended by his eldest daughter for six years and endured a painful illness which confined him to his bed for six weeks prior to his death at his Detroit home on May 20, 1875. He was survived by his wife and their three sons and four daughters. His widow, Mrs. Caroline M. Randall, was 77 years old when she died in Detroit on February 28, 1893.

James was born in Connecticut in 1835 or 1836, and was a nephew of Detroit photographer James J. Randall. Sophia M. Dutton was born in New York State to natives of New York about 1837, the elder daughter of Chauncey S. and Elizabeth Dutton. She married James about 1862 and their children were born in Michigan: Frank in 1863 or early in 1864, and Ida three years later. The early advertising of Eastman & Randall emphasized James' "... considerable experience in the best galleries in New York City." They offered to "... take all kinds of Photographs, Cartes de Visite, Vignettes, Ambrotypes, Melainotypes, Ferrotypes, Neilographs, &c., in the very best style of the Art. Gallery over the Post Office, Washington Street." They were the first photographers in the Saginaw Valley to offer views of buildings, machinery and vessels. Their partnership was dissolved in April of 1864. This was printed on the pasters holding tintypes into their carte de visite sized paper frames: "From RANDALL'S MAMMOTH SKY-LIGHT Gallery, National Block, cor. Genesee & Cass Sts., East Saginaw, Mich. All styles of Pictures made at this Gallery in the best possible manner. Special attention given to copying from old and faded Daguerreotypes, Ambrotypes and other Pictures. Pictures enlarged, and made in any style desired. Remember, none but Good Pictures allowed to go out of this Gallery." Some of his cartes de visite were retouched so heavily that they looked more like drawings than photographs. James was judged to have exhibited the best photographs at the Saginaw County Agricultural Fairs in 1866 and 1867. He joined the National Photographic Association before June of 1870. At this time his employees included photographic operator Joseph Brown and apprentices Hiram Hadstate and Lysander Miller. "Rembrandt A la' Berlin." was printed on some of his card photograph mounts. James was succeeded at East Saginaw by Charles Van Buskirk. Sophia was a widow by 1880, when she and her children were living in East Saginaw with her parents. She was living in 1910 on the Saginaw County farm of her nephew, Fred Osborne.

Leon was born at Bagnall to a mother from Ohio on October 18, 1894, second of the three children of George M. and Kate M. Randall. His brother Rankin was born in December of 1883, and his sister Marie (later Ida M.) was born in November of 1896. Leon became a medium sized man with brown eyes and hair. "Made By Leon Randall" was stamped on the post card backs of photographs, including one printed from a negative on which "VIEW OF BAGNALL, MICH." had been lettered, and another with "Glengarry Chair Factory" penned beneath the image. The cards were mailed in August of 1913 and January of 1915. Leon was single in 1917, but he hoped to be exempted from military service because he was an experienced farmer. His farm was near Bagnall in Wexford Township, as was Glengarry, two miles east of Bagnall. Glee E. (later Effie G.) Weaver was born in Indiana to natives of Indiana in 1900, first of the three daughters of John D. and Eleitha Weaver. She married Leon in 1918 and their children were born in Wexford Township: Lorainne in 1920, Richard about 1923, Paul in June of 1925, and Leon in May of 1928.

William was born at Benton, New York, on May 24, 1821, was educated in Ontario County, New York, and moved to Illinois when he was 19. Melissa M. Dean was born in Vermont to parents from New York about 1831, second of the four known children of Mrs. Nancy Dean. She was living in 1850 on the Winnebago County farm of her widowed mother. Melissa married William on March 27, 1851, and they moved to Michigan before the year was out. Their children were born in Macomb County: Cornelia about 1857, Lillian in November of 1859, Winfield about 1862, Carrie in June of 1865, James about 1865, and Arthur in April of 1870. Lillian died as a child, but the others survived. William was enumerated in 1860 as a machinist, in 1870 as working in a saw mill, and in 1880 as working in a mill. Prior to 1882, he had been manager of the McElroy saw mill for four years and manager of the Perkins stave, heading and handle factory for three years. William was a widower by 1900, when he was living with his daughter Carrie who was proprietress of a small rooming house. 1

Ward was born in November of 1834 in Plymouth Township of Chenango County, New York, eldest of the three children of John T. and Louise (Lamb) Ranger. Martha was born in New York in 1836 or 1837, and she married Ward about 1857. Their children were born in New York: Henry W. Ranger in the summer of 1858, and Ida (later Edith F.) Ranger about 1861. Ranger & Elton produced stereo views from Palmyra, Ranger & Frazee produced stereographs from Syracuse, and Ward produced Syracuse stereo views in his own name during the 1870s. The United States sent eight parties in 1874 to observe and photograph the Transit of Venus from different points on the western rim of the Pacific Ocean. The party sent to Peking, China, was headed by Professor James C. Watson of the University of Michigan as chief astronomer with Professor C. A. Young as assistant astronomer. W. V. Ranger of Syracuse, New York, was chief photographer of this party with Dr. Ethan Watson of St. Joseph, Michigan as first assistant photographer and Benjamin J. Conrad of Ann Arbor, Michigan, as second assistant photographer. The other parties were similarly staffed. After weeks of establishing routines and drilling in them on the observatory grounds at Washington, D. C., the parties started in June and July for their various destinations, so as to be in place for celestial events which would occur on December 8 and 9, 1874. Despite hazy and sometimes cloudy weather, the Peking group made all of the critical observations while Venus was traversing the Sun and exposed 99 photographic plates. Ward was in Ann Arbor in January of 1879, under contract to photograph graduating law students of the University of Michigan. The University class that was graduating in 1882 contracted with the New York professional to take their portraits. On February 18 it was reported that "Mr. W. V. Ranger, class photographer of '82, has arrived and is ready to take photographs. He has a good gallery on Liberty Street, immediately west of Main. He will take pictures for the underclassmen at very reasonable rates. Mr. R. is an excellent artist, and students have a good chance to get first-class work done." Two weeks later it was noted that Mr. Ranger had been busy for the last ten days attempting to photograph the class of 1882. He was an officer of the Photographers' Association of America in 1886, and in the Twentieth Century was on the faculty of the School of Fine Arts at Syracuse University. He was boarding in 1900 at a small hotel twenty miles south of Syracuse.

Christian was born in the Danish region of Germany in December of 1854, immigrated to the United States in 1877 and soon became a naturalized citizen. Elizabeth (sometimes Lizzie) was born in May of 1859, emigrated from England in 1872, and married Christian about 1884. Their children were born in Michigan: Elsie in December of 1887, Elizabeth (called Rea or Rhea) in February of 1890, and Earl in March of 1892. Christian specialized in Enlarging and Tin Types in 1891, and his cabinet mounts were marked from Ontonagon, from Ewen, and from "... Ontonagon and Ewen, Mich." In 1892 he built a new home at Ewen and moved his family there from Ontonagon. The World's Fair Load, 36,055 feet in fifty logs, was loaded and hauled by the Nester Estate at Ewen on February 26, 1893. It was shipped to Chicago to be part of the Michigan exhibit at the Columbian Exposition. Printed on the back of an 8 by 10 inch special mount was a detailed description of the load and "... C. Raven, of Ewen, with his wanton enterprise, seated himself behind his team of dogs, with his camera and photographic implemints strapped on behind, was one of the first on the ground and the day being fine secured a good negative of the load, and at once filed an application for copyright with the librarian of congress at Washington. Agents are given liberal commissions on the sale of these views...." Nester hoped to sell a million photographs of the load at 50 cents each, and intended to control the rights by contracting with the photographer that did the best work, which apparently was Raven. Ontonagon was destroyed by fire late in 1896. Every business establishment was demolished and 344 buildings were burnt to ashes. Christian advertised nationally from Ashland for a good operator and retoucher in April of 1898, July of 1899, June and September of 1902, and May and July of 1903. Elizabeth was enumerated in 1910 and 1920 as the proprietress of a photograph gallery at Perhan, 22 miles west of Wadena. Her three children were enumerated with her in 1910 at Perhan, though Earl was also enumerated at Wadena working in Christian's gallery. Elizabeth was identified as a proprietor of the Wadena gallery in 1920, as well as being enumerated as providing a home in Perhan for the family of her daughter Elizabeth and her husband, M. P. Purdy.

James was born in New York State in 1825 or 1826 to Jarvis and Lavinia Raymond. He reportedly established on the east side of Ypsilanti during the 1840s, the first daguerreotype gallery in that town. He married Miss Sarah M. Forbes and they later had five daughters. Two of them lived to maturity and married; Fannie Lavinia was born in May of 1851 and Harriett Eliza was born in December of 1856. Sarah died at New York City on April 11, 1862. James employed Luther P. Dodge as a photographer in 1861, and advertised locally: "RAYMOND, PHOTOGRAPHER, Successor to Moses Sutton, 205 and 207 Jefferson Ave., Detroit, Michigan. To this establishment has lately been added, at great expense, A MAMMOTH CAMERA, also a Duplicating Card Instrument, on an entirely new plan. Imperial, Cabinet and LIFE SIZE PHOTOGRAPHS, now made at this establishment, Second To None In The World. Citizens of Detroit and State of Michigan, particularly invited to call and examine our new and beautiful styles of Portraits of every size. JAS. F. RAYMOND." James was 36 years old when he enlisted in Company H of the 24th Michigan Infantry at Detroit on August 13, 1862. He was mustered the same day, and was soon promoted to the non-commissioned staff as a Principal Musician and leader of the regimental band. He was discharged at Camp Isabella, Virginia, on January 30, 1863, to accept a commission in the First Michigan Infantry, and no further military record has been found. His brother Henry was a war correspondent with the New York Times. Since there was a shortage of pennies in 1863, many merchants filled a need by having penny sized copper tokens coined which carried their name. One example had "RAYMOND'S PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY, 205 JEFF. AVE, DETROIT" on one side, with an Indian encircled by thirteen stars above "1863" or "1864" on the other. Orville C. Allen was James' partner in 1864. Raymond & Roberts charged $2.50 per dozen for cartes de visite a la Francaise, and $3.00 per dozen for vignетted cartes de visite. Revenue stamps were affixed to some of their mounts, but not to others. James produced cartes de visite of the tattered battle flag of the 24th Michigan Infantry from 205 Jefferson Avenue. Moses Sutton had continued to share the same address as a dealer in photographic merchandise since 1861, and when James moved his gallery to Woodward Avenue about 1867, Sutton resumed taking pictures. Over Conklin's jewelry store, James offered: "Cards in every style. Old Pictures copied and Enlarged...." His second marriage was to Miss Annie Mary Wilson, eight years his junior, on May 23, 1868, at Sparta, Wisconsin. He and John Jex Bardwell formed a business copartnership and opened their rooms early in October of 1869, and the name of the firm may have been other than indicated above. The gallery at 300 Woodward Avenue was near the Central M. E. Church, and James was succeeded there by John C. Fredericks. James' photograph and fine art gallery at LaCrosse featured photographs, framing, moulding and German, French and American chromos. Henry Heath was his partner at LaCrosse. James had applied for an Invalid Pension nine years earlier, but did not receive one until 1890, when he was wholly disabled by rheumatism and chronic catarrh. He died of apoplexy at Minneapolis on November 10, 1906, and burial was in Lakewood Cemetery. Anna received a Widows Pension until her death in 1908.

His father came from Pennsylvania and William was born in Michigan on August 29, 1879, the only son of Forrest and Ella Raymond. His sister Flossie was born in Michigan in April of 1890. He was enumerated as Arthur in 1900 and as Arthur W. Raymond in 1910. He became a medium sized man with blue eyes and brown hair. "W. A. RAYMOND, 1105 SO. SHIAWASSEE, OWOSSO, MICH." was stamped on the back of 7 by 9 inch mounts. A 5 by 7 print on one of these was of ice harvesting, and another depicted a dozen young men and women standing and sitting in front of a house. William seems to have married three times without having any children. His first wife was born in Michigan in 1882 or early in 1883, and she became Mrs. Irene F. Raymond about 1901. His second wife was born in Michigan in 1882, and she was identified Mrs. Jessie Florence Raymond in 1918 and 1920. His third wife was born in Michigan in 1884 or 1885, and she was enumerated as Mrs. Cora Raymond in 1930.

His father came from Vermont and Harry was born in Illinois to a mother from Ohio on February 19, 1878, third of the four children of Robert W. and Ellen M. Raynor. He was commuting from his parents' home at Battle Creek to his job at Kalamazoo in 1918, when he was an average sized man with brown eyes and gray hair. Mary was born in Michigan to Swedish parents on August 23, 1882, and she married Harry in 1919. They never had children. Harry may have died in 1965, and Mary was residing in Grandville, Michigan, at the time of her death in June of 1975.

Some of the 1873 ads in Saginaw City were for A. W. Rea. William's first advertisement was: "PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY. I have fitted up rooms for a new photograph studio, and am now prepared to take photographs with neatness and dispatch in all the various styles of the art. Card photographs, $2.50 per doz. Photographs for 8 x 10 frames, $2.50 each. Old pictures copied to any size...." Eight months later he was advertising "PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS for Christmas Presents! A picture of the buyer will be put in each album free of charge. LARGE PHOTOGRAPHS and Frames of every description. CARD PHOTOGRAPHS $2.50 per dozen. A Berlin Retoucher just arrived...." He claimed in April of 1874 to be making the largest and finest finished photographs in Saginaw for one half the money, to be the only experienced photographer in Saginaw City, and to have "... secured the services of Mr. J. D. Junge, the best Negative Retoucher and Finisher in the Saginaws...." In July of 1874 William had "... just returned from the Photographic Convention held in Chicago and have secured one of the MOST EXPENSIVE INSTRUMENTS that has ever been brought into the Saginaw Valley, calculated for larger work ... Beautiful Frames on hand at the lowest figures...." Three different Saginaw City card imprints identified him as W. J. Rea, as did the Windsor card mounts and all of the information on the Missouri and California photographer. In April of 1888 Rea advertised "... A fine assortment of views of Santa Barbara and all the ranches round about." Four years later he attempted to "... take pictures of all the carriages taking part in the Floral Festival procession."

He was usually known as J. Lyman Reade, and was born on November 20, 1846, to John Lyman and Sarah (Harris) Reade at Rochester, New York. He was 5 feet 7½ inches tall with a light complexion, brown or grey eyes and dark brown hair and passed for 18 years old when he was enrolled at Kalamazoo as Private Lyman Reade in Company B of the Sixth Michigan Volunteer Infantry on August 21, 1861. The Sixth was organized at Kalamazoo and left to join the Army of the Potomac at Washington, D. C., on August 30, 1861. The regiment spent the winter in camp at Baltimore, Maryland, and then moved by steamers to Fortress Monroe, arriving February 23, 1862. From there they went by sea to Ship Island, Mississippi, and finally reached New Orleans, Louisiana, shortly after the fall of Forts Jackson and St. Phillips and the surrender of the city. The Sixth made many local excursions, some of which were quite hazardous. On August 5, 1862, the regiment had many killed or wounded in repulsing a heavy attack upon Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Lyman was discharged for physical disability at New Orleans on December 19, 1862. He was assessed as a Kalamazoo photographer in May of 1866, but claimed an adjustment in September on the basis that he had done no business. His first and only marriage was to 29-year-old Miss Alice E. Williams near Kalamazoo on July 3, 1886. Their son, John Lyman Reade, was born on December 19, 1888, and their daughter, Florence Alice Reade, was born on January 11, 1896. Lyman began receiving a Veteran's Invalid Pension about 1892. He was hospitalized with chronic myocarditis at Chicago early in April of 1910, and died in the hospital on April 11, 1910. His body was returned to Battle Creek, Michigan, for burial. Alice received a Widows Pension until her death at Chicago on December 7, 1919.

Francis was born in November of 1837 at Royalton Center, New York. Her father came from Massachusetts and Victoria Sylvia Davis was born to a mother from New York in Macomb Township of Macomb County, Michigan, on September 17, 1837, last of the nine children of Calvin A. and Sylvia (Beardsley) Davis. She married Francis about 1865, and their daughters were born in Michigan: Rena in September of 1866, Bessie about 1869, and Grace about 1870. The partners of Francis in 1876 and 1877 were James M. LeClear and William H. Robison. Francis died in Los Angeles County on September 11, 1904. Victoria was providing a home in Los Angeles for her daughter Bessie in 1910. Rena also was a widow by 1920, when she had joined her mother and sister in Los Angeles.

Lee was born at Piqua, Ohio, on April 9, 1889, second of the three children of William W. and Verona C. Redman. 2 1
His wife and son also were born in Ohio: Emily in 1890, and Lee, Junior, in September of 1914. Lee began studying 1 4 art in Cincinnati when he was thirteen, and was a dancing master before turning to photography. Beginning in 1919 he 4 d offered home and studio portraits. His studio remained in the same location on Kercheval Avenue during 1920, while 4 d its address changed along with most others in Detroit. It continued as a branch operation for a year or two after Lee 4 d opened the Woodward Avenue studio. Lee won the Agfa-Ansco Trophy in the Detroit Photographers Golf Tournament 4 t of 1930, and by this time he was divorced. In 1932 he was president of the Lee F. Redman Studios, with J. Lynn 1 d Fewlass as vice president and Lorene M. Hodgins as secretary-treasurer. In 1934 and later years, Lee was identified as 4 d the sole proprietor of the business. By 1935 his portrait creations, studies of full figures in modernistic settings, had 4 d been exhibited internationally. He disliked pretence and insisted that persons being photographed “be themselves.” He 4 considered the motion picture industry to be a criterion of good photography as it had spent millions on research for 4 perfecting the art. He still liked to dance and to admire good dancing, enjoyed golf, swimming and fishing in the 4 summer, and liked to bowl and to read during the winter. Lee advertised in 1936: “Studio and Home Photography. 4 d Creator of Personality Portraits and Camera Makeup for Ladies.” In 1938 he added: “... Our Junior Department 4 d Specializing in Child Photography at Your Home and Our Special Equipped Studio.” His son and namesake made 4 d news in 1939 by eloping with the daughter of the city treasurer of Detroit, and again in 1944 when they were divorced. 4
In 1940 Lee called his Business “Lee F. Redman Personality Portraits. The Bride’s Photographer and Home Portraits.” d

His father emigrated from Germany and Arthur was born in Michigan on March 10, 1872, eighth of the ten children of August and Lena Reede. The surname was spelled Reede in each of the cited census reports. Arthur became an average sized man with gray eyes and light hair. He remained single and still was living with his widowed mother in 1900 and 1910. "The Reed Studio, Jackson, Mich." was stamped very delicately on the post card backs of photographs such as one postmarked in 1907 of the Overland Walking Club, young men in knickers and caps with binoculars and cameras. The Indiana photographer was identified as A. E. Reed. Arthur's nearest relative in 1918 was his sister, Mrs. Tena Bell of Jackson, Michigan. Reed's Photographic Studio in Saginaw was open Sundays from 10 am until 4 pm.

His parents emigrated from England and John was born in Detroit on August 18, 1857, eldest of the three children of Edwin and Elizabeth (Thorley) Reeder. He graduated in Detroit from high school in 1875 and from Mayhew Business College in 1877 before he was hired by the Detroit & Lake Superior Copper Company as an assistant clerk. Her father emigrated from Scotland and Margaret Milligan Colville was born in Michigan to a mother from Detroit in July of 1859, fifth of the seven children of John G. and Margaret Colville. She married John on May 8, 1879, and she gave birth to Edwin on October 1, 1880, to Clara on November 15, 1882, and to John on January 20, 1887. When the Detroit smelter ceased operation John was hired as chief clerk of the Osceola Consolidated Mining Company, and he moved his family to Calumet in March of 1889. He was promoted to chief clerk of the Tamarack Mining Company before his wife gave birth to Margaret on March 11, 1897. John had started collecting stamps, coins, minerals and Indian artifacts in Detroit, and while living at Calumet amassed an outstanding collection of “copper country” mineral specimens and continued to add to his other collections. About 1900 he developed a keen interest in photography and constructed a darkroom in his home where he processed glass negatives. He systematically photographed deserted mining structures and town sites, activities around operating mines, family scenes, and the flora and fauna of the Keweenaw Peninsula. Shortly after John moved to Houghton in 1907 the collection of a friend was destroyed when his home burned. This prompted John to move his collections into a fireproof and windowless walk-in brick vault added outside the parlor of his home which was accessed via a steel bank-safe door. In August of 1909 John became chief clerk and purchasing agent for the Tamarack, Ahmeek, Isle Royale and Laurium mines. John retired on May 31, 1919, and began devoting even more of his time to photographing the Keweenaw Peninsula. By 1928 he had added color photography on Lumiere plates made into lantern slides to his black and white photography. John died at home on December 21, 1937. More than twelve thousand of his glass negatives, color negatives and lantern slides are preserved in the Michigan Technological University Archives & Copper Country Historical Collection at the J. R. Van Pelt Library in Houghton.

Martin was born in New York State to natives of New York in July of 1832. Ruby was born in June of 1840, also in New York State to natives of New York. She married Martin about 1862, and their daughter Rosa was born in New York State about 1864. In 1870 Martin advertised: "SUNBEAM PHOTOGRAPHIC GALLERY,... Pictures finished in India Ink and Water Colors, Copying and Enlarging in all the latest styles of the Art, Oil Paintings executed in the best manner. All work warranted to give satisfaction. Call and see our specimens. Also, Manufacturer and dealer in all kinds of Picture Frames." He joined the National Photographic Association prior to June of 1870. The words "Sunbeam & Photograph Gallery" - "Sunbeam Photograph Gallery" or "Sunbeam Gallery" were used in each of Martin's Flint imprints during the 1870s. They were printed on the carte de visite sized paper sleeves of tintypes, with the NPA monogram on card mounts along with "Carl Meinerth's Patent Mezzo-tinto Photograph.... Exclusive right for this picture in Flint, at this Gallery." and with the NPA monogram on cabinet mounts with "... No. 60 cor. Saginaw & Kearsley Sts., Flint, Mich. Opposite Fenton Hall." Fifteen of these cabinet portraits were of individual musicians from Gardner's Band, holding their instruments and in uniform. "REES & AVERY, SUNBEAM GALLERY, FLINT, MICH." within a circle similar in size and shape to a postmark was stamped in blue ink on the pasters holding many tintypes into their carte de visite sized paper frames, and on the back of a 2 by 3 1/4 calling card with a 1/2 inch high oval opening for the tintype portrait of a young lady. Martin advertised in 1873 as a "Portrait and Landscape Photographer, including Meinerth's Patent Mezzotinto Photo. Also Frames, Mouldings, Oil Paintings and Engravings." In November of 1874 he entered into a six-month contract with W. N. Tuttle, an established Santa Barbara photographer. "M. A. REESE, Art Gallery, Over Ulmer's Shoe Store, Flint, Mich. Panels and Cabinets a Specialty." was printed on some card mounts. The surname was spelled Reese in each of the census reports and in all available information about the Santa Cruz photographer. By 1900 Martin was a widower.

Herbert was born in New York State to natives of New York in October of 1850, the elder son of Silas G. and Sarah (Tucker) Reeve. His brother Bishop was born two years later. Isabel was born in New York State to natives of New York in September of 1855. She married Herbert about 1883, and their son Otto was born in New York State in November of 1884. Herbert purchased the Battle Creek photographic studio of Sedgewick S. Hull in November of 1885, and employed Hull's retoucher, Ebbie O. Schumaker. The studio address was listed as 5 North Jefferson Street in the gazetteer, but as 7 North Jefferson Street in a local directory and on two different cabinet mounts. Albert was born 22 miles east of Ottawa at South Indian (now Limoges) in Ontario on November 29, 1888, first of the fourteen children of Nelson Dieudonne Regnier and Zephirina LaPointe (Godard) Regnier. Both of his parents were born into Canadian families that spoke French. His family moved to the United States in 1892. "TAKEN BY ALBERT REGNIER, LAURIUM, MICH." was stamped on the back of the 5½ by 6¼ inch mount of a 4 by 5 photograph of a bearded man and a child in a residential dining room. Albert used an ornate mask with multiple ogees when making the print. He was a naturalized citizen of the United States by 1917, when he was a short man with brown eyes, black hair and a crippled right arm. Her father emigrated from Canada and Mary (later Mabel) was born in Michigan in 1892. She married Albert about 1913, and their sons were born in Michigan: Ardel in November of 1915, Earl in April of 1917, and Dale in 1926 or early in 1927.

She was born Sarah May Patterson in New York State in May of 1871, last of the four children of John and Harriet (Decker) Patterson. She and Benjamin F. Sleeper married in 1890, had a son in 1891 and a daughter in 1899. Something happened to this marriage and May married again. August H. Rehil was born in Canada to a German mother in 1877, came to the United States in 1888, and married a Canadian girl named Laurina about 1901. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Beatrice in 1902, Hazel in 1908, and Ruth in 1912. Laurina's death seems to have been associated with the birth of Ruth. August and May probably were married in 1913, and they were living at 129 Congress Street in Ypsilanti in 1914 and in 1916. They apparently separated by 1917, when Beatrice Rehil was keeping house for her father. August Rehil and his daughters were living in Flint in 1920, when May was living in California as the widow S. May Sleeper. She died as Sarah May Sleeper in Kern County, California, on August 21, 1944.

The three-cent revenue stamps on some cartes de visite were canceled with a “G. J. Rehklau & O. Coryell, Photographers, JONESVILLE, MICH.” stamp. Oliver Coryell was a Jonesville carpenter for more than a decade following his photographic partnership with George. Her father came from New York and Catherine (often Kate or Katie) was born in Michigan in November of 1846. She married George about 1865, and their daughter Nydia was born in Michigan in February of 1875. George and Catherine were providing a home at Toledo in 1910 for their daughter, their son-in-law Charles J. Harrison, and their eleven-year-old grandson George.

George was born at Kingsferry, Quebec, to natives of Quebec on March 15, 1870, last of the eight children of William and Margaret Reid. A year later he had yet to be named. He crossed the border in 1892, and he soon became a naturalized citizen of the United States. Olive A. Holstrom was born in Michigan to Swedish parents on August 21, 1874, fifth of the ten children of John and Ingeborg Holstrom. She and George were married in Wisconsin in 1893, and their son Hector (later Irving) was born in Minnesota in July of 1896. They moved to Muskegon in 1900 from Niagara, Wisconsin. Eight by ten inch commercial mounts blind stamped "B & R, 17 FIRST ST., MUSKEGON, MICH." carried photographic prints produced by Beckquist & Reid, possibly from the negatives of others. Enoch H. Beckquist maintained a photographic studio as part of the Beckquist & Reid business, and he remained a Muskegon photographer until 1967. Olive gave birth to a daughter named Olive in 1914, and by 1920 she and George had a 26-year-old adopted daughter named M. C. Johnson. George became well known as an ardent trout fisherman. He died at his Muskegon home on April 21, 1939, after a prolonged illness. George was remembered as a former photographer, and was survived by his wife and their son. Olive lived on in Muskegon until her death in March of 1967.

Richard was born in November of 1864 at Glasgow, Scotland, fourth of the five children of John and Elizabeth (Mitchell) Reid. The family immigrated in 1874 to the United States, where Richard became a naturalized citizen. Phoebe was born in New York to a Canadian mother in May of 1864, and she married Richard about 1889. Their children were born in Michigan: James (sometimes Dean) in October of 1890, Elizabeth (often Bessie) in August of 1892, and Mildred in November of 1894. In 1895 Reid & (Percy) Sharpe were giving a life size photo free with each dozen of their three-dollar cabinet pictures. Milton J. Loomis worked as a retoucher for Richard in 1897. Mrs. Phoebe E. Reid was identified as Richard's widow in 1905, but then Richard was enumerated as a Battle Creek photographer in 1910. Phoebe was again listed as a Battle Creek widow in 1914, 1920, 1922, and 1930. She was providing a home for all three of her children in 1920. She and Mildred were living next door to the family of her son Dean in 1930.

His parents emigrated from Holland and John was born in Michigan in the summer of 1864, first of the six children of Jacob and Prina Adriana Reidsema. Maude May Root was born in Kalamazoo to a mother from Ohio on November 29, 1868, eldest of the four children of Chester D. and Belle M. (Rosa) Root. She married John at Kalamazoo on September 14, 1891, and their son Chester was born on October 16, 1895. "... Duplicates or Enlargements can be furnished from this negative. Fine Crayons a Specialty." was printed on the back of some of John's cabinet mounts from 101 West Main Street. He produced cabinet portraits of Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands as a young lady, undoubtedly copied from the work of a European photographer. Several of his photographs were exhibited at the Detroit convention of the Photographers' Association of America early in August of 1895. He employed Henry G. Dornbush for several years in the later 1890s. For a while in 1897 and 1898 he had studios at both 119 South Burdick Street and 101 West Main Street. He advertised nationally in the autumn of 1898: "FOR SALE - A first-class gallery, all fitted up to 14 x 17; located on the main corner of the town of Kalamazoo, Mich., pop. 30,000. To anyone looking for a location, this is worthy of your attention. It takes less than $500 to buy it; only reason for selling is I have another studio...." At the fourth annual convention of the Michigan Photographers Association, held at Grand Rapids on February 1, 1899, John was awarded the first prize in Class B for twelve pictures up to ten inches. In 1900 a national periodical carried a portrait by John printed on Special Carbon Velox paper. His business was described as a Photo Art Studio and Supply House in 1902 and 1903. About 1910 he advertised: "Children's Pictures a Specialty. The Very Latest Styles in Photography. Visitors Always Welcome." Frank F. Neifert worked for John for several years in the early 1900s, spent a couple of years at Grand Rapids, and then returned in 1911 to purchase the Reidsema Studio. John died on August 5, 1913, and burial was in Mountain Home Cemetery at Kalamazoo. Maude married Edson O. Champlin in 1920, and she died at Columbus, Ohio, on September 5, 1945.

The formal opening of Howell & Reilay's Metropolitan Gallery was held on November 6, 1883. They advertised all kinds of photographic work and the finest stock of picture moulding ever brought to Lansing. Their club rate pictures included cabinet photos for two dollars per dozen. They made a specialty of life size crayon portraits and guaranteed satisfaction. Carson M. Howell had several years of professional photographic experience prior to his partnership with Sylvester, and he continued his photographic career in East Saginaw and Saginaw until 1921.

His grandparents emigrated from Ireland and his parents emigrated from Canada. John was born in Michigan on August 1, 1879, fourth of the five children of John and Matilda (Collins) Reilly. Frederick J. Hart attended college but is not known to have had professional photographic or business experience prior to joining John in their partnership. John exhibited photographs at the 1905 convention of the Ohio-Michigan Photographers' Association. Her parents emigrated from Holland and Catherine was born in Michigan in 1884. She married John about 1907, and their children were born in Detroit: Lillian in 1908, John in February of 1910, Edward early in 1913, and Helen in 1914. The senior John became a stout man with blue eyes and hair that had turned grey by 1918. He sometimes was listed as John E. Riley. All four of their children still were at home with John and Catherine in 1930.

William was born May 22, 1832, in the province of Brandenburg, Prussia, where he acquired a thorough common school education. When he was seventeen he sailed from Bremen to New York unaccompanied by a friend or relative and arrived penniless. He was hired by a farmer in Schoharie County, New York, and worked there for a year and a half. He saved enough to study at Harwick Seminary near Cooperstown, New York, and then to take the classical course at Geneva College, graduating in 1857. He began teaching at Sand Lake Collegiate Institute near Troy, New York, and on October 15, 1857, he married Miss Sarah E. Whiteman of East Springfield, New York. They moved to Findlay, Ohio, where Sarah died in 1858 leaving a four week old daughter named Sarah. This infant was taken and raised by her maternal grandparents. William was married again at Findlay to 17-year-old Mary Ellen Moorhead on November 1, 1859. They had three children born in Ohio: Henrietta on October 4, 1860, Gertrude on November 1, 1862, and Josiah on October 7, 1864. Then they had three children born in Michigan: Julia on February 6, 1867, Isabella (later Isabel) on July 8, 1872, and Frances on October 20, 1883. William succeeded E. H. Alley in Toledo, and in February of 1866 purchased the extensive photograph rooms of Edward P. Huylar at Sturgis. He was described early in 1866 as an experienced and successful artist. "THE HUYLAR GALLERY, Sturgis, Mich. Wm. Reiterman, Proprietor. Copies of this Picture can be had at any time." was printed on cartes de visite carrying two cent revenue stamps. He advertised locally in August of 1866: "HUYLAR Art Gallery, Sturgis, Mich. – This great Gallery is conducted in all the modern improvements and branches of the art by MR. W. REITERMAN, for a long time an active and progressive Ambrotypist and Photographer in the East. By the unprecedented conveniences which the extensive rooms he occupies afford he is able to, and DOES, daily, produce pictures that CANNOT BE SURPASSED in any metropolis East or West, and the customary work sent to the Country is constantly excelled. The pictures from this Gallery achieved among others the following premiums at the LATE STATE FAIR AT ADRIAN: DIPLOMA awarded for the finest collection of photographic specimens. DIPLOMA awarded for best India Ink work. FIRST PREMIUM on the porcelain pictures. FIRST PREMIUM on photographs in oil. FIRST PREMIUM on double pictures. Being in all FIVE FIRST PREMIUMS on the different varieties of work over competitors from Chicago, Detroit, Kalamazoo, Adrian, Hillsdale, &c., &c. Numerous prominent business men and patrons of Art have urgently invited the removal of the Gallery to the City, but it is the desire of the undersigned to remain a while in St. Joseph County, and he would invite the attendance of all admirers of fine and thoroughly artistical finished pictures to his rooms in 3d story Shepardson's Block, Sturgis, Mich. LIFE SIZE PORTRAITS of deceased friends are enlarged from small ambrotypes and finished in Oil, and India Ink. They will resist the destroyer time. Finished in full perfection by one of the most experienced and skilled artists of New York City, retained expressly for such work. W. REITERMAN, Artist." William was awarded premiums at the St. Joseph County Fair in the fall of 1866 of 50 cents for his photograph medley, $2.00 for the best exhibit of photographs and ambrotypes, $2.00 for the best ambrotype, $2.00 for the best photograph, and $3.00 for the best photograph colored in oil. In December of 1866 he advertised: "Holiday Presents. Within the reach of all. Until after the Holidays we will take PHOTOGRAPHS at $3.00 per dozen. Now is the time for good and cheap pictures. We take them rain or shine." William was an early member of the National Photographic Association, joining prior to June of 1870. In 1872 he was offering to make photographs in the latest styles, and to copy and improve old pictures. "Instantaneous Stereoscopic Views Made." or "Photos made from Retouched Negatives." was printed on some of his 1870s Sturgis card mounts. His Sturgis stereo views included the interior of a printing shop and a specimen of coral, and another was taken in his gallery of a group of students. He produced tintypes at Burr Oak, where his specialty was enlarging pictures. Mary was a widow by 1900, when her Burr Oak Township farm also was home for two of her children.

Daniel was born during the summer of 1865 in Carrick Township of Bruce County, Ontario, second of the eight children of Isaac and Christina Reitzel. Jane (often Jennie) was born about 1868 in Minto Township of Wellington County, Ontario, third of the four or more children of Thomas and Mary Ann Beamish. She married Daniel at Clifford in Wellington County, Ontario, on April 6, 1886. Jennie gave birth to Bertha in Wellington County on March 1, 1887, and to Gertrude in Algoma County on November 14, 1893. Andrew Forsander was a Negaunee photographer for six years prior to his partnership with Daniel, and for six years following the partnership. "Reitzel & Forsander, Negaunee, Mich." was printed in gold on 8 by 10 inch charcoal mounts carrying 6 by 8 photographs, including one of a large boarding house with three generations of the managing family and 22 male boarders standing or sitting out front. "Reitzel, Greenland, Mich." was blind stamped into 10 by 8 inch charcoal mounts carrying 8 by 6 prints and a small white label on which was printed: "12-Inch Blow Off, Taylor Hydraulic Compressor, Victoria, Michigan."

Harry Feinberg was the proprietor of this business in 1917, and had Benjamin H. Craine as his partner from 1919 through 1921. The Woodward Building was at the corner of Woodward Avenue and Clifford Street, and their other studio remained in the same location during 1920 while its address changed along with most others in Detroit. Benjamin H. Craine was sole proprietor of these Rembrandt Studios from 1922 until 1932, and was identified as manager of the studios in 1935. Isadore Feinberg was proprietor or president in 1934, 1936 and 1937, and in 1938 and 1939 others were officers of the company.

His parents emigrated from Posen in the Polish region of Germany and Martin was born at LaSalle, Illinois, on November 4, 1890. He was third of the eight children of Joseph and Cecilia (sometimes Celia) Renkosik. Martin became five feet six inches tall with brown eyes and dark brown hair. Francis C. Golnik was born in Illinois to Polish parents in January of 1885, second of the eight children of Antony and Victoria Golnik. By 1917 she was married to Martin and they had an eight-year-old (probably adopted) daughter named Florence who was born in Wisconsin. Martin lived on in Detroit until his death in December of 1965.

Earl seems to have been the youngest of the five children of Joseph and Mary Reno, and was born in Michigan on September 5, 1883. Earl wrote on a post card which he mailed in August of 1908 from Waldron to Toledo, Ohio: "Mr. C. R. Johnson; Have only today finished your postals. Perhaps you all are quite tired of expecting them tho it was soon as I could get them out owing to circumstances. Your wife's extra pictures will be 20¢ and you can see what the postage is. Yours, Earl Reno." At the sides of the image on the other side was written: "This is the water mill down east here." and "R. L. Johnson's order will be enclosed with yours as ordered. Thanking you people very much." Earl became a tall man with dark blue eyes and brown hair. Her father came from Pennsylvania and Anna D. Seley was born in Michigan in July of 1884, second of the ten children of William and Mary Seley. She grew up on the family farm, and prior to her marriage to Earl about 1913 she was boarding with a Detroit family and working in a jewelry store as a stenographer. Anna did not give birth to their only child, Betty Joyce, until 1925. Earl died in Los Angeles County, California, on August 15, 1961.

His parents emigrated from the Wurttemberg region of Germany and Andrew was born at Ann Arbor in May or June 1 of 1870, second of the five children of Frederick and Christianna Rentschler. His older brother Frederick and his 1 m younger brother Christian also became photographers. Andrew fell when he jumped off a cart on which he had been m 2 riding to a fire in May of 1888, and broke his left arm. Her father emigrated from England and Lucy was born in 2 1 Michigan in March of 1874 to a Canadian mother. She and Andrew married about 1891 and never had children. The 1 same style of imprint was used on the Howell cabinet mounts of Rentschler & Meeker, and on those of A. Rentschler. t
F. A. Meeker had a photograph gallery in Howell prior to his partnership with Andrew. "RENTSCHLER STUDIO, t

Andrew also became photographers. Chris probably worked for his brother Frederick in Ann Arbor, and seems to have m a succeeded George J. Welte on Washington Street in Owosso. Millicent was born in Michigan in 1880, she married 2 1 Chris about 1905, and they never had children. "RENTSCHLER, OWOSSO, MICH." was printed on the undivided 1 t post card backs of photographs of Owosso, including a view of Washington Street postmarked in December of 1906. t
Chris and Millicent were living at 621 North Ball Street in 1907, at 202 West Main Street in 1910, and at the studio 2 address of 202 West Mason Street in 1915. Chris probably was one of those who made post card photographs of the 2 t

His parents emigrated from the Wurttemberg region of Germany and Fred was born at Ann Arbor on June 3, 1868, first of the five children of Frederick and Christianna Rentschler. His brothers Andrew and Christian also became photographers. Fred lived his entire life in Ann Arbor, where he started his photographic career at the age of sixteen. Jessie was born in Michigan in 1870 and married Fred about 1898. Their children were born in Ann Arbor: Edwin in 1900, Freda in 1902, and Catherine in 1911. Fred advertised in 1892: "Photographic Art Gallery ... Group and Children's Pictures a Specialty.... New Rooms and Best Light." He was awarded a bronze medal for pictures exhibited at the annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Celeron-on-Chautauqua, New York, in July of 1897. Facsimiles of this medal and of the Grand Prize medal awarded to him by the Michigan Photographers' Association in 1898 adorned some of Fred's turn of the century cabinet mounts. His local advertising from 1898 to 1901 was: "Our New Cabinets are the Most Artistic Photos ever made in Ann Arbor. Awarded Grand Prize Cup Michigan Photographer's Association 1898; also Gold and Silver Medals. Awarded Medal Photographer's Association of America, 1897." He served as treasurer of the Michigan Photographers' Association in 1898 and 1899, and was elected vice president for Michigan in 1900 and president in 1905 of the Ohio-Michigan Photographers' Association. A 1904 ad was for "RENTSCHLER, The Photographer. WE PRESERVE ALL OUR NEGATIVES so copies of your photos may be made at any time. We are making a special effort to turn out the best results known to the photographic art. We do artistic framing, too. Mail Orders Given Prompt Attention." He was elected to the Advisory Board of the Professional Photographers' Society of Michigan on March 19, 1912, and served as treasurer of the Ohio-Michigan-Indiana Photographers' Association during the later 1920s. His local ads featured platinum portraits in 1913, preserved negatives in 1917 and 1920, individuality in 1923, and 40 years of distinctive portraiture in 1929. Three of his portraits were accepted in 1925 for exhibit at the Cleveland International Convention. Fred served two terms as president in his ten years on the Ann Arbor Board of Public Works, and he belonged to many civic and fraternal organizations. He enjoyed golf, fishing, hunting and football in what spare time he could find.

Aurelius was born on April 4, 1840, at Zanesville, Ohio, and began painting professionally when he was thirteen years old. He had moved from Shiawassee County, Michigan, to Elmira, New York, where he was working as a carriage painter prior to his enlistment in Company C of the 141st New York Infantry on August 21, 1862. He took part in several important battles, and by May of 1864 had been transferred to the United States Army Signal Corps, serving at Chattanooga and Knoxville, Tennessee. In April of 1865 at Knoxville he was afflicted with an inflammation of the eyes which confined him to a darkened room for a month, and still required enclosed spectacles at the time of his discharge at Nashville on June 30, 1865. This acute inflammation and the following chronic granulation caused a partial loss of vision, and Aurelius obtained an Invalid Pension in 1890. After the war he attended the University of Michigan, graduating from the Department of Medicine and Surgery in 1867. Miss Lovina Aurelia Morrow was born on March 17, 1837, at Hornby, New York. She was living at Southport, New York, prior to her marriage to Aurelius at Elmira, New York, on December 26, 1867. Aurelius began studying art with John Mix Stanley at Detroit in 1868. Lovina gave birth in Michigan to Claude in February of 1868, to Ione in May of 1870, to Rita in June of 1871, and to Harold in January of 1879. Aurelius maintained a portrait painting studio during most of his years at Jackson, and was also a noted landscape painter. After his younger brother, Samuel B. Revenaugh, died in December of 1893, Aurelius witnessed an application for a pension for Sam's widow at Williamsport, Pennsylvania. In 1904 Aurelius was 5 feet 6½ inches tall, weighed 190 pounds and had blue eyes, brown hair and a fair complexion. He died of organic heart disease at Louisville on August 29, 1908, and was interred in a cemetery at Cincinnati, Ohio. Lovina lived on at Louisville until January 1, 1920.

Samuel was born at Duncan Falls, Ohio, on November 9, 1847, and later moved with his family to Shiawassee County, Michigan. He ran away from home when he was 14, and gave his age as 18 when he enlisted at Monroe as a private in Company I of the Fifteenth Michigan Volunteer Infantry on February 15, 1862. He was five feet five inches tall with a dark complexion, black eyes and dark hair. The regiment was organized at Monroe, left there on March 27, and arrived at Pittsburg Landing, Tennessee, just in time to take part in the Battle of Shiloh on April 6 and 7, 1862. The Fifteenth was complimented by the brigade commander for fighting well with the steadiness of veterans. Two officers and 31 men of the regiment were killed, and one officer and 63 men were wounded. Samuel was wounded by bullets on April 6 in the right hand, the left wrist and most severely in the right hip. The middle and ring fingers of his right hand were amputated midway between the first and second joints. He was hospitalized at Cincinnati and then discharged on a Surgeon's Certificate of Disability on August 29, 1862. One year later he enlisted as a sergeant in Company H of the Tenth Michigan Cavalry. This regiment was organized at Grand Rapids and reached Lexington, Kentucky, on December 5, 1863. They were in Tennessee throughout 1864, and in the first five months had ten contacts with the enemy. During the summer most Union forces went to join Sherman's Army, and the Tenth was the only cavalry left in East Tennessee. They began encountering rebel troops on the average of five days per month, on some days more than once, and these contacts ranged from light skirmishes to pitched battles. Early in 1865 the Tenth moved into North Carolina to fight seven times in March and April. Samuel was hospitalized during 1864 at Nashville, Tennessee, and at Louisville, Kentucky, and was discharged for disability at Louisville on May 31, 1865. By 1867 Sam had learned enough about photography to interest a couple of partners in purchasing the Ann Arbor business of George C. Gillett. Revenaugh & Company were identified as practical and scientific photographers that enlarged old pictures to any size desired and finished them in oil, water colors or India ink in a superior manner. Sam and twenty-year-old Miss Evelyn Chase were married at Ann Arbor on October 5, 1869. Their children were born in Michigan: Mattie about 1871, Edward about 1873, Eva on December 7, 1881, and Ruth on December 23, 1887. Sam was sole proprietor of the gallery by 1870, and in 1872 had a portrait of himself tipped into each Ann Arbor city directory. The NPA monogram on some of his card photograph mounts of this era attested to his membership in the National Photographers Association. Sam produced card photos of University Hall and other buildings on the University of Michigan campus from 28 Huron Street. Sam was Captain of Company A of the First Regiment of Michigan State Troops from January 5, 1874, until February 6, 1879. As ordered by the Adjutant General, he led a company of fifty by express train from Ann Arbor to Jackson on July 25, 1877, to protect the rolling stock of the Michigan Central Railroad from striking railroad workers and coal miners. Sam's gallery in the Goodrich Block was opposite the east side of the court house. There instantaneous dry plates were a specialty, and Sam suggested that you call and see specimens of his work before sitting elsewhere. It was reported in February of 1884 that Sam had opened a new gallery at Ann Arbor. By the time his brother, the Jackson portrait painter Aurelius O. Revenaugh, visited Sam during the first week of January in 1885, Sam's gallery had been taken over by Randall & Burnham. Sam died from pneumonia after an illness of ten days on December 23, 1893, at Williamsport, Pennsylvania. When Evelyn applied for a Widow's Pension three days later, Aurelius was one of her witnesses. She died in Pennsylvania on October 15, 1908.

- Detroit member of the Detroit Amateur Photographic Society ..... ca 1892 1
Thirty photographs by J. P. Reymond were reproduced in an 1894 publication, including ten of Maine, four of Florida, four of Massachusetts, two of Louisiana, two of Rhode Island, and one each of Georgia and North Carolina. Most were scenic views, but there were views of a shipyard, a destructive winter fire, Native Americans, African Americans, sailing ships and dogs. Reymond's affiliation with the Detroit Amateur Photographic Society was noted beneath 24 of the illustrations, and his connection with the Kansas City Camera Club was noted under six of the pictures. The Detroit Amateur Photographic Society was organized in 1889 and had been dissolved by 1893. No Reymond was found in Detroit City Directories for the early 1890s. 2 3 d

Peter was born in the Netherlands in August of 1856, third of the seven children of Peter C. and Mary L. (once Matie) Reynders. With his parents and his two older brothers, he left Rotterdam on the ship Arnold Boninger, arriving at New York on July 2, 1857. His four sisters were born in Michigan between 1859 and 1867. Her father came from Ohio and Luella Phoebe Williams was born in Porter County, Indiana, on October 20, 1857, last of the five children of Samuel R. and Mary (Marine) Williams. She married Peter in Oceana County on June 1, 1881, and they had four children born at Grand Rapids: Zena Jean on November 9, 1882, Dee Allen on September 6, 1885, Helen Marie on December 5, 1890, and Addis Beth on September 6, 1892. Their son William Peter Reynders was born at Ann Arbor on October 22, 1901. Adelbert A. Barr had been a professional photographer for a couple of years prior to organizing A. A. Barr & Company. Peter employed his brother Phillip C. Reynders and Albert A. Tloczynski as photographers in 1883, and had prices of "... Cards 1.00 to 1.50 per dozen, Cabinets 3.00 to 3.50 per dozen." The address of his gallery was 126 & 128 Canal Street on four of six different photograph mounts. Peter supplemented his photography with a printing business at 77 Pearl Street in 1886 and 1887. Luella was a widow with her own income by 1910, when she was providing a home in Grand Rapids for her three youngest children. They still were with her in 1920, when her son Dee and his family were living right next door. Luella died at Grand Rapids on April 24, 1945. 1 3

Her father came from New York, and Edith was born in Michigan in July of 1876. She married H. Burt Reynolds about 1899, and their eldest son Paul was born in California about 1901. Two of their children were born in Michigan: Harold about 1902 and Margaret about 1905. Their son Robert was born in Oregon in 1913. Note that her husband entered the photographic profession in 1918. Edith advertised in 1919: "Reynolds, We Specialize in Kodak Finishing, Views, Flashlights, Portraits. 334 S. STATE STREET (Upstairs)" Only her youngest son was living with Edith in 1920. Her other two boys were living with a cousin in Detroit, where Paul was a mechanical engineer in an auto factory, and Harold was a chauffeur for a department store. Her husband and their daughter were not to be found. Edith was enumerated as divorced in 1930, when she was the proprietor of a commercial photography business with employees, and she still was providing a home for her son Robert.

Herbert was born at Richmond in Surrey, England, on July 14, 1878, first of the two known children of Alfred N. and Fanny M. Reynolds. He became a slim man with gray eyes and brown hair. Alice Jane Davis was born in 1877 at Bilston in Staffordshire, England, second of the six children of Josiah and Sarah Jane Davis. She married Herbert about 1903, and their daughter Sylvia Alice Reynolds was born in England in 1904. Alice and Sylvia crossed the Saint Clair River from Sarnia, Ontario, to Port Huron, Michigan, in October of 1909, heading for Saginaw where it seems that Herbert had settled. By 1918 Herbert had declared his intention of qualifying for United States citizenship., and a cataract had destroyed the sight of his right eye. "Photo by Herbert A. Reynolds, Saginaw, Mich." was printed on a label adhered to the back of a folder holding the photograph of Beatrice Harbron when she was about one year old, and she was born in 1918. Alice and Herbert visited England in 1924, and they returned from Liverpool on S. S. Regina, arriving at New York City on December 30. Their destination was their home in Cabin John Park, Maryland. The passenger list noted that Herbert had a deformed nose as well as the eye blinded by a cataract.

Herbert was born at Auburn, New York, on June 12, 1836, the only son of Jahiel and Lovina M. Reynolds. His sister Sarah was born in New York in 1844, and his sister Mary was born in Pennsylvania three years later. Upon the death of his father when Herbert was sixteen, he went to work to help support his mother and his sisters. He learned photography at Louisville and pursued it as a business in western Pennsylvania, Cincinnati and Niles. He was identified as a Niles ambrotypist by one 1860 source, and as a Niles daguerrean artist by another. He enlisted as a sergeant in Company C of the Twelfth Michigan Infantry on October 15, 1861, was mustered into the service on January 8, 1862, and was later made color sergeant. Herbert was badly wounded at the battle of Shiloh, Tennessee, on April 6, 1862, and was discharged at Niles on June 6, 1862. Recovered from his wound, he enlisted in Company A of the Nineteenth Michigan Infantry on August 13, 1862, and was mustered as commissary sergeant on September 5, 1862. Herbert was commissioned Second Lieutenant of Company A on July 27, 1863, and mustered as such on January 9, 1864. He was Acting Commissary of Subsistence during February and March of 1864, and served on the staff of Colonel Colburn from May to July of 1864. He was commissioned First Lieutenant on May 25, 1864, and was honorably discharged on April 25, 1865. Anna E. Glenn was born in March of 1838 at Edwardsburg, Michigan, third of the five children of Thomas T. and Sarah H. Glenn, and their only daughter. She married Herbert on May 23, 1863, and their sons were born in Michigan: Harry Morton Reynolds in 1864, Charles H. Reynolds in July of 1866, Herbert Glenn Reynolds in 1869, and Lewis Seal Reynolds in June of 1878. Herbert gradually built his Grand Rapids roofing business from retail to jobbing to a successful manufacturing corporation. He was enumerated as a dealer in patent roofing in 1870, as a carpenter in 1880, as a roofing and paving contractor in 1900, as a manufacturer roofing materials in 1910, and as a manufacturer of shingles in 1920. The 1910 census was conducted in April, and the 1920 census was conducted in January.

Burt was born in Michigan on October 9, 1897, last of the four children of Edward and Teresa Reynolds. He grew up on the family farm and became a medium sized man with blue eyes and dark hair. Edith was born in Michigan in July of 1876, and she married Burt about 1899. Their son Paul was born in California about 1901. Two of their children were born in Michigan: Harold about 1902 and Margaret about 1905. Their son Robert was born in Oregon in 1913. Note that Edith became a professional photographer on her own in 1918, and that she was enumerated as divorced in 1930. In October of 1942 Burt entered the Eastern State Hospital at Lexington, Kentucky, and he died there on January 5, 1943. He was identified as a married man with photography as his regular profession. Burial was in Pikeville, Kentucky.

Fred was born in New York State in December or October of 1869, last of the five children of Francis (later Frank) C. and Catherine M. Rhoades. He was called Freddie as a child. Ada was born in New Brunswick in January of 1875, fourth of the six known children of William and Catherine Johnson, and she married Fred about 1897. Adella (later Della) was born in Michigan to a Canadian mother in 1899, and by 1910 she had been adopted by Ada and Fred. From their Park Studio opposite the Government Park, Klinglund & Rhoades advertised as "Marine Photographers. We have pictures of all boats passing through Soo Locks and all points of interest. Mail Orders promptly attended to. Complete Souvenir Album ... by mail 50 cents..." Gray mounts 11 by 14 inches carrying 8 by 10 photographs of boats, some hand colored, were blind stamped "Lord & Rhoades, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich." Young, Lord & Rhoades gave both addresses for their marine, portrait and art studios until 1907. From 1908 on their portrait and art studio was on Ashmun Street, while their marine studio and curio store were at the Portage Avenue address, which was listed as 221-223 or 221 in local directories. "Young, Lord & Rhoades, Ltd., Soo, Mich." was blind embossed on the brown 11 by 14 inch mounts of boat photographs. A 7¾ by 9¾ inch photograph of the "Empty Poe Lock" was copyrighted in 1910 by Young, Lord & Rhoades. Fred's surname was spelled "Rhodes" in the census reports for 1900, 1910, 1920 and 1930. By 1930 he and Ada may have adopted a boy named Frank born about 1918, whose last name may have been Anderson.

One Arthur Rhodes was farming in Tekonsha Township of Calhoun County about twenty miles west southwest of Concord along the Airline Division of the Michigan Central Railroad in 1880. His father came from New York and Arthur was born in Michigan to a mother from Connecticut in May of 1848. His wife Rosetta was born in Michigan to parents from New Jersey and New York about 1853. Their children were born in Michigan: Frank in July of 1877, Olive in November of 1879, and Mary in December of 1892. By 1900 they were farming in Pulaski Township of Jackson County just a few miles south of Concord.

Frank was born at Corunna on April 16, 1865, first of the two children of the photographer James P. Rhodes and his first wife, Amanda M. (Harris) Rhodes. His sister Amanda was born on April 21, 1867, and her mother died eight days later. Frank and Amanda were living in 1870 with their paternal grandmother, Betsey Rhodes, while their father was starting another family with his second wife. They eventually had three half-brothers and two half-sisters. Frank grew up in Corunna, Fenton, Flushing and Reading. He married first about 1888, but was boarding alone with a family in Portland in 1900 shortly before his daughter Emogene was born. A variety of cabinet mount styles suggests that Frank worked in Reading for several years. Hugh Derby had some professional photographic experience at Portland prior to his partnership with Frank, and he was proprietor of a Portland photographic studio from 1904 until 1910. Minnie was born in Michigan to Canadian parents about 1870. She became Frank's second wife about 1907, and she was helping to raise Emogene in 1910 and 1920. Frank advertised "Photos, Views and Portrait Work" from Lowell in 1907. His purchase of the studio from Avery E. Field upon his return to Lowell was reported in the spring of 1908. Studio portraits in the post card format were embossed: "F. B. RHODES, LOWELL, MICH." Frank was established at Gaylord by the fall of 1915, when he had a fine exhibit of photographs in the main building at the Otsego County Fair.

James was born at Gloversville, New York, on April 3, 1842, fourth of the eleven children of Charles and Betsy Ann (Peters) Rhodes. He was 5 feet 7½ inches tall with a fair complexion, brown hair and blue eyes when he enlisted at Owosso as a private in Company F of the Ninth Michigan Infantry on August 15, 1862. He was mustered into the army on the same day. From January 17 through the entire year of 1863, he was on extra duty with the mounted Provost Guards. He seems to have been furloughed early in 1864, for on January 24 he and Miss Amanda M. Harris were married. On May 3, 1864, he was left sick in camp and by May 11 was in a hospital at Chattanooga, Tennessee, with pneumonia and chronic diarrhea. Toward the end of May James was given a thirty-day recuperation furlough, and before returning to duty he spent some time in a hospital at Jeffersonville, Indiana. From December 9 into February of 1865 James was on detached service as a boat guard. Frank B. Rhodes, the first child of Amanda and James, was born on April 16, and his father was honorably discharged and mustered out of the army at Nashville, Tennessee, on June 20, 1865. The couple's daughter, Amanda, was born on April 21, 1867, and her mother died eight days later. Her father emigrated from Canada and Mary A. McBride was born to a mother from New York at Corunna, Michigan, on April 24, 1846, fifth of the nine children of Robert and Caroline J. (Davids) McBride. She and James were married at Corunna on December 2, 1868. Their children were born in Michigan: Charles on September 21, 1869, William on August 9, 1871, Lena May on August 7, 1876, and the twins Albert and Nell Bessie on May 2, 1883. "From J. P. RHODES' PHOTOGRAPH ROOMS, Flushing, Mich. Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged. Picture Frames always on hand." within a fancy elliptical border was stamped on the backs of card and cabinet photograph mounts and stereographs of Flushing. With the "Flushing, Mich." deleted, the same stamp was used on the back of cabinet mounts, possibly some of James' earliest work at Reading. He also produced stereoscopic views of Reading. Diseased lungs and chronic diarrhea continued to trouble James, and he applied for an Invalid Pension in June of 1889. His second wife died on March 4, 1891, and he never married again. James was enumerated in 1910 as a farmer in rural Maricopa County, Arizona. He lived for a short time in 1924 at Los Angeles, California, but most of his later life was spent in Phoenix. He strained his back in 1923 and never regained his strength, and so required an attendant throughout the following years while he was being treated for a serious heart condition. James died in Phoenix on December 7, 1931.

George was born in New York to a mother from New Jersey in January of 1850, second of the four children of Theodore and Phoebe Marie (Ross) Ribble. He was boarding on the farm of James Coddington in 1870. Mary J. Peterson was born in Sweden in February of 1854, and she immigrated in 1868. She married George in 1873, and four of their children were born in Detroit: Ellen about 1875, Grace in June of 1876, George in June of 1878, and Edith in December of 1881. Their younger children were born in Minnesota: Lulu in April of 1884, and Mary in October of 1894. George may have been in business for himself in 1900. His daughter Edith married Oscar E. Mores, who was an apprentice photographer with George in 1920. George died at St. Peter on July 2, 1921.

His father came from Pennsylvania and Walter was born to an English mother in the summer of 1858, third of the four children of William and Mary Ricaby. His birthplace probably was Kentucky, but it could have been Pennsylvania or Ohio. Walter's brother Abram and their father William were proprietors of the Saint Joseph Republican from 1876 until 1883. By 1884 Walter had replaced his father as Abram's partner.

His father emigrated from England and William was born in Pennsylvania about 1829. Mary was born in England about 1830 and came to the United States. She married William about 1852, and their sons probably were born in Kentucky: William (sometimes Willie) in the summer of 1854, Abram in the summer of 1856, and Walter in the summer of 1858. All three of them may have been born in Ohio or Pennsylvania. Something happened to his first wife, and William married again. His second wife also was named Mary, and she was born in New York to natives of New York about 1837. She gave birth to Carrie about 1867. William maintained a separate jewelry, book and stationery shop during the period of his photographic partnership with William F. Sesser, who continued as a professional photographer for more than three decades. From 1876 to 1883 William and his son Abram Ricaby were proprietors of the St. Joseph Republican. William dealt in fancy goods in 1880 and in millinery from 1888 until 1891.

Thomas was born in Millington Township to parents from New York on September 15, 1863, last of the five children of Jay and Lydia J. (Beal) Rice. He was called Jay as a youth. Her father emigrated from England, and Jessie was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in October of 1866, first of the four children of George Carlisle Gunnell and Rebecca (Church) Gunnell. She married Thomas at Millington in December of 1887. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Eula (later Yola) in February of 1889, and Lela in April of 1894. "T. J. RICE, View Artist, Millington, Mich." was printed on cabinet mounts beneath the photographs. Jessie and Thomas were providing a home in 1920 for three of their grandsons: Leland, Albert and Robert Rock. Albert and Robert still were living with them in 1930. Thomas died at Millington on July 2, 1940, and Jessie lived on there until her death in 1959.

Gertrude May Richards was born in Sauk County, Wisconsin, to parents from Ohio on October 15, 1871, eldest of the four daughters of John A. and Sarah Jane (Westenhaver) Richards. Her only half-brother died before she was born, but Gertie grew up with three half-sisters from John's first marriage to Minerva Jane (Dearholt) Richards. His father came from Vermont and Louis L. Bliss was born in Wisconsin to a mother from New York in February of 1869, the younger son of Omri and Joanna W. Bliss. He grew up on the family farm and became a dentist. Louis and Gertrude married about 1892. Their daughter Irma was born in Michigan in May of 1893, and their son Vincent was born in Illinois in November of 1897. They divorced early in the Twentieth Century, and about 1905 Louis married a 21-year-old gal from Missouri named Ethel. Gertrude, Irma, and Vincent were rooming in Chicago in 1910. It is not clear where Gertrude was practicing dentistry in 1920, for she was enumerated while visiting her daughter Irma, her son-in-law Umberto A. Young, and her new grandchild Irma in Sisquoc Precinct while on vacation. Gertrude was living with this family in 1930, and Umberto had become a Christian Science teacher. Gertrude died in Los Angeles County on December 24, 1949.

Robert was born in Indiana to parents from New York in November of 1850, sixth of the eight children of John R. and Sophronia Richards. His father was an artist. Sophia (often Sophie) was born in New York State to natives of New York in May of 1854. She married Robert about 1876 and their children were born in Illinois: son Sabin in May of 1879, and daughter Nettie (later Janet) in April of 1885. By 1910 Sophie and Robert had divorced, and Sophie was providing a home in Chicago for the family of her daughter, now Mrs. Louis V. Logeman. Sophie was living by herself at Chicago in 1930, but Robert was not to be found in census reports after 1900.

| Cheever was born at Manchester, Vermont, on September 26, 1791, the son of Amos and Lurena (Cheever) Richardson. Electa was born about 1795 at Manchester, Vermont, the daughter of Abijah and Rebecca (Warner) Winch. She married Cheever in October of 1814 and three of their children were born in Vermont: Eliza about 1815, William in 1817, and Chester about 1822. Their daughter Rebecca was born in Pennsylvania or New York in 1820. Their son Chester and his wife were living next door to Cheever and Electa in 1850, when next door on the other side were living their daughter Rebecca and her husband Truman Wheeler. Cheever and Electa had moved in with Truman and Rebecca Wheeler by 1860, and Rebecca was a Tecumseh photographer a couple of years later. |           |     |

| His mother came from Ohio and George was born in Michigan on February 20, 1876, the younger son of George H. and Mary E. Richardson. His brother Orville was five years older. "G. H. RICHARDSON, EAST PARIS, MICH. KENT CO." was stamped on the back of a 3½ by 3½ photo mount, but there is no other evidence that George was a photographer. East Paris was just southeast of Grand Rapids, and its post office operated from June 4, 1875, until March 15, 1914. Her parents emigrated from the Netherlands, and Margaret was born in Michigan in 1886. She married George about 1905 and their children were born in Michigan: Orville in 1906, Alfred in 1910, Harold in November of 1917, and Doris in 1920. George was average sized with grey eyes, and by 1918 his hair also was gray. Part of Rockford is in Plainfield Township. |         |     |

His father came from New York and John was born in Ohio to a mother from Vermont in October of 1839, second of the three children of John S. and Maria E. Richardson. His sister Permelia was two years older, and his brother Wallace was fourteen years younger. Alonzo M. Cheney entered the photographic profession at least six years prior to his partnership with John, and he still was in the business in 1895. In Charlotte Cheney & Richardson did their photographing over their book store. They dealt in books, stationery, wall paper, curtain paper, clocks, jewelry, silver ware, oval and square picture frames, looking glasses, hats, caps, furs, gloves, paper collars, and a full line of gent's furnishing goods, notions, &c. Alice Thompson was born in Ohio to parents from Pennsylvania in the summer of 1852, and she married John late in 1869 or early in 1870. She gave birth to Grace about 1871 and to Howard in December of 1879. John was a widower by 1900, when he and his son still were living together in Charlotte.

Lillian Fidella Van Buren was born to parents from New York in November of 1872 in Tuscola County, Michigan, first of the three children of William and Martha Rose Ann (Conley) Van Buren. Her brother David was three years younger. Her sister Margaret was five years younger and died as a child. Their father was much older than their mother, who filed in March of 1877 for a divorce that was granted in December of 1878. Their mother was providing a home for Lillie and David in 1880, as well as for twelve-year-old Louisa and fifteen-year-old Melissa, daughters of James Pierson. Martha married James Pierson at Caro on September 8, 1881. Samuel J. Richardson was born in Michigan in June of 1870, and he married Lillian in 1898. He was a photographer, and he is profiled below. Their daughter Norma was born at Caro in 1907. Something happened to Samuel after 1910. Oscar C. Martin was born at Bay City in 1872, and he married Lillian at Caro on March 17, 1915. They still were together in 1930 at Caro, where Lillian spent the rest of her life. She was buried nearby in Wahjamega Cemetery. Louisville, Kentucky, had a photographer in 1890 and 1891 named Mrs. Lillian Richardson, who obviously was a different person.

Alva was born to natives of New York at Churchville, New York, on May 19, 1854, third of the nine children of Benjamin T. and Fidelia M. (Smith) Richmond. He was their eldest child that lived to maturity. Harriet Louise (sometimes Hattie) Carruthers was born to a Canadian mother in New York State on July 3, 1856, and she married Alva in 1875 or early in 1876. Their children were born in Michigan: Zoe about 1877, Alva in November of 1878, and Iva in July of 1880. When the Grand Rapids Photographic Club was organized in April of 1887, Alva became secretary and later notified a photographic journal that the club had been established by amateurs in the crudest sense. He then sent a series of stereo views of the United States Life Saving Service at Holland to this journal. One of these views was found recently in a group of professional looking stereographs of Grand Rapids and other scenes, some of which were stamped: "A. B. Richmond, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH." For a more complete account of the business activities of Perkins & Richmond, please see the entry for Thomas B. Perkins. The photographer James Bayne was vice president of the Richmond-Jarvis Company auto dealership from 1904 to 1906 while Alva was secretary. Alva was lodging by himself with a young Los Angeles couple in 1910. He died at Chicago, Illinois, on April 30, 1918. Harriet died in San Diego County, California, on October 11, 1944.

Permelia (Milly when she was young, and often Pamelia) was born in 1845 or 1846 in Northumberland County, Ontario, second of the eleven children of Andrew and Charlotte (Richmond) Turney. The family came to Michigan about 1848, and in the late 1850s they moved to Chippewa Township in Isabella County. Allen Richmond was born in Canada about 1831, first of the ten children of Thomas and Margaret Richmond. He married Milly on December 12, 1867, and she gave birth to Allen Monroe Richmond on April 24, 1868. With her two-year-old son she was listed twice in the 1870 census, in June as a domestic on the Chippewa Township farm of John and Hannah Bowers, and in July as a school teacher at Dushville in Fremont Township of Isabella County. Hannah was her sister, and her parents lived on an adjacent farm. Her husband was working at this time on his mother’s farm down in Lake County, Ohio. Permelia gave birth in Kansas to Lafayette in 1873 or early in 1874. She opened the Mount Pleasant gallery in November of 1876. In 1880 she was providing a home at Winn for her sons who were six and twelve years old. She was charged by Allen Richmond with desertion and was divorced on January 18, 1881. George W. Davis was born in 1853 at Midland, Michigan, last of the five children of George and Rachel Davis. He became a physician, and he married Permelia on July 16, 1881. Their daughter Alta was born late in 1883. Permelia bought the Burghoff Building at Dushville in March of 1885 for a photograph gallery, and opened it in July to take the new photos on glass, which were the latest thing in the line and the nicest. By November of 1887 she had sold the building and it was being moved to Main Street to serve as a meat market. She charged George W. Davis with cruelty and non-support, and divorced him on October 1, 1888. Permelia bought and sold some Isabella County real estate during the next couple of years. She still had relatives at Mount Pleasant, but had been living at Tiger with the family of her daughter Alta, Mrs. Melvin McCulley, for some time prior to her death in December of 1910. The post office in the village of Winn was renamed Dushville in 1882, but the name was changed back to Winn in 1898.

Richard had a namesake, a Cornishman who came to the Keweenaw Peninsula in 1850 to work in the mines and eight years later was handling his various mining ventures from an office in New York City. The photographer was born at Cliff Mine, Michigan, to an English father and a mother from Pennsylvania on July 27, 1860, third of the six children of Joseph and Hattie (later Hetty) Rickard. Lucy was born in Cornwall, England, to Charles and Catherine (Opie) Retaillic on October 25, 1869. Her family immigrated in 1871, and Lucy married Richard on November 3, 1891. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Hattie in August of 1892, Dorothy on August 2, 1894, and Katherine early in 1904. Richard advertised in 1890: "R. H. RICKARD CITY ART GALLERY, The Largest and Finest Gallery in the Upper Peninsula. Portrait and View Photography. Copying and Enlarging a Specialty. Satisfaction Guaranteed...." Five of the more common of his 17 or more different Red Jacket cabinet mounts carried the words: "City Art Gallery" or "New City Art Gallery." Richard sold his Calumet gallery in the Shea Block to William E. Steckbaure in January of 1896. At Mohawk late in July of 1911, ground was broken between the Finnish Apostolic Lutheran and Catholic Churches for the Rickard & Stolt studio, which opened on August 26, 1911. Richard died at Laurium, and Lucy lived there until her death on June 19, 1950.

His father came from Pennsylvania and George was born to a mother from Ohio in June of 1848 in Cass County, Michigan, third of the five children of Leonard and Margaret Ann (Crawford) Rickert. The surname was spelled "Rickert" most often, but was "Rickart" in three census reports and the assessment lists, and was "Reickert" in one census report. In 1860 mail for the Rickerts came to the Brownsville post office. Amanda was born in Pennsylvania to natives of Pennsylvania in 1856 or early in 1857, and she married George about 1875. Their children were born in Michigan: Edith in 1876 or early in 1877, Leonard a year later, and Jessie in January of 1881. Something happened to Amanda. Lora was born in Nebraska to a mother from New York in July of 1866, and she married George in the spring of 1892. Their children also were born in Michigan: Lloyd in August of 1894, Harold in October of 1896, Charlie in May of 1898, Ann (later Margaret) in 1900, and Mabel in 1903. Amanda's daughter Jessie was a school teacher for many years and had turned to dress making at home by 1930, when she still was living with George and Lora.

Marietta's father, Edward F. Riggs, was born in Michigan in February of 1843. On August 21, 1862, he went from his home in Waterloo to Detroit, where he enlisted as a private in Company K of the Fifth Michigan Cavalry. He was mustered into the Union Army on August 30, 1862. During the next three years his regiment was engaged with the Confederates in more than sixty places, including Gettysburg in July of 1863, General Kilpatrick's raid around Richmond in February of 1864, and the Battle of the Wilderness in May of 1864. When the war ended the Fifth Michigan Cavalry took part in the Grand Review at Washington on May 23, and then was ordered to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, to fight Indians. Edward was mustered out of the army as a sergeant at Fort Leavenworth on June 23, 1865. Caroline was born in Michigan to parents from New York in March of 1844, and she married Edward about 1866. Their children that lived to maturity were born in Michigan: Edward on October 17, 1867, Mary Orenda (usually Ora) on August 3, 1870, Marietta (sometimes Maryetta or Mary) on December 8, 1874, Willard on September 8, 1877, Lillian on July 29, 1881, and Florence in March of 1885. Marietta lived with her parents until her death in Detroit on March 13, 1899.

Ashley was born on November 17, 1836, and was thought to be the first white child born in Hadley Township to survive infancy. He was first of the six children of Harvey and Clorinda (Fosdick) Riley who came from Genesee County, New York. His father died in December of 1856, and by 1860 Ashley was working the family farm with help from two of his brothers. He became a charter member when Hadley Lodge 210, F & A M, was organized in December of 1866. Harriet M. Cummings was born in New York State to natives of New York in 1836, first of the five known children of Daniel and Mary Cummings. Something happened to her parents, and in 1860 Harriet was postmistress of Hadley and was providing a home there for her three youngest siblings. She married Ashley about 1869, and they never had children. "I am going to ASH RILEY'S FOR THE BOSS CENTENNIAL GEMS. Bring along your old Pictures & have them Copied & Enlarged. ALL KINDS OF FRAMES ON HAND. Frames Made to Order, Albums and Cases. PENTWATER, MICH." was printed on the pasters holding tintypes into their carte de visite sized paper frames. William was born in Michigan in January of 1868. He advertised nationally in the spring of 1888: "WANTED - Situation by a first-class Printer, Retoucher and Assistant Operator. Steady worker, can come at once. Best references. Address W. V. Ripsey, 102 Clay Avenue, Muskegon, Mich." He advertised locally early in 1900: "NOTICE. We have on hand thousands of fine Photo card mounts, printed for Berryman Studio, that we are going to close out at low prices. Cabinet Mantello Photos, former price $4.50 per dozen, now $2.50. Take advantage of our cut rates while they last. ANN ARBOR ART STUDIO, W. Huron Street, W. V. Ripsey, Operator and Manager." William was single in 1900, and was rooming at Detroit in a large place with nineteen others. J. O. Parrish advertised locally during the summer of 1900: "... I have secured the services of Mr. W. V. Ripsey of Detroit, who is a first class operator and will introduce new styles of photography. Carbons and platimolyphs, latest styles in photo mountings, etc. Call and see us..." William advertised in a national photographic journal late in 1900: "WANTED - To rent, a furnished gallery, with privilege of buying, in some good town. Address W. V. Ripsey, Mt. Pleasant, Mich." A Mount Pleasant newspaper noted in October of 1901 that William had been employed by J. O. Parrish at a salary of $15.00 per week for retouching alone, and that a replacement had been impossible to find since William had left and gone into business for himself. William still was single in 1910, when he was lodging with a Muskegon family.

Henry was born on March 12, 1845, in London, England. He enlisted at Kalamazoo in Company E of the reorganized Eleventh Michigan Infantry on February 15, 1865. The regiment left Jackson for Nashville on March 18, 1865, moved in April to Chattanooga and later to Knoxville. Henry was assigned to detached duty at the headquarters of the Third Brigade at Cleveland, Tennessee, and at the headquarters of the Second Brigade at Chattanooga, Tennessee. In August the Eleventh returned to Nashville and was disbanded. Henry was discharged at Detroit on September 28, 1865, and was first assessed as a Colon photographer in December of 1865. He was 5 feet 10 ½ inches tall with grey eyes, brown hair and a dark complexion when he enlisted in the regular army at Chicago on April 1, 1867. He spent the summer on recruiting service at Indianapolis and then was assigned to Company E of the 19th U. S. Infantry. He was promoted to Corporal on February 2, 1868, to Company Quartermaster Sergeant in April of 1868, and to First Sergeant on August 1, 1868. He served at Fort Smith and Little Rock, Arkansas, and again spent much of his time on detached service at a district headquarters. He was discharged at Little Rock upon the expiration of his enlistment on April 1, 1870. Henry re-enlisted as a Sergeant in Company E of the 19th U. S. Infantry at Jackson Barracks, Louisiana, on August 1, 1870. He was transferred to General Service U. S. Army as a Private on December 1, 1870, and assigned to duty as a clerk at the Headquarters of the Department of Texas in San Antonio. He was promoted to Corporal on July 1, 1871, and was discharged at San Antonio on January 1, 1872. Her father came from Vermont and Susan Fisk was born in Texas in 1851 or early in 1852. She married Henry about 1872 and their children were born in Texas: Sarah (sometimes Sally) on April 15, 1874, and John three years later. Susan was granted a divorce on the grounds of Henry's adultery at Chicago, Illinois, on October 14, 1895. Viola May Neill was born in Pennsylvania to Canadian parents in January of 1864. She married Henry at San Diego, California, on June 3, 1896, and they never had children. Henry was enrolled as First Lieutenant and Regimental Quartermaster of the 34th Michigan Infantry on April 30, 1898, was shipped to Cuba late in June, and there served as Adjutant General of his Brigade and later as Assistant Adjutant General of the Department of Santiago. He was stricken with a violent attack of malarial fever in August and was hospitalized at Santiago until October 6, 1898, when he was transferred to Grace Hospital in Detroit. He was discharged from Grace Hospital and from the army on November 4, 1898. He was in a San Antonio sanitarium in January and February of 1902 before moving to San Diego, where he was confined to his bed in May by hepatitis due to his malaria. His young wife refused to employ a nurse or to follow the doctor's instructions, and early in June fed him fresh pork from which he contracted ptomaine poisoning with severe vomiting and purging which lasted four days. He never recovered his strength and died of cirrhosis of the liver and nephritis on July 24, 1902. Interment was in the San Diego GAR Cemetery. Viola applied for but never received a Widow's Pension, apparently disqualified by the volunteered testimony of Henry's doctor.

Alda was born in 1898 in Sanilac County, Michigan, the daughter of Henry and Ida Mae (Coleman) Robb. The family moved to Escanaba about 1902, where Henry soon became a photographer. Alda's mother began working in the studio before 1910 and was a full partner in Robb & Company and later in The Robbs. In at least half of the sources, beginning when she was about sixteen, Alda was also listed as a principal of the photographic companies. They built up a good business and felt quite successful until September of 1925, when Ida Mae and Alda came down with smallpox. Some neighbors died, but Alda and her mother survived to move to an orange grove which her father had been developing near Fort Pierce, Florida. Alda married there, and spent the rest of her life at Fort Pierce.

Charles was born at Croswell on June 23, 1866, the eldest of the five sons of Thomas and Eliza (Niles) Robb. After an early engagement was terminated by the death of his prospective bride, Charlie never married and acquired something of a reputation as a playboy. Wixson & Robb advertised in 1894: "... Outside Work Solicited. Copying and Enlarging done to Any Size. Frames always on hand." George S. Wixson was Charles' partner in Croswell, while George's elder brother Joseph T. Wixson became his associate later at Escanaba. "Robb, Escanaba" was blind stamped into 10 by 12 mounts carrying 7 1/2 by 9 1/2 inch prints, including one of the Augustus B. Wolvin at the dock about to be loaded with iron ore. Charlie's advertisements promised Artistic Photography in 1902, and he was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905. The Robb Art Studio was at 708-710 Ludington Street in 1906, with Charles as proprietor and his brother Henry as manager. They advertised: "When in Escanaba do not fail to visit the Robb Art Studio. The only up-to-date studio in the city. High-Grade Work a Specialty. Fully equipped for turning out work on short notice. Sittings made at any time between the hours of 7:30 am and 9:00 pm; after 9:00 pm open by appointment only. Come and see us. Everybody Welcome. Views of city for sale. We also carry a complete line of amateur stock, canvas, etc.; also do developing and printing for amateurs." Charlie's niece had fond memories of the little shack on the roof of this two story gallery where they solar printed the photographs - no obstructions - sun on all sides. In April of 1906 Charlie was in Oakland, California, and he took pictures in San Francisco of the damage caused by the earthquake and fire. He may have been the proprietor of the photographic firm of Robb & Company at Carlsbad, New Mexico, between 1907 and 1912. He later moved to a place near Los Angeles and was in Hattiesburg, Mississippi, near the large army camp in 1917 and 1918. Charlie lived and worked for a while at Waycross, Georgia, and then settled near his mother and his brothers in Fort Pierce, Florida. He was a skilled carpenter, and worked as such in Florida and possibly earlier. He died about 1948 in a bicycle-automobile accident at Fort Pierce.

Henry was born at Croswell on April 17, 1868, second of the five sons of Thomas and Eliza (Niles) Robb. He attended the Buel Township District School and the State Normal School at Ypsilanti, Michigan. During the early 1890s he taught school in Clackamas County, Oregon. He returned to Sanilac County, Michigan, where in 1897 he married Miss Ida Mae Coleman. Their daughter Alda was born in 1898, and they moved to Escanaba about 1902. Henry spent part of his time during his first years in Escanaba learning photography, tutored by his brother. By the spring of 1906 Henry must have learned enough to be given a free hand in managing the Robb Art Studio, for the proprietor, his brother Charles, had moved to California in time to take photographs in San Francisco after the earthquake. "PHOTO BY ROBB, MAY 27, 1907." was included on a press printed post card of "City Park After Snow Storm, May 27, 1907, Escanaba, Mich." Henry and Ida's second daughter Louise was born in August of 1907, and about this time Henry bought out Menominee photographer R. A. Kirkham. This turned out to be a poor business venture as the studio was badly run down, though after spending considerable money on renovations, Henry was reported to have finally a first-class studio at Menominee. When the baby Louise died in November of 1908 the disheartened Robbs returned to Escanaba, to the Wells Avenue studio that had been used by Wixson & Robb and then by Joseph T. Wixson. Harry Conant was anxious to form a partnership in Escanaba with Henry, and they worked together briefly in 1909, with Henry teaching Harry much about developing, printing and toning. The deterioration of Harry's health prevented a lasting association from developing, and Henry found a great partner right in the family. Ida Mae Robb had begun working in the studio and became very capable in all parts of the business, especially in the photography of children. She was a full partner in Robb & Company and later in The Robbs. In half the sources Henry and Ida's teenaged daughter Alda was also listed as a principal of the companies. "Robb" or "Robbs" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs, such as one of Flag Day at Franklin School in Escanaba in the spring of 1915. The Robbs built up a good photography business, purchased the studio building and property, and remodeled the studio. They felt quite successful until September of 1925, when Ida Mae and Alda came down with small pox. The neighbor who had brought the disease to Escanaba from Florida and several others died, but the Robbs lived to move to an orange grove which Henry had been developing near Fort Pierce. The Escanaba studio was sold to Robert E. Selkirk, who was still proprietor of the Robb Studio there in 1931. Henry had invested well enough to live comfortably in Florida until his death on June 21, 1963.

Ida Mae Coleman married Henry H. Robb in 1897 in Sanilac County, Michigan. Their daughter Alda was born in 1898, and they moved to Escanaba about 1902, where Henry learned photography while working as a carpenter. Henry was managing a photograph studio for his brother when their second daughter Louise was born in August of 1907. Henry soon bought out a Menominee photographer but it turned out to be a poor business. When the baby Louise died in November of 1908 the disheartened Robbs returned from Menominee to Escanaba, where Henry took over what had been the Wixson studio on Wells Avenue. Ida Mae Robb began working in the studio and became very capable in all parts of the business, especially in the photography of young, and not so young, children. She was a full partner in Robb & Company and later in The Robbs. In half the sources, starting when she was about sixteen, Henry and Ida's daughter Alda was also listed as a principal of the companies. They built up a good photography business, purchased the studio building and property, and remodeled the studio. The name of Wells Avenue was changed to South First Street about 1920. The Robbs felt quite successful until September of 1925, when Ida Mae and Alda came down with small pox. The neighbor who had brought the disease to Escanaba from Florida and several others died, but the Robbs lived to move to an orange grove which Henry had been developing near Fort Pierce. Henry had invested well enough for them to live comfortably in Florida and to celebrate their 58th wedding anniversary there. Ida Mae died at Fort Pierce in 1955, and Henry lived there eight years longer.

Donald was born in May of 1866 at Hartford, Connecticut, the only son of Edmund Donald Roberts and Minnie J. Roberts. His sister Jessie was born two years later. His mother was a painter, a musician and a writer. Donald had his own design studio in Hartford for two years before accepting a job with the Forbes Lithographing Company at Boston. With failing health, he left Boston for a less confining position where he could spend more time in the open air. Anna was born in Michigan to Scotch parents in March of 1871, and she married Donald about 1892. Their children were born in Michigan: Donald in February of 1895, Helen in July of 1897, and Thomas (later Melbourne) about 1902. Donald began to explore the possibilities of the camera in producing commercial designs for advertising, copyrighting photographs in 1894, 1895, 1896 and 1897, and soon became an enthusiast on the subject. One of his photographs, "Nemesis," was exhibited at the National Salon in Washington in 1896, and was purchased by the government for the National Museum. Photographic designs, produced with inexpensive equipment by the light of a single north window in his home and with very little retouching, took first and second prizes in a Buffalo Express competition in 1896. An eight page article about Donald and his designs, "Relation of Photography to Designing" by Mrs. Pruella Janet Sherman, was published by The Photographic Times in January of 1897. In this article and in most directories prior to 1898 he was identified as E. Donald Roberts, Junior, though in 1893 he was Edmund D. Roberts. The second annual meeting of the Michigan Photographers' Association was held at Detroit in February of 1897, and there Donald was awarded the second prize in Class B for his exhibit of twelve Paris Panels to 13 inches. He was president of the Detroit Camera Club in 1898, when he advertised as: "E. DONALD ROBERTS, ARTIST PHOTOGRAPHER. Designs for all commercial and art purposes, photographed from life and finished in photographic paints or water colors. Having received numerous requests to do Portrait work, I will do a limited amount of this work by appointment only. Especial attention given to original composition work necessitating the combined abilities of Artist and Photographer..." His opinions were printed by a photographic journal as part of a discussion of "Old vs. New Methods in Portraiture" early in 1900: "... I do not do portrait photography, devoting my time entirely to genre work. Perhaps for this reason I am not as well fitted to state what 'school' of pictures is the best from a business stand-point. Originality, personality, and artistic taste, in connection with good mechanical manipulation, I find necessary in my work, and the more good thought I can put into my work the better my results in a financial way. I do not favor extremes, unless it is absolutely necessary to portray some particular subject in view. Softness, good modeling, correct lighting, and natural posing should constitute good handling, and the more originality you can combine with good handling the more likely you are to gain national fame, and your work will be recognized at a glance by its individuality..." In 1907 and 1908 he was "E. DONALD ROBERTS, Originator of Designs for Illustrative Work for Advertising Purposes, Produced by Photographic Methods, Direct from Life. Sketches Finished Complete in Colors When Desired..." His residence was in Birmingham after 1907, except for 1914. Donald's son, T. Melbourne Roberts, was associated with the First National Bank at Birmingham in 1932.

There was a painter named John Roberts in Detroit in 1850 who was born in England about 1823. John H. Roberts furnished daguerreotypes for $1.00 and upwards in 1854. He was awarded the First Diploma and $5.00 for the best collection of ambrotypes and photographs exhibited at the twelfth annual Michigan State Fair, which was held at Detroit early in October of 1860. His exhibit was comprised of 24 photographs, including excellent likenesses of well-known Detroiters such as R. E. Roberts, Charles Lum, Rev. Mr. Ingles, William Tate and Mrs. Goodall as well as Rev. Mr. Strong of Monroe. All of his portraits were called good, and some were of a large size. A couple of years later, Roberts & Dodge succeeded William Roberts in the gallery at 159 Jefferson Avenue. John employed Miss Hannah Mason as a photographer in 1864.

William was born in England in 1817 or 1818. In 1860 his gallery was over Scott's Banking House on the north side of Jefferson Avenue between Woodward Avenue and Griswold Street, and furnished "... Superior Life-Size PHOTOGRAPHS, and old Pictures copied, and Photographs made from the same. Also, Portraits in Oil or Water Colors, which cannot be excelled for accuracy of life-like expression." In June of 1863 the people of Saginaw were advised that "Wm. Roberts has opened an Ambrotype and Photograph establishment on Washington street,... opposite the Post Office..." In 1874 it was "William Roberts' Photographic Atelier ... The only Photographer in the city making the beautiful Victoria Picture. It has no superior. His father was a Methodist minister and William was born in Ontario to parents from Indiana on August 15, 1876, third of the four children of Juneus and Francesca (later Frances Ann) Roberts, and their only son. His twin sisters Ida and Eliza (later Rose) were born five years earlier, and his sister Mary was born in February of 1881. William was identified as African or colored in most directories and census reports, once as mulatto, and as negro on his draft registration card. He became an average sized man with brown eyes and black hair. He married some time after 1910, but was sharing a Benton Street home with his mother in 1918. William was enumerated as divorced in 1920, when he was residing with a widow. His address was 626 Benton Street from 1920 until 1923. "Wm. E. Roberts, Photographer, 626 Benton, Detroit, Mich." was printed on two inch round labels adhered to the back of 8 by 10 inch commercial mounts with the "H. C. Jackson, Detroit" imprint partially effaced from below the 5 by 7 images. One such photograph was of a formally dressed group of young black people posed inside a large church. William was enumerated as a distributor at the United States post office in 1930.

| Carey was born at Mead in Macomb County, Michigan, on August 9, 1863, first of the four children of Rodney D. and Marion (Wright) Robinson. Both of his parents were born in Michigan. His father enlisted at Almont as a private in Company B of the Thirtieth Michigan Infantry on August 12, 1864. He was mustered into the Union Army on December 13, and promoted to corporal on December 24, 1864. When the war ended, Rodney was mustered out of the army at Detroit on June 30, 1865. Marion gave birth in Michigan to Ellen about 1872, to Arthur about 1874, and to Alice about 1879. Her father emigrated from Canada and Lettie Alena Lewis was born to a mother from New York in March of 1870 at Tuscola, Michigan, second of the five children of Nathaniel Taylor Lewis and Angeline Melissa (Gillet) Lewis. Lettie married Carey about 1887, and they settled at Prairieville, Michigan. He did some contracting and building and then managed furniture and undertaking establishments at Prairieville and at Delton for several years. Carey bought a hearse and a stock of undertaking goods from a man at Martin, and then augmented this business by manufacturing caskets. Lettie gave birth in 1890 to Cora, who lived only until 1894. She gave birth to Leo Carey Robinson in February of 1893, and to Ralph Dennis Robinson in March of 1895. Carey moved his stock to Dowagiac and went into an undertaking partnership. During a depression this business proved inadequate to support two families, so Carey sold out to his partner and spent a year as a patternmaker at Dowagiac. In July of 1900 he moved his family to Grand Rapids and began to learn a new trade from his wife's cousin, the photographer Orville A. Gillett. In November of 1900 Gillett loaned him enough to buy his own studio at 126 Canal Street. He had good trade from the start and was able to repay the loan in the first year. His assistant in 1904 was Frank M. Findlay, who managed the Enterprise Studio at 55 West Bridge Street for Carey in 1905. By 1906 the Robinsons had saved enough to buy machinery and start a small factory making furniture for photographic studios. Lettie and son Leo ran the studio while Carey supervised the factory. Carey had joined the Photographers' Association of America, and with Lettie began to display and take orders for their furniture at the annual PA of A conventions, Detroit in 1908 and then Rochester in 1909. Carey's son Leo was involved in this furniture business before taking over the studio at 115 ½ Monroe Avenue. His other son Ralph stayed with the furniture business which progressed from Robinson & Sons to Robinson & Son. At the Milwaukee convention of the PA of A in July of 1910, Robinson & Sons had an exhibit of studio furniture outside the hall and were represented by Carey as general manager. They received orders from all over the United States, Canada, Mexico and Cuba. They continued to exhibit at these conventions every July; Atlanta in 1911, Philadelphia in 1912 and Kansas City in 1913. The Robinsons had taken a ten year lease on rooms over 115 Monroe Street in the spring of 1912, remodeled them into a photographic studio for Lettie and Leo to operate, and transferred their equipment. This proved to be an unfortunate move, for they never did as much business here as at their earlier location. A photographic annual for 1913 carried this advertisement: "ROBINSON'S STUDIO FURNITURE is sold by every up-to-date Dealer in America, and several foreign countries. This furniture is made by a Photographer who knows how you want it made. If your Dealer does not sell it, send to us for our latest Catalogue. C. B. ROBINSON & SONS, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH." They merged about 1913 with another small company that made fancy mahogany novelties, retaining a 65% interest in the business, and became the Rex-Robinson Furniture Company. As such they exhibited at PA of A conventions at Buffalo in 1914 and at Chicago in 1915. After years of prosperity, World War I made it difficult to obtain mahogany and interfered with the shipping of their furniture. Luckily they were able to sell the business to a man anxious to enter the furniture trade. Carey turned the Grand Rapids studio over to Leo and went to Detroit where he acquired Wright & Company from its founder, Percival G. Wright, taking possession on January 1, 1916. Business was good until a post war slump, when the studio lease expired and the landlord more than doubled the rent. The Robinsons occupied the studio and the good living rooms above it on Saginaw Street in Pontiac on May 1, 1920, and it proved to be a wise purchase. Business boomed in Pontiac with General Motors expansion. Ralph came from Grand Rapids to work for his father, and in the later 1920s was given an interest in the business. In 1925 Carey and Lettie moved into a house they bought in Pontiac, and the following year began spending most winters in Florida. | 2 15 1666 11 51 55 2222 51 22g R22 gg 222 77 22 gg88 22222 3333 22 g22 dd 2222 |     |

Ralph ran the studio by himself in 1930, and Carey was seldom active in its operations after that. Carey died on December 6, 1940, and burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Vassar, Michigan. 2

Leo was the elder son of photographer Carey B. Robinson and Lettie Alena (Lewis) Robinson, was born on February 25, 1893, at Delton, Michigan, and became a tall man with light brown eyes and brown hair. Her father came from Indiana and Alta was born at Plainwell, Michigan, in June of 1893, sixth of the nine children of Charles C. and Frances Ardella (Nichols) West. She grew up on an Allegan County farm, and she married Leo in 1914. Their children were born in Michigan: Chester in 1915, Doris in 1916, Rueben (later Richard) in July of 1919, Jack about 1924, Avis in May of 1926, and Eileen in February of 1928. The furniture manufactured by C. B. Robinson & Sons was sold across the nation and in several other countries. Though Leo, along with his brother Ralph and his father, was a principal of this company through 1911, Leo and his mother operated the photograph studio while his father supervised the furniture factory. Leo became the nominal proprietor of the Grand Rapids studio about 1913, though his mother and father still were involved with its operation and finances. He called it Robinson's Art Loft in 1917. Late in 1923 he purchased the Spaeth Studio, located in its own building on West Main Street, and within a couple of years had developed one of the largest portrait trades in Kalamazoo. Leo died at Kalamazoo in 1942.

Miller was born in Maine in May of 1859, third of the five children of Jacob S. and Elizabeth B. Robinson. He was called Millie as a youth. Miller arrived in Saugatuck with the telegraph and also worked for the telephone company installing and inspecting lines. "Knapp & Robinson" was printed on some cabinet mounts. Lettie Wheeler died shortly after she married Miller, and about 1882 he married her sister Abbie, who was born in Michigan to Irish parents in January of 1865. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Irene in February of 1898, and Abigail on October 11, 1900. Abbie died of tuberculosis in 1903. Miller became the father of the twins Mabel and Mary in 1906 or early in 1907, and their mother died shortly after their birth. Her father came from New Hampshire and Anna was born in Ohio to a mother from New York in 1843. She and Miller married in 1909 or early in 1910, and they usually spent their winters in the south. Anna still was keeping house for Miller in 1930, but she died soon. By 1935 Miller was married to Jennie, who was born about 1875 at Montreal, Canada, and was identified as his sixth wife. Miller died in 1939 or 1940, and Jennie lived for another twenty years.

Ralph was the younger son of Carey B. and Lettie Alena (Lewis) Robinson, and was born at Plainwell on March 13, 1895. He became a tall slender man with brown eyes and black hair. Ralph's father began manufacturing furniture for photographic studios in 1906, and by 1910 the furniture company was called C. B. Robinson & Sons. When his elder brother Leo was given responsibilities in the family photographic studio about 1912, the furniture company became C. B. Robinson & Son. By 1914 a merger with another small manufacturer had created the Rex-Robinson Furniture Company. Her parents emigrated from Holland and Helen Van Yseldyke was born in Michigan in 1895, seventh of the eleven children of William and Mary C. Van Yseldyke. She and Ralph were married by 1917, and their son Ralph was born in Grand Rapids late in 1917. Carey B. Robinson established the Robinson Studio at Pontiac in May of 1920, and within a year or two was prospering enough to bring in his son Ralph to learn the business. Something happened to Helen and Ralph, Junior, and by 1923 Ralph had a wife named Beatrice who was born in Michigan in 1900 or early in 1901. Beatrice gave birth in Pontiac to Joyce in June of 1925, and to Suzanne in January of 1929. By 1926 Ralph had been given an interest in the studio, and his parents were spending the winters in Florida. During the depths of the depression in 1930, Ralph made it through by laying off the help and doing all the work himself. At this time the Robinson Studio offered both portrait and commercial photography. Though nominally a principal of the studio, Ralph's father was not active in its operations during the decade preceding his death in 1940. Larry DeRycke apprenticed with Ralph in 1937, and found the huge skylights to be memorable. Richard H. Frye apprenticed with him in 1950, and worked for him for ten years. Ralph habitually smoked Anthony & Cleopatra cigars, and was a president of the Michigan Photographers Society. From 1959 through 1961 Ralph Robinson and Richard Frye maintained separate photographic businesses under the same roof. Ralph had studio hours during the day and Dick had studio hours at night. When Ralph retired on January 1, 1962, most of his studio equipment and some negatives were acquired by Dick Frye. About 250 of Ralph's 8 by 10 negatives of Pontiac street scenes are still held by the Frye family. Ralph died on July 22, 1970, survived by his wife, two daughters and seven grandchildren. Burial was in Avon Cemetery at Rochester, Michigan. All studio records and remaining negatives were soon destroyed by his widow.

Walter was born to an English mother on March 5, 1876, at Millington, Michigan, third of the six children and the only son of Charles Edward Robinson and Tryphena Elizabeth (Blackmore) Robinson. Gertrude Mary Freeman was born in Canada to Canadian parents in 1883, married Walter at Davison in 1901, and they never had children. "W. S. Robinson, Photographer, Davison, Mich." was printed and "The Crankshaw School, Elba, Mich." was written on the back of the 12 by 10 inch mount of an 8½ by 7 photograph of the pupils standing in front of the school. Elba was four miles east of Davison on the Grand Trunk Western Railway. Walter was average sized with gray eyes and brown hair, and by 1918 was slightly crippled in one leg. He was enumerated as a carpenter in 1910 and as a house carpenter in 1920. Walter built many of the fine homes in Davison, and was regarded as dependable and honest. Active in civic affairs, he served on the Davison city council several times and played a significant role in developing St. Clair Shores. He was mayor of St. Clair Shores in 1931 and 1932. By this time, Gertrude was calling herself Mary G. Robinson. While on a business trip with his sister and brother-in-law, Walter was driving south on M-15 in Genesee County and passing a funeral procession going north. One car in the procession swerved into the south bound lane and they struck head on. His brother-in-law was killed instantly and Walter died four hours later on September 25, 1941. Burial was in the Davison Cemetery. Walter was survived by his wife and by three of his sisters.

Elon was born in Detroit in November of 1898, the only surviving son of John P. and Fanny H. (Post) Robison. His sister Deborah was born two years later. Their mother died in 1910, and their father soon married a much younger woman named Margaret. Elon enlisted in the United States Marine Corps on April 28, 1918, and he was trained at the Marine Barracks on Paris Island, South Carolina. In September of 1918 he was mustered in France with Company G of the Fifth Marine Regiment of the American Expeditionary Force. From October of 1918 through August of 1919 he was mustered with Company I of the Fifth Regiment. John P. Robison, Elon's father, was proprietor of the various businesses that Elon managed. They did film developing and enlarging and offered a complete line of Kodaks and supplies. Elon lived until 1978.

John was born in Ohio to a mother from Michigan in June of 1870, the elder son of Samuel C. and Ella L. Robison. He and his two sisters and one brother were raised by Samuel's second wife, Nancy, on the family farm. Her father came from Vermont and Fanny H. Post was born in Detroit to a mother from New York on December 13, 1868, first of the six children of Hoyt and Helen Deborah (Hudson) Post. She married John in Detroit on June 6, 1894. Their son John was born in Kentucky in March of 1895 but died as a child. Their son Elon was born in Detroit in November of 1898 and is profiled above. Their daughter Deborah was born in Detroit in 1910, the year in which Fanny died. John soon married Margaret, who was born in Michigan to parents from Maryland in 1882. Robison's Kodak Service advertised: "Film Developing and Enlarging, Michigan's largest finishers. A complete line of cameras and Kodaks." The shop did not change location in 1920, but its address changed along with most others in Detroit. Margaret E. Robison was a principal of Robison's Camera Service in 1924 and 1925, and became the vice president of Robison-Phillips Photo Service in 1926, when Charles P. Phillips became secretary and treasurer. Something happened to Margaret, and about 1927 John married Ruth I. Carpenter. Her father came from Ohio and Ruth was born in Michigan to a mother from California in 1889 or early in 1890. The Robison-Phillips Corporation moved from 6930-34 Gratiot to 7629-35 Gratiot Avenue about 1935. The Robison-Phillips Corporation was still using a very similar advertisement in 1941: "Film Developing and Enlarging. Michigan's largest finishers. A complete line of Kodaks and Supplies."

William was born to natives of New York in Phelps Township of Ontario County, New York, on August 17, 1844, seventh of the nine children of Luther S. and Mary (Clapsaddle) Robison. He grew up on the family farm. One William Robison was 18 years old when he enlisted at Pembroke, New York, on December 14, 1863, as a private in Company G of the Eighth New York Heavy Artillery. When the war ended, he was mustered out of the Union Army on June 5, 1865. One William H. Robinson was 18 years old when he enlisted at Grass Lake, Michigan, on June 8, 1862, as a private in Company F of the Twentieth Michigan Infantry. He was mustered into the Union Army on August 18, 1862, served throughout the war, and was mustered out at Detroit on June 16, 1865. Maria Jane LeClear was born to parents from New York at Huntsburg, Ohio, on May 14, 1843, the daughter of John and Elizabeth (Robison) LeClear and the sister of the photographers Albert A. LeClear and James M. LeClear profiled above. She married William on November 14, 1865, and they had three daughters. Effie was born in Ann Arbor on October 24, 1866, Eudora (later Dora) was born in Ohio on January 22, 1869, and Daisy was born at Jackson on November 11, 1872. Their son William was born at Jackson on February 4, 1877, and lived only until September 6, 1878. Albert A. LeClear was William's partner in 1866, and James M. LeClear was his partner from 1875 through 1877. A lengthy Pontiac advertisement which ran for three months in 1870 was signed "... J. M. LeClear & Co., W. H. Robison, Operator." The third partner in 1876 and 1877 was Francis M. Reasner. William was 33 years old at the time of his death on April 9, 1878, and interment was in the LeClear family plot at the Mount Evergreen Cemetery in Jackson. His daughter Daisy was a clerk in the Detroit photographic studio of LeClear & Major in 1894. Maria lived on in Jackson until her death on August 29, 1912.

He was born Stanislaus Rochowiak in Detroit on September 25, 1879, eldest of the three children of the Polish immigrants Robert and Victoria (Wieshanski) Rochowiak. He was single and medium sized with gray eyes and brown hair in 1900, and with his brother and sister was boarding with their widowed mother. Bronislawa (often Berny or Birnie and later Bernice) Bonish was born in Michigan in October of 1882 to parents who also emigrated from the Polish region of Germany. Her brother Leo was born in Germany in March of 1878, and her sister Sophia was born in Michigan in June of 1881. The three of them were living with their widowed mother Mary in 1900, and by 1902 Leo had opened a photography studio in Detroit. Birnie married Stanley about 1901, and their children were born in Detroit: Harold in 1902, Amelia (once Eveline) in 1907, and Lucille in 1910. Timothy P. Sullivan was Stanley's partner in the undertaking firm of Rochowiak & Company in 1912 and 1913. The address of Stanley's business changed from 2478 to 8712 West Jefferson Avenue during 1920, when most Detroit addresses were revised. The undertaking partnership with Frank Dziuba began in 1924 at 8661 White Street, moved to 8714 West Jefferson by 1926, and later continued through 1936 as funeral directors and notaries, while Stanley conducted the photographic studio on his own. He was ill for five months prior to his death at the age of 56 on January 18, 1937. Interment was in Holy Cross Cemetery. Stanley was survived by Bernice and their three children.

Robert was born in Scotland in 1843 or early in 1844. One Robert Reoch was born about 1843 at Dundee in Angus County, Scotland, third of the five children of John and Isabella (Morrison) Reoch. He had two older sisters and two younger brothers, and the family was living in Dundee in 1851. Her father came from Connecticut and Huldah Augusta Loveridge was born in New York State in June of 1847, last of the ten children of Garret G. and Sarah (Chamberlin) Loveridge. She married Robert about 1868 and their children were born in Michigan: Huldah (later Maud H.) in May of 1870, Robert in June of 1872, and Lee in November of 1884. The senior Robert also was dealing in pictures and frames in 1878, and "... Pictures copied and enlarged, and finished in Oil, India Ink and Water Colors." was printed on some of his card photograph mounts. Other card photographs were of dogs alone and with children, and one of his cabinet photos was of a church interior with funereal floral arrangements. By 1900 Huldah was a widow living in San Francisco with her daughter Maud. Both of Huldah's sons and Maud's husband, Isaac Harris, were members of this household. Except for Robert, this group still was living together in 1910.

| Clyde was born to parents from Ohio in Royalton Township of Berrien County, Michigan, on July 9, 1880, the younger son of George C. and Barbara Rockey. His brother Caleb was born in October of 1867. Charles Kneibus became a Saint Joseph professional photographer in 1890, but after his partnership with Clyde he engaged in a different line of work. It was reported in January of 1900 that Don Devoe had taken charge of the photograph gallery of Clyde Rockey, who was busy fixing up his summer resort for Chicago boarders. Her father came from Illinois and Laura was born in Michigan in May of 1880. She married Clyde at Buckhorn in Royalton Township late in 1899 or early in 1900, and they were living in June of 1900 on the Royalton Township farm of Clyde's brother. Their children were born in Royalton Township: Leah in 1903, and George in 1905. Laura was enumerated as a widow in 1920, when she and her children were living with Clyde's mother. Ada Mae Miller was born at Elwood, Indiana, on September 7, 1893, second of the eight children of Harrison L. and Jesse Ann (Pierce) Miller. She may have married first when she was 23 years old, but she married Clyde at Buckhorn in 1921. Clyde died in Royalton Township in 1950, and Ada died at Dowagiac, Michigan, on January 24, 1969. | Abraham was born into a Yiddish-speaking family in Russia on February 8, 1883, fifth of the nine children of Jacob C. and Rose Rocklin. Jacob immigrated to the United States in 1887, and then brought his family over in 1889. Abraham was called Abram as a child and Abe as a young man, and he became an average sized man with dark brown eyes and dark brown hair. Though his father was a naturalized citizen of the United States by 1910, in 1918 Abraham still was a single alien who had declared his intention of becoming naturalized. His parents remained residents of Duluth through 1930. |           | 2 321 33 23 22 |

His parents emigrated from Germany: his father from the Wurttemberg region, and his mother from the state of Saxony. Victor was born at Eaton Rapids, Michigan, on May 4, 1869, second of the nine children of George and Ernestine (Grosser) Roehm. He was called August as a child, A. Victor during his photographic career, and was back to August by 1930. Roehm & Montgomery succeeded Herbert Randall in the Eaton Rapids gallery he had established two years earlier as a branch of his Ann Arbor business. The second annual meeting of the Michigan Photographers' Association was held at Detroit in February of 1897, and there Victor was awarded the first prize in Class F for his exhibit of cabinet photographs. He sent duplicates of his winning prints to the editor of a photographic journal, who called them "... a splendid lot of cabinets in every way." Her father came from New York and Ethel A. Hartson was born in Michigan in June of 1871, first of the three daughters of Charles T. and Ursula Hartson. She married Victor at Eaton Rapids on October 13, 1897. At the fourth annual convention of the Michigan Photographers' Association, held in Grand Rapids on February 1, 1899, Victor was awarded the first prize in Class D. Later in the same year he advertised: "PHOTOGRAPHY is an art and requires an artist to produce the best results. The excellent quality of our work has won us a reputation as artists. Come to us for your photographs." He was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905, and he was enumerated as an artist in 1910. In December of 1911 he used a post card photograph of the Christian Science Church to write: "Cannot make good prints from the negative we have of your group and would rather you would come for another sitting. Sorry to trouble you but think you will get photos better enough to pay. The day was dark and you came too late in the day. A. V. Roehm." In January of 1913 he wrote on another photographic post card: "You marked two proofs. Did you want six of each? If so did you understand that we charge fifty cents extra when we finish from two? Very Truly, A. V. Roehm." With Joseph Horn as a partner, in 1918 Victor was also the proprietor of a Charlotte billiard and soft drink establishment. In 1926 he employed Mrs. Laura Cronk and R. Bruce LaRue as photographers and Miss Thelma Howard in some capacity, and he drove a Cadillac. By 1930 Henry A. Nielsen was the proprietor of Roehm's Studio in Charlotte. Victor died in 1942.

His parents came from New York and Roswell was born on his father's farm near Plymouth on July 25, 1841, the son of Stephen and Jane Root. By 1854 he was an orphan living with his grandfather. After attending the district schools and the Michigan Normal School at Ypsilanti, he graduated from the Bryant & Stratton Business College at Detroit. He was so small that the recruiting officer at Plymouth refused to enlist him, so he paid five dollars to a man that had been accepted to take his place in Company C of the 24th Michigan Infantry on August 12, 1862. He was mustered into the army on August 15, and was promoted to Corporal on December 1. Roswell was wounded in action at Gettysburg on July 1, 1863, and he was wounded again at Laurel Hill. While on picket duty during the siege of Petersburg, he single-handedly captured and brought in two Confederates, one of whom was over six feet five inches tall. He was promoted to Sergeant on September 1, 1864, and to First Sergeant on April 1, 1865. He was mustered out of the army at Detroit on June 30, 1865. Roswell's partner about 1867 was Edwin P. Baker, who was a Ypsilanti photographer from 1862 until 1877. Roswell never married. Miss Maria Root, one of his four sisters, was his housekeeper for many years. He died from heart failure on June 22, 1903.

Frederick was born in Wisconsin to parents from New York in March of 1865, second of the five children of Martin W. and Julia A. (Pierce) Rose. He was called Freddie as a youth. Frederick employed his brother Charles H. Rose as a photographer in 1895, and he advertised in 1896: "... Fine Cabinets a Specialty. Crayon and all large work made to order. 114 Canal." He was enumerated at his parents' home at Riverside in June of 1900. The back of a 3 by 3 inch mount was stamped: "The Rose Art Gallery, 114 Canal Street, Grand Rapids, Mich." The mount carried a circular picture of a baby which was taken on November 11, 1900, probably by someone other than Frederick. Her father came from New York and June B. Arnold was born in Illinois to a mother from New Hampshire in July of 1874, the (probably adopted) daughter of Seymour W. and Catherine Arnold. She married Fred in 1909 or early in 1910, and they never had children. She still was keeping house for Fred in 1930.

| Jackson was born into a Yiddish-speaking family in the Minsk region of Russia on October 29, 1886. He was brought to the United States as a child, and though he was a naturalized citizen he often said that he was born in Chicago, Illinois. Jackson became a stout man with brown eyes and dark brown hair. Her Yiddish-speaking parents emigrated from Russia and Mildred was born in England about 1888, second of the four children of Ruben S. and Celia Mendelson. Her family immigrated in 1893 to the United States, where she sometimes was called Millie. Jackson and Millie married about 1908, and they were living with her parents in 1910. Their daughters were born in Illinois: Charlotte in 1911, and Elaine in July of 1918. A photographic journal reproduced a photograph by Jackson J. Rose entitled "On the Detroit River" in February of 1912. Jackson visited Hawaii on his own from October 18 until November 1, 1922. Judson was born in Michigan to parents from New York in February of 1849, fourth of the seven children of Luther M. and Amanda A. Rose. His father was a Baptist clergyman for many years. Her father came from Pennsylvania and Mary was born in Michigan to a mother from New York about 1850. She married Judson about 1871, and their children were born in Michigan: Bernice in 1872 or early in 1873, and Forest in July of 1874. The stereographs of Rose & Lamb included views of residences and a bird's-eye view of a quarry. "J. A. ROSE, Traveling Artist, Hillsdale, Mich." made stereo views of Hillsdale College building interiors, card photographs of 42 students outside their school and a girl on roller skates, and "... Negatives taken at your own home by the Dry Plate Process." One of his cabinet imprints was: "J. A. ROSE, Itinerant 'Fotografer,' Hillsdale, Mich. makes a specialty of Photographing Children, Out-Door Groups, Aged People, Invalids, Animals, Interior of Rooms, Funeral Decorations, Etc., by the Instantaneous Process." Judson used the cabinet format for parades, locomotives, stores, residences and groups of pupils in and out of classrooms, as well as for studio portraits. He also used the 8¼ by 4 inch panel format. In 1900 Mary was enumerated as a widow rooming in Los Angeles with the family of a widow and working as a dressmaker. Bernice seems to have died. Forest married about 1898, and in 1900 he was a carriage finisher in Jackson, Michigan. Lillian W. Gage was born in New York State to natives of New York in August of 1854, the daughter of S. Wesley and Mary Angeline Gage. She married Judson about 1892, and their son Thaddeus was born in Michigan in June of 1893. Lillian and Judson were providing a home for her widowed mother in 1900 and in 1910.

Myron was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Rose, and was born in New York about 1818. He was 5 feet 10 inches tall with a fair complexion, brown hair and blue eyes and was 44 years old when he enlisted as a private in Company I of the Fourth Michigan Infantry on July 22, 1862. He was mustered into the army on the same day, and probably joined his regiment in time to take part in the engagements at Gainesville and Bull Run, Virginia, five weeks later. The Fourth fought on September 17 at Antietam, Maryland, and on September 20 at Shepardstown Ford, Virginia. Myron was wounded in action on December 12 at Fredericksburg, Virginia, where the regiment suffered many casualties over the next two days. He may have missed the battle on May 4 at Chancellorsville, Virginia, but was again wounded in action at Gettysburg on July 2, 1863, by a minie ball that passed through his left calf. He spent most of the next ten months in various hospitals. On April 13, 1864, he was transferred to Company 76 of the Second Battalion of the Veteran Reserve Corps. On January 25, 1865, he was transferred into Company E of the Ninth Regiment of the Veteran Reserve Corps, from which he was mustered out of the army on June 26, 1865. Fifteen years later, Myron and his 59-year-old sister were both single and were sharing the home of their widowed father. Myron was able to support himself until 1879, when he found that his wound and associated rheumatism were making him incapable of any manual labor, and he applied for an Invalid Pension. Myron was 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighed 130 pounds. The examining doctor rated him as totally disabled, so Myron received $4.00 for every month since his discharge from the army until May 17, 1881, and then a continuing pension of $8.00 per month. There was a bureaucratic re-evaluation the following year which found that only one quarter of Myron's disability was due to his wound and that three quarters was due to the rheumatism which was not related to his military service, so his pension was reduced to $2.00 per month. In 1885 he was 67 years old and was still trying to get his pension increased from the $2.00 level.

The photographic studio of Frederick M. Rose was at 114 Canal Street in Grand Rapids before 1900. Mrs. Effie F. Josselyn was manager of the Rose Studio from 1906 until 1911, and was proprietor of the studio in 1913 and 1914. She employed Jessie M. Hudson as a photo printer in 1906. In 1908 and later years she advertised: "Fine Cabinets a Specialty, Crayon and All Large Work Made to Order, Copying and Enlarging." On the post card backs of some studio portraits was printed: "ROSE STUDIO, 114 CANAL STREET, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH." Merton L. Verrill, proprietor of the Rose Studio in 1920, advertised "First Class Photos, Post Cards and Enlargements a Specialty."

- Bernard was born in North Plains Township of Ionia County, Michigan, on June 20, 1881, fourth of the five children of Peter P. and Jane Elizabeth (Parker) Ross. His older siblings were born about twenty years earlier, and his sister May was born in March of 1883. He was called Bernie as a youth, and he became a short man with blue eyes and brown hair. His father died in July of 1911, and his mother died in March of 1914. Emma was born in Michigan to Canadian parents in 1889, and she married Bernard about 1913. Their children were born in Michigan: Isabelle in 1914, Jane in August of 1916, David in March of 1918, and Mary in September of 1927. Muir is a couple of miles south of North Plains Township. "BERNARD L. ROSS, MUIR, MICH." or "Bernard L. Ross, Commercial Photographer, Muir, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of photographs of business streets, stores, factories, logging, mills, schools, churches, bridges, rivers, lakes, residences, barns, people, train wrecks, and depots at Muir, at Lyons which was adjacent, and at Orleans, Shiloh, Fenwick, Palo, Vickeryville, Butternut, Hubbardston, Matherton and Pewamo. These were smaller towns in northeastern Ionia County and in southeastern Montcalm County within a fifteen mile arc swung from northwest to northeast of Muir. Postal photographs of Hale, of Long Lake and of the construction of Loud Dam, 120 miles northeast in Iosco County, were similarly marked. Bernard was a prolific producer of post card photos, and the legends and other markings on his negatives were distinctive enough that many cards without the printed credit line can be attributed to him. "B.L.R." was lettered on some of his negatives, including some that were "PUBLISHED BY THE NORTH AMERICAN POST CARD CO., KANSAS CITY, U.S.A." A few of his postal photographs had "Print made by Bernard L. Ross, Muir, Mich." on the back. "Bernard L. Ross, PHOTOGRAPHER, Lyons, Mich." was stamped on the back of the 7¼ by 9¼ commercial mount of a bird's-eye view of the entrance to the Lyons Tourist Camp. "From BERNARD L. ROSS, Lyons, Mich." was stamped on the back of the 7 by 9 inch mount of a photograph of 21 students and their teacher beside their brick school building.

Henry posed the staff of a restaurant on an outside stairway for a 10 by 8 inch photograph that he put on a 14 by 11 mount. Mounted views taken in and near Rockledge, Florida were imprinted: "H. J. Rossiter, Indian River Views, Rockledge, Fla." On one was penned: "Alligator Hunt, March 13/96." There was a photographer named Henry J. Rossiter from 1860 until 1900 at Oberlin, Ohio. His father came from Massachusetts and Henry was born in Ohio to a mother from New York in November of 1837, second of the ten children of Samuel and Maria G. Rossiter. Sophia was born in Ohio in September of 1838, and she married Henry about 1860. They had no children that lived to maturity. Henry enlisted as a private in Company C. of the 176th Ohio Infantry on August 29, 1864, was mustered into the Union army on September 21, and was promoted to corporal on September 23, 1864. As the war ended, he was mustered out of the army on June 14, 1865, at Nashville, Tennessee. In May of 1891 Henry applied for a pension based upon his Civil War service. By April of 1900 he was a widower residing in the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors Home in Erie County. Henry still was in the home in 1920, and he died in Erie County on April 5, 1921. His remains were shipped to Oberlin for burial.

William was born in Pennsylvania to natives of Pennsylvania on January 3, 1868, fifth of the six children of William and Martha Rote. Anna was born in Michigan to Canadian parents or in Canada to Irish parents on May 4, 1864, and she married William in the spring of 1885. Bernice, their only child, was born in Michigan on November 21, 1889. Distinctions between photographers, photo enlargers and commercial portrait painters were sometimes obscure in the directories. One source classified the People's Portrait Company under photographers in 1899, and another listed William as a photo enlarger in 1902 and 1903.

Her father emigrated from a region that sometimes was in France and other times was in Germany, and Anna was born in Michigan to an Irish mother on August 14, 1877. She was last of the five children of Paul and Bridget Roth. Anna lived with her parents through 1900, could not be found in 1910, and was back with her parents in 1920. Her sister-in-law Mrs. Elizabeth Roth was associated with Anna in the Roth Studio until 1917, but Anna was sole proprietor of the studio in the later years. She advertised in 1917: "THE ROTH STUDIO. Portraits by Photograph, Oil and Water Colors. Are you neglecting having pictures taken? Make the appointment to-day...." Studio portraits on post card stock were blind stamped "Roth" in a distinctive script over "IONIA - MICH." in smaller block capitals. Anna was lodging in the Catholic Woman's Club at Richmond in 1930, and she obtained her Social Security number in the District of Columbia prior to 1951. Anna never married, and she died in October of 1969 at Grand Rapids, Michigan.

| "GENERAL VIEW OF COOK DAM, LEO ROULEAU." was lettered on negatives of Cooke Dam under construction on the Au Sable River from which post card photographs were printed. Work on the dam was begun in November of 1909 and finished in 1911. The only Leo Rouleau found in the census reports that may have been the photographer was born in Michigan to French Canadian parents in 1903, sixth of the seven children of Frank and Philomena Rouleau. He was living in 1910 and 1920 with his family at Alpena, 45 miles north of Cooke Dam. Thomas was born about 1837 at Nottingham, England, and may have been the son of Thomas and Alice Rouston. He became a five foot five and a half inch man with a light complexion, light hair and hazel eyes. Thomas married Mary Minerva Gould about 1863, and their six sons and one daughter were born in Ontario between 1864 and 1877. He enlisted as a private in the United States Army at Boston, Massachusetts, on November 17, 1865. When his enlistment expired Thomas still was a private. He was discharged from the Third United States Infantry at Fort Zarah, Kansas, on November 27, 1868. With the exception of Strathroy, all of the Canadian towns mentioned above are within fifty miles of Detroit. Thomas was 65 years old when he died on July 11, 1902. Her father came from Ohio, and Acelia was born in Indiana on June 22, 1883. She married the photographer Fred D. Rowe about 1906. Acelia gave birth to Victor in Illinois in the spring of 1908, to Harlan in Indiana in August of 1909, to Freda in Michigan in 1911, and to Frederick in Michigan on November 11, 1912. Both Acelia and Fred were enumerated as studio photographers in 1920. Her ads in 1923 included: "Be photographed this year on your birthday.... Where there is beauty, we take it; where there is none we make it... The Studio on the Point.... We catch your baby smiling." In 1925 and later years she advertised the Finest in Photography. Acelia was divorced from Fred by 1930, when she was providing a home for her youngest son, for her daughter, and for Freda's newlywed husband, Jack L. Kincaid. A Social Security number was issued in Florida to Acelia in 1963. She was residing at Vero Beach, Florida, at the time of her death in October of 1975.

Fred was born in Indiana on January 4, 1884, third of the six children of Thomas and Charlotte Rowe. He became an average sized man with brown eyes and brown hair. Fred enrolled from Michigan in 1905 at the Illinois College of Photography. He married a lady named Acelia about 1906, and their four children were born between 1908 and 1912. Fred probably was working in Illinois in 1908, and in Indiana in 1909. The Rowe Studio in Hillsdale was "Headquarters for Photographs of Excellence." Point Place was the very acute corner of Howell and Broad Streets. Fred's studio seems to have stayed in this same place from 1910 through 1920. He was succeeded as a Hillsdale photographer by his wife, Mrs. Acelia A. Rowe, who is profiled above. Fred and Acelia were divorced by 1930.

Charles was born in New York State to natives of New York in November of 1835, last of the six children of Parley Marsh Rowell and Parmelia Paulina R. (Johnson) Rowell. Esther E. Mathewson was born in New York State to natives of New York in July of 1836. She married Charles at Bloods Tavern in Sciota Township of Shiawassee County on September 13, 1859. Charles enlisted at Bennington in the 29th Michigan Infantry on August 26, 1864. He was mustered into the Union Army with the regiment at Saginaw as a corporal in Company E on September 14. They left Saginaw for Nashville on October 6. From there they were sent to Decatur, Alabama, just in time to help repel a Confederate attack, and they marched into the rifle pits under a galling fire with the coolness of veterans. Though they were outnumbered three to one, they retained the field through October 26, 27 and 28. Charles was a patient in a Nashville hospital from November 24, 1864, until April 30, 1865. He was honorably discharged on a Surgeon's certificate of disability at Jefferson, Tennessee, on May 16, 1865. Her father emigrated from Scotland and Inez was born in Michigan to an English mother in June of 1877. By June of 1880 she had been adopted by Esther and Charles, and she still was living with them in 1900. Charles became disabled by chronic diarrhea and rheumatism, and in September of 1879 he applied successfully for an Invalid Pension. Ten years later an irregular heart beat had been added to these ailments. In April of 1910 a physician found him so weak from diarrhea and heart problems that he was totally and permanently incapacitated for any manual labor. Charles died at Ovid on March 11, 1911. Esther received a Widow's Pension until her death at Ovid on March 30, 1918.

John was born about 1839 in England, the son of James and Mary Rowell. Her father came from England and Selina was born in Ireland about 1843, the daughter of William and E. L. Weight. Both families were living in 1861 in Williams Township of Middlesex County, Ontario. Selina and John were married in Middlesex County on September 30, 1861. Their son William was born in Ontario about 1862, and their daughter Essy (later Ester) was born there about 1864. Their later children were born in Michigan, Minnie in June of 1866 and Harry in September of 1869.

Royal T. Gillett was manager of this company in 1904, with Alvin J. Arthur as an associate. They advertised: "Pictures Made at any Place, at any Time, Under any and all conditions of Atmosphere and Light on Short Notice." An impressive blind stamp: "Royal Photo Co., Grand Rapids, Mich." was used on postal photos marked 1904 of bridges over the ice-choked Grand River. A 25 page booklet put out by the Dean-Hicks Publishing Company was entitled: The Flood in Grand Rapids: photographic views of the inundated sections of the city: March 25-29, 1904. It contained chiefly engravings from "Photos by Royal Photo Co., Grand Rapids, Mich." Grand Rapids, The Furniture City, a 48 page booklet copyrighted in 1904 by the same publisher included 133 views "especially photographed for this souvenir work.... Photograph prints of the views shown in this book can be supplied by the Royal Photo Company, Grand Rapids, Mich." Royal T. Gillett was still manager of the company in 1905, when they were identified as "Flashlight, Commercial and View Photographers." An undated twenty page Souvenir, Michigan Soldiers' Home, Grand Rapids, Mich. featured "Photos by Royal Photo Company...." Printed on the post card back of a photograph of an early aeroplane was: "Royal Photo Co., 111 Monroe St., Grand Rapids, Mich." In the classified sections of the Grand Rapids directories it was listed as the Royal Photograph Company in 1906 and 1907, and as the Royal Photographic Company from 1908 through 1911, while other sources continued to list it as the Royal Photo Company. They were classified as commercial photographers from 1904 until 1909, offered to make pictures anywhere from 1906 through 1911, and emphasized photographic enlargements in 1908. Royal T. Gillett was proprietor of the company from 1906 until 1911, and was manager again in 1915. He employed Bert C. Fry as a photo printer in 1910. Ambrose N. Sumerlin was an optician at the same address as the Royal Photo Company in 1915 and became president of the company in 1916, with M. E. Parsons as secretary. Sumerlin died in January of 1917, and the optometrist Frederick W. Eyer became manager of both of the Royal Photo Company and Sumerlin's optical business at the same address for several years. He employed Adrian L. Semeyn as a photographer from 1916 until 1918. After 1920, Eyer carried on at the same address with the Sumerlin Optical Company, including a line of photo supplies.

Harrison was born to a mother from Massachusetts about 1840 in Watertown Township of Jefferson County, New York, seventh of the eight children of Nathaniel and Phidelia (Woodard) Rudd. He grew up on the family farm, and he still was living with his parents in 1860. At Watertown, New York, on July 8, 1862, he enlisted in Company C of the Tenth New York Heavy Artillery. He was mustered into the Union Army as a private on August 19, 1862. Harrison served until the war ended, and he was mustered out of the army at Petersburg, Virginia, on June 23, 1865. William A. Armstrong was a Saginaw City photographer for four years before and two years after his partnership with Harrison, and he was a Milwaukee photographer until 1898. The large exhibit of Armstrong & Rudd at the Saginaw Horticultural Fair in 1869 included an 8 by 10 landscape in oil, a 14 by 17 photograph in oil, an 18 by 22 portrait in crayon and ink, three 20 by 24 portraits in crayon and ink, a frame of fifteen photographs, a frame of eight photographs, four frames of card photographs, a half plate ambrotype and a 4 by 4 inch ambrotype. Every photographic premium awarded at this fair went to Armstrong & Rudd, as did half of those awarded at the Saginaw County Agricultural Fair one month later. They exhibited a number of cartes de visite at the Cleveland convention of the National Photographic Association in 1870. They were publishing the Saginaw Art Journal in 1871, which was said to be a spicy and sensible little paper. They were among the exhibitors at the Philadelphia convention of the NPA in July of 1871. Harrison's partner at Green Bay was Edward William Hall. In the 1880s Harrison published stereo views from San Jose in Costa Rica, where he had a branch studio at Alajuela. Harrison was 73 years old when on March 20, 1913, he sailed from Colon in Panama on S. S. Turrialba. He arrived in New Orleans five days later.

Frank and his wife, Anna, were born in Indiana in January and July of 1866. They married in 1884, and their daughter Vita was born in Indiana in February of 1888. Though Frank was classified as a photographer in the gazetteers for 1909 and 1913, it is unlikely that he was actually in a photographic business.

Mary L. Lay was born in the state of New York in 1818, and her husband, Daniel H. Rugar, was born there three years earlier. They married on March 13, 1836, at Canandaigua, New York. Their eldest daughters were born in New York State: Catherine in May of 1838, Ann about 1840, Mary in January of 1842, Cornelia about 1844, Alice in January of 1846, and Sophia about 1848. Their daughter Edna was born in Michigan in January of 1852, and their youngest daughters were born in Indiana, Lillian (later Emma) in January of 1854, and Clementine in October of 1856. Daniel was a shoemaker in 1850 and 1860, and a Cassopolis manufacturer of boots and shoes in 1870. He enlisted at Edwardsburg as a sergeant in Company F of the First Michigan Sharpshooters on April 5, 1863, and he was mustered into the Union Army on June 3, 1863. The first six companies of the Sharpshooters were ordered in July of 1863 to Indiana where they prevented John Morgan's raiders from looting the town of North Vernon. The completed regiment spent the winter at Chicago guarding Confederate prisoners. They left Chicago in March of 1864 to join the Army of the Potomac, and experienced their first severe fighting and losses in the Wilderness early in May. A week later at Spottsylvania the First Sharpshooters lost 34 killed including Major Piper, 117 wounded including Colonel DeLand, and 4 missing. During their first engagement at Petersburg on June 17 Major Rhines and 31 men were killed, 46 were wounded, and 84 went missing. Colonel DeLand was wounded two more times in subsequent engagements. The Sharpshooters took an active part in the siege of Petersburg until April 3, 1865, when they became the first Union regiment to march into the city. Following the surrender of General Lee the regiment took part in the Grand Review on May 23 at Washington, D. C. Daniel was mustered out of the army at Delaney House near Washington on July 28, 1865. Note that Mary became a professional photographer while Daniel was in the army. Daniel successfully applied for an Invalid Pension in 1890 based upon his service in the Civil War, and he submitted information about his family to the Bureau of Pensions in October of 1897. Haire was in Liberty Township of Wexford County. Daniel predeceased Mary, who received a widows pension of eight dollars per month until her death in the summer of 1907.

William was born in New York State to parents from Connecticut in 1836 or early in 1837, the elder son of Harlow and Mariah E. Ruggles. His brother Eli was born three years later. Elizabeth (sometimes Lizzie) was born in Canada about 1839, and she married William about 1857. Their daughter Lily Bell was born in Michigan about 1858, and their son Frank was born in Indiana in 1863. On October 10, 1861, William enlisted for ninety days in Company E of the 22nd Kentucky Infantry. He was mustered out of the Union Army on January 15, 1862. "Photographed by W. H. RUGGLES, Whitehall, Mich. Rooms over the Post Office. - Dealer in Watches, Clocks, Jewelry. Watches, Clocks and Jewelry Neatly Repaired...." was printed on the back of cartes de visite more typical of the later 1860s. William's gallery was on Colby Street west of Mears Avenue in 1875. He was enumerated as divorced in 1880, when he was providing a home for his son Frank. He and his wife were characterized as separated when he died of dropsy at Whitehall on May 22, 1882. Elizabeth was a Whitehall resident in 1883.

John's surname was spelled Ruhlandt in 1869. He was born in the Bavarian region of Germany about 1822. He had become a naturalized citizen of the United States by 1870, when he was lodging by himself in a Detroit hotel. John had a namesake in Buffalo who was born a year or two earlier at Untergrafenried in the Bavarian region of Germany. Eva was born in Bavaria in October of 1824, she married this John about 1849, and she gave birth to Anna about 1851. The three of them arrived at the port of New York on May 23, 1854. Eva gave birth in New York State to Theresa about 1856, to Andrew about 1859, and to Victoria in the summer of 1861. This John Ruhland was enumerated at Buffalo as a laborer in 1860 and in 1870 (when he was identified as Peter Ruhland), and as a wood peddler there in 1880. He died in Buffalo, where his widow was living in 1900 with her son Andrew.

His father emigrated from England and Robert was born in Ontario (then Canada West) in December of 1860, second of the five or more children of James and Elizabeth Rumford. He was brought to the United States in 1865, and he became a citizen when his father was naturalized in 1878. Her father came from Pennsylvania, and Nellie was born in Michigan to a mother from Nova Scotia in October of 1864, first of the four children of Watson F. and Hannah Jane (Hamlin) Bisbee. Her father is profiled above. Nellie married Robert at Au Sable on June 29, 1884. Their children were born in Michigan: Robert in April of 1885, and Gladys in April of 1891. Robert's partner from 1892 until 1894 was Arthur W. Venners. Robert and Nellie were boarding in 1920 at the Detroit home of his former partner, Arthur W. Venners, along with her father, Watson F. His parents emigrated from the German state of Prussia and John was born in Wisconsin in June of 1848, third of the four children of Johann William and Anna Sophia Runkel. He was known as Phillip until the mid 1870s. Othelia was born in Prussia in 1849 or early in 1850. She married Phillip about 1868, and their son Fred was born in Wisconsin in December of 1869. The John W. Runkel profiled below was the other brother in Manistee, and on the brothers' card mounts the name was spelled Runkle, but it was spelled Runkel in most records. Othelia gave birth in Wisconsin to Annie about 1872, to Otto about 1874, and to Lilly about 1876. The Milwaukee photographer usually was listed as John P. Runkel, but in 1888 he was listed as Philip Runkel. John was living by himself at Port Washington in 1920.

John was born in the German state of Prussia in February of 1845, second of the four children of Johann William and Anna Sophia Runkel. He was brought to the United States in 1847, and as a youth he was called Wilhelm. His brother Phillip was born in Wisconsin about 1848 and became John's photographic partner about 1872. Katherine (usually Kattie) was born into a Rhenish family in the German state of Prussia in December of 1847, and she was brought to the United States in 1858. She married John about 1871 at Lowell, Wisconsin. Their daughter Louisa was born in Wisconsin about 1870, and their other children were born in Michigan: Sophia about 1873, Lena in September of 1876, Alexander in 1878, and Angeline in June of 1884. Three of their children became professional musicians. In both gazetteers and on the brothers' card mounts the name is spelled Runkle, but "J. W. Runkel" was printed on two different card photograph mounts from River Street. The surname was Runkel in most census records. John was providing a home for his mother in 1905, when his wife was not to be found. He was enumerated as widowed in 1910, though Kattie was living in the same ward of Milwaukee with the family of their daughter Anna. Kattie was enumerated as a widow in 1920, when she was living with her widowed daughter Sophie Bowitz.

His father came from New York and Maynard was born in Michigan on August 28, 1875, last of the three sons of John Harrison Runyan and Martha I. Runyan. He was enumerated as disabled in some way in 1880, but became a tall man with brown eyes and hair. Maynard was residing in 1900 at the Dearborn home of Dr. Samuel Barkwell, where his mother was the house keeper. "Photo by M. Runyan, Dearborn, Mich." was stamped on the back of the 8 by 10 inch mounts of eight different 4 by 6 inch photographs of the smoldering ruins of the Dearborn Arsenal building after the 1910 fire. In May of 1911 Maynard Runyan publicly expressed his gratitude to friends who had been helpful during his mother's long illness prior to her death on May 5, 1911. Mrs. Martha I. Runyan had been a Dearborn resident for some time, and was interred in the family cemetery near Dearborn. Maynard does not seem to have married. Three of his grandparents emigrated from Germany, his father came from New York, and Peter was born in Detroit on November 18, 1891. He was eldest of the four children of Ludwig Louis Rush and Flora (Schulte) Rush, and he became an average sized man with grey eyes and brown hair. Anna was born in Poland in 1894 or 1895, came to America in 1905, and married Peter about 1912. Their children were born in Michigan: Edward early in 1913, Leona in February of 1917, and Anthony in July of 1918. Some portraits by Peter included a bouquet of flowers. His flower shop was directly across the street from his photographic studio, which remained in the same location during 1920 while its address changed along with most others in Detroit. "PETER RUSH, 1525 MICHIGAN AVE., DETROIT, MICH." was printed on the post card backs of some studio portraits, while "PETER RUSH, 5429 MICHIGAN AVE., DETROIT, MICH." was printed on others. "Peter Rush, 5429 Mich. Ave., Detroit" was printed on 11 by 13 inch mounts, one carrying a photograph of six seated priests with many men and women behind them standing on the steps of St. Hedwig's Church at 3245 Junction Street. "Pamiatka poswiecenia dzwonow (Chimes) w par. sw. Jadwigi, Dnia 26-go Sierpnia, 1923, w Detroit, Mich." was printed on a label pasted to the mount below this photograph. Peter died at Wayne, Michigan, on February 20, 1972.

He was born Francis Neal Ruslander at Buffalo, New York, on June 7, 1895, eldest of the four children of Aaron and Julia (Hughes) Ruslander who lived to maturity. His maternal grandparents emigrated from Ireland, and his paternal grandparents spoke Yiddish and emigrated from Russia. He was called Francis throughout the time he lived in Buffalo, and he always was known as Frank in Detroit. Bessie M. Webster was born at Niagara Falls, New York, to a mother from Michigan on January 8, 1893, second of the three daughters of John and Rena C. (Martin) Webster. Her father died in 1896, and her mother soon married Robert Oliphant. Bessie married Frank about 1917, and their children were born in Michigan: Jane in 1922 or early in 1923, and John in May of 1924. Frank was employed by Harper Hospital in 1927, when he was a member of the Commercial Photographers' Association of Detroit. He was identified as a medical photographer for the hospital three years later. Bessie died in Los Angeles County on July 8, 1969, and Frank died there on April 28, 1976.

Albert was born to a mother from New York at North Danville, Vermont, on December 10, 1834, fourth of the eleven children of Jacob Towle Rust and Marinda E. (Allen) Rust. Her father came from Massachusetts and Julia Ann Warner was born in Galen Township of Wayne County, New York, on January 2, 1839, first of the three children of Benjamin Perkins Warner and Hannah (Burlingame) Warner. Albert and Julia were married at Lansing, Michigan, on April 20, 1858. Their children were born in Michigan: Frank on January 21, 1859, Ada on July 15, 1860, Ella on April 13, 1862, Clara on October 10, 1863, and Albert on January 30, 1870. Almon Bisbee had more than five years of professional photographic experience prior to forming his partnership with Albert, and he continued as a Saint Louis photographer for two decades. Albert and his brother Elbridge started the monthly Michigan State Advocate at Saint Louis in the spring of 1869, and they were modestly successful for a couple of years. In 1876 Albert published a "Descriptive and Historical Sketch of Ellis County, Texas, also containing a directory of Ennis, Texas." He and Julia were living in 1910 and in 1920 with the family of their son Albert, who was a printer for the government. The senior Albert died on July 31, 1929.

Sault Sainte Marie commissioner of cemeteries and janitor of city hall ..... 1888 S

The James Rutherford that served in Company F of the Eleventh Maine Infantry and Company D of the Eleventh Veteran Reserve Corps during the Civil War was not the photographer. The future photographer was born in Scotland in 1831 or 1832. He married a Canadian woman and they had four children born in Michigan: Flora in 1870, James about 1872, George about 1866, and Agnes about 1878. By 1880 James was widowed and was raising his children with the help of his 30-year-old sister, Isabella. James was a member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1881, and attended the PA of A convention at Milwaukee in August of 1883. He produced stereo views in at least three different sizes and with several imprints, some boasting of "... Five Hundred Different Subjects, and others constantly being added. Price, $1.50 Per Dozen." His subjects ranged from hard-hat divers working in the locks and vessels passing through the locks to local Indians, the town and logging drives. Similar scenes were available as 5 by 8 inch single views. His card photographs included post mortems as well as the customary studio portraits. He advertised in 1887 as a photographer and a "... Dealer in Lake Superior Views, Picture Frames and Mouldings." Isabella was still sharing his home in 1888, and his eldest daughter had become a school teacher. His son George was serving as a private in the 30th United States Infantry at Lucban in the Philippine Islands in June of 1900. James died in Michigan in 1932.

Her parents emigrated from Germany and Julia was born in Michigan in May of 1875, next to last of the eight or more children of Theodore and Emma Sackman. Some of the directory listings were for Julia E. Sackmann. By 1900 she was a widow and had reverted to her maiden name. Julia and a younger sister were living with their older sister, and all three were employed.

Samuel Sylvester Sage was born in Wales in the summer of 1844, immigrated to the United States, and served from March of 1862 until February of 1863 as a private in Company D of the 109th Pennsylvania Infantry. Adella Malvina Moffat was born in 1841 at Greene, New York, and her marriage in 1856 was to William Miller, who died in Virginia in May of 1863. When Adella married Samuel in February of 1864, she brought along two sons from her first marriage. The first of their seven children, born at Newcastle, Pennsylvania, on June 25, 1867, was Joseph Arthur Sage, usually called Arthur. Minerva (often Ellen) was born in Canada to Canadian parents in 1877. Her first marriage was to a man from New York, and she gave birth to William J. Rogers in Michigan early in 1897. Something happened to her first husband, and Ellen married Arthur about 1903. Ellen gave birth in Michigan to Samuel in 1905, to Violet in 1909, to Donald in 1910, to Gerald in 1912, to Ira in 1913, to Lois in January of 1916, to Joseph in February of 1918, and to Myron in January of 1920. Their six youngest children still were at home with Ellen and Arthur in 1930.

Joseph was born in Sweden on January 1, 1874, the son of Frederick and Emma Carlson. Something happened to Frederick, and Joseph was three years old when his mother married August Toberson. By the time he immigrated with the Toberson family in April of 1889 it included five children. Joseph became a tall slim man with blue eyes and brown hair, and he was naturalized a citizen of the United States at Ludington on February 25, 1895. Esther was born in Sweden in 1882, she was brought to America in 1887, and she married Joseph about 1904. Joseph's partner in 1906 was one of his half-brothers, Peter Toberson. Though they were primarily druggists, "Sahlmark & Toberson" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs, including views of Reed City business streets, industries and churches. Esther gave birth in Michigan to Joseph in 1909, to Helga (often Helen) in 1911, to Vera early in 1913, and to Gladys in September of 1915. Joseph and Esther took along Joseph, Junior, when they visited Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Germany and France in 1922. They left New York on S. S. Frederick VIII on June 2, and returned from Southampton on S. S. Majestic on August 16, arriving at the port of New York on August 23, 1922. The couple visited Sweden again in 1951, returning from Gothenburg on M. S. Stockholm on September 6 and arriving at New York on September 15, 1951. Joseph died at Ludington in May of 1870.

Emile was born in France about 1830, his wife was born there two years later, and their son Johnell was born in Michigan about 1852. That Hall & St. Alary were taking pictures by the mezzograph process was reported locally in December of 1854. Emile's photographic partners were George E. Hall and George E. Watson. He taught art, music and the French language. Emile boarded in Detroit, but had a residence at Mount Clemens in 1863. St. Alary & Watson's Photographic & Painting Gallery offered photographs colored in oil, pastel, and water colors, as well as pastel and oil paintings. "Copies can be had by sending the number." was printed on some of their cartes de visite, and from those mounts which were numbered they reached 795 before revenue stamps were required and at least 1263 with two and three cent revenue stamps.

His father emigrated from Quebec and Simeon was born in Burke Township, New York, on May 12, 1845, third of the seven children of Charles and Harriet Maria (Reed) Salls. Simeon enlisted as a private in the Sixth New York Light Artillery on August 23, 1864, and he was mustered into the United States Army on September 5, 1864. As the Civil War ended, he was mustered out of the army at Washington, D. C., on June 22, 1865. Jennie E. McCallum was born in Quebec on January 8, 1849, the daughter of James and Elizabeth (Speck) McCallum. Jennie and Simeon married at Wayne, Michigan, on November 24, 1869, and no record of children has been found. Simeon died on August 18, 1876, in Burke Township, New York, probably at the home of his parents. Jennie lived until December 18, 1927, when she died at Concord, New Hampshire. 4 1

His father emigrated from the Nassau region of Germany and George was born in New Jersey about 1862, last of the two sons of Charles Von Salterbach and Fanny (Woodhull) Salterbach. His father died in 1867, his mother remarried, and by 1880 George and his brother Charles had three half-siblings named Kellam. George was enumerated twice in the 1880 census: on June 8 boarding with his employer at St. Clair, and on June 12 with his family in Pontiac. His name always was spelled Saltarbach in the Detroit directories, but the census, the gazetteer, his photograph mounts and all other sources spelled it Salterbach. It was announced late in September of 1885 that "G. L. Salterbach, proprietor of the Kittle Gallery, has a new ad, this issue. He invites public inspection of his work, and would be pleased with a share of its patronage." The ad read: "ARTISTIC PHOTOGRAPHY! G. L. Salterbach, at the Kittle Gallery, over the Bill Poster office, Guarantees all work. Call and examine samples of work." A similar ad two months later began: "'PHOTOGRAPHS ... THE FINEST, The Cheapest, and the Best in Town..." At the beginning of 1886, George was described as "... the present proprietor of the Kittle gallery ... His suite of rooms is nicely fitted up and possess all the modern improvements of the art. He is a skillful manipulator of the camera and pencil, and retouches his negatives with taste and artistic finish." He advertised in the 1886 city directory: "The Old Kittle Gallery, Saginaw Street, over Bill Poster Office, is now known as headquarters for Fine Photographs at bottom prices. G. L. Salterbach, Prop'r ..." Pontiac photographers engaged in a price war early in 1886 which was evinced by George's ads. In January it was: "Cabinet Photographs! $2 PER DOZEN at G. L. Salterbach's Gallery." In February it became: "Cabinet Photographs! $1.50 PER DOZEN ... If we are obliged to come down, we will go the whole hog. For two weeks from the end of March, I will take cabinet photographs for $1.50 per dozen.... This is only for two weeks, so come at once...." The $1.50 offer was later extended until March 31, and then "... until further notice" through June of 1886. By December the war was over, and George's ads were for "PHOTOGRAPHS. Best Work in the City. Call and examine samples...." George never married, and in 1910 and 1920 he was living with the family of his half-sister Annie Gorham. Annie was a widow by 1930, when she still was providing a home in Monterey for George.

William was born at Cologne in the German state of Prussia on October 25, 1834, and he became a five foot four inch man with bluish gray eyes and a ruddy complexion. Wilhelmena (later Mena) was born in Prussia in May of 1833. She married William about 1861, and their only child, Elizabeth, was born in Prussia a year later. The family immigrated to the United States in November of 1868. Some cabinet mounts had the Fort Wayne address printed on the back, and the Detroit address printed on the front below the image. In September of 1885, Mrs. Salzmann was advertising nationally: "FOR SALE - Photographic gallery; full line of instruments, etc. Address Mrs. W. Salzmann, 282 St. Antoine St., Detroit, Mich." William was a naturalized citizen of the United States with iron gray hair and a beard by the time he applied for a passport in May of 1891.

His parents emigrated from Norway and Fred was born in Wisconsin in August of 1871, fourth of the nine children of Sven and Hannah Samuelson. At Leland he was one of the two assistants boarding with light house keeper John McKennan, and he was living with his widowed mother in 1905. Her parents emigrated from Sweden and Augusta was born in Michigan about 1884. She married Fred in 1905 and their children were born in Michigan: Bernice in 1906, Agnes in 1909, Ralph in 1911, and Helen in June of 1915. Fred and Augusta's household in 1930 included all of their children and Robert Meader, the husband of Agnes. Fred was well known at Ludington as an amateur photographer.

Irving was born in New Hampshire to a mother from Vermont in June of 1872, first of the two children of Luther D. and Elizabeth A. Sanborn. His sister Jennie was born in New Hampshire a year later, was living in 1880, but had died by 1900, when their parents were living at Grand Rapids. On December 20, 1900, at Effingham, Illinois, Irving married Marietta Meigs. Marietta was born in New York State to a mother from Vermont about 1870, and she probably also was studying photography at Effingham. Irving was a member of the Class of 1901 at the Illinois College of Photography in Effingham. In the spring of 1901 he moved from Grand Rapids to Morrisville, where he purchased a gallery from L. E. Brackett. Irving's death was reported in the autumn of 1905. Marietta was lodging in 1910 with an older couple at Burlington, Vermont, where she was employed as a photographer by a photo supply manufacturer.

His parents came from New York and William was born in Watertown Township about 1849, third of the seven children of Benjamin Franklin Sanborn and Laura M. (Andrews) Sanborn. Charlotte is about fifteen miles south of Watertown Township. Maggie was born in Ohio to natives of Ohio in April of 1856. She married William about 1874, and their son George was born in Michigan a year later. Their other children also were born in Michigan: John in May of 1878, Maude in January of 1882, Mollie in January of 1886, William in December of 1887, Joseph in November of 1891, and Marguerite in 1897. Some early listings were for J. H. Sunbank or J. A. Sundback. His parents emigrated from Finland, John was born in Michigan on November 27, 1872, and he became a slender man with brown eyes and hair. One John H. Sandabak was born in Michigan about 1873 and grew up in Otto Township of Otter Tail County, Minnesota, first of the ten children of John J. and Margaret Sandabak. He may have become the photographer. Lizzie was born in Finland in 1879, was brought to America in 1882, and grew up to marry John. Their children were born in Michigan: Minnie in 1899, Arnold in 1902, Leonard in 1904, Amarita in 1907, Vernon in 1909, Dolorita in 1913, and a son in July of 1919.

His father came from New York and Iver was born in Pioneer Township of Missaukee County, Michigan, to a mother from Pennsylvania on November 28, 1891, last of the three children of Horace E. and Persis Sanders. His sister Maggie and his brother Walter were more than fifteen years older than Iver, who became a medium sized man with blue eyes and light brown hair. Walter, who was a hardware merchant, and Iver were living in 1910 with their widowed father. "Beebe - Sanders" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs of the Lake City High School baseball team, logging with big wheels and a lumber mill at Merritt. "Beebe - I.D.S." was similarly lettered on the negatives of a series of postal photos of a big fire at Lake City on April 22, 1911. Lake City is a mile southeast of Caldwell Township, and Merritt was another fifteen miles east on the Missaukee Junction-Michelson Branch of the Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad. Edward L. Beebe was a Kalkaska photographer from 1904 through 1917, and he probably printed the post cards mentioned above from negatives exposed by Iver. Hattie was born in Pennsylvania to natives of Pennsylvania in 1890. She married Iver about 1917, and their daughter Viola was born in Michigan in February of 1918. They were served in 1942 by Rural Route Number Two out of Athens, Pennsylvania. 1 2

His father emigrated from England and Walter was born in Michigan to a Canadian mother in January of 1868, the only child of William and Emma (Stokes) Sanders. Her father emigrated from England, and Catherine C. Sherriff was born in Canada in November of 1871. She immigrated to Michigan in 1890, and she married Walter a year later. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Edena in October of 1892, Catherine in 1903, and Wilma in 1913. They were living in 1900 with Walter's mother. "REAL PHOTO CARDS, SANDERS, PUB., TRENTON, MICH." was stamped on the back of post card photographs. Some Sanders cards were photographically printed with a white border and press printed legends below the images such as "Detroit River, Trenton, Mich." or "Pine Street, Trenton, Mich." and mailed late in 1907 and in 1908. Walter seems to have been the publisher as well as the editor of the newspaper in 1920. t
