His father emigrated from Canada, and James was born in Michigan in August of 1846, the son of Thomas C. and Amanda Brush. Her parents came from New York, and Alice B. Sprague was born in Michigan in April of 1847. She and James were married in Detroit on June 1, 1865, and their son Edmund was born in April of 1866. Alice also gave birth to Bert in Detroit about 1871 and to Stanley in Minneapolis in July of 1880. In the spring of 1869 James moved from Jefferson Avenue to the rooms over Conklin's jewelry store at the corner of Woodward and Larned which had just been vacated by photographer James F. Raymond. The entrance to this gallery was on Larned Street. James sold card photographs for $2.00 per dozen in this era. In 1872 the Detroit Free Press described him as "... a very skillful photographer." His card photographs included a view of Detroit's new city hall as well as portraits, and he produced stereo views of Detroit. D. A. DeForest's 1875 advertisements mentioned prominently that he was successor to James A. Brush. James was said to be the only photographer in Minneapolis when he opened his gallery there. The gallery on Hennepin Avenue was at the corner of Sixth Street. Some Minneapolis cabinet mounts reproduced both sides of the medal James received at the Photographers' Association of America convention in Minneapolis in July of 1888. He was awarded one of the Cramer badges for work submitted to the St. Louis convention of the Photographers' Association of America in July of 1894. He also received a diploma for his exhibit of photographs in Class C at the Detroit convention of the PA of A in August of 1895, and a gold medal for the six pictures he exhibited at the 1898 PA of A convention at Celeron on Chautauqua Lake, New York. After James died on May 22, 1906, his business was taken over by his eldest son, Edmund, who specialized in railroad and legal photography. Another of his sons practiced photography for a while at Preston, Minnesota, and then moved to Everett, Washington.

Edward was born at Portsmouth, Ohio, on August 2, 1867, second of the four children of John M. and Mary Bryan. He came to Wyandotte with his parents the next year, and later attended the public schools of Wyandotte, graduating in 1885. He was first elected City Clerk of Wyandotte in April of 1895. Richard J. Lynch was his photographic partner, and then succeeded the partnership. Edward was elected to the Michigan Legislature as a Republican in 1897, and was re-elected in 1899. He and Lillian Mae Rogers were married in November of 1900. Their daughter Jessie was born in 1901, and their son Lynn was born in 1905. With his older brother William, Edward founded the Bryan Boat Works and built 1500 power and sailing pleasure craft in the next 45 to 50 years. He served Wyandotte as City Commissioner; Police, Fire and Street Commissioner; three terms as president of the Chamber of Commerce executive board; member of the Acanthus Art Club and president of the Wyandotte Boat Club. His wife was killed in an auto accident in 1929, and Edward never remarried. Oil painting and sketching became an important hobby with him, his paintings hung in many state exhibitions, and one was purchased for the Wyandotte Public Library. At 85 Edward was still building twelve boats a year and finishing about the same number of large landscape paintings. He died at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit on March 15, 1957, after an illness of a few days and an operation. Interment was in Wyandotte's Ferndale Cemetery.

Samuel was born in Maryland about 1802. He parked his wagon near the court house in the autumn of 1852 and ran his first ads in November, triggering a year long feud with Schuyler C. Baldwin in the columns of the Kalamazoo Gazette. Baldwin emphasized quality based upon his experience and his 200 square foot light, while Bryan offered daguerreotypes cheaper because he had no rent to pay. He made pictures in all kinds of weather, "though fair weather is best," and accepted farm produce in exchange for his services. His $1.00 daguerreotypes were made using pure silver plates and good cases with mats and preservers, and were warranted not to fade. He went after the rural trade by taking his wagon out into Kalamazoo County on occasion. The Kalamazoo Gazette announced on October 13, 1854, that Samuel would soon open a gallery over Friedman's clothing store in the brick block opposite the Kalamazoo House. The wagon gallery continued to move around the county, now operated as a branch of the gallery in town. He made his first ambrotypes in the spring of 1856, and at the Kalamazoo County Fair that fall his entry of daguerreotypes, ambrotypes and sphereotypes was pronounced "very well executed." Samuel sold the Kalamazoo gallery to J. Stimpson in February of 1857. He seems to have been a single parent in 1860, raising the fifteen-year-old twins Luman and Julia, eight-year-old Mary and five-year-old Louisa. Mary still was with him in 1870 taking care of the housework, and 22-year-old Samuel Bryan (possibly a nephew) was living with them and working on the farm.

Bryan, Ohio, PHOTOGRAPHERS and publishers of post cards ..... 1908-1910 t
“BRYAN POST CARD COMPANY, BRYAN, O.” (sometimes accompanied by the registered trade mark of the U. t N. Co.) was printed on the post card backs of Michigan photographs of Battle Creek, Clarks Lake, Dundee, Hillsdale, t
Jackson, Manitou Beach, Monroe, Tecumseh, Three Rivers and Ypsilanti, places 35 to 95 miles from Bryan, Ohio. t 1
The printing on the backs of Tecumseh views and of some Jackson scenes was “PHOTO BY BRYAN POST CARD t CO., BRYAN, O.” Subjects included resorts, business streets, factories, banks, libraries, schools, churches, rivers, t floods and railroad depots and yards. The Dundee views were “Pub. by C. E. Stanger.” Captions were lettered on most t of the negatives, but were scribed into some if the foreground of the scene was plain and light. Negative numbers were t included with most of the captions, and each town seems to have been assigned a series number. Hillsdale scenes were t
20-21, 20-2-3, 20-2-11, &c.; Jackson views were 26-7, 26-10, 26-14, &c.; Battle Creek views were 27-3, 27-19, 27X3, t
&c.; Tecumseh scenes were 226-4, 226-5, 226-8, &c.; and Three Rivers photos were 14-1, 14-8, 14-X-15, 14-40, &c. t
numbered 14-6 and 14-31, and one of these was mailed in February of 1908. More than half of the other cards mailed t were postmarked between March and December of 1908. The rest were mailed in 1909, 1910, 1911, 1912 and 1916. t His parents emigrated from the Hesse Darmstadt region of Germany and John E. Beach was born in Ohio in May of 2
1858, the son of G. N. and Anna Beach with a twin sister named Louisa. Her father came from England, Rose Duechas 2

Arthur was born in Manchester Township of Ontario County, New York, in July of 1879, the elder son of Edgar G. and Emma J. Buck. By 1884 the family had moved to Michigan. He opened his Wayland gallery on November 30, 1901, and took photographs of the 1902 fire in Wayland. The opening of his gallery in Hopkins was reported early in 1903. D. A. Stockdale's purchase of the Wayland studio from A. W. Buck, who was working in Houghton, was reported early in 1906. Arthur's Houghton studio was in Suite 8-10 of the Leopold Building at 92 Sheldon Street in 1907. "Houghton Light Infantry, Company G, Third Infantry, M.N.G. - Photo by A. W. Buck." was included in a 12 by 16 inch composite print on a heavy 16 by 20 commercial mount. The photo was made up of 54 oval portraits of enlisted men, three oval portraits of officers, and one view of the Houghton Amphidrome used as an armory and drill hall. "Photo by A. W. Buck" and "Mass Copper, taken from Michigan Mine, Weight 8 Tons." were press printed on a color post card. "Studio of A. W. BUCK, Leopold Building, Houghton" was printed on a 5¾ by 3¼ inch mount for an oval portrait. This mount was glued into a folder blind stamped: "Goodfellow, South Range, Mich." Arthur was said to be in Houghton in September of 1908, but two months later it was from Calumet that he was reported to have purchased the Schlichting Photo Studio at Lake Linden. "STUDIO OF A. W. BUCK" was printed at the bottom edge of a post card photograph of the Hubbell Eagles, champions of the T. L. F. Indoor Base Ball League in the 1909/1910 season. Frank M. Edyvean was proprietor of the Buck Studio at Lake Linden in 1910. Olive was born in Michigan in 1884 and married Arthur about 1903. They had no children, and something happened to Olive after 1920. By 1930 Arthur had acquired a wife born in Missouri about 1892 and two step-sons born there between 1917 and 1920. Exographs was a name for X ray plates or films.

This company produced photographs of urban and rural residences and of farmers showing off a prize bull or a new McCormick reaper on at least three different styles of cabinet mounts. During the same period, G. W. Bretz was proprietor of the Buckeye View Company of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and produced views of small town or neighborhood store fronts on cabinet mounts.

The most likely person to have been the junior partner in this business was Joseph E. Buckhout. He was born in Michigan in October of 1866, the eldest child and only son of Romanzo and Ella (McPherson) Buckhout. He grew up on the family farm in Almena Township just northeast of Paw Paw. His sister Kate was two years younger and the only other Buckhout of an appropriate age in the county. By 1900 Joseph seems to have inherited the Almena Township farm, married Blanche, and started a family of his own. He farmed there and later in Charleston Township of Kalamazoo County for the rest of his life.

Oliver was born in Maine in 1844 or early in 1845, fifth of the six children of Charles S. and Laura J. Buckley. He and three of his siblings were with their father in South Bend in 1860, where Charles and the two older boys were working as tanners. Oliver claimed to be 18 years old when he enlisted at Tekonsha in Company K of the First Michigan Engineers and Mechanics on October 23, 1861. At some time during his army service he was wounded in the right arm. He re-enlisted at Chattanooga, Tennessee, on December 31, 1863, and was designated an artificer on October 31, 1864. He was promoted to corporal on January 18, 1865, and was mustered out of the service at Nashville, Tennessee, on September 22, 1865. He and Miss Mary E. Hulbert were married at Marshall, Michigan, on December 25, 1865, and had four children. Georgia and Orin were born in Michigan between 1866 and 1873, and then Lewis and Edith were born in Maine between 1875 and 1879. Oliver worked as a traveling salesman. Their home seems to have been for many years at Portland, Maine, and then in Boston, Massachusetts, until 1895 when the family moved to Chicago, Illinois. Oliver spent some time on business in Los Angeles, California, and in the fall of 1894 business took him to Portland, Oregon. He joined his wife and daughter at Chicago in March of 1896. He was employed by Seavey & Company of Boston in March of 1897, and was traveling for them at the time of his death. He died at Bangor, Maine, of congestion of the lungs on April 27, 1897.

His parents, Christian and Christina (Meyers) Buell, were natives of Denmark and the Baden region of Germany and moved from Pennsylvania shortly before John was born at Genesco, Illinois on July 27, 1856. He acquired two sisters and a pair of twin brothers between 1859 and 1868. He and artist Fred D. Welling, along with Fred's wife and one-year-old son, were boarding in 1880 with Fred's mother, Mrs. Sarah A. Welling. When he left Jackson, John worked in photography for three months at Ottawa, Illinois. Then he returned to Genesco and purchased the business of Noah D. Davis. Sarah was born in Illinois in September of 1859 to a German mother, and she married John in 1882 or early in 1883. Their daughter Edith was born in March of 1888, and their son Carley (later Charles) was born in November of 1890. Lorenzo was born in New Hampshire about 1808, Margaret was born in New York five years later, and their daughters were born in Michigan: Elizabeth about 1837, Frances about 1840, and Mary about 1847. Lorenzo opened the daguerreian rooms in Faneuil Hall in November of 1851, and went into the partnership with Proctor in June of 1852. Proctor & Buell were in Grand Haven in 1852 taking daguerreotypes, possibly outdoors. In 1856 Lorenzo claimed to be the "... oldest and best in town." In 1859 and 1860 he was making ambrotypes and paper photographs as well as daguerreotypes until he lost his up-stairs gallery in a fire. From 1870 until his death on August 21, 1888, Lorenzo boarded with his daughter Mary and her husband, Lyman E. Patten. Lorenzo's widow Margaret stayed with the Pattens through 1893. Though he was in the picture and stationery business, Patten sold a variety of stereo views over the years.

His parents came from New York and Maine. Sidney was born in Michigan in September of 1838, second of the five sons of Darius and Cornelia Buell. He was 23 years old when he enlisted in Battery D of the First Michigan Light Artillery on December 31, 1861. The officers and other men of the battery had left for Kentucky on December 9, and records of their operations prior to June of 1863 do not exist. They fought on June 26 at Hoover's Gap, Tennessee, and left Winchester, Tennessee, for the Chattanooga Campaign in September of 1863. On September 20, the second day of the Battle of Chickamauga, their infantry support was driven back and many of their horses were killed. When the battery was overrun they could save only one of their guns, abandoning the others to the Confederates. In November of 1863 Battery D was furnished with 20-pounder Parrott guns, and was stationed in Chattanooga at Fort Negley. They supported the advance on Lookout Mountain and shelled the entrenchments on Missionary Ridge. They moved to Nashville in December to spend the winter and in March of 1864 were ordered to Murfreesboro, Tennessee. Sidney was transferred to the Invalid Corps on April 30, 1864. When his three-year term of service had expired, Sidney was discharged at Nashville on January 2, 1865. Her parents came from Pennsylvania and New York, and Margaret, better known as Maggie, was born in Michigan in August of 1839. She and Sidney married about 1866, and never had children. One of their neighbors in 1870 was the photographer William McClellan. In 1884, Sidney's planing mill manufactured sash, doors and blinds and made beehives and supplies to order. By 1900 the beehives had been replaced by window and door screens, interior finish, scroll sawing and other planing mill work, and Sidney was offering the mill for sale. Margaret died some time between 1900 and 1910.

Hollis probably was born in Vermont about 1837, though his reported year of birth kept getting later as he aged and he may have been born in Ohio or Michigan. His first wife and their daughter were born in Michigan, Lucy in 1837 or 1838 and Ada about 1859. He purchased the Main Street gallery in Kalamazoo from J. Stimpson in February of 1860, and began advertising ambrotypes for only fifty cents. He in turn sold that gallery to G. W. Crego, and acquired the interests and location of Schuyler & Anders in Booth's Brick Block. He produced stereo views of Dayton over two decades. By 1870 Hollis had a 27-year-old wife from New York named Jennie who also was identified as a photographer. About 1878 he married an Ohio girl named Augusta who was not yet twenty, and they still were together in 1900.

Clarence was born in Pennsylvania in October of 1871, the only son of Samuel C. and Adaline (Barry) Bunting. Lillian was born in Canada in May of 1875, crossed the border in 1888 or 1890, and married Clarence about 1892. They had no children. Clarence seems to have been in the process of establishing the Dayton studio in 1920, for he was enumerated as a lone boarder in one location on January 9 and boarding together with Lillian in a different location on January 20.

Frank was born at Hillsdale, Michigan, on September 15, 1883, the elder son of William E. and Addie (Blood) Burd. He was 5 feet 10 ½ inches tall at maturity, with blue eyes and brown hair. His first marriage took place about 1907 to a gal named Frankie who was born in Wisconsin to parents from Illinois in 1888 or early in 1889, and it apparently did not last. He was married for the second time at Essex, Ontario, on March 18, 1914, to Myrtle Nichols. Myrtle was born at Hillsdale about 1891, the daughter of Elwood S. and Jennie (Allen) Nichols. The Michigan photographer and his parents were born in New York State. Chester was born in 1855 or 1856, last of the three children of Perry R. and Elizabeth A. Burdick. He and his parents were living in Lansing with the family of his brother Herbert in June of 1880. One week later, Chester and his photographic partner Harland T. Powe were boarding with a Lansing blacksmith. This ad appeared in the spring of 1880: "The Great Wonder of the Age is that Burdick & Powe are making Photographs to Accommodate Both Rich and Poor. We are making pictures from $1 per dozen to $100 a piece. Our backgrounds are made in New York City, we use the very best make of instruments, buy pure chemicals, and last, but not least, keep tidy rooms. We have made many hundred dozen Photographs in Lansing, thereby knowing just the style of picture that best pleases the public. Our prices are as follows:

|  |        |   |
|--|--------|---|
| Cards, plain, per dozen.....                 | $2.00 | 2 |

Burdick & Powe, successors to Mead & Jennings.

p.s. We wish all those who can make it convenient to make an appointment for their sitting, day and hour. B. & P."

Crayon portraits of Governor Begole and Senator Seymour were exhibited three years later by Burdick & Powe. In February of 1884 it was reported that C. Willard Burdick of Lansing and H. Maurice Kittle of East Saginaw had become partners, and were offering to make a cabinet sized photo of everyone and any one for fifty cents. In November Chester was advertising cabinet photos at $2.50 per dozen in a regional newspaper published fifty miles northwest of East Saginaw. Just before Christmas in 1884, he offered cabinet photographs in clubs of ten for two dollars per dozen.

The California photographer and his parents were born in New York State. Chester was born in May of 1850, and he was listed as C. William Burdick in 1900. Her parents came from Maine and Canada, Fannie was born in Michigan in October of 1850, and her second marriage was to Chester about 1884. She was identified in turn as M. Fannie, Maud F., and Fannie M. Burdick. They had no children that lived to maturity. Except for the discrepancy in birth date, the records read like the photographic career of a single individual. About 1896, Burdick & Swisher's business was also called Swisher & Burdick, the Bijou Studio and the Stanton Studio.

George was born in New York in October of 1853. "Geo. G. Burdick. Chas. Van Buskirk." was printed on some card mounts from the Central Photograph Gallery, while only "G. G. Burdick" was printed on others. Some card and cabinet imprints noted that the Instantaneous Process was used for children's Portraits at George's gallery over the Central Drug Store. George attended the annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Milwaukee in August of 1883. He still was single and living alone in 1900.

Victor was born in Michigan in January of 1859, fifth and last child of H. M. and Sarah W. Burdick. He probably was on a business trip in 1880, away from a home address in Michigan. The gazetteer listed Burdick & Wilson in Galesburgh, but the printing on at least three different types of cabinet mounts used the spellings shown above. Some of Burdick & Willson's patrons were photographed outdoors. In the 1890s Victor married Mrs. Mary M. Sprague, who was born in Michigan to English parents in July of 1863. Mary brought to the marriage her two daughters: Ruth born in August of 1888 and Blanche born in March of 1892. Mary died prior to 1910 and Victor found himself raising two step-daughters.

His parents emigrated from Nova Scotia and England, and Azariah was born in Waukegan, Illinois, on March 30, 1835, fifth of the eight children of William and Ann Burgess. He learned photography in 1868. Her parents came from Pennsylvania and Kate E. Thomas was born in Wisconsin about 1847. She and Azariah were married in 1870. Burgess & Hatch also were proprietors of a Muskegon billiard parlor. "From A. M. Burgess' ART GALLERY, Muskegon, Mich. - Negatives Preserved. No....." was printed on carte de visite sized folders holding tintypes. Azariah had a handsome marble front gallery in Muskegon. His studio was opposite the post office at Holland in 1877, when he had been in the photographic profession for nine years. His Holland gallery was on Eighth Street in 1882. He was in Milwaukee for the annual meeting of the Photographers' Association of America in August of 1883.

Harry was born in New York State in April of 1853, the younger son of John C. and Betsey A. Burgess. Ella was born in New York in July of 1853, and she married Harry in 1876. They never had children, and Ella participated extensively in the photographic business. Some of the mounts Harry used in Romeo were as high as a card mount, but only 1¾ inches wide. He may have acquired photographic equipment and accessories from Charles W. Leonard in Romeo, for the identical background appears in a cabinet photograph from Romeo by Leonard and one from Albion by Burgess. It was announced late in 1890 that Harry had bought out the photographers Young & McKay in Marshall, but apparently the deal fell through and he left Marshall a month or so later. Harry sold a finely equipped Albion gallery to Forbes C. Welsh in April of 1893, but soon was back in business on Superior Street. He advertised in the Albion College Pleiad on October 7, 1893: "Something New - Embossed Photos. If you want something Nobby, order a dozen Embossed Photos of Burgess. Call and See Samples." Again in the Pleiad on January 20, 1894: "Students will please take note that we are better equipped than ever to turn out strictly first class work. We have several new styles that have never been shown in Albion before." In 1895 Harry's wife was credited for her assistance in the work of the gallery. Harry was a Mason, a Noble of the Mystic Shrine, a member of the Modern Woodmen of America, and left Albion in 1897. Mrs. Bessie A. Burgess, Harry's mother, was living with Harry and Ella in 1900.

His father came from Massachusetts and John was born in New York State in May of 1837 or earlier. Charlotte was born in Ohio about 1845, and she married John in 1864 or early in 1865. They had no children. "J. H. Burgess, Art. 8/3/89" was lettered on the negatives of 7 ¾ by 9 ¾ sepia prints on 10 by 12 inch plain buff mounts. The photographs showed more than twenty well dressed young men and women in a grove surrounded by tents, hammocks and a long trestle table. Tacked to one of the trees was a printed sign: "CAMP PHUN, EAT DRINK AND BE MERRY" A printed list of the participants over "Camp Phun, No. 2, Vassar, Mich, _____ 1889." was attached to one of the photographs as a label. Charlotte shared his retirement through 1910, but by 1920 John was an 84-year-old widower. t 1

The use of 232 Woodward Avenue as a photograph gallery was only recorded for a few years: by Charles Levy in 1885 and 1886, and by both John H. Dubbs and Clarence H. Smith in 1887. The first name of the photographer was not printed on his cabinet mounts, but Adin was the only Burkholder in Detroit directories during this period. Adin was born in Canada about 1862, the son of Benjamin and Barbara Burkholder, and came to the United States in 1886. He became a naturalized citizen in 1896. Emma L. Bell was born in Canada about 1879, a daughter of Abraham and Margaret Bell, and she married Adin at Oxford, Ontario, on July 7, 1909. They had no children.

| His father was a carriage painter from Vermont, his mother came from New York, and Arthur was born in Michigan in 1855 or early in 1856, the son of Albert and Catherine Burnham. He closed his first Battle Creek gallery in January of 1877. By June of 1880 he had acquired a 17-year-old bride named Libbie who was born in Michigan to parents from New York. It was reported early in 1885 that "A neat circular ... addressed to the citizens of Ann Arbor, Mich., and vicinity, contains the announcement of the co-partnership formed by Messrs. H. Randall and A. C. Burnham under the style Randall &amp; Burnham. These gentlemen have refitted the gallery at 30 East Huron Street, known as the Revenaugh Studio, and start under favorable auspices...." The partnership was effective January 1, and Arthur was in charge of the gallery. Randall &amp; Burnham produced portraits, from miniature to life size, in every branch of the photographic art. They cordially invited everybody to a public reception in the gallery during the day and evening of Saturday, February Seventh. Two weeks later the senior literature class chose Randall &amp; Burnham as the class photographers with only two dissenting votes. They seem to have been the first Ann Arbor firm ever selected for this work. Pamphlets were made by punching two holes in the upper left corner of stiff card 8 1/4 by 6 1/4 sheets, and then fastening seven of them together with ribbon. Printed on the first leaf was: "Souvenir of Ann Arbor, Michigan, published by H. RANDALL, Dealer in Fine Art Goods, 30 East Huron Street, Ann Arbor, Mich. - 1. .... 2. .... 3. .... 4. .... 5. .... 6. .... Photographed by Randall &amp; Burnham." Lettered behind the numbers on one copy were: "Museum,... Dental College,... Medical College,... Library and Art Building,... Fraternity House,... Unitarian Church." The appropriate photographs were mounted on the following six leaves. Another copy had a front cover carrying a photograph of the dome of University Hall, the lines behind the numbers on the first leaf were left blank, and the photographic views on the following leaves were of the Beal Block at Main and Ann Streets, the campus walk in winter, University Hall, the Law Building, the Museum Building and the Library. |           |   |

His mother emigrated from Germany in 1867 and Charles was born in Michigan on September 7, 1881, third of the seven children of Henry J. and Elizabeth Busch. He was called Carl as a youth, and became a slender man with blue eyes. He married Minnie in 1903 or early in 1904, and the development of their family is included in the entry which follows this one. Through 1909 he was usually listed as Charles J. L. Busch. "C. J. L. Busch, 116 N. Hamilton, Saginaw, W.S." was blind stamped on the 11 by 14 inch mount of a 7 ¾ by 10 photograph of the interior of the office of Edwin Karsten, Notary Public and Insurance Agent. Four men, a youth and a young boy are in the picture. Charles provided one of the 32 photographs reproduced in the commemorative booklet "Souvenir of SAGINAW'S GREATEST FLOOD, March - April, 1904." He was elected secretary of the Professional Photographers Association of Saginaw in December of 1906. "C. J. BUSCH, 1115 JANES, SAGINAW, MICH." was stamped on the back of postal photographs, including some used for advertising by a distributor of Gray automobiles. Charles advertised as a Portrait and Commercial Photographer in 1914, and offered Studio and Home Portraiture from 1917 to 1923.

Henry was born at Deerfield, Michigan, on May 20, 1837, youngest of the eighteen children of Peter and Sallie (Earle) Bush. After his mother died in 1842, his father moved the family to Washtenaw County where Henry attended the district schools. He accumulated considerable wealth as a California miner. Bush & Huntington were proprietors of the New York Gallery in Battle Creek, and of one of the same name in Coldwater. Henry and Miss Flora A. Holmes of Corunna were married on November 12, 1866, their son Willard was born in 1868, and their daughter Betsy or Bessie was born in June of 1874. Henry was a deputy sheriff of Genesee County and a druggist in 1878, proprietor of a livery stable in 1880, and postmaster of Gaines Station in 1884. Adda (later Addie) was born in England in October of 1859, immigrated to the United States in 1875, became Henry's second wife about 1879, and gave birth to their son Howard in March of 1884.

James was born in Canada in 1826 or early in 1827. Adelia was born in New York State four years later, and she married James about 1848. Their two daughters and three sons were born in Michigan: Clarie about 1850, Alfred about 1856, Mary Ann about 1858, Frederick about 1865 and Sumner about 1872. Gould & Bush were artists who shared a Corunna address in 1859, when views from ambrotypes by J. E. Bush embellished a map of the area. James paid separate license fees in 1862 on his photograph gallery, on his eating house and as a retail dealer in liquor. His son Alfred was attending school in Corunna in 1870, and living with John and Mary A. Gould, who may have been his grandparents. Burlingame, Kansas, had a photographer named J. E. Bush in 1889.

His father came from New York and Lewis was born to a Canadian mother in Tuscola Township of Tuscola County, Michigan, on December 24, 1880, the son of Jacob Henry Bush and Mary Elizabeth (Nokes) Bush. He became a medium sized man with brown eyes and black hair. He was enumerated as Louis Bush in 1910 and 1920, and as Louie Bush in 1930. Cora was born in Ohio to parents from Pennsylvania in 1877, and she married Lewis about 1907. Their children were born in Ohio: Clifford on April 26, 1914, and Vivian on March 6, 1821. "Photo by L. A. BUSH, Toledo, O." was printed on the post card backs of a series of photographic views numbered between 250 and 261 of conditions due to flooding at Monroe, Michigan, on February 17 and March 8, 1908. "L. A. BUSH, PHOTO." was lettered on the negatives and "L. A. BUSH PHOTO POST CARD CO., TOLEDO, O." was printed on the post card backs of scenes at Silverwood with numbers such as 400 and 402. Silverwood is nine miles due west of Marlette. "RUINS OF MATHEWS MILL BY WIND 3-21-13, MARLETTE, MICH. L. A. BUSH, PHOTO" was lettered on the negative from which other post card photographs were made. Cora died on October 24, 1961. Lewis died in Eaton Rapids Community Hospital on March 25, 1969. He was characterized as a Lansing photographer, and burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery at Deshler, Ohio.

Alban was born in Detroit to English parents in November of 1859, second of the six children of Alfred B. and Margaret Butler. Mary was born in Canada in August of 1864, and she came to Michigan in 1878. She married Alban about 1885, and their son Raymond was born in Ohio in September of 1892. Phillip G. Sanderson was associated with Alban in A. C. Butler & Company. They advertised in 1886, citing Alban's experience with the Watson Gallery, as artistic photographers who guaranteed satisfaction and used only the instantaneous process. They employed Thomas A. Butler and George Williams as photo printers in 1886, and Mrs. Lizzie J. Humphrey as a clerk and Miss Belle McMillan as a retoucher in 1887. "A. C. Butler & Company., 253 Woodward Ave." was scribed in script into the negative of a photograph of an actress, while "Trade at Farnsworth's Shoe House, cor. Woodward and Michigan Aves., Detroit." was printed on the back of its 5 ¼ by 3 ¾ mount. Butler & company cabinet photographs included one of a proud wheelman with his standard bicycle. Alban's gallery in Toledo during the 1890s occupied the entire second floor of the Cherry Street building, where he specialized in portraits of infants and children. Alban and Mary were sharing their home in 1920 with their son Raymond and his wife Hazel.

His parents emigrated from England and Thomas was born in Michigan in April of 1867, fourth of the six children of Alfred B. and Margaret Butler and brother of photographer Alban C. Butler. Bessie was born in Michigan in October of 1870, and she married Thomas about 1887. Their son Percy was born in Michigan in June of 1888, and their daughter Hazel was born in Ohio in October of 1890. Both children still were at home in 1910, when Bessie was a widow working as a clerk in a Detroit photograph studio.

His mother came from New York State and John was born in Michigan in January of 1869, the son of George W. and Amanda E. Butterfield. His sister Kate was born here nine years later. Thanks to his father's second wife, he had three half-brothers and a half-sister born in Michigan between January of 1882 and January of 1896. Eva Helen was born in Missouri in October of 1871 to an Irish father and a Canadian mother, and she married John about 1895. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Gertrude Helen in April of 1896, Florence May in December of 1898, and Marian in 1903. All three of the girls became school teachers, and Gertrude and Marian still were teaching and living with their parents in 1930. John was known as "J. H." from childhood, which accounts for his being identified as Jay H. Butterfield in some of the gazetteers and directories. George S. Alexander & Butterfield succeeded Verner & Alexander and the Harman Studios in 1920. They offered: "Photographs, Pictures, Frames and Framing, Pastel and Oil, Amateur Supplies and Finishing. Mail orders solicited." J. H. seems to have been a financial rather than an active partner in the photographic business while he maintained his position with the bank.

Marshall was born in Wisconsin in October of 1857, second of the six children of Horace U. and Mary Butters, and their eldest son. His father came from Maine to Manistee in 1852 and worked his way up from logger to lumber tycoon. He moved to Ludington in 1874 and with a Manistee partner named Peters purchased a large tract of pine land in eastern Mason County in 1878. When in 1879 Horace founded the village of Tallman, 17 miles east of Ludington, Marshall became its storekeeper and postmaster. The following year Marshall and Horace founded Buttersville a few miles south of Ludington, where they established the office and mills of the Butters & Peters Salt & Lumber Company. The narrow gauge Mason & Oceana Railroad was built from Ludington through Buttersville in 1886, and on to Stetson or Walkerville in Oceana County. Maggie, later Margaret, was born in Canada to Scotch parents in October of 1860, and she married Marshall about 1885. Their son Robert was born in March of 1886, and their son Marshall was born in June of 1889. They lived at Ludington where Marshall was secretary of the Butters & Peters Salt & Lumber Company until 1907, president of the company through 1915, and then president of the Butters Land Company until 1919. He was also president of the Mason & Oceana Railroad from 1900 until 1909, and was recognized locally as a notable amateur photographer.

John was born in England in March of 1852, immigrated in 1873, and became a naturalized citizen of the United States in 1888. Caroline was born in Canada in July of 1835, and she married John about 1877. They never had children. John advertised early in 1885: "... Portrait Photographer. I duplicate anybody's work; quality considered. Children's pictures a certainty by the new Rapid Dry Plate Process. Copying and enlarging done. Hamilton St., up stairs, Saginaw City." His cabinet photographs included views of a ditch being dug manually down the center of Hamilton Street, apparently for a sewer. Caroline still was keeping house for John in 1910, but he was a widower by 1920, when he was one of six lodgers with a middle-aged couple.

He was called Arthur as a child, used Clifton as a photographer, and alternated between Arthur C. and Clifton A. in the later censuses. His father came from New York and Arthur was born in Michigan in April of 1869, first of the three sons of Sylvanus and Sarah S. Buzzard. Her father emigrated from Canada and Rose was born in Michigan in February of 1871. She and Arthur married about 1893. Their daughter Winifred was born in June of 1894 but died some time between 1910 and 1920. Their son Ernest was born in June of 1897, and was working in his dad's tin shop in 1920. His parents came from New York and John was born in Ohio some time between 1840 and 1850. He was identified as a 25-year-old daguerreotype artist in 1870, and as a 40-year-old artist in 1880. In 1900 he claimed to have been born in December of 1849, and then stuck to this story for the next twenty years. Emma was born in Wisconsin about 1850 to parents from New York, and she married John a year or more before giving birth to Josephine in Wisconsin in 1875 or early in 1876. She and John divorced some time before 1900, and he did not marry again.

James was born in December of 1828 at Mahoning, Pennsylvania, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Cadwallader. Many of the Ohio listings were for John D. Cadwallader. He was single and living on the farm of his widowed father in 1850. By 1860 he had married Arabella Tappan, who was born in Indiana about 1836. Cadwallader & Tappan mounted small tintypes in carte de visite sized paper frames with no tax stamps. Early in July of 1866 this advertisement appeared in Detroit newspapers: "NEW PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY. Cadwallader Brothers have the honor to announce to the citizens of Detroit, that about the 20th of July they will open their ART PLACE at 223 Jefferson Avenue. The Messrs. Cadwallader have, at great expense, designed and erected this spacious building, expressly for photographic purposes, and it is with no small degree of pride that they are about to open in this beautiful city a photograph establishment which shall rank equal to any place of its kind in the country, East or West..." The opening was announced early in August. Cadwallader Brothers and H. L. Bingham of Kalamazoo were the only professional photographers to exhibit at the Michigan State Fair at Detroit in September of 1867. The Cadwalladers made a clean sweep of the First Premiums for the best collection of photographs, the best photograph portrait in India ink, the best photograph portrait in oil colors, the best photograph of an animal shown at the fair, and the best and second best photographs of the fair grounds. Bingham received only two Second Premiums. "Cadwallader Bro's., Photographers. CABINET CARD. Art Place, 223 Jeff. Ave., Detroit." was printed below the image on the relatively thin mounts of the oldest Michigan cabinet photographs known to me. From Marietta, J. Dallas sent cabinet photographs as examples to The Philadelphia Photographer in 1868, the same year in which he published a series of stereo views of Marietta College. He was living alone in 1870, and then married Miss Julia A. Wheeler at Marietta on December 25, 1872. Their daughter Agnes was born in June of 1876, and was their only child. J. Dallas was a member of the National Photographic Association in 1873. The Parkersburg gallery was a branch of his Marietta business. He attended the first convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Chicago in August of 1880. He exhibited a collection of views at the fourth annual convention of the PA of A at Milwaukee in August of 1883. He invested heavily in real estate, built and owned some of the finest residences in Marietta, which he rented. J. Dallas died in November of 1905. Agnes was single and with her mother in 1910, and she lived until July of 1921. Julia died in December of 1919.

John was the son of Eli Cadwallader and was born about 1827 at Mahoning, Pennsylvania. Amelia was born three years later in Ohio, and their sons were born in Kentucky about 1856 and 1861. John's first Toledo gallery was established in the summer of 1863 in rooms altered to suit the purpose. A large assortment of albums and frames was displayed in the first floor salesroom. On the second floor were the parlor, the toilet room and an operating room with a sky-light and a large side window so arranged that the operator could obtain any desired degree of light. Card photographs were sold at $2 per dozen. A Detroit newspaper noted in May of 1866 that "J. Cadwallader of Toledo is to come to Detroit in the occupation of photography." The Cadwallader Brothers announced the opening of their Art Place early in August of 1866. Their employees in 1867 included photo operator Christian Mowry, artists Miss A. B. Chamberlain and Miss Myra A. Chamberlain, and Miss Mary Andrews. John ran this advertisement on the first day of the fair in 1868: "CADWALLADER'S ART PLACE to be Kept Open, and PHOTOGRAPHS MADE Every Day of the Fair. Having made a large display of photographs at the State Fair of 1867, and having been awarded four FIRST PRIZES for the best photographs, Cadwallader has decided not to make any display at the present State Fair, but he will give his undivided personal attention to making sittings for photographs during every day of the fair. Be it known that CADWALLADER'S is the leading Photograph establishment in the city. Cabinet Cards made in elegant style. CADWALLADER'S pictures of children and infants are pronounced inimitable. Art Place open every day and evening, 223 Jefferson Avenue." John was on the first published list of members of the National Photographic Association in July of 1869. A few months later he was offering a series of photographic Detroit scenes in a size suitable for framing, including a view of St. John's Church and rectory. Henry G. Cassey worked as a photographer for John in 1870 at the Woodward Avenue "Parlor Gallery." A group of Detroit photographers met here in October of 1872 to discuss forming a union. "CADWALLADER'S TOLEDO GALLERY, 57 & 59 Summit Street. - One Operating Room For Photographs. One Operating Room For Gems and Ferrotypes. - Old Pictures carefully copied and finished by Artists in India Ink, Water and Oil Colors." was printed on some carte de visite sized paper sleeves enclosing tintypes. It was reported in October of 1872 that John had opened a new gallery over the Beehive Corner at Indianapolis. Some of his card mounts from the Bates Block opposite the Indianapolis post office reproduced a Prize Medal awarded by the Indiana State Board of Agriculture and state: "Artistic Photography, Pre-eminence Established, Pre-payment system abolished." John attended the inaugural convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Chicago in August of 1880. He also attended the second annual PA of A convention at New York City in August of 1881, and while there was elected secretary of the PA of A. Joan Hostetler has compiled much more detailed information about John Cadwallader.

His parents emigrated from the Isle of Man and William was born in Ontario about 1838. At Oscoda on August 1, 1871, he married 27-year-old Charlotte A. Smith of Oscoda, who was born in New York State. Their son Charles was born about 1875 and their daughter Marian was born in August of 1879. Early in 1874, William sent stereo views of the labors of the sturdy lumbermen of Michigan to The Philadelphia Photographer. They included winter views in the woods and spring views on the log-driving streams. He also took stereoscopic street scenes in Alpena and winter views at Hubbard Lake. "W. C. CAIN, PHOTOGRAPHER, Myers Block, Alpena, Mich...." was printed above the monogram of the National Photographic Association on some card mounts. Around 1880 his Alpena gallery was on River Street, and he offered to enlarge Old Pictures to any desired size, and to finish them in India Ink, Crayon, Pastel or Oil at reasonable rates.

His parents emigrated from Ireland and Canada, and Joseph was born in Illinois in April of 1876. Lovancha was born in New York in July of 1868, married a man named Peters and had sons born in September of 1888 and October of 1890. She brought along the two boys when she married Joe about 1895, and she gave birth to Dewey in May of 1898 and to Lovancha in 1905 or early in 1906. A photographic journal mentioned late in 1897 that "J. C. Calhoun, an artist, has leased the photographic rooms in the Kanters Block, Holland, Michigan, and will move in soon." His eldest stepson, Louis C. Peters, was working as a photographer in Joe's studio in 1910. The Calhoun Photo Materials Company continued through 1915 with a changing list of officers which did not include Joe after 1912. By 1920 Joe was married to 24-year-old Dorothy who was born in Alabama, and was helping to raise her ten-year-old son Jack from a previous marriage in Tennessee to a man named Halliday.

| His parents came from New York, and Charles was born late in 1843 at Winkley, Ohio. He was a five foot eight inch farmer with a light complexion, blue eyes and sandy hair when he was enrolled at Sheboygan, Wisconsin, as a private in Company B of the Twelfth Regiment, Second Battalion, United States Infantry on March 19, 1862. During the spring of 1862 he contracted an affection of the back that lead to his discharge at Baltimore, Maryland, on August 19, 1862, and prevented him from doing hard manual labor for the rest of his life. He enlisted in the Second Minnesota Cavalry on January 4, 1864, at Fort Ridgely, Minnesota, and served as a guard against Indians at various places in Minnesota. This duty in a favorable climate did not trouble his back, and he was discharged with his company at Fort Snelling on November 22, 1865. Charles and his mother, Mrs. Hannah Call, were sharing a home at Boyne in 1880. He married Miss Ida May Shryock at Advance on March 9, 1882, and they had five children that all lived to maturity. The last three born were Jessie in 1890, Harry in 1896 and Ray in 1899. Charles filed a patent application on a Self-Timing Photographic Camera Shutter on February 24, 1887, and was granted Patent Number 368,930 on August 30, 1887. He was 5 feet 11½ inches tall when he applied successfully for a pension in July of 1887. He applied for an increase in 1891, and was receiving $12.00 per month when he died from locomotor ataxia on August 18, 1902. Her father was born in Canada, her mother was born in Vermont in 1819 or 1820, she had a brother born in Ohio about 1854, and Mary was born in Michigan in 1856 or 1857. "Mary A. Call, Photographer" was printed on the back of an early card photograph of a boy with his drum, and "Miss M. A. Call, Flushing, Mich." was stamped on other card mounts, but in some directories and on most of her photograph mounts, she was identified only as M. A. Call. Ephraim McMillen was also a Flushing photographer from 1882 until 1885, and some card mounts have his name blocked out with "M. A. Call" printed above it. "Central Gallery, ..." or "South side of Main Street, ... All Work Warranted." was printed on very similar cabinet mounts, one with the photograph of a bearded man with his percussion rifle. "First door East of Parsell's Hotel, ..." or "Maple St., Second Block North of Bridge, ..." was printed on other cabinet mounts. Mary advertised in 1889: "PHOTOGRAPHS, Both Large and Small taken by the New Instantaneous Process. Pictures of Children a Specialty. Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged. Views of Buildings, Etc., Pictures of Invalid or Infirm persons taken at their homes in any part of the country. Call and Examine Specimens and Prices. Remember the place, First Door East of Parsell's Hotel. M. A. CALL, Flushing, Michigan." Mary seems to have married Daniel J. Johnston about 1896. He was senior to her by thirteen years, and had been married once before. They farmed for a while in Flushing Township, and then remained in the township through 1910 after Daniel retired.

George was born in New York State in October of 1828. Caroline was born in Pennsylvania in August of 1834, and she married George about 1855. Two of their children were born in Michigan: Frank in 1856 or early in 1857 and Byron in July of 1859. George seems to have been maintaining a rural home for his family in Van Buren Township while commuting a few miles to his gallery in White Pigeon. Five more of their children were born in Indiana: Elmore and Ernest between 1860 and 1863, Genie (their only daughter) about 1866, Charles two years later and George in September of 1869. By 1910 Caroline was a widow living with the family of her son George on their farm in Nipomo Township of San Luis Obispo County, California.

Arthur was born on August 2, 1893, at Norway, Michigan, and became an average sized man with brown eyes and dark brown hair. His parents came from a part of Austria where they spoke Italian. Post card photographs such as one of the Palatka School from a negative on which "A. C. Photo" had been lettered may have been the work of Arthur Calliari. He limped a little in 1917 due to a leg that had been broken five years earlier, and expected that physical inability and his contributions to the support of his mother would exempt him from military service. He and four brothers still were living with their mother in 1920.

Charles was born at Smithfield, Illinois, on September 25, 1893, the son of Jesse A. and Lottie J. Cameron. His sisters were born in Illinois: Corda in April of 1896 and Carrie in May of 1897. Their mother died prior to 1910, and their father was married again by 1920. Charles matured into a tall man with blue eyes and light hair. Dora was born in Indiana to a German mother in 1895 or early in 1896, she married Charles about 1921, and they had no children in 1930. The address of Cameron's Studio on State Street was reported as 215 in 1922, 204 in 1925, 204 ½ in 1926 and 1929, and 419 in 1930 and 1934. "Cameron Studio" was incised into the negative of a post card portrait of long-time baseball coach Francis Thorpe sold as a souvenir of the City of David. Charles and his wife attended an international convention of photographers in July of 1930 at Milwaukee, Wisconsin. He was the only photographer in southwestern Michigan who belonged to the Michigan Photographers' Honorary Society, and his wife assisted him in the studio work. In Milwaukee they attended daily lectures by world famous authorities on the newest photographic methods.

Between 1875 and 1902 there seem to have been two or three Cameron ladies in Detroit called Bella, Belle and Isabella quite interchangeably, with and without the Miss. One and then two were domestics in the 1870s. One was an office clerk for a railroad from 1882 to 1884, and again from 1889 to 1891. One was thirty when she died on May 2, 1890. Another used the middle initial N or M and alternated between being an artist and a nurse from 1892 through 1899, and then was listed as a domestic in 1902.

Ronald was born at East Orange, New Jersey, to Thomas Carlyle and Mary (Barr) Cameron on January 18, 1894, and became a medium sized man with blue eyes and brown hair. He served for six months on the Mexican Border in 1916 and 1917 as a corporal with the Fourth Pennsylvania Infantry. He entered the regular army at Columbus Barracks, Ohio, on December 14, 1917, and after basic training at Camp Grant, Illinois, was assigned to the Aviation Section of the Signal Corps at Park Field near Millington, Tennessee. He was promoted from private to sergeant first class in the 281st Aero Squadron on February 14, 1918, and was transferred to the School of Aerial Photography at Rochester, New York, as an instructor on May 21, 1918. Ronald was transferred to the Eleventh Photo Section of the Army Observation Group in the American Expeditionary Force as Head Laboratory Man on July 10 and went overseas on August 8, 1918. The Eleventh was one of only six photo sections actually in operation along the front. Ronald was transferred to the A. E. F. University at Beaune, France, on March 10, 1919, returned to the United States on May 7, and was honorably discharged on May 12, 1919. He was rooming at the Grand Rapids YWCA in 1920. He was listed as proprietor of the Artcraft Studios in 1922, and as manager of the studios in other years. Ronald seems never to have married, and he was living in Florida when he died in March of 1963.

This person was identified as Arthur T. as a youth and in the 1930s and 1940s, as Thomas A. in 1917 and in 1954, as Arthur in 1920, and as T. Arthur Camp in much of his later life. He was born on June 28, 1887, in Homer Township of Midland County, Michigan, to George R. and Cynthia A. Camp, and was the elder brother of Cyrus T. Camp. He became a stout man with gray eyes and dark brown hair. Bernice Owen was born in Wisconsin to a father from New York and a Canadian mother in 1893, and she married Arthur about 1912. Their son Rolland was born in Michigan in 1916, and then Archie and Kenneth were born in Washington early in 1918 and in December of 1925. They returned to Michigan, where Marylou was born in March of 1930. A photographer from the Camp Publishing Company, probably Arthur, took pictures of the high school seniors up at Gagetown in Tuscola County in November of 1934. Bernice seems to have died about 1934, and Arthur soon married a lady named Norma. Arthur had his son Rolland as a partner in both Camp's photographers and the Camp Studio. Norma lived in Ypsilanti as a widow from 1968 through 1973.

Cyrus was born to George L. and Hazel B. Camp in Homer Township of Midland County, Michigan, on December 9, 1891, and became an average sized man with blue eyes and dark brown hair. His wife and children also were born in Michigan: Bertha in 1895 or early in 1896, Donald in June of 1924 and Ellen in April of 1927. In 1908 the Camp Brothers styled themselves “Artists, Successors to W. H. Love, Artistic Posing, Fine Retouching, Picture Framing and Residential Viewing Promptly attended to.” His sister Marie worked for Cyrus as a photographer in 1924, and Edward R. Hillis worked for his company as a photo finisher in 1930. Cyrus was proprietor of the Camp Publishing Company from 1926 until 1945, specializing in commercial and school photography in the 1940s. His brother Arthur T. Camp was a photographer, printer or foreman for the company from 1929 through 1945. Arthur and Rolland T. Camp operated as Camp’s Photographers at 323 ½ North River in Ypsilanti from 1948 through 1955. Camp’s Photographers was continued by Clyde A. Brown and Boyd A. Brown until 1962, while Arthur and Rolland Camp operated the Camp Studio at 207 West Cross Street in Ypsilanti from 1957 through 1960.

Daniel was born in Caithness-shire, Scotland, and came to Michigan in 1861. When his gallery burned on October 4, 1865, he was uninsured and his loss was $200. By occupation he became a builder, and for a while was a member of the city council. He was elected to the Michigan Senate of 1887-1888 on the Greenback and Republican ticket from the 25th District, composed of Arenac and Bay Counties. Eliza was born in Michigan to a father from New York and an Irish mother in June of 1845, and she married Daniel about 1862. Their children were born in Michigan between 1863 and September of 1877: James, Jennie, Gibson, Kenneth, William and Eva Viola. By 1910 Eliza was a widow living in California and sharing her home with two of her children, Jennie and Gibson.

John was born in 1832 at Sheffield, England, and emigrated to the United States in 1853. From Chicago, he was the official photographer of the Canadian Pacific Railway. A photographic journal reported in 1867: "LAKE SUPERIOR VIEWS. Mr. J. Carbutt, 131 Lake Street, Chicago, accompanied the excursion to Lake Superior lately made by the N. W. Railway Company, and secured twenty-four excellent negatives of scenes thereabouts. Among them are views of the sawmills at Peshtigo, Wis.; the ore docks at Marquette, Mich.; views in the Jackson iron mine; an ore train of 45 cars crossing Goose Lake; ore dock at Escanaba, 1300 feet long; and several groups of excursionists. They give one a grand idea of how rapidly the West grows, and are in Mr. Carbutt's best style." Two of these stereoscopic views were taken at Negaunee of the mayor of Chicago, W. B. Ogden, and his large party which included several women. John purchased the American rights to the woodburytype process in 1870, and proceeded to establish a printing company in Philadelphia. He became the first commercially successful manufacturer of gelatin dry plates in 1879, and produced plates with positive emulsions for 3 ¼ by 4 inch lantern slides, which became established as the standard American size. He began selling a celluloid cut film in 1888, furnished Thomas Edison with the first film strips for the Kinetoscope, and pioneered production of other photographic innovations. He was elected first president of the Photographers' Association of America in 1880, and died at Philadelphia in 1905. For more information about John Carbutt, see the book by William Brey.

Newton was born on July 4, 1845, at Cambridge, Ohio. He matured into a five foot 10½ inch man with a fair complexion, blue eyes and brown hair. He was employed as an engineer prior to enlisting at Milwaukee as a paid substitute in the Sixth Wisconsin Infantry on March 31, 1865. He was enrolled as a private but was not assigned to a company. With the end of the war he was honorably discharged at Madison, Wisconsin, on August 10, 1865. Ophelia Parker was born on April 22, 1853, at North Fairfield, Ohio, and she married Newton there on December 25, 1870. Their son Frank was born in July of 1875 in Michigan (or possibly Iowa), and their daughter Alice was born in Ohio about 1878. Newton applied for an Invalid Pension in October of 1890, citing disease of the heart and lungs, chronic diarrhea, rheumatism, and an injury to his right leg that broke a bone. In September of 1909 he applied to have his pension increased from eight to twelve dollars per month. Newton died at Jackson on February 21, 1918. Ophelia received a pension of thirty dollars per month until she remarried on October 8, 1924.

Orville was born in New York State about 1833, a son of Daniel and Louisa Carlisle. He enlisted at Niles as a corporal in Company L of the Second Michigan Cavalry on September 17, 1861. At the time he was six feet tall with a light complexion, light hair and blue eyes. The regiment left Grand Rapids for St. Louis on November 14, 1861, and saw its first real service operating against Island Number Ten under General Pope. After Island Number Ten was captured they took part in the siege of Corinth, Mississippi. Colonel Phil H. Sheridan of the Second Michigan Cavalry was promoted to Brigadier General for leading them in one of the most brilliant minor engagements of the war in June of 1862 at Booneville, Mississippi. In October of 1862 the regiment drove the enemy in confusion from the field at Perryville, Kentucky. On November 14, 1862, Orville was discharged at Keokuk, Iowa, on a Surgeon's Certificate of Disability. He married Miss Lydia Bartlett of Pittsfield, New Hampshire, at Niles on August 26, 1865. Two of their daughters were born at South Bend, Indiana: Clara in August of 1866 and Lillie in August of 1868. Mary was born in April of 1877 at Buchanan, Michigan. Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle were divorced in March of 1896 at South Bend, Indiana. "Main Building MICHIGAN SOLDIERS HOME 258 Ft. Long. Photo by O. D. Carlisle, a member of the home" was printed with the negative of a cabinet photograph. Another cabinet photo by Orville was made from separate negatives of the hospital, dormitory and main building of the Michigan Soldiers' Home.

"From Mrs. C. T. Carlton's Photographic & Ferrotypic Gallery, ..." was printed on the paster holding a delicately tinted tintype of exceptional quality into its carte de visite sized paper frame. Her father came from Vermont and Cynthia was born in New York State in February of 1836. Henry Carlton was born in Maine in 1831 or early in 1832, became a Methodist Episcopal clergyman, and married Cynthia about 1854. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Mary in May of 1856 and Hattie two years later. When the 22nd Michigan Infantry was organized, one Henry Carlton entered service as Captain of Company E. He was commissioned on July 31, 1862, and mustered into the army three weeks later. He was in charge of a train guard contingent when he was killed in a railroad accident at Stewart's Creek, Tennessee, on June 6, 1863. Cynthia was raising her daughters on her own in 1870, and she was identified as a widow in 1900 and 1910. Her daughter Mary married a man named Mc Nichols, gave birth in Iowa to a daughter in February of 1884, and subsequently divorced. She was providing a home for her mother in 1900, and they still were living together at Greenville in 1910.

Frank was born in the state of New York about 1844, third of the seven children of Erasmus D. and Rhoda Carpenter. George H. Morgan was his associate in 1863. Frank boarded in Ann Arbor with the family of Horace O. Hobart and his son Marl, who later were Big Rapids photographers. Marl E. Hobart and Frank described what they did in 1870 as “work at photography.” Some card photograph mounts were imprinted: “Frank W. Carpenter, Successor to John S. Foster, PHOTOGRAPHER, Underwood’s Block, Maumee Street, (Formerly known as the Greenwald Gallery,) ... Adrian, Mich.” 1872 was Frank’s first year in Lenawee County, and he produced stereoscopic views of Adrian. William Hall was his partner in Adrian, and they employed Fred W. Meyerhuber in 1874. Clarence O. Morrill, Henry Geisel and Frank were boarding together in Kendallville. They all gave Michigan as their place of birth and “photographing” as their occupation in 1880.

The Carpenters were born in the state of New York, Leonard in 1831 or 1832, Emily seven years later, and their daughters Emma and Caroline between 1859 and 1862. The backing paper used to secure tintypes to their carte de visite sized frames apparently came in a roll, preprinted: “Gem Miniatures taken with the New Invented Camera, finished in ten minutes. Card Ferrotypes, of all sizes, taken by L. W. Carpenter, Ypsilanti, Mich.” Some tintypes like this have Ypsilanti crossed out, and Painesville penciled in.

James was probably born in Canada, and was the brother of photographer William A. Carson. He first advertised on April 28, 1855, when he announced that he was "... fitting up a splendid Daguerreotype Room over Phelps' Jewelry Store, where he intends taking Photographic, Daguerreotypic and Mezzographic Miniatures." W. I. Beardsley was a principal of Carson & Company from May until July of 1855, when James dropped the "& Co." and began signing the advertisements with only his own name. The advertisement which ran from May 19, 1855, through February 16, 1856, included: "... Our sky-light is so arranged that we can produce pictures in cloudy weather as well as clear, and our pictures taken by the photographic process are warranted equal to any heretofore taken in this country. Having had ELEVEN YEARS EXPERIENCE in the art ... Rooms open from 8 A.M. to 6 P.M." In January of 1856 the editor of the Gazette noted "Daguerreotypes on Convex Plates, a new experiment by Mr. Carson...." Four weeks later he mentioned: "We have been shown ... Ambrotypes and Photographs, taken by J. P. Carson.... for beauty and fidelity they surpass the Daguerreotype. The Ambrotype is taken on glass and cannot be defaced by rubbing.... The Photograph is taken on paper, and has the appearance of the finest steel engraving and may be colored in imitation of nature..." James' advertisements in the spring of 1856 emphasized "AMBROTYPES, or Miniatures on Glass.... This Gallery ... has the largest Sky-Light (containing at least 300 square feet of glass), and the largest room in the State.... out-door views and likenesses of sick or deceased persons taken at short notice.... likenesses beautifully colored, and set in Morocco, Silk-Velvet, Papermache, Union, Operas and other fancy styles. Or set in Medallions, Lockets, Pins, Rings, Canes, &c., in a few minutes...." James was indicted by the Oakland County Grand Jury for procuring a gold watch and other goods under false pretenses, but eluded the officers and left Michigan suddenly. He was remembered ten years later as "... a first class artist, but was corrupt and dishonest...." The succinct Dun & Bradstreet reports from Toronto about James begin in 1858: "... Has done a good business ... but saved nothing. Was in a tight place a year ago, and assigned everything to his brother, W.A.C. ... about 30, without children or household effects, good artist, ... business with him is dull. We cannot recommend him." In April of 1860 things had not changed much: "... doing a pretty good business, yet can't recommend him for credit, having no confidence in him." , but by September: "Have a first rate trade, are attending more closely, and think are making money." Three years later, in September of 1863, he was doing good business and probably "... making money, owns a small property at Brocton but encumbered. Rather fast and fond of racing gambling &c., and though generally on the winning side his character is hardly good enough to recommend for much...." Two months later he was characterized as "Unreliable in every respect, little or no means and constantly pressed." Warren L. Ash was a principal of Carson & Company in 1864. The report in December of 1865 was that "James P. Carson of Carson Bros, left the city some months ago and the style of the firm then became Carson & Co., ... Wm. Carson has now left the city ... The business is now advertised for sale." James and William seem to have left some debts behind them in Toronto. During the summer of 1865 James "eloped" with his cousin, who was married to the prominent Hillsdale business man B. F. Cutler. She later returned and was reconciled with her husband. James continued to correspond with her from Cleveland, despite promises that he would not. The cousins met several times in the months preceding one closely observed meeting at Adrian in the spring of 1866. They met on a back street, drove about the city for a while, took tea together at the Lenawee Hotel where they were both staying, and were closeted together in his room for several hours in the evening. Three weeks later they had arranged to meet again, and Mrs. Cutler had slipped her trunks out of the house. However, Mr. Cutler had revised the intercepted message to Carson, and when James arrived at Monroe he was met by Mr. Cutler and an under-Sheriff rather than the expected cousin. James was confined in the Adrian jail awaiting examination on adultery charges based upon the earlier meeting and numerous letters in the possession of Mr. Cutler.

William was born in New York in March of 1833, second of the five children of William and Angelina Carson. Her parents emigrated from Scotland, Mary Wyllie was born in Canada in 1844 or 1845, and she married William about 1863. Their daughter Ida was born in Canada in June of 1865, and Minnie was born in Michigan six years later. The Carson Brothers were awarded prizes for the best colored photographs and a collection of ambrotypes displayed at the Provincial Exhibition at Brantford in September of 1857, and for the best collection of photographs shown at the Provincial Exhibition at Kingston in September of 1859. W. L. Ash was a principal of W. A. Carson & Company. William left Toronto in November of 1865, with the business up for sale and creditors hard on his heels. His brother James, who probably had run up the debts, had left the city a couple of months earlier. It was announced in June of 1867 that "Mr. W. A. Carson is now operating in this PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY lately owned by Eugene Clarke ... Likenesses Taken ... in AMBROTYPES, PHOTOGRAPHS, PORCELAIN, WATCH DIAL, Pocket Handkerchief, or any picture known to the Art. CALL AND SEE US. R. L. ANDREWS, Proprietor, WM. A. CARSON, Photographer." William joined the National Photographic Association between July of 1869 and June of 1870. The NPA monogram was printed on some Andrew & Carson card photograph mounts, and they published a series of approximately one hundred stereo views of the ruins after the Chicago fire in October of 1871. Carson & Graham advertised as First Class Photographers and as successors to Andrew & Carson, executed all kinds of work in the best styles of the art, and by June of 1874 were selling photographs of a drawing of the five buildings planned to replace the single Hillsdale College structure which had burned in March. They later recorded the college buildings and the town on mounts ranging from card size to 8 by 10 inches as well as with stereoscopic views. They also photographed President Durgin with his scholars Christopher and Edward Sparling, said to be the smallest college students in the world. William attended the fourth annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Milwaukee in August of 1883, and later published stereo views of Hillsdale. By 1888 he was calling himself the "Old Reliable" Photographer. He and his wife seem to have lived separately for some time. He and his 19 and 13-year-old daughters, but no wife, were living at Hillsdale in 1884. Mrs. William A. (Mary A.) Carson was listed as a Detroit nurse in 1893 and 1896 with the same residential address given for him in 1895. William was boarding alone with his widowed sister Mary at Cleveland in 1900. He died at the Detroit residence of his daughter on August 3, 1909, survived by two daughters and his wife, Mrs. Mary A. Carson. After a private funeral, interment was at Seneca Castle, New York.

| Homer was born at Greene, Pennsylvania, on October 28, 1847, fourth of the five children of Samuel and Cynthia (Horton) Carter. He grew up on a farm in Ashtabula County, Ohio, and attended Kingsville Academy. After leaving Grand Rapids he was a traveling photographer until he located at Sand Lake. In Rockford he described himself as a Photo & View Artist who copied and enlarged old pictures and framed pictures to order. Homer also was dealing in sewing machines about 1881. "H. L. Carter, PHOTOGRAPHER AND DEALER IN Furniture, Picture Frames and Sewing Machines. FUNERAL DIRECTOR. SAND LAKE, MICH." was stamped on the back of the ten by twelve inch mount of a photo of almost forty lumbermen posed on the platform of their mill. Emily C. His father came from Pennsylvania and Milton was born in Ohio on January 12, 1880, the son of George and Ellen 1 4
Cartwright. He became a slender man with brown eyes and hair. His wife and children were born in Michigan: Bessie 4 1
Moore in 1885 and four sons and four daughters between 1907 and 1927. While a Clare photographer, Milton 1 t produced a multi-view post card photograph featuring the Congregational Church in Clare and its pastor that included t the Congregational Church in Dover, five miles north of Clare, as well as the Brick School and the Grange Hall in t Vernon, 75 miles southeast of Clare, but only 8 miles from Owosso. He was a member of the Clare County Law and 5 2
Order League in 1914, supporting enforcement of the local option laws prohibiting the sale of alcoholic beverages. 2
"Photo by Cartwright, Owosso, Mich., May 15, 1917." was lettered on the negative of an 8 by 37 inch panorama of t
200 Knights of Columbus lined up on Washington Street with a large crowd, the Majestic Theatre and other business t

Lansing PHOTOGRAPHER at 617 Michigan av east .....1893 2 3

Irving (or Erving) was born in Michigan in 1874 or early in 1875. He was the grandson of John N. and Sarah M. Cary, and probably the son of Charles A. Cary. He sold 99-cent photographs. Traveling photographers J. N. Wigle of Detroit and W. W. Webb of St. Thomas, Ontario, were arrested September 9, 1893, on a warrant charging them with taking a photograph which would corrupt the morals of both young and old, for the purpose of sale, distribution and circulation, a state prison offence. They were accused of selling obscene photos in Lansing saloons, and charged specifically with taking a photograph on August 18 of Mrs. Emily Ketchum in her parlor while she was wearing nothing but a pair of shoes and a smile. Mrs. Ketchum, who was also arrested, was a fairly prominent Lansing resident and had recently been active in the W.C.T.U. She was past middle age and was not considered particularly beautiful. She denied posing for the photo while agreeing that it was taken in a corner of her parlor which included furniture made by her carpenter husband and a framed copy of the W.C.T.U. constitution and by-laws. The police had this photograph and the negative from which it was printed, and obtained a search warrant for the hotel rooms of the photographers, where they found a large number of bawdy pictures. Wigle and Webb claimed that the negative was not their work, and that the other nude photographs had been copied from noted oil paintings during their travels. At the examination on September 13 a young local photographer named Irving Cary testified that he had loaned some frames to Wigle and Webb, was in their hotel room to retrieve the frames, looked over their negatives and noted the one of Mrs. Ketchum. Knowing that people were looking for evidence against her, he took the negative and made a print from it. Later the city marshal demanded the plate and Cary gave it to him. Wigle was tried in Lansing on October 3, 1893, and his attorney claimed that although the pictures had been taken, they had not been distributed, sold or loaned by the defendant. The prosecutor apparently convinced the jury that Wigle had taken the pictures with criminal intent, for after brief deliberations Wigle was found guilty and was sentenced to a short term in the county jail. Webb was tried at Mason in January of 1894 on the same charge and was acquitted, probably because of evidence that Wigle had taken the Ketchum picture. Mrs. Ketchum was found guilty at Mason a few days later, but this verdict was overturned on appeal in January of 1895.

His father was a farmer from New York State, who for a while made his living as a fiddler. Chester was born in Michigan in February of 1866, the only son of George M. and Eliza M. Casey, and was known as William C. Casey as a youth. His sister Anna was one year older, and died in her later teens or early twenties. In 1897, Chester lived in Dundee and kept the Deerfield gallery open every Monday. Cabinet photographs by Chester are found from "... Dundee, Deerfield and Petersburgh." One of these pictures posed on a Dundee business street shows a man in a sulky with another man holding the bridle of the horse. Chester was single and was living with his parents in 1900. Mayme was born in Ohio in 1886, and she married Chester when she was 20 and he was 41. Their daughters, Eveline, Doris and Mabel, were born in Ohio between 1907 and 1913. When all the girls were school age, Mayme worked for a while in a local glass factory. 1

William was born in New York State in 1826 or 1827 and his wife, Adelia, was born there ten years later. Hughes & Cass opened their Grand Haven gallery in January of 1865, and were credited with taking the 1868 bird's-eye view of Grand Haven reproduced in Historic Grand Haven and Ottawa County. Between 1864 and 1866 photographs selling for 25 cents or less were required to carry a two-cent revenue stamp, but William applied only a single one-cent stamp to some of his carte de visites. About 1867, William called himself an Artist and his studio a Picture Gallery. One of the stereo views "Photographed by Wm. Cass" was of the Cutler House in Grand Haven. "All kinds of Picture frames cheaper than any other place in the City. Negatives Preserved and duplicates can be had at any time." was printed on some of his mounts in the early 1880s. Later imprints included: "Art Photographer.... Children's Photographs and Bromide Portraits a Specialty." t

His father emigrated from France and Henry was born in Pennsylvania in October of 1842. He spent his early years at Philadelphia, and moved to Ann Arbor following the death of his father. His name was also spelled Casey and Cassy in Detroit directories, and all three names were listed in 1870. One Detroit listing included the designation (col'd), and Henry was enumerated as mulatto in the 1870 census. He boarded in 1870 and 1876 with Benjamin Chappee, who was one of Detroit's earliest black citizens and who had two children that spent portions of their careers in photography. A Lansing newspaper reported in the summer of 1876 that: "H. G. Cassey, formerly from Powelson's gallery, Detroit, is now engaged with G. W. Wood & Company. Mr. Cassey is one of the best retouchers in the state." Henry also gave lessons in French and other languages at Lansing. Cassey & Beardsley employed DeForest F. Gibson and Jean B. Louis as photographers in 1883, and Henry sold his Best Cabinets for $3.00 per dozen during December. The rooms over the Lansing National Bank at 101 Washington Avenue were called the Central Michigan Art Gallery by Cassey & Whitney, who made specialties of crayon portraits and large work and produced stereo views of the State Capitol and other subjects. In June of 1885 they placed in each of the legislative halls one of their charts with photographic likenesses of senators and representatives. In November of 1885 they produced a photographic album of the graduating class at Michigan Agricultural College. They employed John B. Louis as a photographer in 1885, Samuel S. Riley as a photographer in 1887 and George W. Rose as an artist in 1887. They recorded many aspects of the campus of Michigan Agricultural College and the dining room of the Reform School for Boys as cabinet photographs, and produced a composite of 1887 Michigan House of Representatives portraits in the same format. Both Cassey & Whitney and Cassey & Riley incorporated the official seal of the State of Michigan into the logo on the back of some cabinet mounts. Walter E. Laine was hired by Henry to manage his new system of taking portraits by electric light, the first in Michigan, and became associated with him as Cassey & Company. One light was used to illuminate the room while another threw a bluish tint on the back of a sheet of draughting paper against which the subject sat or stood. They had "Taken by Electric Light" printed on some of their cabinet mounts, were open every Tuesday and Saturday evening, and employed operator Clarence W. Wentworth in 1888. Other employees were photographers E. LeRoy Howard in 1889, Charles G. Eddington in 1891 and Eugene A. Phelps in 1892. Blanche Moses was a retoucher for Cassey & Riley in 1892. By October of 1888 the new operator at Cassey & Riley had discarded that "horrid head rest" and was especially successful with children's photos. They advertised in the fall of 1889: "For the finest Photographic Work go to CASSEY & RILEY, Over Lansing National Bank. Special Rates to Students. Out-Door Groups made on short notice." One of their cabinet photographs from "... Lansing and Charlotte, Mich." was a composite of 110 portraits of members of the 1889 Michigan House of Representatives. Cassey & Riley published an "Album of Class of 1890 of Michigan Agricultural College." Henry produced stereoscopic views of the capitol building and of the campus of Michigan Agricultural College. He was 75 years old when he died at Lansing on January 13, 1916, following a brief illness. He was survived by two nieces and a sister-in-law, and burial was in Mount Hope Cemetery.

Her father emigrated from England, her mother came from Ohio, and Martha Adeline Roe was born in Michigan in October of 1844. She was third of the four children of George and Asenath Roe. Martha married photographer Marvin Cathcart at Buchanan on August 21, 1867. She was often known as Addie, and was not listed in every gazetteer during the 1870s and 1880s. She was a widow working as a teacher and as a private stenographer in 1910. She was cared for during the seven months of her final illness by her adopted daughter, Miss Nellie M. Cathcart. Martha was receiving a widow's pension of $12.00 per month when she died on May 5, 1916.

His parents came from New York and New Jersey and Marvin was born in Indiana in January of 1827. By 1840 his mother, Peninah, Penenah or Pennina Cathcart, was a widow running a farm with the help of her five children, of which Marvin was the third. In 1860 he was identified as a literate artist with no real or personal property. He was 5 feet 11 inches tall with a light complexion, blue eyes and dark hair when he enlisted as a private in Company I of the 88th Indiana Infantry at Bristol on August 5, 1862. For six weeks he stood picket guard and camp guard, and then was assigned as a bugler. From severe exposure near Perryville, Kentucky, he contracted chronic diarrhea and by November 10, 1862, was in a hospital at Bowling Green, Kentucky. He was in a hospital at Nashville, Tennessee, from December 9 until he was discharged on February 16, 1863. Marvin and Miss Kate Fallon were married earlier but had no children, and were divorced in 1864. His studio was called a Picture Gallery in the gazetteer for 1867, and Cathcart's Art Place on some of his early card photograph mounts. He and 22-year-old Miss Martha Adeline Roe were married at Buchanan on August 21, 1867, and later adopted a daughter. He applied successfully for a pension in December of 1879, and applied for increases in July of 1890 and February of 1907. He was receiving $20.00 per month at the time of his death on January 20, 1909.

Nelson was born in New York State in March of 1836, a son of Thomas and Maria Cathcart, both natives of New York. He had at least one older brother as well as a younger sister and brother. Amanda was born in the state of New York in May of 1839, and she married Nelson about 1861. Etta, or Ettie, was born in Michigan in June of 1868, and was adopted by the Cathcarts sometime after 1880. Some carte de visite sized tintypes carried two cent revenue stamps and were held into their paper frames by pasters which were preprinted: "New Style Card Pictures executed and delivered in Twenty Minutes. N. H. Cathcart, New Chemical Process and Patent Multiplying Camera. Made only at the cor. Maumee & Winter Sts., opposite Lawrence Hotel, Adrian, Mich. For beauty, cheapness and durability, not surpassed. Pictures from $1.00 to $2.50 per doz." He also produced carte sized tintypes from Kearsley Street in Flint. Nelson was moving so often about 1880 that "N. H. Cathcart, _____, Mich. Negatives Preserved." was printed on his card photograph mounts. He attended the inaugural convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Chicago in August of 1880, and was on the first published list of PA of A members in May of 1881. He was in Milwaukee for the fourth annual PA of A convention in August of 1883. He was moving his photographic car from Perry to Morrice in April of 1884. In addition to the usual portraits, Nelson used the card format for photographic views of Fowlerville business frontage. The purchase by Julius I. Williams of an interest in Cathcart's Flint gallery was reported late in 1898. Nelson advertised nationally in the fall of 1907: "WANTED - ... an all-round workman, sober and neat...." Amanda was a widow by 1920, and still was sharing her home with Etta who had remained single.

George was born at Fresno in Coshocton County, Ohio, on September 8, 1888, the elder son of James and Victoria (Phillabaum) Caton. He was often identified by his middle name, Judson. Something happened to James in 1900, for on June 14 Judson and his brother Roy were in the Children's Industrial Home at Cleveland. A few days later Roy and his mother were with his maternal grandparents in White Eyes Township and Judson was with his paternal grandparents, George R. and Lucinda Caton, in the same township. Janet, later Jennie, was born in Michigan to a Scotch mother in 1892, and she married Judson about 1910. Their daughter Doris was born in Michigan in 1911 or 1912. Judson was of medium height and build in 1918, with grey eyes and black hair. He was sole proprietor of the Caton Photo Company through 1926, in 1935, and in most succeeding years. W. J. Gowanlock and George C. Shepperd were his partners from 1927 until 1934, and defined themselves as photo finishers. George C. Shepperd was again associated with the Caton Photo Company in 1937 and in 1940. G. Judson Caton was also president of the Concourse Camera Shop in 1939 and 1940. He was 71 years old at the time of his death in Detroit on September 25, 1959.

John was born in Michigan on May 14, 1874, eldest of the four children and only son of William and Josephine Ada Cave. He became a man of medium height and weight with hazel eyes and brown hair. His wife and children also were born in Michigan: Ida in 1872, Marion in 1905, Clarence about 1907, Marjorie in 1911 and John H. Junior in 1913. Clarence did not reach maturity. As a commercial photographer John offered general viewing, finishing for amateurs, copying and enlarging. "CAVE, 10 BAKER ST., Detroit, M." was printed on labels adhered inside the backs of 1¼ inch diameter pin-back buttons made from studio portraits. John copyrighted views of Rochester in 1900. He was a very prolific publisher of post card photographs, mainly views of southeastern Michigan places within 50 miles of Detroit, but including some places as much as 150 miles away. The printing on the back of some early postal views was a modest "J. H. CAVE, - DETROIT, MICH." or "Real Photo Cards - (Copyright Reserved) J. H. Cave, Detroit, Mich." Then his printing became bolder with "ALL RIGHTS RESERVED. J. H. Cave, 193 Theodore St., Detroit, Mich." or "REAL PHOTO CARD, Copyright Reserved. J. H. CAVE, 462 BERLIN ST., DETROIT, MICH." printed on the backs. Some cards were made from negatives on which "COPYR'T. APL'D FOR, J. H. CAVE, DET." had been lettered, or into which "PHOTOS BY J. H. CAVE, HIGHLAND PARK, MICH." had been scribed. "J. H. CAVE, Highland Park, Mich." was stamped on the back of a postal view of the court house at Corunna, while "GENUINE PHOTO - BROMIDE" was stamped on its face. "Photo by J. H. Cave" and "Paulding Co. Grows 'Some Corn'" were lettered on the negative of a postal photo of a motor truck loaded with three huge ears of corn on a business street. On the back of this card was printed: "WHAT IS YOUR TOWN (Or Locality) NOTED FOR? Do you excell in Corn, Hogs, Cattle, or what have you to be proud of? Send a Photo (or photo post card) of some view of interest (your main st., etc.) which could be worked up similar to this sample trick card and I will make up a design for your approval, without charge. Price of real photos: $2.50 per 100. Re-orders, $1.50 per 100. Special prices in quantities. Terms cash with order. J. H. Cave, Highland Park, Mich." Printed on the post card back of a canoeing scene at Belle Isle was this message: "REAL PHOTOS, $1.50 per 100, cash with order. Views from your own photos or negatives with fancy border, or with the view covering entire card, as you prefer. A line of Easter, Holiday Cards, etc., with views of local interest make exceptional sellers. Send for designs with space for your photos. Photo cards may be made from any photo or photo card, but original negatives are preferred. Special prices in quantities. - J. H. Cave, Highland Park, Mich." Some post card photographs had "Pub, by J. H. Cave, Photographer, North Detroit, Mich." printed on their backs, while others were printed from negatives on which "J. H. Cave, N. Detroit" had been lettered. John's 16-year-old namesake also was identified as a commercial photographer in 1930. John was 84 years old when he died in Detroit on September 9, 1958.

The Celery City View Company published a "LIFE OF CHRIST SERIES. Reproduced from Original Photos." The views are colored lithoprints mounted on flat gray cards. While the colors are somewhat garish, the scenes are more realistic and show more depth and detail than do most examples of this table-top genre. They also published a "COLORADO SERIES, Original Photographs." with individual legends lettered beneath the photographic prints. One example was "Indians at Albuquerque, N. M."

The Midland, Saginaw and Traverse City stereograph imprints seem to have been used interchangeably and simultaneously, rather than sequentially. The Midland imprint was used on stereo views of Midland, of the 1904 funeral of Perry Hannah and other scenes at Traverse City, and of Mackinac Island, St. Charles, St. Ignace, Sault Ste. Marie, Ishpeming, Marquette, Negaunee and Frankfort; also of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis in 1904, Park Place in New York City, and of humorous and sentimental subjects. The Saginaw label appeared on stereo views of Davison, Flushing, St. Ignace, Saginaw, Durand and humorous subjects. Traverse City stereographs included views of Harbor Springs, Harbor Point, Charlevoix, Petoskey, Traverse City, Mackinac Island and sentimental subjects as well as views of Arizona, California, Colorado and Missouri. "Published by Century Photo-View Co., Traverse City, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of photographs with legends printed on their negatives in small block letters. Besides views of Traverse City, these included scenes at Crystal Lake, Frankfort, South Frankfort and Thompsonville in Benzie County, and at Mesick in Wexford County. Many of these cards were postmarked during 1910. Cards with the same type of printed legends but without the back mark were common, and included views of a Knights of Pythias conclave at Traverse City on October 21, 1906, a Soldiers' Encampment there in September of 1907, and the decorations on Front Street for July 4, 1908. From 1919 through 1922, Frank P. Wright was manager of the company. In 1919 they advertised stereopticon lantern slides, Michigan views and photographs for illustrations. In 1922 it was educational, religious and advertising slides, projection equipment and theatre supplies. "CENTURY PHOTO-VIEW CO., TRAVERSE CITY, MICH." or "CENTURY PHOTO-VIEW CO., GRAND RAPIDS, MICH." was printed in gold on the black border surrounding the photographs of lantern slides. Some of these slides depicted birds, an excelsior plant, a cooperage plant, assembling barrels, a veneer mill, a shingle mill, a saw mill, tanbark outside a tannery, Michigan white pine - cut and burned, a log drive on the Betsie River, a banking ground, a lumber yard at Traverse City, the Piqua Handle Works at Thompsonville, and a poor farmer's homestead in Kentucky. Numbered views included 25c - A jam during a log drive on the Betsie River, 26a - Saw mill, boom of logs and lumber piles on the Saginaw River, 26d - Loading steam barge with lumber at Empire, 10313 - Wood yard and charcoal-chemical plant at Cadillac, 10513 - Rollways at Boardman Lake in Traverse City, and 10521 - Train load of hard wood. Some of the views were nicely hand colored. "Century Photo-View Co., Grand Rapids, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of photographs postmarked from 1923 to 1926, and was stamped on the backs of others along with "Sample Card, No. _____" Descriptions were printed on the cards in various styles, usually on the face at the top or beneath the picture, of scenes in Kent, Leelanau, Newaygo and Osceola Counties. At the top of a 15 by 6 inch heavy black card was posted a label advertising: "Set No. 2. Genuine Photo View Post Cards, Three Cards - 10c. Published by CENTURY PHOTO VIEW CO., Grand Rapids, Mich." Below the label were mounted three post card photographs of scenes in the Michigan National Guard Camp at Grayling in Crawford County. These cards had captions press printed below the image in the white border surrounding it. Cards of scenes at Camp Grayling in the identical format were mailed in July or early in August of 1929, 1930, 1931, 1932, 1933 and 1934, and carried no identification of the maker.

Cyrus was born in Maine in 1843, apparently the only child of Samuel W. and Susan F. Chadbourne. He was recruited by Simon Wing to staff one of his growing network of photograph galleries. On the back of a card photograph beneath an engraving of a four lens camera is printed: "WING'S MULTIPLYING CAMERA, Secured by Southworth's reissued patent, dated Sept. 25, 1860, extended April 10, 1869, and Wing's patents, dated Dec. 4, 1860, and May 26, 1868. Legally used only at our Rooms, 23 FRONT ST., MONROE, MICH. Just the thing for quick working with children and others who cannot sit still, and doing best work at low prices. Every customer can rely upon the most respectful and kind attention. C. CHADBOURN, Operator." E. J. Phippen either preceded or succeeded Chadbourne as operator of the Wing Gallery in Monroe. Anna was born in Maine about 1849, and she married Cyrus in 1874. Their sons were born in Wisconsin, Franklin in 1835 or early in 1836 and Percy seven years later. The continuity of working dates in Wisconsin is based upon some assumptions.

His father came from Virginia and Charles was born in Ohio in August of 1849, eldest of the six children of John W. and Clara A. Chaffin. By 1880 his mother was a widow and his three brothers were working on the North Star Township farm for her. He was a widower with a 17-year-old daughter in 1900. His daughter, Bessie, married Henry H. Wright about 1904, and Henry seems to have taken over the farm work. In his mid to late fifties, Charles was one of the oldest individuals to take up photography professionally that I have noted. "Centre St., North Star, C. M. Chaffin, Photographer" was scribed into the negative of a post card photograph postmarked on July 19, 1907. "Harry Gulick Barn Raising, May 13, 1915. Photo by C. M. Chaffin, Ithaca." was lettered on the negative of another postal photo. "C. M. CHAFFIN, PHOTOGRAPHER, ITHACA, MICH." was stamped and "Gratiot Co Teachers' Institute" was written on the back of the 8 by 10 inch mount of a 4 ½ by 7 ½ photograph of almost eighty adults posed in front of a school building.

His parents came from Virginia and Ohio, and Theodore was born in Michigan in April of 1859, third of the six children of John W. and Clara A. Chaffin. Her father emigrated from Germany, Delia was born in New York in July of 1862, and she married Theodore about 1879. Their two daughters were born in Michigan: Clellia in April of 1881 and Ethel in April of 1883. By 1910 Theodore was a widower, his daughters were gone, and a 14-year-old foster daughter was sharing his home. Chaffin's name and address were stamped on the backs of cabinet and slightly larger portrait mounts, and on the back of the 8 by 10 and 9 by 12 inch mounts of 5 by 8 photographs of a barn demolished by a tornado and various logging and social events. Theodore married a widow named Cora and returned to farming in Washington Township a few miles south of his former location.

Charles was born in England on March 31, 1875, immigrated in 1892, and by 1918 had declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States. He was tall and slender with dark blue eyes and dark brown hair. Anna Rennick was born in Canada in 1875, and she married Charles about 1901. Their daughter Wilma was born in Michigan in December of 1909. The change in address during 1920 was due to revision of the Detroit numbering system, and not to relocation. After 1927, his place of business was often called the West Warren Photo Studio and Gift Shop. The metal back of two-inch round mirrors advertised the "West Warren Photo Studio and Gift Shop. Dwight's father, John M. Chambers, came from New York and maintained a photographic gallery from before 1880 until 1898 at Bloomington, Wisconsin. He married a Wisconsin girl named Elmira Jennie (something), and their six children were born in Wisconsin. Wallace was born in August of 1862, and is the subject of another entry. Then Emeline, Helen, Laura and Caroline were born between 1864 and 1874. Finally Dwight was born in February of 1879, and grew up in his father's gallery. Stasia, sometimes called Eleanor, was born in Wisconsin in April of 1882 and married Dwight about 1902. His purchase of a studio at Jackson was reported early in 1903. He and Stasia soon returned to Wisconsin, where their children were born: Donald in 1904 and Ruth in 1905. Much of his time in Asheville he had a branch studio at Arden. In 1935 he had his son, John Donald Chambers, as an assistant and his son in law, Carl E. Clark, as a partner. J. D. Chambers was in charge of the Arden studio in 1940 and 1941.

Chamblin had his Cheap Picture Gallery, probably a photographic car, parked somewhere else in Jackson before he moved to Jackson Street in October of 1863. He sold to John Wesley Excell in 1864, and succeeded photographer Loran H. Geer in the Empire Block in May of 1865. He refitted these rooms "... in elegant style for doing all kinds of Photographing and Ambrotyping." Lewis C. Chamblin was a sewing machine agent in 1870 at Dixon, Illinois. He was born in Ohio about 1842, and his wife Mary was born in Michigan at about the same time. Their son Charles was born in Michigan in 1859 or early in 1860.

Thomas was born in Ohio in September of 1834. Hattie was born in Ohio to English parents about 1840 and by 1860 she was married to Thomas. A Kalamazoo newspaper announced that Chamblin's Palace of Art would open on Monday, December 24, 1860, over Parker & Brother's hat store in the Champion Block, selling warranted photographs and ambrotypes. Thomas was assessed as a Jackson individual in May of 1864, while Excell & Chamblin were assessed there in October of 1864. The Chamblin's son Wilbur was born in Michigan in November of 1861, and his brother Gaylord was born there four years later but did not survive to maturity. Their daughters were born in Illinois: Julia in the summer of 1867 and then Stella and Mabel between 1874 and 1877. Thomas was a widower by 1900, when he was living in Riverside with the family of his son Wilbur.

His parents came from Ohio and Cassius was born in Michigan on July 25, 1875, the son of John and Jane Chandler. 1 3
His two sisters were born here between 1868 and 1871. Her father emigrated from England, her mother came from Rhode Island, and Isabella Ketchum was born in Michigan in 1880 or 1881. She married Cassius about 1901, and their three daughters were born in Michigan: Carol in 1904, Blanche in 1906 and Leola in 1913 or 1914. Cassius had become an average sized man with blue eyes and brown hair, and he seems to have maintained a home for his family up in Benzie County for a couple of decades while he was working in Flint. For the 1920 census he was enumerated on January second at Benzonia and three days later at Flint, where he was boarding with his sister Amy and her family. At this time Isabella was the photographer and he was a carpenter. In 1930 he and Isabella both were enumerated as photographers in a gallery, and they had their family together at Flint. Carol was a single school teacher, Leola was a teenager and Blanche (who had married and divorced) brought her three-year-old son Webster to live with her parents. 1

His parents came from Ohio, and Charlie was born in Michigan on October 13, 1873. He was the son of Martin D. and Jane A. (Hall) Chandler, and the brother of the Grace Chandler profiled below. His first marriage took place about 1891, and the bride was Miss Lottie Woodworth, born in Michigan in July of 1875 to Mr. and Mrs. Jasper A. Woodworth. She gave birth to Leora in March of 1895 and to Roscoe in April of 1898. Lottie also was enumerated as a photographer in 1900. That Charles was establishing a gallery at Fort Wayne, where he had moved from Kalamazoo, was reported in the summer of 1901. Lottie and the children stayed in Kalamazoo, where she remarried and became proprietor of the Chandler Studio. Charles' second wife was born in Michigan in 1887, and she became Mrs. Ida Belle Chandler about 1906. The Milwaukee listing was for C. W. Chandler. Charles was stout and 5 feet 4½ inches tall with blue eyes and brown hair in 1918, and still was married to Ida Belle in 1930.

Grace was born on February 28, 1879, and was the daughter of Martin D. and Jane A. (Hall) Chandler. She had an older sister Effie and a younger sister Ila, as well as her brother Charles reported upon above. She married Charles E. Horn on October 6, 1899, and became well known as Mrs. Grace Chandler Horn. She and Charles were divorced in August of 1915, and she married James H. De Pue in March of 1917. Following their divorce in September of 1922, Grace reverted to her maiden name. "The Grace Chandler Studio" was printed on 11 by 14 inch mats with 6 by 9½ inch openings for photographs, one of which was of a large group of people at the Bishop Reunion. In California she visited San Francisco and went to photograph the redwoods, and was associated with the photographer Grace Armstrong, also from Michigan. She experienced the Santa Barbara earthquake, and planned to open a studio at 31 East Micheltorena in Santa Barbara. Her studio in Los Angeles featured "Portraits, Pictorial Photography and Indian Pageantry." She spent forty years in California mental institutions prior to her death on February 12, 1967, from congestive heart failure and chronic brain syndrome. Oscar was born in New York State in September of 1869, the son of John E. and Arvilla Chaney. His sister was born two years later and given the intriguing name Leafie Belle. He grew up on the family farm and by 1900 had a farm of his own near Conway. Addie was born in Michigan in July of 1869, married Oscar about 1896, and gave birth to Ruth in July of 1898. She still was married in 1910, was running the farm and raising Ruth, but there was no sign of Oscar. Addie sold the farm, got a divorce, and stayed with her daughter. Ruth was teaching in a rural school in Inverness Township of Cheboygan County in 1920, and in a public school in Milan Township down in Monroe County in 1930. Oscar turned up in California in 1920 married to a lady named Rose. She was born in Michigan to parents from New York about 1880, and was working as a restaurant waitress in 1920. By 1930 Oscar was retired, but Rose was doing clerical work for a building construction firm.

His parents came from Pennsylvania and Michigan, and William was born in Wisconsin in 1876. Her parents came from Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, and Ethel was born in Wisconsin in 1881. Their four sons were born in Michigan: Frederick in 1909, William about 1912, Raymond in November of 1915, and John in August of 1919. William was having a building moved to the corner of Sellar and Sophie Streets in Bessemer to be fitted up as a photograph gallery, but in the meantime intended to open his gallery in a tent and be doing business by May 20, 1902. His gallery was closed for several weeks due to the final illness and death of William's brother in the Oklahoma Territory, but opened for business on December 8, 1902. William contracted for the construction of a new building in Wakefield, and opened his branch gallery there late in April of 1903. Some of the photographs of Bessemer and Wakefield reproduced in The Gogebic Range about 1903 were by W. H. Chaney. The handsome Children's Day decorations at the Methodist Church and all participants in the two programs were photographed by William in June of 1905. Miss Harriet E. Pomeroy was an experienced photographer when she was hired by William in August of 1905. A Miss Thomas of Bessemer had charge of the Wakefield gallery on Sunday, October 27, 1907. William's galleries were closed during his absence from Bessemer from February 4 to March 1, 1908, and during the last three weeks of October in 1911. He announced in June of 1910 that his Wakefield gallery would be open every Sunday in the forenoon only. In August of 1922 William was fixing up his new gallery whenever he could spare time from finishing pictures. He was being kept so busy that he had little time to move his outfit from his tent into the new building.

Daisie was born in Michigan in November of 1872, the daughter of Henry C. and Frances E. Chapell. Both of her parents were born in Michigan, but all four of her grandparents came from New York State. That she had leased a lot in Stockbridge on which she was building a studio was reported in May of 1902, and the opening of her studio was reported one month later. "Greetings from STOCKBRIDGE, Mich. - Daisie B. Chapell, Photographer." was artistically lettered so as to take up the entire negative of a post card photograph, and the calligraphy was enhanced with small photos of about 250 babies and youngsters. "The Season's Greetings From Daisie B. Chapell, Photographer. Stockbridge, Mich. Portraits, Copying, Views, Frames, Enlarging" was printed on the post card back of a photo of the Soldiers Monument and Stockbridge Town Hall. Daisie remained single and lived with her parents through 1910, but by 1920 she was providing a home for her aging parents and in 1930 she was doing the same for her widowed mother.

"M. W. CHAPIN, Stanton, Mich." was stamped on the backs of some of a series of rural scenes mounted as stereo pairs, but which seem to be two prints from the same negative. Merrick W. Chapin was born in Michigan in March of 1858, and in 1880 was a clerk in Stanton for his banker brother, Clarence W. Chapin. About 1891 Merrick married a school teacher named Della who was born in Michigan in April of 1864. By 1900 they had moved to Toledo, Ohio, where Merrick found a job with the post office and Della continued to teach through 1910. Merrick worked his way up in the post office, and in 1920 was superintendent of the money order department.

His father came from Connecticut and Roy was born in Lansing on February 23, 1880, second of the three children of Edward Cornelius Chapin and Ella Rose (King) Chapin. His brother Cornelius was born in Lansing on April 28, 1877, and his sister Maybelle was born there on October 25, 1882. Roy turned his early interest in amateur photography into a profitable business by selling the photographs he took of people and buildings. He was reporting early morning temperatures at an elevation of one thousand feet to the Weather Bureau by flying a kite equipped with a thermometer to that altitude. Roy sold magazines and took on many other odd jobs, and most of his earnings went into buying photographic equipment and supplies. After he graduated from high school in June of 1897, he worked full-time for the Weather Bureau until he enrolled at the University of Michigan in February of 1899. A test run in a curved-dash Oldsmobile in April of 1901 convinced Roy that he should quit school and go to work for the manufacturer. Soon he was hired by Ransom Olds as a demonstrator or test driver. He learned to operate much of the machinery in the Detroit factory during a strike in the spring of 1901. Roy drove a curved-dash Oldsmobile the 820 miles from Detroit to New York City via Canada in the fall of 1901, arriving in the middle of the New York Automobile Show. This well-publicized durability run generated a flood of orders for Oldsmobile. Early catalogs and advertisements included illustrations from photographs taken by Roy of factory operations, car parts and finished cars. Roy was the charismatic leader of the group of ambitious Oldsmobile employees that eventually founded the Hudson Motor Car Company. The group included Howard Coffin, James Brady, Frederick Bezner, and Roscoe Jackson. Roy arranged with Edwin Ross Thomas, manufacturer of the popular Thomas Flyer automobile, to create the E. R. Thomas-Detroit Company. This company produced a mid-priced car designed by Howard Coffin which was sold by established Thomas dealers as a companion to the expensive Thomas Flyer. Hugh Chalmers was a super-salesman who had recently resigned from National Cash Register Company when he was approached by the partners in the E. R. Thomas-Detroit Company. E. R. Thomas amicably resigned the presidency in favor of Chalmers, and the firm was renamed the Chalmers-Detroit Company. Chalmers had complete control of selling and advertising automobiles, while the managers of all other functional divisions reported to Roy Chapin. Howard coffin designed a lower-priced automobile which was a great success when manufactured and sold by the Chalmers-Detroit Company. Thomas and Chalmers each owned one-third of this successful company, so if either or both of them sold their stock Roy and his partners could lose control of their future. This situation inspired them to establish the Hudson Motor Car Company. Joseph L. Hudson, founder of Detroit's major department store and uncle of Roscoe Jackson's wife, became the largest investor in the company, though Chalmers, Chapin, Jackson, Coffin, Brady and Bezner had comparable holdings. Chapin, Coffin and Bezner sold their stock in the Chalmers-Detroit Company to Hugh Chalmers in December of 1909, and purchased his stock in the Hudson Motor Car Company. One month later Roy resigned from the Chalmers-Detroit Company and became president of the Hudson Motor Car Company. Her father came from South Carolina and Inez Tiedeman was born in Savannah, Georgia, on February 16, 1891, first of the two children of George Washington Tiedeman and Sarah Floride (Shivers) Tiedeman. She married Roy at Savannah on November 4, 1914, and their children were born in Michigan: Roy in February of 1916, Joan in February of 1917, John about 1920, Sara about 1921, Daniel in October of 1926, and Marian in January of 1930. The introduction of the Super-Six engine in 1916, the Essex line of lower-priced cars in 1919, and the first American closed-body car with a moderate price in 1921, kept Hudson a leader in the automotive industry. Roy Chapin was a millionaire by 1910, and in 1915 and 1916 explored several merger plans with other successful automobile manufacturers with a view to turning his Hudson stock into cash, forgetting management worries, and enjoying his wealth. Early in 1923 he moved from president to chairman of the board, withdrawing from day-to-day operations but remaining the public spokesman for Hudson and involved with strategic decisions. The introduction of the Terraplane in 1932 helped to pull the Hudson Motor Car Company through the depression, but again in May of 1933 Roy Chapin became president and returned the company to profitability. Roy died from pneumonia in Detroit on February 25, 1936. As well as a visionary automotive pioneer, Roy was remembered as a leader in the Michigan Good Roads Association, a founder of the Lincoln Highway Association, chairman of the Highways Transport Committee of the Council on National Defense during World War I, and Secretary of Commerce in President Hoover's cabinet from August of 1932 until March of 1933. Inez died in Highland Park on April 19, 1957.

The Chapman Brothers of Stanton photographed the Union School at Mount Pleasant in June of 1885, and were invited to a dinner at Mount Pleasant in September of 1887, after which they photographed the local W.R.C. and then the G.A.R. From a range of card and cabinet mounts it seems probable that the Chapman Brothers worked in Stanton from the mid 1880s until the turn of the century. Some cabinet photos were from "Lakeview and Mecosta, Mich."

Frank was born in New York in November of 1858, Alice was born there in December of 1859, and they married about 1885. Their children were born in Michigan: Glace in February of 1888, Vera in July of 1890, Verne in May of 1892, and Merton in April of 1897. Their younger daughter Vera was an invalid in 1900 and died before 1910. Frank succeeded Isaac O. Chapman in Stanton, and some of the many cabinet sized photographs marked "Chapman, Stanton, Mich." were undoubtedly his work. "E. F. CHAPMAN, Stanton, Mich." was stamped on the back of postal photographs, including studio portraits of infants and adults, three boys and a man with musical instruments, and the Stanton "Maroons" basketball team of 1914. By that time their son Vern seems to have opened his own photography studio down in Lake Odessa.

He was listed as Ira O. Chapman in Ionia and once in Lakeview at the turn of the century. He was born in New York State in May of 1852. His first wife's parents were born there, but Eunice was born in Michigan about 1853. He reproduced a daguerreotype or ambrotype of a logging camp and an engraving of the Montcalm County court house, both as card photographs from Stanton. One of his Stanton stereo views shows the court house standing unharmed, while in the foreground are business buildings reduced to rubble by a fire. Others depict rural scenes and interiors, as well as some views of Denver, Colorado. Many of his mounts locate his Stanton gallery in the Gardner Block, where he also did job printing. In 1880 he and Eunice both were enumerated as artists, and he supplemented his photography as a printer and proprietor of the Stanton Hornet, an independent daily newspaper. He was succeeded in Stanton by E. Frank Chapman, and in Lakeview by Herbert P. Chapman. About 1890 he married a lady named Hattie who was born in New York in September of 1868 to parents from Vermont and Pennsylvania. Hattie gave birth to Virgil in August of 1892, and by 1910 she was a widow.

D. Fred Charlton was born in 1856 and raised in Wratham, Kent, England. He received some training in civil engineering before immigrating in the late 1870s to Windsor, Ontario. His eldest son Ted was born in Michigan in March of 1886, and Fred seems to have lost his first wife. Miss Alice Grylls was born in England to an Irish mother in January of 1861, crossed the ocean in 1884, and married Fred in 1887. Their sons Cecil and Seymour were born in Michigan in October of 1889 and December of 1892. They soon moved to Marquette where Fred opened a branch office for John Scott & Company of Detroit and was the supervising architect for the construction of the Marquette State Prison and the first building of the Michigan College of Mines at Houghton. He was the first professional architect to reside permanently in the Upper Peninsula, and by 1890 was in business for himself. He was elected a fellow of the American Institute of Architects in 1893, when he designed the Michigan exhibit for the Mines and Mining Building of the Columbian Exposition at Chicago. Fred designed several additions to the prison and six buildings added to the Houghton campus between 1893 and 1908, five buildings of the Northern State Normal School at Marquette between 1900 and 1915, and 30 buildings of the Newberry State Hospital over a period of 22 years. The business structures, the superintendent's house and the school in the model company town of Gwinn were designed about 1907. His firm was responsible for 426 buildings, including 45 for the state, 20 for counties and towns, 82 schools, 11 banks, 7 theatres, 7 churches, several hotels, 3 libraries, 221 commercial or industrial buildings and 30 houses. Fred was an accomplished water colorist and an avid photographer. There is a 4½ by 7 inch photograph of a drawing of the Northern State Normal School in the Library of Congress that he copyrighted in 1914. He retired from active architectural practice in 1918, and opened a photo enlarging shop one year later that operated until 1937. He died at his home in Marquette in 1941, and interment was in a local cemetery.

His parents came from Vermont and New York, and John was born in Ohio in 1851, last of the four children of Hiram J. and Rhoda Chase. In 1860 he was living next door to ambrotypist Edward S. Wykes. Theodocia was born in Pennsylvania to parents from New York in May of 1846, and she married John about 1870. Their daughter Gascoyne was born in Illinois a year or so later, and then Rhoda, Almira, Mortimer and Emery were born in Michigan between 1874 and February of 1881. Theodocia divorced John, and she and her younger son were living in Grand Rapids in 1900. Her parents emigrated from Ireland, Catherine was born in New York in 1870 or 1871, and she became John's second wife about 1902. John was manufacturing the Chase Electric Railway Signal in 1900 and 1901. Some studio portraits on post card stock are from the "Electric Little Photo Company, 106 Monroe St., Grand Rapids, Mich., J. W. Chase, prop." and from the "Electric Little Photo Studio, J. W. Chase, prop., 106 Monroe St., Grand Rapids, Mich." On the post card backs of other studio portraits was printed: "ELECTRIC PHOTO STUDIO. Post Cards a Specialty. Old No. 106, New No. 59 Monroe Avenue, Grand Rapids, Mich. The Furniture City." John was 68 years old when he died in Grand Rapids on December 5, 1919.

His father came from New York and Lothario was born in Michigan on October 31, 1878, the only son of Edward M. and Lenora Chase. His sisters were born here, Jennie in November of 1881 and Blanch in June of 1884. He was known as Ray as an adult, was medium sized with grey eyes and auburn hair, and was married three times. The name of his first wife has not turned up, but she was born in Michigan and married Ray in 1899. She gave birth to Clyde and Lothario Rolland here between 1901 and 1905. Hazel was born in Michigan to parents from Pennsylvania in 1887 or 1888, married Ray about 1906, and gave birth to Queenie in 1907, Marion in November of 1909, Milo in 1911, Philip in 1915, and Albert in November of 1916. Ray was a "Jeweler and tower clock repairer. Musical instruments and photographic views. 133 Mich. Ave., North Boyne." in 1906. "Boyne City High School, 1910. Chase." was scribed into the negative of a postal photograph postmarked early in February of 1910. Another card was postmarked one month later made from the same negative, but "GLENN" had been scribed into the negative by a different hand. "BURNING OF THE NEW BOYNE HOTEL, MAR. 7, 1910. Chase." was lettered on the negative of another post card photo, and "Burning of 2,000,000 ft lumber June 23, 1911, at W. H. White Company. No. 1 Mill, Boyne City, Mich. - Photo by Ray Chase" was written on still another postal negative. Ray was living alone in 1918, and was a widower and one of four roomers with a Lansing family in 1920. Queenie, Marion and Philip had been adopted by John M. and Alida J. Chase and were living in Jackson. Milo and Albert were living in Owosso with the family of Frank and Jennie Danielson. Fay was born in Michigan in 1888 or early in 1889, and she married Ray about 1927. In 1930 they were sharing their home with Clyde and his wife and two very young daughters as well as Rolland and Milo who had remained single. It is not clear whether Ray was the proprietor or an employee of the optical shop at this time.

His father came from Vermont and Newell was born in New York in July of 1855, the third and last child of Samuel W. and Sarah Chase. His sisters Sarah and Mary were born between 1845 and 1847. Ella was born in Wisconsin to parents from New York in April of 1859, and she married Newell about 1876. Their daughters were born twenty years apart, Lula in February of 1878 and Ruth in August of 1898. Phillip B. Smith became Newell's partner about 1888. Ruth had passed on by 1910, but both of the girls were living with Newell. He worked as a photographer from his Mechanicsburg home in 1910 and 1920. Ruth still was sharing his home in 1920.

Samuel was born at Cleveland, Ohio, on June 19, 1847, and was fifteen years old when he enlisted at Hastings as a fifer in Company F of the 21st Michigan Infantry. He was mustered into the army on September 3, 1862, and apparently served more as a drummer than as a fifer. He was captured on December 31 during the battle of Stone River, and was paroled at Murfreesboro, Tennessee, on January 2, 1863. Early in May of 1863 he was sent to Camp Chase in Ohio, but seems to have spent most of the war with his company and regiment. Samuel was honorably discharged at Detroit on August 15, 1865, but was not officially mustered out until October 17, 1866. He and Miss Lettie Elizabeth Follands were married in Grand Rapids on December 29, 1869, and their sons Franklin, George, Roy and Samuel were born between July of 1871 and August of 1880. Their daughter Mabel was born on December 15, 1887. Samuel began receiving a pension of twelve dollars per month in August of 1890 for the disability due to the piles and rheumatism that had afflicted him since 1863. His wife died on November 15, 1901, and for a brief period in 1906 Samuel moved to Holland, Michigan. "S. J. Chase's Gallery of Art, 29 Canal St...." was printed on the back of a post card studio portrait of a child with a toy telephone. Samuel died in Grand Rapids on May 24, 1918. t 1

In 1860 Eveline Chatfield, his mother, and her four children were living with the family of Alfred and Electa Whitcomb, who probably were her parents. The family was split up, and in 1870 Chester and his sister Isabelle were working on the farm of another Whitcomb, possibly an uncle. Alice was born in New York in August of 1859, and she married Chester about 1877. Their children were born in Michigan: Chester in March of 1879, Douglas in May of 1881, Nora in September of 1883, and Dorothy in December of 1888. By 1920 Alice was a widow living in Chicago with the family of her younger daughter and working as a practical nurse. |      | 1111111111 |

Edmund was born May 13, 1885, at Paincourt, Ontario, near the middle of the three sons and three daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert P. Cheff. Mrs. Cheff never spoke anything but French. Hubert Cheff was a carpenter, and the family moved to River Rouge about 1897. One of Edmund's early jobs was as cook for the fifteen man crew of a boat. He learned the photographic business as an apprentice in Detroit, probably in the studio of D. D. Spellman. In 1907 he married Emma Marion, who was born in Detroit in 1886 and worked at the toothpick factory near their home at 9 Cicotte Avenue. His studio was in a large room about 20 by 30 feet on the second floor of their home, with an adjacent dark room. The house was next to the alley behind the commercial buildings facing Jefferson Avenue, and access to the studio was along this alley and up an outside stairway at the rear of the house. They already had two daughters and two sons in 1913 when Roy was born, so the studio on the ground floor of the wooden Jacobson Building at 3161 West Jefferson Avenue at Leroy Street was opened, and the photographic rooms on Cicotte Avenue were converted into living space. They later had two more sons. Edmund and Emma liked to dance, and were good enough to win some dancing contests. Edmund enjoyed playing with his children, and liked to fish and hunt. He usually took a trip north during deer season. He was very even tempered and was a meticulous dresser who always worked in a suit and tie. You could set your watch by his adherence to the same schedule throughout his career. He was in the studio from 8:00 until noon and from 12:30 until 8:00, Monday through Saturday, and from noon until 5:00 on Sunday. The return address on some of Edmund's business envelopes was: "E. A. CHEFF, Photographer, 3161 Jefferson Ave. West, River Rouge, Michigan - Photographs, Framing, Enlarging and Viewing. Flashlights of Parties and Amateur Finishing." By 1918 Edmund had formally declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States. Most addresses in Detroit and River Rouge changed during 1920, while Edmund's studio remained in the same location on West Jefferson. This studio had a reception room, two dressing rooms, waiting rooms, the operating room and the dark room. His largest prints were 16 by 20 inches. He had a panoramic camera, but it was not used much once wide angle lenses had been introduced. An artistic cousin was paid to paint backgrounds. School pictures were a mainstay of the business, and Edmund did work regularly at St. Andrew & Benedict in Detroit, St. Francis in Ecorse, St. Henry in Lincoln Park, River Rouge High School and Our Lady of Lourdes in River Rouge. During prohibition, if the federal agents raided a still or impounded a vehicle used to transport booze, Edmund would be called in to photographically document the evidence. He was employed by the River Rouge and Ecorse Police Departments to take identification photographs and was on call any time of the day or night to record the scenes of murders and robberies. He had the explosives handling license required in order to use photographic flash powder. He took many photographs of weddings, athletic groups, boat launchings at the ship yards in River Rouge, and publicity pictures for E & B Beer. Roy, the only one of the Cheff children that could work with his father, began about 1935, and started retouching about 1937. Some retouching was done on every portrait. About this time the Cheffs moved into a smaller house at 11 East Cicotte Avenue, and their daughter moved her growing family into the place next door which had been their home for thirty years. Roy was severely wounded in Europe during the war, and went through a lengthy hospitalization before he could return to the business of which he was identified as the proprietor in 1947 and in many succeeding years. Edmund continued to participate in the photographic business, but gradually left more and more of the operations to Roy, and began spending six to eight weeks of each winter in Florida. His health started to deteriorate about 1951, and he was 68 years old when he died at home on September 2, 1953. He was survived by one daughter, five sons and his wife, Emma, who lived until 1964.

The CHELSEA FLASH LIGHT PISTOL was manufactured in two versions: No. 1 was priced at $2.50, and No. 2 at $1.50. It had the hammer, trigger and grip of a pistol, with a flash pan in place of the barrel. The company was capitalized at $25,000 and manufactured "... Aluminum Belt Skirt Supporters; Beef Steak Tenderer and Fish Scalers; dripless Tea and Coffee Strainers; Diamond Knife, Shear and Scissors Sharpener; Combined Salt and Pepper Shakers" and other "... General Novelties, Hardware and Stationery Supplies." In 1903 the company put out a brochure on "The Welch Tourist" gasoline touring car. H. S. Holmes was president, W. J. Knapp was vice president, J. D. Watson was secretary and treasurer, and Allie R. Welch, inventor of the Flash Light Pistol, was manager of the company.

1. A copy of the Welch Tourist brochure was offered in 1995 in Catalog 80 by John K. King Books of Detroit, Michigan.

Alonzo was born in New York State on August 27, 1837, the son of Eliphalet and Lavina (Nichols) Cheney. Mary E. Hawley was born in Ohio in 1840 or 1841, and she was married to Alonzo by 1860. Their daughter Estella was born in 1861. Alonzo's partner in 1863 was Harvey Baker, and in 1867 was Francis M. Holly, though their most common back mark reads "Photographed by Cheney & Holley, over City Book Store, Lansing, Mich." Mary died in 1867, and Alonzo soon married her sister Rosana, who was born in Ohio in 1843. Their daughters were born in Eaton County: Lena on February 26, 1868, and Minnie (later Lulu) on December 2, 1869. Alonzo moved in 1868 from Lansing to Charlotte, where Cheney & Richardson did their photography over their book store. They dealt in books, stationery, wall paper, curtain paper, clocks, jewelry, silver ware, oval and square picture frames, looking glasses, hats, caps, furs, gloves, paper collars, and a full line of gent's furnishing goods, notions, &c. Some Charlotte card photos are from "Cheney's Golden Star Gallery, No. 125 Main Street,..." and others are "From the Ground Floor Gallery, south of Post Office...." Cheney & Christmas were succeeded by Edwin A. Chapman in the Star Gallery at Charlotte. In their Lansing gallery in 1887 they employed Miss Lena Cheney as a clerk and Mrs. Cora Christmas as a retoucher. In the spring of 1888 they were using a new cabinet card, for which Alonzo had made a patent application, and the new instantaneous dry tintype plates for nice pictures at the same old prices. In the fall of 1889 Cheney & Lawson advertised in a Michigan Agricultural College newsletter: "WILL IT PAY to give $3.00 per dozen for Cabinet Photographs, when we Positively Guarantee just as good for $2.00 as can be had in the city of Lansing. Special rates to all connected with the M. A. C. We solicit a trial, which will be Free of Charge if not Perfectly Satisfactory. Cheney & Lawson." Late in 1891 Alonzo began offering lessons in retouching. Some of his employees in 1892 were Maurie P. Curtis as retoucher, Harry A. Edgerly as photo printer and Mattie Warfle as clerk. He was succeeded in Lansing about 1895 by Hamilton Bigelow. One source states that Alonzo died in Lansing on July 5, 1892. If so, someone kept the photographic business going in his name for three years.

His father came from New York and Willis was born in Michigan in July of 1861, the only child of David and Eunice Cheney. Kate was born in New York in April of 1858, and she married Willis about 1883. The marriage lasted for more than seventeen years but produced no children. Her parents came from New York, Myra was born in Michigan in 1872 or 1873, and she married Willis about 1906. Their sons were born in Michigan: Ludell in 1910 and Paul in 1912. Some Jonesville cabinet photographs by Willis were of outdoor scenes. He used 4 by 7 inch mounts which were gray on one side and bright orange on the other. When the images were on the gray side, the back was usually stamped "W. L. CHENEY, Jonesville, Mich. Photographer." When the images (either a single landscape print or a stereoscopic pair) were on the orange side, "Photo by Cheney, Jonesville, M." was blind stamped along the lower edge of the mounts. The same ink stamp and blind stamp were used on buff mounts 5 by 7 ½, 5 by 8 and 5 ¼ by 8 ½ inches. The prints included bird's-eye and ground level views of the business district, the fire hall and engine, a locomotive and many scenes along the St. Joseph River and the mill race. Willis and Myra were living in 1910 on the farm of his widowed father and sharing the farm chores. George W. Tamlyn had only recently acquired the Mason photograph gallery in 1911 when he required a few days off in which to get married. "... W. L. Cheney attended to the business while Mr. Tamlyn was away."

He came to America with his family in 1865, grew up on the family farm and became a naturalized citizen of the United States. Her parents emigrated from Belgium, Jennie was born in Wisconsin in May of 1870, and she married Charles about 1891. By 1910 she was being called Jane. Their daughter Mable was born in Michigan in March of 1892 and the other three were born in Wisconsin: Grace in December of 1893, Lillian in March of 1897, and Alyce in 1900. For a while, Charles' gallery in Iron Mountain was opposite the M & N Depot. The three younger girls had jobs and still were at home in 1920, and Grace was living with her parents in 1930 and dress making from their home.

Roydon was born in Vermont in June of 1884, the son of Solomon B. and Charlotte Chickering. His only sibling, Mabel, was born in March of 1879. Myrel was born in New York State in 1894 or early in 1895, and she married Roydon about 1915. Their first child was born in New York in 1916 and was identified as a daughter named Roberta in 1920, and as a son named Robert in 1930. They had three sons born in Michigan: Glenn in 1921 or early in 1922, Donald in May of 1925, and Bertrand in July of 1927. Roydon was called a commercial traveler in 1930. "Roydon Chickering, 2052 Collingwood, Detroit, Michigan Townsend 7-5627" was printed on hundreds of gray curved-mount stereo mounts otherwise identical to those produced by the Keystone View Company of Meadville, Pennsylvania. The views are mostly exteriors and interiors of Detroit homes and businesses and seem to date from the 1930s through World War II. They include views of a proud man in his motorboat and a skinny Stanley Cup hockey trophy.

Benjamin was the son of Gardiner and Sally Chidester, and was born about 1825 in New York State. 17-year-old Clara B. Chidester and 16-year-old Mary Chidester were born in Michigan and were keeping house for him in 1870. Ten years earlier these girls were living in Cayuga County, New York, with Spencer and Sarah C. Boyce, who may have been their maternal grandparents. Apparently Benjamin was married in the early 1850s to a young lady named Boyce who died after giving birth to Clara and Mary. "Photographed By B. F. Chidester, Hastings, Mich." was written in pencil on the back of some card photograph mounts. George L. Heath was Benjamin's earlier partner in Hastings. Ben F. Chidester was enumerated as a carpenter on June 2, 1880, living at Leavenworth with 37-year-old milliner Elizabeth M. Chidester and her 11-year-old Emma and 6-year-old Guy. Photographer B. F. Chidester was enumerated the next day at Randolph, Kansas, 100 miles west, along with 34-year-old photographer Joseph Haag from Germany. Both Ben and B. F. were born in New York about 1826.

| Brainard was born at Wilmington, Vermont, on October 13, 1842. He was a five feet eight inch artist with a dark complexion, gray eyes and dark brown hair prior to his enlistment in the Regimental Band of the Second Vermont Volunteer Infantry on June 9, 1861. Exposure during and succeeding the Battle of Bull Run in July of 1861 incapacitated him so badly with chronic diarrhea that he was furloughed home to Vermont from September 4 to October 14. He was still weak when he returned to his regiment, and was discharged at Camp Barry, Virginia, on December 19, 1861, when most regimental bands were eliminated as an unnecessary expense. In the army he met photographer Daniel Cross, who became a lifelong friend. After the war Brainard spent a few months working with Cross making photographic portraits in Vermont, and may have come to Michigan as early as 1868. Photographer B. F. Childs was identified as a collaborator with the staff of the Michigan State Geological Survey in 1869. Some of his |           | 666666 555 44 t | earliest work here was published by C. B. Brubaker from Houghton about 1870 in the form of stereoscopic views on yellow mounts in the series called "Lake Superior Views" or "The Picturesque of Lake Superior" with penciled titles, and as card photographs from the same negatives. Childs was credited with the photography on the stereographs but not on the card mounts. None of these views seems to have been numbered on the negative or on the mount, though some of the negatives were numbered later, and prints from most of the negatives subsequently appeared on numbered orange stereo mounts with printed titles. The majority of these early views were of the Pictured Rocks, and others ranged west on the south shore of Lake Superior to the Copper Country. Over the next few years Brainard circumnavigated Lake Superior in his small sailboat, the Wanderer, photographing everything interesting along the shores and creating the expanded stereoscopic series "Gems of Lake Superior Scenery" which was published on orange mounts by C. B. Brubaker from both Houghton and Marquette, by Brubaker & Whitesides from Marquette, and by Childs' Art Gallery from Marquette. Michigan views included Houghton, Hancock and the copper mines; Marquette, Presque Isle and the iron mines; the Pictured Rocks and Grand Island; Sault Ste. Marie and the locks; Chippewa Indians, steamships; and most of the views numbered 500 and above were of Mackinac Island. The series incorporated views of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Ontario as well as Michigan with numbers to at least 535 and many with no numbers. Some card photographs from the same negatives were published by Brubaker from Houghton and by Childs from Marquette. Hundreds of unnumbered views have been preserved at Marquette which seem to include many taken around the Childs residence. In 1872 Brainard was wholesaling stereographs by the gross for $1.00 to $1.75 per dozen to photographers and merchants at Chicago, Boston, New York, Alma and Sault Ste. Marie, as well as to three separate outlets at Detroit, and was retailing views as far away as Cambridge, England. At the end of 1872 he seems to have sold a Houghton inventory to William Whitesides for $981.95 and a Marquette inventory to C. B. Brubaker for $1650.00, and two years later Brubaker acquired some of his stereoscopic negatives for $3250.00. Brainard advertised locally in 1873: "STEREOSCOPIC VIEWS of all Points of Interest on the North and South Shores of Lake Superior. CHROMOS, ENGRAVINGS, FRAMES, Etc. in great variety at Childs' Art Gallery...." On October 28, 1874, he and Miss Mary Fannie DeHart were united at Coldwater, Michigan, in a marriage which lasted 44 years but was childless. The opening of Childs' new Art Gallery at Ishpeming was announced locally in May of 1880, with the only ground glass light north of Chicago and every appliance for making the most modern work. "CHILDS ART GALLERY, Marquette, Mich. - Additional copies of this picture can be had at reduced price, at any time within five years. We can make you a fine enlargement from this picture for framing, for $3.00. Work guaranteed the best." was printed on the back of cabinet mounts, some of which carried copies of a lithographed birds-eye view of Marquette dated 1881. Brainard advertised nationally late in 1882: "WANTED - Operator who can retouch to take entire charge. A year's engagement with eventual interest in the business will be given to a good man. Send samples, photo of self, references, and state wages. A permanent engagement also open to a good retoucher. Address Childs' Art Gallery, Marquette, Mich." He was vice president for Michigan of the Photographers' Association of America in 1883 and 1884. H. C. Myers was managing the Marquette gallery for him in 1885, and they advertised: "CHILDS' ART GALLERY. Strangers and Tourists visiting Marquette should not fail to see the immense collection of STEREOSCOPIC VIEWS of the magnificent scenery of Lake Superior, which vies with any portion of America in grandeur and beauty. ARTISTIC PORTRAITS. The clear atmosphere of Lake Superior is peculiarly adapted to Photographic purposes, and CHILDS' ART GALLERY is one of the most elegant and complete Photographic Establishments in the United States; contains the latest novelties in apparatus and accessories for production of THE BEST OF MODERN WORK; and its portraits are not excelled in artistic lighting, posing, finish, and mounting. Its customers are numbered in every State of the Union. You are welcome either on business or on inspection. MARQUETTE, ISHPEMING and HOUGHTON, MICH." Soon Brainard closed the Houghton gallery and with his wife moved to Arkansas City, Kansas, where he established a drug store. Charles D. Cole, who had worked several years for Brainard in the early 1870s, managed the Marquette gallery and later became a full partner in the Ishpeming gallery. The Albertype Company of New York produced a twelve page booklet copyright 1889 by B. F. Childs entitled "Marquette, Mackinac Island and the 'Soo'" with over fifty illustrations. Childs' Art Gallery in Marquette was sold to Frederick C. Haefer and C. B. Brubaker in May of 1893. In response to a new wave of enthusiasm for stereo views around the turn of the century, new prints from the 1870s Lake Superior negatives were affixed to curved gray mounts similar to Keystone, but with the Childs' Art Gallery imprint. Brainard retired from the drug business about 1916, and after the death of his wife in 1918 moved from Kansas to the home of his sister at San Diego, California. He remained a principal of Childs' Art Gallery until his death from pleurisy and heart failure on March 7, 1921. His ashes were returned to Marquette for burial, and much of his estate was left to St. Paul's Episcopal Church for the establishment of a home for the poor in Marquette.

Julius was born in Detroit on April 30, 1889, fifth of the six children of James and Elvira A. Chilson. He was a slender single man of medium height with gray eyes and brown hair in 1910, and was living with his widowed mother along with two older sisters and a younger brother. Clarisse was born in Canada (probably Quebec) in 1894 or early in 1895. She was brought to the United States in 1900, and she married Julius about 1912. Their son Julius was born in September of 1913, and then John and Lucille were born between 1918 and 1921. Julius was working as a photographer in 1917 from their home at 427 Drexel Street. A 1917 Wyandotte publication included: "CHILSON ART STUDIOS. The young man who took most of the best photographs for the Wyandotte Magazine, though young in years, has had a most thorough and grueling experience in all branches of the photographic art. For three years he conducted an expert photographic campaign for the Edison Company of Detroit. This expert work necessitated the most careful attention to details of various construction jobs handled by the Edison Company; so when Mr. Chilson decided to resign his position and start in business for himself, he was well equipped to satisfactorily perform any requirements of his art. The Exchange was fortunate in securing Mr. Chilson's services for the Wyandotte Magazine before he opened his studio. Mr. Chilson calls at homes to take pictures and his work is superior to many studio photos. Orders can be left with the Exchange." He was known as Julius W. Chilson through 1919, and as J. Wells Chilson after 1920. He advertised in 1929 as "Detroit's Exclusive Home Portrait Photographer. Two Studios, Your Home, My Home. Somewhere Somebody Wants Your Photograph...." By 1930 Julius and Clarisse were divorced and living in different Detroit neighborhoods.

Jesse was born in June of 1866 in Schleswig-Holstein, a region claimed by both Denmark and Germany and fought over for centuries. He immigrated to the United States in 1886 and became a naturalized citizen in 1894. A photographic journal noted in March of 1897 that "Mr. Christianson bought out the interest of Mr. F. E. Osborn in his Alma, Michigan, gallery." Jesse advertised nationally in March of 1898: "FOR SALE - Only gallery in town of 2500 population, college and sanitarium; good business and good reasons for selling...." Two months later it was reported that the Alma gallery had been sold to Garrit Tromp of Holland, and that Jesse planned to locate in South Dakota. Her father came from Illinois, her mother was Canadian, and Atta was born in Iowa in March of 1832. She seems to have married Jesse as soon as he arrived in Iowa. She and Jesse both were enumerated as photographers in 1920. They never had children.

Henry was born in Michigan to Canadian parents in June of 1852. Ada was born in Michigan to parents from New York in the summer of 1854, last of the four children of John W. and Mary C. (Root) Phelps. She married Henry in 1871 and their children were born in Michigan: daughter Lue in 1872 or early in 1873, and son Ward two years later. Henry was a portrait and landscape photographer in Mason. Ada remained in Mason with her children when Henry moved to Charlotte. Some cabinet mounts were used despite having "Cheney & Christman" printed on both the front and the back. Christmas & Sharpsteen were proprietors of the Golden Star Gallery in Charlotte. Henry was married to Cora Harper from 1886 until she died after giving birth to Earl in January of 1891. Savigny & Christmas advertised in the fall of 1889: "You will find us directly opposite the Hotel Downey, in one of the Best GROUND FLOOR PHOTOGRAPH GALLERIES in the State. We do all kinds of work known to the art, and always try to excel all competition. We offer Special Inducements to all connected with the STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE...." Henry produced a 16½ by 11½ inch group of portraits of George W. Stone and his staff of 38 in the Michigan Auditor General's Department of 1891-92. He employed Frank H. Curtiss as a photographer in 1892. Her parents came from New York, Lillie was born in Michigan in June of 1849, and she married Henry about 1892. Wylie A. Quirk was the proprietor of the Christmas Studio at Three Rivers in 1894 and 1895. Henry's sale of his branch studio in Hastings to Sherman M. Joy was reported late in 1908. He and his wife Lillian owned a house at 140 North Main Street in Eaton Rapids in 1916.

His wife Jennie was born in Ohio about 1836, and their daughters Dolly and Eva were born there between 1873 and 1877. Prof. Churchill was apparently the first in Pontiac to paint photographs using oil colors. The photographs were taken from life or copied from "old-fashioned" daguerreotypes by John H. Benson, and reduced to miniature or enlarged to life size before Edwin started his painting. Sometimes referred to as Rev. Churchill, he did some preaching and taught drawing and painting in the Pontiac area. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Churchill were artists and daguerreotypists in 1851 and 1852 at Washington-on-the Brazos, Matagorda and Indianola, Texas. Mr. Churchill seems to have been the portrait painter and art teacher while his wife produced the daguerreotypes.

Charles was born at Cravolitz in the Bohemian region of Austria on February 10, 1890, was brought to Chicago by his family in 1891 or 1892, and became an American citizen when his father was naturalized while Charles was a minor. He seems to have been associated with his brother Joseph in the studios at Ithaca, Chicago and Muskegon between 1908 and 1915. He grew into a tall man with blue eyes and brown hair, and married Miss Olive Wilcox in 1914. Their son Charles was born in December of 1916, and their daughter Marion was born in April of 1919. Operating from his own studio, Charles served for many years as photographer for the Muskegon Chronicle before the newspaper had staff photographers. This experience helped in gaining his designation in 1919 as official camp photographer of Camp Roosevelt, the training camp near Muskegon of the Chicago R. O. T. C. unit. He was an avid outdoorsman and a life member of the Elks Lodge. His wife died in January of 1964. Though the Radium Photo Service was managed in the 1960s by his son Charles, the elder Mr. Cihak maintained an active interest in the photo business until his death. He also developed a marina in North Muskegon which he sold about 1968. He died in his apartment over the Radium Photo Service on March 28, 1969, survived by a son and a daughter, four brothers and a sister, nine grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Joseph was born in the Bohemian region of Austria on March 21, 1884, eldest of the six children of Frank and Josephine Cihak. He came to the United States with his parents and two brothers in 1891 or 1892, matured into a tall man with blue eyes and black hair, and by 1910 was a naturalized citizen. Grace was born in Illinois in 1887, and she married Joseph in 1906 or early in 1907. Their son Joseph was born in Michigan in 1908 and the rest of their children were born in Illinois: Grace in 1911, Frank in 1913, Joyce in 1915, Antoinette in 1920 or early in 1921 and Robert three years later. Titles such as "ITHACA BIRDS EYE NO. 8. By Cihak for Goodwin Drug Store" - "Court House, Ithaca, Mich., by Cihak" and "ITHACA HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL TEAM.... PHOTO BY J. F. CIHAK,..." were lettered on the negatives of post card photographs. "PHOTO BY CIHAK, GOODWIN DRUG STORE, PUB." appeared on press printed post cards, including one of a horse-drawn fire wagon with a champion team of Ithaca firemen. Joseph may have been an employee rather than the proprietor of the Chicago photo studio in 1910, but he definitely was in business for himself in 1918 and 1920. By 1930 his son Joe was the professional photographer in the family. Joseph died in Muskegon County in February of 1970.

Marinette, Wisconsin, PHOTOGRAPHER ..... 1910,1920 1
- His father came from New York, his mother came from Louisiana, and Leonard was born in Michigan in February of 1881, the son of Frank and Anna Clapp. His father had a furniture store in 1880 at Mount Pleasant, Michigan, and probably that is where Leonard was born. His brother Frank was born in February of 1879 and his sister Frances was born in October of 1884. The purchase by Leonard of a half interest in a Helena gallery was reported late in 1901. Julia was born in Wisconsin to Irish parents about 1884, and she married Leonard in 1904 or early in 1905. They had no children, and Julia was enumerated as Leonard's assistant photographer in 1920.

His parents came from New York and Ohio and Allen was born in Michigan on July 11, 1877, the son of Lewis and Melinda Clark. His brother Henry was born here five years earlier. Allen matured into a medium sized man with blue eyes and black hair. Lavinna was born in Michigan in 1880, their daughter Eva was born here in 1906 and their son James was born here about 1921. "CLARK" or "BY CLARK" or "PHOTO BY CLARK" was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs of Bass Lake, Brunswick, Dighton, Little Manistee, Leroy, Loon Lake, Luther and Skookum, some with postmarks ranging from 1908 to 1914. Some of his postal photos of Cadillac were similarly marked, but many of his later ones had legends and signatures written on the negatives in script. Several postmarked before 1923 had "Clark's Studio" written or lettered on the negatives. He used a blind stamp on some Cadillac post cards, and those of a farm near Marion. By 1918 Allen's black hair was mixed with gray. Their daughter became Eva Lucille Briggs, portrait photographer of Detroit and Pleasant Ridge from 1937 into the 1980s. In 1941 Eva became one of the 118 in the world to be recognized as a Master Photographer by the Photographers' Association of America.

His parents came from New York, and Andrew was born in December of 1838 near London, Ontario. He apprenticed himself to a Dexter ambrotypist when he was 15, and opened his own gallery in Ypsilanti when he was 17. He was listed as James Clark in 1860. Fire broke out in his gallery at 11:00 a.m. on January 30, 1860, and consumed six frame buildings. He soon opened another gallery on the west side of the river. He experimented with the then new process of making photographic prints from glass negatives, and introduced the carte de visite in Ypsilanti. His associate in 1866 was W. J. Clark. The location of his gallery was described on various photograph mounts as: "Over the Farmers' Store...." or "... in Worden Block ... Porcelain, Ink and Oil Pictures made in the best style." or "Cor. Huron and Cross Sts." or "Opposite the Laible Block ...". The 1870 enumerator noted that Andrew and 19-year-old Emma were married in February of 1870, the historian wrote that Andrew married Miss Ella Forsyth of Ypsilanti in 1874, and the 1880 enumerator indicated that he had a 23-year-old wife named Ellen. He advertised about 1873 as an "Artist, Porcelain, Ink, and Oil. Pictures made in the best style." He had been taking pictures at Dexter since 1858, but did not locate there until he succeeded Charles E. Clark in November of 1883. Andrew remained at Dexter until October of 1884. He was a widower by 1900, and was farming in partnership with the husband of his sister Mary, Alexander Mallion.

Dewitt was born in Michigan about 1860. His second wife, Anne, was born in Illinois in 1862, and she married Dewitt about 1894. She was a barber in Oskaloosa. When first in Muskegon, they opened a barber shop for women, and he later developed photography as a sideline. By 1910, Dewitt was identified as a photographer, Anne was in charge of the barber shop, and his 23-year-old daughter, Jessie, was living at home and managing a millinery shop. Both Jessie and her mother were born in South Dakota. "D. C. Clark, 255 W. Western Ave., Muskegon, Mich." was printed on the back of post card photographs, including a bird's-eye view of a street car on a Muskegon street. "D. C. Clark's New Studio, 273 W. Western Ave...." was printed on the back of other post cards, including a photographic portrait of a young lady in a rustic garden. Dewitt was a familiar figure about the lakefront for many years, taking pictures of boats and marine events. He accumulated an extensive collection of photographs of early passenger and freight vessels, of which he was very proud. After the death of his wife, Dewitt rented out the barbering portion of the shop, confined himself to photography, lived alone in the back of his shop and became a picturesque character. When he was taken seriously ill, one of his two daughters came to Muskegon to care for him. He died at Hackley Hospital on September 7, 1936. 1 2

His father came from Massachusetts and Forester was born in Vermont on August 5, 1836, second of the five children of Collin and Gratia Clark and their eldest son. When he enrolled at Madison as a third class musician and drummer in the Regimental Band of the Fifth Wisconsin Infantry on July 12, 1861, he was 5 feet 2½ inches tall with blue eyes and light hair. It was decided that bands were an unnecessary expense to the army, and Forester was honorably discharged at a camp near Harrison's Landing, Virginia, on August 9, 1862. Emma Maria Watson was born in New Hampshire in August of 1842, and she married Forester at Belvidere, Illinois, on October 1, 1862. Three of their children were born at Belvidere: Jennie in December of 1864 who lived for only four months, Fred in April of 1867 who lived until 1897, and William in January of 1872. Their other children were born in Pittsfield: Ella in May of 1875 who lived only four months, Etta in October of 1876, Eva in November of 1878, and Charles in December of 1880. Forester used the address 34-44 North in his advertisements from 1879 through 1884. His article about the construction and photographic use of his baby lounge was published in 1881. Forester took 31,000 negatives in the 21 years he was a Pittsfield photographer. He employed his son Fred as a photographer in the later 1880s, and his son William as a photo printer from 1890 until 1893, when William took over the business. Forester supplemented his photography as agent of the Excelsior Granite Company in 1892. When he relinquished the gallery on April 1, 1893, he moved to Montpelier as treasurer of the Excelsior Granite Works. His application for a Veteran's Invalid Pension in June of 1900 included a long list of debilitating health problems, and was successful. When he reapplied in August of 1911 such problems were not pertinent. He was receiving a pension of thirty five dollars per month at the time of his death on January 6, 1919.

Frank was born at Peru, Indiana, on September 17, 1865, and was the son of Joseph Caledon and Charlotte Ann (Ward) Clark. He attended the public schools of Liverpool, New York, and Kingston, Ontario, and studied art at the Cooper Institute in New York City and the School of Fine Arts in Detroit. He was making photographic backgrounds and photographic advertising novelties in 1882 and tried shoe making, boat building, and painting signs, barns, coaches and stage scenery before settling upon photography as his vocation. He worked for several years in the Mora Studio at New York City and came to Detroit in 1892. His partnership with George Huntington was formed in 1894. About 1897 it was said of him that "No one has made more rapid progress than this young man. He is a great student and carried off some of the prizes at the National Convention when held at Detroit" in 1895. He spoke about "Retouching" to the 1896 convention of the Michigan Photographers' Association. He served as secretary of the Ohio-Michigan Photographers Association in 1902. He and Miss Mary Louise Foster of Chicago were married on May 7, 1908. Among many other photographic honors, he was awarded the International Gold Medal in 1907 and the Diamond Daguerre Medal in 1909. Five years of experimenting led Frank to a technique for producing photographic portraits which exactly imitated sixteenth century engravings with a great range of shading and fine detail and a decidedly softer background. In 1908 he was invited to send examples of such portraits to an International Exhibition in Germany. After the New York Convention in 1911, Frank and his wife visited Boston where he photographed some former Detroit patrons who had moved to New England and would sit for no other photographer. He handled this in such a way that he continued to enjoy the friendship and goodwill of his Boston competitors. In 1915 a photographic journal carried "Frank Scott Clark - The Man and His Work" with five pages of text by Sadakichi Hartmann (Sidney Allan) and six additional pages of portraits. Frank continued to paint as an avocation, was one of the chief organizers of the Scarab Club, and by 1927 had been president of the club for nine years. His vacations were spent at his camp at Mindemoya on Manitoulin Island in the northern reaches of Lake Huron making a photographic record of the rapidly disappearing race, the Canadian Indian. Frank became known as the dean of Detroit portrait photographers and a leader in local art circles. During his last few years he concentrated upon painting wild flowers and wild life, and his duck paintings were recognized for their detail and color. He suffered for some time from a heart ailment which proved fatal on October 24, 1937. He was survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Louise (Foster) Clark, two daughters and a son. Interment was at Battle Creek. Frank's portrait was still prominently displayed in the entrance hall of the Scarab Club in 1998.

George was born in New York in February of 1835 and Helen, his wife, was born there in November of 1843. They were married about 1862, and their two daughters and one son were born in Michigan between 1863 and 1873. Two-cent revenue stamps were affixed to cartes de visite which placed George's Ionia gallery in Hackett's Block. In 1866 he was advertising "Photographs, Ambrotypes, Gems, Porcelain Pictures, colored or plain. Photos enlarged to any size, colored in oil, India ink or water colors." He began 1867 in "... a new suit of rooms second to none in the West ... adjoining Union Block." Here the "New Cabinet Size Photograph will receive Particular attention" and an assortment of albums, oval frames, cords, tassels, &c. were available. The artist S. C. Cornell shared George's rooms in 1867 and devoted his time to finishing enlarged photographs in India ink and colors. George exhibited a collection of plain and colored photographs at the 1868 Ionia County Fair, and photographs were exhibited by Clark & Heath at this Fair in 1869. George took home the First Premiums for the best water color painting and the best India ink photograph from the 1870 Ionia County Fair. His collection of large and small photographs was judged to be the second best at the Ionia County Fair in 1874. When George came back to Ionia about 1878, he succeeded photographer Thomas Bauslaugh. In addition to his wife and children, his household in 1880 included his 30-year-old sister and his mother, Mrs. Eliza J. Clark. George was sole proprietor of the Ionia Art Gallery & Copying House where photographs of children were taken in one second, and a choice stock of picture frames in velvet, gilt and walnut was carried. His purchase of the gallery in Ionia's Root Block from Reverend Leslie R. Gault was reported early in 1893.

Herbert was born in Michigan on May 7, 1884, eldest of the three sons of Walter and Henrietta Clark. He became a slender man of average height with brown eyes and dark brown hair. Agnes was born in Canada about 1881, and they were married in 1910. The Clark Brothers studio advertised in 1907: "Commercial and Portrait Photographers, enlarging and copying, developing and printing for amateurs, flash light, interior and athletic group work...." Herbert was the sole proprietor of Clark Brothers throughout the life of the studio except for 1909, when Percy A. Clark was his partner and they added "... A Specialty made of Short Notice Work for Cuts and Advertising." to the words used in 1907. The studio address was sometimes listed as 437-439 Baker Street prior to Detroit's overall change in the numbering system in 1920, after which the same building was at times identified as 2733 or 2735 Baker Street, as well as 2733-35. Ads for the studio mentioned framing in 1912, and in 1921 offered "Enlargements and Frames, Kodaks and Supplies, Developing and Printing." During World War I "Clark Bros. Studio, 437 Baker St., Detroit" was printed on 11 by 7 inch mounts framing 6 by 4 pictures of uniformed soldiers. About 1930 the part of Baker Street on which the studio was located was renamed Bagley Avenue. Herbert had lived in Detroit for 65 of his 69 years when he died there on November 4, 1953, survived by his brother Percy. Burial was in Evergreen Cemetery.

Hiram was born in New York State about 1830, and was living in a Muskegon hotel in 1860. Mary was born in New York in 1833 or 1834, and their son Harry was born in Wisconsin about 1862. Hiram published stereo views of logging and camping scenes from Greenville. "H. S. CLARK & CO., PHOTOGRAPHERS, Greenville, Mich. Pictures Copied, Enlarged and Finished in Ink, Crayon, Oil or Water Colors. Fine Retouched Photographs a Specialty." was printed on card mounts. The monogram of the National Photographic Association was printed on some of Hiram's Greenville card mounts, including one with a photo of the marker for the grave of Mrs. Anna Rowley who was 22 years old when she died in June of 1872. Hiram was enumerated twice in the 1880 census, on June 1 in Belvidere Township twenty miles north of Greenville, and on June 8 at home in Greenville with his family. John was born in Michigan about 1871 to John and Helen Clark. His mother was Canadian. Jefferson J. Gibson married John's sister May, and was first John's employer and then his partner. A fire in the Gibson & Clark gallery at two o'clock in the morning of Saturday, November 14, 1896, caused two hundred dollars in damage to the building, and destroyed negatives, cameras and other equipment worth two thousand dollars. "JOHN - ANN ARBOR" was all that was printed on some photograph mounts. Anna was born in Wales in 1876 or 1877, emigrated with her family as a child, and married John about 1898. They probably had no children. By 1930 John was a widower boarding with his widowed sister May and her son.

He was usually identified as Percy A. Clark. His father came from Canada and Percy was born in Michigan in December of 1889, last of the three sons of Walter and Henrietta Clark. His brother Herbert had been a photographer for several years before taking Percy on as a partner in 1909. Myrtle was born in Michigan to a German mother in 1888, and she married Percy about 1908. Their daughter Myrtle was born in January of 1909, and their son Everett was born early in 1914. Percy was still living when Herbert died in 1953, and seems to have died in Detroit on October 7, 1961, at the age of 78.

Selah was born in New York State in 1853 or 1854. He and his 69-year-old mother, Mrs. Ande L. Clark, were living in 1880 with the family of his sister Hannah, Mrs. Henry Graves. Clara was born in Wisconsin to Canadian parents in July of 1860, the daughter of David and Jane Le Claire, and she married Selah about 1880. Their daughter Rae was born in Michigan in November of 1881. Their other children were born in Wisconsin: Edith in August of 1884 and Harley in August of 1888. Selah was not around when his family was enumerated for the 1900 census, so his occupation was not recorded. He and Clara were living in 1920 with the family of their daughter Rae and her husband, John H. Hurley. Clara still was there as a widow in 1930.

Hillsdale PHOTOGRAPH ARTIST on Howell st over Mott's Drug Store ..... 1865-1867 1 m
Clarke's Photograph Gallery first was mentioned on November 28, 1865. One week later, both Eugene Clarke and Farrand & Clarke advertised in the same newspaper as successors to R. L. Andrew over Mott's Drug Store on Howell Street. Cartes de visite by Farrand & Clarke had two-cent revenue stamps, and those by Eugene Clarke are found with and without revenue stamps. Eugene advertised in December of 1865: "TRAMP, TRAMP, TRAMP, the boys are marching (and the girls, too) TO CLARKE'S Photograph Gallery ... to get their PHOTOGRAPHS taken in the latest and best style of the art. PREPARE FOR THE HOLIDAYS, by having your likeness taken for gifts to your friends.... I have engaged a first-class operator, and must respectfully invite all ... to call and examine our specimens, and the latest improvement to the art, The PORCELAIN PICTURE.... Copying done in the best style. I also keep a large assortment of Frames constantly on hand. EUGENE CLARKE, Proprietor." One of Eugene's cartes shows two young couples playing cards, and another from his Excelsior Gallery is of the Hillsdale College building. During 1866 the local newspaper reported favorably on his porcelain pictures, his photographs on watch dials, and his photographs of the college, both large and small. He was awarded First Diploma and five dollars for his collection of photographs, as well as First Diploma and three dollars for his portrait photographs, exhibited in Adrian at the Michigan State Fair in October of 1866. The account of the state fair and the gazetteer both spell the name Clark, but on several different types of photograph mounts it is consistently spelled Clarke. He was succeeded by Andrew & Carson in June of 1867. 2

His father emigrated from England, and George was born in Michigan in August of 1875, the son of William and 1
Alice Claxton. He was single in 1900. From a newspaper clipping: "GHOSTLY HANDS. Strange Phenomenon in a 1 3 Delton Photograph. DELTON, Mich., March 3. - Postmaster Henry Arbour had a flashlight photograph taken of 3 himself, family and home. In the picture were discovered three distinct hands not known to be present at the time of the 3 sitting. One rested upon Mr. Arbour's arm, another upon or near the opposite shoulder and still another lower down. 3
Mr. Arbour is not a believer in spiritualism and is at a loss to account for this phenomenon. Mr. Claxton, the 3 photographer, is also mystified. The village is agog with speculation." George advertised nationally early in 1898: 3 2
"WANTED, POSITION - In gallery desired by a man of experience. Can send references or samples of work; can take 2 full charge of gallery or any part of work, or would like to demonstrate some plates." He advertised again in the spring 2 of 1899: "FOR SALE - Two galleries, one a branch; go there once a week to take negatives; one gallery I own, the 2 other I rent; have three towns to work; no opposition; finest farming country in the State; dull finish cabinets $3 per 2 dozen; reason for selling, I am going into other business.... G. W. C., Unionville, Mich." Unionville and Fairgrove 2 4 were connected by ten miles of railroad track with Akron between them, and Gagetown was eleven miles east of 4
Unionville. George's plans for opening a gallery in Akron were reported early in the summer of 1899. He was working 2 R
Gagetown as well as Unionville and Fairgrove in 1902. Both Unionville and Fairgrove were mentioned on some of R t
George's cabinet mounts, while only "Geo. W. Claxton, Photo Artist" was printed on others. George was an active t 5

He was born Francis H. Clayton in Michigan to English parents in 1857, last of the five children of Isaac and Harriet 1
Clayton. He and John advertised in the fall of 1873: "... If you want the BEST PHOTOGRAPHS Made in the Valley, 1 3 call at the popular establishment of CLAYTON BROTHERS, Armstrong's Successors, On Line of Street Cars, 3 opposite the Postoffice, Saginaw City." The Fort Wayne photographer was identified as Frank H. Clayton in the 3 1 census and as F. Harry Clayton in city directories, and his partner in 1880 was Frank R. Barrows. Frank was single at 2 1 this time. There was a photographer named F. H. Clayton about 1885 in Chattanooga, Tennessee. 1 4

His parents emigrated from England, and John was born at Newburgh, New York, on February 16, 1846, second of the five children of Isaac and Harriet Clayton. He was 5 feet 5 inches tall with a fair complexion, grey eyes and brown hair when he enlisted at Saginaw City as a private in Company E of the 23rd Michigan Infantry. He was mustered into the army on February 22 but did not join his regiment at Marietta, Georgia, until June 14, 1864. He was transferred to Company C of the 28th Michigan Infantry on June 15, 1865. During the following year the 28th was on duty at Raleigh, Charlotte, Wilmington and New Bern, North Carolina. John was mustered out of service with the regiment at Raleigh on June 5, 1866, and they were immediately conveyed to Detroit, paid off and disbanded on June 8. John was a book store clerk in 1870. Sarah was born in Michigan to English parents in May of 1850, she married John about 1872 and their son Samuel was born a year later. Their son Frank was born here in May of 1879. Their younger children were born in Wisconsin: Grace in September of 1885 and Ralph in June of 1890. The Clayton Brothers succeeded William A. Armstrong in the ground floor photograph and picture rooms on Hamilton Street in the fall of 1873, and John succeeded their partnership about six months later. He advertised: "PHOTOGRAPHS 14 x 17 Made at Clayton's. The largest ever made in this city or East Saginaw." Another ad was for "LIFE SIZE PHOTOGRAPHS.... The Largest and Finest Photographs Ever Before Made in this or any other Gallery in the Valley.... On Line of Street Cars." Clayton & Stiles produced tintypes in paper mounts the size of cartes de visite. Seymour W. Stiles succeeded his partnership with John, who moved from Saginaw City to Milwaukee on April 25, 1883. John was a real estate agent in 1900, and late in 1903 described himself as a lecturer and organizer. He was the same height he had been in 1864, but weighed 164 pounds and had hair that was turning gray. He was a solicitor of mining stocks in 1910, and was a widower living with the family of his youngest son in 1930. John was admitted to the Veterans Administration General Hospital in Milwaukee on August 3, 1936, or earlier, and died there of myocardial degeneration, arteriosclerosis and senility on April 18, 1937.

Walter was born in England in July of 1844 and became a small man, a talented musician, and a good artist who painted his own backgrounds. He advertised in 1873: "All kinds of Photographic work done right and reasonable. Square and Oval Frames at lowest prices." His rooms were over the postoffice from 1873 to 1875. He used a very ornate paster on the back of his card sized tintype sleeves. "... Small pictures, however dim or faded, copied and enlarged to any size, finished in India Ink, Water Colors or Oil, and made to appear as well as taken from life. Pictures and Wreaths of all sizes framed very reasonable." was printed on some of Walter's card mounts. He produced a study of two young men playing chess and a view of Howell Union School, both in the card format. Some of Walter's glass negatives are in the collection of Duane L. Zemper at Howell. Emma was born in Michigan to parents from New York in February of 1860, and she married Walter about 1878. They had no children, and by 1910 Emma was a widow and a Howell music teacher.

Thomas was born in Canada to English parents in April of 1862, the only child of John and Alice Clegg. While not specifically identified as a photographer, he was the only Clegg in the area that might have been a part of Clegg & Tillitson. Memphis is six miles north of Richmond and about eight miles northeast of Armada. Agnes was born in Canada of Scotch ancestry in March of 1869, and she married Thomas when she was seventeen. They had no children. Agnes was working as a dress maker in 1900, and in 1910 when she had her own shop.

| Mary Knapp was born in New York State in 1820, and was living in Franklin Township of Lenawee County when she married James M. Clement there on December 22, 1841. James had been born 26 years earlier at Canandaigua, New York. Their children were born in Michigan: Rebecca, Harriett and Milton between 1842 and 1846, Ira in December of 1849, Alice in March of 1855, Nellie in February of 1857, Hannah in January of 1860, and Eva in 1864 or 1865. Not all of them survived to maturity. James was a Medina Township farmer before he enlisted at Hudson in Battery I of the First Michigan Light Artillery on August 21, 1862. He was chilled while standing guard duty at Detroit prior to his muster there as a private on August 29, and was sent back to Medina on a convalescent furlough. He rejoined the battery late in October of 1862 but was still troubled with chronic diarrhea and bronchitis. On January 24, 1863, he was discharged for disability at Camp Barry in the District of Columbia. The bronchitis developed into pulmonary consumption and James died on September 28, 1864. Mary obtained a pension for herself and the two daughters that were under sixteen years of age. "MRS. M. J. CLEMENT, PHOTOGRAPHER, Rooms over Wright & Son's Drug Store, TECUMSEH, MICH. Photographs finished in India Ink and Water Colors. Mary was living in 1880 with the family of her daughter Alice and her husband, John Thompson. She lived until January 2, 1891. His maternal grandparents emigrated from France, his parents came from New York, and Jerome was born in Michigan to Frank and Mary Cleveland in July of 1883. He became an averaged sized man with brown eyes and brown hair. Alta was born in Michigan in 1884 or early in 1885, and she married Jerome about 1904. They had no children, and she was working as a saleslady in the general store in 1910. At that time Jerome also employed his only sibling, Olive, and her husband Ralph B. Ward as sales people in his general store. By 1918 Jerome had a 33-year-old wife named Mary Louise, and their son Francis was born in December of 1919. Jerome died at Alma in October of 1967. 1

His parents came from New York and Stead was born in July of 1856 at Altona in Manitoba, Canada, the son of Edwin and Almira (Philipps) Cliff. He immigrated in 1881, and by 1900 he had applied for United States citizenship. Martha was born in April of 1861 at Uxbridge, Ontario, the daughter of Seward and Hannah (Pearson) Morden. She married Stead at Stouffville, Ontario, on September 21, 1883, and came immediately to Lapeer County. She gave birth in February of 1885 to Eva, who turned out to be their only child. "FLINT, MICH." was blanked out on some of Stead's cabinet mounts, and "HOLLY, MICH." was printed above it. Though a script "S. Cliff ..." was his usual way of identifying his work, "Stead Cliff" or "The Cliff, Imlay City, Mich." was printed on some cabinet mounts. He and Martha were providing a home in 1930 for their 17-year-old granddaughter, Helen Malcolm.

His father came from Pennsylvania and Silas was born in Ohio in November of 1849, eldest of the five children of Jacob and Mary Close, and their only son. He grew up on the family farm. By 1870 his father was dead and Silas was responsible for the farming. Alice was born in Ohio in May of 1857, and she married Silas about 1874. Their children were born in Ohio: William in March of 1878 and Anna in April of 1880. Both William and Anna were enumerated as photographers in 1900. Something happened to Alice between 1900 and 1904, when Silas married a single lady named Neva who was born in Ohio in 1857 or 1858. He was identified as a house carpenter in 1910, and with a partner ran a garage in West Branch in 1914. He was a widower living by himself in 1920 and 1930.

Edith was born in Wisconsin in November of 1873, the daughter of Theodore or Thomas J. and Elizabeth Maria Clute. She and her older brother Charles were living with their parents in 1900. She probably was the one who advertised nationally in the spring of 1903: "FOR SALE - $800 buys first-class gallery in good town, thirty miles from Detroit; splendid equipment; old established business; no competition. Address 'Photographer,' Northville, Mich." Henry F. Brown was Edith's partner in Brown & Company, portrait artists and commercial photographers. Augustus S. Locke was her associate until 1921 in the Locke-Clute Company, who were photographers and portrait artists offering commercial photography, enlarging and copying. From 1921 through 1924, Edith was sole proprietor of the Locke-Clute Company. In 1910 and in 1920 she was sharing the home of her mother, and in 1930 she was living alone in a large apartment house. ## Co-Mo Company

Minneapolis, Minnesota, producers of post card photographs ..... 1918-1929 1 t

According to a brief history of the Co-Mo Company on the website of watertownhistory.org, the factory was located in Lake Mills, Wisconsin, until 1924 when the lab moved to Watertown, Wisconsin. At this time the emphasis shifted to processing amateur negatives and making prints for drug stores in the area. While all the processing seems to have been conducted at Lake Mills, the business office was in Minneapolis. The most common back mark on post cards is: "The Co-Mo Company, Post Cards, Minneapolis." The Co-Mo Company produced some postal photos of places such as South Haven in the southwestern part of Michigan's Lower Peninsula, and many post card photographs of Michigan's Upper Peninsula, including scenes in and near Calumet, Copper Harbor, Eagle Harbor, Eagle River, L'Anse, Mohawk, Negaunee, Phoenix, and several other towns. Mines, urban structures and rural scenery were pictured. A salesman's album of sample Co-Mo post cards includes this information: "POST CARD PRICE LIST. Regular Retail per card – 5¢ Wholesale Price, Outright Sales, No Exchanges: By the hundred assorted - $3.00 per C. By the thousand, 100 or more to negative - $25.00 per M. Five thousand, 200 or more to negative - $22.50 per M." Stated elsewhere in the album was: "C O N S I G N M E N T. We furnish rack – and a reasonable consignment of cards, with renewals of 100 or more, make exchanges and take back all unsold cards. All renewals are to be paid cash on delivery and a 25% discount or commission is allowed. When a guarantee of 600 or more cards sold in one season is given and renewals are taken in lots of not less than 200 – a 33 1/3% discount is given." The Co-Mo Company was founded in 1918 by Lloyd L. Cook and Harris Montgomery. Lloyd Lewis Cook was born at Lake Mills, Wisconsin, on June 24, 1887, eldest of the six children of James L. and Margaret K. Cook. He matured into a tall slender man with brown eyes and brown hair. He was a Lake Mills student in 1900 and in 1905, and he was conducting a wholesale post card business from Minneapolis in 1917 and 1920. Jessie was born in Wisconsin in 1885, she married Lloyd about 1914, and their daughter Margaret was born in March of 1915. Lloyd went on to establish the L. L. Cook Company at Milwaukee, which became the most prolific mid-western producer of post card photographs during the 1940s and the 1950s. Harris Park Montgomery was born at Poy Sippi, Wisconsin, on June 7, 1880, first of the two sons of Jonathan and Emma (Parks) Montgomery. He became a slender man with blue eyes and brown hair, and he remained in Wisconsin until he moved to Minneapolis in 1918. He was a Poy Sippi dealer in bicycles in 1900, a Red Granite photographer in 1905, a Hartford machinist in an auto shop in 1910, and a Hartford photographer from 1911 until 1918. Elsie Martin was born in Wisconsin on December 2, 1886, and by 1918 she was married to Harris. Their daughters were born in Minnesota: Mary Ann in October of 1919, Jean in 1923 or early in 1924, and Nancy in June of 1925. In Minneapolis, Harris was a photographer from his home in 1918, the proprietor of a photographic studio with employees in 1920, and the secretary and treasurer of a wholesale greeting card company in 1930. He died on December 25, 1944.

Alfred's middle initial was seldom used. He was born in England in January of 1831 and was brought to this country a year later by his parents, Joseph and Maryam Coates. In the fall of 1879 at the Fair of the Northern Berrien County and Michigan Lake Shore Agricultural Society held at Benton Harbor he was awarded a diploma for his exhibit of photographs and other sun pictures and the First Premium of $1.00 for a landscape photograph. He was succeeded as Howell's photographer by his wife, Mrs. Sarah Coates. In 1880 he was single and residing in a boarding house. He attended the inaugural convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Chicago in August of 1880, and was on the first published list of PA of A members in May of 1881. Benton Harbor scenes published by the New York Daily Graphic in 1882 were made from photographs by Coates. Alfred produced stereoscopic views of Benton Harbor, and was listed as a landscape photographer in the Gates & Hall Block in 1892. By 1900 he was a widower.

Norman was born in Michigan on September 7, 1875, second of the five children of Peter and Maria Lenora (Hooper) Coddington. His father was a dealer in farm implements, and Norman was enumerated as an agent. He was single and was living at home with his parents, his older brother and three younger sisters in 1900. Julia Sandland was born in Minnesota to Norwegian parents on July 9, 1878, and she married Norman about 1905. She and Norman both were enumerated as real estate brokers in 1930. Norman died at Los Angeles on April 20, 1946, and Julia lived on until November 1, 1958. 3 1 3 1 3 1 3 3

Allison was born in Ohio in April of 1850. Something seems to have happened to his father, for his family was scattered with other relatives in 1850. By 1860 his mother, Eliza, was married to the physician Sylvester H. Halstead and the family included his sister Gertrude, his brother Irving Franklin, and his half-brothers Clarence and Eugene Halstead. Sylvester Halstead had turned to farming by 1870. Susannah was born in Pennsylvania in September of 1857, and she married Allison about 1874. Their children were born in Ohio: Gertrude and Linn between 1875 and 1877, and Bert in September of 1878. The Chardon listing was for J. A. Coe, and he often was enumerated as Allison J. Coe. Though "Sturtz & Coe, Cottage Gallery, Red Jacket, Mich." was usually printed on their cabinet mounts, the order of their names was reversed in this 1891 advertisement: "PHOTOGRAPHS, For Artistic Work and Perfect Finish go to COE & STURTZ, Red Jacket, or to the COTTAGE GALLERY, Hancock, Mich." An 1893 ad was for the "PALACE ART STUDIO, COE & TATE, PHOTOGRAPHERS, and Marine Photographers. Views of Rapids, Locks and all Passing Vessels. 52 Ashmun Street, Soo, Mich." Some of these views were on 5¼ by 8½ inch mounts labeled "Lake Superior Scenery. Published by COE & TATE...." Allison's occupation was obscured in the 1900 census report, but his son Bert was working as a Chicago photographer then and in 1910 and 1920.

His parents came from Ohio, and George was born in Michigan on September 3, 1878, the only child of John H. and Louisa H. Coffman. His maternal grandparents emigrated from the Wurtemberg region of Germany. Rosella was born in Michigan about 1876, and she married George late in 1900 or early in 1901. Their two sons were born here in 1904 and 1909. "GEO V. COFFMAN, MACKINAW, MICH." was stamped on the back of the 5½ by 6½ commercial mount of a 3½ by 4½ sepia photograph of the railway car ferry Sainte Marie which operated year round at the straits from June of 1893 until October of 1911. "Fish Shanty on the Ice. Winter Sport at Old Mackinaw. Coffman" was lettered on the negative from which cyanotype post cards were printed. One was mailed in December of 1908. George was of medium height and build in 1918, with blue eyes and dark hair. He was a principal of John H. Coffman & Son from 1906 through 1927, and was listed separately as a taxidermist beginning in 1920.

His parents emigrated from Ireland, and Richard was born in Canada on January 22, 1860. He was brought to this country by his mother Ann in 1870, along with his older brother William and his younger brother Samuel. By 1880 his brother Thomas, who was born in Ireland about 1850, showed up to help out on the farm. Richard became a naturalized citizen of the United States in 1882. Attie Floretta Collamer was born in Illinois on September 1, 1873, and she married Richard about 1894. Their son William was born in Michigan in June of 1897, and their daughter Mary was born in California in 1911 or early in 1912. William P. Cogan was an experienced photographer long before his brother Richard became his partner in 1900. Attie died at Los Angeles on August 21, 1943, and Richard died there on October 15, 1951.

William was born in Canada of Irish parentage in May of 1855, and immigrated to New York by 1870. Her father emigrated from Ireland, Mary was born in New York in January of 1850, and she married William about 1880. James V. Cogan, their only child, was born in Michigan in June of 1889. William's brother Richard J. Cogan also was a principal of W. P. Cogan & Company. William published stereo views from Omaha and Detroit on flat orange mounts which were identical except for the name of the city. Some Omaha views were dated 1889. Views of Omaha and of Florida were published from Detroit. To the usual Belle Isle, Waterworks Park and river front scenes, William added stereo views of middle class families in their homes, of the Detroit International Fair and Exposition in 1890 and of the 25th Annual Encampment of the G.A.R. at Detroit in 1891. A number of these views have the look of proofs, with a dark border around and between the images, and many are unidentified. One view with this appearance is identical to a view of the Belle Isle lighthouse published by L. Black & Company. Cogan & Burgess produced stereographs of Jacksonville, Palm Beach and St. Augustine, Florida as well as some of Detroit on buff or yellow mounts more typical of their period. The Cogan & Burgess stamp was also used on the backs of some of the dark bordered views. William was sole proprietor of The Cadillac Studio except for 1909, when S. A. Topping was associated with him. His home was in Dearborn by 1900, and he undoubtedly worked in Dearborn much earlier than noted by the first available city directory. He was identified as Dearborn's first commercial photographer. William was living alone at the time of his death in 1930. One of his 8 by 10 view cameras with carrying case and tripod, several printing frames, a number of stereoscopic and single glass negatives and more than forty stereoscopic and other photographic prints were donated to the Dearborn Historical Museum in 1952 by William's son, James V. Cogan.

| Nelson was born on September 13, 1860, at Arbela in Tuscola County, Michigan, the son of William and Ellen (Adams) Colbath. Something happened to his father, who does not seem to have served in the Civil War, and by 1870 his mother was married to the farmer William H. Johnson. Soon he and his older sister Ada and his younger sister Sarah were joined by a half brother and three half sisters. Nelson attended the local schools through the tenth grade. As an adult he was five feet eleven inches tall, weighed 130 pounds, and had a light complexion, dark brown hair and blue eyes. Inza Viola Parks was born in Michigan to parents from New York in November of 1862, and she married Nelson at Arbela on September 25, 1880, and later had four children born in Tuscola County: Nelson in August of 1883, Lora in March of 1888, Nellie Viola in April of 1890, and Amos in February of 1894. Nelson was a school teacher before taking up photography. He was afflicted with asthma as early as 1880, and in later life could only visit relatives in southern Michigan for a few days at a time before needing to go back north. "Colbath, Artist" or "Colbath Photo" or "Colbath" or "N.W.C." was lettered on the negatives of postal photographs along with legends or descriptions. His lettering used many 'artistic' embellishments and sometimes extended right across the view. His post card photos included views of Rose City before and immediately after the fire of March 10, 1911, views of Mio, sixteen miles north, and views of Long Lake, twelve miles east of Rose City. About 1919, Nelson moved from Rose City to Grayling where he opened a confectionery store and did photography work in his spare time. He later retired from this business, but about 1925 opened a similar shop on US 27. He was ailing for some time, but was able to get around and take care of his confectionery until his unexpected death due to heart failure on October 1, 1927. He was survived by his wife and four children, and his body was returned to Tuscola County for burial at Newton Cemetery in Arbela Township. Inza was living down in Tuscola Township in 1930 with the family of her daughter Nellie and her husband, George S. Hart. |           |   |

Elizur was born in New York State in 1843 or 1844. His wife Mary was born in Canada five years later. Their children, Bernice, Russell, Florence and Lottie, were born in Michigan between 1869 and 1874. Padget & Colburn were succeeded by Bailey & Scotford in October of 1867. Elizur advertised in 1868: "... Go to E. J. COLBURN'S ART PALACE,... for All Kinds of Photographs, Large and Small, Ambrotypes, Gems, Bontons. Melainotypes, Porcelain, Etc., also Frames and Cases, All Sizes and Styles, Matting of all Kinds Kept Constantly on Hand. Large Pictures Painted in Oil, Water, Sepia, India Ink, and Pastele. N.B. - Particular attention paid to taking Pictures of Houses, Brick Blocks, Landscapes, &c...." On some card photograph mounts, "J. J. Gibson" was crossed out and "Colburn & Gibson" was printed in a different color of ink. On other Bay City card mounts, "Colburn & Scotford" was crossed out, and "E. J. Colburn, Watson Block,..." was substituted. On yet other Bay City card mounts, "Colburn Bros." was crossed out, and "E. J. Colburn" was printed in a different color of ink.

This person was better known as Mrs. Mary V. Colburn. She was born in Canada in 1848 or early in 1849 to an English father and a Canadian mother. She must have been in her late teens when she married Elizur J. Colburn, for she was only 21 when she gave birth to their first daughter, Bernice. Russel, Florence and Dottie then were born between 1871 and 1874. Apparently Mary established the Manistee gallery while Elizur was concluding the enterprise in Bay City and/or traveling on photographic business.

James was born at Freeman, New York, on July 12, 1834, to James and Abigail (Metcalf) Colby, who were natives of Vermont. His family moved to Wisconsin in 1843, and James grew up on the family farm. Miss Anna M. Jacques was born in Nova Scotia on August 12, 1841, and married James at Delafield, Wisconsin, on November 8, 1860. He entered Company G of the Twenty Fourth Wisconsin Infantry as a private at Milwaukee on August 11, 1862. James was wounded in action at the battle of Perrysville on October 5, 1862, and lost his entire right index finger. Suffering with remittent fever and chronic diarrhea, he was hospitalized in Nashville and later Louisville from November 15, 1862, until his discharge from the army as disabled on March 17, 1863. At this time he was 5 feet 11½ inches tall with a dark complexion, black hair and blue eyes. Anna and James had six children. Milton was born in Wisconsin on June 20, 1862. Sherman was born in Michigan on April 5, 1865, and did not live more than a few years. The others were born at Big Rapids: Maria on April 5, 1867, Io Vesta on September 17, 1869, Alta on September 8, 1873, and James on April 13, 1883. While register of deeds, James compiled the set of abstracts that was used extensively after his sixteen-year term of office. He applied successfully for a veteran's invalid pension in December of 1890, and then died at Big Rapids on June 19, 1892. Anna applied for a widow's pension the following month and was receiving twelve dollars per month when she died early in 1913.

Charles was born on February 1, 1852, in Wales Township of Erie County, New York, last of the six children of Isaac and Betsy Cole. His family came in 1865 to Marquette, where his sister Agnes married the photographer Ard G. Emery. He learned the photography business at Marquette, at Saginaw and at Ishpeming. Charles was earning a salary of $800.00 per year at Marquette in 1873 and 1874. He was single and residing in a hotel in 1880 and in the boarding house of the same Ishpeming family in 1900 and 1910. Brainard F. Childs was a principal of Childs' Art Gallery until his death in 1921, though he was living in Kansas after 1884 and then in California after 1918. During at least the last ten years of his life, Charles was lodging by himself in a hotel. Thomas J. Bennett was his partner from 1922 through 1927, and was sole proprietor of Childs' Art Gallery by 1930. One source stated that the trade name of the studio was Childs & Cole in 1925.

Cole, Photographer, Uby, Mich" was stamped on the back of 7¼ by 5 inch mounts carrying 4 by 3 inch prints, including one of a lady standing by a substantial wicker chair on a base made of 2-by-6s with casters. John arranged four post card photos of Uby by Louis Pesha, placed a neat "J. M. Cole" label over each "PESHA PHOTO" and re-photographed them to produce a composite post card complete with the Pesha numbers and captions. John was born in Michigan in 1847 or 1848, Elizabeth was born in New York State a year later, and they married about 1868. Their son George was born in May of 1870 and did not survive for long, but they had at least four other children. William and Lucretia (called Lulu) were born in Michigan between 1871 and 1876. Geraldine and Frank were born in Virginia between 1888 and 1891. Two sizes of stickers were used to hold tintypes into their paper frames. Both sizes had the same message printed in red ink: "Hawkins & Cole's IMPROVED FERROTYPES, THE CHEAPEST AND BEST, By Patent Camera. Over A. Andrews' Grocery, HILLSDALE, MICH." Reuben L. Andrew was working for John as a photographer in 1874, when John advertised as a Photographic and Ferrotypist Artist who copied old pictures and finished them in any style desired. John attended the inaugural convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Chicago in August of 1880, and was a member of the PA of A one year later when he advertised as a "Photographic Artist, India Ink and Crayon Work." Some of his card photographs were of the diminutive Sparling brothers when they were students at Hillsdale College, and several of his cabinet photographs were composites of small portraits with cartoons associated with the mainly verbal battle between the Hillsdale College seniors in the class of 1883 and the sophomores two years behind them. John was succeeded by Amos Barnes in 1885 or 1886. While in Virginia, John may also have worked in Manchester.

Her parents came from New York and Lemoine was born in Michigan in August of 1878, last of the six children of Simeon and Emma Cole. She was sharing her home in 1900 with her 33-year-old sister, Minnie R. Cole, who was a dress maker. About 1901 Lemoine married George R. Palmer, who was ten years her senior and a barber in Grand Rapids and later the proprietor of a barber shop in Cedar Springs. By 1930 Lemoine was a widow living with her sister Minnie and her husband, Roy A. Randall.

He was eighth of the nine children of Isaac N. and Dolly Ann Coleman, who were farming in 1850 in Montgomery Township of Orange County, New York. They moved to Michigan and were farming in 1860 in Putnam Township of Livingston County and in 1870 and 1880 in Dexter Township of Washtenaw County. Young Isaac was living with his parents and working on the family farm in 1870, but was not to be found in 1880. Dexter Township is about twenty five miles west of Plymouth. The father was too old and the son was a little too young to have been the Isaac N. Coleman who served in Company D of the 26th Michigan Infantry during the Civil War.

Eugene was born on October 18, 1875, on a Hillsdale County farm near North Adams, and became a stout man with light gray eyes and brown hair. His mother married the photographer Augustus Borden about 1892, and Eugene began to learn the photographic business. His Mount Pleasant gallery on Broadway was completely destroyed by fire early in the morning of October 10, 1901. He had only $200.00 insurance and lost many irreplaceable negatives. Within a week he was working in the gallery of J. O. Parrish, which he purchased and opened for business on February 9, 1902. Parrish wrote a complimentary recommendation for Collins, characterizing him as an artist of unusual ability who was head and shoulders above any local photographer in lighting, posing and neatness of finish, and remained with him for a few weeks. Eugene advertised locally a couple of weeks later: "... ARTIST'S PROOF PHOTOGRAPHS Are the Best. They are more universally admired than any other Photographic production of the times. They are strikingly artistic and in every particular are much superior to anything of their kind ever given the people of Mount Pleasant. Specimens exhibited at the gallery. They will interest you...." Two weeks after that: "The man who buys a Chestnut Horse is not going to be satisfied with a HORSE CHESTNUT. When you get your PHOTOGRAPH taken or your PICTURE framed by EUGENE F. COLLINS, THE PHOTOGRAPHER, YOU WILL GET NO HORSE CHESTNUTS...." Then a few months later: "YOUR FACE IS YOUR FORTUNE! Get your fortune secured in a beautiful, permanent PLATINOTYPE PHOTOGRAPH taken by- E. F. Collins,..." and "IN THE NEGATIVE. When we say photograph, don't give the subject a negative thought. We attend to the negative; there is where the most of successful photography lies. We will get a good negative, a good print, and a good mount, and you will get a good photograph...." and "RETOUCHING. Do you realize the necessity of first-class retouching in the production of a good photograph? It is one of the most important branches of the work. I allow no negative to go into the printers' hands until it is carefully and properly retouched. E. F. COLLINS, Photographer. Next Door to Postoffice." Eugene attended the National Photographer's convention in August of 1902 at Buffalo, New York and was still an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905. On July 6, 1903, he married 19 year old Miss Virgiline H. Doughty of Mount Pleasant, who became a constant partner and helper in his profession. One of their twin sons died quite unexpectedly as an infant on May 22, 1904. Eugene spent a day at Weidman taking pictures in the middle of January 1906. Most of the illustrations in the 1906 souvenir of Mount Pleasant were reproduced from his photographs. For a limited time in May of 1907 he was offering post cards with your photo on them at 5 for 25¢ or 12 for 50¢. "Photograph by The Collins Studio - Mt. Pleasant, Mich." was printed on the back of postal photos, some postmarked in 1909 and 1910, which included views of Mount Pleasant schools and business streets as well as the crowded interior of a drug store on the day it opened, October 23, 1909. The same imprint was used on post card portraits and on views of streets and stores in Weidman, fifteen miles northwest of Mount Pleasant. In 1915 the Collins Studio and Art Store was "The Home of Good Photos. Picture Framing and Enlarging. Amateur Cameras and Supplies." An 8 by 51 inch panorama had "CENTRAL MICHIGAN NORMAL SCHOOL, SUMMER 1921, MT. PLEASANT, MICHIGAN" lettered near the center of the negative, and "COLLINS, 1921" lettered near the right end. Fire razed Eugene's studio at Broadway and Washington in 1941, destroying invaluable negative files of the city's history. He then opened a modern home-studio on South Mission where he continued to live following his retirement. Eugene was a life member of the Michigan Photographers' Society and the Presbyterian Church, served as city treasurer for three terms and was a member of the first city planning commission. A four year illness preceded his death on December 18, 1954. He was survived by his wife and his son Philip. Interment was in Riverside Cemetery.

Richard was born in England about 1845. He immigrated in 1863 and soon became a naturalized citizen of the United States. Eighteen-year-old Miss Kate Collins emigrated from England and was his apprentice at Leadville in 1880. Richard's newspaper advertising in 1892 claimed that he had twenty years of photographic experience in the United States and England. Emily was about 26 years old when she emigrated from England in 1881. She married Richard a year later, and she still was with him in 1930.

Charles was born in Michigan on April 21, 1876, the son of Walter and Martha (Wooster) Colton. His sister Etta was eleven years older and became a photo retoucher, and his father was a Rochester dry goods merchant. Dorie May Chapman was born in Michigan in the spring of 1876, the daughter of William and Martha Chapman. She married Charles about 1898 and their three children (Doris, Walter and Edward) were born in Michigan between 1900 and 1908. C. L. Colton & Company were commercial photographers that made photo enlargements and specialized in Factory Work. Members of the Cosgrove and Waterbury families got together in Convis Township on Sunday, February 21, 1909, and "Photographer Colton was on hand from Bellevue, and photographed the group." Charles was employed for only two of the twelve months preceding April of 1910. He was a stout man with blue eyes and gray hair by 1918, when his family was living on a Dearborn rural route. Arthur was born in Michigan on September 26, 1882, second of the four children of photographer David J. and Anna M. Conant and their elder son. He became a tall man with blue eyes and brown hair. Margaret's parents were Irish, and she was born in Michigan in 1886. She married Arthur about 1907. Their daughter Marjorie was born in 1910 and their son Harry was born in 1915. The Conant Brothers recorded in post card photographs the destruction of an Escanaba hotel by fire on February 1, 1909. Arthur used the same format for a burning church in Menominee, informal outdoor groups, the state champion Menominee High School football team of 1912, sailboats in the harbor and a bird's-eye view of Menominee. The Pequaming and Chassell dates came from postmarks which approximate when photos were taken there, and do not indicate that a studio was established in these towns though there are indications that the Conants did utilize a portable gallery that could be set up or disassembled in a day and transported by rail. The gazetteers for 1927 and 1931 placed the studio at 926 Sheridan Avenue. By 1930 Arthur was divorced and living alone. Some of his postal photographs were mailed in 1937 and 1938.

Charles was born in Maine in October of 1839. Eleanor (called Nellie in 1870) was born in Maine to Scotch parents in December of 1841, and she married Charles about 1862. All of their children were born in Maine: Charles in December of 1866, Harry in July of 1868, Grace about 1871, Francis in November of 1873, and Louis in January of 1881. That C. B. Conant's gallery in Traverse City had been damaged by fire was reported in the spring of 1893. The 1900 census found Charles in San Francisco on business, while Eleanor and three of their sons were enumerated back in Cambridge.

His parents came from New York and David was born in Michigan on November 3, 1845. He was five feet eleven inches tall with a light complexion, grey eyes and light hair when he enlisted at Grand Rapids as a private in Company H of the 26th Michigan Infantry on February 10, 1864. He was mustered into the army on the same day, and was wounded in action at Spottsylvania, Virginia, on May 12, 1864. He deserted on July 31, 1864, but seems to have reported back to his unit and was discharged by General Order Number 77 dated April 19, 1865. During the next fifteen years he was married and widowed. Anna was born at Berlin, Germany, on April 29, 1861, and was brought to America in 1866. She married David at Detroit on January 23, 1880, and their daughter Electa was born in Illinois in November of 1880. Their other children were born in Michigan: Arthur in September of 1882, Harry in November of 1884, and Iva in 1903 or early in 1904. Both sons became professional photographers. His name was spelled "D. J. Connant" on some cabinet mounts. He was on the road much of the time between 1905 and 1915. Anna and Iva were enumerated at Escanaba in 1910, while David was out taking pictures. Some of the towns listed above are where negatives were exposed from which to print post card photographs of lumbering, shipping, streets, stores and schools. "Conant" or "Photo by Conant and Sons" or "Conant and Sons Photo" or "Foto Conant" was lettered on the negatives produced by David, Arthur or Harry. In most cases the dates shown above were derived from postmarks. One of the views of Stephenson includes a portable gallery the same as or very similar to the one used by the Jacobson Brothers in 1907 and 1908 in places such as Bark River and Nadeau. This building could be disassembled or erected in a day and transported by rail. David applied for a veteran's pension of sixteen dollars per month in May of 1912. His daughter Electa was working as a photographer in his Menominee studio in 1920. He died at Munising on February 13, 1922, and a year later Anna applied for a widow's pension.

Harry was born in Michigan on November 13, 1884, third of the four children of photographer David J. and Anna M. Conant. He became a tall and slender man with hazel eyes and brown hair. The opening of Harry's Escanaba studio was reported in the spring of 1908. "Conant's Art Gallery, Escanaba, Mich." was blind stamped into 10 by 12 inch black mounts carrying photographs of lumber mills. As Conant Brothers, he and Arthur produced interesting post card photographs of Escanaba. Harry wanted very much to be the photographic partner of Henry H. Robb in Escanaba, and in 1908 Henry spent some time teaching him several techniques in developing, printing and toning pictures, but the partnership never materialized. For a while Harry roamed northern Michigan and Wisconsin working with his camera when he could from a tent. He later established a successful studio at Marinette. Elizabeth was born in Wisconsin on October 20, 1886, and she married Harry when she was 27 years old. They had three sons: Howell was born in Wisconsin in 1915 or early in 1916, Roger was born in Michigan three years later, and James was born in Wisconsin about 1929. Harry retired to California in the late 1930s, and died at Van Nuys on September 3, 1974. Elizabeth died in February of 1980 at Scottsdale, Arizona. Howell Conant, Harry's son, became known nationally in the 1960s and 1970s for his photographs, such as those of the wedding of Grace Kelly to the Prince of Monaco and those of the Nixon family.

Charles was born April 5, 1840, at Streetsville, Ontario, and was educated in a private school at Kleinsburg, Ontario. He sailed out of a port in the United States, probably Port Huron, and began learning both photography and the jewelry business there during the winters. The Charles Conat who served in Company D of the First Michigan Engineers and Mechanics during the Civil War was not the photographer. Charles was on the road for seven years before settling in Au Sable, taking photographs and selling jewelry, and he probably used his camera to supplement his jewelry business in Au Sable. Ellen was born in Michigan in 1847 or 1848, she married Charles about 1865, and she gave birth to Electa, Charles and John between 1866 and April of 1870. Charles wrote a long letter to the local newspaper about the origins of a fire late in 1872, stating that it originated neither by his photograph screen taking fire nor from his stove or pipe, but burst out through the wall 18 inches below the second floor from the chimney of the adjoining billiard room. After giving the alarm, Charles ran up stairs to find his photo room full of smoke with no visible fire. Late in March of 1873 he reminded people who wanted pictures to call soon, since he would remain in East Tawas only until the opening of navigation. He studied medicine with a Doctor Rowe, and specialized in dentistry at Ludington until he sold that portion of his business in 1877. He had a medical office in Pierport for a short time before moving to Manistee in the spring of 1879. Charles married 24-year-old Mrs. Catherine Soper from Ireland on November 6, 1879. She brought along her six-year-old son Arlie and took charge of 13-year-old Lettie Conat and her five brothers ranging in age from 3 to 12: Davy, Willie, Josie, John and Charlie. Their daughter Birdelia was born in September of 1881. Charles moved into the new gallery at 341 River Street in May of 1880, and maintained a jewelry store on the first floor of this building until at least 1888, when he was listed as a photographer, jeweler and proprietor of the Eagle Clothing Company. Many of his cabinet photographs are from "Conat's Riverside Gallery" but some from the early 1890s are from "Manistee & Ludington." They include portraits with a "Celluloid Finish" and photos of supposedly prehistoric artifacts dug up in Montcalm County, which have since come to be known as the Soper Frauds. Conat cabinet photographs from "Manistee, Traverse City and Ludington" could be the work of Charles or of J. Wesley Conat, or may have resulted from their collaboration. Charles rental of a gallery at Bear Lake was reported late in 1898. He advertised nationally early in 1899: "WANTED - All-round photographer; send samples and photo of self; state salary per month; steady job; board $3.50 to $4.00...." Charles made improvements to his studio during the winter of 1899-1900. He advertised again in the summer of 1903: "WANTED - A first-class, all-around man, especially good retoucher and finisher; answer at once and state salary in first letter; steady job year round...." In 1905 Conat's Studio advertised "Artistic Portraiture. Viewing of all Descriptions. General Photographic Work. Portraits Enlarged, Crayon, Pastelle and Water Colors...." Mrs. Jennie E. Smith was proprietor of the Conat Studio at 341 River Street in 1907. Note that Charles' sons John and Ed became professional photographers. Catherine was a widow in 1920 living with the family of her daughter Birdelia at Cleveland, Ohio.

| John was born in Michigan of Canadian parentage in April of 1870, the son of photographer Charles W. Conat and his first wife, Ellen. "J. W. Conat, Jr., Artistic Photographer, Manistique, Mich." was printed on cabinet mounts. He probably was working with his father in 1900. Before 1916 he usually was listed as J. Wesley Conat. Cabinet photographs from "Manistee, Traverse City and Ludington" may have come from a collaboration between this man and Charles W. Conat. The Conat Brothers blind stamped post card photographs, including a bird's-eye view of the blazing Briny Inn showing firemen working in the below-zero cold. A 1913 advertisement was for "CONAT BROS., THE LEADING PHOTOGRAPHERS, John W. Conat, Prop. Pictures Copied and Enlarged in Pastel, India Ink, Crayon and Water Colors. Savings Bank Building Annex, MANISTEE,..." John was the sole proprietor of the Conat Brothers studio most of the time after 1911, but W. Ed Conat rejoined him for a while about 1919. "MANISTEE, Mich., July-30-24 CONAT BROS" was lettered on the negative of a post card photograph of a tree that had been uprooted by a storm and was leaning against a house. John does not seem to have married. He was living with his father in 1900, sharing space with his brother Edward in 1910 and living by himself in 1920 and in 1930. |           | 1 tm tttt mmm 3m 3tt 11 |

William was born in New York State on December 15, 1830, second of the eight children of Samuel and Rebecca (Southard) Conely. He enlisted in Company A of the First Michigan Engineers and Mechanics at Albion on September 18, 1861. His first and only marriage was to Miss Ann McCollum in Ann Arbor four days later, on September 22. Annie was born in Ann Arbor on May 24, 1840. William was mustered into the army as a private at Marshall on October 29, 1861. During the Battle of Perryville, Kentucky, on October 8, 1862, he received a gun shot wound in the right thigh which fractured the femur. He was hospitalized at Louisville, Kentucky, but the ball was never removed and to avoid extreme pain, the wound was kept open for the rest of his life. He was honorably discharged at Louisville on a surgeon's certificate of disability on December 5, 1862. He soon applied for and obtained an Invalid Pension. Ann gave birth to Katherine on June 16, 1868, and to Walter on March 26, 1872. Both were single and living with their parents in 1900. Katherine married, but by 1910 was back with her parents as a divorcee with two young daughters. The surname was spelled Conley in many of the 20th Century records. By 1908 William's wound was getting worse so that walking was difficult and a nurse was required to dress the wound every day. He was identified as an artist and was pensioned at $40.00 per month when he died of old age at Algonac on October 12, 1911. Anna qualified for a Widow's Pension of $30.00 per month and lived with or near her son in Highland Park until her death on October 13, 1921.

George was born in New York State in March of 1822, Frances was born there one year later, and in 1850 they were newlyweds boarding with 36-year-old wheelwright N. L. Pettit. At Three Rivers in 1855 George had a “Mammoth sky light ... gallery fitted up with improved facilities for taking correct likenesses of all sizes and prices, and in all kinds of weather.” He was still located in Three Rivers when he was awarded the premium for the Second Best Ambrotype exhibited at the St. Joseph County Fair in the fall of 1857. Later in that year George was “... located in Constantine for a short time, and will be happy to accommodate all who wish good Likenesses as cheap as they can be had in Western Michigan. Good Ambrotypes in cases, one dollar; on leather, fifty cents. As I shall remain but a short time ... please give me an early call.” Frances gave birth in April of 1859 to Frank, their only child. Frank married a girl named Ella about 1881. With their children, Fred, Albert, Minnie, Mellissa and Bertha, they were living with Frank’s parents in 1900. Frank and his family were farming on the Matteson Township property in 1910.

James was born in England about 1866, immigrated in 1890 and became a naturalized citizen of the United States. Her mother emigrated from England, Florence was born in Canada in May of 1875, and she married James about 1898. Their children were born in Michigan: Wilfred in February of 1900 and Dollie in 1906. James’ second wife was born in Canada in 1880 or 1881. This was Susan’s second marriage, for her 14-year-old son, William Day, was living with them in 1930. Wickes Brothers were engineers and manufacturers of boiler shop tools and saw mill machinery. One J. W. Conn was a photographer in 1899 at Wallaceburg, Ontario.

Ralph was born in Massachusetts in 1836 or 1837 and his wife, Mary, was born in New York three years later. Their three sons were born in Michigan between 1867 and 1874. Ralph discovered a natural growth of birch, hemlock and cedar which he fashioned into a rustic pulpit for presentation to the Michigan Camp Ground Association at Bay View. Hoyt S. Spencer and other photographers were commissioned to take stereo views of the pulpit, and some of these views were copyrighted by Ralph in 1878. The stereographs were sold for 50 cents, and later 25 cents, to benefit the building fund of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Petoskey. The stamp of “R. Connable, cash dealer in Books, Stationery and Musical Merchandise, Petoskey, Mich.” is found on other stereo views by H. S. Spencer and on cabinet photographs of Mackinac Island scenery. Both Spencer and Wallace S. White of Kalamazoo produced stereographs of the Connable cottage at Bay View.

Benjamin was born in New York State in March of 1833. Her parents came from New York, Helen was born in Michigan in February of 1840, and she married Benjamin about 1865. Their son Ernest was born in California about 1866, and their daughter Lola was born in Michigan in 1871 or early in 1872. The United States sent eight parties to observe and photograph the Transit of Venus from different points on the western rim of the Pacific Ocean. The party sent to Pekin, China, was headed by Professor James C. Watson of the University of Michigan as chief astronomer with Professor C. A. Young as assistant astronomer. W. V. Ranger of Syracuse, New York was chief photographer of this party with Dr. Ethan Watson of St. Joseph, Michigan, as first assistant photographer and Benjamin J. Conrad of Ann Arbor, Michigan, as second assistant photographer. The other seven parties were similarly staffed. After weeks of establishing routines and drilling in them on the Observatory grounds at Washington, they started in June and July for their various destinations, to be in place for celestial events that would occur on December 8 and 9, 1874. Benjamin's job was to coat and sensitize the plates, take them out of the baths and hand them to Mr. Ranger, who was to expose them. At times, when Venus was just making contact with the disc of the Sun or as the transit was being completed, they were exposing a plate every twenty seconds. Despite clouds that limited their success, they were able to make 99 exposures during the transit. Helen was a widow in 1910, and was providing a home in Ann Arbor for her daughter and her husband, Professor John R. Allen, and their daughter Helen. 1

Edmond was born in Indiana to parents from Pennsylvania in September of 1854, eldest of the twelve children of William and Sarah Conrad. Alice was born in Ohio to parents from Pennsylvania in October of 1859, and she married Edmond about 1877. Their four sons were born in Michigan: Guy in April of 1878, Leroy in January of 1880, Oliver in November of 1881, and Glenn William in October of 1883. "E. S. CONRAD, Landscape Artist, REED CITY, Mich." was printed on the lavender back of the orange 5 by 8 inch mount of an albumen print of a lumber mill. Edmond produced a series of at least fifteen similar views showing men in camps and in the woods with axes, saws, horses and oxen, on logging railroads, and at banking grounds, rollways and saw mills. "FROM E. S. CONRAD, Photographer, MECOSTA, MICH. VIEWS A SPECIALTY." was printed on the backs of typical stereo mounts which may have carried two identical images. The census reports in 1860, 1880 and 1900 were for Edward Conrad, and the Wylie photographer was identified as E. S. Conrad. Edmond and Alice were providing a home in 1920 for a 13-year-old grandson named George and in 1930 for a 28-year-old grandson named Kenneth.

Edward was born in New York State about 1881 to an Irish father and a Canadian mother named Barbara. His father was not around in 1880 and seems to have died prior to 1900. Barbara worked as a live-in housekeeper for the family of a farmer in 1880 and for the family of a restaurant proprietor in 1900. Edward was not employed in 1900. He seems to have lived with his mother through 1920. By 1920 he had acquired a 33-year-old wife named Esther who was born in Michigan and was working as a sales lady. In 1930 she was a clerk in the general store.

James was born in Ohio in January of 1851, third of the seven known children of John C. and Dorothy Constable. His first marriage was to a lady named Flora who was born in Ohio about 1855. In 1880 Flora was teaching school and they were boarding with the family of a farmer. Corlis & Constable offered photo-enlarging and other services, and guaranteed satisfaction. James' second marriage was to a Canadian lady, and their daughter Una was born in Michigan in April of 1893. Her parents came from Massachusetts, Rosa was born in Maine in April of 1847, and she came from Gaylord as Mrs. Rosa B. Kimberley to marry James at Ironwood on January 17, 1900. Una was living with James and Rosa later in 1900, and she was boarding at Wolverine in Cheboygan County with Milo and Hattie B. Peck in 1910. The Constable photograph gallery at the corner of Sophie and Sellar Streets in Bessemer was totally destroyed by a fire which broke out at two o'clock in the morning of Thursday, March 27, 1902. It was a one-story frame structure covered with tar paper, and it burned so rapidly that none of the contents could be saved. A strong wind was blowing at the time, but fortunately it carried the flames toward the street and away from adjacent buildings. This was the second time that James lost a Bessemer gallery to fire, and his 1902 loss was partially covered by insurance. He and his family left Bessemer during the first week of May in 1902 for Gaylord, where James planned to establish a photographic business.

James was born in Massachusetts on February 1, 1838, the son of James and Huldah Converse, who brought him to Michigan in 1840 and settled in the woods five miles west of Morenci. Here he grew to manhood and helped to clear the farm. He attended the district school, Barrows Seminary and Oak Grove Academy in the nearby village of Medina. James enlisted as a sergeant in Company F of the Eleventh Michigan Infantry on September 11, 1861, and was mustered into service on the same day. During the spring of 1862 the regiment was occupied in guarding the Louisville & Nashville Railroad against Confederate raiders. James was honorably discharged at Detroit by reason of a surgeon's certificate of disability on July 27, 1862. He returned to the family farm, but within two years had settled in Morenci and begun his photographic career. Miss Lucy Adams, daughter of Aaron Adams of Medina Township, and James were married on February 1, 1866, and made their home in Morenci. Though they were childless, by 1874 James specialized in photographs of children, as well as in copying and enlarging old pictures, and in coloring photographs nicely in India Ink. About this time his gallery was on the south side of Main Street, opposite the Exchange Hotel. Ten years later his Art Studio was "... over Green & Co's Hardware.... Copying; India Ink, Crayon and Water Color Portraits a Specialty." Lucy Converse died in Morenci after a short illness on November 19, 1914. Elwood Stoffer and his daughter Marie, cousins of Mrs. Converse, cared for James in his Morenci home until his death there on December 3, 1920. Burial was in Morenci's Oak Grove Cemetery with services under the auspices of the Masonic Lodge attended in a body by members of the G.A.R.

David was born in Canada in February of 1871 to a father from Indiana and an English mother. Minnie Louise Huxley was born in New York State in August of 1870, the only child of Nelson L. and Louisa Huxley. As newlyweds, Minnie and David lived in Mason with her parents. At the fourth annual convention of the Michigan Photographers Association, held at Grand Rapids on February 1, 1899, D. J. Cook of Mason was awarded the first prize in Class C, twelve pictures of any size by a photographer from a town with a population of three thousand or less. Minnie gave birth to Emily Louise and James in Illinois between 1905 and 1907. Two of her 1910 neighbors in Effingham, Lewis H. Birsell and Felix A. Raymer, were identified as photographers and probably were instructors at the Illinois College of Photography. Her children still were at home in 1930. Emily was working as a receptionist and James was an interior decorator.

Fred was born in New York State on April 7, 1879, last of the four children of Richard H. and Zernah Cook. He became a slim man with blue eyes and light hair. Martha was born in Michigan about 1880 and married Frederick in the early 1900s. Their daughter Lois was born in Michigan in 1905. "Cook Studio, Bangor" and captions were mechanically printed below the images on post card photographs of such subjects as a store in Bangor and the Congregational Church in Grand Junction. Some of the cards were postmarked in 1910. "COOK STUDIO, BANGOR, MICH." was stamped at the upper left corner of an envelope which was addressed to Mrs. C. B. Grant in Lawrence, Michigan, and enclosed four negatives of an automobile wreck. "3 each on cards" was penciled on the envelope at the lower left, apparently by Fred, indicating that the envelope originally held twelve post cards as well. Oddly, the envelope was postmarked in May of 1917, and "Mitchell smashup, June 1917" was penciled at the upper right in a different hand.

Theodore was born on September 2, 1854, at Beechville, Ontario, to William J. and Armina Cook. His parents were born in Canada, but all four grandparents were born in New York. His family moved to Dowagiac about 1862, and he attended the Dowagiac schools. Her parents came from New York and Mary was born in Michigan in November of 1862. She married Theodore about 1880, and their daughter Mabel was born in Michigan in March of 1883. According to some of Theodore's cabinet mounts, the Hartford gallery was on East Main Street. When he first moved back to Dowagiac, he advertised as a "Photographer. Portrait Painting, Crayon Work and Enlarging." Mary was managing a nursery in 1920, and in 1930 was a widow living in Chicago with her daughter, Mrs. Charles B. Hawker.

He was born in May of 1828 and grew up in Penn Yan, New York. Cookingham & Iams first advertised in the Jackson Weekly Citizen on August 4, 1852. Cookingham employed Mr. M. Finlay as a daguerreian artist in 1853. His first advertisement for ambrotypes was in February of 1856, and a year later he was offering ambrotypes and melainotypes from his newly outfitted studio in the same building, which had been renamed. A woodcut book illustration was made from his ambrotype of the Michigan State Prison at Jackson. He and Ann C. Cookingham were sharing a home in 1860, when they both were identified as artists. Ann was born in New York State in 1830 or 1831. Israel used a script "Cookingham" or "Cook" to cancel revenue stamps on cartes de visite. Some photograph mounts identify him only as "Cookingham," but all other card and cabinet mounts use "J. V. Cookingham." He was Israel V. Cookingham in 1862 tax records, James V. Cookingham in the gazetteer for 1863, and J. V. Cookingham in gazetteers until 1875, when his initials changed to I. V. and then to J. B. or I. B. In the 1880s his identification stabilized as Israel V. Cookingham first in local directories and then in the gazetteers. Some time between 1862 and 1866 his gallery moved from the Merriman Building to the Smith Brothers Block, where it remained for the rest of his career. He employed John Esselstyn and Mary Lowell as photographers in 1870. He joined the National Photographic Association before June of 1870, and the NPA monogram was printed on some of his card mounts during the next few years. His studio was called the Dollar Gallery in the later 1870s. He was identified as a widower in 1880. Miss Etta Miller, his niece, worked for him from 1878 until 1883 and they seem to have married, for he had a 51-year-old wife named Etta in 1900. From 1884 until 1891 the gazetteers listed the gallery at 126 West Main Street just as consistently as local directories placed it at 124. Late in 1894 the I. V. Cookingham Studio was sold to Colonel John W. Paine, who proceeded to consolidate it with his adjacent rooms. At the age of 76, despondent over his health and personal problems, Israel took his own life.

Flora was born in Maine in October of 1847, the elder child of Franklin R. and Caroline Copeland. Her brother Stanley was born in Michigan in 1855 or early in 1856. She lived with her parents through 1870, but was on her own in East Saginaw. Her partners in Detroit were Daniel Angell and Ambrose J. Diehl. In the 1910 census, Flora was reported to be several years younger than indicated above. She was boarding at this time on the farm of Charles M. and Hattie B. Green, and living on her own income.

James was born in Alabama on June 21, 1874, the son of George and Mary D. Corbitt. His sister Annie was two years younger and his sister Bettie was born in November of 1879. James became a tall man with a medium build, blue eyes and dark brown hair. James' next door neighbor, and possibly his employer, at Cape Girardeau was a 33-year-old photographer named George Kassel. Alvia was born in Missouri to German parents in December of 1880, and she was called Bouch. She married James in 1900, and their daughter Dorothy was born in Missouri a year later. This marriage did not last. Martha was born in Georgia in 1877, and she married James about 1918. Their four daughters, Nan, Jo, Martha and Floria, were born in Michigan between 1913 and 1918. James was listed as manager of the Home Portrait Studio in 1922.

His parents came from Indiana and New Jersey, and Montgomery was born on the family farm in Allegan Township, Michigan, on December 28, 1861. His sister Clara was four years older and his brother Frank was two years older. By 1870 his father Henry was gone and his mother Emily was working as a dress maker to support herself and her three children. He still was living in 1880 with his widowed mother. He married, he and his wife had three children, and they were divorced by 1900. From Muskegon Montgomery moved to Princeton, Minnesota. Law was his primary occupation, but he continued to do photography on the side. He began having delusions, and was committed to a state hospital in 1913. He died in a different state hospital on June 7, 1942. Augusta, Georgia, had a photographer named M. L. Cormany about 1885.

Harry was born at Fremont, Ohio, on September 21, 1886, the son of James Perry Cornelius and Clara Cornelius. His three sisters, Maude, Clara and Lucy, were born in Ohio between 1875 and 1880, and his brother William was born there in 1890. Harry probably had more to do with the operation of the Cornell Studios than is indicated here. In 1917 he was a stout married man of average height with light brown eyes and was partly bald. His wife was named Bertha, and she was born in Michigan in 1890. The address changes during 1920 of Cornelius Brothers from 95 to 521 Woodward Avenue, and of the Cornell Studio from 16 ½ to 46 Monroe Avenue, were due to revision of the entire Detroit numbering system rather than to relocation.

William was born January 21, 1890, at Fremont, Ohio, last of the five children of James Perry Cornelius and Clara Cornelius. He was a single man of medium size in 1917, with blue eyes and dark hair. By 1920 he was married to Grace, born in Michigan in 1892, and by 1925 they had a son named Ben. The interplay and mutations of the Cornell Studios and the Cornelius brothers were much more complex than shown above. See the entry on the Cornell Studios for further information. In the early 1920s the directories vacillated between listing William as a photographer in his own name and as proprietor of the Cornell Studio. He was dealing in radio supplies as well as photography at that time. William died after a brief illness on July 22, 1960, at Deaconess Hospital in Detroit, and was survived by his wife Grace and son Ben. Burial was in Oakview Cemetery.

Spencer was born in 1844 or 1845 in New York State, third of the six children of Alfred and Amanda Cornell. His father was a minister of the gospel. Spencer was enrolled at Norwalk, Ohio, for 100 days as a private in Company B of the 166th Ohio Infantry on May 2, 1864. On May 15 he was mustered into the army with his company at Cleveland, Ohio, and he served as a musician. His term of service having expired, he was mustered out of the army at Cleveland on September 9, 1864. He came home with the "army diarrhea" as a souvenir of his military experience. Spencer advertised in 1868: "YES! S. C. CORNELL has located his studio with G. W. Clark's Photographic rooms, where he will devote his whole time and attention to copying from the smallest locket picture to life size, and Finishing in India Ink and Colors. As an Artist, Mr. Cornell is not surpassed in the State, and is the only one in Northern Michigan who works in India Ink. Now is the time for those who have lost friends in the army to get good pictures of them... Remember the place - with G. W. Clark, adjoining Union Block, Ionia, Mich." Spencer and Miss Sarah O. Cook were married by his father in or near the home of her parents at Grattan in Kent County, Michigan, on December 24, 1869. Sarah was born about 1844 to Luther B. and Nancy Cook in Oakland County, Michigan, and she was second of their six children. Sarah gave birth to Katie at Grattan on December 9, 1870, and to Fred at Greenville on December 5, 1873. Beginning in 1877, Spencer was employed off and on as an artist or photographer by Lorenzo K. Showman for six or seven years. His continued trouble with chronic diarrhea contributed to the development of the pulmonary consumption that was the immediate cause of Spencer's death at Portland on May 4, 1885. Sarah and her children continued to live in Portland for several years. She was receiving a Widow's Pension of $12.00 per month when she died late in 1898 or early in 1899.

Warren was born in Michigan in 1846 or early in 1847, fourth of the six children of Alfred and Amanda Cornell. His father was a Baptist clergyman. His oldest brothers, Augustus and Seymour, were born in Michigan between 1837 and 1840. His brother Spencer was two years older than Warren, and became a soldier and then a photographer. His sister Emma and brother Arthur were born in Michigan between 1851 and 1856. Warren still was living with his parents in 1870, and was without an occupation. He was not specifically identified as Spencer's partner in 1872, but was by far the most likely possibility of Spencer's three brothers. He was boarding with an Ionia family that included school-age sons in 1880, and was noted to be handicapped by general debility.

Often called the Cornell Studios, this business was owned and operated by Harry E. Cornelius and William H. Cornelius until the early 1920s, when William became the sole proprietor. From 1910 until 1914 many of the addresses listed in the directories for the Cornelius Brothers or for Harry Cornelius were printed on the backs of post card photographs in various combinations along with one of the Toledo addresses shown above. Two other common imprints were: "CORNELL STUDIOS, DETROIT-TOLEDO" and "CORNELL STUDIO, DETROIT, MICH." Both plain and ornate chairs were available to those posing for portraits, as well as painted flats representing a speed boat, a race car, a touring car, the water wagon, a fence with a lady adjusting her stocking and other scenes for those who wanted to add novelty to their postal portraits. A couple of these flats were prepared specifically for the Elks Convention during the summer of 1910. Top hats apparently were supplied by the studio when appropriate, but a band of five fellows brought their own violin, banjo, mandolin, flute and bones. "35 Years of Quality Work, 1910 .....1945! CORNELL STUDIO, FOTOS – KODAKS..... 6 HOUR KODAK SERVICE, GREETING CARDS, PASSPORTS, IDENTIFICATION Fotos While U Wait" was printed on one side of folders for prints, while "PHOTOGRAPHS OF ALL KINDS. Cornell Studios. 35 Years at 521 Woodward Avenue. WE COPY OLD PHOTOS. Enlargements. Take a magnifying glass and look at some of your prints. See how it brings out details and features you never noticed before. An enlargement gives you the same results in permanent form, and can be made from the entire negative or any portion of it. We will gladly show you samples of enlargements, framed, mounted, or unmounted for placing in your album." was printed on the other side. Similar folders with different numbers were used in 1941.

Charles was born in Fulton County, New York, on September 24, 1821, to Ann (Warn) and Ashwell Cornwall, Junior. He left home when he was eleven and made his own living as outlined above. About 1844 he married 18-year-old Miss Anna A. Lefferts at Rexford Flats, New York, and their son Charles was born in New York in August of 1845. In 1850 he built a house on the east side of Marshall Street two doors north of Hull Street in Coldwater, which he still occupied in 1906 though he had traveled all over the country during his early years as a Coldwater home owner. Charles succeeded James Tripp in the gallery on the second floor of Moore's Block in Coldwater. His work was mentioned in Coldwater newspapers in January, April and August of 1869. In addition to the usual portraits he photographed a continuous spinning machine patented by two Coldwater men in April of 1871. He took stereo views when Coldwater streets and buildings were snow covered, and offered "Pictures Taken in Every Style, and Satisfaction Guaranteed." in 1874. His views around Coldwater and Branch County were news in August of 1878, and his picture of the State School was commended by the press in October of 1878. Views of Coldwater published in the New York Daily Graphic in 1882 were made from photographs by Charles. He was in Milwaukee in August of 1883 for the annual convention of the Photographers' Association of America. By 1889 he was "C. T. CORNWELL. THE OLD RELIABLE PHOTOGRAPHER At the same Old Place, No. 46 Chicago Street,... An experience of forty-six years ought to satisfy the public that he is capable of doing satisfactory work. HIS WORK SPEAKS FOR ITSELF." Charles had given up the Chicago Street gallery by 1900, and had moved his studio into his Marshall Street home. His wife died on May 8, 1904, and his son was living in Chicago at that time. In 1906 Charles was still acknowledged to be expert in daguerreotype work, and to have retained a fine selection of daguerreotypes taken more than fifty years earlier. He was living by himself in 1910, but by 1920 his son Charles had moved back to Coldwater with his wife and they were providing a home for the old photographer. Charles observed his one-hundredth birthday in Coldwater.

His father was from New York, his mother was Canadian, and Emerson was born in Indiana in August of 1847. He was eighth of the nine children of Benjamin F. and Mary Corpe. By 1860 his mother was married to John Kitchen, and Emerson and his younger sister were step-children in a fairly large farm family. He enlisted as a musician in Company E of the 100th Indiana Infantry at Kendallville, Indiana, on August 12, 1862. While serving in March of 1863 at Hickory Valley near Grand Junction, Tennessee, Emerson was sick with chills and fever for several weeks while exposed to rain and mud and all kinds of weather, resulting in deafness and the loss of most of his teeth. He seems to have believed that his treatment by the camp doctors in field tents was more harmful than helpful. He was mustered out as a private with his company at Washington, D. C., on June 8 and honorably discharged at Indianapolis, Indiana, on June 18, 1865. Sarah was born in Ohio in February of 1845 to parents from Maryland, and she married Emerson about 1874. Their daughter Edna was born in Michigan a year later, but neither of their two children lived to maturity. As a veteran, Emerson applied for an Invalid Pension in July of 1888, but apparently was not successful. He was five feet seven inches tall with a fair complexion, light brown hair and blue eyes at this time. He applied successfully in July of 1890, and received his last monthly pension of twelve dollars on December 4, 1906. The pension was stopped because of his death.

Fred was born in Michigan in 1862 or 1863. Her parents came from New York, Emma was born in Michigan in 1866 or 1867, she married Fred about 1888, and their sons Ray and Vernon were born in Michigan between 1891 and 1895. The gazetteers consistently spelled the name "Corey" through 1909, and just as consistently spelled it "Cory" after that. It was spelled "Corry" on blind stamped photograph mounts and in four other sources. Fred was not working in 1920, but both sons were at home and had good jobs. Emma was a widow in 1930, and was living in Saint Louis with a widowed daughter-in-law and a granddaughter.

This company was successor to the American Corte-Scope Company that operated out of Toledo, Ohio, from 1911 until 1914. Both companies were founded by Harry N. Clarke, and they specialized in producing sets of views for large manufacturing companies illustrating their factories and products. The sets included a folding viewer of a design patented and assigned to the company in 1914. The stereographs were in an unusual format: 3¾ by 6½ inch photographic paper a little heavier than a typical post card photograph, and not mounted to any card stock. The logo on the back of some of the stereographs included: "The Corte-Scope, THE MIRROR WITH A MEMORY. CORTE-SCOPIC PHOTOGRAPHS MAN'F'D EXCLUSIVELY BY THE CORTE-SCOPE COMPANY, CLEVELAND, OHIO. Patent Applied For." Series of from 15 to 90 scenes in many Detroit factories were published, including the Adams X-Ray Company, the Anderson Electric Car Company, the Cadillac Motor Car Company, the Chalmers Motor Company, the Federal Motor Truck Company, the Hudson Motor Car Company, the Maxwell Motor Company, the Packard Motor Car Company, the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company, the Pingree Company (shoes), the Timken-Detroit Axle Company, the Trojan Laundry Company, the U. S. Radiator Company, and the Morgan & Wright factory of the U. S. Tire Company. Similar series were published of the Buick Motor Car Company in Flint and the Mutual Motors Company in Jackson. Most of the stereo photographs seem to have been taken by Albert K. Hibbard, who worked for Underwood & Underwood in the United States and Europe from 1904 until 1914 and became Secretary and Chief Photographer of the Corte-Scope Company in 1915.

His father came from Maryland, his mother came from New York, and Wilkie was born in Ohio in November of 1859, second of the three sons of John and Dulcena F. Coss. For the first twenty years or more, he was known as William G. Coss. His father was enumerated as a shoe maker in 1850, and was a Springfield photographer from 1859 until 1877. His mother died in the late 1860s, and by 1870 his father was married to a 32-year-old lady named Elizabeth. In 1880 Elizabeth was a widow, and was providing a home for William and his younger brother Albert. Margaret was born in Ohio in July of 1863, and she married Wilkie about 1886. Their only child, Rachel, was born in Ohio in August of 1888. Bayne & Coss employed Miss Nellie C. Stebbins as a retoucher in 1891. After managing their Grand Rapids branch studio for two years, Wilkie purchased it from Detroit photographers Arthur & Philbric and continued business at the same address in his own name. He made a specialty of theatrical work. He was awarded one of the Cramer badges for work submitted to the St. Louis convention of the Photographers' Association of America in July of 1894. Bertha Von Cloedt was his clerk in 1894, Miss Ella M. Carlton was his retoucher in 1894 and 1895, and Frank Schindler was his photo printer in 1895. He advertised nationally in June of 1895: "FOR SALE - Leading photographic studio in Grand Rapids, Michigan, second city in the State; over 12,000 registered negatives; cabinets $3 to $6 per dozen; everything first-class and in good condition. Terms easy...." He apparently sold the studio to W. Hobart Harper, who was managing the Grand Art Studio at 21 Canal Street in 1896. A photographic periodical noted late in 1895 that "Wilkie G. Coss of the Hammer Dry Plate Company is making a trip through the West. Coss is a good fellow and a welcome addition to the ranks." Margaret and Rachel were living in Oberlin in 1900 with the family of Margaret's sister, Mrs. Ellen D. Brightman. Rachel and her husband, William S. Cochran, were providing a home for her widowed mother in 1930.

Abraham was born in England in May of 1825, and was 35 years old, five feet seven inches tall with grey eyes, dark hair and a dark complexion when he enlisted on August 12, 1861, as First Lieutenant in Company E, "The Elder Zouaves," of the Eighth Michigan Volunteer Infantry. During the capture of Port Royal, South Carolina, early in November of 1861, Abraham did an exceptional job of organizing troops landing from transports and led an assault on a rebel battery on the Coosaw River. These acts were cited by General Isaac Stevens in his reports, and Abraham was appointed aide-de-camp to Stevens in January of 1862. During a review of troops in April, Abraham's horse fell on him and badly fractured his right shoulder, which troubled him for the rest of his life. He was back commanding his company on June 16 in the fight for Secessionville on James Island, South Carolina, and was severely wounded in the side and back while leading an attack on Battery Lamar. He was originally listed as killed in action, but actually was taken prisoner, survived crude medical treatment, and was interned at Charleston, Columbia and Richmond's Libby Prison before his exchange on October 6, 1862. He rejoined the Eighth Michigan on December 19, and was immediately promoted to Captain. Abraham was discharged for disability on March 19, 1863, and returned to Lansing where he married a young lady named Sarah who was born in Indiana in 1843 or early in 1844. He was appointed First Lieutenant in Company F of the Sixteenth Regiment of the Veteran Reserve Corps in August of 1863, and began organizing and training recruits for the field at Elmira, New York. He was promoted to Captain in December of 1863, and supervised recruit training at Camp Butler and Camp Rendezvous, Illinois, and at Carlisle Barracks and Camp Curtin, Pennsylvania, through 1864 and into 1865. From June to September of 1865 he commanded Camp Return at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, where troops were mustered out of service and he was again discharged for disability. Sarah died in 1872, leaving Abraham with two daughters: Kate was born March 24, 1864, and Mable was born December 9, 1870. Caroline L. Palmer, a young woman born in Indiana in July of 1844 and related to Sarah, soon moved in to care for the children and for Abraham who was often bedridden with his disabilities. She stayed with them for 25 years. After Abraham's death on January 16, 1901, the Lansing post of the GAR draped their meeting hall in mourning crepe for thirty days.

| Raymond was born in Michigan on January 23, 1886. His brothers also were born here: Edwin in August of 1887 and Royal in January of 1891. Their mother, Mrs. Catherine Coughlin, was born in Canada to Irish parents in May of 1857 and was a widow by 1900. Ray became a medium sized man with blue eyes and dark hair that had turned grey by 1918. He never married, and he seems to have lived with his mother through 1930. He was hired by the Ford Motor Company as an inspector in the automatic screw machine department on June 6, 1923. One week later he was transferred to the Photographic Department to fill in for Mr. Feast, a photographer who needed to travel to outlying Ford properties. Ray worked under C. R. Frede at Ford as a still camera man, photographer and laboratory man. He resigned from the Ford Motor Company due to ill health. His Social Security Number, 073-09-8787, was issued in New York before 1951. Raymond died in Michigan in March of 1965. |           | 3 111 31 44444 66 |

William was born to John and Sarah (Huppard) Courliss at Southfield, Michigan, probably on May 15, 1847. John seems to have died, and Sarah married Henry Ketchum in the early 1850s. William soon found himself to be a stepson living with several older Ketchum siblings and a little half-brother and half-sister. He was 5 feet 6 inches tall with a light complexion, blue eyes and light hair when he was enrolled at Lapeer as a private in Company G of the reorganized Third Michigan Infantry on October 5, 1864. He was identified as Henry Courliss in some military records. His regiment was hemmed in by the Confederate Army under General Hood early in 1865 at Murfreesboro, Tennessee, where they suffered from exposure and poor rations. William was stricken with typhoid fever about January 15, and was sent to the hospital. The fever left him with kidney problems and too weak for military duty so he never rejoined his company. He was honorably discharged for disability at Murfreesboro on May 20, 1865. His first and only marriage was to Miss Mary Navarre on May 10, 1873, at Perrysburg, Ohio. Mary was born in 1850 at Monroe, Michigan. William's family name was spelled Curliss in Detroit directories for 1880 and 1881, and Courtiss in the gazetteers for 1897, 1899 and 1901. His pension application filed early in 1885 was based upon his kidney disease and general debility. It was witnessed by the photographer Eugene M. Haight, who contributed an affidavit supporting William's claim a year later. Cabinets were William's specialty about 1886. He was succeeded in Marine City by William S. Bezell. William and Mary never had children, but in 1900 and 1910 they were raising Pearl B. Patterson, a niece born in Mississippi in August of 1895. William's pension was increased to $72.00 per month in May of 1920. He was living on a Caro rural route in Almer Township of Tuscola County at the time of his death from an embolism on March 23, 1925. Mary lived at Port Huron on a Widow's Pension of $38.00 per month until her death on August 6, 1934.

His parents came from Vermont, Daniel was born on February 26, 1827, in Steuben County, New York, and he probably was the brother of Eleazor J. Covey. He was 5 feet 10 inches tall with blue eyes, light hair and a light complexion when he enlisted at Coldwater in Company H of the Ninth Michigan Cavalry on March 7, 1863. The Ninth was armed with Spencer rifles, and left Coldwater in May of 1863 for Cincinnati. They moved to Mt. Sterling, Kentucky, in June to pursue guerillas, and succeeded in capturing Morgan's chief of staff and several of his men. About June 20 at Hickman Bridge, Kentucky, Daniel was stricken with the chronic diarrhea and rheumatism which plagued him for the rest of his life. He was sent to the West End Hospital at Cincinnati, and then early in July to Ward 36 at Camp Dennison, Ohio. He was unable to walk for five months and spent time in two other wards before being honorably discharged at Camp Dennison as unfit for service in the Invalid Corps on March 7, 1864. He first applied in 1878, and seems to have been granted an Invalid Pension about 1880. Two years later he added to his chronic health problems absent mindedness resulting from a head injury incurred during his army service. His inability to remember names, dates and circumstances was a great embarrassment to him and a detriment in conducting any business. While living with his widowed aunt Hannah Brooks he was enumerated as a gentleman in 1870 and as a farmer in 1880. Daniel was 56 years old when he married for the first time at Fulton on January 24, 1884. His bride was Miss Carrie Cartright who was born in New York in May of 1855. They never had children. The farms on which the Coveys lived were in Wakeshma Township of Kalamazoo County from 1887 until 1904, and then in neighboring Brady Township until 1910, but Fulton always was the closest village. Daniel and Carrie were providing a home in 1910 for a three-year-old cousin, Lois Cartright. Carrie survived Daniel, who died at Fulton on April 20, 1913.

Eleazor was born on February 12, 1832, at Cherryride in Howard Township of Steuben County, New York, and probably was the brother of Daniel B. Covey. He was 5 feet 8 inches tall with blue eyes, light hair and a fair complexion when he enlisted at Kalamazoo in Company A of the Eleventh Michigan Volunteer Infantry on December 30, 1863. He was mustered into the service five days later and joined his regiment at Rossville, Georgia, on January 28, 1864. On March 30 Eleazor was transferred to Company F. The regiment had battles during General Sherman's Georgia Campaign in the spring of 1864 at Buzzard's Roost on May 10, at Resaca on May 14, at New Hope Church on May 27, at Kenesaw Mountain from June 22 through June 27, at Rough's Station on July 3 and 4, and at Peach Tree Creek on July 30. They took part in the siege of Atlanta, Georgia, from July 20 until August 27, 1864. About this time Eleazor was afflicted with chronic diarrhea. At the end of September of 1864, he and other recent recruits stayed in the field while most of the Eleventh returned to Michigan to reorganize. October found Eleazor in the Regimental Hospital at Chattanooga, Tennessee. He was transferred to General Hospital Number Three at Nashville in November and remained there until late in April of 1865. Eleazor was honorably discharged at Nashville on May 22, 1865. He and Miss Aurelia P. Casey were married at Albany, Wisconsin, on July 5, 1866. Their daughter May J. Covey was born on May 16, 1867, and their twin daughters Myrta A. and Bertha P. Covey were born July 27, 1871. Sons born in 1869 and 1873 died as infants. The 1870 and 1880 census reports place the Covey residence at Afton, a smaller town nine miles east of Creston. Eleazor seems to have been granted an Invalid Pension because of his chronic diarrhea about 1890. Their daughter Bertha married Arthur W. Nichols about 1908, and in 1910 was providing a home for Aurelia and Eleazor. Aurelia died at Waverly on October 21, 1912. Eleazor was in poor health and becoming feeble, and he seems to have stayed with the Nichols family until Arthur died, and then spent his last four years in the Ottawa home of his widowed daughter, Mrs. Bertha Nichols. He died there of apoplectic paralysis on March 9, 1918. His body was returned to Waverly for burial.

One Horace Covey was born in New York State about 1835, fourth of the eight children of James and Lorinda Covey. The family moved to Michigan shortly after his birth, and farmed in Eaton Rapids Township of Eaton County for many years. Horace was living with his parents as a farmer in 1850 and 1860. By 1870 he had acquired a farm of his own down the road from his father, a 25-year-old English wife named Eliza, and a daughter and two sons born between 1863 and 1868. Saranac is about forty miles northwest of Eaton Rapids Township as the crow flies, but more like fifty five miles along country roads or ninety five miles by rail.

Alfred was born in England in January of 1854. He immigrated in 1887, and seems to have left behind a wife and a five-year-old daughter named Sybil. By 1900 he was a naturalized citizen of the United States. Her parents emigrated from Germany, Josie was born in Michigan in February of 1866, and she became Alfred's second wife about 1894. Their daughter Helen was born in July of 1896, and their son Alfred was born in 1901 or 1902. Sybil married a Roumanian named Popine about 1903 and emigrated from England in 1909 with her one-year-old son Anthony. Alfred's household in 1910 included Sybil and Anthony. Alfred was working on the family fruit farm in 1920. Josie was known as Josephine in 1920 and 1930, and in 1930 she was a widow and a housekeeper for an insurance agent and his son.

His mother emigrated from England and Frank was born in Canada on February 28, 1874, sixth of the nine children of Henry and Mary Ann Craig. He immigrated with his family in 1880 and became a United States citizen when his father was naturalized while Frank was a minor. Her father emigrated from Germany and Mary was born in Canada in April of 1877. She came to the United States and married Frank about 1898, and then gave birth to Lela M. Craig and Frances Genevieve Craig between 1904 and 1907. "F. W. Craig" was blind stamped into the charcoal mounts of 6 by 8 inch photographs of the 1905 Midland baseball team and of a business block on Midland's Main Street. "CRAIG BROTHERS" was printed on a photograph mount from the early 1900s with no other information. The mount is in a collection from the vicinity of Millersburg and Onaway. Note that Frank was two years older than his brother Joseph. In December of 1911 a couple in Millersburg received a post card photograph of their five month old daughter seated in a sleigh the size of a baby carriage with the message: "Hello Pa & Ma. I just thought I'd run down from Onaway in my sly & tell you that Mr. Craig has all of our pictures finished. Baby." Frank was stout with brown eyes and black hair in 1918.

| Benjamin was born at Yurburg in Lithuania on October 20, 1889, and came to the United States when he was 13 years old. He grew up speaking Yiddish and learned German, Russian, Lithuanian and some Polish, and he became a short and slender man with brown eyes and black hair. He planned a career in fine arts and spent some time selling women's clothes in Minnesota, but found his field in photography. Much of his success was based upon his unusual pictorial studies of children. He enjoyed German food, golf, serious movies and photographing the little odd outdoor scenes. He read biographies and technical articles on photography. He and his partner, Harry M. Feinberg, were the same age and had the same background, and in 1920 they and five others were rooming in the same building. From 1925 until 1932 Benjamin was also proprietor of the Frame Shoppe in the Stroh Building. Max Ellis owned the Craine Studios in 1934, and Benjamin was listed as manager of both studios in the Stroh building from 1934 through 1937. Isadore Feinberg owned the Rembrandt Studios in 1934, and Benjamin was listed as manager only in 1935. Beginning in 1938 Benjamin was secretary of the company that owned the Craine Studios. He married for the first time only a few years before he died after a brief illness on May 9, 1943. He was survived by two brothers and his widow, Mrs. Brinnie N. Craine. Burial was in Clover Hill Park. From 1943 through 1948, Mrs. Benjamin H. Avery was born at Mankato, Minnesota, in June of 1870, the son of Hillsboro judge Rudolph Crandall and his wife Elizabeth O. Crandall, and the brother of photographer Robert S. Crandall of Duluth, Minnesota. In February of 1889 both Avery and Robert were in Company B of the First Infantry Regiment of the Oregon National Guard. Avery called himself a portrait and landscape artist in Hillsboro, and offered copying, enlarging and landscape painting there. John E. and Agnes McClelland emigrated from Canada and their daughter Jennie was born in Michigan in February of 1873. Jennie married Avery about 1896. In the spring of 1898 it was reported that Avery had purchased the Cheboygan gallery of Fernando C. Hoskins, but had retained the gallery in Lewiston which he planned to visit about once a month. Some cabinet mounts of the late 1890s were blind stamped: "Crandall, Cheboygan and Gaylord, Mich." John E. McClelland, Avery's father-in-law, was a principal of Crandall & Company in Gaylord. Avery was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905. "CRANDALL PHOTO STUDIO, PHOTOS, CRAYONS, WATER COLORS, Cheboygan & Gaylord, Mich." was stamped on the back of 5 by 3 ½ inch mounts about 1905. "CRANDALL" was marked on the negatives of post card photographs of Cheboygan with postmarks of 1907 and 1908. Avery advertised nationally in the summer of 1908: "FOR SALE - Ground floor studio; main street of manufacturing city of 10,000; fine stock art goods, Kodaks and framing. Fine climate for hay fever sufferers. Crandall Studio, Cheboygan, Mich." Jennie presented Avery with a daughter they named Gladys in August of 1909.

His father came from Canada and Arthur was born in Vermont on June 5, 1885. He was living in 1900 with his grandparents, Azro H. and Ruth A. Kenison. He may have been the son of James and May S. (Kenison) Crawford. Elsie was born in Vermont in 1884 to parents that emigrated from England, and she married Arthur about 1903. Their son Arthur Ray Crawford was born in New York in 1904, and their son Ralph C. Crawford was born in Vermont in May of 1909. "Made by A. E. Crawford, Hillsdale, Mich." was stamped using very small lettering on the backs of post card photographs of a fire in Hillsdale's business section in March of 1914, and of the Corlett Lumber Yard fire in June of 1913. He took both ground level and bird's eye views while the lumber-yard fire was raging and later of the ruins. Another photo postmarked in 1914 had "CITY HALL, HILLSDALE, MICH. - © A. E. C." lettered on its negative. Other postal photos were blind stamped: "CRAWFORD STUDIO, HILLSDALE, MICH." A sign with "CRAWFORD STUDIO" appeared in postal photographs of the west side of Howell Street during this period. "MICHIGAN NATIONAL GUARD CAMP AT GRAYLING" and "PHOTO BY A. E. CRAWFORD, HILLSDALE" were lettered on the negative from which 6½ by 31 inch panoramic photos were printed. While Arthur was at Atlanta in 1918, Elsie was in Chattanooga, Tennessee. In 1920 she was a widow providing a home for her sons in South Jacksonville, Florida, and working in a shop as a photographer. 1

Asahel was born in Ontario County, New York, to Mr. and Mrs. Jacob A. Crawford on December 23, 1831. He and 19-year-old Miss Charlotte F. Wyckoff were married in Macomb Township of Macomb County on May 15, 1856. Their four sons; Fred, Edwin, Charles and Perrin, were born about 1859, 1864, 1866 and 1868. Asahel was five feet seven inches tall with a fair complexion, brown hair and gray eyes when he was drafted into the army for one year at Pontiac on March 21, 1865. He was mustered as a private at Pontiac on April 10, and was assigned to Company B of the Fifteenth Michigan Infantry. He arrived on April 12 at the draft rendezvous in Jackson, Michigan, and left there on April 17 to arrive on April 19 at Hart Island, New York. From there he was shipped by sea on April 27 to the camp of distribution at New Orleans, arriving on May 2. He finally joined his regiment at Washington, D. C., on May 21, just in time to take part in the Grand Review with Sherman's Army on May 24. Asahel was admitted to Harper Hospital on August 4, and was honorably discharged at Detroit on September 11, 1865. In the years that followed, Asahel lived at Romeo, Milford, Walled Lake, Oakland Township and Goodison, Michigan. Citing advanced age and two hernias, he applied for an Invalid Pension in May of 1904. His pension was increased from $12.00 to $20.00 per month in February of 1907. He died at Goodison from gangrene of the left foot on July 4, 1911. Charlotte lived on at Goodison on a Widow's Pension which reached $25.00 per month until she suffered a brain concussion from a fall down the basement stairs and died three days later, on May 8, 1918. Burial was in Paint Creek Cemetery.

George was born in Ohio in 1840, and was twenty years old when he acquired the gallery opposite the Kalamazoo House from Hollis E. Bunker. He opened the refitted gallery in July of 1860, and began offering photographs, ferrotypes and ambrotypes "... which for life like beauty and excellence are nowhere surpassed." On April 22, 1861, he enlisted as First Sergeant in Company I of the Second Michigan Volunteer Infantry. He was mustered into the army with the regiment on May 25, and was commissioned Second Lieutenant on September 22, 1861. George was promoted to First Lieutenant on December 4, 1861. He resigned his commission and was discharged on a surgeon's certificate of disability on January 27, 1863. No Veterans Pension Record was found for George.

“Crescent Photo Co.” was printed below the image on a cabinet photograph of two boys that were identified in ink on the back of the mount as Wallace & Arthur Welch. “Allegan, MI” was penciled underneath their names. These boys probably were the sons of Charles B. and Martha E. Welch. Arthur Henry Welch was born on October 2, 1883, and Wallace W. Welch was born in July of 1888. They were living on the family farm in Saugatuck Township of Allegan County in 1900, and each of them had their own farm adjacent to that of their father in 1910. The approximate date of the photograph was estimated from the apparent ages of the pictured boys.

Russell was born in New York State in 1831 or 1832. Richard Delafield was head of the Department of Engineers during the Civil War. Late in 1863 and early in 1864 his department in Chattanooga employed R. M. Cressey and H. Goldsticker to photograph bridges, railroad lines and battlegrounds. A photograph from this period by Russell of a railroad bridge across Chattanooga Creek is held by the Special Collections Division of the United States Military Academy Library at West Point, New York. A 10 by 13 inch print from the same negative is in the "Chattanooga Album" held by George Eastman House, along with three of his 10 by 13 views of the Tennessee River at Chattanooga and his view of the railroad at the foot of Lookout Mountain. At Little Rock he was a "Practical Photographer" that gave particular attention "to outside views of Camps, Companies, Regiments, Batteries, &c., on Short Notice at Reasonable Terms." Russell married a lady named Martha who was born in Ohio about 1847, and their daughter Linda was born in Indiana in December of 1869. This notice appeared in a photographic journal early in 1872: "We regret to learn that Cressy, the late partner of Mr. W. McLeish, St. Paul, Min., has absconded and carried away a great deal of property and money belonging to Mr. McLeish. The defaulter is advertised by his late partner." Russell employed Clarence Weed in 1873. The subjects of his stereo views ranged from the lumber mills at Bay City to a Wenona Sunday school class. His article on printing and toning albumen paper appeared early in 1874 in the same photographic journal which a month later reported upon a meeting of the photographers of Northern Michigan. They met in Bay City and organized a society with R. M. Cressey as chairman and J. H. Scotford as secretary. A committee was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws for consideration at the next meeting, to be held at East Saginaw. Russell still was a married man in 1880, but his wife was not with him in Wabash.

Michael was born in Galway, Ireland, on August 18, 1839, was brought to America in 1843, and became a naturalized citizen of the United States. He was living and working on the farm of George W. Chilson in 1860, and associating with George's 23-year-old son Alphonzo who was an ambrotype artist. Michael was five feet six and a half inches tall with a light complexion, light hair and blue eyes when he enlisted as a private in Company A of the Seventh Michigan Infantry at Fort Wayne in Detroit on June 19, 1861. He was enrolled in the regiment as a corporal at Camp Monroe on August 2, 1861. The major bone in Michael's left forearm was broken by a musket ball while his company was storming Maries Heights during the Battle of Fredericksburg on May 3, 1863. He remained disabled after medical treatment, and was transferred to the 19th Company of the Second Battalion of the Veteran Reserve Corps on October 14, 1863. He was discharged from the army on a Surgeon's Certificate of Disability at Washington, D. C., on January 21, 1864. He returned to Port Huron and immediately filed a claim for a disability pension. Her parents came from New York, Emerancer C. Eldred was born in Michigan in June of 1842, and she married Michael at Oxford, Michigan, on August 31, 1865. They had one daughter born in July of 1866 that lived only six months, but Cora was born on January 24, 1869, and lived to maturity. Theron and his wife and all of their parents were born in New York State. He was born in Ulster County on July 19, 1842, the only son of Anthony A. and Jane Crispell. His sister Frances was four years older, and his sister Mary was six years younger. Alice Hamblin was born seven years later, she was the daughter of A. C. Hamblin, and she married Theron on September 8, 1874. Their daughter Louise was born in Michigan about 1878. It was reported in January of 1873 that Theron was fitting up a photo gallery over the Powell Brothers & Company grocery store on Jefferson Street. Many of the portraits in an 1877 history of Calhoun County were engraved from photographs by Theron. In 1878 he advertised as an "Artistic Photographer. Copying and Enlarging in any Size and Style." He attended the inaugural convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Chicago in 1880, and shared the gallery address with Mark W. Owens in 1882. "OWENS, Battle Creek, Mich., Crispell, Operator." was printed on some card photograph mounts. Theron produced stereoscopic views of Battle Creek, and sold the gallery there to Sedgwick S. Hull and Son on January 20, 1883. He managed the Las Vegas gallery while pioneer photographer James M. Furlong was in Texas and California on cattle business from 1885 until 1890, and continued to work in the studio after Furlong returned. Theron opened his own gallery during the summer of 1891, and he died in Las Vegas on December 10, 1893. His widow, Mrs. Alice H. Crispell, was the proprietor of a gallery at 702 Douglas Avenue in East Las Vegas, New Mexico, in 1895 and 1896. She returned to Battle Creek to live from 1897 until her death in 1914.

His parents came from Vermont, and Byron was born at Covington, New York, in 1827 or 1828. Eliza, his wife, was born in New York a year later, and their sons were born in Michigan: Julius in 1851 or 1852 and Clarence ten years later. Byron was five feet seven inches tall with a dark complexion, blue eyes and dark hair when he enlisted at Saline in Company K of the 24th Michigan Infantry on March 24, 1865. He was mustered into the service as a private on March 28, and was mustered out at Detroit on June 30, 1865. Byron produced stereoscopic views of funeral flower arrangements, of homes and of a church interior decorated for Children's Day. On the mounts of these views he was identified as a landscape and architectural photographer who did copying and enlarging. "On Wheels" or "Photo Car" was printed on his cabinet mounts from Mason. He was later a "Landscape and Architectural Photographer" at Tacoma, Washington. By 1893 Byron was troubled with rheumatism, and applied for an Invalid Pension. He photographed homes at Zillah. He was moving around quite a bit, and spent some time in San Francisco in 1897. In June of 1900 he had yet to qualify for a pension.

Francis (always Clyde after 1900) was born in Michigan to parents from New York on May 16, 1875, first of the 1 2 three sons of Thomas Franklin Cronkite and Alice Rebecca (Woodward) Cronkite. He grew on the family farm into a 3 1 medium sized man with brown eyes and black hair. Austin R. Smith was the junior partner in Cronkite & Smith, and 2 m he grew up within a few miles of Francis, who is only presumed to have been the other half of the partnership for the 1 lack of other prospects. Martha B. Dunn was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan in August of 1889, first of the 1 five children of Samuel and Ida M. Dunn. She grew up in Emerson Township and married Clyde about 1913. Their 1 children were born in Gratiot County: Doris in 1914, Burton in 1916, Ralph in May of 1919, and Ruth in 1923 or early 1 in 1924. Their farm in 1918 could have been in Wheeler Township or in Emerson Township. 1

William was born about July 1, 1839, in Michigan, where both his mother and his father were born. Apparently he 2 spent a good portion of his life near Dewitt and Wacousta in Clinton County. It was from Ionia County that he enlisted 2 1 at Detroit as a private in Company C of Berdan's First United States Volunteer Sharpshooters on August 21, 1861. At 1 2 Mechanicsville, Virginia, he was wounded in the right elbow while in action on June 26, 1862. William was sent to a 1 2 hospital at West Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and on October 21, 1862, he was honorably discharged from the army at 2 Philadelphia on a certificate of disability. He and 17-year-old Miss Lydia Jane Montross were married at Crystal Lake 2 1 on March 24, 1867, and later had a son William born on March 24, 1869, and a daughter Inez born on August 6, 1879. 2 3
William was seriously ill with diseases of the bladder and the heart for eight weeks before his death at his Washington 2 home on October 1, 1906. Burial was in Arlington National Cemetery. He was insured for only $42.00, and Lydia had 2 to live on the ten or twelve dollars per month she was paid as caretaker of St. Alban's Chapel until she qualified for a 2
Widow's Pension. 2

Andrew was born in Madison County, New York, on September 9, 1840, to Andrew Jackson and Lurania W. (Miles) Crosby, and came to Michigan with his family in 1844. His brother was named Tertullus after his grandfather, and was born about 1847. The Crosbys settled upon a heavily timbered tract in Livonia Township of Wayne County until 1855, when they moved to an improved farm in Farmington Township of Oakland County. Andrew attended the district schools, took a course at the State Normal School in Ypsilanti, and graduated from Bryant & Stratton's Business College in Detroit before joining the faculty of this school. He enlisted in Company A of the First Michigan Infantry on April 7, 1861, and left for Washington with his regiment on May 13. They received some drill and stood some guard duty and had light skirmishes at Falls Church and Clouds Mills, Virginia. At the end of his three-month enlistment, on August 8, 1861, Andrew was mustered out of the army. He returned to the family farm, but disease contracted in the army kept him from helping much that season. He and Mary B. Smith were married on December 31, 1862, and lived for a year at the Crosby homestead before moving to St. Johns. After seven years at St. Johns and two and a half years at Lyons they moved to the Novi Township farm on which Mary's parents had settled in 1832. With the exception of two years in Pontiac, this became the permanent home of the Crosbys. Mary gave birth to a daughter in April of 1870 who did not live long enough to be named. Her daughter Betty was born in 1871 or early in 1872, and her daughter Flora was born in January of 1879. By 1910 Mary was a widow living in Farmington and providing a home for her younger daughter and her husband, Frank N. Steele, who was a school teacher.

Guy was the elder son of James Westley Cross and Berthena (Truex) Cross, and was born at Bangor, Michigan, on July 13, 1878. Berthena was James' second wife, and Guy had two much older half-sisters. His brother Leo was born in May of 1880, and his sister Myrtle was born in March of 1882. His formation of a photographic partnership with Will Funk was reported in November of 1898. The C. W. Cross listed as a Watervliet photographer in the gazetteers for 1903 and 1905 seems to have been a garbled reference to Guy, who purchased the local studio in 1902. In 1904 he published a fifty page Souvenir of Watervliet which sold for 25 cents and contained thirteen small portraits of Watervliet pioneers, thirty portraits of Watervliet business men, thirty four exterior and interior views of businesses and other landmarks of the town, and a map. "CROSS PHOTO" was scribed into the negatives of most of the views. "Cross Studio, Watervliet and Paw Paw Lake, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of studio portraits and outdoor scenes. Anna B. Thompson was born in Pennsylvania about 1877, she married Guy on January 5, 1909, and their only son Leo was born on August 10, 1910. Guy's second marriage was to Miss Nolie Joiner on June 4, 1915. She was born in Arkansas early in 1894, and she became the mother of eight children. Ruby and Byron were born in Texas in June of 1916 and October of 1917. Guy and Robert were born in Colorado in March of 1919 and a year later. Nolie and Ruth were born in New Mexico between 1921 and 1923. Thenabeth was born in Texas about 1925, and Evelyn was born in Ohio in November of 1929. The chronology of Guy's work in Texas, Colorado, New Mexico and Ohio was reconstructed by two of his daughters with some approximations. For a while prior to 1915 he was in St. Petersburg, Florida. While conducting the photographic business at New Philadelphia, he also operated a nearby farm of 132 acres. He was a creditable painter, and exhibited some of his paintings at the Museum of New Mexico. Guy was still calling his place of business the Cross Studio in 1944. He died at Bangor, Michigan, on April 28, 1952.

He had been married once before he came from Midland County to marry Miss Nellie E. Lunney at Hemlock in 1901. Nellie was born in Michigan in December of 1873, eldest of the three children of Peter and Emma J. (Perkins) Lunney. She and Leonard lived in Saginaw, Shiawassee, Macomb and Gratiot Counties before they moved to Seattle. Their daughter, Gertrude M. Cross, was born in Michigan in January of 1909. Nellie died about 1925, and Gertrude still was living with her father in 1930. Leonard died at San Bernardino, California, on March 13, 1960.

His parents came from Maryland and Virginia, and Wesley was born in January of 1843 at Dayton, Ohio. He was five feet seven inches tall with a dark complexion, grey eyes and brown hair when he was enrolled for three months as a private in Company K of the Fifth Ohio Infantry on April 20, 1861. He re-enlisted as a sergeant in Company A of the Fifth Ohio Infantry at Camp Dennison on June 21, 1861. A month later he was taken seriously ill with a lung disease at Parkersburg, Virginia. Granted a furlough to recuperate at Cincinnati, he returned 30 days later with little improvement in his health. When the lung disease recurred, his captain and the regimental surgeon agreed that Wesley could not withstand the exposure incident to life in the army, and he was discharged on a surgeon's certificate of disability at Romney, Virginia, on February 3, 1862. He and Miss Henrietta Clay King, born in Ohio in October of 1844, were married at Cincinnati on February 26, 1863. Their sons were born in Indiana, Wesley A. on July 9, 1865, and George F. about 1869. Their daughter Alice M. Crouch was born in Ohio on July 21, 1871. The address on some of Wesley's East Saginaw card and cabinet mounts was 411 and 413 Genesee Avenue. "FROM W. A. CROUCH, BOSTON GEM GALLERY, 310 GENESEE AVE., EAST SAGINAW, MICH." was stamped on the back of 4 5/8 by 3 1/8 paper sleeves of tintypes. In November of 1884 he was offering his best cabinet photos for $2.50 per dozen. Wesley and Henrietta Crouch were arrested in August of 1885 on the charge of disposing of mortgaged property. A carpet allegedly had been removed from the gallery which, with other furniture there, was covered by a mortgage held by a Mr. McLean. The complaint was said to have been motivated by spite. The defendants furnished bail and the case was adjourned for several days. Wesley's mounts from 314 Genesee carry the phrases: "All Pictures made by the instantaneous process ... We Aim to Please ... Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged." He employed his son George as an artist in 1886 and as a photographer in 1887. Citing sciatic rheumatism and disease of the heart and lungs, Wesley applied for an Invalid Pension in July of 1891. He was pensioned at $12.00 per month at the time of his death in Chicago from pulmonary tuberculosis on March 21, 1907. Henrietta was managing a boarding house. She immediately qualified for a Widow's Pension of $8.00 per month, which had increased to $12.00 by the time she died on September 22, 1910, at the Chicago home of her daughter, now Mrs. Alice M. Barr. The remains of both Wesley and Henrietta were interred in Elmwood Cemetery at Chicago.

His father came from Ohio and Frank was born in Michigan to an English mother on September 25, 1876, last of the two sons of Casper and Emilene (Hales) Crouse. His brother William was born in Ohio two years earlier. Frank's purchase of the South Haven photo business of Thomas H. Webster was reported in March of 1900. In 1902 both Frank's photograph gallery and his residence were at 541 Phoenix Street. Her father came from New York and Pearl A. Niles was born in Michigan to a mother from Pennsylvania on November 13, 1879, fourth of the five children of John W. and Emily W. (Bogardus) Niles. She married Frank on October 1, 1902, but then died at Grand Junction in 1903. Her father emigrated from England and Victoria L. Leonard was born in Michigan to a mother from Tennessee on June 28, 1876, first of the three daughters of John and Mary (Barry) Leonard. She married Frank about 1906, and they never had children. Victoria was the proprietor of a millinery shop in 1910, and she seems to have been a widow when she died in Los Angeles on January 4, 1940.

Isaac was born in Wisconsin in 1866 or early in 1867, and his sister Ella was born there two years earlier. Their mother, Mrs. Harriet P. Crow, was raising them on her own in 1870. Harriet married the widower S. C. Weaver about 1879 to take care of his young son and baby daughter, so Ella and Isaac became step-children. Isaac married Lillie about 1888. Their three elder children were born in Wisconsin between 1890 and 1898, and their two younger daughters were born in Michigan between 1906 and 1909. Isaac's photography work in Amasa was conducted from a small building in the back yard of his home east of the tracks near the depot.

His father emigrated from England, his mother came from Ohio, and Jesse was born in Michigan on June 13, 1883. He was the son of Jesse and Jennie C. (Fitzgerald) Crowton. Something happened to his father and Jennie married 56-year-old George Pell soon after Jesse was born, so he grew up as a step-son. His half-sister Lottie was born in August of 1889. Jesse became a five foot ten inch man with light blue eyes and light hair. Dolly (formal name Maude) was born in Michigan in 1878, she married Jesse about 1904, and their daughter Gertrude was born in 1906. "PHOTO BY J. J. CROWTON" was stamped on the face of photographs postmarked in September and October of 1908. "Photo Postals, J. J. CROWTON, Highland Park, Mich." was printed on the backs of photographs of the Michigan State Fair: two views of Beachey's airship and a bird's-eye view past the ferris wheel and the North Baptist Dining Hall down the midway, postmarked in September of 1909. On the back of a post card photo was stamped: "DEC 8 - 1909" and "JESSE J. CROWTON, 71 Tyler Ave., Highland Park, Mich. J.J. 5624 T.B. 168 P-A.S.C.C. 363 A.S.C.C. 44" and part of the written message was: "... We have no colored cards of Highland Park. I supply the stores with view cards. This view shows the Ry. Power House where the city cars turn around, the Presbyterian Church at the right..." J.J. 5624 was Jesse's membership number in the Jolly Jokers, a post card exchange club, and the other numbers probably represented membership in similar organizations. Though his name always was spelled Jesse in the directories, one of his photo postals sent to a friend was signed Jessie. Jesse and Dolly were separated by 1915, and soon divorced. Jesse was living with his widowed mother in 1920. Dolly established a boarding house and lived in Highland Park through 1930. By 1930 Jesse was married to a lady named Catherine who was born in Missouri to Canadian parents about 1880. He died at Los Angeles on November 25, 1957.

His parents emigrated from Ireland in 1880 and James was born at Hubbell to Richard and Bridget (Thelan) Cuddihy on May 22, 1890. His siblings were born at Hubbell: George in March of 1893, Florence in August of 1895, Helen in June of 1897, Esmond (a boy) in May of 1899, and Vernier (a girl) in 1900 or early in 1901. "BREAKING ROADS, HUBBELL, MICH. PHOTO BY JIM CUDDIHY" was lettered on the negative of a post card photograph of a huge roller pulled by ten horses. Jim became a tall man with a medium build, blue eyes and light brown hair. Four days after he registered for the draft he enlisted on June 9, 1917, at Fort Wayne in Company G of the 33rd Infantry in the Michigan National Guard, which soon became the 125th United States Infantry. He was promoted to bugler, and on January 30, 1918, transferred to the Headquarters Company as a member of the band. He sailed for France on February 10, 1918, and was transferred to Company C of the 125th Infantry as a private. He was in action in Alsace on May 15, at Chateau Thierry from July 27 to August 26, at Sousaine from August 27 until September 8, and in the Argonne for two days. He was hospitalized briefly after being gassed at Chateau Thierry. Jim was again promoted to bugler on September 12, and served with the Army of Occupation until he sailed for the United States, arriving at Hoboken on May 8, 1919. He was demobilized and honorably discharged on June 6, 1919. Jim was living with his parents in 1920. He was lodging at McGregor's Institute and still was single in 1930.

Tom's parents came from Ireland, and he was born in Canada in 1881. Thompson, Sylvester & Cull specialized in commercial photography, panoramic views, smokeless flashlights and banquet groups. In April of 1919 Tom produced a 6½ by 24 inch panorama of the First Liberty Band of Detroit with City Hall and the Gayety Burlesque Theater in the background. Tom was living alone in 1920, next door to photographer Jacob Herbert. One Thomas J. Cull was born in Canada to Irish parents about 1873, immigrated in 1875, was married for the second time about 1906 to a 23-year-old Michigan lady named Edna, and was working as a tool maker in a Flint auto factory in 1910. What appears to be the same person was a single patient in the Wayne County Home and Insane asylum at Eloise in 1930.

John was born in Detroit about 1846. His father was Irish and his mother, Sophie, emigrated from Germany. He was five feet six inches tall with a light complexion, light hair and blue eyes when he enlisted at Detroit as a trumpeter in Company I of the First Michigan Cavalry on October 21, 1863, and he was mustered into the army two days later. During December of 1864 and January of 1865 at Winchester, Virginia, he was treated by the regimental surgeon for chronic diarrhea and piles. At some time, John served as a bugler with Company H. After the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia, the Michigan Cavalry Brigade was ordered to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and on to Fort Laramie, Wyoming Territory. While crossing the plains in August of 1865 near Fort Halleck, Dakota Territory, John was thrown from his horse and injured his back. By October the regiment reached Fort Bridger, Utah Territory, and John was transferred to Company L on November 17, 1865. The regiment was mustered out of the army, paid and disbanded at Salt Lake City on March 10, 1866, and the men were left to their own devices as to finding their way home. John's first and only marriage was to Miss Catherine Elizabeth Cameron in Detroit on November 17, 1870. Their son Arthur and daughter Lily were born between 1872 and 1877. John spent most of his working life with the Detroit Stove Works, and was made a foreman for a while about 1885. John successfully applied for a pension in March of 1890, but was dissatisfied with the $12.00 per month and by November was attempting to get an increase based upon the chronic diarrhea, piles and lame back which he blamed on his military experiences. At this time he deserted his wife and children, moved in with a woman named Carrie about three miles away, and provided no further financial support to his family. John died on October 5, 1893, one week after he had contracted pneumonia. Burial was in Elmwood Cemetery. Catherine qualified for a Widow's Pension which had reached $30.00 per month by the time she died in Detroit on September 28, 1926.

His mother came from West Virginia and Wallace was born at Belpre in January of 1850, the only child of Dudley W. and Mary Ann Curtis. Lillie was born in Pennsylvania in 1849 or early in 1850, and she married Wallace about 1878. Their daughter May was born in Ohio a year later, and they may have had a son named William born in Pennsylvania in September of 1880. They seem to have gone their separate ways without divorcing, and Wallace was providing a home for his widowed mother in 1910.

Frank was born on February 20, 1868, at Parma, Ohio, and may have been the only child of Nathaniel C. and Helen M. Curtiss. In Lansing Frank succeeded Henry J. Christmas, his former employer. He was awarded one of the Cramer badges for work submitted to the St. Louis convention of the Photographers' Association of America in July of 1894. The Curtiss Studio offered fine portraits in the latest styles, in 18 popular sizes from $1.50 to &5.00 per dozen. Bessie Russell was the Studio's reception lady, and patrons were encouraged to take the elevator. Frank was succeeded in Howell by either Clarence Gault or John Z. Gault. He still was single in 1920.

Curtiss & Smith were successors to Bonta & Curtiss in Syracuse. Cabinet photographs of at least sixteen members of the faculty of the University of Michigan and of no less than forty three U of M students were produced on the mounts of Curtiss & Smith. Most of these students graduated in 1884, and the others were at one time members of this class. Note that Michael B. Donovan was the Detroit agent of the Syracuse Portrait Company in 1884. A history of the university reproduced photographs of professors Benjamin Chapman Burt and Charles Nelson Jones identical to the Curtiss & Smith prints. Photographer Samuel Bonta, 64, and his wife were sharing their home in 1880 with photographer Nathan Curtiss, 41, and his family. 2

Levi was born in December of 1820 in Nashfield Township, Vermont, and when he was 15 moved with his parents 2 1 to Junius, New York, and later to Hartland, New York. In 1842 he married 18-year-old Miss Eliza M. Warner of 1 2
Niagara County, New York, and in the fall of 1847 brought his wife to a new home on the Flint River in Lapeer 1 County, Michigan. They were the first settlers at what would become the village of Columbiaville. Their son David 1 2 was born in 1848 or 1849. The post office was established in 1857, and after a number of years Levi became the 2 1 second postmaster of Columbiaville. Eliza died on January 20, 1872, and Levi married Mrs. Abigail M. Hopkins on 1
November 12, 1875. Abigail was the widow of Nelson Hopkins, and she brought along her six-year-old daughter 1 2
Loella. The Alpine Township property that they were farming in 1900 probably was inherited by Abigail from her first 2

Hattie was born April 15, 1853, at Norwich, Ontario, youngest of the nine children of Eli and Catherine (Rooney) 1 2
Woodrow, who had emigrated from Ireland. Most of her education was obtained at Attica, and as a young lady she 1 2 learned dress making. A secondary source indicated that Hattie was an Attica photographer at some time. It was in 1 5
Attica that she married the photographer Ben Cuyler on April 18 or 19, 1872, just a few days after her nineteenth 1 2 birthday. She and Ben had three daughters: Nina Kittie was born November 19 in 1873 or 1874, Laurette Mauvette 1 2 was born March 27 in 1876 or 1878, and Zoe Letta was born August 8, 1881. Zoe died on October 12, 1892. Kittie 2 returned home after graduating from St. Mary's Academy at Windsor, Ontario, exhausted from studying, never 2 recovered her health, and died November 13, 1893. Mauvette also graduated from St. Mary's Academy, survived, and 2 on April 19, 1904, married Richard B. Remer in Detroit. Richard was a composer and music publisher who later 2 moved to Mount Clemens. She undoubtedly helped Ben to operate his galleries in Romeo and then Mount Clemens 2 m before succeeding him at the studio on Pearl Street when Ben left for Colorado in hopes of recovering his health. t 2
Though "Mrs. H. E. Cuyler" was printed on most of her cabinet mounts, just "H. E. Cuyler" was printed on others. She t displayed marked ability and artistic taste, and ran the Mount Clemens gallery successfully for seven years before 2 4 selling it to Alonzo C. Novess. She shared her home in Mount Clemens with her daughter prior to Mauvette's 2 3 marriage, and later lived with the Remer family from 1910 through 1930. Harriet was listed as divorced in 1900, and 3 as a widow in 1904 and 1910, though Ben was an Indiana photographer at the time. 4 6

Ben was born March 23, 1846, or March 22, 1847, at East Guillumbury or Newmarket, Ontario, one of the seven children of William E. and Julia Ann (Brady) Cuyler. His work in Attica was in his father's mill. He worked at photography under instruction in 1869 and 1870. He and Miss Harriet E. Woodrow were married in Attica on April 18, 1872, and by 1881 they had three daughters. This appeared in a photographic journal late in 1872: "Another Facetious Business Card. Mr. Ben Cuyler, of Romeo, Mich., is responsible for the following facetious business card; What I know about Photographs. I never have any photographs taken unless I sit for them. I never forget to tell the artist if they are not good I will not have them. I always take a picture of a friend along and tell him I want my pictures to look just like it. I never have my picture taken in a group unless there is some one else to sit with me. I always tell the artist that I don't think my picture looks like me. I always have my friends and relatives go with me to arrange my drapery and curls, and then stand and watch the whole operation, to be sure I don't look stiff or staring. It is a good plan, when the operator has your head in position, and is about to place the rest, to look down to see if you are all there; it will make him swear some mentally, but never mind. I never have pictures of my children taken in a standing position until they are four months of age. I always ask the artist if it will not do to pay when I get my pictures; he always says No, but I ask him all the same. I always go to Ben Cuyler to get my pictures taken, as he knows just what I want, and does not swear mentally." On some cartes de visite was printed: "This Picture was made by BEN. CUYLER, And is warranted not to fade or change color from the effect of any chemicals contained in it. Romeo, Mich." On the back of mid-1870s card photographs by Clarence Weed of Capac was printed "PRINTS BY BEN CUYLER, Romeo, Mich. - Copying and Enlarging. India Ink, Water Coloring and Printing for the trade." Though he was listed in directories as Benjamin, B. W., W. B., William B. and Ben, he consistently used Ben on his photograph mounts. His gallery was in the North Brick Block at 209-215 North Main Street throughout his stay at Romeo, and his large skylight was visible from the north side of the building. He advertised "... the French Rembrandt photograph, a beautiful velvet-like picture which no other artist about here can take." About 1880, his Photographic Art Parlors were over Giddings, Rowley & Company's store, and he promised to retain negatives for six months. Henry E. Hill was his partner in Marinette, and Ben's wife Hattie succeeded him in Mount Clemens. He was forced to leave Michigan by ill health, and spent several years in Colorado making views of outdoor life before returning to the east. Cabinet mounts of L. L. De Anquinos were over-printed "J. M. DRIVER, Ben Cuyler, Operator, Murfreesboro and Bell Buckle, Tenn." Ben was photographing in Santa Fe with an assistant named Vreeland in August of 1890. He opened the Greenfield, Indiana, gallery in January of 1895, augmented his photography there with portrait work and oil painting, and met with marked success. A young lady who was born in Ohio in May of 1873 became Mrs. Lucy Madge Cuyler early in 1891 and participated in the photographic business at Greenfield. In the spring of 1907 Ben was advertising to buy a photograph gallery in a town of more than 10,000 people in the United States or Canada, and in the fall of 1908 he was opening branches of his Greenfield studio at Carthage and Morristown, Indiana. The opening of his Indianapolis studio was reported in the fall of 1909. Both Ben and Lucy were enumerated as photographers in the 1910 and 1920 censuses, and in 1920 they were working from their home. Lucy was a widow and still in the photographic business at Indianapolis in 1930.

Louis was born in Lower Canada to David and Sophia (Derome) Cyr on December 25, 1833. After graduating in 1856 from the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Montreal, he practiced for one year in Canada and another in New York State. He became the first doctor at Negaunee in 1860, and opened the first drug store there in the same year. He also opened the first jewelry store and the first photograph gallery in Negaunee, and built the first brick building. He soon hired managers for the drug and jewelry businesses, but how the photograph gallery was conducted is not clear. Miss Florence Matilda Watson of Marquette married Louis there on January 31, 1865, and she gave birth to Florence and Philemon between 1865 and 1868, and to Violet Louise in March of 1878. Louis was postmaster of Negaunee from 1862 through 1882, and was a principal of a large dry goods business. By 1883 he had a major interest in the lease of the tracts where the Iron River Mine was being developed.

John was born in Canada in 1861 or 1862 to Samuel and Catherine Dafoe. His father was Canadian, his mother was Irish, his older siblings were born in Canada, and his younger sister was born in Michigan. John was living with his parents in 1890. He leased the Sims Gallery in East Tawas early in 1890 and opened it for business about February 17 for a few days. He seems to have spent three or four days at East Tawas almost every month for the next two years. At first the East Tawas newspaper spoke well of his work and forecast his arrival a week in advance, but the enthusiasm was gradually lost, and by December of 1891 this comment was published: "We hear a good deal of complaint here about receiving pictures from photographer Dafoe, who makes occasional trips here, takes the negatives to Alpena for filming, with a portion of the pay for same. In some instances months elapse before even hearing from the pictures, and others say they hear nothing of sittings long ago..." Early in 1892 Ard G. Emery occupied the East Tawas gallery formerly used by John M. Dafoe. John's Art Studio on Chisholm Street in Alpena employed Edward LaPine as a retoucher and Frank C. LaPine as a photo printer in 1891, when H. T. Marlin was John's assistant. John was "... prepared to execute all kinds of pictures, from the smallest locket to the life size portrait. He also gives special attention to viewing and commercial work. Portraits are also executed in oil, crayon and India ink, in the highest style of the art. at the lowest prices, and satisfaction guaranteed in all cases." John's occupation of his new and "model" studio, said to be very attractive, was reported in the spring of 1893. It was still identified as the Dafoe gallery when it was rented by DeViney & Emmons late in 1898. Daisy (later Merle) was born in Illinois in March of 1876, and she married John about 1896. Their son Nelson was born in Pennsylvania in April of 1898.

Dailey, _____

"Dailey _____ '13" was scribed into the negative of a post card photograph of a wrecked locomotive. "Between Bay City & Akron, Mich." was written on the photographic print. This was the route of the Deroit, Caro & Sandusky Railroad. Raby and Farleigh in Bay County plus Quanicassee, Sharpville and Downing in Tuscola County were towns along the rails between Bay City and Akron in 1913. 1

Her parents came from New York and Canada and Isadora was born in Michigan in September of 1864. She was second of the six children of Samuel W. and Elizabeth Benton, and had five substantially older half-brothers. She married Rolland Dailey about 1883. Her children were born in Michigan, Faith W. Dailey in November of 1889 and Rollo E. Dailey in August of 1893. Dora evidently was in charge of the gallery while Rolland was elsewhere in June of 1900, and probably was quite involved with his photographic business. 1

Carl was born in Michigan in 1877, the son of Ira and Henrietta Daines. His sister Ethel was born two years later. Winifred was born about 1876 in New York, and she married Carl about 1897. Their son Carleton and daughter Harriet were born in Michigan in 1905 and 1908. From 1898 to 1903 the listings were for Carlton W. Daines. Harry T. Dennis was a principal of Daines & Company in 1912. Daines & (Stafford B.) Nickels were general photographers and lantern slide makers as well as scrap book and souvenir card publishers in 1916, and they claimed to have "The only Studio on the Campus." According to the printing on their film envelopes, they offered "Portraits, Enlargements, Lantern Slides, Flashless Flashlights, Finishing for Amateurs, Photo Supplies, Etc." and amateurs could get their prints back on either plain paper or with postal backs. Carl advertised in 1917: "It's My Work That Counts' DAINES, General Photographer, 334 and 336 South State Street, Ann Arbor, Michigan. 'The Only Studio on the Campus.'" Carl and Winifred still were providing a home for their son in 1930.

Charles was born in Michigan to parents from the Hanover region of Germany in May of 1868, last of the four children of Henry and Caroline Dake. His oldest brother William was born at Jamaica in the West Indies about 1850. Joanna (often Anna) was born in Michigan to Dutch parents in November of 1873, and she married Charles about 1890. Their children (Caroline, Henry, Francis and Charles) were born in Michigan between 1891 and 1915. On May 16, 1904, Charles applied for a patent on a Photographic Exposure Meter. Patent Number 784,988 was granted to him on March 14, 1905, with one-half of the rights assigned to William Donker. Charles and William usually worked for the same series of Grand Rapids companies, and were co-inventors of a steam turbine.

Robert was born at Horsens, Denmark, to P. R. and Elizabeth (Anderson) Dammand on September 6, 1855. He first came to America in 1873. He worked for a while in a wagon factory at Racine, Wisconsin, and then for a year and a half on a farm before he returned to Denmark. There he worked as a carpenter for three years and attended school before he spent fifteen months in the Danish army. He then served eight months as a photographic apprentice. When his employer died he again worked as a carpenter until he and his mother and sisters immigrated in 1880 to Story City, Iowa. Four months later he found photographic work at Des Moines which lasted for three years. Robert then spent a year at Houghton. On January 10, 1885, he purchased the Harlan gallery of Frank F. Reynolds and proceeded to do a profitable photographic business. He was married on August 11, 1887, to Mrs. Lettie (Hille) Potter, and by 1889 they had a daughter named Vera Lenore. 1

His parents came from Massachusetts and New Hampshire, and Milton was born at Little Falls, New York, on August 7, 1847, youngest of the nine children of Silas and Alpa (Bean) Danforth. Milton was an infant when his father died, and went to work on a farm when he was twelve to contribute to the family finances. Minnie S. Etson was born in May of 1864, and she came from Lebanon, New York, to marry Milton at Detroit on January 5, 1892. They never had children. He started the photo supply business in September of 1897, and in 1900 Milton carried a "... full stock of everything pertaining to professional and amateur photography. All the leading Kodaks and Cameras carried in stock." At this time he was also manager of the Queen Anne Soap Art Gallery at the same address. On the second floor of the Jefferson Avenue store he used two rooms for studio cameras, backgrounds and accessories, one room for chemicals, and a fourth room as a dark room for developing and printing Kodak pictures and for making enlargements. In 1902 he offered "Wholesale Photographic Apparatus and Supplies of all kinds. Manufacturer of Danforth's Gold Medal Toning Solution and Star Developer, the best on the market. Send for descriptive circular of Danforth's Perfection Wide Angle, Rapid Rectilinear and Portrait Lenses." He published a book entitled The Hustler and sent it to all the photographers in Michigan. He also utilized a 12 by 9 inch four-page catalogue of "THE UNIQUE Photograph Jewelry Mountings..." showing many styles and sizes of brooches in gold plate, rolled gold plate and ten karat gold, as well as chatelaines, charms, cuff buttons, scarf pins and hat pins. It stated: "THE UNIQUE MOUNTINGS are absolutely the best, so simple a child can put together. ALL UNIQUE MOUNTINGS contain Celluloids, Blotters and Backs. No machine required: tin types as well as photographs can be used in Unique mountings." A picture was printed on postcards along with "Saginaw's Greatest Flood, March-April, 1904. Photo by Danforth. Genesee Avenue, Looking East From Franklin St." Milton was an associate member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905, and he died on March 5, 1908. The supply business was continued in Milton's name from 1908 until 1921, and then at 507 Genesee Avenue in her own name until 1925, by his widow, Mrs. Minnie S. Danforth.

His parents emigrated from England, and William was born in Illinois in 1875 or 1876. He married Miss Pearl E. Williams about 1900 and they had two children. About 1902 William's studio was in the H Block at 203 ½ or 205 ½ North Harrison Street in Alexandria. "W. H. Darby" was blind stamped into a post card photo of two glass compotes full of strawberries with the berries and their stems realistically tinted red and green. "Picked from 2nd Crop Sept. 27, 1910, on Ira D. Wagner's Strawberry Farm, Buchanan, Mich. Berrien Co. DARBY PHOTO." was lettered on a card in the photo. "Darby" was scribed into the negative of a post card photograph of the crowd filling Buchanan's main street during the unveiling of the memorial fountain and clock on August 23, 1913. William died prior to 1920.

Elise Hoock was born in the Prussian region of Germany in March of 1864, and she came to America with her family in 1872. She was known as Elizabeth by the time she married Mr. Darger about 1885, and she gave birth in Michigan to Adolph in March of 1887 and to Margaret in March of 1889. She and her children were living in 1900 with her father, Adolph R. Hoock, and four of her sisters. Elizabeth advertised nationally off and on for two years, beginning in the summer of 1899 with: "WANTED - By retoucher, employment in first-class gallery; Michigan preferred; sample of work and references furnished. Mrs. E. Darger, 517 S. 4th Ave., Saginaw E S, Mich." In March of 1900 her ad read: "WANTED - By retoucher, employment in first-class studio; sample of work and references furnished. Mrs. E. Darger, 517 S. 4th Ave., Saginaw E S, Mich." She used these same words in the spring and summer of 1901. She and her children were living in 1910 with her sister Marie Hoock, a chiroprapist with her own office, and two of her other sisters. Elizabeth was a widow living in 1920 and 1930 with the family of her daughter and her tool maker husband, Albert C. Schroeder.

Frank was born at Bekes in Hungary on November 16, 1881, and he immigrated in 1905. Bertha was born at Szolnok in Hungary in 1884, she came to this country in 1908, and she married Frank about 1910. He was a short man with gray eyes and brown hair, and by 1918 had declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States. "DAUBNER PHOTO STUDIO, 2327 W. JEFFERSON AVE., DETROIT, MICH." was printed on the post card backs of studio portraits. Frank was sole owner of the Modern Photo Studio, which advertised in 1919 and 1920: "Pictures taken day or night, Photographs enlarged, Monument Pictures, Picture Framing...." The changes from 2327 to 8379 Jefferson and from 772 to 1830 Springwells were due to revisions in the Detroit numbering system rather than to relocation. "Photo by DAUBNER, 1830 Springwells Ave." was lettered on the negative of postal photos, and a fancy black and gold sticker with similar information was put on the back of some of them. Frank and Bertha had no children, and still in 1930 had alien status.

His mother emigrated from the Isle of Man and Frederick was born in Ontario in 1869, the son of Theophilus and Ellen David. Zaidee was born in 1867 at Port Bruce, Ontario, the daughter of George and Catherine Halls. She married Frederick at Lambton, Ontario, on September 16, 1897. Their son Allen was born in Lambton County, Ontario, on September 13, 1898. Jenkin & David sold views of Stag Island, a popular resort in the St. Clair River, and offered to take souvenir photographs of fishing excursions or other activities of visitors to the island. Fred was the official photographer of Stag Island in 1897, and a member of the Canadian Photographers Association. "David's Studio, Lapeer, Mich." was blind stamped into the 7 by 11 ¼ inch mount of a 4 by 8 ¼ photograph of a fourteen man threshing crew with their machine and wagon drawn by a steam tractor and a team of horses. "PEARCE BRO'S - READY TO MOVE IN 3 MINUTES" was lettered on the negative from which this photo was printed. "DAVID" was marked on the negative of a postal photo of a drawing of a new church in Lapeer about 1910. Post cards were printed in Germany for F. J. David showing the interior of "David's Studio" in Lapeer and resorting scenes on Stag Island.

His father came from Ohio and Lewis was born in Michigan on October 7, 1881, the son of Ambrose and Jennie W. David. He grew up on the family farm with two older sisters, and prior to 1912 he was known as Russell. He became a tall and slender man with blue eyes and light hair. A discreet "DAVID" was blind stamped into post card photographs, including at least two of the Moscow Plains M.E. Church, seven miles northeast of Jonesville. Lois was born in Michigan in 1889 or early in 1890, and she married Lewis about 1915. Their daughter Joan was born in 1928 or early in 1929.

Some of the Davidsons were born in Ohio, John about 1824, Mary eight years later, and their sons Gaylord and William about 1854 and 1855. Their sons Nicholas, Samuel, Elmer and Frank were born in Michigan between 1856 and 1871. John had a large skylight in Lansing, and claimed to do the best work ever done there. His specialty was perfect pictures of children taken in two seconds. This advertisement appeared in a national publication in the fall of 1860: “Ambrotype Artists CAN HEAR OF SOMETHING TO THEIR INTEREST, Free of charge, by sending their address to Box 420, Greenbush, Clinton Co., Mich.” John published stereo views of “The Great Arch Rock,...” and “The Devil’s Kitchen,...” and “Sugar Loaf Rock, Mackinaw, Mich. Photographed by J. E. Davidson, Alma, Mich. This Photograph sent to any address on receipt of price, 50 cts.” In 1872 he was buying stereo views of Lake Superior scenery from B. F. Childs by the gross for resale. “J. E. DAVIDSON & SON, ACTINIC ARTISTS, Alma, Mich. Pictures of Children a Specialty. Copies of this Photo can be obtained for $1.50 per dozen at any time by sending to above address.” was printed on some card photograph mounts. John’s card mounts from about 1880 carried a “... SPECIAL NOTICE. Parties having Negatives made can get additional copies at reduced rates at any time...” From Alma he published a series of 5 ½ by 8 views of Sault Ste. Marie on 10 by 12 inch mounts with very impressive individual titles printed in red beneath the images, including the locks and the Indian fishing village. John had lived sixty years when he died at Alma on December 18, 1885. The Alma gallery was sold to George C. Munger in March of 1886.

The Davidsons were born in Indiana: William in 1869, Cora in 1871, their son Donald about 1892, their daughter Isabel (later Mabel) in 1898, and their daughter Nellie in 1901. Studio portraits in the post card format of individuals and of two to four person groups were blind stamped “DAVIDSON, KALAMAZOO, MICH.” and included a local football player and a violinist. Similar cards, some postmarked in 1910, carry the imprint “W. A. DAVIDSON, PHOTOGRAPHER, 120 E. MAIN St., KALAMAZOO, MICH.” Cora’s mother, Mrs. Jennie Moughler, was living with the Davidsons in 1910. By 1930 William was married to a 53-year-old lady named Edith.

William was born in Ohio in 1829 or 1830. Ellen was born in New York State in July of 1837, and she married William about 1858. They had three sons: William A. Davidson born in Michigan about 1859, Robert E. Davidson born in Michigan in June of 1868, and J. Frederick Davidson born in Canada in 1872 or early in 1873. "Amherstburg, Ont. and Wyandotte, Mich." was printed on some of William's card photograph mounts. The Amherstburg gallery was identified as a branch of the Wyandotte business in 1872. William was succeeded as Wyandotte's photographer by S. A. Johnson. During the early 1880s William made a practice of spending his winters in Chicago and the months of May through October in Cheboygan. In June of 1880 he was selling an 8 by 10 photograph of the new mill of the Cheboygan Lumber Company showing a vessel at the dock loading lumber. During 1881 he was making cabinet and card photographs, copying and enlarging old pictures, taking instantaneous photographs of babies, and taking four t-intypes all made at one sitting for 75 cents. His gallery was one door north of the office of the Cheboygan Tribune, and in 1884 was on the east side of Main between Third and Division. William produced stereo views of Cheboygan and vicinity, Topinabee and Mackinac Island, many of which carried the stamp of H. J. A. Todd, Cheboygan dealer in everything. In April of 1883 it was reported that Davidson would refit his gallery with new scenery and introduce the new styles in photographs upon his return from Chicago. He did not leave Cheboygan until early December in 1885, when his new address in Chicago was announced. By 1900 Ellen was a widow living with her son Robert and his family at Montclair, New Jersey.

Clarence was born in Connecticut on September 5, 1874, the son of Peter and Caroline Davis. He grew up on the family farm with two older sisters and one younger one, and became a tall man with gray eyes and brown hair. Georgia was born in Connecticut in April of 1870 and married Clarence about 1896. Their daughter Gladys was born in Connecticut in October of 1897. The Davis-Thompson-Hudson Company was exclusively devoted to commercial photography. Miraculously, Georgia was 30 years old in 1900, 36 in 1910, and 42 in 1920. Clarence may have learned from this for he had reduced his reported age by five years in 1930, two years after he married 35-year-old Margaret from New York.

The George W. Davis that was a photographer from 1872 until 1883 at Salem, Massachusetts, was 25 years older than the Michigan photographer and does not seem to have been related. The parents of this George W. Davis came from Delaware and Illinois, and George was born in Massachusetts in September of 1877. His brother Thomas was born in Massachusetts three years earlier, and five of his siblings were born in Japan between August of 1879 and July of 1886. The family returned to the United States in 1888, and two of his sisters were born in New Hampshire in December of 1889 and May of 1893. All nine of her children were living with his widowed mother Frances Davis at Olivet in 1900. Her father came from Mississippi, Loretta was born in Illinois in 1884 or 1885, and she married George about 1903. "Photo by Geo. W. Davis, Chassell Lake, Mich." or "Made by GEO. W. DAVIS, Chassell, Mich. For NEWTON DRUG CO." or "A Copper Country Photograph, by Geo. W. Davis, Chassell, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of many photographs of Chassell and vicinity, including logging, hunting and street scenes, the depot at Houghton and the Jacobsville docks in winter, some postmarked in 1908 or 1909. "A Copper Country Photograph taken by Geo. W. Davis, Hancock, Mich." was printed on the backs of other photos, some postmarked in 1911 and 1912, taken at Hancock and Dollar Bay. Apparently George was free to marry a forty-year-old Pennsylvanian named Irma about 1928.

| George was the youngest son of Dryden and Permelia (Hubbard) Dawes, and was born on their farm in Goshen Township, Massachusetts, on June 15, 1847. He had five older brothers, one older sister and two younger sisters. The family moved to a farm at Grass Lake, Michigan, and with the failure of his father's health, into Manchester. George graduated from the classical department of Manchester Union School. He had learned building as a young man, and followed this trade for several years in Manchester and St. Louis before he spent from the fall of 1882 until March of 1883 learning photography from Charles M. Stark. Eva L. King was the eldest daughter of William S. and Sarah (Hall) King, and was born at Ann Arbor on October 28, 1854. Her family moved to Ypsilanti in 1860, and Eva (later Ella) was educated there. She married George at Ypsilanti on April 7, 1873, and their daughter Nina was born on December 17, 1878. George was a member of the Knights of Labor, and by 1884 had served as Superintendent of Schools of Pine River Township for four years. George and Ella were providing a home in 1900 for their daughter and her first husband and their granddaughter Norma. By 1910 George was a widower living with the family of his daughter and her second husband. | 2 12 12222 122 111 |     |

Charlotte was born in Pennsylvania to German parents probably in 1822, one of the ten children of William and Christianna Prosch. Her brother George W. Prosch was a daguerreotypist and a pioneer camera manufacturer, and her brother Andrew was a New York City supplier of daguerreotype materials and a manufacturer of "philosophical instruments." Charlotte and the daguerreotypist Alfred Day married at Newark on March 9, 1853, and soon were using the same business address. The local newspaper noted on July 15, 1853, that Mrs. Day (formerly Miss Prosch) had returned to her rooms on Broad Street at the sign of the American Flag, and was making pictures for 75 cents and up. Her Excelsior Daguerreotype Gallery carried in October of 1853 a large assortment of frames and cases, and offered to insert pictures into locket, brooches, bracelets, etc. By May of 1854 Charlotte had been succeeded by Charles Brewster. Charlotte gave birth to Mary in Newark before she and Alfred moved to Michigan, where their daughter Ada was born in 1855 or early in 1856. "Taken at Paw Paw, March 12, 1856 by Mrs. C. Day and presented by her to the Ed. of the Free Press, Paw Paw." was written inside the case of a sixth-plate daguerreotype of the printing office and an adjacent grocery on a snow covered street. Charlotte and Alfred soon returned to Newark, where their son George was born in the summer of 1857, and their daughter Amelia Sarah was born in March of 1860. Charlotte relinquished photography in favor of her home and children and Alfred became a baker, but their son George was later a photographer at Hoboken, New Jersey.

Dorr was born on December 20, 1877, at Canandaigua, New York, grew up in Chesaning, Michigan, and became a tall man with blue eyes and light hair. Blanche Burhans of Owosso was born in Michigan in November of 1878, last of the four or more children of Daniel and Ermina Burhans. She grew up in Owosso and married Dorr about 1899. She and Dorr lived for a while with her widowed father. Harold, their only child, was born in 1909 and died when he was ten years old. The retirement of M. Otto Whitney from the partnership of Day & Whitney was reported in the fall of 1903. John Shotwell and Dorr were outstanding pitchers on Owosso's indoor baseball team, so good that there was controversy over whether their pitching might be illegal. A post card photograph "Copyright 1906 by D. H. DAY" of the Worlds Champion Indoor Baseball Team included John Shotwell. "Day Studio" was blind stamped in script along with "owosso" in smaller block letters into a post card photograph of a winter scene at a small stone crushing mill. Earl H. Sterneman was proprietor of the Day Studio in 1918 and 1919, and was Dorr's partner in the studio from 1920 until 1923. Raymond B. Lansing was Dorr's associate in the studio through 1927, and Dorr was sole proprietor in the early 1930s. Dorr was said to be 76 when he died on May 29, 1957.

Her parents emigrated from Germany, Clara (later Louise) was born in New York in September of 1857, and she married Erskine in 1875 or 1876. Their children were born in Michigan: Rudolph in 1876 or early in 1877, Wilson in January of 1879, Isabelle in January of 1886, and Martha in January of 1893. Though he filed the applications on the same day, October 15, 1892, he was granted Patent Number 494,128 on a Camera Lens adjustable to five different focal lengths on March 28, 1893, and Patent Number 507,790 on a trigger operated Camera Shutter on October 31, 1893. The lens was being publicized early in 1895 in a number of models for different sizes of cameras, each with a choice of five focal lengths selected by moving a couple of levers, and claiming Thomas A. Edison as a satisfied user of a Decker lens. Several months later it was being advertised at a price of $15.00. Late in 1895 the availability of the Decker Gun Camera was announced. It featured a folding stock like that of a rifle, Decker's patented trigger operated shutter, and the Decker lens with a range of five focal lengths. The magazine reviews were very complimentary about the novelty and utility of both the combination lens and the gun camera. He was born in Michigan to a father from New York and an English mother in 1846 or early in 1847, eldest of the five children of David and Mary A. (Bowers) DeForest, and was called Algen when he was young. His father was a lumber dealer, and was not around in 1870 when Mary was providing a home for Algen and three of his siblings. They were living three doors from the photographer Aurelius Revenaugh. D. Algen DeForest succeeded James A. Brush in the gallery at the corner of Woodward and Larned, with the entrance on Larned, had it refitted and refurnished with modern improvements, and remained there for five or six years. He retained the Brush negatives, and was pleased to furnish duplicates at any time. In 1877 pictures in India ink, water colors, crayon or oil by a fine artist were available from this gallery. Between 1876 and 1879 David employed two of his brothers, Erymer and George. Other employees included John E. Chevalier as a retoucher in 1877 and Charles A. Lindsey as a photographer in 1880. "DeFOREST & ATWATER, Successors to D. A. DeForest, Photographer, ~~Henry, III~~. Menominee, Mich." was printed on the backs of card photograph mounts. That D. A. DeForest had succeeded his partnership with Atwater was reported in October of 1883. David was 44 years old when he died at the Detroit home of his mother on November 19, 1890. Newspapers in Ann Arbor and Negaunee, Michigan, and in Springfield, Tennessee, were asked to copy the notice of his death and the funeral arrangements.

Franklin was born in Michigan on April 18, 1862, last of the five children of David and Mary A. (Bowers) DeForest and the brother of photographer D. Algen DeForest. In July of 1891 an Ann Arbor newspaper reported that "F. B. DeForest is in the city, taking some excellent views of houses, groups, and out-door scenes. He made a picture of the Courier force which certainly is an estimable one, and denotes that he is a superior artist in that line." Maud was born in Michigan in September of 1873, and she married Frank about 1893. Their daughter Lillian was born in Michigan in March of 1895, and their son Franklyn was born in Ohio in April of 1900 but did not live to maturity. By 1920 Frank was a widower living with his daughter and her husband, Walter Pomeroy, and their daughter Madeline. In 1930 Frank was providing a home in Los Angeles for his daughter and her family. He was born in New York State on September 30, 1872, the son of George H. and Hellen M. DeGereaux. He became a short slender man with brown eyes and brown hair, and was known as Elmer R. DeGereaux in Standish and Unionville. Six by eight inch black mounts embossed for oval prints and blind stamped "DeGereaux" probably were used at Unionville. "DeGereaux, Photographer, Unionville, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of photographs of rural homes. Elmer remained single through 1910, but by 1918 was married to a lady named Lillian. She was born in Vermont in 1881, and maintained their home at Saginaw while Elmer worked in Bay City during World War I. Many Saginaw listings were for E. Rexford DeGereaux or more commonly for Rex. He was a widower in 1930, when he was one of six boarders with a Saginaw family.

Floyd was born in Michigan on January 15, 1870, eldest of the four sons of Adam and Harriet M. DeHaven. His father was born in Indiana and served in Company I of the Nineteenth Michigan Infantry in 1864 and 1865. He was wounded in action at Resaca, Georgia, in May of 1864 and spent several months in hospitals before returning to his regiment. That the DeHaven Brothers had purchased the Paw Paw gallery of William M. Hall, and had taken possession on April 1, was reported in the spring of 1898. The opening of a new studio in Dowagiac by the DeHaven Brothers of Paw Paw was reported in the summer of 1899. They advertised in Dowagiac: "DeHaven Bros. The up-to-date Studio. A visit to their Photographic Parlors will convince you they have the trade and know how to handle it. They also deal in Crayon, Pastel, and Water Colors. Satisfaction guaranteed in every respect...." Floyd was single and was living with his parents in 1900. His parents moved to Georgia in 1904, to Indiana in 1906, and then to California about 1908. Mildred was born in Michigan to parents from Ohio about 1878, and she married Floyd in 1901 or early in 1902. Their daughters were born in Indiana: Echo in 1905 and Marion in 1912. Both still were living with Floyd and Mildred in 1930.

William was born in Pennsylvania on September 12, 1877, eldest of the six children of Milton H. and Jane A. Deibert. He became a tall stout man with black eyes and light brown hair. Blanche was born in Michigan in 1892, and she married William about 1910. Their children were born in Michigan: Alton in 1911, Cleda in 1914, and William in 1919. William was a prolific producer of post card photographs, many of them depicting logging activities. Cards marked "Pellston Studio" and just "Studio" seem to have been made from 1905 to 1907. Many of the other photographs which he made in Pellston and Alanson were postmarked between 1910 and 1913. They include views of Alanson, Brutus, Burt Lake, Carp Lake, Cecil Bay, Conway, Crooked Lake, Crooked River, Douglas Lake, Lakewood, Levering, Mackinac Island, Oden, Pellston, Pon She Wa Ing, Van Every and West Oden. "Dibert" was lettered on negatives of postal views of Munising saw and paper mills and public buildings, while "Deibert" was marked on the negatives of views of the court house, Grand Island and nearby Miner's Falls. By 1918, William's left leg was defective and he was ruptured. For many years he had a small shop on East Superior Street in Munising where he did his studio work, sold film, and developed negatives and prints for others.

Anne was born in the Netherlands on December 20, 1868. Apparently Anne was a photographer in the Netherlands, where Sneek is a town of 30,000 in the province of Vriesland. "A. de Jong, Reizend Fotograaf, Sneek." was printed on the European style post card backs of some photographs, while "Foto Firma de Jong de Boer Sneek. Nadruk verboden." was similarly printed on others. One of these photos depicted the post office at Vriesland, Michigan, and was mailed in March of 1917. Parts of the printing translate as "Regional Photographer" and "Copying forbidden." Anne was a stout man with brown eyes and dark hair in 1918. Tryntjze de Jong was his wife.

Jay's father came from New York, his mother was Canadian, and he was born in Ohio in March of 1847, sixth of the seven children of Henry and Elizabeth DeLamater. His older brother William began a jewelry business at Charlotte in 1867, and Jay was working with or for him in 1870. Adalina, called Adda or Addie, was born in Michigan in June of 1849 and married Jay in 1873 or 1874. Their children were born in Michigan: Hugh in April of 1881, Beulah in July of 1883 and the twins Lucille and Lenore in July of 1887. An older daughter married a man named Colvin, gave birth to Stewart in December of 1894, and died before 1900. DeLamater & Holmes were proprietors of the Diamond Art Gallery. "DeLAMATER & GRIMES" was printed on the carte de visite sized paper sleeves of tintypes at about the time both Jay B. DeLamater and Horace C. Grimes were working in Grand Ledge. Jay and Adda were living with Jay's widowed mother in 1880, and they were sharing their home with their daughters in 1910 when Lenore was a single painting teacher, Lucille was divorced, and Beulah was a music teacher married to the physician William D. Brooks. By 1930 Jay was a widower living on his own.

Carlo was born in 1867 or 1868 at Abruzzi, Italy. Maria was born in Italy in 1870 or 1871, and she married Carlo about 1893. They immigrated in 1896, and their daughter Anita was born in New York State in 1897. Carlo's artistic photographic studio offered portraits in oil, water colors, pastel and crayon, interior decorations and designing. He became known as a painter, sculptor and mural decorator, and created the mural decorations in the Church of St. Leo Magno in Detroit. His widow, Mrs. Mary A. William was born at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, on June 6, 1886, and was fourth of the five sons of Ferdinand and Sadie (Rueter) De Longe. He became a slender man with blue eyes and dark brown hair. Sarah was born in Michigan on July 13, 1887, and she married William in 1910 or 1911. William traveled throughout the country for a Chicago firm before establishing the William DeLonge Company to produce factory bird's-eye views and colored postal cards. Sarah gave birth in Michigan to her daughters Joy and Betty between 1920 and 1922. William died at Los Angeles on May 5, 1955, and Sarah lived until May 6, 1975.

Rolland was born on September 17, 1889, at Fort Wayne, Indiana. He advertised: "Photos of Babies, Children, Groups, Houses, Flashlights, Printing and Developing. Satisfaction Guaranteed. 128 Dyer Street." He and Minnie lived at 128 Dyer Street from 1914 until 1916. Raymond B. Lansing was the founder of the Lansing Studio, which he apparently sold to Rolland about 1917. Rolland was medium sized with dark blue eyes and light brown hair in 1917. He and his wife had two young children, and Rolland expected that rheumatism and his dependents would exempt him from military service. The listings in the 1918 Lansing directory and in the gazetteer for 1919 were for Rolland R. Delp. He advertised amateur finishing and enlargements in 1918.

His parents came from New York, and Dewitt was born in Michigan in April of 1857. He and his younger brother Daniel were living on the farm of Ezekiel and Flora Putnam in 1870, and Dewitt still was there in 1880, so Flora just might have been his mother. Mary was born in Michigan in February of 1868, and was said to be from a Laingsburg family. She married Dewitt about 1890, and they never had children. Dewitt sold his Laingsburg studio to George Atchinson in 1902. He advertised in The Billiken, the 1909 senior annual of Dowagiac High School, and frequently during 1910 in the Dowagiac Daily News. At this time, Mary was conducting a dress making business from their home. They left Dowagiac in the spring of 1911 with the intention of relocating in the west.

Stereographs of other states had "DENSMORE, Photographer, Three Rivers, Mich." printed on their backs. Jay's emulsion filter was pictured and described in Wilson's Photographics in 1881. He was granted Patent Number 290,217 on December 18, 1883, covering his machine for Retouching Photographic Negatives. He demonstrated his machine at the 1884 convention of the Photographers' Association of America in Cincinnati, where many rival machines were exhibited. Jay advertised in 1885 and 1886: "DENSMORE, Niles, Mich., makes all kinds of Photographs to life size. Sittings, instantaneous. Bring the children and come yourselves. Call whether in want of pictures or not. Prices reasonable, and customers pleased. Cabinets, $3.00 per dozen and other styles equally low." Jay produced stereo views of Niles business streets and parks, and one of his card photographs was of a depot. Three of his suggestions were included in the 1887 publication, Wilson's Quarter Century in Photography. The frontispiece of a photographic magazine in the spring of 1891 was produced from a half-tone etching made by Jay using a photograph made by another man. His article on "Albumen Paper Printing" was in The American Annual of Photography for 1892, and mentioned that the methods which he described had been used in his business for the past twelve years. Jay's widow, Mrs. Laura A. Densmore, was living in Niles in 1892.

Alonzo was born in Canada in August of 1865, the son of Lacie and Mary Denton. Ida May Tabor was born in Canada in November of 1870, the daughter of Christopher and Harriet Tabor. She and Alonzo were married at Tilsonburg on January 5, 1886. Their son Charles was born in Essex County, Ontario, on September 4, 1888. Their son Lorne was born in Norfolk County, Ontario, on March 10, 1891. Alonzo was identified as a local merchant in both 1888 and 1891. The boys crossed the border with their parents in 1893, and by 1900 Alonzo had his first papers toward United States citizenship. Something happened to his first marriage, and about 1905 Alonzo married May C. Imerson. Her father came from Canada and May was born in Michigan in 1879, the daughter of William and Celinda Imerson. She gave birth to Clifford in June of 1908. May and Clifford were living with her parents at Caro in both 1910 and 1920. Quincy R. Hall and Loneta Leavitt were Alonzo's partners in Flint, and Denton & Leavitt specialized in photo enlarging. Lon was rooming with the parents of 20-year-old Loneta Leavitt in 1920. He offered picture frames as well as photography from his art studio at Caro. Though May had been characterized as divorced in 1920, by 1930 Alonzo had joined his wife and son in the Imerson household at Caro.

James was born in Michigan to parents from New York on May 31, 1875, fourth of the five children and the only son of James B. and Helen E. DePue. He matured into a tall man with blue eyes and light brown hair. Grace was born in Michigan to parents from Ohio in 1879, and she married James about 1902. James was lodging by himself in a large boarding house in 1910. He and Grace still were together in 1920, but a year or two later he was able to marry for the second time. His bride was named Alice, and she was born in South Carolina about 1905. Their son Russell was born in 1922 or early in 1923. By 1925 James was emphasizing the developing of film for customers. In 1930 Alice was proprietor of a developing studio where James developed the negatives and finished the photographic prints.

Ella was born in Pennsylvania in October of 1861, and she married Gustav Derby in 1886 or 1887. Gustav was born in Sweden in March of 1858, immigrated to the United States in 1878 and became a naturalized citizen. Their son Paul was born in Nebraska in April of 1890, and their son Glenwood was born in Michigan in October of 1893. Gustav was the proprietor of a Benton Harbor restaurant. In April of 1898 it was reported that the photograph car of Mrs. E. Derby had been moved from the vacant lot west of M. Hennis' store to the lot east of the City Steam Laundry. Late in July of 1900 it was announced that Mrs. Derby was offering her photograph outfit for sale September first, and pictures at cut rates till then. By 1920 Gust was a widower working as a night clerk in a Benton Harbor hotel and providing a home for the family of his son Glenwood. Ten years later Gust was back in the restaurant business and employing his son Paul as a cook.

His parents came from Massachusetts and New York and Hugh was born in Ohio on February 4, 1877, fifth of the seven children of Alfred and Josephine (Sellack) Derby. That Eston Smith had acquired the Portland gallery of George W. Wood and would be operating it with the assistance of Hugh Derby was reported in the fall of 1898. Frank B. Rhodes was the son of a photographer and had more than a decade of professional photographic experience before he became Hugh's partner in 1900. Reva E. Hogle was born in Michigan on February 13, 1881. She and Hugh were married around 1901, and their daughter Doris was born in the spring of 1912. Reva died in Humboldt County, California, on September 14, 1960. Hugh was living at Arcata in Humboldt County at the time of his death on August 21, 1969.

- During the organization of this society on October 1, 1889, officers were elected to serve until the January meeting: 1
James Joy, president; H. L. Wilton, vice president; Joseph E. Lockwood, secretary; and D. Farrand Henry, treasurer. 1
The society's rooms on the third floor on State Street just west of Rowland Street were formally opened on Tuesday 1 evening, January 14, 1890, with Bryant Walker outlining the aims and purposes of the club and noting that popular 1 photography dated from the recent advent of dry plates and snap shot cameras. Frederick Joy, president of the society, 1 followed Walker and projected a series of views by members on a screen at one end of the hall. All 150 chairs in the 1 hall were occupied, as was all available standing room. In addition to this assembly room, there were rooms for 1 developing and a room for special experiments, all provided with water and electric lights, a room for lockers and the 1 storage of individual cameras, chemicals and the like, and a room equipped for making solar print enlargements as 1 well as ordinary printing. Mr. C. A. Stacey, representing the Eastman Company of Rochester, New York, addressed a 1 2

Detroit Camera Club

This club was organized early in February of 1897, and O'Brien Atkinson became secretary. With a membership of 50, the spring show was rather crude and local. There were almost 100 members by the time of the autumn show, which was more satisfactory. Nearly two hundred entries were displayed in this first annual exhibition of this club. A. D. Noble, Junior, secured the gold medal for the best single picture by an amateur, and the amateur Dr. Hugo Erichsen won the first prize for genre photographs. The best pictures in the professional section were shown by J. E. Watson and E. Donald Roberts. Officers for the ensuing year were elected early in 1898: E. Donald Roberts, president; Mrs. G. O. Pratt, vice president; George O. Pratt, secretary; Mrs. P. J. Sherman, historian; and A. D. Noble, custodian. The Second Salon and Exhibition of the club was held at the Detroit Museum of Art on November 21 through 26, 1898. There were three divisions: the salon, the general exhibition and lantern slides, open to artistic workers throughout the world. The third annual Photographic Salon was held in the club rooms from November 25 to December 3, 1899. Technique did not receive great consideration in the selection of pictures for the salon, but a general exhibition of photographs without sufficient excellence to be hung in the salon was held at the same time. This was calculated to reconcile salonists and anti-salonists. From 1899 through 1901 the club met at 106 Miami Avenue with E. W. Sprague as president and W. E. Winkler as secretary and treasurer. In 1902 the address was 511 Putnam Avenue, Dr. Preston M. Hickey was president, and J. E. Scott was secretary and treasurer. From 1903 until 1905 the address was 69 Maybury Grand Avenue, J. E. Scott was president, and W. E. Brinkerhoff was secretary and treasurer. A new Detroit Camera Club was organized in the spring of 1910 with W. B. Wilcox, president; C. L. Warren, vice president; C. J. Schauer, secretary; and Harold Collins, treasurer. Rooms were established at 6 Adams Avenue West, and the club sponsored outings, a circulating portfolio, and monthly competitions. At the first semi-annual meeting on October 4, 1910, J. E. Scott was elected vice president and the other officers were re-elected. An exhibition was to be held early in 1911.

Detroit Lantern Club

This club was established on January 6, 1891, and continued into 1896. Meetings initially were held on the second 1 d
Monday of each month, with an annual meeting early in January. Later the club met on Thursday evenings at the 2 d
Detroit Museum of Art on Jefferson Avenue, and presented photographic lantern slide exhibitions there about twice a 1 2 month through the season. One such exhibition was "BY SPECIAL REQUEST - THE DETROIT LANTERN CLUB 2 3 will show a series of views taken in this city about 30 years ago. This entertainment will recall memories of the past, 3 and you as a citizen are especially invited to be in the audience at the MUSEUM of ART, Tuesday Eve., Nov. 22, 3 1892." These slides were probably prepared from negatives by Jex Bardwell, who was an active member of the club, 3 2 and historian Clarence M. Burton provided the commentary. James Joy, son of an early Detroit millionaire, was 4 2 president of the club for a while, but Frank E. Kirby, famed marine designer, was president during most of the life of 2 the club. D. Farrand Henry, engineer, inventor and designer of the Detroit Water Works, was always secretary and 2 1 treasurer of the club. Alfred D. Noble, executive of a large family business, was sometimes identified as 2 d director of the club, though Charles C. Hinchman, partner in a wholesale drug firm, was manager of the club in 1892, 1 2 director in 1893 and an active member in 1894. Other members of the club in 1893 and/or 1894 were: William H. and 2 5
Orville C. Allen, major dealers in photographic supplies; George R. Angell, Detroit's other veteran photo supply 1 d merchant; Eugene T. Barnum, owner of a wire and iron works; George N. Brady, a wealthy commission merchant; 1 5 Joseph M. Bressler, son and partner of a capitalist real estate broker; Charles Buncher, wholesale dry goods merchant 1 d and amateur archeologist; Dr. William J. Burrows, a dentist; George H. Carlisle, lawyer and circuit court reporter; 1 d John H. Cartwright, partner in a granite and monumental works; Dr. Leartus Connor, a physician; Roys J. Cram, a civil 1 d engineer and contractor; Rev. James F. Dickie, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church; Frederick E. Driggs, a 5 d prominent attorney; Robert C. Faulconer, president of a manufacturing company; Charles P. Gilbert, secretary and 5 1 manager of the Edison Illuminating Company; Armond H. Griffith, director of the Detroit Museum of Art; Horace 2
Hitchcock, wholesale woolens merchant; William C. Jupp, wholesale dealer in paper and printing supplies; Max R. 1 d Lemaire, manager of a large retail store; Hugh McMillan, president of a bank; Charles L. Major, business man and 1 d later a commercial photographer; Frank B. Rae, professional electrical engineer; Ford H. Rogers, owner of the Detroit 1 d White Lead Works; Ozias W. Shipman, owner of a large coal and wood company; Mortimer L. Smith, a leading 1 5 architect; Albert M. Steele, a real estate broker; E. Chandler Walker, president of a brewing company; and Carlos E. 1 5 Warner, another prominent lawyer. Many of the men were in their fifties and devoted time to intellectual pursuits 1 d unrelated to their various businesses. d

Detroit Photographic Association, The

This association of professional photographers was established in November of 1882. Jex Bardwell was president and C. W. Earle was secretary in 1883. The officers elected for 1886 were: Jex Bardwell, president; Albert M. Harris, vice president; William H. Allen, treasurer; and Charles W. Earle, secretary; with a council composed of Judge J. J. Speed, D. Farrand Henry and William Marratt. The same officers served in 1887, except that the secretary was identified as Charles Farmer. C. W. Earle advised a publisher in July of 1893 that no meetings had been held for several years, and though the association had never been formally dissolved, practically it was out of existence. 1 2

William A. Livingstone was manager of the Detroit Photographic Company in 1898 and 1899, and was treasurer of the company from 1900 through 1903, while Henry A. Cleland was president and George L. Canfield was secretary. Livingstone was again listed as manager from 1908 through 1914. Stanley M. Carper was manager from 1916 to 1918, and H. J. Nichols was manager in 1921. The Photochrom Company had the same address as the Detroit Photographic Company from 1898 through 1904. Livingstone returned from negotiations with the patent holders in Switzerland during the summer of 1897 with a contract giving him exclusive rights to the Photochrom process in America. Photochrom was a full color printing process employing finely grained lithographic stones from Bavaria with an asphalt coating. Photographic negatives were used without half-tone screens to prepare as many as ten stones to print the different colors of one picture. Albert V. Schuler brought an artist, a machinist and two operators from Switzerland in 1897 to assure that the process was used successfully. William Henry Jackson joined the company in 1898, bringing along his large inventory of western negatives. Jackson continued to provide negatives as a traveling photographer until 1903, when he took charge of production in Detroit. By 1902, the Detroit Photographic Company was making seven million prints annually, employing about forty artisans and a dozen commercial travelers. The company is best known to collectors as a prolific and high quality producer of post cards, but many larger prints were made and sold. The collection of the California Historical Society includes an 1899 view of Los Angeles larger than 10 by 15 inches and three smaller San Francisco street scenes. Prints approximately 5 by 7 and 7 by 9 inches carried separately printed gold legends such as: "53431. ARCH ROCK, MACKINAC ISLAND, MICHIGAN. COPYRIGHT 1899 BY DETROIT PHOTOGRAPHIC CO." Some of these prints were sandwiched between a backing board and a mat, and "... 'We Photograph the World in the Colors of Nature.' Detroit Photographic Company, Scenic and Art Publishers, Detroit, Michigan." was printed on the back of some of the boards. When the Detroit Publishing Company was formed in 1905, it seems to have absorbed the Photochrom Company and to have relegated the Detroit Photographic Company to the role of a local retail outlet. The store was classified with photographers in 1906 and 1907. "DETROIT PHOTOGRAPHIC CO." was lettered on the negatives of high quality 7 by 9 inch photographic prints on light 7 1/2 by 9 1/2 mounts, including a view of the steamer Peerless docked at Mackinac Island and a close-up of the light house at the upper entrance to the locks at Sault Ste. Marie. The Company offered photographic developing and printing in 1920.

Detroit Photographic Society

In 1868 this society of professional photographers, with Jex Bardwell as president, was reported to be in fine working order. It had been organized to contest the validity of Cutting's patent rights over the use of bromide in photography, and its meager treasury paid Bardwell's traveling expenses to Philadelphia where the legal battle was concluded successfully in July of 1868.

Detroit Police Department

On the day following his arrest, and immediately after his detailed confession about photographic counterfeiting was made on January 8, 1897, Alfred Devereaux was taken to a Detroit photographer's studio and "mugged." He was in the custody of federal marshals at the time, but this seems to have been a typical procedure in this era. About 1905 the Detroit Publishing Company became the predominant firm in Photochrom publishing, absorbing the Photochrom Company and relegating the Detroit Photographic Company to act as a local retail outlet. William A. Livingstone was manager of the company through 1923, and then Robert B. Livingstone was manager until 1935. 1 d “COPR. DETROIT PUBLISHING CO.” was press printed below the photographic image on post cards of such scenes as the Detroit Boat Club on Belle Isle, and lettered on the negatives of post card photographs such as one of the palatial interior of the steamer City of Detroit. “DETROIT PUBLISHING CO.” was press printed below postal photographs of a Knights Templar parade in Detroit in 1906. “COPYRIGHT DETROIT PUBLISHING CO.” was printed on the label on some lantern slides. “DETROIT PUBLISHING CO” was lettered on the negatives of unmounted 7 ¾ by 9 ¾ photographic prints on heavy stock, including views of cargo vessels under construction and being launched in 1912, and both freight and passenger boats in service. The company was included in the commercial photographer classification in 1917, and advertised in 1920: “DETROIT PUBLISHING CO., Commercial Department. Donald's father was Canadian, his mother was born in Michigan, and he was born here at Vicksburg on February 18, 1892. Something happened to his family, for in 1900 his older sister Angie was living on the farm of her grandfather Arthur Johnson in Mundy Township, his four-year-old sister Mary was boarding with an unrelated family in Vicksburg, and Donald was not to be found. He was boarding with an aunt at Oceanside in 1910. He had become a medium-sized man with blue eyes and dark brown hair and was farming for J. Roy Hill in June of 1917, but was leaving for Detroit. Donald was boarding with the family of his sister Angie in 1920. Esther Leone Slade was born in Michigan on April 7, 1899, the daughter of Ephraim L. and Edna A. (Francis) Slade, and she married Donald in 1920 or 1921. Donald died in San Diego County on February 11, 1973, and Esther lived there until December 2, 1985.

Frederick was born in December of 1834 at Ontario, New York, the son of Timothy Deuel. His brother Charles was three years older and his sister Sophelia was two years younger. Frederick advertised locally in the fall of 1855: "F. P. DEUEL, ... Having fitted and materially improved these rooms, now tenders his services in the Art to the Ladies and Gentlemen of Tecumseh and vicinity. His facilities for taking first class Daguerreotypes are not excelled by any similar establishment east or west. He pledges himself to make better work than can be obtained elsewhere at the same price, and in advance perfect satisfaction will be given or no charge made. Everyone is invited to call, for all things are now ready." Charlotte was born in Michigan in May of 1838, and she married Frederick about 1858. Their son Frank was born in February of 1860, and their son Finley was born in 1863 or early in 1864. Frederick enlisted at Adrian as a sergeant in Company G of the Fourth Michigan Infantry on June 20, 1861, and was mustered into the army on the same day. He was remembered as strong and rugged, and as one of the most physically fit men in his company. Shortly after the Fourth fought at Hanover Court House, Virginia, on May 27, 1862, Frederick was stricken with rheumatism, and was so stiff and lame that he was obliged to ride part of the time. He could have gone to the hospital but managed to stay with his comrades until the Battle of Gaines' Mill on June 27, when he was wounded in the right thigh by a gun shot. While he was being treated in the hospital for the wound and the rheumatism, he became quite deaf. At this time he was 5 feet 7 inches tall with a light complexion, grey eyes and brown hair. The doctors decided that the wound would not permit Frederick to resume his military duties so he was discharged for disability on October 29, 1862, from Fort McHenry at Baltimore, Maryland. The rheumatism and deafness continued to trouble him throughout the rest of his life, and were stressed when he was applying for increases to his Invalid Pension. Fred was characterized as a millwright in 1870 and 1880. He and Charlotte lost their son Finley prior to 1900, but their son Frank married and had a son. By 1910 Frederick was a widower and an inmate of the National Military Home near Dayton, Ohio. He died on April 27, 1911.

Albert was born in Michigan in January of 1858. He and his twin Alfred were first of the seven children of Jonathan Lawrence Devereaux and Charlotte A. Devereaux. Her father came from New York, Minnie was born in Michigan to Levi and Mary Whitford in November of 1858, and she married Albert about 1882. Their sons were born here: Clifton in July of 1887 and Clarence in December of 1888. The Devereaux Brothers were listed as photographers in Ashley, Morrice, North Lansing and Vernon in the gazetteer for 1891, and in Bancroft, Byron, Durand, Fenton and Perry in the one for 1893. Similar combinations of the same towns were printed on their cabinet mounts, with North Lansing, Durand and Fenton indicated as their main places of business. “Devereaux Brothers are now prepared to take negatives in this place every Monday” was noted in the Perry World for April 15, 1892. “... Fenton, Durand, Byron, Bancroft, Mich.” was printed on some of Albert’s cabinet mounts. Frank Kelley was a neighbor in 1900, and may have been working for Albert as a photographer. Albert’s ice cream parlor had a soda fountain and sold cigars and confections. He and Minnie were providing a home in 1920 for their nine-year-old grandson Donald, while his mother and father next door took care of his baby brother Robert. Albert was a widower by 1930, when both of these boys were living with him.

Alfred was born in Michigan in January of 1858. He and his twin Albert were first of the seven children of Jonathan Lawrence Devereaux and Charlotte A. Devereaux. The Devereaux Brothers gallery in North Lansing was augmented by branches at Ashley, Byron, Morrice and Vernon. A major studio at Durand and branches at Bancroft, Byron and Morrice supplemented their Fenton gallery. By the time he moved to Detroit, Alfred had a wife and two children but did not live with them. His commercial photography was mainly exterior and interior views of buildings done for architects and builders. His retouching, printing and mounting were done by employees of Adolphus W. Greene, and by 1896 Alfred was working out of Greene's extensive studio on Monroe Avenue. Late in the afternoon of January 7, 1897, Alfred was arrested there on charges of photographically counterfeiting United States bank notes. Reports conflicted as to whether the photographic equipment confiscated at the time included counterfeiting plates or was only a high quality general purpose camera outfit. Greene and his staff were not accused of any criminal actions. Alfred made a full confession to a United States Attorney on the following day. He was indicted early in June of 1897 for counterfeiting five-dollar bills issued by the National Bank of Commerce of New York and ten-dollar bills issued by the Union National Bank of Detroit. Alfred pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial separate from his co-defendant, the barber William W. Lepper. During his trial, which began on June 10, Alfred's attorney first claimed that the confession had not been voluntary. Witnesses convinced the judge otherwise, and Alfred was ordered to read the confession in court. Then his attorney claimed that the confession had been obtained under duress and with promises of immunity from prosecution. The jury found Alfred to be guilty, and on June 15 he was fined $500.00 and sentenced to three years at hard labor in the Detroit House of Correction. A United States Marshall escorted Alfred to DeHoCo on June 18, 1897. Alfred lost six pounds while imprisoned, and weighed 138 pounds when he was released. Though his sentence did not expire until the following June, he was discharged on January 1, 1900. He was said to be a widower in 1910, when he was boarding with an unrelated couple.

He was called Harold as a child, and probably as long as his father lived. He was born in Detroit on March 29, 1896, last of the five children of Joseph and Catherine Devereaux. His three sisters and one brother were born in Michigan between September of 1885 and February of 1891. The surname was spelled Devereux in the 1910 and later censuses, in his draft registration, and in most directories after 1922. He became a tall slender man with blue eyes and brown hair. Pearl was born in Michigan in 1896 or early in 1897, and she married Joseph about 1923. Their children were born in Detroit: Shirley in December of 1925, Patricia in May of 1927, and Joseph in December of 1928.

Orton was born in Canada on October 22, 1873, crossed the border with his family in 1883, and became an American citizen when his father was naturalized while Orton was a minor. The rental of the Dafoe gallery in Alpena by Orton DeViney and Russell Emmons of Port Huron was reported early in 1899. Orton was boarding in 1900 with Mrs. Anna E. Emmons, the widowed mother of Russell. His opening of the Wall Street gallery in Port Huron was reported in the spring of 1908. About this time he married a nineteen-year-old lady named Carrie who was born in Ohio. He was slender with blue eyes and gray hair in 1918, and his nearest relative was his mother living in another Port Huron neighborhood. He advertised in 1926: “DeViney Studio, Photographs of Merit. Not – ‘Just photographs’ but portraits – faithful in likeness – truthful in character – attractive in finish – and reasonable in price....”

His parents emigrated from France and Germany, and Eugene was born in Ohio in February of 1855. Mary was born in Michigan to parents from New York in December of 1860, last of the four daughters of Levi T. and Mary M. Olds. She and Eugene married about 1878, and they had four children born in Michigan: Edith in October of 1879, Bessie in January of 1883, Rex in January of 1888, and Leo in June of 1890. Their daughter Ardis was born in Wisconsin in 1898. Nix & DeVogt announced their partnership in a Reed City newspaper early in 1884, noting their increased facilities at Nix's old stand and promising a finer class of photographic work than ever with style and finish equal to the best and prices as low as first class work could be sold. Eugene was also selling sewing machines in 1890. About 2:45 a.m. in August of 1903, fire was noticed on McEwan Street between Fourth and Third Streets in Clare. The flames consumed five old frame buildings which had housed the meat market of John Jackson, the studio of E. H. DeVogt, the harness shop of George McKerrchee, a bicycle shop, a furniture and clothing store, a jewelry store, a grocery store, a restaurant and a bakery. Eugene's gallery, photographs, negatives, cameras and ledgers were destroyed. The glass negatives and ledgers were said to have covered pertinent details of hundreds of lumber camps and the foremen who ran them. In retrospect, the negatives were the most serious loss, but at the time Eugene considered the gallery to be the greatest casualty. He lost his Beaverton studio in a 1909 fire. By 1920 Mary DeVogt was a widow living with her daughter Ardis and her husband in Chicago.

His parents emigrated from Holland and Isaac was born at Pella, Iowa, on April 21, 1860, third of the five children of Izak and Adriana DeVos. He had two older brothers and two younger sisters. Henry J. Christmas was a Charlotte photographer prior to his partnership with Isaac, and he continued as a photographer there with other partners until 1885. On some cabinet mounts originally imprinted "Whalen, CHARLOTTE FINE ART GALLERY, CHARLOTTE, MICH." the name "DeVOS," was added in the space following Whalen. Abel J. Whalen was a Charlotte photographer, off and on, from 1872 until 1888. Four of five different printings on Isaac's cabinet mounts used the words: "DeVos, Cheney Gallery, Charlotte, Mich." Emma was born to German parents at Fairfield, Ohio, on April 21, 1870, and she married Isaac about 1886. Their son Kenneth was born in Indiana in June of 1888. Isaac and Emma visited Europe in 1926, and took along their fifteen-year-old granddaughter Jean. They returned on the S. S. Montroyal, leaving Liverpool on September 24 and arriving at Quebec on October first. By 1930 Emma was a widow living by herself in Chicago.

Abraham (often Abram) was born in Holland in September of 1858, eldest of the five known children of Herbert and Anna DeWindt. The family came to America about 1868. Note that Abraham was apprenticed to a photographer at the age of eleven. Johanna was born in the Netherlands in April of 1860 and was brought to this country in 1864. They both became naturalized citizens of the United States, and were married about 1878. Their three sons were born in Grand Rapids: Anthony in August of 1879, Martin in September of 1883, and Justus in October of 1887. Abraham may have used his home at 35 Colfax Street as a gallery in 1889 and 1890, for he employed Charles Manby as a clerk in those years. From 1898 on, Pearn & DeWindt were always identified as commercial photographers. They employed as photographers Helen D. Owens in 1898 and William J. Pearn in 1898 and 1899. Abraham employed his sons Justus C. and Martin A. DeWindt as photo printers in 1906 and 1907, and as photographers from 1908 through 1919 and in 1922. He was enumerated as a commercial photographer in 1930.

Martin was born in Grand Rapids on September 9, 1883, the second son of Abraham and Johanna DeWindt. He became a medium sized man with gray eyes and brown hair. Her father emigrated from Holland, her mother came from New Jersey, and Maude was born in Michigan in 1883. She and Martin were married about 1908, and their son Ross was born in 1912. In 1917 and 1918 they lived in Jenison with their young son, and Martin commuted to work in Grand Rapids. Ruth's father was Scotch, she was born in Michigan in 1877 or early in 1878, and her first marriage occurred about 1913. By 1930 she was married to Martin and was helping to raise Ross. Ruth was the Grand Rapids executive secretary of the Camp Fire Girls in 1943.

Cassius was born in September of 1850 in Birdsall Township of Allegany County, New York, last of the three children of George W. and Susannah E. Dey. Mary was born in Michigan to parents from New York about 1851, and she married Cassius in February of 1870. In August of 1870 they were providing a home for his mother, the former photographer Mrs. Susan E. Dey. By 1879 Cassius and Mary had four children: Martin, Maud, Clyde and Charlie. Martin was later known as the photographer Mert C. Dey. Mary and Cassius divorced, so in 1896 Cassius was able to marry a spinster named Anna who was born in Michigan in January of 1855 to a father from Ohio and a German mother. By 1920 Anna was a widow.

Her parents came from New York, and Genevieve was born in Iowa about 1872. After the accidental death in the spring of 1898 of her photographer husband, Mert C. Dey, Genevieve employed the experienced photographer Charles C. Wolcott to assist in her gallery. "WOLCOTT & DEY" was printed above the "C. S. WOLCOTT, HILLSDALE, MICH." blind stamp on some photograph mounts. Mrs. Grace Hayden came from Chicago to become Genevieve's partner in the fall of 1899, and they advertised as "PHOTOGRAPHERS. Everything up-to-date. Only the best work done. Call and see our pictures. It is a pleasure to please you." Genevieve advertised in 1915: "Photo gallery, amateur developing, prices reasonable." She advertised in 1921: "DEY, Quality, Service. State Street Across from Campus. Ann Arbors New Portrait Studio. We make our strong pull on QUALITY, SERVICE and guaranteed satisfaction to you. Portraits, Groups, Flashlights, Views, Artistic Framing, Pictures in Oils. Dey Studios, Hillsdale, Ann Arbor" and in 1922: "DEY Photographer. Specializing in the Finest Portraits and Giving Unequalled Service. We are in a Position to Interest You with Latest Styles in Portraits...." and again in 1924: "Priceless Service. Our earnest endeavor is to give the Michigan students the best in photography.... Pictures are one of the finest friendship investments. MURATONE PORTRAITS – FRAMES – ENSIAN GROUPS." M. Clifton Dey, Genevieve's son, was a principal of the Dey Studio from 1922 to 1939, and succeeded the Studio in 1940.

He was born at Lawton late in 1870 or early in 1871, first of the four children of Cassius F. and Mary L. Dey, and grandson of the photographer Susan E. Dey. He was called Martin as a child. Mert boarded in Grand Rapids and Detroit with his mother, the first wife of Cassius F. Dey. He identified himself as a portrait and crayon artist in Grand Rapids, where he employed Minnie M. Mayer as a clerk in 1895 and as a photo printer in 1896. While returning to his gallery from dinner on his bicycle in the spring of 1898, Mert was run over by a railroad locomotive and killed. His widow, Mrs. Genevieve C. Dey, continued the photographic business in Hillsdale.

He was born at Grand Rapids to Mert C. and Genevieve C. Dey on June 26, 1895, and became a tall slender man with blue eyes and light hair. He was single when he was inducted into the army at Hillsdale on August 29, 1918, and after a brief indoctrination was transferred to the United States School of Aerial Photography at Rochester, New York. There he studied and played in the U. S. S. A. P. Band. With demobilization, he was discharged from the service on December 18, 1918. He probably was known locally as Cliff, for he was listed as Clifford in the county directory. Edna was born in Illinois in 1898 or 1899, and she married Cliff about 1920. Their daughter Shirley was born in May of 1926.

Susannah was born in New York State in 1821, and later married George W. Dey. George was from New Jersey and worked as a carpenter and joiner. Susan gave birth in New York to three sons between 1847 and 1850, but only the youngest seems to have lived for more than a few years. She advertised "Photographs, Ambrotypes, Porcelain and Gem Pictures of all sizes, and in the most approved styles, at low prices." The dental offices of George W. Dey in 1869 were opposite the Robinson House at Lawton. In 1870 Susannah was sharing the home of her 20-year-old photographer son, Cassius F. Dey, and his 19-year-old wife Mary.

Wallace was born about 1831 in Trumbull County, Ohio. He was 5 feet 5 or 6 inches tall with brown hair and blue or grey eyes when he enlisted in Company K of the Third Michigan Volunteer Infantry at Grand Rapids on May 13, 1861. He was promoted to sergeant on June 10, and the Third left Grand Rapids for Washington, D. C., on June 13 to join the Army of the Potomac. The regiment was in action on July 18 at Blackburn's Ford and on July 21 at Bull Run, Virginia, and spent the winter at Alexandria, Virginia. The Third was heavily engaged at Williamsburg on May 5, 1862, and had 30 men killed, 124 wounded and 15 missing on May 31 at Fair Oaks, Virginia. They fought at Charles City Cross Roads on June 30, at Malvern Hill on July 1 and in a severe engagement at Groveton which was part of the second Battle of Bull Run. The Army retreated behind the defenses at Washington, and the Third did not see action again until December. From exposure during the Peninsular Campaign, Wallace had contracted heart disease. Early in November of 1862 he was sent to the Third Corps Hospital near Alexandria, Virginia, and was discharged for disability from there on January 24, 1863. He re-entered the service as Second Lieutenant of Company A of the Tenth Michigan Volunteer Cavalry at Newaygo on July 13, 1863. The Tenth was organized at Grand Rapids and reached Lexington, Kentucky, on December 5, 1863. The regiment operated in Tennessee throughout 1864, and contacted the enemy ten times in the first five months. Near Knoxville about March 15 Wallace was thrown from his horse and landed on his shoulders. He was unable to ride for several weeks, and was subject to rheumatism and neuralgia pains for the rest of his life. Early in the summer of 1864 most Union forces went to join Sherman's Army, and the Tenth was the only cavalry left in east Tennessee. During the rest of 1864 the regiment encountered rebel forces on the average of five days per month, on some days more than once, and the contacts ranged from light skirmishes to pitched battles. Wallace was promoted to First Lieutenant on January 5, 1865, and the Tenth soon moved into North Carolina to fight seven times in March and April. In June of 1865 Wallace was Acting Commissary of Subsistence, First Brigade, First Cavalry Division. He was mustered out of the army at Memphis, Tennessee, on November 11, 1865. At Eastmanville, Michigan, on January 8, 1870, he was married to Miss Elizabeth Garrison of Eastmanville, who had been born 26 years earlier in Schuyler County, New York. Their children, William and Grace, were born in Michigan between 1871 and 1874. Wallace was a lumberman and manufacturer at Newaygo, Ludington and Grand Rapids prior to 1888, and he qualified for an Invalid Pension at about that time. He died at Grand Rapids on June 10, 1897, of the heart disease for which he had been pensioned. Elizabeth received a Widow's Pension until her death at Oakland, California, on October 10, 1920.

Ambrose was born in Pennsylvania in December of 1851, last of the seven or more children of Daniel and Margaret Diehl. His brother Jeremiah was two years older, and their five sisters were born at two-year intervals between 1838 and 1847. Elizabeth was born into an English-speaking family in Ireland in 1857, she came to the United States in 1878, and she married Ambrose about 1880. She often was called Lizzie, and her sons were born in Michigan: Howard in December of 1881, and Raymond in March of 1890. Frank C. Bracy and Abraham Lapham were associated with Ambrose in Bracy, Diehl & Company, and Lapham continued as a partner in A. J. Diehl & Company, with Miss Anna S. Coman retained as a clerk through 1886 and Lemuel A. Bracy retained as a photo printer in 1885 and as a photographer in 1886. Edward J. Winiker was employed as a photo printer in 1885 and 1886. Charles J. Merbach became a third partner in 1886, and John G. Schmidt, Junior, was put on as an apprentice. Their cabinet photographs from 246 Woodward Avenue included business street scenes. Diehl & Sharpsteen retained Edward J. Winkler as a photographer, employed Miss Ina S. Cowan as a bookkeeper, and advertised in Pontiac: "The BEST PHOTOGRAPHS IN THE WEST at $2.50 per dozen. We guarantee satisfaction on every photo we put out, or money refunded. Life size Portraits in Photographic, Crayon, Water Color, Bromide and other styles from 5 to 30 dollars.... new and elegant ground floor gallery, the only one in the city at 246 WOODWARD." Burrell W. Ladd and J. Jefferson Gibson were also principals of Diehl, Ladd & Company, with Charles A. Ladd as retoucher, Edward J. Winkler as photo printer and Miss Lena Lichtwardt as clerk. Daniel Angell and Miss Flora Copeland were associated with Ambrose in Angell, Diehl & Company, and they retained Edward J. Winkler as photo printer. Angell & Diehl were succeeded at 246 Woodward Avenue by the Earle Photo Company. Ambrose was working in Detroit studios in 1910 and 1920. Howard and Raymond had good jobs, remained single and shared their parents' home through 1920. Elizabeth was keeping a lodging house in 1920 filled with eight lodgers as well as Ambrose and her two sons.

Franklin was born in New Jersey on September 23, 1874, last of the seven or more children of Lawrence and 1 2
Amanda Dilley. Myra Swan was born in Michigan in March of 1877, the daughter of Albert and Manda Swan. She 1 married Franklin about 1894, and their children were born in Michigan: Charles in May of 1897, Vivian in February of 1 1900, and Harry in 1902. The souvenir goods produced by Franklin's company about 1907 included 5 by 7 inch sheets 1 t of glass to the backs of which were adhered 4 ½ by 6 ¾ photographs such as one of the interurban bridge over the St. t
Joseph River, with brass ladder chain wrapped around the edges of the glass, and clear glass paper weights backed t with photos from the same negatives. He produced post card photographs for several years from these same negatives t and others, including views of a clown and a bunch of kids in front of a storefront theatre, the Berrien Springs High t
School and Lovers Lane. He was an optician of average height and build in 1918, with brown eyes and hair. t 2

His father came from New York and Buel was born in Wisconsin on July 23, 1877, the son of Julius H. and Eunice Dingman. His sisters Sophia and Birdie were born between 1861 and 1865. Her father emigrated from Germany and Matilda C. Suhrke (usually Tillie) was born in Wisconsin in April of 1879, the daughter of Albert W. and Emma Suhrke. Tillie married Buel about 1901, and their son Roy was born in April of 1905. "B. H. DINGMAN, PUB. PLYMOUTH, WIS." was printed on the post card backs of many photographs of places in the upper peninsula of Michigan, towns and mines in Alger, Baraga, Chippewa, Delta, Dickinson, Gogebic, Houghton, Iron, Marquette, Menominee, Ontonagon and Schoolcraft Counties. Neat and legible captions were lettered on his negatives along with such designations as "No 12, 1908" or "15-09" or "2-'10." His captions and designations could be recognized on many cards without his printing on the back. From the designations and postmarks it seems that most of his Michigan work was done between 1908 and 1911. Matilda was described as married in 1930, though she and a divorced sister were living in Plymouth with their parents and Buel could not be found. 1 3

His parents were natives of New York, and Erastus was born there in March of 1834, the son of Nathaniel and Betsy Dodge. He had at least one older and one younger sister. One Erastus Dodge, eight years younger than the photographer, was 21 years old when he enlisted in the Union Army at Morris, New York, on November 2, 1863. He was mustered as a private in Company G of the Fourteenth New York Heavy Artillery Regiment on December 16, 1863, and served with that company until he was mustered out at Washington, D.C., on August 26, 1865. Erastus played violin and horn with Gardner's Flint City Band, and prior to taking up photography was a foreman in the offices of the Flint Globe newspaper. Laurence was born to Henry A. and Minnie Dodge at Elmwood in Tuscola County, Michigan, on April 5, 1891. His father came from Ohio, and his mother was born in Canada to English and Irish parents. He had a sister that was one or two years older, and she became a school teacher. Laurence traveled on an Indian motorcycle, and in 1913 he purchased a half interest in a studio at Hastings. By December he was in business at Ottumwa. He moved to California about 1918, and he later opened a studio at Orange, California. His address in 1935 was 114½ North Euclid in Ontario, California, and he died there in 1937. A 5 by 7 inch photograph by Laurence of a log house built in Tuscola County in 1864 was reproduced in the Tuscola County Courier on July 16, 1915, above an article by his father about log houses and the men that built them. Luther was born in New York State in 1825 or 1826. His wife and daughter were born in Ohio, Mary about 1830 and Christiana (later Clara) in February of 1850. His son Willie was born in Michigan in 1855 or 1856. Luther advertised extensively in 1852 and 1853, beginning with this announcement in August of 1852: "Detroit Daguerreotype Gallery opposite the U. S. Court House, Jefferson Avenue, Detroit. Dodge & Co., having purchased the Gallery formerly occupied by McDonnell, and refitted it and furnished it with a full set of apparatus of a superior quality, from the smallest locket to the full-sized cameras, are now prepared to do all kinds of work pertaining to their business, with neatness and despatch. The operating will be conducted by L. P. Dodge, who from long experience and close application to the business, has acquired a thorough knowledge of the Art, both practical and chemical. No work will be sent out of the gallery without his special attention. The public are invited to call and examine his work, as doubtless they will appreciate the fine pictures and correct likenesses, rather than the imperfect productions which are so prevalent throughout the country. Likenesses taken of invalids or deceased persons, at their residence, when desired." Another early advertisement was for "L. P. Dodge & Co., DAGUERRIAN ARTISTS, over 151 Jefferson Avenue, corner Griswold Street,... are prepared to execute all orders in their line, in the very best style of their art, and at prices to suit all. They are determined to be excelled by none, and, having made the most extensive preparations for business, they would respectfully solicit the patronage of the public." Dodge & Company were mentioned as late as February of 1853. Luther's 1853 directory advertisement offered "DAGUERREOTYPES of the best styles, at DODGE'S SKY-LIGHT GALLERY, Opposite U. S. Court House, Jeff. Ave., Detroit. L. P. D. contends that no Daguerrean Operator in the Union can excel him in producing the most truthful likenesses. The Public are respectfully invited to look in at his Gallery, examine for themselves and be convinced. Chemicals and Plates for Sale." He employed A. P. Allen as a daguerrean artist in 1853. An 1855 advertisement was for "DODGE'S DAGUERREOTYPE GALLERY. Pictures taken in every style of the art at Dodge's Sky-Light Gallery, opposite U. S. Court House,... over C. & A. Ives' Banking House. L. P. Dodge would respectfully call the attention of the public to his specimens of Daguerreian Art, which for truthful likeness and beauty of finish are not excelled in any Gallery in the Union. The exceeding low prices of the same, also place them within the reach of all. He would particularly invite Ladies and Gentlemen visiting Detroit, to call and examine them, as seeing is believing. No Charge Made unless Entire Satisfaction is Given. George was born in New York State in 1853 or early in 1854, third of the five children of Thomas and Miranda Donaldson. His mother was English, and by 1860 she was a widow. W. S. Carey's store was on the south side of East Maumee Street near Main Street. Promenade photographs, 6 by 3 inch prints on 7 by 4 inch mounts, were produced at Donaldson's Grand Central Gallery in Adrian, which was only one flight of stairs over Whitney's Bank. George probably was employing Frank G. Mills in his gallery in 1880. Anna was born in Michigan in 1851 or 1852, and she married George about 1877. Their sons were born in Michigan: George in October of 1878, and William in March of 1880. They had another child before George died at Tiffin on October 29, 1889. His wife and elder son still were living at Tiffin in 1900. Anna was working as a nurse, and George was married and working as a barber. 1

Susan was born at Wayne on March 10, 1865, last of the four daughters of Loren E. and Fannie E. Doolittle. Her father was from New York, her mother was from Ohio, and all of their children were born in Michigan. In the first few gazetteers, in some censuses and in her obituary, she was listed as Miss Susie Doolittle. She was active in the First Methodist Church, serving as an organist, in the choir and as Sunday School librarian. She seems to have been Wayne's first businesswoman, and she took the class pictures for graduates of Wayne High School practically every year that she was in business. Susie shared her home with her sister, Mrs. Anna English, in 1920 and in 1930. She retired in 1936, and Joseph Selwa took over the studio. Susie remained healthy until a few months before her death on April 9, 1951. She was survived by her nephews Clarence, Kenneth and James English of Wayne, and by her niece, Mrs. Gertrude Miller of Hammond, Indiana. Interment was in Westlawn Cemetery. 2 1

Garrett was born in the Netherlands on September 12, 1873, second of the five known sons of Garet Doorenbos. He immigrated in 1881 with his family and became a tall man with blue eyes and brown hair. "G. G. Doorenbos, 1003 N. West st, Kalamazoo, Mich" was stamped on the back of a plain buff colored five by four inch mount with rounded corners carrying a bird's-eye view of a parade. Note that Garrett's brother anglicized his surname and became the photographer Henry G. Dornbush. Nellie was born in the Netherlands in 1876 or early in 1877, was brought to the United States in 1882, and married Garrett about 1901. Their children, Effie, Garrett and Jacob, were born in Kalamazoo between 1903 and 1908. Garrett was on his own by 1918, and two years later was married to a Dutch lady named Delia. She brought along her children, Albert and Lucille Dykema. In 1930 Garrett was living by himself as one of seven roomers with a family.

Harm was born in Michigan on July 24, 1882, last of the five known sons of Garet Doorenbos. His parents and four brothers emigrated from the Netherlands in 1881. Harm matured into a tall man with blue eyes and brown hair, and probably was working in 1900 in the gallery of his brother, Henry G. Dornbush. Cora was born in the Netherlands in 1882, and she married Harm about 1904. Their children were born in Kalamazoo: Marie in 1905, Cora Frances in February of 1910, and Cornelius in 1912. Their son does not seem to have survived to maturity.

Henry was born in the Netherlands on June 29, 1878, fourth of the five known sons of Garet Doorenbos, and immigrated in 1881 with his family. He gained United States citizenship when his father was naturalized while Henry was a minor, and he became an averaged sized man with blue eyes and light blonde hair. He married about 1905. His bride was born in Michigan about 1880, and was identified in 1910 as Mrs. Reba F. Dornbush. Their children were born in Michigan: Leonard in 1907, Helen in August of 1909, and William in February of 1916. Henry's wife was identified in 1918, 1920 and 1930 as Mrs. Helen Francis Dornbush. The Penny Photograph Gallery of Mrs. Mary H. Packard was on the second floor at 120 East Main Street in 1899. Henry was an active member of the Photographers' Association of America in 1905, and was classified as a commercial photographer in 1908 and 1909. Post card photographs with the imprint "Henry G. Dornbush, Photographer, Kalamazoo, Mich." or with "Dornbush - Kazoo" lettered on the negative showed the shores of Crooked Lake and Wall Lake twenty miles northeast of Kalamazoo, and had postmarks between 1910 and 1920. A similar card depicting a 1910 horse race at Recreation Park in Kalamazoo was marked "Copyright by Dornbush" in the negative. Henry was working in September of 1918 for Elmer E. Doty from Building 506 at Camp Custer. He may have established a world's record by making 842 exposures of soldiers in one day at Camp Custer as the 35th Division was about to embark for Europe. He opened the studio at 209 West South Street on September 1, 1922. All three of their children were still at home with Henry and Helen in 1930.

His father emigrated from England and Edmund was born in Ontario in May of 1871, fifth of the six children of Robert and Jane Ellen Dosser. The family farm was in Walpole Township of Haldimand County, Ontario. Edmund immigrated with his family in 1885, and he became a naturalized citizen of the United States in 1902. The other Dosser Brother in the photographic partnership probably was James, born in Ontario in March of 1868, but it could have been Moses, born in Ontario in May of 1866. Phoebe Pearl Hobart was born in Michigan to natives of Michigan in July of 1877, first of the four children of Harland Everts Hobart and Mary Hobart. She married Edmund about 1901, and their daughter Lucy was not born until 1916. Their farm in Elmwood Township was ten or fifteen miles northeast of Caro.

His father came from New York and Elmer was born in Indiana on July 16, 1873, last of the four children of Henry L. and Rebecca A. Doty. He grew up on the family farm. Eva was born in Massachusetts to parents from Pennsylvania and West Virginia in December of 1872, and she married Elmer about 1893. Their children were born in Michigan: Merle in January of 1895 and Edith in October of 1896. Elmer exhibited photographs at the Ohio-Michigan photographers' convention in 1905. Late in 1906 a photographic journal carried two of his full-page portraits of women. A year later the magazine printed a two page article about him by G. Hanmer Croughton: "Never before during my more than thirty years' connection with photographers and photographs has a young, unknown man come into such prominence as Mr. Doty, of Belding, Mich. When, at the invitation of the Indiana Association of Photographers, I went to their convention ... last July, as one of the judges, I had not heard his name.... The little picture of Gladys S. which secured the diamond medal was the first of his work I had seen.... The picture that was chosen for the Salon of the PA of A at Dayton, and which also won the gold medal in the Grand Portrait Class at Boston, is ... in every respect as perfect as the picture of Gladys S.... Mr. Doty ... freely tells of his indebtedness to copies of portraits painted by the masters ... and also pays a high tribute to Mr. Poore's book on composition ... (In Doty's work) there is preeminently a feeling of refinement, a simplicity of arrangement, the art that conceals art, that comes from his own individuality,... it was this quality that impressed the judges at Winona, and made the picture of Gladys S. stand head and shoulders above all competitors.... In Mr. Doty's shadows there is that quality of transparency that artists look for and which is so seldom seen in photography.... The Boston medal picture (has) a subtle charm in the delicate gradations; the way in which they lead up to and concentrate the gaze upon the face is nothing less than masterly; then again the manner in which outlines that would be obtrusive are subdued and almost lost in the background, and the clever way the background is studied to carry out the theme of the picture all add up to a make-up that really defies criticism.... They are the most artistic portraits I have ever had submitted to me,... they are the nearest approach to perfection in art photography that I have seen anywhere." Eight of Elmer's portraits were reproduced in this issue with the comment: "Our pictures this month are from the studio of the genius who won the diamond medal at the Daguerre Memorial Institute and at the Dayton and Boston conventions...." In 1908. Elmer was a judge for the Photographers' Association of Wisconsin and was awarded the Grand Portrait prizes at the Iowa and Nebraska conventions. At the Photographers' Association of America convention at Detroit in August of 1908, Elmer was awarded the Second Grand Prize and G. Hanmer Croughton had these comments: "... there were a few very fine pictures, but there were certainly the greatest number of freaks I have ever seen in any convention. It was easy enough to trace the reason for this - they were largely imitations of Mr. Doty's work of last year that gained for him fame and prizes ... not one of which ... show that the imitators have grasped the true inwardness of the original." Elmer wrote to a periodical in August of 1910: "My slogan has always been, 'Make the quality right and the price will take care of itself,' and a recent experience here pointedly justifies the principle. I found my work growing too heavy to handle comfortably, as I run a strictly one-man shop, employing no help whatever, and rather than employ help, decided to raise my prices. Three weeks ago I advanced my prices just one-third, and so far, instead of any slacking up, it would seem to have merely whetted the public's appetite. Anyway, I booked over $500.00 worth of new business last week and turned away three promising sittings, because all my time was taken. My patronage comes largely from visitors to our sanitariums, and is of exactly the same class as I would expect to get if I were located on Fifth Avenue, New York." One of the ten photographs selected for the Association Report of the Photographers' Association of America after the Philadelphia convention in 1912 was by Elmer, as was one of the few photographs selected for the permanent exhibit during the Indianapolis convention of the PA of A in 1915. Between 1907 and 1913 he won 17 gold medals, including the world's highest honor, awarded during the International Photographers Exposition in 1910 at Dresden, Germany. Elmer was medium sized with blue eyes and black hair in 1918, shared a residence with his son, Lieutenant Merle B. Doty, and employed Henry G. Dornbush as a photographer at Camp Custer. He was living with his daughter and her husband in 1920, but later that year married a lady named Leta, born in Ohio in 1886 or 1887. His father came from Pennsylvania and Samuel was born in New York in July of 1853, last of the three children of Valdz and Johannah Doty and their only son. Arwilda was born in New York in April of 1852, and she married Samuel about 1875. Their son Lewis Valda Doty was born in Michigan on May 21, 1877, and their adopted daughter Lena Benson was born here in May of 1888. Post card photographs were made from the same negative both before and after "DOTY" was lettered on it. This was a street scene with a prominent sign of the Harrietta Drug Company. "THE FAMILY' BOYNE AUG. 1911 DOTY" was lettered on a postal negative of an outdoor scene showing four women standing behind five seated men. "BOYNE CITY REUNION AUG 1911 DOTY" was lettered upon another negative from which post cards were printed showing many people gathered in the City Park. Samuel did his photographic work from his home. Though spelling of the town name was not officially changed from Harriette to Harrietta until 1923, the names appear interchangeably on local signs and in post card legends throughout the early twentieth century.

Levi's name was spelled Douglass as often as it was spelled Douglas. He was born in Michigan to parents from New York (probably William and Charlotte Douglas) in August of 1836. His brother Noah was born in Iowa or Indiana a year or two later. Levi, Noah, and eighteen-year-old Isaac Douglas were living in 1850 on the farm of Jeremiah and Abigail Hott. William Douglas, born in New York about 1817 and accompanied by Levi and Noah, was living in 1856 with the family of John Douglas. John's family had been in Iowa for ten years, while William and his sons were newcomers. Levi and his brother Isaac were boarding in 1860 with the family of shoemaker Jesse W. Sheets. Viola was born in Michigan in 1849 or 1850, and she married Levi about 1869. She and Levi were sharing their home in 1870 with Noah, his wife Adelia, and his newborn son Noah. Levi was a widower by 1900, when he was boarding on the farm of a large family.

Fletcher was born about 1877. He filed for his first patent on January 22, 1917, and it was granted on December 31, 1918, as Number 1,289,129: "Method of Ascertaining the Combination of Stops for the Production of Half-tone Dot Negatives With a Process Camera." In 1919 he published the booklet: A Scientific Treatise on Process Negative Making With the Douthitt Diaphragm Control System. By 1920 he was president of The Douthitt Diaphragm Control Corporation, with Fred Eberline as vice president, Ralph Grenell as Secretary, and James T. Campbell as treasurer. On July 2, 1920, Fletcher filed for another patent. It issued on October 28, 1924, as Number 1,513,379: "Method of Ascertaining Camera Stops." He filed for his third patent on November 24, 1924, and it was granted on March 12, 1929, as Number 1,705,005: "Vacuum Copyholder." James T. Campbell gradually took over more responsibilities in the corporation, and by 1926 had succeeded Fletcher as president. Fletcher was 51 years old when he died in Detroit on February 12, 1929. The company he founded became the Douthitt Corporation by 1930, and is still a respected source of specialized equipment for the printing business.

Eugene was born in Wisconsin on January 15, 1844, second of the four sons of Antoine and Sarah A. (Hubbard) Douville. He attended the public schools and Lincoln's College at Milwaukee, and learned photography there. Douville Brothers book store at Manistee opened in 1867 in the Thorp Building, and in 1873 moved into a two story brick building which Eugene had erected. Walter W. Douville managed the store, which also sold stationery, news, musical instruments, carpets, house furnishing goods and sewing machines, until his death in 1886. On the same day of the Great Chicago fire, October 8, 1871, most of the business section of Manistee was destroyed by fire, and both the Douville gallery and the book store may have burned. Eugene bought into an insurance firm in 1874 and continued this association through 1881, then continued the business on his own, Mrs. Helen A. (Foskett) Traver became his wife in 1876, and was conducting a Manistee millinery business in 1880. Eugene developed the Douville Addition near the center of Manistee, and came to own several commercial rental buildings. He made a specialty of handling pine lands, at first those in northern Michigan, but after 1889 including land in the gulf states. Two hundred thousand acres of southern pine land was sold to northern lumbermen, and in 1895 Eugene retained an interest in one hundred thousand acres. He developed a set of abstracts for Manistee County, was a probate judge for four years, mayor for one term, city recorder, city treasurer and postmaster for four years.

Flavius was born in Michigan to parents from New York in November of 1847, second of the two sons of the physician John J. Downer and his wife Lucinda. The backs of individual cartes de visite of nine professors were signed "F. J. Downer." The corners of the cartes were held in diagonal slits in a framed 15 ½ by 14 inch mount on which their names were lettered along with "University of Michigan Medical Faculty" and many flourishes and decorations. Flavius graduated from the U of M Department of Medicine and Surgery in 1871. Flora was born in New York in June of 1849, and she married Flavius about 1872. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Elsie in June of 1879 and Flora in December of 1882. Flavius died at Newberry on February 18, 1905.

His brother Alfred was born in England in March of 1845, the family emigrated from England, and George was born on November 15, 1846, at Brockville, Ontario. They moved to the United States in 1848, he had two siblings born in New York between 1850 and 1853, and two brothers born in Kansas between 1854 and 1857. He was 5 feet 5 inches tall with a fair complexion, blue eyes and light hair when he enlisted in Company D of the 65th Illinois Infantry on May 7, 1862. At Martinsburg, Virginia, during July and August of 1862 he contracted rheumatism and pleurisy from exposure to wet and unseasonably cold weather. He re-enlisted in Company D on March 31, 1864, at Knoxville, Tennessee, and later was transferred to Company H of the 65th Illinois Infantry. On July 13, 1865, George was mustered out of the army at Greensboro, North Carolina. In Chicago on December 31, 1879, he and Miss Mary Ann McMahan were married. Her parents were Irish, and Mary Ann was born in Connecticut about 1860. Their daughters were born in Illinois: Florence in December of 1880, Olive in February of 1890, and Marion in May of 1896. George was serving in June of 1880 in the household of Charles Fargo, Superintendent of the American Express Company. He must have made a good impression, for he worked most of the rest of his life for the company. When George applied for a pension in 1890 he was 5 feet 8 inches tall with a fair complexion, gray eyes and light hair, and was working as an American Express conductor. He was working for the company as a teamster in 1900, as a collector in 1910, and again as a conductor in 1920. Mary Ann died on February 12, 1912, and all three of her daughters still were living in 1915. George's pension increased from $19.00 to $25.00 per month in 1916, and was $50.00 by 1923. He was found to have cancer early in February of 1923, and he died in Washington Park Hospital at Chicago on April 26, 1923. The American Railway Express Company paid $150 of his final expenses, and burial was in Oak Woods Cemetery.

Draggoo, Gertrude, Miss

Mount Pleasant employee of photographer Otto L. Wissbeck .....1907 1 Gertrude's name was also spelled Dragoo by the same source. She came from near Frankfort early in 1907 and had 1 been working for Wissbeck about four months when she attempted suicide by swallowing an ounce of carbolic acid. 1
The relatives with whom she was boarding left town for a few days and upon their return heard imputations against 1 Gertrude's character. When called from her work and confronted, the spirits of the usually jolly 19-year-old girl were 1 crushed and she said that she could not bear such charges against her. She returned to the gallery in tears, and asked to 1 be excused because of a death in her family. However, she sat for her portrait before leaving, and took a proof when 1 she left. Later in the day Gertrude showed the bottle to her roommate and declared her intentions, but such threats had 1 been made previously and were not taken seriously. The roommate found her with the bottle at her lips and summoned 1 a doctor whose heroic efforts saved Gertrude's life. At first she was not appreciative of his help. 1

| Francis was born in 1820 or 1821 in Illinois, Sarah was born ten years later in New York, and in 1850 they were sharing their home with his mother and his sister Delia. His daughter provided a sketch and description of the Drake home: “,, on the second floor ... The unfinished north room, my father had fitted up with a large window and screens for taking pictures. He had a dark room in the north-east corner, which the children were forbidden to enter, where he kept his chemicals. Ambrotypes were the kind of pictures he experimented with, but for some reason, probably because he could not give sufficient time to the art, he never acquired the skill needed to make a success of the venture. Boxes and boxes of glass on which the pictures were taken and others of a better grade to cover them, and dozens and dozens of mats, preservers and cases for the finished pictures, were stored away in closets for years and finally ended in the fire that destroyed our home.” |           | 1222222 |

Charles was born on May 19, 1865 at South Lyon, Michigan, the only child of Joel and Martha A. Draper. One Joel Draper served as a private in the Second Regiment of Minnesota Cavalry during the Civil War. By 1880 Charles' mother was a widow working as a dress maker to support herself and her son. In 1900 Charles had an optical department that was equipped with an ophthalmometer. Sarah Ann Holden Merrell (often called Satie) was born at New Boston, Michigan, on September 25, 1878. She and Charles were married at Detroit on January 1, 1902. Their son Merrell Horace Draper was born on May 14, 1906, and their daughter Winifred Martha Draper was born in 1908. Besides jewelry, Charles sold albums, cameras, celluloid goods, china, clocks, medallions, mirrors, musical instruments, postcards, sewing machine supplies, stationery and silver plated ware. He was an active amateur photographer and took series of pictures of events such as the water battle between the volunteer firemen of Plymouth and Northville in July of 1903 and the train wreck at Salem in July of 1907. Post card photographs were made from his negatives and sold locally, some marked "PUB. BY C. G. DRAPER." He was enumerated as Charlie Draper in 1930. He died at Detroit on January 26, 1941, and burial was in South Lyon. Sarah died at Detroit on September 17, 1965. Many of the illustrations in the books of Sam Hudson, Pictures of Plymouth, Past and Present and The Story of Plymouth, Michigan, were made from negatives by Charles. A substantial number of his negatives were acquired about 2003 by the Plymouth Historical Museum.

His parents, William and Martha (Sayles) Drawbaugh, came from Pennsylvania and New York, older siblings were born in Indiana, and Ed was born in Michigan on February 24, 1867. Some cabinet mounts had "Tiffany & Drawbaugh, Union City." printed below the photograph, and "E. Drawbaugh, PHOTOGRAPHER, All work warranted finest in the country, Union City, Mich." stamped on the back. Ed advertised nationally from Coldwater in October of 1888: "WANTED - TO RENT - A good Gallery, with privilege of buying within six months or one year. Would like a gallery in Illinois or Iowa..." Frances (later Sarah F.) was born in Michigan to a mother from New York in June of 1868, and she married Ed about 1888. Their son Sidney was born at Coldwater on November 10, 1889, and their daughter Fay was born in California in July of 1891. Ed and his daughter were sharing a home in 1920. In 1930 he was a widower living with the family of Glen M. Webster and identified as his stepfather. Edwin died in Los Angeles County on November 7, 1944.

William was born in New York State on February 14, 1839, eldest of the nine children of John F. and Anna M. Driggs. His father was identified as a 47-year-old retired merchant in 1860, and as a real estate operator in 1870. His widowed mother was enumerated as a capitalist in 1900. William advertised in June of 1861: "Ambrotype, Photographic, and FERROTYPE PICTURES Are being taken at prices to suit the times at the New Rooms of Wm. J. Driggs, ... great pains have been taken with the arrangement of his Skylight ... a Northern Light, indispensable to a perfect picture.... His cameras were bought in New York, where he also obtained an elegant assortment of Cases.... I will also make Pictures (of those) who have enlisted for the War to defend the flag of our country and of their families at half the usual price." At East Saginaw on August 29, 1862, William enlisted as a private in Company L of the Sixth Michigan Cavalry. He had been promoted to corporal by the time he was mustered into the army on October 11. He was transferred to Company C of the Seventh Michigan Cavalry on November 12, and was discharged for some reason on December 8, 1862. Back in East Saginaw, he advertised his "Ambrotype and Ferrotypes Rooms,... The subscriber begs leave to offer his services as an AMBROTYPIST, and invites all wishing to obtain good Pictures to call at his rooms. Pictures taken in different styles, to suit customers. Particular attention paid to children and deceased persons. Old Daguerreotypes copied. Every variety of Cases always on hand. Also, Views taken of Public Buildings, Machinery, etc., and out door views in general. The public patronage is respectfully solicited." William enlisted in Company K of the First Michigan Sharpshooters on June 23, 1863, when the regiment was being organized, was commissioned Second Lieutenant of Company K on July 22 and was so mustered on December 20, 1863. He was honorably discharged for disability at Petersburg, Virginia, on July 6, 1864, three weeks after the Battle of the Crater. The state records show that William re-entered the army as a Second Lieutenant in the Eleventh United States Infantry on February 23, 1866, was promoted to First Lieutenant on July 28, was transferred to the Twentieth United States Infantry on September 21, 1866, and was finally mustered out of the army on January 1, 1871. Twenty years later William stated that he had not been in military service since his discharge on July 6, 1864. When he applied for a pension in November of 1890, he was 5 feet 11½ inches tall with a light complexion, brown hair and hazel eyes, was deaf in both ears and had a weak back. He boarded at East Saginaw with his sister Irene Driggs, who was a music teacher. He and two younger sisters were living in 1900 with their widowed mother. In 1910 he was superintendent of mails and was sharing his home with a 67-year-old housekeeper and a 37-year-old roomer, both female. Apparently William never married, and he died at Ewart on December 12, 1914. 3 1

John was born in Ohio in February of 1859, second of the five children of John and Celia Dubbs and their only son. He employed Dudley A. Kepperling as a clerk in 1887. The East Tawas newspaper reported in February of 1888 that “Messrs. Dubbs & Godfrey, the photo artists who did such excellent work here during the fall and winter, have contracted with N. Sims to lease a gallery from him in the spring.... Mr. Sims will begin its erection soon. These artists proved themselves capable, and they believe here is a good opening for them.” The paper commented in June: “Two months ago East Tawas had not a single photographer. Today we have six, and prices cut away below profitable rates....” In August J. H. Dubbs was advertising in East Tawas: “Cabinet photos, first-class work, $2.50 per doz.” The backs of some of these cabinet photographs carried this message: “Agency for the New England, Whitney, and Haines Bro.s’ PIANOS. The ESTEY ORGAN. The Domestic and White SEWING MACHINES. J. H. DUBBS, Agent, East Tawas, Mich.” In April of 1889 he had recently established a gallery in a town over on the Michigan Central Railroad, possibly Alger, and had hired Louis Genest, a first-class portrait artist and retoucher from Detroit, to execute all large work at the home gallery. Genest returned to Detroit late in June. John had put Charles Cook on the road to canvas for large portraits, and had hired a capable all-round photographer from Ontario named Barnes. He opened the Oscoda gallery in May of 1889 with Charles Fenn of East Tawas as assistant, and was selling a dozen cabinet photos at the “knock-down” price of $1.50, but disposed of it in August after trying to cover both galleries for several months. He sold the East Tawas gallery early in November of 1889 and engaged with a Detroit firm for a year. Frances was born in Canada in March of 1865, came the United States in 1875, and married John about 1888. She presented him with twin girls early in September of 1889, but only Hattie survived. From Toledo, Frances was visiting relatives and friends at East Tawas early in 1892. She gave birth in Tennessee to Frances in August of 1893, in Kentucky to Howard in December of 1895, in Ohio to Franklin (later Webster) in 1902, and in Michigan to Lucille in 1910. John purchased the Battle Creek studio of John M. Brigham in May of 1911. He was enumerated as a picture artist in 1920. Something happened to Frances, and by 1930 John was married to a lady named Gertrude. Her father came from New York and Gertrude was born in Michigan in 1878 or early in 1879. She was working as a photographer in John’s studio in 1930.

James was born in 1821 and emigrated from Ireland in 1840. His wife, Mary Ann, was born in Michigan four years later. Unlikely as it seems for a couple well into their fifties, in 1880 they were raising five young sons and daughters born in Michigan: Mary Ann was eleven, Catherine was seven, James was five, John was four, and Henry was two. Though James was enumerated as an ex-constable, their boarder was a prostitute as were several boarders in the houses on either side of them on Brush Street. "MACKENZIE & DUCK, Portrait and Landscape PHOTOGRAPHERS, Caro, Mich." was printed on the backs of stereoscopic bird's-eye views of Caro's business section. William Clarkson was succeeded by Joseph S. Clarkson as James' partner in Caro about 1884. "Jas. L. Duck, Caro and Sebewaing, Mich." was printed on some cabinet mounts, and "Jas. L. Duck, Vassar, Caro and Sebewaing, Mich." was printed on others. James was a widower by 1900, and four of his children still were sharing his home. Mary and Catherine worked at washing, while John and James were laborers. The household also included Albert Duck, a twelve year old grandson born in Michigan. 1

Lynn was born in Michigan on December 21, 1875, second of the three children of Augustus M. and Ada B. Dudley. His sister Verna was a year and a half older, and his sister Dorothy was ten years younger. His father was editor and publisher of the Telephone News in Reading from 1902 through 1907. "EDIFACE of EDUCATION, Reading, Mich. (Dudley)" was scribed into the negative of a post card mailed in August of 1905. "Photo Series 22R. Published by L. B. Dudley, Reading, Mich." was printed on the post card back of a photo of a church. "Pub. by Dudley" or "Pub. by L. B. Dudley" or "L. B. Dudley, Publ'r." was lettered on the negatives of post card photographs postmarked in 1906 and 1907, including one of the Lake Shore depot and another of a vase of flowers. "READING HIGH SCHOOL, 1907. Champions of Hillsdale County. Photo by Dudley" was lettered on the negative of a postal photo of the football team. Lynn became a tall man with blue eyes and light brown hair. Alice was born in Michigan in January of 1886, third of the four children of Morris and Agnes Meigs, and she married Lynn about 1908. Their children were born in Michigan: Robert in 1913, Richard in July of 1915, and Doris in 1920 or early in 1921. Lynn probably was commuting in 1930 to an office in New York City. Samuel was born at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, on December 24, 1833, third of the four children of George and Isabella G. Duffield. His father was a wealthy Presbyterian clergyman. Samuel became a five foot eleven inch man with hazel eyes and black hair. He applied for a passport in April of 1857 with the intent of traveling to Germany for treatment to strengthen his weak eyes, and then to study chemistry in Munich with Professor Leibig. Adeline was born in Rhode Island in 1838 or early in 1839. She married Samuel about 1858, and in September of 1859 she gave birth in Michigan to George B. Duffield, who later was enumerated as idiotic. By 1860 Samuel had a Ph. D. in Chemistry. Adeline gave birth in Michigan to Daniel about 1861, to Isabella about 1865, and to John about 1869. Her death may have been related to the birth of John, for Samuel was a widower by June of 1870, when he and his children were living with his widowed mother. She and her servants were helping to care for the children. Margaret A. Corbett was born in Canada to Irish parents in October of 1840, and she was brought to the United States in 1850. She was working for Samuel as a house keeper in 1880, and at Lucan, Ontario, on June 15, 1881, she married him. In October of 1885 Samuel applied for a passport with the intent of visiting Germany on his way to Russia for toxicological studies at the University of Dorpst. His wife Margaret was to accompany him, and she still was keeping house for him in 1910.

The titles above are those used by the tax assessors and the directory compilers, who spelled the surname as Doehring, Doering, Dohring, Duhring, Dureing, and During. Frederick was born in the Mecklenburg region of Germany in 1819 or early in 1820. Anna (sometimes Annie or Ann) was born there ten years later, and she married Frederick prior to 1858. Their daughter Ida was born in Michigan about 1859, and their son Louis was born in New York State in 1863. Their third child was born in Michigan in 1864, and was identified as Julius in 1870 and as Julia in 1880. Their son Alexander was born in Michigan in 1867 or early in 1868 and was gone by 1880. The saloon keeper was called Fred Duhring in 1870. Anna was a widow living in Detroit in 1880 and 1882, and was a Detroit confectioner in 1883 and 1884.

Her name was also spelled Dumphy, Dumpey and Dumphey. Azuba was born in Michigan in 1833 or early in 1834, and may have been the daughter of Alden and Penelope Smith. If so, she was second of their eight children, and in 1850 was living on their farm in White Oak Township of Ingham County. Erastus E. Dumphery was born in Canada West in 1827 or 1828, and he married Azuba about 1855. Their children were born in Michigan: Their son Johile in June of 1857, Edwin in April of 1860, Ida May in 1864 or early in 1865, Edith about 1870, and William about 1872. Ephraim was born in the spring of 1840 in the province of Ontario, Canada. He immigrated in 1862. In July of 1864 he was enrolled as a private in Company F of the 40th Wisconsin Infantry, from which he was discharged a few months later at Madison, Wisconsin. As a substitute, he enlisted at Milwaukee as a private in Company K of the 14th Wisconsin Infantry on January 13, 1865. During the late summer and fall of 1865 he was often excused from duty because he was greatly afflicted with diarrhea and piles. He was acting as company clerk at this time, and arranged a cushioned seat to minimize the pain. He was mustered out of the army with his company and honorably discharged at Mobile, Alabama, on October 9, 1865. Ephraim did not marry until February 9, 1880, at Ovid. His bride was Mrs. Martha Loretta (Brown) Burgnold of Ovid, born in February of 1857 at Eaton Rapids and a widow with a four-year-old daughter named Charlotte. Martha gave birth to a son, Herbert Alfred Dunham, on May 26, 1882. Ephraim advertised nationally in 1888: "FOR RENT - With privilege of buying a half interest or the whole of a car (size 10 by 36 feet) on easy terms. Originally cost $600. Selling price now $150. Located in one spot for eight years. City of nearly 5,000; two other galleries. No postals. Enclose stamp for reply. Wanted to buy, a good View Outfit, cheap..." He advertised state wide a few months later: "... Views of Buildings, Residences and Scenery; Tin Types a Specialty; Call and Have a Nice Picture Made of Your Home." In the spring of 1891, Ephraim was being treated by a doctor for chronic diarrhea and hemorrhoids, was often confined to his home and unable to attend to his photography business, and applied for an Invalid Pension. He died from chronic enteritis at Toledo on December 10, 1900, and was buried in Woodlawn Cemetery there. By 1910 Martha was living with the family of her daughter. She became bedfast at Toledo in January of 1920 and was cared for by Charlotte until July 31, 1922, when she died from pulmonary tuberculosis. Her Widow's Pension had increased to $30.00 per month by this time, and her remains were taken to Ovid for burial.

Frank was born in New York in January of 1860. Her parents emigrated from Switzerland and Canada, Ida was born in Michigan in January of 1867, and she married Frank about 1884. Their son Ray was born in Michigan in January of 1892. Frank was married for the second time about 1907 to Loretta, a 21-year-old native of Michigan. She was only a few years older than Ray, who was still living at home in 1910. Frank and Loretta still were together in 1920, but by 1930 Frank was a widower.

Henry was born in Vermont in 1826. Amanda was born in Ohio at about the same time, and they married a year or two before their daughter Adell (later Della) was born in Ohio in the summer of 1848. Their son Eubertus was born in Ohio late in 1950 or early in 1851, and then something happened to Amanda. State Street was the main street of Marshall, and there was no street named Main. Phoebe K. Haucht was born in Michigan in 1839 or early in 1840 to Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Haucht, who were natives of New York. She married Henry about 1858, and their children were born in Michigan: Edwin in February of 1860, Lillian in 1863 or 1864, plus Charles and Montie between 1870 and 1874. Henry purchased a new residence in the Gothic Revival style on North Kalamazoo Avenue in Marshall from the builder in 1869 and sold the home in 1872. It was still in use in 1971. The Oberlin listing was for H. E. Dunham. Henry died in 1882 and his widow, Mrs. Phoebe Dunham, was living in Marshall in 1885. A cabinet photograph of Henry taken by Seneca B. Smith is in an album held by the Marshall Historical Society.

Oscar was born in New York State in December of 1840, second of the five children of Benjamin J. and May (later Harriet) Dunning. Cartes de visite from his Union Gallery are found without revenue stamps, and with two, three and five cent stamps, indicating that some of his card photographs sold for fifty cents or more each. During a very severe snow storm on January 2, 1864, more than half of the business section of Dowagiac was destroyed by fire. Oscar's gallery shared the upper floor of a two-story building at the corner of Commercial and Front Streets with a dentist and a lawyer. A dry goods store and the post office occupied the lower floor of this, the northern-most of the buildings that burned. It was the only one of the twelve incinerated buildings that was insured. Martha J. Colby was born in Vermont in October of 1841, next to last of the children of Jesse and Lavina Colby. She married Oscar about 1863, and their son Fred was born in Indiana in 1875 or early in 1876. Fred married Olive Esselborn about 1902, and by 1910 he had become co-owner of the Vicksburg drugstore. At that time he and Olive were providing a home for her widowed mother and for his widowed father.

Bianca was born in Michigan in 1849 or early in 1850. George M. Duram was born in New York State in April of 1845, and he married Bianca when she was seventeen. As a young bride she was called Nancy. Their children were born in Michigan: Arthur and Edson between 1871 and 1873, and Carrie in 1878. George still was married to Bianca in 1900, but he was boarding with and working as a farmer for a farm family in Fruitland Township of Muskegon County. Carrie had married and divorced and was back home by 1910, when she was working as a dressmaker for a private family and Bianca was enumerated as a photograph artist. Carrie married Charles R. Bill prior to 1920, and in 1930 they were sharing their home with her widowed mother.

Doede was born in the Netherlands in February of 1870. He sailed from Rotterdam in a first-class cabin on the S. S. Spaarndam and arrived at New York City on October 2, 1893. Cora was born in Michigan in December of 1874, and she married Doede about 1895. Doede became a naturalized citizen of the United States at Big Rapids in 1899. Cora gave birth to Beulah in June of 1899, and she turned out to be their only child. Doede took Cora and Beulah to Europe and they returned on the S. S. Baltic from Liverpool to New York in August of 1905. Doede copyrighted postal views taken in Monroe on June 4, 1910, showing the Custer statue being unveiled, Bishop Foley speaking, and a close-up of President Taft. In 1912 he copyrighted a post card photograph of the canning plant at Coopersville. A little later Doede was promoting a buff linen finished card with a sentimental verse or saying to which a 1.4 by 2.1 inch photograph was glued. “D. J. DU SAAR, HOLLAND, MICH.” was printed on the backs of such cards with views of Grayling, Woodland and Sparta. Doede visited Europe again and left there just as World War I was beginning. He sailed from Liverpool on the S. S. Mauretania on August 1 and arrived at Halifax, Nova Scotia, on August 7, 1914. He concentrated upon “... Local View Photo Cards and Amateur Finishing, Pictures and Picture Frames” to the exclusion of portrait photography from 1918 through 1921. Doede advertised his Holland Photo Shop in a University publication at Ann Arbor in 1920: “... Films Developed, per Roll – 5c, Any Size or Number of Exposures – Film Packs Developed – 10c. PRINTING; Vest Pocket - 2½c each, 2¼ x 2¼ - 3½c each, 2¼ x 3¼ - 3½c each, 2½ x 4¼ - 4c each, 3½ x 3½ - 4½c each, 3¼ x 4¼ - 4½c each, 3¼ x 5½ - 4½c each, 4 x 5 - 4½c each, postals - 4½c each. ENLARGING, Postals – 20c, 5 x 7 – 30c, 6 x 8 – 40c, 8 x 10 – 50c. Amateur work finished and mailed same day as received. Try us – it pays. Special price to dealers.” Most of his post card photos of Holland date from the late 1920s and the early 1930s and include the Tulip Festival parade, washing the street, Dutch costumes, fields of tulips, wind mills and the miniature “Little Netherlands.” In 1929 his Holland Photo Shop had a big “KODAKS - Gifts” sign out front and featured “Kodak Finishing, Photo Supplies, Gifts, Etc.” Cora was a proprietor of the shop in 1930, and as the widow of Doede, was proprietor of the DuSaar Photo and Gift Shop at 10 East Eighth Street in Holland in 1936.

Doede took Cora and Beulah to Europe and they returned on the S. S. Baltic from Liverpool to New York in August of 1905. "Photo by DuSaar St. Michaels Church, Remus, Mich." was press printed along the lower border of a postal photo produced about 1907. Doede J. DuSaar produced post card photos and did amateur finishing in Holland for many years. Cora undoubtedly was associated with this business throughout its existence, and she continued the business after the death of her husband. She died in South Dakota in August of 1972.

John was born in Tioga County, Pennsylvania, on January 3, 1844, and was raised from an infant at Fulton, New York. He was 5 feet 9 1/2 inches tall with a light complexion, hazel eyes and brown hair when he enlisted at Fox Lake as a private in Company F of the 29th Wisconsin Infantry on August 21, 1862. He was enrolled as Luther J. Dutton so as to be distinguished from another private in the company, John Louis Dutton. He was detailed to Division Headquarters in February of 1864, and to the Division Postmaster from April of 1864 through most of the balance of his service. He was honorably discharged at Shreveport, Louisiana, on June 22, 1865. He and Miss Ann Eliza Moore were married at Oswego, New York, in May of 1866 or in March of 1867, and had three daughters and one son born between 1879 and 1895. John applied for an Invalid Pension in September of 1891, claiming to be wholly disabled from manual labor. He was proprietor of the Union Portrait Company, and J. F. Hopper was associated with him, perhaps as manager. When John entered the Soldiers' Home his disabilities included chronic rheumatism, chronic catarrh, hemorrhoids, heart trouble and general debility. For the next twenty years or more he had no contact with his wife. His pension was increased to $24.00 per month in January of 1914, to $40.00 per month in June of 1918, and to $50.00 per month in May of 1920. John died at Milwaukee on May 8, 1925.

Adelaide was born in New York State in January of 1851. Maurice D. Dyer was born there in October of 1845, and he married Adelaide about 1887. She gave birth to seven children, but was only able to raise three of them to maturity. The survivors included Hazel, born in Michigan in January of 1893, and Margaret, born here in January of 1897. By early 1910 Adelaide was a widow raising thirteen-year-old Margaret, and was enumerated as an artist photographer. Nine of the 96 women who exhibited photographs at the national convention of the Photographers' Association of America at Milwaukee in July of 1910 were from Michigan, and Adelaide was one of them. She still was sharing her home in 1920 with her youngest daughter, now called Marguerite, who was working as a telephone operator.

Louis was born in Ohio about 1874, the son of Louis T. and Sarah Dysert. His brother Frank was born a couple of years later. "L. O. DYSERT, Traveling Photographer, TINTYPE TENT, Cor. Gratiot & Mack." was stamped on the pasters holding tintypes into their 2 ¾ by 1 ¾ cardboard frames. Louie described himself as a traveling photographer and proprietor of a tintype tent to the justice of the peace that married him to Miss Annie Hamawn at Lima, Ohio, on August 13, 1896. The couple had not known each other for very long, and came to Lima unaccompanied. Annie and her parents lived within twenty miles of Lima, but she and Louie left immediately after the ceremony for Flint, where he was headquartered. Annie probably was born in Ohio in 1874 or early in 1875, third of the five children of Daniel and Eleanor Hanon. Louis was living by himself in at Middletown in 1910 and 1920. He was married again about 1925 to a lady named Emma, who was born in Ohio in 1877 or early in 1878. He and Emma were sharing their home with five roomers in 1930.

Marion was born in New York State in October of 1858, the son of Charles and Sarah Earl. His brother Elmer was born two years later. By 1870 his mother had married Calvin Smith, a retired merchant 25 years her senior. Six men named Charles Earl served in New York regiments during the Civil War, and at least one of them died in a Confederate prison. Marion's father probably joined the Union army and did not survive the war. Sarah was providing a home at Middleville for her sons Marion and Elmer in 1880. Cynthia was born in Michigan to parents from New York in December of 1849, she married Marion about 1885, and they raised two children. The Earls lived next door to the photographer Fred H. Woodward in 1900. Earl Shay's parents came from New York and Canada, and he was born in Michigan in 1895. He was boarding with the Earls in 1900, by 1910 he was considered to be their foster son, and in 1920 Marion was employing him as an assistant. "M. E. EARL, Newaygo, Ravenna, Casnovia, Michigan." was printed on some cabinet mounts. One of Marion's Casnovia cabinet photographs was of a man with a wagon wheel and a woman in a buggy in front of a neat barn. "From Earl's Studio, BIG RAPIDS, MICH." was stamped on the post card backs of studio photographs of families and of groups of from three to eight young women, probably students at Ferris Institute. t

Charles was born in Michigan in October of 1858. He applied for a patent on a device for making vignettted prints from ordinary negatives on August 19, 1880, and was granted Patent No. 244,440 for his Vignette Board on July 19, 1881. Earle & Hawley produced a changing series of 39 stereoscopic views of the Detroit Art Loan exhibition in 1883. They employed Phillip G. Cramer in 1883 and John A. Ulrich in 1883 and 1884 as artists. Charles retained John A. Ulrich as a photographer in 1885, hired photographer James E. McCarty, and advertised: "... We make a specialty of FURNISHING PHOTOGRAPHS BY THE THOUSAND. Copies of Architectural Drawings, Maps, Furniture, Machinery, etc. Viewing of all description. Also, Photographing for Engraving. Estimates Furnished on Application." About 1885 he produced a series of cabinet photographs of Mabley & Company's Shoe House, including a view of the exterior and many of the interior. Miss Mary Frasier was his clerk and Edward J. Metzen was his photo printer in 1886. He employed Richard Peter as a photographer in 1887, and advertised: "EARLE'S CABINET PHOTOS, Best in the City, $1.50 Per Dozen...." Charles employed Jessie Gardner as a retoucher in 1891 and became president of the Earle Photo Company in 1892, with F. A. Goodrich as vice president and E. J. Warren as secretary and treasurer. The Earle Photo Company succeeded Angel & Diehl. Charles was president of the Earle Photo Paper Company based in Chicago, exhibited at the Photographers' Association of America convention at Milwaukee in 1910 and planned to exhibit in 1911 at the PA of A convention in St. Paul. When a commercial federation within the PA of A was organized in July of 1912, Charles was a charter member. Clementine Barger was born in Indiana to parents from Pennsylvania and Ohio in April of 1861, second of the five known children of William and Cynthia Barger. She married Charles about 1884, and their children were born in Michigan: Robert in December of 1885 and Bonnibelle (later Bonnie B.) in June of 1888. By 1910 Clementine was divorced and living in Elkhart, Indiana, where she and Bonnie had jobs in the family Box factory. They both still were in Elkhart in 1930, when Clementine was identified as a widow. Katherine was born in Michigan in 1873, and she married Charles some time before 1920.

Lawrence was born in New York State in February of 1846, third of the six children of John C. and Mary M. Earle. Four older children of his father's first wife also were in the household as Lawrence was growing up. The family moved during the 1850s to Grand Rapids, where his father was a prosperous dealer in groceries. Lawrence studied art with Marinus Harting and then briefly at New York in 1866. The studios of artist Lawrence C. Earle and photographer William S. Earle were both at 21 Monroe Street in 1867. Lawrence continued his art studies with Walter Shirlaw in Chicago and then in the Royal Academy at Munich, Austria. He entered the competitive art scene of New York City in 1881. Helen was born in Illinois to parents from Vermont in April of 1860, and she married Lawrence about 1882. Their sons were born in Illinois: John in April of 1884 and Lawrence in January of 1886. Lawrence worked in New York City for many years before moving to Montclair, New Jersey. He returned to Grand Rapids following the death of his wife in 1909, and lived there until his death in 1921.

William was born in New York State in October of 1845, third of the five children of Justis E. Earle. Lawrence C. Earle was his associate in 1867, and probably was his cousin. Ella was born in Ohio to parents from Virginia and Vermont in March of 1851, and she married William about 1869. Their children were born in Michigan: Fannie in April of 1870, and Randolph in January of 1875. "Earle, Grand Rapids, Mich." was printed on the backs of cartes de visite, including one of a church. William was president of the Grand Rapids Base Ball Association in 1890. Ella was a widow by 1930, when she still was living in San Diego.

Hank was born in Pennsylvania in 1819 or 1820. His wife and daughters were born in Michigan: Mary about 1834 4 and Frances, Kitty and Capitola between 1853 and 1859. In 1859 he advertised his "AMBROTYPE GALLERY over 4 2 Sanborn & Tucker's store. Pictures taken in any kind of weather, and satisfaction guaranteed..." and a "... new kind of 2 1 picture called the BROMO ELODISED COLODION PICTURE ... taken on Glass, Melainotype plates, Niello paper 1 or Patent Leather." He offered "... Good Pictures taken as low as FIFTY CENTS.... over Sanborn's old store, Genesee 1 Street,..." and requested that mothers "... bring their children in the fore part of the day, to ensure a good likeness." By 1 1860 he owned property valued at more than $1200. He advertised poetically in 1861: 4 5
"Saginaw Folks, attention! / While we whisper in your ear, 5
Where you can find the treasure / Which friends will find most dear. 5
'Tis of our life-like Pictures / We wish to hint to all, 5
And hope that you will delay not / In giving us a call. 5
We take all kinds of Pictures, / On Iron Plates and Glass, 5
So if you want a likeness, / Be sure you do not pass. 5
In Locketts, Rings and Breast Pins, / In Keys, and Seals and Cases, 5
We are ready to convert at will, / The semblance of your faces. 5
And when you've time to spare, / Just drop in one and all, 5
For if you do not wish to buy / We'll thank you for a call. 5

Hank moved into his new rooms on Washington Street in January of 1862, and by May Eastman & Randall were "... 1 prepared to take Photographs as well as Ambrotypes,... Mr. Randall being acquainted with that branch of the 1 business." They advertised their "LARGE SKY-LIGHT GALLERY,... Photographs, plain, in India Ink or Water 1 Colors, Cartes de Visite, Vignettes, Ambrotypes, Melainotypes, Ferrotypes, Neilographs, Pictures in locketts, pins, 1 rings, &c., Views of Buildings, Machinery, Vessels, &c., &c." By April of 1864 Hank was back in business on his 1 own and had "... engaged the services of Mr. J. C. More, from New York, to attend to the Photographing 1 Department.... A good assortment of PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS and ROSEWOOD and GILT FRAMES constantly on 1 hand." His gallery was destroyed by the "Third Great Fire" in East Saginaw on January 26, 1865. J. C. Moore became 3 t Henry's partner. Two cent revenue stamps on Eastman & Moore cartes de visite were cancelled "E & M, 1865." t

Carp was born in Michigan to parents from New York and Ohio in July of 1869, the son of Eliphas and Sarah Eaton. His sister Celeste was born a couple of years earlier, and he was called Casper as a young child. Her father came from Ohio and Lida H. Joiner was born in Michigan in September of 1873, the daughter of Charles and Hannah Joiner. She married Carp about 1892, and they had no children. In April of 1910 they were raising an adopted daughter named Elsie that was only a few months old. She still was sharing their home twenty years later. Carp's cabinet photographs included children with their dogs and one boy with his air rifle as well, a proud man in his sulky behind his horse, a well dressed boy looking in a full length mirror, and copies of older images.

George was born in Detroit on March 18, 1886, to Peter and Margaretha (Burger) Ebling. His mother died when he was very young and George was sent to live with his grandmother, which proved to be a troublesome arrangement due in part to his mischievousness. They were very poor and George started peddling newspapers when he was seven, did other odd jobs and left school after the fourth grade to help earn a living. He bummed his way to California on freight trains to visit an aunt whose husband was a motion picture director, and there George became more intensely interested in photography. He came back to work in Detroit, and on August 15, 1911, married Miss Alice Clemett. They later had three sons that lived to maturity. George's photographic experience here did not compare favorably with Hollywood. Litynski-Jakubowski & Company took many pictures of corpses, and differences with the partners led George into a nervous breakdown in 1914, when he was unemployed for a time. He was hired as a driver at the Ford plant in Highland Park in January of 1917, and within a year was able to transfer into the Photographic Department where Ford was producing motion pictures, still photographs and artwork for advertising and educational purposes. His assignments were described as photographer, road motion picture camera man, photographer's helper, subforeman in the photographic still picture department, assistant in the laboratory, camera man, developer and printer. About 1920 George was chosen to be Henry Ford's personal photographer, and for the next twenty five years he photographed whatever appealed to The Boss. His subjects included Henry and Clara Ford, their grandchildren and great grandchildren, celebrities visiting the Fords or Greenfield Village, buildings in their original location before they were moved to Greenfield Village, and the Ford-Edison-Firestone-Burroughs camping trips to northern Michigan and the eastern states. He was sometimes called to the Grosse Pointe home of Edsel and Eleanor Ford to show movies to their children, and he photographed Christmas parties at Henry Ford Hospital and at Fairlane. Henry considered George to be the best photographer in the United States, but Clara was not so complimentary. She was not very photogenic and her roses were not always in the best of bloom. so her pictures were often not as flattering as she would have liked. Two bromide or chloride prints of George's were selected for the First Annual Michigan Exhibition of Pictorial Photography at the Detroit Institute of Arts in May of 1932. George was the chief Ford photographer for the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago in 1933 and 1934 where the large photomurals circling the Ford Rotunda were enlargements of his photographs, and for the 1939 New York World's Fair. His first heart attack occurred in 1944, and he had more heart trouble after his recovery and return to work, so he retired late in 1945 to a quiet life in Dearborn. George was 69 when he died on December 5, 1955, and his wife lived until August 22, 1981. Both were buried in Cadillac Memorial West Cemetery.

His father and all of his grandparents were Irish, and Edward was born in Michigan in January of 1891. He was fifth of the eight children of Roger and Mary Echlin, all born in Michigan between December of 1882 and June of 1898. Mary was a widow by 1910, and still was providing a home for seven of her children. "Ed Echlin, N. Detroit" was lettered on the negatives of post cards, including a photo of an interurban work car. "ECHLIN PHOTO" was lettered on the negatives of postal photographs of such scenes as the Hamtramck State Bank, the Holbrook School and the Briggs Manufacturing Company plant on Lueschner Avenue in Hamtramck, and of a church in Utica. Some of these cards were postmarked between January of 1912 and February of 1914. Edward and four of his siblings still were living with their mother in 1920, though all of them were gainfully employed. Helen was born in Michigan in 1899 or early in 1900, and she married Edward in 1925. Their son Edward was born in February of 1930.

Charles was second of the three children of John and Mary E. Eddington, and was born in April of 1865. His father was a carpenter and joiner from Ontario, and his mother was born in New Jersey. When Augustus B. Taylor opened a second gallery in Pontiac, he selected 18 year old Charles as manager or operator for the up-town branch on Saginaw Street two doors north of the post office. Taylor moved his operations to Detroit a few months later, and sold the up-town gallery to Charles in May of 1883. Charles advertised photographs of any size from the 2¾ by 1½ inch Minette to life size at low prices, and obtained a contract for 450 cabinet photographs of the Grove High School graduating class during his first month in business at Pontiac. Rose was born in Michigan to parents from New York in September of 1866, she married Charles about 1885, and they never had children. Charles was the oldest photographer in Watertown until he sold his business in the spring of 1908 in order to take a well-earned vacation. Two years later he was enumerated in Detroit as a single man. Edna J. Joslin was born in Michigan to a mother from Ohio in 1871, and she married Charles in the latter half of 1910. She and Charles were sharing their home with her widowed mother in 1920 and in 1930.

Charles was born in Massachusetts in April of 1837, a son of Titus and Elizabeth Eddy. Her mother was born in Massachusetts, but Harriet was born in England in September of 1837. She married Charles about 1856, and they raised three children: Walter, Matie, and Winnifred. All three were living at home in 1900, and Walter was a widower with two sons of his own. Walter and Matie still were living with their parents in 1910.

Frank was born in Michigan to parents from Vermont and New York in December of 1856, third of the four children of Amos and Louisa Eddy. In 1880 all four of them were living with their widowed mother. Carrie was born in Michigan to German parents in December of 1856, and she married Frank about 1883. Their four daughters (Florence, Alma, Louise and Eva) were born between August of 1885 and September of 1894, and their son Arthur was born in September of 1888. The rooms on Francis Street which Frank occupied in 1893 had been the gallery of Henry A. Seymour for more than a decade. Frank was enumerated as a railroad car cleaner in 1910. He was one of four boarders with a Fort Wayne widow in 1920, while Carrie was back in Jackson with two of her daughters. Both Frank and Carrie were classified as married.

Ross was born at Litchfield, Michigan, to parents from New York on September 20, 1872, last of the seven or more children of Hallett H. and Huldah L. (Fenton) Eddy. He matured into a tall slender man with blue eyes and brown hair. Annie was born in Michigan in June of 1878, and she married Ross in 1897 or 1898. "ROSS W. EDDY, Publisher, Kalamazoo, Mich." was printed at one end of the mounts of unnumbered stereo views of balloon ascensions, domestic interiors, gardens and a boy with a snowball, as well as views numbered between 1013 and 1369 showing public buildings in Kalamazoo, scenes in Florida, New York and California, and flowers. His first marriage did not last, and about 1904 Ross married a lady named Louise Klieveniet. She was born in Michigan to German parents about 1885, and their son Hallett was born here in 1906. Roswell died from a cerebral hemorrhage at Catlettsburg on April 14, 1944.

Her father emigrated from Canada and Ida was born in March of 1870 just west of Grand Rapids in Walker Township. She was fourth of the five children of Isaac and Margaret A. Edison, pioneers of that area. Ida never married and for many years she lived with her mother, who was a divorced nurse in 1900 and a widow by 1910. Ida emphasized that she was a maker of portraits in the 1920s, and was characterized as a teacher and private portrait photographer at her death. She was 86 when she died in St. Mary's Hospital in Grand Rapids on November 5, 1956, after an illness of several years. Ida was survived by a nephew and four nieces. Burial was in Greenwood Cemetery.

His father emigrated from Canada and Leo was born in Michigan on January 11, 1879. He was last of the five children of Isaac and Margaret A. Edison, and a brother of the Ida S. Edison described above. On the back of the 8 by 10 inch commercial mount of a 4 by 6 inch photograph of a large rural home was stamped: "MADE BY LEO EDISON, NOT FOR MONEY BUT FOR FUN. 85 HENRY ST., DETROIT, MICH." Leo was single and a boarder at Grand Rapids in 1900. Her father came from Indiana and Ina (later Margaret I.) was born in Iowa in 1880. She married Leo about 1911, and they never had children. Leo was a tall man with dark blue eyes, and by 1918 he was partly bald.

Ida was born in Ohio in June of 1882, a daughter of Watson S. and Alice A. (Lindsley) Wheeler. She and two sisters and their invalid mother were living in 1880 with their maternal grandparents, who were growing grapes on North Bass Island near Put In Bay. Ida married a man named Edkin about 1902, and she gave birth in Michigan to George, Stanley and Ralph between 1903 and 1908. She and her three sons were living in 1910 at Petoskey with her parents. Ida soon married the photographer Edward V. Butler, and the boys adopted his surname. She probably worked in the studio as the boys were growing up, but by 1930 George, Stanley and Ralph were out on their own, and Ida worked in Edward's studio as a retoucher as well as keeping house for him and two roomers.

John received the First Premium of $4.00 for the best ambrotypes and photographs exhibited at the 1864 St. Joseph County Fair. "... He did not show a fourth the number of pictures exhibited by some of his competitors, but the quality - beauty of tone and finish - more than made up for the lack of numbers, Edmiston is skillful in his art, and has a just appreciation of all the requisites of a good picture. He has recently made important improvements in his gallery." In the fall of 1865 it was reported that "He has acquired all the new improvements and greatly increased his facilities, and as a consequence his pictures are of excellent quality." The John A. Edmiston who served during the Civil War in Company A of the 13th Ohio Infantry and in Company E. of the 20th Illinois Infantry was not the Constantine photographer, and probably was not the Bushnell photographer.

George was born in England in May of 1838. He immigrated to Canada in 1860 and to the United States five years later. By 1900 he was a naturalized citizen of the United States. Mary was born in Ireland in 1842 or 1843 and was brought to America in 1845. She married George about 1859 and their children were born in Ohio: George about 1867, Willis about 1869, Earnest about 1872, and Ivy about 1874. George was one of the several people who submitted designs for the NPA monogram of the National Photographic Association in 1870. His design was not the one selected for official use. He exhibited photographs at the NPA convention at Chicago in July of 1874. Some card photograph mounts carried this message: "The negative from which this picture is printed is carefully preserved so that duplicates may be ordered as desired. Enlargements from this, or any picture, either in Plain Photographs or in India Ink, Water Color or Pastel, will receive my personal attention and I guarantee that the work will be well done and give satisfaction. G. W. EDMONDSON, Norwalk, Ohio." His eldest son, George M. Edmondson, became a professional photographer and was elected in 1899 to the presidency of the Photographers' Association of Ohio. George W. and Mary J. Edmondson were living separately in Cleveland in 1900, but were sharing a residence there in 1910. By 1920 Mary was a widow living at Elyria, Ohio, with her daughter Ivy and her husband, Frederick W. Colson.

His parents emigrated from England and Ireland, and Robert was born in New York in 1853 or early in 1854. His sister Emma was born there seven years later. In 1880 he and Emma were living with their mother Mary and their Irish stepfather, John McGoff. "R. EDMONDSON, PHOTOGRAPHER, 156 Main Street West, JACKSON, MICH." was printed on the backs of stereoscopic views, including a baptism scene on the banks of a river with the penciled caption: "River Jordan." From 1890 until 1899 he employed his sister Emma as a photo printer, artist or retoucher. Miss Lulu Clarke worked for him in 1897 as an artist and retoucher. Robert advertised early in 1898: "FOR SALE OR RENT - Gallery in city of 30,000. R. Edmondson, Jackson, Mich." He was succeeded temporarily in Jackson by photographer A. E. Kaiser in 1893, and finally sold his studio to photographer Edward D. Erickson in 1902. Neither Robert nor Emma ever married, and they were living together in 1910 and in 1930.

Frank was born in Michigan on March 21, 1889, one of the five children of John and Emily A. Edyvean. His father was eleven when he came from England to the United States in 1865, and he became a naturalized citizen and a foreman of a copper washer. His mother's parents emigrated from Canada and England, she was born in Michigan in 1860 or 1861, and she married John about 1876. The Lake Linden business was also called Buck's Studio about 1910. From the Edyvean Studio at Lake Linden, Frank offered photography in all branches and Kodak finishing. "PHOTO BY F. M. EDYVEAN, LEOPOLD BLDG., HOUGHTON, MICH." was printed on the negative of a 6 ¼ by 4 ½ photograph of Governor Woodbridge N. Ferris on the observation platform of a railroad coach. Frank was slender single man five feet eight inches tall with brown eyes and red hair in 1917. By 1920 he had a 21-year-old wife named Helen E. Edyvean and a six-month-old son named John. In 1942 his wife was identified as Nellie M. Edyvean. Frank died in Santa Cruz on July 11, 1970.

His father emigrated from Canada and George was born in Vermont in January of 1849, first of the seven children of Clarence and Mary M. Egerton. Some early records spelled the surname Edgerton. George grew up on the family farm, and was boarding with relatives in 1870 so as to be close to a good school. Mary Jane (usually Jenny) Freligh was born in Michigan in February of 1854, and she married George in Berlin Township on November 25, 1873. Their children were born in Michigan: Ada in September of 1874, Oswald in June of 1878, Bertram in April of 1882, Florence in May of 1885, and Adell (later Della) in August of 1887. George was a widower by 1930, when he was living with the family of his son Bertram.

Constantine was born in the Wurtemberg section of Germany in 1837 or 1838, and was described as a natural artist and a self-taught photographer. About 1869 he married Miss Louise Lang, who was born in New York to German parents about 1848, fifth of the seven children of John and Margaret Lang. They were living in 1880 with Louise's widowed mother, Mrs. Margaret Haack, and her half-sister, Caroline Haack. At this time Constantine was making a specialty of life size pictures which he finished in crayon, India ink or oil, retouching portraits in the Berlin style, and executing oil paintings to order. Many of his panel and cabinet photographs depicted men in the uniforms of lodges, bands, the police force, the navy and the church, including a portrait of Bishop Foley. He was in Milwaukee for the convention of the Photographers' Association of America in August of 1883, and exhibited what was described as good large work in August of 1887 at the PA of A convention in Chicago. Some of his later cabinet mounts stated: "... LIFE SIZED PHOTOS and CHILDREN'S PHOTOS Taken Instantaneously." Some of his employees were: Charles Erdlen, photo operator in 1878; Mrs. Louise Eisenhardt in 1880, Miss Caroline Haack, clerk in 1880, 1881, 1882 and 1885, photographer in 1884, and photo printer in 1883 and from 1886 through 1894; August Jezertzky, photographer in 1883 and 1884; George Gretz, photographer from 1885 through 1887; Mathilda C. B. Ens, clerk in 1886 and 1887; William F. Reiss, clerk in 1886, apprentice in 1887 and photo operator in 1889; Benjamin N. Cueny, apprentice in 1887; Gustav Bleibel, retoucher in 1887 and from 1889 through 1894, and photographer in 1888; Ella Burdeno, clerk in 1888; Miss Ella C. Burger, clerk from 1889 through 1892; Frederick Somers, retoucher in 1890; William L. H. Koehne, photographer in 1891; Annie T. Rommeck, clerk from 1893 through 1895; Miss Elizabeth Gnau, clerk in 1894; and Nellie Kliewer, clerk in 1896. Mrs. Louise Eisenhardt, Constantine's widow, was living in Detroit from 1913 until 1915.

Chester was born at St. Paul, Minnesota, to Frank W. and Ada (Avery) Eldredge on February 27, 1892. Also born in Minnesota were his brother Elton in May of 1894, his brother Merle in September of 1896, and his sister Frances in November of 1899. By 1917 he was tall and slender, with blue eyes and brown hair. He was single and had spent two and a half years in an infantry unit of the Michigan National Guard. He enlisted in the regular army at Columbus Barracks, Ohio, on August 10, 1917, was promoted to corporal in September, to sergeant in December and to sergeant first class in January, and served with the 87th Aero Squadron at San Antonio in Texas and at Selfridge Field in Michigan until April of 1918. Until July he was with the 872nd Repair Squadron of the Signal Corps at Parkfield, Tennessee, and then through December he attended the Air Service Mechanics School at St. Paul, Minnesota. He was demobilized and honorably discharged at Camp Custer on January 3, 1919. Chester still was single and living with his parents in 1930.

His parents came from New York, and David was born in Michigan in May of 1862, ninth of the ten children of Nathan B. and Jennette Eldredge. By June of 1900 he was a widower with three sons born in Michigan: Ormond in March of 1894, Robert in July of 1896, and Philip in February of 1900. The death of his wife seems to have been related to the birth of their youngest son. David and his sons Ormond and Robert were living in 1910 with his brother George, who is described in a following entry. The three of them were living on their own in 1920, and George was the only boarder with a young couple in 1930. The surname often was spelled Eldridge. David's son Ormond was an Adrian photographer in 1936.

George's parents were the Adrian lawyer Nathaniel Buel Eldredge and his wife Jennette. They came from New York, and they had ten children born in Michigan between 1839 and 1869. George was born here in June of 1856. He participated in the Michigan Art Association Exhibit in 1879, and in the Annual Michigan Artists' Exhibition in 1880. Felicia was born in New York in May of 1850, and she married George about 1884. Their daughter Donna was born here in November of 1887. George advertised in 1890 as the "... LEADING PHOTOGRAPHER, Specialty of Life Size Crayon Work..." Their 23-year-old daughter still was living with them in 1910. Many of the records were for George H. Eldredge.

Mary was born in April of 1862, and she emigrated from Norway in 1878. Edward C. Eldridge was born in New York State in 1853 or early in 1854, and he married Mary about 1882. Their son Irving was born in Minnesota in March of 1884 and is the subject of the preceding entry. Their son Arthur was born in Montana in April of 1890. By 1900 Mary was a widow in Ann Arbor, where she and her sons were neighbors of the photographer Christian Rentschler. "PHOTO BY MARY ELDRIDGE, MIDWAY, PETOSKEY" was printed on the post card backs of studio portraits. One of a man holding an oar was postmarked in September of 1907. She was providing a home at Long Beach in 1910 for Arthur, her only living child. By 1930 Arthur was providing a home for her.

H. M. was born near Piper Creek in Oceana County, Michigan, on April 13, 1873, last of the five sons of Sylvester and Elurina (White) Elliott. He attended local schools, worked in the stave mills for a while, and married Miss Hattie A. Sullivan in 1894. They later purchased a home on First Street in Shelby and had two daughters. Genevera was born in February of 1899, and Geraldine was born in 1905. While H. M. worked for Shirt's Grocery he enjoyed writing their weekly ads for the newspaper. His one story True Blue Store was south of Fourth Street on the west side of Michigan Avenue and featured his post card photographs at five for ten cents. "Photo Elliott" was lettered on the negatives of some of his views, but a capital E in a circle identified most of them. One of his street scenes included a partially obscured sign reading "ELLIOTT'S, HOME OF GOOD POST CARDS, ... HAVE LARGEST ASSORTMENT IN MICHIGAN... for 5¢ ALL HAND MADE. ...NFECTIONERY. CIGARS 10¢. ... BOOKS! BOOKS! ..." H. M. was a prolific and imaginative maker of post card photos. In Oceana County he photographed Benona, Ferry, Golden, Hart, Little Point Sable, Marshville, Mears, New Era, Pentwater, Rothbury, Shelby, Silver Lake, Stony Lake, Walkerville and Weare, and in Mason County, Epworth Heights, Ludington and Scottville. With his camera he ranged along Lake Michigan from Grand Rapids, Sparta and Muskegon in the south to Ellsworth in Antrim County to the north. Farther from home, he made postal photographs of Lansing, Olivet, Saginaw, the State Fair at Detroit in 1911, Chicago, Cleveland and Louisville, Kentucky. Cards in his series of the Oceana County Fair at Hart in 1911 and 1913 are among my favorites. In Shelby he took bird's-eye views, street scenes, parades, store fronts and interiors, the depot, road making, orchards in blossom, harvesting, packing, canning and shipping fruit, high school graduates, the football team, and damage from storms, floods, fires and railroad wrecks. He also photographed more personal scenes such as residences and farm yards, groups of veterans and others, parties, picnics, weddings and an auction sale. Harlo was tall and slender with gray eyes and hair in 1918. Most of his cards were made before he occupied a more modern store on the north side of Main Street in the early 1920s. By this time he was selling sheet music, books, candy, cigars, school supplies, newspapers, magazines and cut flowers, and had a popular popcorn machine. With his wife and daughter and two clerks staffing the store, he was able to do some bookkeeping for major local businesses. When the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company opened a store in Shelby, H. M. became its manager. His store excelled in sales, and his super salesmanship won numerous A&P contests, including a two-week trip for two to New York City and Bermuda. He was also active in local politics and community affairs, his church and lodges, sports and entertainments. A weakened heart led to his retirement early in 1939, and his wife died a few months later in the home on First Street which they had shared for 44 years. Severe heart attacks in March of 1940 caused his death.

Robert was born in March of 1862, and he emigrated from Canada to the United States in 1877. He and Sarah married about 1883, and their daughter and two sons were born between 1885 and 1890. W. E. Clark probably was the other half of Elliott & Clark. Elliott & Son in Ewart was identified as a branch of a Tustin business. Robert's younger son, Robert, was his partner in the operations of Elliott & Son. Sarah was a principal of the Reed City photograph gallery in 1910, when two of their children were working there as photographers. These studios were in towns connected by railroad lines. Ewart is about twelve miles east of Reed City, LeRoy is about twelve miles north of Reed City, and Tustin is five miles north of LeRoy.

Robert was born at Reed City to Canadian parents on February 27, 1890, last of the three children of Robert S. and Sarah M. Elliott. Some records were for Robert S. Elliott, Junior. He became a medium sized man with blue eyes and light brown hair. Her father was Canadian, her mother came from New York, and Nora was born in Michigan in 1894. She married Robert about 1910, and their children were born in Michigan: Bruce in March of 1915, Ardith in July of 1917, and June about 1925. "Mr. Herendeen's Home Seekers, Baldwin, Mich. - Photo by Elliott & Son" was lettered on the negative of a photo of a wagon load of people postmarked on September 30, 1913. Note that Robert went from working for his father in 1920 to employing his father in 1930.

W. D. and Effie Ellis emigrated from Canada and their eldest son, Alvin, was born near Reed City, Michigan, on April 22, 1883. As a youth he joined the Reorganized Latter Day Saints Church, which he served for nearly fifty years as missionary, district president, pastor and in personal ministry. He and Miss Ettie A. Teal were married at South Boardman on December 24, 1902. Alvin's wife and children also were born in Michigan: Etta in 1882, Frederick in 1905, Alvin Ray in 1907, Lucy in 1910, Carroll in 1912, and the twins Ruth and Edith in April of 1916 in addition to two children that died as infants. Along with legends in block capitals, "PHOTO BY A. R. ELLIS, SO. BOARDMAN, MICH." or "PHOTO BY ELLIS" or "BY ELLIS" or "Ellis Photo" or "Photo by Ellis" or just "Ellis" was lettered on the negatives of postal photographs of business streets, patriotic celebrations, base ball games, wrestling matches, fires, lumber camps, saw mills, schools, parks, camping scenes, families and other groups. Dates ranging from August 8, 1908, to February 10, 1911, were marked on some of the negatives, and postmarks on the cards were from about the same time span. He photographed scenes and events at Alba, Bendon, Breeds Lake, Deibert, East Jordan, Inland, Interlochen, Kingsley, Manton, South Boardman and Walton Junction. Though these places are in several different counties, they are no more than thirty miles east or forty miles north of South Boardman and most of them were readily accessible by rail. Alvin was tall with dark brown eyes and hair in 1918. He retired in 1945 and due to his poor health he and his wife began spending the winters in Arizona. He died at the Tucson, Arizona, home of his daughter on March 12, 1955. Burial was in the South Boardman cemetery after a local funeral service. 4 3

Henry was born in Michigan in February of 1855, third of the six children of Pitt M. and Clarinda Ellsworth. He moved to Isabella County in 1877. Estella was born in New York State to English parents in July of 1859, and she married Henry about 1879. Their children were born in Michigan, William in September of 1881, Lillian in July of 1883, and Nellie in May of 1885. Millbrook was 16 miles west of Mount Pleasant. Henry Ellsworth and Francis M. Smith bought the photograph business of John H. Freney in April of 1883, and advertised locally early in May: "GIVE US A TRIAL for PHOTOGRAPHS, go to ELLSWORTH & SMITH, Where you will get the very best work done in All Styles, and at Reasonable Prices. Florence was born in Michigan to parents from New York in June of 1886, last of the three children of Charles and Emma A. Elmer. Her siblings also were born in Michigan: Frank in January of 1883 and Grace in August of 1884. All three were living in 1910 with their widowed mother, and Florence still was living with her in 1920 and in 1930. Mrs. Elmer also was sharing her home with four young male lodgers in 1920 and with one young male roomer in 1930.

Elon was born in Indiana to parents from Ohio in January of 1862, second of the six children of Tertellus C. and Rebecca Elson. Clara A. Shearer was born in Michigan to parents from New York in July of 1867, and she married Elon about 1895. Elson & Farquhar advertised: "Call at the new photograph gallery. Everything is new and work guaranteed. Cabinets $3.00 per dozen. Sittings instantaneous. Old pictures copied. Landscape work done to order. Don't forget the babies..." On some cabinet mounts a different ink was used to blank out Berrien Springs and substitute Centreville. One of Elon's Centreville cabinet photos was of a woman holding the bridle of a horse standing in the street with an older couple seated in a buggy behind the horse and a large home in the background. "Centreville and Colon" or "Niles & Buchanan, Mich." was printed on some of his other cabinet mounts. It was repeatedly noted that the Galien operation was a branch of the Buchanan business. Clara and Elon never had children. Clara was a widow in 1930, and the manager of an apartment building in Long Beach, California.

Ard was third of the five sons of Temple Hosea and Diana (Godfrey) Emery, and was born at Orono, Maine, on June 19, 1833. He was named after his maternal grandfather, Ard Godfrey. By 1840 Temple was gone and Diana was raising the five boys on her own. In 1860 Nicholas Emery was head of the household that included his wife and sons, his mother, and his brothers Ard and Hiram. Agnes Cole was born in Wales Township, New York, in the summer of 1838, second of the six children of Isaac and Betsy Cole. She married Ard on February 16, 1865, and their daughter Diana was born at Marquette on December 12, 1865. Their son Edwin was born at Ishpeming on June 13, 1867, and their son Arthur was born at Marquette on March 6, 1873. Another child born at Marquette on November 3, 1869, does not seem to have survived. Some of Ard's Marquette cartes de visite carried three cent revenue stamps and advertised rustic and fancy frames made to order. In the autumn of 1865, the portrait of a Chippewa Indian was among six "Views About Lake Superior" reproduced in Harper's Weekly from photographs by A. G. Emery. Early in 1867 the editor of The Philadelphia Photographer called Ard's views of the iron dock "... very excellent and acceptable." His advertisement appeared in the journal four months later: "LAKE SUPERIOR VIEWS, All sizes, at wholesale and retail, and Lake Superior Moss Bouquets and Moss Wreaths. All kinds of Bead and Cone Work. All kinds of Lake Superior Curiosities generally for sale, at A. G. EMERY'S Photographic Gallery, Front Street, over Post-Office, Marquette, L. S., Michigan." A little later they printed a half page of his advice on managing and rejuvenating photographic baths. By August of 1868 Ard had 200 different stereoscopic views for sale from stores in Marquette. Pictorially and technically excellent Emery views of Escanaba, Hancock, Houghton, Mackinac Island, the Pictured Rocks, Sault Ste. Marie, copper mines and iron mines have survived. Ard employed John Ripplé at Ishpeming, and charged 25 cents for duplicates of his card photographs. Two of his brothers took over a saw mill and salt block at East Tawas in 1877. Ard was married for the second time about 1890 to a widow named Martha, who was born in Tennessee in March of 1843. He leased the East Tawas gallery east of the Strong House formerly occupied by J. M. Dafoe in December of 1891 and opened it for business in January of 1892. By June he was attempting to interest East Tawas capitalists in manufacturing a device which he had invented for cutting and killing weeds in grain fields, and that summer his price for cabinet photos ranged from $1.50 to $2.00 per dozen. For two weeks in May of 1893 Ard closed his East Tawas gallery on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday so as to take photographs at Lupton for a promotional pamphlet. He moved into a new gallery on the west side of Newman Street between Barkman's clothing store and the Wonzer meat market, near the Holland House and one block east of the Tawas State Savings Bank, in August of 1893. He spent several days in photographing at Rose City early in February of 1894, five days at Whittemore and five days at Prescott in March, and several days at Tawas City in May. In November of 1894 the local newspaper noted that his gallery was well equipped for doing all kinds of photographic work, including copying and enlarging and portraits of all sizes finished in crayon, India ink, water colors or pastel, outside views of houses, mills, farms, stock and all buildings, photographs made at home of persons unable to come to the studio, and cabinet photographs on aristo paper. The same message was printed on his cabinet mounts, which also mentioned 6 ½ by 8 ½ and 8 by 10 photographs. On exhibition in his gallery windows in July of 1895 were views mounted 8 by 10 which were taken of the celebration on the Fourth at Tawas City. He spent five days photographing at Harrisville in September of 1895, and attended the Detroit convention of the Michigan Photographers' Association in January of 1896. A month later he acquired a powerful new flash light for taking parlor pictures in the evening with an exposure of only the 50th part of a second. He spent a week at Black River in June, leaving Charles W. Ganoung in charge of his East Tawas gallery. Ganoung worked for Ard for several months and then returned to his Wisconsin home in November of 1896. During the later 1890s advertising by the Detroit & Mackinac Railway used scenic photographs by Ard, whose cabinet mounts now offered "Duplicate pictures like the one on this card can be had - send your name. Developing and printing Kodak pictures done. Kodaks and Kodak Supplies For Sale. Old Pictures Enlarged and finished in Crayon, Water Color and Sepia. Button Pictures Made." He set up at Harrisville for a few days in May of 1896. Early in 1897 Ard began spending the first week of each month making sittings for portraits at the Kelly furniture store in Tawas City. About this time he began to speak of his intention of leaving East Tawas, and continued to make such announcements sporadically over the next few years. Mrs. Emery spent much of her time at her old home in Tennessee during this period. Ard offered Cabinet photos for $2.00 per dozen two different times in 1897, and spent a week at McKinley in May. His son Arthur served as chief machinist on a navy monitor during the Spanish-American War, and his son-in-law was later stationed in the Philippines as a captain in the 44th U. S. Volunteers. Ard took portraits for a few days at Killmaster in July of 1898, made views after a December snow storm at East Tawas, advertised one dozen cabinet photographs and a fine 16 by 20 portrait for $3.00 in April, spent two weeks at Black River and Onaway in May and June of 1899, offered 16 by 20 portraits and 16 by 20 frames for $1.00 and up, also photo buttons to order and Kodaks at reduced prices in September of 1900, and gave away some Vive souvenir cameras the following month. A telephone was installed in his East Tawas gallery in March of 1901, and the lines went through to Tawas City in November of 1902. His prices for hand cameras ranged from $3.50 to $25.00 in June of 1903, with instructions free to purchasers and developing and printing available. He attended the Saginaw convention of the Ohio-Michigan Photographers' Association in July, introduced platinum prints on Colloido-Carbon paper in October, and with a new source his photo button work had become the best in the land by December of 1903. He offered up to $1.00 off to his first 100 customers in March of 1904, making his prices for cabinet portraits range from $2.50 to $4.00, for one-half cabinets $2.00, and for full cabinets with gloss paper $2.00; with one-half the amount to be paid at the time of sitting. In April he put his two story, ten rooms and bath, East Tawas home up for sale, then attended a photographic convention at Saginaw in May. Arthur Hutchinson, with several years of experience in Owosso galleries, purchased the East Tawas gallery and spent a month with Ard before taking possession on November 12, 1904. The Emery residence was sold and the household goods were sold at auction. Ard was enjoying the Tennessee weather in March, but by August of 1905 was discontented with his new location. He was a widower by 1920, and residing in a large home with 99 other retirees cared for by a staff of twenty. Several hundred of his more interesting 8 by 10 inch and smaller glass negatives are held by Neil Thornton at Tawas City. Nearly 2500 of his glass negatives made between 1892 and 1905, mostly portraits, have been cleaned and indexed at the Iosco County Historical Museum in East Tawas.

Wesley was born in New York State in July of 1829. In 1860 he was sharing his residence with three other teachers including Laura A. Emery, who probably was his sister. Sarah was born in New York about 1838, and she married Wesley late in 1860. Their son Archibald was born in December of 1861, and their daughter Effie was born in 1873 or early in 1874. Wesley's sticker is found on the back of some stereo views. In 1900 and in 1910 Wesley was a widower living with the family of his son, who by 1900 was the proprietor of the book and stationery business.

Joseph was born in Switzerland in February of 1841, was brought to the United States in 1847, and became a naturalized citizen. Matilda was born in Michigan to Canadian parents in July of 1844, and she married Joseph about 1866. Their sons were born in Michigan: William in September of 1868, Leonard in 1874, and Arthur in July of 1878. William J. Emhuff worked as a photographer for Joseph in 1885, from 1887 through 1890 and in 1892; succeeded him in 1896 and in 1899; and was his partner in 1897. The address on Hastings was sometimes listed as 154-156. The building at 370 Buchanan was on the corner of 23rd Street. Joseph and Matilda were living in 1920 next door to the family of their son Leonard, who was a market gardener.

His parents came from Indiana, and Emery was born in Ohio to Squire H. and Catherine Emick on December 26, 1881. As an adult, Emery was about average in height and weight with brown eyes and black hair. His partner was identified as Leon M. Emick from 1902 through 1906, and as Maurice L. or Morris L. Emick from 1907 through 1909. The brothers specialized in Photo Pillows and Photo Pin Cushions during the last five years of their partnership. Emery was single and was sharing the home of his widowed mother in 1930.

His parents came from Indiana, and Maurice was born in Ohio on January 27, 1885, to Squire H. and Catherine Emick. He grew up in Detroit's Corktown, and when he graduated from the eighth grade he became an apprentice finisher in a commercial photography shop. One of his jobs was projecting beer ads on the side of a building from a magic lantern in a loft over a Michigan Avenue drug store. His family converted their home into a neighborhood theater and packed the house nightly at ten cents a person for movies of the McKinley assassination and The Great Train Robbery. Maurice began projecting movies at lodge halls and later at Electric Park opposite Belle Isle, and in 1905 apprenticed in a photo engraving plant. He was short with a medium build, blue eyes and dark hair. Emma Irene Granger was born in Michigan in 1887, married Maurice about 1909, and gave birth to Helen in 1916. Maurice sold their Detroit home and built a 200-seat theater at Whitmore Lake, where he projected Charlie Chaplin three-reelers while his wife played the piano. His days were spent working on a farm. Within a few years he was back at photo engraving, commuting to Toledo until he was hired by his old boss in 1916 as the dark room man in the new rotogravure plant which was printing the brown Roto Magazine section for the Detroit Free Press. He spent the rest of his career as a production man in this business. When the plant burned in January of 1922, they never missed an issue. He hired the crew when an engraving plant was added to the business, and suggested the need for a fifth floor when a new building was being planned. He was 71 years old and had only recently retired when the cited article was written.

His father was born in Pennsylvania and is described in a subsequent entry. Herman was born in Illinois to a Canadian mother in August of 1870, the son of Samuel B. and Mary B. Emmons. His sister Helen was a couple of years older. He probably was born at Mount Carroll, Illinois, where his family was living in 1870. Herman's partner in Emmons' Studio and in Emmons & McClellan was Hazzard L. McClellan. Kate L. Green was born in Michigan in July of 1872, and she married Herman about 1896. Their son Herman was born in California in August of 1899. Kate died before 1910, when her widowed mother was helping to raise young Herman. By 1920 the senior Herman was married to Henrietta, a 47-year-old lady from New York. In 1930 his wife was named Mary, and she was born in Michigan to Irish parents about 1883. Herman died at Snohomish on March 17, 1945.

Russell was born in Michigan to parents from Pennsylvania and New York on August 10, 1877, the son of Russell B. and Anna E. (Stephenson) Emmons. The elder Russell dealt in jewelry, watches, clocks and stationery at St. Johns from 1872 until 1879. The rental of the Dafoe gallery at Alpena by Emmons & DeViney was reported early in 1899. They employed Georgiana LaLonde as a retoucher in 1899. Russell and his older sister Kate were living in 1900 with their widowed mother. His partner, Orton L. DeViney, was boarding with them at that time. Russell listed his sister, now Mrs. Kate Allen of Royal Oak, as his nearest relative in 1918. The Valuation Department inventoried and photographed railroad property that had been taken over for operation by the United States government during World War I. Russell was the nephew of the Samuel B. Emmons portrayed below, and a cousin of the Herman L. Emmons described above.

Jacob was born in the German province of Baden in 1829, and was a laborer prior to his enrollment as a private in Company E of the 32nd Indiana Infantry on August 24, 1861. He deserted at Louisville, Kentucky, on October 2, 1862, and never returned to the army. By 1880 Jacob was married to a 38-year-old lady named Mary, who was born in Indiana to parents from Tennessee. He began attempts to obtain an Invalid Pension in August of 1891, citing impaired eyesight caused by a disease he had contracted in the service. He signed several pension related forms with his mark rather than a signature. When examined the following year, he was 5 feet 11½ inches tall, weighed 160 pounds and was found to be almost totally disabled by his limited vision. However, his pension application was rejected on the grounds of his desertion. Jacob was 65 years old when he died in Detroit on January 31, 1895.

Phillip was born in the Hesse-Darmstadt region of Germany in 1835. “COTTRELL & ENGELHART, LANSING” was printed on a paper strip applied to the inside of the case below the ambrotype images they produced. The Engelhart Building was the first in Lansing to be built expressly to accommodate a photograph gallery, which occupied an area of 46 by 22 feet on the second floor. When Phillip opened his gallery late in the summer of 1864 the first floor was rented to the proprietor of a flour store. The backs of some cartes de visite carry two cent revenue stamps and the hand written message: “Duplicates of this at any time for 30 cts. - P. Engelhart, Photographer.” In 1867 his entrance was one door west of Grove & Whitney’s hardware store, and Phillip advertised as a “PHOTOGRAPHER! Dealer in Frames, Albums, &c. Pictures of all Styles Taken, and all articles connected with the Business, kept constantly on hand...” On October 2, 1873, Phillip took a series of three views of the ceremonial laying of the five ton granite corner stone for the state capitol. His stereo views of Lansing include one of the business district on Decoration Day in 1875. The sale of his gallery to Charles H. Mead was reported in June of 1876, as was Phil’s intention of visiting the scenes of his youth in Germany during the summer. From 1894 through 1920 Philip shared his home with his niece, Miss Lizzie Engelhart. Lizzie was born in Ohio to German parents about 1863. Philip lived to be 88 years old, and died on April 4, 1923.

Edward was born in Detroit in May of 1880, fifth of the eight children of Edward and Matilda Engelman. The elder Edward was born in Germany in April of 1841 and immigrated in 1847. His wife was born to German parents in Michigan in January of 1847. Dorothy was born in Ohio to an Irish father and a Scotch mother in 1889 or early in 1890, and she married Edward about 1909. Their children were born in Michigan: Eunice in 1910 and William in 1912. By 1920 Dorothy was a widow working as a cigar maker in Lima, Ohio, and raising her children on her own.

Albert Frederic Engleman was born in Michigan to German parents on October 4, 1886, first of the four children of William and Hattie G. Engleman. He was attending school in Howard City in 1900, and was working in his father's Howard City clothing store as a salesman or clerk in 1910, 1917 and 1920. By 1930 he was proprietor of the clothing store. He and Vera married when both of them were 25 years old, and they had two sons. He is the only A. F. Engleman or Engelman (the alternative spellings appear equally often) that is likely to have been the Big Rapids photographer. Big Rapids is just eighteen miles north of Howard City, and Vera might have been the principal photographer in an experimental enterprise while Albert continued to work part time for his father.

His father came from New York, and Arthur was born at Sawyer, Michigan, to John H. and Mary English on October 7, 1889. He had an older sister, an older brother and a younger brother. He became a stout man with blue eyes and brown hair. "Photo by A. G. ENGLISH, NEW TROY, MICH." was stamped on the post card backs of photographs, including one made from a negative upon which "BRETHREN CHURCH, NEW TROY, MICH." had been lettered. Gem Smith was born in Michigan in July of 1893, and in 1900 was the only child of a young widow named Ada Smith. Gem married Arthur when she was 18 and he was 21, and their children were born in Michigan: Shirley in 1812, Dale in November of 1915, and Hazel in 1920 or early in 1921. Arthur expected to be exempted from military service because of his membership in the Brethren Church. He and Gem were sharing their home in 1920 and 1930 with Arthur's father, who still was farming in 1930.

John was born on November 17, 1861, at Apple River, Illinois, fourth of the seven children of Martin and Alice Ennor. He received his education in the public schools of that mining town. He began to learn photography about 1879, when he was seventeen. He married Miss Sidney Woodward in 1885, and they later had a daughter and then a son born at Stevens Point in July of 1890. Both children proved to be musically talented. John leased his Stevens Point gallery for a while in the 1890s and took on the management of the local opera house and amusement park. From 1896 until 1902, John traveled the middlewest with "Ennor's Electric Tassergraph Railway Studio" from his base at Stevens Point, taking portraits and views. During this time, he and his "private palace photographic car" did not experience a single accident. When he returned to Stevens Point from upper Michigan for the last time in July of 1902, he sold the railroad car to a group of doctors. John traveled as a commercial photographer and lived until 1935.

"Enright, Gaylord." was printed on the cabinet mounts of photographs made in a studio. Enright produced 5 by 8 and 6 by 8 inch prints mounted 8 by 10 of lumber camps, railroads and docks as well as holiday parades and pageants in Boyne City. The straw hat of a girl in a pageant carries the name "DEWEY," probably for the Spanish American War admiral. "Enright, Boyne City" or "Enright's Studio, Boyne City, Mich." was printed beneath the images on some of the mounts. John Enright was born in New York State in September of 1869, and was working in a Boyne City saw mill and boarding in a Boyne City hotel in 1900.

Claus Detlev and Elise Sophia Christiana (Ruslaub) Erichsen were married in Denmark in 1849 and emigrated to the United States, Claus in 1851 and Elise in 1852. The only one of their six children that survived to maturity was Hugo, born in Detroit on June 22, 1860. He attended a private school at Rochester, New York, the German-American Seminary in Detroit and then until 1876 the Realschule at Kiel, Germany. Back in Detroit, Hugo restored his knowledge of English at private schools before entering in the autumn of 1879 the Detroit Medical College, from which he graduated in March of 1882. Another degree of M.D. was conferred upon him by the University of Vermont two months later and he took post graduate courses at the New York Polyclinic. He was professor of neurology for two terms in 1883 at Chaddock College in Quincy, Illinois. He returned to Detroit as physician for his father's Hotel Erichsen and to establish a private practice. Miss Emma Amelia Eggemann of Detroit became his wife on June 1, 1886, and they later had two daughters. He was the City Physician of Detroit from 1888 to 1890, was on the medical staff of Parke, Davis & Company from 1899 until 1918, and was the Director of Medical Services for the Burroughs Adding Machine Company from 1919 to 1926. He became an advocate of cremation in 1879, founded the Michigan Cremation Association in 1886, wrote The Cremation of the Dead in 1887 and founded the Cremation Association of America in 1913. He was considered an amateur when he won the first prize for genre photographs at the first annual exhibition of the Detroit Camera Club in May of 1897, and he participated in the Youth's Companion National Exhibit of Amateur Photography in 1900. His photographs won silver and bronze medals in Photographic Times competitions and a silver medal in an Outdoor Life contest, and one was selected for exhibition at the First San Francisco Salon in 1900. Hugo published so many articles in a variety of periodicals, usually illustrated with his photographs, that his amateur standing is questionable. His topics ranged from medicine, biography, gardening, architecture, cremation and a variety of other subjects to translations, fiction and poetry. His articles on photography included four in The Developer in 1895, four in the American Amateur Photographer in 1895, five in Anthony's Photographic Bulletin between 1895 and 1898, four in the Canadian Photographic Journal in 1895 and 1896, three in Wilson's Photographic Magazine between 1895 and 1898, one in The Camerist in 1896, eleven in Outdoor Life in 1900 and 1901, two in the Photographic Times in 1901, three in Photo-Era in 1902 and another in 1930, one in Camera Chat in 1907, and five in American Boy between 1908 and 1911, as well as articles in the International Annual of Photography in 1896, in Mosaics in 1897, and in the American Annual of Photography in 1896, 1898, 1903, 1904, 1905, 1906 and 1907. Their titles ranged through "Photography as an Aid to the Physician" in 1895. "Genre Photography" and "Specialism vs. General Photography" in 1896, "'Life,' an Idea Portrayed Photographically" and "Cycle and Camera" in 1897, "The Camera in War" in 1898, and "Industrial Photography" in 1899, to "The Boy Photographer" in 1904. Five of his pictures were reproduced in four different issues of one journal in 1899. He was photographic editor of the American Boy from 1903 until 1913, and served as president of the Detroit Camera Club. His wife died on June 15, 1937. Hugo died in Harper Hospital at Detroit on October 10, 1944, survived by his 2 daughters, 6 grandchildren and 3 great grandchildren. Cremation took place at the Detroit Woodmere Crematorium.

Emil was born to Swedish parents on July 17, 1897, in Onkama Township of Manistee County, Michigan, seventh of the eight children of Erick and Mathilda Erickson. He was called Franz as a child, and became a short slender man with blue eyes and brown hair. "Taken 20 of Feb - 1919, By E. E." was written on the post card back of a photograph of a man holding the bridles of two horses. "Photo By E. F. Erickson, B.L.M." was stamped on the post card backs of photos of 9 foot 8 inch corn stalks at Bear Lake and of a man holding the bridle of a horse. "EMIL F. ERICKSON, R-1, Box 107, Bear Lake, Mich." was stamped on the back of a postal photograph of a man painting "June 21, 1924" on a building while his family watched. By 1930 Emil seems to have inherited the family farm and was working it with the help of his younger brother Carl. Neither of the brothers was married at this time.

Jorgen emigrated in 1880 from Norway, where he was born in February of 1857, and became a naturalized citizen of the United States on October 25, 1886. Hannah was born in Norway in September of 1856, she immigrated in 1881, and she married Jorgen about 1882. Their son Odin was born in Minnesota in May of 1883, their daughter Ragna was born in Wisconsin in August of 1887, and their other children were born in Michigan: Norma in September of 1892, Harold in June of 1894, and Ralph in January of 1899. Ralph was over a year old before he was named. Jorgen lived in Chicago and Minneapolis before he purchased the Florence photograph gallery of Henry Stronach, taking possession on July 4, 1883. Florence remained his home base while he established branch operations at Iron Mountain, Iron River, Crystal Falls and Norway, Michigan. Early in September of 1888 Richard Bordewich, who had been managing Jorgen's Iron Mountain gallery, purchased a half interest in his Norway gallery. Bordewich & Eskil built a new gallery on Nelson Street in Norway which opened in the fall of 1889. Oscar Peters succeeded John C. Lee as Jorgen's partner in Iron Mountain early in February of 1890. "J. J. ESKIL, Florence, Wis." was printed on the image side of some stereo views which had a word picture of Florence on the back. One of the views on such a mount was of the Iron River Mine at Stambaugh, Michigan. Other stereo views of residences and mines had blank backs and only "J. J. ESKIL, Portrait and Landscape Photographer" printed on the front. Olof Hanson was in charge of Eskil's Iron River photograph gallery beginning late in the spring of 1889. J. J. Eskil cabinet mounts from Iron Mountain in the 1880s mention "STROMSTEN, Operator" and similar mounts from Florence about 1890 mention "HANSEN, Operator." During the summer and fall of 1891, Jorgen built Eskil's Art Gallery on East Hughitt Street in Iron Mountain, and then moved to Iron Mountain from Florence. His Iron Mountain gallery was damaged by fire in 1898 to the extent of $1000, but he was soon ready for business in his new gallery according to a report early in 1899. Jorgen effectually retired from photography about 1905. He visited the land of his birth just before World War I. He returned on the S. S. Kristianiafjord, leaving Bergen on September 19 and arriving at New York City on September 29, 1914. Two of their children still were living at home with Jorgen and Hannah in 1920. Jorgen lived on at Iron Mountain until his death there on January 14, 1942.

Oliver was born in Sweden on February 18, 1879, and he was brought to America in 1881. By 1918 he had declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States, and soon fulfilled that ambition. He was medium sized with blue eyes and light hair. Philomene Darian was born in Canada in 1887, came to the United States in 1892, and married Oliver about 1907. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Ruth in 1914 and Norma in October of 1928. "Estenson Studio, Tenth Street, Opposite High School, Gladstone, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of studio portraits about 1915. "Estenson Photo" was scribed into the negative of a somewhat later postal photograph of the high school. Oliver added musical merchandise to his business by 1923, added sheet music and radio supplies to that by 1925, and then added Kodak films and processing by 1931.

Robert was born in or near Zanesville, Ohio, to Henry G. and Esther (Alexander) Ewing on December 20, 1841. He was five feet ten inches tall with a light complexion, blue eyes and light hair when he enlisted as a private in Company E of the Third Ohio Volunteer Infantry on June 13, 1861. He had been transferred to Company 118 of the Second Battalion of the Veteran Reserve Corps by the time he and Miss Martha M. Morrison were married at West Newton, Pennsylvania, on April 4, 1864. He was honorably discharged from the army at the Office of the Adjutant General on June 12, 1864. "Photographed by R. S. EWING & CO., No. 112 Main Street, Zanesville, Ohio. - Photographs of all sizes, In India Ink, Oil and Water Colors. Daguerreotypes and other pictures copied to any size. Negatives preserved for two years." was printed on the back of cartes de visite. On one of these, "No 67" was written following the printed message, and the three cent revenue stamp was cancelled: "RSE, Nov, 1865." Other cartes were "FROM R. S. EWING'S Photograph & Fine Art Rooms, MILFORD, Mich. Copies can be had from the Negative of this picture at any time by sending the number. No. .... Photographs of all sizes in India Ink and Water Colors. Visit the Gallery." A letter was sent to R. S. Ewing at the Cleveland convention of the National Photographic Association in the summer of 1870, but could not be delivered for he was unknown to those in charge of the proceedings. Martha gave birth to Clarence in 1865, Chesney in 1867, and Stanley late in 1869. She died at Monmouth, Illinois, in July of 1873. Late in 1874 or early in 1875, Robert and Miss Julia Farrel were married at Woodhull, Illinois. Their son Ernest was born on October 18, 1875, and they were divorced in 1879. Robert was raising Chesney and Stanley on his own in June of 1880. He married 35-year-old Miss Lucy A. Trowbridge in December of 1880 at Rockford, Illinois, but she died of heart disease just months later on February 24, 1881. He and Emma Rossman were married early in 1883 at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where one of his sons, Chesney W. Ewing, was a photographer at about this time or a little later. Robert and Emma moved to California in 1885 or 1886, and were divorced at Los Angeles in 1889. Robert was boarding with a 45-year-old San Francisco widow in 1900. He and Miss Phebe E. Van Velsor were married at Washington, D. C., on June 1, 1904. He had obtained a veteran's pension under the Act of June 27, 1890, and was receiving $8.00 per month in 1907. He was enumerated as a portrait artist in 1920. Robert died of heart disease at Pasadena on January 12, 1928, and his remains were cremated at Mountain View on January 15. Phebe applied for a Widow's Pension early in 1929.

John was born in Ohio to English parents in September of 1842, the son of Benjamin and Ellen Excell. The photographer in Allegheny City was identified as J. W. Excell, and the photographer in Pittsburgh was identified as Wesley Excell. John advertised in the Jackson Weekly Citizen on June 1, 1864, that he had purchased the Photograph Establishment formerly occupied by Mr. Chamberlain (Chamblin). John was identified as J. Wesley Excell in 1865 and again in 1880. Some carte de visite portraits of Union officers by John carry two cent revenue stamps. He was bought out in April of 1866 by Lewis C. Higgins. Emma Taylor was born in Ohio in 1842 or 1843, and she married John about 1865. Their children were born in Michigan: Gertrude in 1867 or early in 1868, and Matthew in July of 1869. John was a widower by 1900, when he was providing a home for his son and his wife and son. Matthew was head of the household in 1910, and he and his family were sharing their home with John.

Stephen was born in Canada about 1838. He was boarding with the family of a 39-year-old blacksmith in Iowa. He and 50-year-old Stilwell Exceen were rooming in a Mattawan hotel in 1860. The gazetteer spelled the surname Exgeen, but all other records were for Exceen. Stephen was a resident of Dearborn County in Indiana when he enlisted on April 25, 1861, for three months in Company G of the Seventh Indiana Volunteer Infantry. He was mustered out of the army with his regiment on August 2, 1861. Stephen was a five feet eight inch harness maker with blue eyes, dark hair and a fair complexion when he enlisted at a fort for five years in the regular army on November 17, 1869.

Frederick was born to German parents on June 2, 1879, probably in Alsace-Lorraine. This is a frontier region that was ceded by France to Germany in 1871 and restored to France in 1919. He was fourth of the five children of Henry and Barbara (Bergman) Eyer, and was brought to America in 1881. He became a United States citizen when his father was naturalized while Frederick was a minor, and was an average sized man with blue eyes and light hair in 1918. Her father came from Denmark and Anna was born in Germany about 1881. She was brought to America as a baby, and she married Frederick in 1906 or 1907. Their son Ronald was born in Michigan in 1910. Fred died in Michigan in January of 1964.

Alfred's father emigrated from the Bavarian region of Germany, and his mother came from the German state of Saxony. He was born in Michigan in October of 1867, third of the four children of Andrew and Elizabeth Eymer. An 1897 advertisement was for "A. W. Eymer, FOTOGRAFER, Portraits in Crayon, India Ink, and Water Colors. Fine Photographs a Specialty. The Largest and Most Equipped Studio in Saginaw...." A photographic journal mentioned in November of 1897 that "Since Mr. Eymer took possession of the Pausch Studio, Saginaw, Michigan, there has been a gradual improvement in all the departments. It is Mr. Eymer's intention to always please the public, showing to each and every customer the minutest and most skilled attention." Alfred employed Miss Clara E. Wetzel as a retoucher in 1900. He and his older sister Amelia were living in 1900 and 1910 with their widowed father. Alfred still was single in 1930, and was sharing his home with Amelia.

His father emigrated from the frontier region between Germany and France, and his mother was a native of New York State. Martin was born about 1847 at Cleveland, Ohio, third of the eight or more children of Martin and Rebecca Fadner. On February 16, 1865, he enlisted as a private in Company H of the 48th Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry. He served honorably until he was discharged from the army on December 30, 1865. Inez A. Chesbro was born in Wisconsin to parents from New York in 1850 or early in 1851, and she married Martin at Stockbridge, Wisconsin, on December 25, 1867. Their children were born in Wisconsin: Paul on January 23, 1870, Lillian about 1872, Inez on September 3, 1873, George on March 14, 1877, and Maud on May 22, 1881. Martin’s wife died on August 8, 1883, and young Maud was adopted in 1884 by Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Brittain of Berlin, Michigan. Martin took up photography in Wisconsin, and about 1883 he began specializing in photographic views. By the time Martin arrived in Muskegon, he had a wide-angle lens and was completely equipped for landscape work. Many years devoted to scenic photography had made him an expert in that field. He accumulated views of nearly all of the public buildings and principal residences in Muskegon, and turned to James Hamilton for developing his negatives and prints. Except for historical views and portraits, most of the engravings in The Advantages and Surroundings of Muskegon Mich were made from his views. Mary Douglas and Martin were married at Muskegon on December 19, 1893, and divorced on September 18, 1894. Martin died on June 17, 1902. 5

Louis was youngest of the four sons of Joseph L. and Yetta Faingold and was born at Berloud, Romania, on May 10, 1895. He immigrated to America in 1904, became a medium sized man with dark brown eyes and black hair, and was sometimes identified as Louis Feingold. He was single when he was inducted into the army at Grand Rapids on October 23, 1918, and sent to Camp Lee Hall in Virginia. He served as a private in Company B of the 56th Ammunition Train until he was demobilized and honorably discharged on December 19, 1918. By 1920 he was a naturalized United States citizen, and had his brother Sam Faingold for a photographic partner. He offered "Complete Photo Service" in 1925, and emphasized portrait photography and picture framing from 1928 through 1932. Louis remained single, and was living in 1930 with his widowed mother Etta Faingold in Grand Rapids. Walter L. Pollum was associated with Louis in the Roman Photo Studio at Bay City. | Walter was born in Canada to Scotch parents in April of 1867. He immigrated in 1880, had his first papers by 1900, and became a naturalized citizen of the United States in 1898. Edith D. Sanford was born in New York State in July of 1875, and she married Walter about 1891. Their children were born in Michigan: Eva in May of 1892, Wayne in May of 1894, Clifford in June of 1898, Lillian in 1901, Morley in 1903, and Mildred early in 1906. "W. W. FAIRBAIRN, ALANSON, MICH." was stamped on the backs of stereo views of a lumber camp and of rural scenes. By 1910 Walter was a widower raising his six children with the help of his sister-in-law, Lottie L. Sanford. Daphne was born in Michigan to a father from New York and a Canadian mother in 1884, and her marriage to Walter between 1910 and 1920 seems to have been her second. By 1930 Walter had made his son Clifford a partner in the hardware business. |           | 2 |

| His father came from New York and Charles was born in Michigan to a Canadian mother in June of 1847, the elder son of Harrison C. and Esther Fairbanks. His brother James was born two years later. Minerva was born in Michigan to parents from New York in February of 1855, and she married Charles about 1875. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Lena in 1876 or early in 1877, and Ruth in November of 1888. Minerva was identified as Mrs. Caroline M. Fairbanks in 1910, and she was a widow by 1920. The Hillsdale man described here may not have been the Adrian photographer. Another Charles Fairbanks was born in New York State in 1866 or early in 1867, and was the son of John W. and Triphena Fairbanks. His sister Mary was born four years earlier. This Charles grew up in Adrian from the time he was two or three years old, and would have been no more than eighteen years old in 1885. Charles called his studio the Gem Picture Gallery in 1885, when he boarded with photographer Orin D. Fairbanks. No relationship with Orin D. Fairbanks beyond the common surname has been established for either of the men mentioned above. |           | 1 A |

Orin was born in New York State on September 2, 1844, third of the four sons of David and Sybil Fairbanks. He was called Dempster as a child, and was a five foot nine inch farmer with a light complexion, black eyes and dark hair when he was enlisted in the Union army. Orin was enrolled at Antwerp in Jefferson County, New York, as a recruit for Battery D of the First New York Light Artillery on February 6, 1864. He never joined his battery, but when he reached Hart Island he was assigned to Company B of the New York Harbor Permanent Party. He was honorably discharged and mustered out of the army with his detail at Hart Island in the harbor on May 7, 1865, and according to his later memory, went almost directly to Adrian. Addie was born in Michigan in December of 1853, and she married Orin about 1878. His gallery was over Whitney & Wilcox's Bank in 1885. He fell on an icy Adrian sidewalk on January 1, 1888. The nine silver dollars in his hip pocket were forced into his muscle and the hip joint, and his testicles were injured. He employed Miss Mame A. Judge as a photograph retoucher in 1890. Orin applied for an Invalid Pension, and a physical examination in January of 1892 disclosed that he was five feet eleven inches tall and weighed 175 pounds. An 1893 Eastman Kodak advertisement for Solio Paper consisted of testimonials, and three of the eight letters quoted were from O. D. Fairbanks of Adrian. He wrote in August of 1892: "I am using the Solio Paper, and am so well pleased with it that I intend to drop all other papers. For tone and vigor, Solio is the best of all, and for ease of working it's 'out of sight.'" Two of his letters written in November of 1892 were in the same vein. Most of the ten thousand negatives stored on the third floor of his apartment building were destroyed by fire on April 15, 1896. Orin was listed in the 1897 Adrian directory as a "... photographer and prospector in Alaska." He got the maximum pension of $12.00 per month for a while, but by 1898 he was receiving only $6.00 per month. By 1900 his wife had changed her name from Addie to Carrie and they had no children. Orin recalled in 1907 that he had lived at Adrian until 1898, and then had moved to Lincoln County in the Oklahoma Territory. Repeated applications had failed to obtain an increase in his pension by September of 1906, when he was still almost six feet tall but his complexion was dark and his hair had turned gray. He had dropped from 220 to 156 pounds in the past year. Orin was enumerated in 1910 as a farmer in South Creek Township, Oklahoma. He probably died early in 1917.

Her parents came from New York, and Eliza (later known as Goldie) was born in Michigan in February of 1858, and probably was a daughter of Eli and Sarah Z. Andrews. Their family included an older son, a younger son and two younger daughters. Charles Fairchilds was born in New York in June of 1848, was working in Grand Rapids in 1870, and married Eliza about 1877. Their daughters were born in Michigan: Daisy in June of 1879 and Gwen in August of 1885. Eliza was a widow by 1910. "Mrs. E. M. Fairchilds, Scottville, Mich." was printed on the post card backs of photographs, and she was so identified in several gazetteers. The census usually enumerated her as Eliza M. Fairchilds, but once as Elizabeth M. Fairchilds. She was living with the family of her daughter Daisy at Jackson in 1920, and with the family of her daughter Gwen (now called Goldie) at Midland in 1930.

William was born at Hamilton, Ontario, to Scotch parents on May 6, 1874, the son of Francis and Janet (Morrison) Falkner. Mary Ann Hawthorne was born in London Township, Ontario, of English parentage in August of 1875, a daughter of Andrew and Ann Hawthorne. She and William were married at London on April 29, 1896. Their daughter Jessie was born in July of 1899 and died as a child. Their daughters Marion and Rose were born between 1904 and 1908. Rose died as a child but Marion survived. By 1918 William had not expressed interest in United States citizenship, and was medium sized with blue eyes and brown hair turning gray. He was enumerated in 1920 as a photo finisher with his own gallery. The change from 1379 to 7023 Jefferson Avenue during 1920 was due to revisions in the Detroit numbering system, and not to relocation. On February 11, 1921, William became a charter member of the Commercial Photographers Association of Detroit. His residence was in Mt. Allan was born in April of 1870 in New Brunswick, Canada, the son of Hiram and Mary Fanjoy. Margaret J. Greenaway was born in July of 1871 at Tottenham, Ontario, the daughter of John and Ann Greenaway. She married Allan at Toronto on January 25, 1892, and came to the United States with him in 1894. In a marine directory of the Great Lakes he advertised: “Pictures of ALMOST ANY BOAT ON THE GREAT LAKES.” He advertised in 1894: “Marine, Landscape and Portrait PHOTOGRAPHER. Of Northern Lake Scenery, I make a Specialty; and have the Finest Collection of Views in the City. Correspondence Solicited and Satisfaction Guaranteed. RIVERSIDE GALLERY... Opposite the Largest Ship Canal Locks in the World.” Inside a 1¼ diameter pin-back button showing the steamer “Centurion” about 1893 was printed: “Allan Fanjoy, PHOTOGRAPHER, Soo, Mich.” Beginning at Detroit in 1895 and continuing at Celeron, New York, in 1896, 1897, 1898 and 1899, Allan was a regular exhibitor at the summer conventions of the Photographers' Association of America. He was awarded the bronze medal second prize in landscape photography and the silver medal first prize in marine views in 1895, a third prize in 1896, a first prize in 1897, the bronze second prize in landscapes and the silver first prize for instantaneous landscapes in 1898, and the silver first prize for marine views in 1899. He also received the second prize in landscape and marine views at the annual meeting of the Michigan Photographers Association in February of 1897 at Detroit. George Bartlett was in charge of Allan's Bay Mills branch gallery in 1898, and by this time Allan was calling himself a Marine Photographer and Artist. He sold the Sault Ste. Marie photography business to Andrew E. Young. Allan was a principal of the Anti-Trust Photo Supply Company at Los Angeles in 1900. Margaret gave birth to Alma in Michigan in 1897 and to Mary in California in 1900. She was divorced from Allan by 1910, when she and the girls were living next door to his parents in Santa Monica. By 1920 Margaret was a widow sharing her Los Angeles home with her daughters. 5

Charles was born in Canada in October of 1864. He was the brother of Allan Fanjoy and a son of Hiram and Mary Fanjoy. Charles may have been a principal of the photographic firm of Armstrong & Fanjoy about 1886 at Stayner, Ontario. In December of 1887 he purchased the New York Gallery in Collingwood from J. Hamilton & Company, and he continued to use the designation "New York Gallery" on his photograph mounts. Tottenham and Beeton were branches of the Collingwood business, and the Tottenham branch was not open continuously over the indicated time span. Charles immigrated about 1891, and by 1900 was a naturalized citizen of the United States. Charles took views in lumber camps in January of 1892, and he bought the Newberry gallery from Charles E. Tibbot in December of 1892. Ida was born in Iowa to Canadian parents in April of 1875, and she married Charles about 1893. They had three daughters born in Michigan: Inez in July of 1896, Beryl in September of 1898, and Ruth in 1899 or early in 1900. Their daughter Margaret was born in California in 1903. His middle initial was consistently "H" in the Dollarville listings, and just as consistently "A" in the Newberry and Grand Marais listings and all other sources. Since "Dollarville & Newberry" or "Newberry & Dollarville" was printed on some of his cabinet mounts, without question only one Charles Fanjoy was involved. "C. A. FANJOY, PHOTOGRAPHER, Newberry, Mich." was printed on a blue sticker applied to the back of the 10 by 12 inch mount of a 7 ½ by 9 ½ view of eleven deer heads mounted upon a log barricade in the street in front of a group of stores. "FANJOY, Newberry, Mich." was blind stamped into the black 11 by 14 inch mount of a 7 ½ by 9 ½ photograph of a brass band on the lawn of the Upper Peninsula Hospital at Newberry. Charles took pictures near Trout Lake of 26 logs totaling 15,200 feet being hauled by a single team in February of 1895, and at the Ferguson Brothers camp of 24,000 feet of logs being hauled by one team in March of 1895. The Newberry gallery was moved from the foot of Newberry Avenue to John Street opposite the Presbyterian Church in February of 1897. Charles was elected Newberry's village treasurer in March of 1900, and he sold the Newberry business to Victor R. Foreman in June of 1903 before leaving for California. He and Ida still were together in 1920, but had divorced by 1930. Charles died at Los Angeles on April 16, 1941.

Edward was born in Michigan on February 17, 1878, the eldest child of John and Mary Farber. He was single and living with two of his great-aunts in 1900 and 1910. The studio and residence of artist F. Harold Hayward also were at 44 North Front Street in 1911. Mrs. Mary Goldie Cunningham was born in Illinois 1885, and she married Edward about 1917. She had married Mr. Cunningham about 1911, and she gave birth to Wayne a year later. The J. E. Farber Company was managed by Edward's brother, John Eugene Farber. In 1918 Edward was a short stout man with brown eyes and brown hair who had to walk with a cane. By 1930 his step-son had become Wayne C. Farber.

Charles was born in New York State in February of 1845 to parents that came from New Jersey and Canada. May Huacke was born in England in July of 1852, and immigrated to Canada where she married Charles about 1875. They had three daughters born in Canada between December of 1878 and July of 1882, and they moved to the United States in 1888. Their fourth daughter was born in Michigan in December of 1889. "Marine City, Mich. - Wallaceburg, Ont." was printed on many of Charles' early cabinet mounts. In 1905 and 1907 he advertised: "Art Studio, Photography, Copying and Enlarging, Dealer in wall paper, paints, varnishes, picture frames, &c." He was city treasurer and an agent of the U. S. Express Company from 1908 through 1911, and an agent of the Adams Express Company in 1916. Charles was a widower by 1920, when he was sharing his home with his youngest daughter.

His father came from Massachusetts and Frederick C. Fay was born in Michigan to a mother from Connecticut in September of 1856, last of the five or more children of Benjamin and Abiah Fay. He grew up on the family farm. Lillie A. Beavers was born in Ohio to natives of Ohio in June of 1861, the daughter of Jonathan and Hannah Beavers. She married Fred about 1885, and they never had children. By 1905 Fred was calling himself Farmer Fred as a traveling photographer, and he stayed in Brooklyn for only a few weeks. He was identified as the publisher of many view cards printed in Germany, but the only postally used one seen was dated January 31, 1910. Fred used post cards to advertise himself. Beside a self-portrait was printed: "YOU HAVE THREE GUESSES. Who is it?" and on its back was printed: "... I got a new Straw Hat - Last winter, I could not wear one. - I will look, natural again - But just the same, I have in my grip the line of the CONGRESS POSTAL CARD CO. The Latest and Best Post Cards and the Prices are Right. Will call about ..... Farmer Fred, Battle Creek, Mich." This monochromatic card was "Made by the H. Hagemeister Co., N.Y. Made in Germany." Another card showed Fred and his family at ease in their back yard with "Farmer Fred at Home. Kindest Regards of Mr. and Mrs. Farmer Fred." printed at the top and "FARMER FRED, PUBLISHER, Battle Creek, Mich." and "FARMER FRED SELLS POST CARDS - SOMETIMES - NOT ALWAYS - BUT GENERALLY." printed on the sides of carrying cases at the lower corners. Printed on its back was: "10363 Farmer-Fred Pub., Battle Creek, Mich. Printed in Germany." Yet another card showed Fred's facial expressions in five different situations below "FARMER FRED, BATTLE CREEK, MICH., Makes and Sells Post Cards. Best Goods, Latest Ideas, Prices Right...." On its back was: "This card was made for me by the CONGRESS POSTAL CARD CO. and you will see they are not only 'UP TO DATE' but also 'RIGHT DOWN TO NOW.' I am carrying their full line and it is a Dandy. - Don't buy of the other Fellow - If you do you will be sorry you didn't wait. I will reach you about ..... Get Photos ready for Local Views. Farmer Fred, Battle Creek, Mich." A PHOTOETTE card "Made by C. U. Williams, Bloomington, Illinois." was entitled: "FARMER FRED'S NORTHERN MICHIGAN HUNTING CAMP" and showed Farmer Fred with his camera on a tripod. Lettered on a satchel at his feet was: "FARMER FRED, BATTLE CREEK, MICH. COMMERCIAL PHO'S - VIEWS." Beside this was a picture of eleven deer hanging on a pole and: "I am as handy with my gun as with my Camera. You know I have sold post cards for five years. You know I 'am on' to all the 'Latest. BEST GOODS - NEWEST IDEAS - PRICES RIGHT. There is only one 'Farmer Fred' - every body knows me. Farmer Fred's Photographs make View Cards that Sell. My services - experience and new photographs taken - are Free to you - Try me - a Post Card will bring me. FARMER FRED, BATTLE CREEK, MICH. (Post Card View Specialist.)" On the back of a post card photo of the chicory plant at Bad Axe, Michigan, was printed in red: "PHOTO FARMER FRED, PLEASANT LAKE, IND." Something happened to Lillie after 1910, and by 1920 Fred was married to Bell (later Maggie B.), who was born in Michigan in 1870.

Fred was born in Detroit on December 2, 1852, the eldest son of Louis L. and Frances Farnsworth. He was educated in the public and private schools of Detroit, and was associated with his father's shoe business from 1867 until his health failed in 1883. Views of Sault Ste. Marie in the New York Daily Graphic early in 1882 were made from photographs by Fred E. Farnsworth of Detroit. In 1883, Fred was the executive officer of the Detroit Art Loan Association, which made possible the founding of the Detroit Museum of Art. Henrietta B. Clarkson was born in Michigan to parents from New Jersey in May of 1861, and she married Fred on December 2, 1891. Their sons were born in Michigan: Frederick in October of 1892 and Clarkson in September of 1896. Fred was active in the Masons and in the Detroit Light Guard, as well as in many other clubs and societies. He and Henrietta were enumerated at Floral Park on April 3 and at Halesite on April 8, 1930.

| Pentwater Township farmer .....              | 1880      | 1   |

George was born in 1817 or 1818 in Steuben County, New York, and Harriet was born in the same state five years later. Their son Clarence and daughter Catherine were born in Indiana between 1842 and 1844, their sons Rodolphus and Emory were born in Wisconsin between 1847 and 1850, and their son Emsley and daughters Josie and Ellie were born in Indiana between 1852 and 1859. George had been working as a mechanic and was 5 feet 7½ inches tall with a dark complexion, light eyes and dark hair when he enlisted in Battery B of the First Michigan Light Artillery at Grand Rapids on December 31, 1863, and was mustered into service the same day. Thirty days later he entered the post hospital at Grand Rapids where he was confined to his bed with remittent fever for two months, becoming emaciated, superannuated and demented. The doctors decided that he was too old to perform the duties of a soldier even in the Invalid Corps, and he was discharged on a surgeon's certificate of disability at Jackson, Michigan, on April 9, 1864. One month later he was assessed as a Pentwater photographer. George applied for an Invalid Pension from Pentwater early in June of 1864, but later abandoned the application. Harriet was living at Pentwater in 1880, while George was living on the farm out in Pentwater Township. She was a widow by 1900, when she was sharing her Los Angeles home with a grandson and a couple of female boarders. The same grandson was providing Harriet with a home in 1910.

Harry was born into a Yiddish-speaking family at Yurburg in the Lithuanian section of Russia to Myer and Sarah (Krolitz) Feinberg on July 24, 1888, and came to the United States about 1904. He was a stout man with brown eyes and brown hair when he was inducted into the army on September 5, 1918, and sent to Syracuse, New York. Assigned to the Coast Artillery Corps, he served for a month in the 18th Company at Fort Williams, Maine, and then for two months in the 22nd Company at Fort Levitt, Maine. He was honorably discharged at Camp Custer on December 27, 1918. Feinberg & Craine were the proprietors of the Rembrandt Studios from 1919 through 1921. Most Detroit addresses changed during 1920. Mildred was born in England in 1899 or 1900 and came to the United States in 1921. She soon married Harry, and she gave birth to Robert in 1922 or early in 1923. Their son Norman was born in July of 1926, and their daughter Dorothy was born in January of 1930. Mildred was a principal of the Gainsboro Studios in 1940 and 1941, and Max Maun was Harry's partner in the Artcraft Portrait Studios in 1941. Harry was said to be a Detroit portrait photographer for 45 years prior to his death in Sinai Hospital on March 21, 1963. He was survived by his wife and his three children. Burial was in Clover Hill Park Cemetery.

| Charlie was born in Ohio on February 25, 1880, second of the three children of William and Sarah Felger. He grew up on the family farm and became a slender man with brown eyes and dark hair. Carrie Crary was born in Ohio in 1882 or 1883, married Charles about 1902, and gave birth to Gerald in 1908. "Felger Photo 07. West Chicago & N. Main St, Quincy, Mich." was lettered on the negative of a double post card photograph, 3 1/2 by 11 inches. In a small box on the back of the card was printed: "One Cent Stamp Here. 'AL-VISTA'." Written on the same card was: "Fred Southard wanted to know about the Al Vista Camera so got him a sample of Felgers and got you one at the same time.... [The card] Fred sent me ... is a Gloss card nearly the same as the ones you sent. This one is by Badger.... Saw Felger take this...." It seems that Charles Felger owned and used an Al-Vista camera, the earliest American-made popular-priced panoramic camera, made by the Multiscope Camera & Film Company, Burlington, Wisconsin. Standard size postal photographs blind stamped "C. H. FELGER, PHOTOGRAPHER, LITCHFIELD, MICH." include studio portraits, the ruins of several Litchfield businesses destroyed by fire on February 14, 1913, and many other scenes in Litchfield and in Allen, six miles south. Charles was described as a photographer and motion picture man in 1918. He advertised in 1923 and 1925: "Photography in all its branches. Promptly and Properly Produced. You will be Satisfied with Price, Quality and Service at Felger's Studio...." |           |     |

His paternal grandparents were German, his parents came from Indiana, and Clifford was born in Ohio in August of 1869. He seems to have been the only child of Otho and Flora Fellison. By 1880 his father was a widower, and Clifford was boarding on a farm with a couple of sixty-year-old widows. His father maintained a photograph gallery on Fifth Street in Cincinnati from 1883 through 1895, and he married a woman only seven years older than Clifford about 1887. Clifford continued to work with his father when the photographic business was moved to Lockland, a suburb of Cincinnati. In Findlay Clifford met and married a 34-year-old widow named Maud Byal, and her 17-year-old son Carl became his step-son. Cliff produced post card photographs of the Bay City G.A.R. Drill Team ladies costumed for a patriotic pageant about 1921.

His father came from Pennsylvania and Clarence was born in Michigan to a mother from Ohio in October of 1857, last of the four known children of Abiel and Anna C. Fellows. Her father came from New Jersey and Caddie was born in Michigan to a mother from Ohio in 1858, the daughter of John A. and Catherine Throp. Her brother, Samuel J. Throp, and Clarence were partners in the Big Rapids drugstore. She married Clarence in 1881, and she gave birth to Rena in March of 1884 and to Kate in February of 1886. Caddie died and Clarence married Helen Armitage Christian in 1890. By 1900 he was again a widower. Below the photographic image of a house was written: "Photographic Postal Cards of the beautiful homes in Three Rivers. Doz. lots only, 50 cts per doz. Leave your order with C. A. Fellows, Photographic Department." This was on a post card mailed in May of 1906. Louise was born in Germany in 1850, and she married Clarence in 1919. In 1930 Clarence was a widower living with the family of his daughter Kate and her husband, Roy E. Dean.

John's name was sometimes spelled Finherty or Fenferty in early directories, and Fennerty in about one third of the later directories. He was born in Ireland in 1828 or 1829. His wife's parents emigrated from Scotland, and Margaret was born about 1827 in Upper Canada. Their sons John and Thomas were born in Upper Canada between 1850 and 1860, and their daughters Emma and Clara were born in Michigan between 1863 and 1867. About 1864 John pasted a small yellow label on his cartes de visite which stated: "J. F. FENERTY, PHOTOGRAPHS, AMBROTYPES, &C. LARNED STREET, Opposite Post Office, DETROIT."

His father emigrated from England, his mother came from Connecticut, and Charles was born in Massachusetts in 1870 or early in 1871. He was the elder child of James W. and Elizabeth H. Fenn, and his sister Mary (later Caroline) was born in Massachusetts in October of 1872. His father was the Methodist minister at East Tawas from 1888 to 1891. Charlie accompanied East Tawas photographer John H. Dubbs to Oscoda to prepare for the grand opening of a branch gallery in the spring of 1889, and was assistant there to Dubbs, who managed the branch personally. A portrait of Charlie, nearly life size, was exhibited in Dubbs' East Tawas gallery, and was said to be a perfect likeness of unexcelled workmanship. Dubbs found the two locations too much to handle, and had closed the Oscoda gallery by the end of the summer. James W. Fenn was preaching in 1900 at Williamston in Ingham County.

His parents came from Connecticut and Georgia, and Ronald was born in Michigan in July of 1881. Frances was the daughter of Josephus C. and Frances J. Chambers. She was born in Kentucky in 1882 or 1883, she married Ronald about 1907, and they had no children. "R. C. FENTON, Amateur Photographer, DETROIT, MICH." was stamped on the back of 11 by 8 inch photograph mounts about 1899. Ronald seems to have been the only principal of R. C. Fenton & Company except in 1907, when C. B. Fenton was president and Ronald was manager.

His father came from Indiana and Lewis was born in Ohio in April of 1874. Something happened to his parents, for in 1880 Lewis and his one-year-old sister Maudy were boarding with a family named Snider between a farm where his fourteen-year-old sister Olive was serving an older couple with the same surname and a place where his twelve-year-old brother Henry was serving another young family named Easterday. Lewis became a short slender man with brown eyes and black hair and moved in 1898 to Kalkaska, where he boarded with the family of Wilbur J. and Sarah Wilson. Their daughter Sarah Adeline (often Addie) was born in Iowa in October of 1875, and she married Lewis on May 9, 1899. Addie gave birth to Nona Lucie in March of 1900. When Lewis returned to Kalkaska with his wife and child, they occupied part of the residence of the veteran photographer Edward L. Beebe. He probably learned much about photography from Ed Beebe. Lewis soon moved his little family to Munising. "FERGUSON" or "L. G. FERGUSON" was neatly lettered on the negatives of many post card photographs, sometimes alone, more often with a description of the scene, and occasionally with a copyright date. The cards were postmarked from 1909 to 1917, and were of consistently high quality in both printing and composition. In addition to many views of Munising and nearby Grand Island, Lewis produced views of the Upper Peninsula ranging west to Winona on the Copper Range south of Houghton, south to Escanaba on Lake Michigan, and east to the Tahquamenon River and Emerson in Chippewa County. He also recorded scenes in the northwestern Lower Peninsula from Cadillac west to Yuma and north to East Jordan. He photographed street scenes, schools and other buildings, church interiors, factories, logging operations, rustic scenery, boys in bathing costumes on a bridge, ducklings, a three piece logging camp orchestra, the ladies of the camp and a Jell-O display in a store window. His post card photo of the arrival of the Theodore Roosevelt at Munising on June 15, 1910, was vignettted, a technique seldom used for outdoor scenes in this format. He copyrighted a 6 by 8 inch photograph of the interior of Munising's Sacred Heart Church in 1911. Early in November of 1911 Lewis announced that his photography studio would be closing on December first, and the local newspaper advised their readers: "If you want some first class pictures of the Pictured Rocks now is your last chance to get them." The announcement seems to have been premature, for he was a Munising photographer for at least two more years. Lewis was reported to have been working in Flint as a photographer in 1918, but was not listed in any directory. He produced post card photographs of Flint scenes, many of them postmarked from 1920 to 1923. They included views of South Saginaw Street after the arches came down, Lewis and Asylum Streets, the Buick factory at noon, Chevrolet factories, the Industrial Bank, Lakeside Amusement Park, and the swimming pool at Thread Lake Park. Legends, numbers and "FERGUSON" were lettered on most of the negatives. The block letters are similar to those used on Munising photographs, but not identical. Sarah Adeline Ferguson was living at Battle Creek in September of 1918, and Lewis listed her as his wife. By January of 1920 she had married a farmer named Olin Finley and had become the step-mother of his three children between two and ten years old. I have been told that Lewis was buried at Battle Creek, Michigan. The Alger County Historical Society has a good collection of his photographs.

| Riverside, California, PHOTOGRAPHER at the Mission Inn ..... | 1942-1953 | 2   |

His father came from New York and Avery was born near Sparta, Michigan, on December 19, 1883, the only son of Sylvester H. and Hellen (Cummings) Field. His sister Myrtle was born in May of 1882. By 1900 Avery was a slender youth with blue eyes and black hair, and an enthusiastic amateur photographer. He graduated from the Illinois College of Photography in 1906, and worked for a while as a platinum printer before opening the Lowell studio. "AVERY E. FIELD, 'MAKER OF PHOTOGRAPHS,' LOWELL, MICH." was printed on the post card backs of studio portraits, views of business streets and Island Park in Lowell, and scenes at South Boston and Morrison Lake, seven to twelve miles southeast of Lowell. After selling the Lowell photographic business to Frank B. Rhodes in the spring of 1908, Avery took a position in Chicago. Then he enrolled for a course in drawing, composition and the history of art at Hillsdale College, where he met the talented girl who became his wife in 1909. Charlotte was born in Michigan on April 26, 1886, eldest of the five children of Whitfield J. and Flora J. (Mosher) Shepard. They returned to Hillsdale briefly after an eight-month California honeymoon, but were back in California to establish the Field Studios in 1910. The block in which Avery and Charlotte lived in Long Beach was home to two other professional photographers with their own businesses. Charlotte gave birth to their son Thyrsis early in 1911, and to their son Gaylor in October of 1915. The Fourteenth Annual Exhibit of the Grand Rapids Photography Club in the spring of 1912 included a loan exhibit from Avery, who was a former member. Charlotte was working in the photo studio as an artist in 1920. From 1937 to 1941 Avery taught "Photography and the Art of Seeing" to high school and junior college students at Riverside. By 1953 more than 75 of his photographs had been accepted in national and international salons, and Avery planned to retire only when he made a negative which could not be improved upon. Charlotte died at Riverside on June 9, 1954, and Avery lived there until his death on October 30, 1955.

His mother came from Pennsylvania and Charles was born in Lucas County, Ohio, on January 15, 1871, eldest of the three or more children of John and Fanny Finzel. The 1900 census overstated his age by ten years. Nellie was born in Michigan to parents from New York in October of 1868, and she married Charles about 1888. Their children were born in Michigan: David in May of 1890 and Blanch in December of 1892. "C. A. FINZEL, Romeo, Mich., Giddings Block" was printed on some cabinet mounts. Their marriage did not last, and Nellie (now Ella) married Elton Saddonis in 1907 or 1908 and took her daughter along. Charles married Flint photographer Anna R. Furgeson about 1909. In 1920 he was a five foot eight inch man with gray eyes, light brown hair and a ruddy complexion. 2

Lee was born at Plymouth on July 1, 1893, second of the eight children of William and Genevieve (sometimes Jennie) Fisher. "GUNN'S HALL, CHERRYHILL, MICH. PHOTO BY L. C. FISHER" was lettered on the negative of a postal photo. Cherry Hill was five miles southwest of Plymouth. Lee was tall and stout with brown eyes and dark brown hair when he was inducted into the army at Plymouth on November 20, 1917, and was assigned to Supply Company 328 of the Field Artillery until December 16, 1917. He then served with Battery E of the 336th Field Artillery until June 14, 1918, and with the Ordnance Corps until he was honorably discharged on January 25, 1919. "Seventy-fifth Session Grand Lodge I.O.O.F. of Michigan, Centennial Year of the Order, Detroit, October 20 to 24, 1919. Photo by Lee C. Fisher, Plymouth, Mich." was lettered on the negative of an 8 by 30 inch panorama with hundreds of men standing on the street in front of the Elks Temple. Lee still was single in 1920, when he seems to have been working from the rural home of his widowed father.

Truman was born at Bell Oak in the northeast corner of Ingham County, Michigan, on February 16, 1860. His parents were Elizabeth Ann (Mowers) and George Fisher, Junior, who established the village by building a sawmill there about 1855. Truman's four sisters were born between 1861 and 1873. He attended the local schools, moved to Detroit about 1878, and married Miss Johanna Clare in Detroit on November 11, 1885. He and Johanna had two daughters and two sons between 1886 and 1895, and one of the sons died as a child. Truman began enlarging photographs in 1885, and formed the partnership with his brother-in-law Edgar A. Marvin in June of 1892. They were identified as Photo Enlargers more often than as Photographers, and had their own electric plant which powered the enlarging lights. They made high quality enlarged prints on plain Steinbach paper without any coating, and finished them in pastel, crayon, India ink and air brush. An assortment of frames and mats was stocked. They filled orders for enlargements in 24 hours, and their professional customers were asked to make all desired alterations with Chinese white upon the photograph before sending it in for enlarging. Some of their employees were: Albert A. McCoy, artist in 1893; Augustus J. Belanger, photo operator in 1893 and artist in 1894; John M. Weidman, photo operator in 1893 and photographer in 1894; Fred J. Belanger, print maker in 1894; and George Fisher, clerk in 1894. This last was Truman's father, who lived with the Fishers from about 1890 until his death in 1905. Truman was the partner of Charles W. Quatermass from 1896 until 1902, and sole proprietor of the firm which succeeded that partnership. Charles E. Kline was his partner from 1907 to 1909, and they advertised: "Photographers and Portrait Painters. Enlarging and Copying Old Photographs. Commercial and Outdoor Viewing Attended To At Lowest Prices." Truman & Kline also had a studio at Electric Park near the bridge to Belle Isle during this period. Truman died on February 19, 1917, survived by his wife Annie, two married daughters and a son, and three sisters including Mrs. E. A. Marvin. Burial was originally in a cemetery near Eloise. Johanna lived until October 27, 1935, and in 1935 both bodies were moved to the cemetery at Bell Oak.

Charles B. Chase was the other half of Flanders & Chase in Oshkosh. At the 1872 Ionia County Fair, Charles was awarded three First Premiums for his exhibits: $1.00 for the best pictures in water color, $3.00 for the best pictures in India ink, and $1.00 for the best collection of photographs. His partner in Ionia probably was George W. Clark. He sold his interest in the Ionia Art Gallery to Thomas Bauslaugh in the summer of 1873, and employed Miss Maggie Bradway as a retoucher in Grand Rapids the same year. His name was often spelled "Flanders" in newspapers and directories, but was always "Flandres" on his photograph mounts. "THE ADAMS Photograph Studio, Corner 4th and Broadway, LOGANSPORT, INDIANA. Richard was born in Germany in April of 1858, immigrated to America in 1872, and later became a naturalized citizen. Her father emigrated from Germany, Emma was born in Michigan in January of 1856, and she married Richard about 1879. Their sons were born in Michigan: Arthur in December of 1882, Harry in January of 1888, and Elmer in May of 1894. Emma seems to have died, for Richard married Mrs. Johanna Wille about 1904. Johanna was born in Michigan to German parents in 1856. She brought along a nine-year-old son named Carl when she married Richard. "PREMO'S, R. J. Flechsigt, PHOTOGRAPHER, 96 Mitchell Ave., Detroit, Mich." was printed on the backs of 4¼ by 5¼ buff mounts. "Sept. 14, 1898" was written on the back of one of these that carried a 3¼ by 4¼ photo of a storefront. Richard probably had a Premo camera, and had mounts printed for his amateur photographs. He operated his own bakery and confectionery from 1894 through 1907. Mrs. Johanna Flechsigt died in Detroit on May 19, 1935.

Frederick (usually Fred) was born in Michigan in September of 1868, the son of Leander J. and Elizabeth J. Fling. His sister Ella was thirteen years older. Nettie was born in Michigan to an English father and a mother from Vermont in March of 1871, and she married Fred about 1892. Their son Walter was born in Ohio in January of 1895. "F. C. FLING, PHOTOGRAPHIC POST CARDS, TOLEDO, OHIO" was printed on the backs of photographs that were taken at Clark Lake in Jackson County, Michigan. One of these cards was mailed in January of 1909. Clark Lake is one mile east of Liberty Township, so Fred and Nettie seem to have had an interest in that area before they moved there from Toledo. 1 t t 2 t 1

His father came from New York and Clarence was born in Michigan to a Canadian mother on January 8, 1873, third of the four children on Reuben B. and Ann Flower. He became a tall stout man with gray eyes and dark brown hair. Eva was born in Canada in August of 1873, came to the United States in 1888, and married Clarence in 1897. Their children were born at Richmond: Mildred in 1918, Margaret in 1900, and Russel in 1905. The name was often spelled Flowers in the records, but "FLOWER PHOTO" was consistently lettered on the negatives of his post card photographs, some of which were postmarked from 1908 through 1925. Clarence made many postal photos of Armada, Cusic Lake, Lenox, Memphis, New Haven, Richmond, Romeo and Washington in Macomb County; Lake Orion, Lakeville, Orion, Oxford, Rochester and Stoney Lake in Oakland County; and Anchorville, Bay View and Fair Haven in St. Clair County. He concentrated upon views of streets, buildings and other scenes of lasting interest rather than trying to capture current events. His name appears on a few exaggerations, such as Armada's main street with an aeroplane added in the sky and a speedboat added in the foreground. "Flower's STUDIO, RICHMOND, MICH." was embossed into studio portraits on post card stock, probably in the 1920s. t

Ward was born in New York State in 1846 or early in 1847. He was a pupil of photographer Lyman G. Bigelow in Detroit. "ARTISTIC STUDYS, BY W. B. FLOWER, DETROIT, MICHIGAN" was printed on the back of the 4 by 7 inch mount of an almost panoramic view of Detroit's Russell House hotel. Ward purchased the Pontiac gallery and negatives of Augustus B. Taylor in May of 1883, and offered prints from the negatives. He used these words on some of his cabinet mounts: "Remember, I will give any one a dozen Cabinets who will bring me a photograph made by any other Pontiac photographer that I can't beat...." and these on the back of a photographic trade card: "... Viewing, Copying and Enlarging. Pictures finished in India Ink, Crayon, Pastille, Water Colors or Oil. Photographs printed on Silk, Satin, Linen, Wood, China, Glass, Porcelain, Tin, Iron, and Paper. Transparencies for Windows and Magic Lanterns. I guarantee my work to be better than any made in Pontiac, and would be pleased to have you call and examine it. I have refitted my gallery, and now have the finest and best arranged gallery in the city." Ward stayed in Pontiac for nearly a year before moving to Charlotte. Both "Fowler & Flower" and "Flower & Fowler" were printed on cabinet mounts from Charlotte. Printed on the backs of very thin card photographs of statuary was: "W. B. Flower, Photographer. G. H. Fowler, Portrait Painter. CHARLOTTE FINE ART GALLERY, 151 Main Street, Charlotte, Michigan. Flower & Fowler, Artists. Dealers in Artist Materials, Statuary, Terraline Vases. Remember, if you need anything in the line of Art or Art Work, come and see us. FLOWER & FOWLER." Some of Ward's Petoskey back marks included: "... I MAKE A SPECIALTY OF Viewing." One popular accessory in his Petoskey gallery gave the impression that patrons were standing at the rail of a sailing vessel near some of the rigging. 5¼ by 8½ inch mounts were popular for scenic views of Emmet County, and on the back of a such a mount for a view of the beach at Bay View was printed: "W. B. FLOWER, PHOTOGRAPHER, Views of Horses, Boats, Cattle, Portrait Work in India Ink, Water Colors and Crayon. PETOSKEY, MICHIGAN." Ward married first when he was 35 years old. Margaret J. Boller was born in Pennsylvania in 1857, married first when she was 21 years old, and gave birth to Harry J. Walter about 1898. Margaret was enumerated as Ward's wife in 1920 and 1930.

Her parents emigrated from Germany, her father from Saxony and her mother from Bavaria. Ida was born at Honesdale, Pennsylvania, on January 20, 1868, last of the seven children of Charles and Eliza (York) Foedish. During the 1850s and the 1860s her father served Carbondale, Hawley and Honesdale as a photographer. Ida never married, and she was living alone in 1910 when she applied for a patent on a Photographic Printing Frame with the two parts of its back hinged at the ends rather than at the center. Patent Number 986,915 was issued to her on March 14, 1911. Ida seems to have been comfortable financially, for she returned to New York from Southampton, England, on the S. S. His watch maker father emigrated from Northern Ireland and Edward was born in Pennsylvania in February of 1856. He was eldest of the six children of Andrew and Mary (Pratt) Foley. His siblings also were born in Pennsylvania: Fanny in 1857 or early in 1858, Reuben in June of 1863, Andrew in 1864 or early in 1865, Mamie (later Mary) in June of 1867, and John in July of 1869. Edward was living alone in 1880. Jennie Cameron was born in Pennsylvania in April of 1866, and she married Edward when she was 23 years old. Their children were born in Michigan: Katherine in August of 1891, Mary in October of 1892, Lawrence in August of 1894, Jennie in February of 1896, Elizabeth in August of 1898, Dorothy in 1900, Cameron in 1902, and Edward in 1907. "FOLEY'S ART GALLERY, C. G. Agrell, Operator. For Duplicates of This Picture, Call on or Address at Any time, E. P. Foley, Mackinac Island, Mich. We make a specialty of out-door work to order, and keep a large stock of stereoscopic, Cabinets, and 8 x 10 Island views, for sale at wholesale or retail." was printed on the back of a cabinet photo of two young men seated very casually among paper-mache rocks. Edward published a series of fifty stereo views of Mackinac Island in 1886, and then republished the same series a year later with a view of Plank's Grand Hotel substituted for one of the Mackinac House. When brother Reuben P. Foley entered the business, they expanded the series to 54 views and made more substitutions, deleting the view of Foley's Art Gallery. All issues sold for $1.50 per dozen, or 15 cents each for less than half a dozen. Cabinet views of the same scenes sold at the same prices, and they also utilized an 8 by 4 3/4 inch mount. A 6 by 5 inch hard bound booklet of lithographed Views of Mackinac Island was published by Foley Brothers, "... Dealers in Indian Curiosities, Bark Work, Moccasins, Lake Superior Agates, Fancy Goods and Novelties. VIEWS of all points of interest on this historical and interesting island in all sizes and at bottom prices. Steam Agate Works and Photograph Gallery in connection. Views and Groups taken to order anywhere in this vicinity by competent artists. Everything at the very lowest prices. Mail orders promptly filled." John R. Foley succeeded Reuben as Edward's partner about 1894. Their Mackinac Island gallery burned to the ground in 1895. Edward and Jennie still were providing a home for Katherine, Lawrence and Elizabeth in 1930, when all three of them were single.

His father emigrated from Ireland, and John was born in Tioga County, Pennsylvania, to Andrew and Mary (Pratt) Foley on July 11, 1869. He came to Little Traverse, now Harbor Springs, Michigan, with his family in 1877, and with them pioneered the settlement of St. Ignace. John completed his education at the high school in St. Ignace, where his father was a jeweler and became the first mayor. The Mackinac Island business of Foley Brothers was begun by Edward P. and Reuben P. Foley, selling jewelry, agate goods, Indian curios and Foley's stereoscopic views of Mackinac Island. John supplanted Reuben as a partner in 1894. "Foley, Petoskey, Mich." was blind stamped into cabinet mounts. John employed his sister Mary D. Foley as a clerk and Zetuth Worden as a retoucher in 1905. Mary was his bookkeeper in 1910. He married Louise Johnson of Charlevoix in 1906, and their sons were born in Petoskey: Raymond B. in March of 1909 and Andrew P. in February of 1910. John's many post card photographs of Petoskey included advertising for himself and other businesses, spectacular fire scenes in 1909, 1913, 1914 and 1915, and views of the Michigan Winter Carnival in 1935 and 1936. "FOLEY STUDIO, PETOSKEY, MICH." was also printed on the post card backs of photos of Alanson, Bay View, Burt Lake, Conway, Harbor Springs, Menonoqua Beach, Oden, Pellston, Strongs, Torch Lake and Traverse City with postmarks ranging from 1909 to 1935. "87th Annual Session Grand Lodge I.O.O.F. 1931 Petoskey, Mich, Photo by Foley." was lettered on the negative of an 8 by 39 inch panorama. John was active as a scout master and in the lodges and service clubs of Petoskey, where he died in 1961.

Charles was born on February 16, 1838, at Ravenna, Ohio, fourth of the five children of Samuel and Eliza Foljambe. Samuel emigrated from England and dealt in Cleveland real estate for many years. Charles matured into a 5 foot 8½ inch man with a dark complexion, dark eyes and dark hair. Some Foljambe Brothers cartes de visite from Ann Arbor carried two cent revenue stamps, and others did not. Luanna Pauline Shumway was born in Ohio to parents from Massachusetts and Connecticut in November of 1839, and she married Charles at Akron, Ohio, on May 4, 1864. Charles enlisted the next day at Cleveland in Company C of the 150th Ohio Infantry on May 5, and served until he was mustered out of the army on August 23, 1864. He and Luanna had three sons, but only one lived to maturity. DeMorte Shumway Foljambe was born at Cedar Falls, Iowa, on October 23, 1870, and died at Cleveland on June 12, 1878. DeForest Foljambe was born at Cleveland on January 20, 1881, and died at Cleveland on October 14, 1881. Eugene Stillman Foljambe was born at Cleveland on June 2, 1874, and survived. Charles produced stereo views of Cleveland. Luanna was a landlady providing for nine boarders at Denver. She died at Cleveland on May 11, 1915, and Charles died on July 14, 1916.

His father emigrated from York in England and Theodore was born to a mother from New Jersey at Ravenna, Ohio, on February 8, 1840. He was last of the five children of Samuel and Eliza (Brown) Foljambe. He enlisted at Camp Chase in Cleveland in Company E of the 84th Ohio Infantry on May 26, 1862, and served until he was mustered out of the army at Camp Delaware, Ohio, on September 20, 1862. Her father emigrated from the Isle of Man and Mary Black was born in Ohio to an English mother in October of 1847. She married Theodore at Cleveland on June 21, 1866. Their daughter Alice was born in Missouri in April of 1875, and their daughter Florence was born in Illinois in January of 1881. By 1904 Theodore was a 5 foot 7½ inch man with a light complexion, dark blue eyes and grey hair. He died from an abscess of the liver at Amherst, Massachusetts, on October 1, 1909. Mary received a Widow's Pension of twelve dollars per month until June of 1912, and failed to claim any further payments.

Harry was born in Ohio on August 2, 1876, third of the five sons of Henry C. and Lucy May Folkerth. He became a man of medium stature with blue eyes and black hair. He was living with his widowed mother in 1900, and on his father-in-law's farm in 1910. Her father was born in New York State, all of her grandparents were German, and Marie T. Mueller was the daughter of J. Henry and Augusta E. H. Mueller. She was born in Indiana in 1883, and she married Harry in 1901. She gave birth in Indiana to Bertha in 1903, in Michigan to Martin in 1910, in Michigan to Celesta in 1912, in Ohio to Samuel in 1914, and in Michigan to Harry in 1916. Harry guaranteed good photographic work in 1916. They were living at Pennfield in 1918, about five miles from Battle Creek. His parents, Ephraim and Diana Follett, came from Connecticut and Massachusetts, and Edwin was born in Michigan in 1838 or 1839. He was called Edwin in the 1850 census report and in some newspapers, but he was Edward in all other records. He enrolled in a teachers institute at Charlotte in September of 1859, and was a judge of cattle at the Eaton County Fair in the fall of 1862. Edward enlisted as a corporal in Company A of the 28th Michigan Infantry on September 1, 1864, and he died of disease on David's Island in New York Harbor on May 18, 1865. Bellevue Township is only a few miles west of Olivet, and Edward could have been the Olivet daguerreotypist in 1859 and 1860, but the man in the following entry is a more likely candidate.

Edwin was born at Windham, Connecticut, to a mother from Massachusetts on May 4, 1835, the son of Benjamin and Hannah M. Follett. His sister Ellen was born five years earlier. Edwin still was single and living with his parents in 1880. Olivet is in Walton Township, but there is a possibility that the person described in the preceding entry was the daguerreotypist.

Warren was born in Flint on January 28, 1845, second of the five children of cabinet maker David Foote and his wife Mary (Bidwell) Foote. He was 5 feet 7 inches tall with black eyes, black hair and a fair complexion when he enlisted at Flint in the Seventeenth United States Infantry on December 9, 1862. He served in an unattached company of recruits until he was discharged on a Surgeon's Certificate of Disability at Fort Preble, Maine, on May 23, 1863. He and 21-year-old Miss Catherine J. Mattison were married at Flint on June 2, 1869, and never had children. Warren was advertising in 1870: "... Photographs, Ambrotypes, Ferrotypes and Sunbeam Pictures, finished in the neatest style, and warranted to give satisfaction...." The NPA monogram of the National Photographic Association was printed on some of his card photograph mounts from the corner of Saginaw and Union Streets. He was still advertising ambrotypes and porcelain pictures in 1873. Warren employed his brother William as a photographer in 1874, 1876 and 1881, and formed partnerships with Will in 1885 and 1891. He advertised in 1877: "PATENT SOLAR PHOTOGRAPHS, Card Photographs, Ambrotypes, Tintypes, furnished in the latest style. Old Pictures copied and enlarged to any size...." Hannah Marshall worked as a photographer for him in 1892. Warren died of apoplexy at Flint on October 3, 1898, and burial was in Glenwood Cemetery. Catherine, his widow, still was living in Flint in 1920.

Will was born on June 6, 1854, last of the five children of David and Mary (Bidwell) Foote. Nettie J. Bristol was born in Michigan in January of 1857, the daughter of Newell and Mary Jane Bristol. She and Will married at Flint on December 24, 1874. Their children were born at Flint: Grace in March of 1876, William in January of 1881, Mary in March of 1883, Roy in October of 1885, and Fred in December of 1891. Will's older brother Warren was his employer at times and his partner at others. "Foote Bros., Charles Block, Flint, Mich." was printed below the image on some cabinet mounts, and in a second printing, "Foote Bros." was crossed out and "Will H. Foote, Photo Art Parlors." was added. Will employed his daughter Grace as an artist and Mary E. Burt as a retoucher in 1892. His widow, Nettie, was living in 1930 on the Davison Township farm of the family of her daughter Mary and her husband, John Lobban.

Earl's parents, Alvin and Orvilla (Pratt) Ford, came from New York in 1851, and he was born in February of 1861 on their farm in Convis Township of Calhoun County, Michigan. He was the youngest of eight children, and two of his older brothers lost their lives in the Civil War. He was enumerated twice in the 1880 census: on June 1 boarding with a teacher of instrumental music at Olivet, and on June 9 on the family farm in Convis Township. According to some of his Olivet imprints, Earl used the Instantaneous Process exclusively. He married first about 1888. He advertised Photographing and Enlarging from Albion, where his studio was three doors west of the Methodist Church. Earl was succeeded in Albion by Welsh & Neal, and he was a widower boarding with a Litchfield family in 1900. Emma was born in Michigan to parents from New York in 1861 or early in 1862, and her marriage to Earl about 1902 was her second. He was back to living alone by 1920. Martha was born in Michigan about 1862 and married first when she was 17 years old. She married Earl in the 1920s, and was working in a restaurant in 1930 while he enjoyed retirement.

Frank was born at Troy, New York, on September 4, 1845, and came to Adrian in 1853 with his parents. He was youngest of the three sons of Dr. Lorenzo D. and Sarah M. (Redfield) Ford. He worked for several years in a printing office and then began learning photography in 1862. Emma Elizabeth Allsbaugh, known as Libbie, was born in Ohio in January of 1849, and she married Frank in 1869. Their only child was Helen, who was born in Michigan in November of 1895. Frank produced stereo views from Kendallville, and purchased the gallery and goodwill of Kalamazoo photographer Adolphus Van Sickle. Kalamazoo imprints of both F. P. Ford and Ford & Humphrey stressed that Bromide Portraits were a specialty and that there were no stairs to climb. "H. S. Humphrey" was added to the printing on some F. P. Ford cabinet mounts. During their brief partnership, Ford & Humphrey used at least six different imprints, one stating that they used the Instantaneous Process exclusively. Frank employed Henry G. Dornbush for a year or two about 1894. John M. Reidsema succeeded Frank in the Burdick Street gallery. It was reported in October of 1903 that Frank had purchased the Adrian gallery of J. J. Stephenson. Frank and Elizabeth were together in 1920 at the home provided by the Detroit Methodist Episcopal Conference.

George was born in Michigan to parents from New York in December of 1859, fifth of the seven children of Harley or Harvey and Catherine Ford. Note above that his brother Edgar also became a photographer. Blanch was born here in February of 1866 to parents that also came from New York, and she married George in 1887 or 1888. Their daughter was born in Indiana in August of 1890. Both husband and wife were enumerated as photographers in 1900. "McIntyre & Ford ... Union City, Mich." was printed on some card photograph mounts. George's later selection of places to do business seems rather odd. "G. H. FORD, Head Quarters, Manchester, Mich. Gregory, Mich." was printed on other cabinet mounts, while "G. H. FORD, Hanover Branch. Manchester, Mich." or "G. H. FORD, Horton Branch. Manchester, Mich." was printed on still others. Horton and Hanover were 25 and 30 miles west and Gregory was 25 miles north of Manchester, and they were not directly connected by rail. The Bronson studio was identified as a branch of the Manchester business, though it was 75 miles to the west-southwest on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad.

Horatio was born in Ohio in 1851 or 1852, seventh of the eight children of Hosea and Jemima Ford. Anna Knight was born in Ohio in October of 1854, and she married Horatio about 1874. She gave birth to Jasper in 1875 or early in 1876, and to another child sometime after June of 1880. "FORD, Blissfield's ARTISTIC PHOTOGRAPHER..." was printed on card photograph mounts, as was "From FORD'S Artistic Photo Rooms, Blissfield, Mich. Duplicates at Reduced Rates." and "FORD, The Boss PHOTO and TINTYPE Artist, Blissfield, Mich." Anna was a widow by 1900, when she was living at Adrian with her mother and helping to provide for four male boarders.

Ford Motor Company

The Photographic Department of the Ford Motor Company originated in 1914 due to Henry Ford's appreciation of the educational and advertising potentials of the motion picture. Concentration until the mid-1920s was upon current events and educational features. Then the emphasis was placed upon promoting traffic and industrial safety, good roads and modern farming methods. Short films up to 15 minutes long were distributed free to theaters, schools, YMCA's and penal institutions, and other feature films were sold as permanent additions to libraries, schools and churches for rental distribution. Captions for many of the productions were translated, and they were widely distributed abroad. The department was one of the first producers of non-newsreel educational film and was for many years one of the largest film producers in the world. During a depression in 1920 the Photographic Department was reduced from forty to five employees, and only gradually increased in size later. In 1963 the Ford Motor Company presented 1,500,000 feet of this primarily silent black and white 35 millimeter film to the National Archives. It includes 19 hours of excerpts from the Ford Animated Weekly, the Ford Educational Weekly and the Ford Educational Library filmed between 1914 and 1925; 20 hours of coverage of the Ford family, their friends, their philanthropies and Henry's personal projects taken from 1914 to 1954; 50 hours portraying the Ford Motor Company plants, branches, military production and non-manufacturing activities photographed from 1914 to 1954; and 5 hours of other subjects filmed between 1920 and 1952. All industrial processes involved with automobile manufacturing are fully documented. The vintage footage has been copied onto safety-base film and catalogued. There are individual entries in this directory for several of the men who headed or worked in the Photographic Department of the Ford Motor Company.

Foreman, Victor Roy

Newberry LANDSCAPE & PORTRAIT PHOTOGRAPHER ..... 1903-1906 1 m
Gibson, Missouri, lumber manufacturer ..... 1910 2

Victor was born in Michigan to Canadian parents in 1881 or early in 1882. Roy Victor Foreman and Miss Gladys Strangeways left Traverse City by rail in August of 1903 bound for Newberry, where they planned to be married and where Victor would establish his photographic business. Victor purchased the Newberry photography business of Charles A. Fanjoy in June of 1903. Gladys was born in Canada about 1883, and she did marry Victor in 1903. She gave birth to Tyrell in Michigan about 1905, and she gave birth to Herbert, Margarita and Hazel in Arkansas between 1906 and 1909. Victor sold the Newberry studio to Isaac Grant in August of 1906, and was succeeded at Newberry by the Grant Brothers in September of 1906.

Henry was born in Detroit in May of 1864, last of the four children of John T. and Anna M. Forster. Ida was born in Germany in February of 1867, came to America in 1886, and married Henry about 1888. Their children were born in Detroit: Elsie in November of 1889, Henry in July of 1892, Oscar in November of 1897, and Leona in 1906. "H. FORSTER, 180 GRATIOT - 105 WATERLOO, DETROIT." was printed on the post card backs of studio portraits. "HENRY FORSTER, Photographer - PICTURE FRAMES, 105 Waterloo St., Detroit, Mich." was stamped beneath a photo of the Waterloo Street studio on post card stock. Most Detroit addresses were revised during 1920, when 180 changed to 560 Gratiot Avenue and 105 changed to 2205 Waterloo Street. Following a short illness, Henry died at his Waterloo Street home on September 10, 1935. He was survived by his four children and his wife, Ida, who managed the studio through 1941.

John was born in 1819 in the Bavarian section of Germany, where he married Anna and their daughter Catherine was born about 1850. The couple and their daughter left Hamburg on the ship Rudolph on September 15 and arrived at New York on October 30, 1857. Their three sons were born in Detroit: Charles in February of 1858, William about 1859 and Henry in May of 1864. John's gallery was on the southeast corner of Gratiot Avenue and Paton Street in the 1870s. Charles R. H. Forster worked for John as a photographer from 1874 until 1878, and was his partner from 1880 to 1885. Henry E. Forster worked for them as a photographer from 1881 through 1885, succeeded his brother as John's partner in 1886, and succeeded the partnership in 1898. Bertha L. A. Radloff was employed as a clerk in 1893. A photographic journal noted in 1895: "From J. Forster & Son, Detroit, comes a splendid 8 x 10 flashlight of the interior of his home at the moment of a visit from Santa Claus. The Christmas tree with Santa standing beside it, the brilliant fruit, the toys, the children, etc., are beautifully clear and sparkling." Joseph Forster was born in Germany in 1849 and came to America in 1865. Frances Dunke was born in Germany in 1852 and was brought to the United States in 1858. They married about 1869 and raised seven children. Raymond was their youngest and was born at Calumet on June 17, 1889. He became a tall slender man with blue eyes and light brown hair. Though he was single in 1917, he hoped that the Civil Service status of his job would exempt him from military service. He was inducted into the army at Laurium on July 25, 1918, and sent to Camp Custer. He was assigned to the Headquarters Company of the 40th Infantry on August 19, promoted to corporal on September 4 and to sergeant on November 1, 1918, and was honorably discharged on January 27, 1919. Edna was born in Michigan to German parents on May 23, 1891, and she married Raymond about 1921. As Mrs. Edna M. Forster she succeeded Ray as a Calumet photographer. "Forster's - Calumet, Mich." was embossed along the lower edge of post card photographs, including one of soldiers parading past the post office on Pine Street, and a series of an Indian play performed by children in an open field. Edna was a resident of Hancock at the time of her death on April 9, 1991.

| William was born in Michigan on March 23, 1886, sixth of the seven children of Joseph and Frances Forster and an older brother of Raymond J. Forster. He became an average sized man with blue eyes and brown hair. Jane was born in Michigan to Italian parents in 1887, and she married William when she was 23 years old. Their children were born in Michigan: Nadine in February of 1912, William in May of 1915, and Leonard in 1920 or early in 1921. "At Calumet, Mich.... W. H. FORSTER - PUB." was incised into the negative of a post card photograph of removing snow banks from the front of the fire hall. After 1917 William was a "General News Agent, Stationery, Cigars, Publisher of local view post cards." He added souvenirs to this description in 1922. "FORSTER'S - CALUMET, MICH." was embossed along the lower border of a postal photo of an American Legion group parading down a business street in the early 1920s. Jane was a widow by 1930, when she was providing a home in Calumet for her sons. |           | 2 11 211 ttt mm ttt 1 |
